the mile relay.

In the former event he had over 30 yards to spare, but the relay provided him with a big assignment—that of overcoming a 20-yard Goldsboro lead. This he did, and to make things a bit more emphatic, he led his opponents 10 yards at the finish line.

Sams in the high jump, Potts in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Hilton in the javelin were High Point's winners. Durham's other gold medalist was Wilson, who took the 220-yard low hurdles, and finished runner-up in the highs.

Goldsboro Scores

The quarter-mile event gave Goldsboro its first running victory as James got away from the field and led the entire distance to the tape. The pack was thickly bunched as it hit the turn, and as a result many of the boys came face to face with the terra firma.

Besides James, Goldsboro received wins in the 880-yard run by Davis, and the shot put by Pate. Childress of Winston-Salem in the discus, Freeman of Barium Springs in the pole vault, and Swinson of Charlotte in the high jump were the other winners.

Placing in order behind the first four teams were Barium Springs, 15 1-6; Winston-Salem, 9; Greensboro, 7; Raleigh, 4; Rockingham, 4; Oakhurst, 3; Mineral Springs, 3; Walkerton, 2 1-2; Louisville, 2; Sanford, 1.

Town Merchants Begin Trade Week Today

Special Prices and Window Displays Will Be Offered.

With an idea of stimulating trade at home, Chapel Hill Trade Week will start today and continue through next Saturday.

During this week the merchants, who are sponsoring this affair, will offer their goods at special prices and window displays will be made as attractive as possible.

In his proclamation of this week as Chapel Hill Trade Week Mayor John M. Foushee urged "all citizens of Chapel Hill and Orange county to visit the local stores."

sixth ranking. However, official rankings aren't worth a plugged nickle when brothers pile into each other, and once again youth may have its way. At any rate it's sure to be a corking match.

Chapel Hill People!

Trade in Your Own Home Town!

The merchants of Chapel Hill have inaugurated Trade Week.

Begins Today, Saturday, April 13
Ends Saturday, April 20

Merchandise of high quality and great variety is to be found in the stores here. The prices are reasonable —and often they are lower than for the same articles in larger towns.

FAMOUS DIRECTOR TO LEAD RUSSIAN SYMPHONIC CHOIR

Singers to Include Music by Russian Composers on Program Tuesday Night.

GROUP ON 8TH U. S. TOUR

Basil Kibalchich, directing the Russian Symphonic Choir to be heard here under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Series April 16, is recognized as one of the greatest choral conductors in the world.

Mr. Kibalchich's career presents a rather varied picture, he having studied under such old masters of music of the last century as Rimsky-Korsakoff. Later, still under the influence of that great Russian master, Kibalchich perfected himself on the 'cello, but choral conducting still received the center of his attention.

In 1906, as the conductor of the Archangelsky Choir of Petrograd, Mr. Kibalchich gained a national reputation, particularly because of his original ideas in scoring for choral bodies.

Director in Paris

Later he accepted the position as choir director at the Russian Cathedral in Paris. It was this period of his life that he organized his first Russian symphonic choir, so-called because he built it on the same lines as a symphony orchestra. He began to tour Europe, and in a short time was recognized by the European press as one of the most accomplished choral conductors before the public.

The present year marks the eighth season the choir has made a tour of the United States, presenting its colorful programs of sacred, symphonic, and folk music.

ALUMNI REVIEW IS GIVEN AWARD

Editorial Causes Magazine to Win First Place Among Reviews of Country.

The Alumni Review, official magazine of the General Alumni Association of the University won first place among alumni magazines throughout the country during the year in quality of editorial content, according to an award just made by the American Alumni Council.

The award was based largely on an editorial in the February issue of the Alumni Review in which Editor J. Maryon Saunders, in pointing out the urgent need for a restoration of the large reductions made in University appropriations, directed attention to the fact that with the 32 per cent cut the University faculty members are receiving less than those of any state university in the south with the possible exception of South Carolina.

The editorial also stressed the point that no other university in the country of similar rank had cut the pay of its faculty members as much as the reduction made at North Carolina.

It pointed out that under the 32 per cent cut the salary scale of faculty members at Carolina now is as follows: instructors—$1,020-1,360; assistant professors—$1,530-1,870; associate professors — $2,040-2,448; professors—$2,550-3,060.

Watercolorists In Queer Poses Sketch Portraits Of Old Well

Elderly ladies in flowing smocks, on their knees in "Allah's Almighty" poses, were yesterday slapping water-color "portraits" of Old East and West, Gerrard and the Well with broad, paddle brushes.

In the center of the scene was the large huddle of Carolina instructors, townswomen, and students. In their midst was Water Color Artist Eliot O'Hara, traveling painter of renown.

The thrice-weekly class was going on under Mr. O'Hara's direction and aspiring painters were dotted over the hallowed soil about the Old Well . . . one here on the ground . . . another there on a canvas stool, slapping and eyeing her work . . . another over by the teacher's side . . . an empty stool with a half finished "portrait" of Old West and her half closed windows lying unprotected on the sidewalk.

Visitor Arrives

Visitors pushed about O'Hara. A car drove up and a moustached little man got out and left his family to come over and see what all the commotion was about. His grey coat opened for his hands to slip down into his pocket.

Instructor in French J. Leroy Smith moved around behind the crowd; he was not drawing today. Freshman Playmaker Burr Leach grinned and left the crowd to mix his high-pitched voice in a group of Old East boys, out to see the show. Everett Freshman Artist W. (C.) Fields freely told the Old East delegation the "whole story."

The group made its Thursday art tour to University Lake, miles beyond Carrboro. Last week they spent their efforts in purple, red and yellow making immortal (till they wash out their art papers) the old Methodist church.

It was while struggling over this project that the Mickey Mouse Sweatered Little Negro boy, making his bid for fame and recognition in the world of art, darted back and forth on his knees across the church lawn, doing his darndest to "break into the picture." His efforts finally ended in his rising into prayerful posture and adopting a policy of frantic gesturing . . . It was no use . . . Those intellectual artists had no use for him and the pudgy newsboy who is his traditional enemy on Franklin street drove him away.

Back to yesterday's scene at the Well. There was Lena Alice Tuttle, resident Peabody artist . . . Near O'Hara an avoirdupoised man in a brown suit and conspicuous hat leaned unconsciously backward to balance his surplus, all the while watching the work of the artist . . . Across the street before South, there was Life-Saver-Swimmer Umphries doing a "Northbound" view of the Well . . . A young lady on a canvas stool bent down over her work, leaned back again and eyed it carefully . . . "Another bit of green here . . . Yes, some

STUDENT-FACULTY DAY EXHIBITS TO BE SHOWN

Exhibits for Student-Faculty Day last February will be set up again for the benefit of those who will come to Chapel Hill April 25-28 for the Boy Scout jamboree and the Dogwood Festival.

A number of requests have been received expressing a desire to see the sort of work that is done in a university and the members of the University Club have volunteered to act as guides and explain the exhibits.

HOLC COMPLAINS—MONEY COMES WITHOUT NAMES

Washington, April 13.—(UP) The Home Owners Loan Corporation tonight asked its customers to please send their names in along with their money, and quit being so modest.

EUROPEAN CRISIS SEEMS AVERTED

Nations at Stresa Conference Sign Pacts for Non-Aggression; Mussolini Pleased.

Stresa, Italy, April 13.—(UP)—Europe's faltering footsteps took a definite turn away from the abyss of war tonight.

It has been one of the most hopeful international conferences that has been held on the current crisis, for Britain, France, and Italy agreed on united action to avert war.

France Less Insistent

France moderated her demand for the direct denunciation of Germany by the League of Nations. Great Britain persuaded Germany to enter the Eastern European pact for non-aggression, as distinguished from the pact or pacts for mutual defense, which Hitler rejected.

Italy obtained a conference of the Danube countries to draft a pact of mutual assistance for central Europe, which satisfies Mussolini.

As the conference prepared for the concluding session tomorrow, the statesmen of all three countries were jubilant and apparently in a mood to pull together.

Welfare Board to Work On Dormitory Plans

Meeting for the second time this quarter, the Student Welfare Board will discuss dormitory plans for next year in the Carolina Inn at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

The board, according to Dean Bradshaw, is to consider the proposal for adopting the Everett plan in the whole set of lower quadrangle dormitories next year.

Recommendation to the effect that the proposal be adopted has been sent to the board by the students in this year's Everett experimental dormitory.

Staff Meeting

The entire editorial staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL meets today at 2 o'clock in the publication's office in Graham Memorial.

Campus Leaders to Talk To Frosh Tomorrow

Speeches to Prepare Way for Boy Scout Celebration.

Preparatory to the coming Boy Scout celebration here, University Cluber Frank Willingham, Studetnt Body President Frank Abernethy, and Fraternity Council Head Harold Bennett will address the members of the freshman class at their regular assembly in Memorial hall tomorrow morning.

Professor Harold D. Meyer of the University of sociology department, will appear on the Boy Scout program, according to yesterday's announcement from Dean Bradshaw.

WARBASSE TALKS HERE NEXT WEEK

Sociologist Will Lecture, Address Seminars Under Auspices Of Relations Institute.

Dr. J. B. Warbasse, surgeon, sociologist and president of the Co-operative League of the United States of America, will make two addresses and speak before a number of seminars here next Thursday and Friday under the auspices of the Human Relations Institute, Mr. Comer announced yesterday.

Dr. Warbasse, unusual in being distinguished in the two fields of surgery and sociology, was on the official program of the Institute last week but had to cancel his engagement.

Retired in 1919

From 1891 to 1919 Dr. Warbasse was active in his profession, but retired in 1919 to devote all his time to social and economic study.

Besides being president of the Co-operative League, he is a member of the consumers board of NRA, a member of the central committee of the International Co-operative Alliance, and since 1913 a delegate to all International Co-operative Congresses.

Among his publications are books on disease, surgery, medical sociology, co-operative democracy, and social relations of the doctor with the public.

FRAZER REVIEWS RECENT INSTITUTE AT 'Y' TOMORROW

Junior-Seniors to Plan Installation of Officers; Freshman Council to Elect.

WINSLOW CALLED HOME

Because Retiring "Y" President J. D. Winslow will probably be unable to attend, Dr. K. C. Frazer of the department of government will be the speaker at the junior senior cabinet meeting tomorrow night.

President Winslow was called home Wednesday because of the serious illness of his father.

Frazer's subject will be a review of the Human Relations Institute, following which there will be a general discussion.

At tomorrow's session plans will be made for the installation at the following meeting of the recently elected officers of the new regime: President Billy Yandell; Vice-President Don McKee; Secretary George McFarland, and Treasurer T. P. Yeatman.

With the Freshmen

At the same time in the Freshman Friendship Council, Dr. E. J. Woodhouse will also be leading a discussion of the recent institute.

Presented to the rising sophomores will be the list of nominees made last week for office in the next year's cabinet: Bob McGill for president; Drew Martin for vice-president, and Jimmy Coan for the combined position of secretary-treasurer. Further nominations if anyone desires will be made from the floor and the elections will follow immediately.

SUMMER SESSION ADDS 3 COURSES

French s21 and s22 and Elements Of Statistical Method Offered; Archaeology s112 Dropped.

Three courses have been added to the summer school curriculum, including French 21 and 22, it was announced yesterday from the office of Dr. E. W. Knight, director of the summer session.

Archaeology s112, originally scheduled for the second term under Professor James P. Harland, will be dropped from the list of courses to be offered because of the fact that Dr. Harland will not be at the University this summer.

New Courses

The new courses are French s21, with credit of five quarter hours, to be given during the first term at 9 o'clock and 11 o'clock daily by W. M. McLeod.

French s22, with five quarter hours credit, will be given during the second terrm by Leroy Smith at 9 o'clock and 11 o'clock daily.

Elements of statistical methods underProfessor Howard F. Munch will be taught from 10 to 12 o'clock daily during the second term. The course will give five quarter hours credit, but students must have as a prerequisite, education 31 or psychology 21-22.

Parent-Teacher Convention

Mrs. M. S. Breckenridge, Dr. H. D. Meyer, and R. M. Grumman, will leave tomorrow afternoon for Asheville to attend the state Parent-Teacher convention there this week.

Hell Week Practices Falling Into Disrepute On Campus

Among many of the 26 fraternities on the campus, the serio-comic spectacle of "Hell Week" is now in full swing. Paddling, however, if not on the decline, has at least fallen into disrepute as part of the program for would-be initiates. Five fraternities have abandoned it recently for one reason or another.

Theta Kappa Nu freshmen, for instance, protested against Hell Week. They got away with it because the upperclassmen in the fraternity, through indifference or disdain, would not risk a pitched battle to decide their authority over the incoming brothers.

More often the revulsion from Hell Week is accomplished by a chapter president who does not believe in humiliation and paddling as prerequisites for membership. The president of Phi Alpha forbade horse-play, but the members still insist on paddling.

Delta Psi: Nix

Delta Psi has never had any form of horseplay or violence and maintains only what is called the "serious" side of the initiation. Similarily, the Sigma Chi's have recently abandoned stunts and paddling. Tau Epsilon Phi has also determined to abolish many of the obnoxious features of Hell Week. It does not paddle its neophytes, and they are only required to take off their shoes while in the house. They are made to "perform" for the members, but never publicly.

The five fraternities that are not paddling their initiates this year are Chi Psi, Theta Kappa Nu, Sigma Chi, Tau Epsilon Phi and Delta Psi.

Only one fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, has a constitution that forbids the ingeniously concocted "tasks of Hercules" that make Hell Week a cross between a hula-hula show and a public auction. But Lambda Chi Alpha, paradoxically enough, paddles its initiates.

Historic Tragedy

Is it so paradoxical, however? The real danger in Hell Week is not the stinging swipe of the paddle. That is only the discomfiture. The horse-play, apparently innocent in itself, can lead by unexpected turns to tragedy. Back in 1912 Isaac William Rand, a freshman from Smithfield, whose brother, Oscar Rand, was a Rhodes Scholar of the class of 1908, was being made to dance on a barrel. His stunt took place in Emerson field. How could there be hazard in this innocent show put on for the benefit of upperclassmen? Yet that did not prevent 20-year-old Rand from slipping off the barrel—as was naturally expected for the gratification of his audience—and cutting his jugular vein on a broken bottle. Before he could be given medical assistance, he bled to death.

After the state had become thoroughly aroused over this needless tragedy, the 1913 General Assembly passed an act forbidding hazing. Contrary to popular conception, this law, which makes the offense a misdemeanor, does not limit the definition of hazing to indignity or injury imposed upon only a "Fresh"—or new man. It reads, in part:: "It shall be unlawful for any student or students in any college or school in this state to engage in what is known as hazing," hazing being defined as "to annoy by playing abusive or ridiculous tricks upon any student, to frighten, scold, beat or harrass him, or to subject him to personal indignity.'"

Fraternities Liable

That does not exempt fraterity "hazing," yet the practice persists, slighfly diminished but none the less vicious. Hazing and horse-play are now submitted to voluntarily by would-be initiates. The fraternities themselves have set up a sort of categorical imperative, and though there is little likelihood of such a stiuation, it is not inconceivble that a student might prosecute his fraternity brothers under the terms of the act of 1913.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon hatched out an ingenious form of discomfiture for its freshmen during Hell Week. Besides being compelled to wear underclothes made out of gunny sacks, they were all 17 chained together around a small sapling, given two knives among them, and told to free themselves by cutting down the tree. Sigma Nu forced its future brothers to drink a quart of water with every meal. Phi Gamma Delta made its pledges eat beans three times a day on one occasion; bean soup, bean salad, and just plain beans,

PARAGRAPHICS

"Players to Give 'Water' Tonight." It's a free country, ain't it?

An idealist is a man who leaves his raincoat home and says, "It's only raining daffodils."

Elsewhere than on this campus, the anti-war strike turned out to be a war to end war. The demonstrators might at least have picked a better purpose. To make the world safe for passersby, for instance.

Remove the Hell From Hell Week

Five out of 26 fraternities are not paddling their freshmen this year, according to a story in this issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL. The story points out that hazing and horse-play, if not actually on the decline, have at least fallen into disrepute on this campus.

Indeed, there are a great many people in the fraternities themselves who want to see the undesirable features of Hell Week abolished. It is time that their case was heard and their advice followed, for nothing is so damaging to the respect of a campus organization as public displays of damfoolery and the common practice of "beating" with which each organization welcomes its new members into the fold.

To point out that our initiations are in violation of the law is no argument against the rabid exponents of this vicious system. Those who hold a brief for it are sadistically inclined enough to break far more important laws.

Yet, there is no justification for the Hell in Hell Week. None has ever been shown, and never will be. It is a practice that rolls along by the force of inertia, and the selfish desire of upperclassmen to mete out to others the same senseless punishment which they underwent.

It is time that more fraternities and organizations abandoned this shameful feature of college life. Among the fraternities, a handful have pointed the way. Among the organizations of the campus, the Order of the Grail and the Golden Fleece should assert their determination to abolish the unwanted and disgraceful features of their initiations. Other organizations will follow them if they are in earnest.

To prolong the Hell in Hell Week is only to lower campus respect for the organizations that practice it.

To the Student Who Cried, "Sissy"

You brayed out, like the jackass you are, in Memorial hall Friday. You cried, "Sissy!" to the Rev. Donald Stewart while he was speaking against war.

You think that shows your manhood, your contempt for those who want to see this nation stay out of war. Like Miniver Cheevy, you are chivalrous. In your exhibitionistic way, in your bandy-brained shortsightedness, you protest against slurring what you think is the glory of war's depraved and cancerous effect on civilization.

There is only one argument in favor of war. It would rid the world, temporarily at least, of people like you.

Yet the refutation to even this is that you drag down, in your stupidity and emotionalism, innocent men, women, and children whose blood is on the hands of you and your kind.

Notes On The Strike

At the University of Chicago and Los Angeles Junior College violent riots took place during the anti-war strike day before yesterday. At the latter college, two girl pacifists were clubbed unconscious by the police.

Meanwhile, we are glad to note, the University of North Carolina carried out its student strike against war with orderly and effective precision. Included in the Associated Press story on the front page of the Raleigh News and Observer was a parenthetical sentence that stood in sharp contrast to the "peace" demonstrations at other schools. It told of the strike here, its orderliness, and implied the respect that such a protest is bound to draw.

As to the two girls who were clubbed by the police, it is indeed an unfortunate occurence. Having no facts at hand regarding the circumstances, we cannot judge whether the forces of law and order over-stepped their bounds or whether the girl demonstrators allowed their zealotry to embroil them in a breach of the peace.

A breach of the "peace"—must an anti-war demonstration be that? Must it double back on itself and defeat the very end which it set out to accomplish? Is there no other way to carry out a purpose except by violence and bloodshed.

* * * *

The greatest criticism of the expression of student opinion is that it refuses to contain itself, and, like an unwatched pot, boils over. When the anti-warriors determine to avoid civil strife, their cause will progress even greater than it has already. Their hatred must be directed not against all recognized authority, but against war itself.

Spirited Solo Performances

From authoritative reports, we have heard that high school students showed more ability in their different competitive endeavors here this week than in any of the previous annual events in Chapel Hill.

For instance, tennis experts say the tennis tournament was one of the best in years, being especially noteworthy for the number of excellent individual performances. And several of us who listened to the debaters striving for the Aycock cup were impressed with the platform ability of some of the secondary schoolers. What many of the competitors lacked in grace and ease while performing before the critical eyes of the audience, they made up in spirit. And spirit has a lot to do with conviction, although we imagine most public speaking experts would emphasize suavity and carriage instead of ebullience.

All in all, those of us who tried to edge our way unceremoniously into the fun with the high schoolers had as much fun as they did, and were less conscious about it. There's something stimulating about putting yourself back about three or four years and looking on the University as some sort of empyrean which some day you might, if the cotton prices don't go down, realize as a four-year habitat.

A Change for All Concerned

Few students realize the significance of the summer school save as it acts in the capacity of a grim session which must be attended when necessity demands.

At this year's summer educational swing-out in Chapel Hill, 23 visiting instructors will be on hand to take the place of our own traveling professors who will be strung out from the Atlantic to the Pacific, teaching in various colleges.

This migratory instinct is a healthy thing, we think. The change in atmosphere should prove stimulating to some professors who find the process of cramming facts into wooden blocks something of a drudgery after nine months of the effort. Furthermore, the professors probably get new ideas—which some of them need badly—and can carry back to their expectant students the word that the new south really does—or does not—exist, like the textbook says.

And the students who see the same faces for eight or nine months must be glad of the addition of a few new ones during the months of their summer subservience to the demon education. At least, they can have the chance to prove to themselves that it was their instructor's fault and not their brilliant selves which made them flunk the course and remain at the Hill for the summer months. For if they pass under a visiting instructor, think how much they will have to crab about when the regular session comes again!

But, when fall rolls around again and the home instructors come back to the flock, it is with some appreciation that we welcome them. For, despite the novelty of new faces and voices, we cannot forget that it was our professorial staff which pulled this University through the worst economic depression which this institution of higher education ever faced and, we hope, ever will.

CARO-GRAPHICS --- by MURRAY JONES & NASH JOHNSTON

Casual Correspondent

by Nelson Lansdale

Man Bites Dog

New Bern's Lonnie Dill, of whom you may have heard, has been inveigled into writing a guest column, so the less of his time we take the better. Gentlemen, we give you—The Boss:

Carolina Almanack

"CHARLES POE for editor, Carolina Magazine . . . Two years experience on the Progressive Farmer."

I noticed that as one of his qualifications on a bit of University Party literature. (The word "literature" has nothing to do with this observation on the Carolina Magazine, however). It set me to wondering how it's all going to turn out. The belly-wheeze of the Finjan will be sophisticated by Editor Lansdale. Meanwhile, is the Magazine threatened with ruralization?

"If it's in the Carolina Almanack, Nell, it must be so."

Blue and The Gray

THE tale about the Confederate and the Yankee soldier, which every student under Doctor Hamilton remembers as a classic, is another of his contributions to the campus.

The southerner looked dolefully at the Yankee veteran, whose legs and arms had been shot off in battle, leaving him helpless and horrible. He dropped a silver dollar into the latter's faded blue cap. The veteran seemed highly surprised. The southerner then walked around the cripple, staring at him all the while, and tossed another silver dollar into the cap. When he repeated this a third time, the Yankee began to feel something was wrong and asked why he was so unexpectedly charitable.

"Wal, bud," he drawled, "yore the first damyankee I've seen trimmed to my taste."

Correcting An Impression

DOCTOR Roulhac Hamilton, who should be a guest columnist himself, tells one about a farmer drunk from too much peach brandy.

While he was in this condition, the country-side was being drenched by a cloudburst. The river rose and overflowed its banks for miles around. The old man, to escape the rising waters, took to a tree and viewed with alcoholic complacency the chicken coops and outhouses that were floating by while he waited for his family to come and rescue him. Finally, they did come—his three sons paddling a skiff in which the family were tearfully wailing, "Oh, pappy, pappy, pappy! He's done drownded, drownded, drownded!"

The old man crooked an accusing finger down from the tree, under which the boat was then passing. "Thet air," he said indignantly, "is jist how damn lies git started."

One Thing After Another

I ASKED one of the candidates for the P. U. Board, who by the way was unopposed and cannot therefore plead extenuation because of strenuous campaigning, if he would tell me how Wednesday's election was running.

He summed it all up by leaning against one of Graham Memorial's columns and remarking dreamily: "I think at the present time—that it looks like—like things look like things are—pretty well in hand."

Hazing

were the menu for every meal.

Other Groups Guilty

The fraternities are not the only organizations at fault. Others help to perpetuate the sideshow of Hell Week just as religiously as the Greek-letter groups. Even the high and mighty Golden Fleece, referred to as "the highest honor which can come to an undergraduate," lends its endorsement by requiring its neophytes to wallow like hogs in a mud hole that smells suspiciously of stable scrapings.

Including the sophomore social orders, the Grail, Amphoterothen, the Golden Fleece, and other campus organizations, there are enongh Hell Weeks to provide a single undergraduate with half a dozen ordeals during his college career. And the reason abolishing them is so difficult is that the initiated members, remembering their own painful experiences, are ready and willing to inflict similar doses on succeeding neophytes.

A Saner Way

Abandoning the practice of paddling and of freakish horse-play might make Hell Week a harmless series of pranks, free from indignity and full of fun. The campus is vastly entertained by seeing a group dressed like children embarrass their audience by calling for their "papa." When the spirit of "76 goes marching down Franklin street, tooting a fife and drubbing on a tin drum, it's always good for a laugh from both "victims" and on-lookers. Mahatma Gandhis, Armenian rug sellers, Communist soap-box orators—all are taken in a spirit of fun and good will.

But though paddling and the more neauseating kinds of horse-play continue side by side with this comic aspect of Hell Week, they are being deprecated by the campus to a large extent. Instead of allowing freshmen to use their energies humiliating themselves, many fraternities are finding much-needed house work for them to do. The Chi Psi's, one of those that do not paddle freshmen, make their neophytes donate a half-hour's work per day to the chapter. Such plan as this is thought by fraternity leaders to be the most satisfactory solution to the knotty problem of Hell Week.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

I enjoyed the skit on the "Y" cat in Saturday's DAILY TAR HEEL; but I am dogged by a desire to be catty about the howlers therein.

Surely if the author had ever been told the Facts of Life he would be able to distinguish between yelping and whelping; he wouldn't be so funny then, but he'd be more accurate as to the ordinary effect of a cat-clawing upon a terrier.

"She stands taunt on the . . . ice cooler" merely adds to the mass of evidence that no journalist knows the difference between taut and taunt, flout and flaunt.

Lastly, the "grin below her withered, sleepy face" reminds me of my Wisconsin freshman who embellished a graphic description of a hated teacher with the remark, "She used to glare at me sternly over her frizzly pompadour."

For my general opinion of such careless writing on this noble animal, the cat, consult King Lear, IV, ii, 68.

Carolina Scores In Third To Win Diamond Contest From State College, 5-3

Fred Crouch Gets Week's Second Win

Tar Heels Score Five Runs in Single Inning Over Erring Wolfpack Club.

ED VOLIVA LEADS TEAM

By taking advantage of two hits and three State College errors in the third inning, the Tar Heel baseball team defeated the Wolfpack, 5-2, at Emerson field yesterday.

It was the second win of the week for pitcher Fred Crouch. The veteran righthander allowed only five hits, which he kept well-scattered, and was accredited with one of the half-dozen base knocks collected by his team.

Stuart Flythe, Wolfpack hurler, pitched hitless ball for the first two frames and kept the bingles well scattered during the remaining innings; but his occasional wildness coupled with four errors by his team mates proved disastrous for N. C. State.

Neither team was able to get more than one earned run in yesterday's contest.

Voliva Leads

Ed Voliva, sophomore substituting for Shapiro in right field, led the Tar Heels afield and at bat. In the second inning he robbed Ray Rex of what appeared to be at least a two-base knock when he made a sensational catch of the hard hit ball between right and center field. The sophomore also led his team's hitting with two singles

FROSH BASEBALL TEAM WILL OPEN HERE TOMORROW

Tar Babies Meet Augusta Military Academy on Emerson Field at 4 O'clock.

HUMPHRIES WILL PITCH

A long batting and fielding drill yesterday afternoon completed the frosh nine's preparations for its opener against Augusta Military Academy on Emerson field tomorrow at 4 o'clock.

The Georgians have brought some fine teams to Carolina in the past and the yearlings must be at their best tomorrow afternoon if they hope to win the first encounter.

In yesterday's practice the moundsmen let loose with all they had, curves, drops, slow ones and fast ones. At the start the batters had quite some trouble guaging the flight of the pill but as the session progressed they began to hit with a greater consistency.

Fielding Good

The fielding has improved to such an extent that it would be difficult to identify the present team with the one which practiced just a week ago. Errors have been few and far between lately and wild throws are a thing of the past.

Humphries, who is slated to pitch the opening tilt, tossed a few in batting practice, and the frosh swung at his pitches with but little effect. If Humphries hurls as he has in the past, the Tar Babies will stand more than an even chance of taking the contest.

Though Coach James has not made any definite announcement as to the starting lineup, a good guess would have Boone, Craver, Collins and Burnette in the infield, and Coffey, Shore, and Lloyd in the outer pastures.

Strenuous Table Tennis Replaces Easy Ping Pong

Ping pong is no more! It is now table tennis!

The days of pitter-patter are gone! Taps have already been played and the last rites performed. Long live table tennis!

It is a fact that table tennis is simply a new name given to an aged game, but it marks a new era in the history of the sport. The game, as played today by experts, is strenuous, thrilling, and necessitating of skillful participation.

The coming exhibition will wipe out all doubts in the minds of disbelievers. Reports concerning the players are astounding. They hit the ball with terrific power; they retreat 15 feet from the table and yet keep the ball in play; they cavort crazily about the table; they claw and fight, and have blasted all former conceptions of ping pong simplicity.

Requires Everything

The game requires precision, accurate and fast thinking, and presence of mind. There is no time to hesitate and ponder; one must be constantly alert and prepared. The ball careens from one racquet to another with amazing rapidity and fractions of seconds only separate the many strokes.

Watch these exhibitionists. Discover the spin and hops they impart to the ball. There are complexities and irregularities that make the game fascinating. No person can idly take a racquet and confidently face an expert. They know far too much, knowledge that is derived from long play and concentration.

Learn what table tennis actually is! See what masters of the art can do to the little celluloid ball, the victim of such cruel acts.

TABLE TENNIS TICKETS

Tickets for the gala table tennis exhibition to be held in the Tin Can Thursday and Friday, April 18 and 19, are now on sale at the Book Exchange and Alfred Williams for 25 cents.

TAR HEELS, DUKE BATTLE ON LINKS MONDAY, TUESDAY

Two-Day Meet to Be on Hope Valley Course, Starting Tomorrow at 2:30 O'clock.

OTHER TEAMS ALSO BUSY

North Carolina's sports teams will open a week of intensive activity tomorrow, meeting Duke at Hope Valley at 2:30 o'clock in the first part of a two-day golf match; Augusta Military Academy will be here at 4 o'clock in the opening freshman baseball game, while around 15 Tar Heel netters will enter the North-South tennis tourney at Pinehurst.

Playing at Hope Valley, home course for both teams, the Tar Heels and Blue Devils should put on a real exhibition. They are to divide the match into a two-day affair, playing both Monday and Tuesday.

The Tar Baby baseball team, yet to be under fire, appears to be a fair outfit. Coaches James and Wright have been drilling the frosh three weeks for a tough schedule.

Coach Kenfield will take his tennis team to the North-South tournament beginning Monday.

Giants Given Slight Edge Over Cardinals In National Flag Race

New York Favored Above Champions Because of Additional Strength and Great Pitching Staff; Brooklyn Dark Horse; Chicago, Pittsburgh, and Boston High in Senior Loop.

(This is the first of a series of articles on the prospects in the Major League baseball races.)

By JAMES H. MORRIS

With the spring training and Grapefruit league days over, major league baseball teams are heading north and making the last minute preparations before the opening of the championship campaigns, Tuesday, April 16.

In the National league two teams stand out as the most probable contenders for the flag. These are the same clubs that have been the top battlers for the title during the past two years, the present world championship St. Louis nine and New York.

Of course big "ifs" on the other outfits might develop properly and put these teams also in the race. Such nines as Pittsburgh, Chicago, Brooklyn, and Boston can not be forgotten completely.

Giants Set

The Giants hold the most favored position at present because of the tremendous strength Bill Terry seemingly added to his already first class nine during the winter trading. The acquisition of Dick Bartell, shortstop, to replace Ryan or Vergez in the infield, should really make New York quite a number of games better.

Terry, still one of the greatest first basemen in baseball although 38, also has his weak centerfield post in better shape. Davis, who played with the title team in 1933, is back while Hank Heiber, last year's rookie, has also been seasoned.

Along with Terry and Bartell, the Giants will have the veterans Jackson, third, and Critz, second, making a great infield both at bat and on defense. Mark Koenig, another vet, will be ready for duty at any position.

Top Outfielders

Youngsters who have already proven their worth both as speedy fielders and valuable batters, will flank the outfield, Mel Ott, right, and Joe Moore, left, while Weintraub, a .350 hitter but a slow fielder, will act as a relief man.

New York's real superiority will be on the mound. Terry's four-man combination of Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Fred Fitzsimmons, and Roy Parmelee, is the best in the league. With all four ready to go the Giants should have no trouble looking for starting hurlers.

Luque, Smith, Castleman, Gabler, Chagnon, and Stout, will do any other necessary pitching. Gus Mancuso and Richards are both capable receivers.

Frankie Frisch, second baseman and manager of St. Louis, can put out infield and outfield combinations on a par with the Giants and his number one catcher, Bill DeLancey, may rate a little better than Mancuso. In addition to Frisch, Rip Collins, first, Leo Durocher, short, and the mighty Pepper Martin third, round out the first infield with Burgis Whitehead and Charley Gilbert acting as reserves.

The famous Dean brothers, Dizzy and Daffy, are, of course, the class of the league but can harlly be expected to do better or even as good as they did last year, leaving the Cardinal staff slightly weak of starting hurlers. Hallahan, Haynes, Tinning, and Walker are all just fair pitchers as demonstrated in the world series, while the best rookies, Harrell and Kleinke, are still doubtful.

Choral Club to Sing

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be sung by the Chapel Hill Choral Club in the Hill Music hall this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

WINSTON-SALEM WINS NET TITLE

Rawlings and Croom Defeat Charlotte Pair for State High Doubles Championship.

Winston-Salem, which narrowly missed the state high singles tennis title, more than compensated itself with a decisive win in the doubles final yesterday morning.

Rawlings and Croom were the two representatives of Winston-Salem to rout the Charlotte combination of Turner and Beaty, 6-3, 6-0.

It was Rawlings, carrot-topped youth, that barely lost to Canady of Wilmington on Friday for the singles title. However, teamed with Croom, the two presented a smooth-functioning team and the result was never in question.

The Winston-Salem team was seeded originally to win the tournament: Charlotte, on the other hand, was a dark horse, being unranked before the tourney got under way.

Yesterday's match completed the three-day competition with Wilmington in possession of the coveted singles trophy and Winston-Salem the doubles championship.

MURAL NINE PLAY DELAYED BY RAIN; TENNIS TO START

Mass Net Meet Will Continue Through Tuesday.

After being held in check by rain and wet grounds, the intramural baseball tournaments will again attempt to get into full swing this week.

Last week only one game was played, the K. A.'s advancing by virtue of a 15-4 win over Chi Phi. Two games are slated for every afternoon this week except Saturday.

The mass tennis meet with Duke will continue through Tuesday, as 80 more matches remain to be played. On Wednesday the regular intramural tennis will begin, and the competition will be run in league form.

The schedule for tennis will be announced within a few days. Following is this week's baseball slate:

Monday, 4:00, Old East vs. Mangum; 5:00, Delta Tau Delta vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; Tuesday, 4:00, Ringers vs. Manly; 5:00, S. A. E. vs. Phi Kappa Sigma; Wednesday, 4:00, Phi Alpha vs. T. E. P.; 5:30, Aycock "A" vs. Everett; Thursday, 4:00, Swain Hall vs. Law School; 5:00, Zeta Psi vs. Theta Kappa Nu; Friday, 4:00, Beta Theta Pi vs. Kappa Sigma; 5:00, Ruffin vs. New Dorms.

FROSH NETSTERS WHIP WILMINGTON

Potts, Fuller, and Farrell Only Regulars to Compete in 9-0 Trouncing.

With but three regulars in the line-up, the frosh netters maintained their undefeated reputation yesterday morning by whitewashing the Wilmington team, 9-0.

All the matches went in straight sets and only in the final doubles was a set extended past the six game margin. No love victory was recorded but Ramsay Potts came dangerously close in the opening encounter, when he showed his clear superiority over Morris Canady, 6-0, 6-1.

Canady is the new high school champion but was no match for the experienced blond-haired tennis expert.

Eddy Fuller followed with another effortless win over White to the tune of 6-2, 6-1. Then came the break in the Carolina lineup due to the absence of Robinson and Foreman. Frank Farrel played in third and limited Head to two games. Vic Strasberger, Jimmy Bloom, and Johnny Yeomans completed the lineup, all winning easily.

The boys paired up for doubles in the same order. Potts and Fuller won over Canady and White, 6-1, 6-1, and Farrell and Strasberger were almost as severe with Boney and Head. Yeomans and Bloom went 18 games in the first set before winning 10-8, but then finished Jackson and Hollingsworth with a 6-2 set.

The result follows:

Potts (C) over Canady, 6-0, 6-1.
Fuller (C) over White, 6-2, 6-1.
Farrell (C) over Head, 6-0, 6-2.
Strasberger (C) over Jackson, 6-3, 6-1.
Bloom (C) over Boney, 6-1, 6-2.
Yeomans (C) over Hollingsworth, 6-4, 6-2.
Potts-Fuller (C) over Canady-White, 6-1, 6-1.
Farrell-Strasberger (C) over Boney-Head, 6-2, 6-1.
Yeomans-Bloom (C) over Jackson-Hollingsworth, 10-8, 6-2.

NORTH-SOUTH NET TOURNEY ON CARD FOR CAROLINIANS

Large Group of Tar Heels Will Leave Tomorrow for Pinehurst Encounter.

BITSY GRANT WILL PLAY

An entire squad of anxious Tar Heel netters depart tomorrow for the gala North-South tournament held annually at Pinehurst.

After an entanglement of time arrangements with the Pinehurst officials, Coach Kenfield, with the aid of a flurry of telegrams, finally succeeded in shifting the time for the Tar Heels' appearance at the courts to 2 o'clock.

Anywhere from 15 to 25 players will make the 70-mile trek. This decision revolves about the number of cars that will be available for the transportation of the netters.

Real Competition

Competition personified will be the lot of the Carolina hopefuls. They will meet the elite of the nation, the greatest amateurs that have held racquets in their hands.

The Davis Cup team will be there en masse, which includes Bitsy Grant, the newest addition to the honor squad. Alongside of him will be Wilmer Allison, the country's number one man, Sidney Wood, Gene Mako, Donald Budge, Berkley Bell, Gil Hall, Gregory Mangin, and other leading Americans.

For the foreign touch, Rainville will be sufficient, as he represents the top of Canadian material.

The Carolina boys will have their hands full, no matter who they are drawn against. A few of the players will be watched closely against this superb competition.

Educators to Greensboro

Dr. M. R. Trabue and Dr. N. W. Walker, both of the department of education of the University, are attending the meeting of an educational committee in Greensboro over the weekend. This committee was appointed by President Graham for the purpose of considering a combination of the departments of education in the three units of the Greater University.

MASS MEET

The mass meet with Duke resumes Monday! The score is 76-44 but 25 more wins are needed to settle the argument. All players who were listed in Friday's DAILY TAR HEEL are to play in that order tomorrow.

KOCH WILL PLAY HAMLET IN MAY

Playmakers Will Give Long Planned Presentation in Forest Theatre.

As an elaborate final production of the season, the Playmakers will present Hamlet in the Forest Theatre May 24 and 25, it was announced yesterday by Proff Koch, who will play the title role.

Preliminary tryouts for the principal parts will be conducted tomorrow in the Playmaker theatre by Sam Selden, director of the play and designer of the scenery. Tryouts for minor parts will be held later. All students are eligible, and everyone interested is urged to be present tomorrow.

Planned Last Year

A production of Hamlet was planned last year in commemoration of the centennial anniversary of the birth of Edwin Booth, the greatest Hamlet of all times, but was postponed because the Playmakers were requested at that time to present a bill of original plays at the National Folk Festival at St. Louis.

Earl Slocum will direct an orchestra in the playing of music composed by Sir George Henschel for a production of Hamlet at the Haymarket theatre in London, 1892; and Mrs. Phoebe Barr will have charge of the dances. Mrs. Ora Mae Davis will design an entirely new set of costumes.

Mention of the production of Hamlet in the Forest theatre will call to mind other Shakespearean plays presented there in recent years, including A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Taming of the Shrew, and Romeo and Juliet.

ARTIST CONTINUES INSTRUCTION HERE

Miss Lena Alice Tuttle Reopens Studio for Spring Quarter.

Miss Lena Alice Tuttle of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts recently opened her art classes for the spring quarter in Peabody hall. Courses are being given in portrait and landscape, watercolor, and children's creative work.

Besides being used as a classroom, Miss Tuttle's studio contains current exhibitions of work done by instructors and pupils. Of especial interest are paintings by Mr. O'Hara, which will be on display tomorrow evening from five until six.

The classes in portrait and landscape include study of composition, perspective, and color theories, and meet Saturday morning from 9 to 12 and every afternoon from two until five, except Tuesday. Models pose on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons.

A continuance class in watercolor will meet on Saturdays from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5. Visitors are welcomed between 4:30 and 5:30 each day.

Infirm:

Robert Van Sleen, Franklin Broun, Donald Williard, William Anderson, J. H. Knight, E. K. Britt, John Foreman, Hester Barlow, Pat Gaskins, M. A. Aghossi, G. W. McWean, W. T. McGowan, James Idol and Gertrude Pridgen, William Teague.

O'Hara Exhibit to End

The collection of watercolors by Eliot O'Hara now on exhibit in the Hill Music hall will be removed Tuesday morning, it was announced yesterday. Mr. O'Hara's course in watercoloring, which has been going on for the last three weeks, will end today.

REGISTRARS WILL MEET IN RALEIGH

National Association to Have Four-Day Meeting.

When the American Association of Collegiate Registrars holds its annual meeting in Raleigh next week, it will be the first time that the organization has met in the southeast for a number of years.

The association is made up of officers having charge of admissions and records from all the standard colleges and junior colleges in the United States and Canada.

Dr. Thomas J. Wilson, Associate Registrar Ben Husbands and other administrative officials of the University will represent the University at the four-day meeting.

Tuesday morning, Dr. Graham will make one of the two addresses on the consolidation plan for colleges. He will discuss the North Carolina plan and a representative from Georgia, the Georgia plan.

Library Has American Humor Collections

Ogden Nash, Zeb Vance, Abe Lincoln Are Represented.

Following the exhibition on Mark Twain, America's most famous humorist, the University library has arranged an exhibition on American humor, caricatures, and cartoons.

One case is entirely devoted to North Carolina humor; and among the authors represented are Irwin Cobb, Bill Nye, Governor Zeb Vance, and Ogden Nash. This case also includes representative copies of the various University humor publications, namely, the late Buccaneer, its predecessor, the Buck, Jr., the Tar Baby, the Boll Weevil, and the present coffee colored Finjan.

The other two cases are chiefly devoted to the great American humorists: Abe Lincoln, Oliver Wendel Holmes, Artemus Ward.

ALUMNUS TO BECOME DEAN AT ELON COLLEGE

L. Roy Johnston, a native of Alamance county and a graduate of the University, will assume duties at Elon College next September as dean of the college and head of the department of education, according to an announcement yesterday by Leon E. Smith, president of the college.

Johnston has a wide and varied background of educational experience. After his graduation here in 1914, he taught at Oak Ridge, was high school principal at High Point, instructed at the University at Greensboro and in summer sessions at Duke and N. Y. U., and is at present high school principal in Hawthorne, N. J.

French, Spanish Contest Results Announced

Results of the state high school contests in French and Spanish were announced yesterday by E. R. Rankin of the University extension division.

The French test, prepared and corrected by Dr. J. C. Lyons of the French department, was given to 622 students in 59 high schools. Marguerite Tankel of Mills high in Louisburg turned in the only perfect paper, according to Dr. Lyons.

For the Spanish contest, Dr. Sterling A. Stoudemire prepared and corrected the papers. Weltha Battle of Gastonia high school was the winner, he announced.

Carolina's big third inning started when Bullard reached first on Johnson's error. Voliva hit a nice single to left field and Bullard advanced to second. Crouch bunted and was safe at first on Ware's error. Bullard came home on a passed ball. Captain Vick reached first and Voliva and Crouch scored on Lambeth's error. Rand walked and Irwin got a two-base hit to score Vick and Rand.

The Tar Heels threatened to score again in the fifth inning when Rand singled and Irwin and Tatum got on bases after being hit by the State pitcher.

No State batsman was able to get more than one hit off Crouch; however, Rex and Johnson connected with a two-base knock apiece.

Irwin committed the only Tar Heel error of the afternoon when he allowed Farrar's grounder to slip past him in the fifth inning.

GARDENERS TO MEET

The South Atlantic division of the American Rock Garden Society will hold its annual convention here Saturday, April 27, at the same time as the Dogwood Festival, according to announcement by W. L. Hunt, who is vice-president of the national society in charge of the Southern division.

French Club to Attend Play Given at Duke

Members of the French Club are planning to attend the play, "Le Jeu de l'Amour et du Hasard," by Miravaux, being given Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. by the French department of Duke University. The play, which is being directed by Mme. Dow of that University, will be given in Page auditorium.

Contrary to plans made at the last meeting, members of the French Club will meet at the Episcopal parish house before going over to Duke.

DEUTSCHER VEREIN TO MEET TOMORROW

Dr. Spann to Continue Lecture On German Civilization.

On his second lecture program of the quarter for the "Deutscher Verein," Dr. Meno Spann will continue the illustrated survey of German civilization tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in 214 Graham Memorial.

In the first part of the program, Dr. Spann will deliver three short illustrated lectures in German about Germany at the time of Charlemagne, the chivalric civilization and the German amber industry.

Film strips will be used through the courtesy of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation.

German songs will be sung in the second part of the evening. Students who have already a German Liederbuch are asked to take it along to the meeting which will be open to all persons interested in the German language and civilization.

INSTITUTE OF FOLK MUSIC OFFERS SUMMER CLASSES

The Institute of Folk Music is planning to give courses in English and American folk dances and folk songs during the coming summer sessions, it was announced yesterday by Richard Chase, assistant director of the institute.

The courses will offer materials that can be used from the first grade to adult life, he said. All classes will be semi-social occasions and teachers attending the summer school will be allowed to participate in the songs and dances.

ERICSON SPEAKS AT WAR PROTEST OF S. C. STUDENTS

Neighboring University Adopts Three Anti-War Resolutions.

The University English department's E. E. Ericson was the principal speaker at the anti-war demonstration of the students at the University of South Carolina in Columbia Friday.

Students brought from their classrooms heard Dr. Ericson and Dr. Josiah Morse of the South Carolina psychology department on the program sponsored by the Clarisophic Society, a campus organization.

At the outdoor meeting, Ericson pointed out the relations of Fascism to war. Countries weak in their economic aspect shield themselves by pumping up their war spirts, he declared. "Germany and Italy are bent on war," was his conclusion.

The South Carolina students adopted enthusiastically a three proposal plan which included statements that they will not support the government in any way to carry on a war; they will ask the federal government to adopt control of munitions; they will ask the government for a plebiscite declaration of war instead of one from Congress.

FAIRLEY WILL BE BUSINESS OFFICE ADJUSTMENT MAN

Position Is Created for Better Understanding Between Students, Administration.

POST UNIQUE IN AMERICA

Francis Fairley of Monroe, rising senior, has been appointed student assistant to Assistant Controller L. B. Rogerson, it was announced by the administration office yesterday.

Fairley's appointment to the position newly incorporated in the administrative set-up will serve to create an official liaison in the business office between the business administration of the University and the Student Advisory Committee.

Contact Man

Since the advisory committee represents the Carolina student body, Fairley will act as a connecting link between the administration and the students in the matter of business relations and service enterprises.

The appointment, which is for the balance of the present school year, is in line with the policy of the business office in promoting mutual understanding between students and the University administration.

To Seek Improvements

Fairley's immediate duties will be a follow-up in the business departments of the University of the recommendations outlined in the DAILY TAR HEEL by the Student Advisory Committee last month.

The creation of the position of student assistant at Carolina is considered unique in college and university business administrations throughout the country.

GLOBE TROTTERS TO DEBATE HERE

Seawell and Kellar Meet World Touring Bates College Team Tonight on Medicine.

International debaters from Bates College will meet Carolinians Donald Seawell and Norman Kellar tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Seawell and Kellar will uphold the affirmative of the query: Resolved, that the several states should adopt legislation providing to the citizens at nominal costs general medical care and the services of hospitals and clinics.

March Through South

On their round-the-world debate trip, the Maine "arguers" left their college in March and have already appeared at Rutgers, N. C. State, Wake Forest, Winthrop, University of South Carolina, University of Florida, Rollins, Universities of Miami, Tampa, and Georgia, and Emory University.

Although the Bates teams have been three times to England and once completely around the world, this is the first time that they have debated south of Washington.

The Bates team, in supporting the negative, is taking the side least preferred by their opponents.

Entertainment Passbooks

Student entertainment passbooks may be obtained at the cashier's window in the business office of South building today from 9 to 1 and from 2 to 5 o'clock.

CCC SWELLS ROLL WITH ADDED FUND

Administration Wants Future Enrollment of 600,000.

Washington, April 15.—(UP)—The government today began a new attack on unemployment under a work relief fund starting with the enrollment of 110,000 young men for Civilian Conservation Camps.

Armed with $30,000,000, the corps offered jobs on soil erosion, reforestation, and other public works projects, replacing men whose terms ended this month and restoring the CCC to an average strength of 353,000.

After new camps are constructed, the corps will be raised to 600,000 men, the administration hopes.

ALUMNI ATTEND BANQUET IN N. Y.

President Graham Speaks, Former President Chase Is Guest At Annual Celebration.

New York alumni of the University held their annual banquet last Friday at the Town Hall Club in New York City with an attendance of more than 150 graduates.

President Graham and J. Bayard Clark, Congressman from the seventh North Carolina district, were the principal speakers. J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary, and F. A. Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, were present as guests from Chapel Hill.

Chase Present

An honor guest was Chancellor Harry W. Chase of New York University, formerly president of the University of North Carolina.

John Motley Morehead, former United States Minister to Sweden, as president of the New York Alumni Club, was toastmaster. For the new year, Rufus L. Patterson, co-donor with Mr. Morehead of the Morehead-Patterson bell tower on the Chapel Hill campus, was named president.

Graham Speaks

President Graham, in his address, outlined to the New York alumni the development of projects in the fine arts at Chapel Hill and the contemplated organization of a fine arts center at the University.

Other officers were: E. F. Hartley, first vice-president; George Carmichael, second vice-president; George V. Denny, Jr., secretary; Charles T. Lipscombe, assistant secretary; and C. B. Sparger, treasurer.

Among alumni who attended the meeting were George Gordon Battle, W. D. Carmichael, Sr., Junius Parker, L. Ames Brown, Dr. J. E. Pogue, Alexander J. Field, James L. Harrison, Alfred W. Haywood, Charles H. Keel, Dr. Howard A. Patterson, W. D. Carmichael, Jr., William A. Whitaker, and Dr. Holland Thompson.

The New York Alumni Club holds weekly dinner meetings on Friday nights at the Town Hall Club, climaxing the year's program at the annual banquet.

TAU BETA PI

Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in 214 Phillips hall.

Professor J. P. Harland of the classics department addressed the society at its last meeting, Saturday night.

RUSSIAN SINGERS APPEAR TONIGHT

Original Symphonic Choir Will Present Program on Student Entertainment Series.

The Russian Symphonic Choir, which will sing in Memorial hall at 8:30 tonight under the direction of Basile Kibalchich, is credited with revolutionizing the American idea of choral singing.

It is a choir built up, not along the ordinary lines of an ensemble of voices, but on the principle of a symphony orchestra. Kibalchich has assembled 20 voices with the technique of organizing an instrumental ensemble.

Adapt Classics

Director Kibalchich will introduce a new kind of choral music, never before heard on such a program. In addition to church music and folk songs, the choir will offer arrangements of popular light classics, originally written for the piano. These arrangements have been made possible by the director's original ideas applied to choral singing and thus a "Prelude" by Chopin or a "Song without Words" by Schumann finds a place on a choral program.

The Russian Symphonic Choir will include in its program a number of compositions which are considered classic, but are popular in appeal. "The Volga Boatman," one of the world's best known folk songs, is on the program. Among other attractions are several Bohemian chants, which this unique company will render.

Psychologists Examine High School Tests

Find Nine-Month State Schools Average Higher Than Others.

Many thousand standard achievement tests have recently been sent to high schools over the state through the North Carolina College Conference. Over 20,000 high school seniors have taken these tests, and the results are now being examined.

These tests provide an excellent sampling of the North Carolina high school average, according to Dr. A. M. Jordan of the college conference.

The scholastic standing of schools located in widely differing environments may be easily determined. The nine high schools in the state that have been able to retain the nine-month school year have shown a much higher standing than the schools with the shorter terms.

Di Senate

The Dialectic Senate will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in Old West.

Bills for discussion are: Resolved, that a law be enacted in the state legislature providing for the construction of a lethal gas chamber in the state prison at Raleigh in the place of the electric chair; Resolved, that Death Row in the state prison be abolished.

Senators Henderson and Weaver will lead discussion groups on the lethal gas chamber bill.

There will be a special meeting of the ways and means committee after the meeting, which will adjourn in time for the members to attend the Student Entertainment program.

Students Okay Birth Control, Razz Prohibition In Survey Of Attitudes

Carolina Campus, Alleged Hot-Bed of Radicals, Registers Only Slightly Liberal on Political and Social Questions.

The campus of the University of North Carolina, long spoken of as a hot-bed of radicalism, appears through a "Social and Political Attitude" survey made by Virgil Lee of the psychology department to lean only slightly in the direction of liberalism.

This survey, made last spring among 214 representative students, includes questions of economic, political, social, sex, racial, and religious significance. From this it was possible to determine that the average Carolina student would have taken a neutral stand on 12 of the 36 questions, conservative on nine, reactionary on two, liberal on 11, and radical on only two questions.

In comparison with two other schools that have recently conducted a similar survey, the University takes a rather conspicuous position. As would be expected, it was shown to be more liberal than N. C. State but only slightly so. When measured by the standard of New York University it seems a stronghold of hide-bound Toryism.

It is interesting to note the type of questions in which the students showed marked deviation from the neutral answer. Concerning the matter of political parties, the average student took a liberal stand and indicated that he believed, "it is the duty of every citizen to vote upon issues as they arise irrespective of party affiliation."

The heart of Miss Sanger would swell with satisfaction to learn that the Carolina students' attitude was liberal when he answered the question of birth control. He believes that the government should either "adopt an attitude of complete laissez faire and remove all present restrictions or laws in regard to contraceptive information," or else supply people with information concerning birth control.

The students contend that social improvement can and should be made in our society. They think prohibition has been wholly unsuccessful. They were decidedly liberal in their attitude toward the question on the

Co-ed Elections

Run-off elections for president and secretary-treasurer of the Woman's Athletic Association will be conducted between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. tomorrow. Candidates for president are Frances Caffey, Katherine Quigley; for secretary-treasurer, Sally Page, Jean Van Deusen.

NEW BONUS BILL SUITS PRESIDENT

Harrison Says Roosevelt Would Sign His Compromise.

Washington, April 15.—(UP)—President Roosevelt has agreed to compromise with the Congress soldier bonus issue and would sign the bill which Chairman Pat Harrison (D., Miss.), of the Senate finance committee will introduce tomorrow, Harrison said tonight.

He declined to discuss the details of the measure, however. It was reported that its essential provisions include, first, the dating of adjusted service certificates so that they would mature in 1938 instead of 1945; second, the issuance of federal negotiable bonds to veterans desiring cash certificates immediately; third, the declaration of a Congressional policy that no pensions be provided to World War veterans.

Art Classes

The life classes of Miss Lena Tuttle's are studio will begin tomorrow evening in Peabody hall. These classes will meet every week at this time and will last from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. Those interested should see Miss Tuttle before tomorrow night.

Phi Assembly

The Phi Assembly will meet at 7:15 tonight in New East. Bills to be discussed are: Resolved, that wagons should be prohibited from using state highways; and Resolved, that the south adopt the system of agrarianism.

SCOUTS TO HAVE CAMPOREE HERE

"Carolina to Be on Review, Too," Says Frank Abernethy Urging Student Co-operation.

Fourteen or fifteen hundred Boy Scouts in full regalia will gather here April 25 to 28 to celebrate the 25th anniversary of scouting, Professor Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department told freshmen at assembly yesterday.

They will camp at Emerson stadium and in nearby woods. All activities will be at Kenan stadium. Chief Scout Executive James E. West will attend the celebration.

Talks, Camp-Building

Among the activities will be camp-fire discussions and the building of camps adapted to all conditions, including those of the seashore.

Students are asked to take part and help entertain the Scouts' activities by giving them information, and by helping them to become acquainted with the campus.

"We are to be on review as much as these Boy Scouts are," stated Student Body President Frank Abernethy. "In a subtle way we should make them want to come here when they graduate from high school or prep school."

Support Pledged

University Clubber Frank Willingham pledged that club's co-operation and Fraternity Council Head Harold Bennett pledged the co-operation of the fraternities in this event.

Dean Bradshaw gave reasons why students come to Chapel Hill according to a survey made several years ago. Three times as many students are interested in its scholastic rating as in its athletic rating.

FERA Checks

FERA payroll checks for the month of March are now ready for distribution at the business office in South building. All who have not already received their checks are requested to do so today.

EVERETT SYSTEM MAY BE ADOPTED BY OTHER DORMS

Student Welfare Board Approves Suggestion to Extend Plan to Entire Lower Quadrangle.

EVERETT BOYS APPROVE

After a year's successful trial, the Everett dormitory plan may be extended next year to other campus rooming houses, yesterday's developments bring out.

The Student Welfare Board unanimously approved the recommendation drawn up by present Everett inmates that the plan be extended to include the three other dormitories in the lower quadrangle: Aycock, Graham, and Lewis.

Action Expected Soon

President Graham has received the report of the board, and is expected to act on the recommendation before May 1, when applications for rooms next year will begin coming in.

Anxious about the reaction of the plan on Everett boys, Dean Bradshaw had a questionnaire circulated among them about three weeks ago inquiring about the degree of quiet in the dormitory, the cleanliness and general atmosphere, complaints, suggested improvements and changes, efficacy of placing advisors in the dormitory, the differences between Everett and other dorms, and the advisability of extending the plan.

Plan Upheld

Answers to this questionnaire reflected a decidedly favorable reaction to the plan. The questionnaire was followed up by a smoker where the recommendation was formulated.

Besides the questionnaire, the board also considered in making their decision two other dean of students' office findings that the Everett plan has caused little demonstrated improvement in scholarship, yet has improved stability of residence.

During the year, Mayne Albright has acted as manager of Everett and has had as advisers, two to each floor, Emmet Willis, Tom Leath, Tom Hawthorne, Ed Waldrop, Ed McRae, and H. G. Connor.

LITERARY REVIEW SPRING ISSUE OUT

New Studies in Philology Devoted to Elizabethan Period.

The release of the Elizabethan issue of Studies in Philology, a quarterly literary review published by the departments of language and literature, has been announced by G. R. Coffman, editor of the review and head of the English department of the University.

The April issue of this review, the twentieth of the series, is devoted annually to Rennaisance literature, a practive which was initiated by Dr. Edwin Greenlaw, formerly a member of the University faculty.

Contained in the review is the bibliography of "Recent Literature of the English Renaissance," by Hardin Craig, former visiting professor in the English department here.

Other articles contributed by members of the local faculty include a variorium on Spenser by Professor W. F. Thrall and an article entitled "Mottoes on the Title Pages on Some of the Elizabethan Plays," by Professor Robert B. Sharpe.

PARAGRAPHICS

Student-Faculty Day exhibits will be set up again. Meanwhile, Mr. Frazer reviews the Human Relations Institute. Let's pretend tomorrow's the Fourth of July.

The HOLC is sore because people send in money and don't give their names. Wonder if they're the same persons who have a good time by ringing doorbells and then running.

Phillips Russell, says Carographics, is author of "Harvesters," a book "which tells about several great men who lived in the past." Did they—really?

Brawn as Well As Brains

New laurels were added to the crown of Miss Estelle Lawson, alumna of this University and daughter of Professor R. B. Lawson, when she won the North and South women's golf championship at Pinehurst last Saturday. Playing a brilliant game, Miss Lawson brought the title below the Mason and Dixon line for the first time in 35 years.

Also sharing the athletic spotlight at present is Bitsy Grant, ex-protege of Coach Kenfield, with his recent election to the Davis Cup Team tucked safely under his arms.

These two stellar achievements are representative of the national recognition which this school is rapidly achieving as a fountain from which flow leaders in the sport as well as the academic world.

A Babel Of Speech

"Of 16 high school debaters which I judged in the recent state-wide contest, only two of them had the same dialect," declared Professor Horner. "There were variations in pronunciation which ranged from the Middle West brogue to the vernacular of New England." And we imagine, a couple of Stepin Fetchit's thrown in.

No longer can we afford to be mordacious about the "You-alls" and "Suh's" as given to the public by the movies. Somewhere, undoubtedly, there are in this broad southland folk who talk exactly in this manner.

Even in North Carolina it is doubtful if a Ocracoke "banker" could carry on a conversation with a Smoky Mountain "hill-biller."

What Can Be Done About It?

That 211 more students are enrolled in the University this quarter than last spring was pointed out recently by Associate Registrar Husbands. This registration increase is due chiefly to the efforts of the Alumni Association, the University Club, and the deputations sent out by the Y. M. C. A. and other student groups—organizations whose activities in securing new students deserves the highest praise.

But the 219 individuals here in the winter who failed to return to school this spring cancels the rise in registration that would otherwise be effected with the entrance of new students brought here through the efforts of these organizations. Something must be done to cut down the number of students dropping out of the University if the institution is to be of service to the greatest number of individuals.

Speaking the Campus Mind

The Winner in The Poker Game

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

I have been much interested in the growth of an anti-war spirit on the campus, and I think my friends and students would characterize me as a propagandist for peace. But I was struck with an ironic implication in the rhetorical question "What can we gain from war?" which was blazoned across South Building Friday.

Frank H. Simonds, in a recent article in the New York Herald-Tribune, suggests this line of thought: Since by war or show of force the United States has won her independence, gained territory from Mexico, deprived the Indians of their patrimony, acquired Porto Rico and the Philippines from Spain, and secured the Panama Canal Zone, we have independence, natural resources, and raw materials, ample land in which an increasing population may expand, and at least some market for our manufactured goods. We have those things for which nations frequently fight and therefore have no incentive for war. We have everything to gain by declaring for peace.

But what of those nations, such as Germany, Italy, and Japan, which lack raw materials for industrial development, land for expansion, and markets for manufactured products and who see themselves faced with steadily declining standards of living and ultimate disaster unless these essentials are gained? If it is impossible for these nations to supply these needs without war, we must not be surprised if they fail to join hands with us in efforts to maintain peace.

Indeed, the same writer says that the United States may be compared to an individual who, having participated in a poker game and won all the money in sight, proposes that the party break up.

The communication is by no means designed to criticize the anti-war propaganda and activity. Its purpose is to suggest the inadequacy of a program which merely sets forward the determination of "satiated" nations not to fight, without providing peaceful methods by which "unsatiated" nations may obtain those things which they consider essential to their very existence and which they may obtain by war.

Let us continue to agitate against war, but let us not deceive ourselves by thinking the problem of peace too simple.

CECIL JOHNSON.

Argument for Fraternities

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

. . . In a recent issue of your paper I read Carl Thompson's attack against the fraternity system of political leadership and when I think back over the past four years I militate against his accusations. In the first place the question of leadership in any field resolves itself into a consideration of the individual, who if he be strong enough will minimize the forces that put him into his powerful position in order to concentrate on service that will reflect honor upon himself, as well as upon his office; we are all selfish to that extent. Thompson has assumed an untenable position in the light of his past actions, for he supported to the best of his ability last year's editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL despite the fact that his leader was himself a member of the fraternity against which Thompson makes his accusations. But it is the false notion that fraternity men are undeserving to hold campus offices because of their political prejudices that I wish to shake if not dispel. And I feel that by raising several questions this purpose will be best accomplished. What does an investigation of the scholastic standing of the several fraternities which have been most prominent in the life of the Carolina campus as compared with the campus at large reveal? Whose contribution is the most beneficial as well as lasting to the University, the fraternity man who is chosen because of his ability or the popular campus athlete whose chief claim to office is the old political appeal of popularity? Who retains the interest of the University most avidly at heart after he leaves the campus as registered in the stadium, Graham Memorial, the various dormitories and teaching fellowships? So I submit this as a plea to the voters at Chapel Hill to study the results of the past, the efforts of the present, and the possibility of a progressive future should their consideration run to the system rather than to the candidates; it is not my intention that this be construed to have any connection with the present election, I merely see from my brief experience since graduation that the chief function of the kicker is to force thought in his very intention to becloud an issue by appealing to the instinct of certain of his fellowmen to pity themselves and to feel that they are the victims of a vicious party system. There is no greater place than Carolina and it will continue to grow in greatness in proportion to the contributions of each student body through its leaders.

Student Survey

recognition of Russia.

A question about the church brought about a surprisingly conservative sentiment. Most of them agreed that "the church is a substantial agency of progress in the service of mankind. While its functions necessarily change in part with each age it still is one of the largest of civilizing agencies doing excellent service in socializing the individual and making orderly society possible."

Toward naval armament and immigration there were also marked tendencies towards conservative views.

The answers to the remaining 36 questions showed only a slight lean in either direction. Partly liberal were the answers on such subjects as government ownership, protective tariff, the legality of abortions, divorce, academic freedom, conscription for military service, gambling, the socialization of medical care, minimum wage laws, compulsory education, respect for tradition, the powers of labor organizations, war.

However, the students voted conservative on matters of confiscation of wealth, inherited wealth, social limitations in mating, freedom of speech, equality of income, the powers of the Supreme Court, religion and science, the government of Italy, miscegnation, our Latin-American policy, international alliances, and white supremacy.

Alumnus Made Head Of Resource Division

Herman J. Bryson, graduate of the University of North Carolina, and state geologist for the past several years, has been named acting head of the reorganized division of water resources and engineering of the state department of conservation and development, according to announcement by R. Bruce Etheridge, director.

Mr. Bryson, whose office has been in Phillips hall, has been transferred to Raleigh. He will serve as head of water resources engineering division in addition to his present duties as chief of the mineral resources division.

While in school at the University, Mr. Bryson was an outstanding baseball pitcher for the University, and also was instructor in the department of geology.

Tar Heel Golfers Ahead After First Day Of Play

Carolina Leads Duke At Hope Valley 6½-5½

TO PLAY DOUBLES TODAY

Led on by a clean sweep by Dick Harris, the Tar Heel golfers ended the first day of a two-day meet with Duke one point in the lead. Yesterday's matches which ended up with a 6½-5½ score will be followed up by two doubles matches this afternoon.

The winner of the meet will be decided today when the six points at stake are added to the present score. The outcome of the meet is rather bright as the possibility for a split in points is great if there are no upsets or reversal of form.

Yesterday's play was some of the finest that has been turned in by either team on the Hope Valley course which is the home links of both teams.

Captain Erwin Laxton led off in the number one position and dropped his first match this season. Perry, Duke's ace, bested Laxton and won, 2-1.

Harris Gets Shutout

In the second match, Dick Harris proved to be the star of the day and won a 3-0 victory over Sterm. Harris' win was the only match won by a Tar Heel all afternoon. The decisive beating handed to Sterm was the deciding factor in giving the lead to Carolina and possibly the margin by which the meet will be won today.

Will Coffin advanced to the third position formerly filled by Pijanowski, who in turn was placed as number four man. Coffin attempted to follow up Harris' win but the best he could do was turn in a split match against Justin of the Blue Devils, 1½-1½.

Walter Pijanowski played the final match of the day against Powell. His Duke opponent won by a score of 2-1, winding up the singles matches of the meet.

One Above Par

The excellence of the play is clearly indicated by the low scores handed in by both teams. Perry easily copped low with a 71 which is one above par for the course. Dick Harris followed closely, and was medalist for the Tar Heels with a 72, which was but one better than the card turned in by Captain Laxton.

TENNIS PLAYERS TO MEET STARS IN NET TOURNEY

Fuller and Willis Play Hall and Allison Today.

The North-South tennis tournament opened yesterday at Pinehurst with a fierce wind that made play ragged and poor. Twenty-five Carolina entries were entered and at the end of the day's activities there were yet 16 in the running.

Wilmer Allison, seeded number one, did not play yesterday but will see action today. Bitsy Grant, seeded next, was unable to play therefore putting Gilbert Hall in the runner-up position.

This afternoon Eddy Fuller will face Hall in the feature match. The winner of Bill Minor-Eddy De Gray is to face Hal Surface, seeded third.

Ricky Willis will probably clash with Wilmer Allison in the third round and Harvy Harris is to play Barney Welsh in the second round. Ray Bartleman is to meet Rainville, Canadian champ, and Frank Shore is to play Laird Watt, also a Canadian Davis Cup player.

Big League Teams Will Begin Action On Season's Card

Pop flies! Pop corn! Pop bottles! will fill the air as the major league baseball teams swing into their official schedules this afternoon.

There have been various exchanges during the past few months; thus the opening games this afternoon will give the "big bosses" an opportunity of seeing their new combination perform under fire.

Among those wearing new uniforms today will be baseball's idol—George Herman Ruth. This glamorous figure of the diamond will begin his first season with the Boston Braves, having finished 18 years of service with the New York Yankees.

Fan Celebrities

Mayor La Guardia will throw out the first ball at Yankee stadium this afternoon when New York opens against the Boston Red Sox. Vernon Gomez, who carried off the American league pitching honors last year, is slated to be on the mound.

At Washington President Roosevelt is expected to be on hand to give moral support to the Senators who open with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Following is the schedule and the probable pitching choices for each of today's big league games:

National League

At Boston: Hubbell for New York; Brandt for Boston.

At Philadelphia; Mungo for Brooklyn; Davis for Philadelphia.

At Cincinnati: Hoyt for Pittsburgh; Derringer for Cincinnati.

At Chicago: J. Dean for St. Louis; Warneke for Chicago.

American League

At New York: Ferrell or Ostermueller for Boston; Gomez for New York.

At Detroit: Jones for Chicago; Rowe for Detroit.

At St. Louis: Harder for Cleveland; Newsome for St. Louis.

At Washington: Marcum or Dietrich for Philadelphia; Whitehill for Washington.

FRESHMAN NINE DEFEATS A. M. A. IN INITIAL GAME

Coach James' Tar Babies Take Season's Opener, 7-2, from Visiting Military Team.

BURNETTE LEADS FROSH

Behind the two-hit pitching of Johnny Humphries, the Carolina freshmen opened their season with a decisive 7-2 win over Augusta Military Academy yesterday on Emerson field.

The frosh ace let the Cadets down with two hits and had a shutout "in the bag" until the eighth inning when the Carolina infield went haywire and committed four errors, allowing two runs to cross the plate without a hit.

The home club started its scoring in the second inning when Pete Boone led off with a double to left-center. Lloyd was safe on Gallagher's hit and Tom Craver sent both home with a single to center. Bricklemyer grounded out and Humphries drove in the third run of the inning with a long fly to center.

In the following inning Bunny Burnette drew a free ticket to first, stole second, and scored when Peak made a wild throw to centerfield.

Peak started the fourth off by hitting Craver who advanced

DUKESTERS GAIN EDGE OVER U.N.C. IN TENNIS MEET

Duke Students Won 21-19 Advantage over Carolina Yesterday; Tar Heels Still Lead.

NEED SIX MORE VICTORIES

Duke representatives gained a 21-19 edge over the Carolina netters yesterday afternoon as the mass tennis meet progressed into the final stage. However, Carolina is still out in front, 95-65, and needs but six more victories to settle the issue.

This afternoon 40 more matches are slated, and it is urged that all those scheduled to go to Duke report at 2 o'clock to Emerson field. Yesterday Carolina suffered six losses on forfeits, and all who have cars are asked to bring them.

At Duke

Rockett (D) over Hanes, 6-0, 6-1; Hart (C) over Kneipp, 6-0, 10-8; Wheritt (D) over H. Ehringhaus, 6-1, 6-2; Limperly (D) over Potter, 6-0, 6-1; L. Levitch (C) over Fischer, 6-2, 6-0; Graves (D) over Scott, 6-0, 6-2; Bender (D) over Winstead, 6-3, 6-2; J. H. Meyer (C) over Gostin, 6-0, 6-3; J. Barney (C) over Scott, 6-0, 6-1; Morris (D) over Millis, 6-2, 6-1; A. Neal (C) over Blalock, 6-0, 6-1; Patterson, Lentz, Towner, Critcher, Bowman, and Long, all of Duke, won by forfeit.

At Carolina

Brooklyn May Pull Big Surprise In National League Baseball Race

If Doubtful Pitchers Come Through Dodgers Will Be All Set; Chicago and Pittsburgh Strong at Bat But Need Pitching; Boston Has Pitchers and Ruth But Weak in Field.

By JAMES H. MORRIS

During the closing games of last season it was Casey Stengel's revamped Dodgers that were the downfall of New York and this same Brooklyn team has also been looking plenty good during training season. So, although it finished in the second division last year, Brooklyn may be the sensation of the National league. The veterans Cuccinello at second and Stripp at third have shown remarkable improvement and along with Frey, shortstop, and Leslie, first, both top rookies last year, make up a dangerous infield.

Bordagaray seems to be the real outfield find so far this season and with the speedy Koenecke and hard-hitting Boyle the pastures are well taken care of. No catcher in either big league can perform his duties with more perfection than Al Lopez.

Stengel's big "If" is his pitching staff. Van Mungo is a top twirler with any team while Leonard and Benge both had fair records last year. If Stengel could pick up two winning hurlers from Watson Clark, Babich, Lamanske, a rookie, Dazzy Vance,. and Eisenstat, a hometown rookie, all on the squad now, he would be set to give the rest of the league plenty of trouble.

Boston's main claim to top rank is the addition of his majesty Babe Ruth. Ruth will start play at first base and if he should begin driving out homers in the smaller National league parks Boston is liable to go anywhere.

Boston has some more heavy hitters in Urbanski, shortstop; Berger, centerfield, and

Frosh Ball Game

Coach James' Tar Babies will meet the Wake Forest freshman baseball team on Emerson field this afternoon at 4 o'clock. George Willard will probably pitch for Carolina.

Today's Mural Card

There will be two intramural playground ball games today. Today's program is as follows:

4:00: Ringers vs. Manly.

5:00: S. A. E. vs. Phi Sigma Kappa.

Carolina Nine Will Meet Deacons At Lumberton

FROSH TRACKMEN MEET BLUE IMPS

Meet Will Be Held at Emerson At 2:45; Varsity Preps for Initial Encounter.

The freshman track team will officially raise the curtain on its 1935 season this afternoon when it faces the Duke yearlings at Emerson field. The meet begins at 2:45 o'clock.

While the frosh are inaugurating their campaign, the varsity tracksters will be hard at work on the oval at Emerson field. The team has a heavy program ahead.

Penn Relay Team

On Saturday the Virginia team will be the guests of the Blue and White; on Tuesday Duke's Blue Devils will be encountered here, and on Friday and Saturday a team will participate in the Penn relays.

However, to shift back to today's frosh event, the Babies seem to have picked a tough assignment for the opener. The Duke squad started off its season last week by decisively swamping Wake Forest.

Carolina appears strong in the sprints and weights events, but it is also in these events that the Imps have outstanding stars.

Ullman and Maffitt appear to be the best bets for Carolina in the sprints. Here they will have to contend with Larry Lewis, last year's Connecticut interscholastic brilliant, who easily captured two firsts against the Baby Deacons.

Hendricks in the pole vault; Rowley in the mile and 880; Umstead, Graham, and Lambert in the hurdles also appear good for the Tar Baby squad.

Juliber is the stand-out in the weights events and will combat Duke's Charley Fischer, another Connecticutt interscholastic champ, in the javelin and shot.

Crouch or Wright Will Pitch Today

Wake Forest May Send Pitcher Who Defeated Duke Last Week Against Tar Heels.

VOLIVA LEADS BATTERS

Carolina's nine journeys to Lumberton today to meet Wake Forest in its fourth Big Five tilt of the season. It will also be the second meeting between the two clubs, the Tar Heels having won the first tilt, 6-2.

Coach Bunn Hearn indicated last night that he may send the veteran Freddie Crouch once more to the mound or the rookie Irby Wright may get his first chance to hurl for the Tar Heels.

In the three games Carolina has already played, Crouch has pitched every inning. He lost a 11-inning battle to Davidson but then came back last week to defeat the Deacons and State. The right-hander stopped Wake Forest with three singles and no earned runs.

Johnson to Pitch

Wake Forest will probably send Johnson against Carolina. It was Johnson that defeated Duke last week, 5-1. Gaddy will also be ready for duty.

Carolina will be battling for the leadership of the Big Five in today's contest. Both the Tar Heels and Blue Devils have won two tilts and dropped one. The Deacons will also have a chance to go ahead of Carolina.

Ed Voliva, who got two hits out of four times up in his first appearance last Saturday, will again be in the outfield for the Tar Heels if a sore arm is not

Big Leagues

Whitney, third base. Headed by Frankhouse the Braves also have a fine pitching staff but a weak defense seems enough to offset this advantage.

Chicago, as usual, will furnish the real powerhouse of the league. A batting order with Demeree, leftfield; Klein, rightfield; Lindstrum, third base; Cuyler, centerfield; Manager Grimm, first base, and Hartnett, catcher, coming up in a row is a headache for any pitcher. However, the poor Cub pitching has been enough in the past to allow the opposition to keep step with the hard-hitting.

This year Manager Grimm has traded his pitchers around so that he now has French and Carleton as main supporters for the excellent twirling of Lon Warneke. On the other hand Guy Bush, Pat Malone and Weaver have been disposed of leaving the staff still poor.

With the addition of Babe Herman, Pittsburgh also has a tough batting order featuring such sluggers as the two Waner brothers, outfielders; Vaughan, shortstop; Manager Pie Traynor, third base, and Suhn, first base. Also like Chicago, Pittsburgh's veteran pitching staff is pretty shaky. If the Pirates should head toward the top it will be because such hurlers as Swift, Bush, Lucas, Hoyt, Salvenson, and Smith show better form.

It is hardly possible that Cincinnati or Philadelphia will demonstrate that they are in the National league this year. Manager Wilson's Phillies have a couple of excellent pitchers in Davis and Moore but little else. Ryan, Vergez, and Davis, who Terry could no longer use in the Giant lineup, went to Philadelphia but in exchange the Phillies had to give up Bartell. The Reds are starting to get rid of their too-old veterans in favor of more capable rookies but will do little climbing this year unless the youngsters really become inspired.

Pre-season paper dope, which is rarely correct as a result of misfiguring, breaks, and accidents, places the senior loop teams in the following order at the close of the 1935 season: New York, St. Louis, Brooklyn, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati.

to third on Bricklemyer's double to short left and came home on Humphries' infield out.

Burnette Stars

Bunny Burnette personally accounted for Carolina's last two runs when he led off with a triple in the home team's half of the fifth. He counted on Shore's grounder to third. In the following inning Peak was replaced by Corkan who immediately proceeded to set three Carolina batters down in order via the strikeout route. However, Burnette greeted the newcomer in the eighth with a home run, a long drive which sailed over the leftfielders' head to the fence.

During this time Humphries was putting the opposing batters down with apparent ease tataling 10 strikeouts and holding them hitless after the first inning. He just missed a shutout when, in the eighth, the frosh infield became butter-fingered and allowed two runs to cross the plate.

Besides the brilliant pitching of Humphries, Bunny Burnette's play was especially commendable. The third-sacker accepted five chances at the hot-corner without a miscue and wielded a heavy stick at bat, collecting a homer and a triple.

For the visitors, Corkan's relief pitching was the outstanding feature. In the two innings he worked he had four strikeouts.

FOREIGN POLICY LEAGUE

There will be a meeting of the program committee of the Foreign Policy League tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A.

The following students are asked to attend: Agnew Bahnson, Don McKee, Don Becker, Bob Magill, Niles Bond, George MacFarland, and Margaret Gaines.

Magazine Copy

Copy for the May issue of the Carolina Magazine will be due Wednesday, April 24, it was announced yesterday.

All persons who are planning to write articles for the last issue under Editor Sugarman are asked to confer with the editor, who will be in his office at 108 Graham Memorial from 2 to 5 o'clock every afternoon.

DR. KNIGHT SPEAKS FOR LA. UNIVERSITY JUBILEE

Dr. E. W. Knight of the department of education returned yesterday morning from a trip to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, where he had attended the Diamond Jubilee celebration of the founding of Louisiana State University.

Dr. Knight spoke at this celebration in company with W. T. Couch of the University Press. "Graduate Work in Education in the South" was the subject of Dr. Knight's talk. Couch is at present visiting book stores over the south before returning to Chapel Hill.

Economists at Raleigh

Members of the commerce department of this University who attended the meeting of the North Carolina Economic Association held in Raleigh last night were Dean D. D. Carroll, R. J. M. Hobbs, M. S. Heath, J. G. Evans, E. E. Peacock, W. F. Ferger, and J. M. Lear.

bothering him too much.

Last week's infield combination of Jim Tatum, first; Trip Rand, second; Tommy Irwin, short, and Ed Bullard, third, will start the game with Strayhorn working behind the plate.

Captain Vick in center and Gus McIver in left will complete the outfield, while Ed Shapiro may see action in place of Voliva or McIver.

The Deacons will probably use the same lineup which met Carolina last week. It included Dallis Morris, third; Gold, rightfield; Mitchell, second; Wall, centerfield; Patton, first; Chappell, short; B. Morris, leftfield, and Myers, catcher.

Besides the .500 average of Voliva in one game, Trip Rand, second baseman, is leading the Carolina batting with a mark of .417. He is followed by his keystone mate, Tommy Irwin, who has an average of .364. No other player is hitting over .300.

MIDNIGHT SHOW FRIDAY

8,271 men and women visited the Chesterfield factories during the past year . . .

A man who visited a Chesterfield factory recently, said: "Now that I have seen Chesterfields made, I understand better than ever why people say Chesterfields are milder and have a better taste."

If you too could visit our factories you could see the clean, airy surroundings; the employees in their spotless uniforms, and the modern cigarette making machinery.

You could notice how carefully each Chesterfield cigarette is inspected and see also how Chesterfields are practically untouched by human hands.

Whenever you happen to be in Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., or San Francisco, California, we invite you to stop at the Liggett & Myers plants and see how Chesterfields are made.

Stock Trading Restrictions

Washington, April 16.—(UP)—The country's stock exhanges tonight received from the federal government 16 new rules designed to restrict excessive trading by brokers and to discourage manipulation of prices.

The rules issued by the Securities Exchange Commission would prohibit excessive trading by members of the exchanges, firms and partners trading for their own account, and specialists.

The specialists are to restrict their own trading to the security in which they specialize. Members are forbidden to make purchases at successively higher prices or to sell at successively lower ones in order to create a misleading appearance of activity.

Baning Bill

Washington, April 16.—(UP)—Roosevelt tonight struck to safeguard the section of the new Baning bill which creates a virtual central authority by increasing the broad powers of the Federal Reserve Board.

The administration informed Senator Carter Glass, Democrat from Virginia and one of the bill's most persistent critics, who will guide the bill through the Senate, that it wants the bill passed as a whole, not in two measures as Glass desires.

DI, PHI WILL ACT JOINTLY ON BILLS

Daily Tar Heel Editorial Prompts Action; Senate Condemns 8 O'clock Classes.

The Di Senate started something new last night.

Acting on the suggestion of a DAILY TAR HEEL editorial that the Di and the Phi should act as a bi-cameral legislative body in the consideration of certain bills, the senators almost unanimously approved a motion that a committee be appointed to meet with a similar committee from the Phi to draw up plans for the passage or rejection of important bills in true American legislative fashion, by both bodies acting consecutively.

Committees Appointed

A committee composed of Senators Blackwell, Eagles, Rawls, and Gibbes will study the proposed new plan jointly with a Phi committee of Representatives Daniels, Rabb, Peterson, and Parker. In addition to appointing the committee, the assembly also passed a resolution promising support for the plan.

Hot and often personal discussion preceded the passage by a close 8-6 vote of a bill condemning the student welfare board's plan providing for a class schedule beginning at 8 o'clock.

Attendance Drive

In the other action of the night the Senate took steps to improve attendance of members, and voted down after hasty and superficial consideration a proposal for the substitution of a lethal gas chamber for the electric chair in the punishment of capital offenses.

WARBASSE TALKS HERE TOMORROW

Sociologists to Address Seminars, Gerrard Audiences, Tomorrow and Friday.

Dr. J. B. Warbasse, New York surgeon turned sociologist, will continue the Human Relations Institute here tomorrow and Friday nights in addresses at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall. The topics of his talks have not been announced.

Dr. Warbasse, who had to cancel an earlier engagement to speak on the Institute program, will also be present at a number of seminars, where he will lend the voice of authority in the two fields of surgery and sociology.

President of the Co-operative League of the United States of America, he is also a member of the consumers' board of NRA and of the International Co-operative Alliance, and has written books on medical sociology, co-operative democracy, and a number of other related subjects.

U. N. C. DEBATERS CONTEST BATES

Appreciative Audience Hears University Team in Clash With Maine Deputation.

An appreciative audience in Gerrard hall last night witnessed a debate team in action representing Bates College, a school that takes its debating as seriously as most schools take football.

The interest of the entire student body of this Maine college is centered on their team which visited Chapel Hill last night.

The "Down Easters," Bond Perry and W. J. Norton, took the negative of the query, Resolved, that the several states should adopt legislation providing to the citizens at nominal costs general medical care and the services of hospitals and clinics. In supporting the negative of this question the Bates team took the side least preferred by Carolina.

U. N. C. Team

Don Seawell and Norman Kellar upheld the affirmative of the query for Carolina.

Proof of the interest shown in debating at Bates is evidenced by the fact that teams from there have debated in England on three different trips, and made one round-the-world tour. On this, their first trip south of Washington, they have appeared at Rutgers, N. C. State, Wake Forest, Winthrop College, Rollins, Emory University, and the Universities of Florida, Miami, Tampa, Georgia, and South Carolina.

A.B. Freshmen to Meet

Dean A. W. Hobbs of the college of liberal arts will be the only dean to meet his freshmen today. Hobbs will speak in Gerrard hall at 10:30 o'clock.

Finjan Meeting

Editor-elect Nelson Lansdale has called a meeting of all those interested in working for the campus humor publication in the Finjan office in Graham Memorial at 9 o'clock tonight. All members of the staff of the present Finjan who expect to work under the new editor are also requested to be present.

LIBRARIANS PLAN NEW CURRICULUM

Regular One-Year Course Offered in Summer Sessions.

Beginning in 1935 the school of library science of the University will offer its regular one-year curriculum in consecutive summers, making it possible to complete the work and secure the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Library Science in three summers, according to an announcement by Susan Grey Akers, acting director.

"The summer session courses are offered especially with a view to enabling school librarians and teacher-librarians to secure a full year's curriculum in library science. Special attention will be given to the application of these fundamental courses to school libraries," the announcement said.

"The first term there will be courses in the principles of book selection, book selection for high school libraries, and cataloging and classification. The second term these courses in principles of book selection and book selection for high school libraries will be continued and a course in reference and subject bibliography will be offered. Informal conferences with individuals or groups of students having similar problems will be scheduled both terms for the consideration of specific problems of the libraries in which the students work."

The courses will be open to students who are college graduates, can meet the entrance requirements of the school, and are candidates for the degree; and to mature students who wish to enter certain courses as special students.

MONEY BILL FIRM BEFORE ASSAULTS

Senate Defeats New Legislation; House Approves Section.

Raleigh, April 16.—(UP)—The Senate in a committee of the whole today refused to reconsider its vote which replaced the exemptions of basic foodstuffs in the sales tax schedule of the revenue bill.

The effort of Senator Steele, Iredell county, to place a corporate excess tax on foreign corporations resulted in failure.

The amendment would have placed a tax of $1.50 per thousand dollars on corporate excess figures at ten times net income.

The House passed the revenue machinery bill, adding livestock to $300 personal property exemptions.

The House tabled a bill to transfer the duties of the commissioner of banks to the commissioner of public utilities, and voted down a bill directing the state treasurer to pay state employees portion of their salary which was withheld in 1933.

Watson of Selma, president of the pharmacy school sophomore class, with Miss Eloise Gibbs of Columbia.

LEAGUE TO BEGIN NEW FORUM PLAN

Group to Inaugurate Des Moines Program; MacFarland to Lead Discussion.

The program committee of the Foreign Policy League met yesterday morning with Chairman Joe Barnett, drew up plans for future meetings, and passed on a new type of forum leadership known as the Des Moines plan.

The league will meet tomorrow evening to elect officers for the coming year. A speaker is also being secured to present the significance of the contemporary Stresa Conference, now being held in Europe.

Next week George MacFarland will lead the group and speak on "Can America Remain Neutral in Event of War." This is an attempt to follow up the problem presented by Dr. Polanyi in his recent visit to the campus.

New Plan

At this meeting the Des Moines plan of forum leadership will be inaugurated.

The plan provides that the first ten minutes of the meeting be devoted to outlining the outstanding current events of the preceding two weeks. The principal speaker then delivers the topic of the evening, to be followed by questions directed att he speaker by a prepared panel of questioners.

"Because this plan is a new idea," stated Joe Barnett, "and because it is being tried by college organizations over the entire United States, members of the league would do well to give it a fair trial. Also, members of other campus groups might find it suitable for use in their forums."

The ship, carrying six men, made a perfect take-off. In command is Captain Edwin C. Musick.

PROUTY SUPPORTS METEORIC THEORY

Geologists Survey Coastal Plain; Find New Evidence on Lake Basin Origins.

Evidence supporting the meteoric theory of lake basin origins in portions of the coastal plain areas of the Carolinas has been revealed by Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the geology department of the University.

Dr. Prouty, with two other geologists from the University, Dr. G. R. MacCarthy and Dr. H. W. Straley, engaged in a field investigation of the elliptical depressions in the earth in the area surrounding Florence, S. C., and in the White Lake section of this state.

Findings Published

A geological and geophysical reconnaissance of the lake basin portion of the costal plain conducted by Dr. Prouty and others in 1933 resulted in much evidence to support the meteoric origin theory being produced. The findings of this expedition are published in the current issue of the "Journal of Geology." Additional data was secured in the more recent investigation.

Magnetometer investigations showed remarkably high magnetic areas in association with each of the elliptical depressions in the lake country of southeastern North Carolina. Magnetic areas in the Myrtle Beach area of South Carolina proved to be well defined though smaller, Dr. Prouty has disclosed.

Work done by the magnetometer seems to justify the conclusion that, in general, a magnetic high is found a short distance east of the southeast end of the elliptical bays and basins. This makes it reasonable, and probable, Dr. Prouty believes, that the basins were formed by the fall of a meteroic body, and that this meteorite is buried at a great depth or has been deflected out of its original course.

NEW PHI SPEAKER MAKES PROPOSAL FOR ALTERATIONS

Says Time Has Come for Radical Change, Complete Reorganization, Reconditioning.

TO HAVE SLOGAN CONTEST

A new era for the Phi assembly appeared in the offing last night as Speaker Albert Ellis prepared to sweep tradition aside in reorganizing and reconditioning the ancient organization.

"The time has come to make a radical change," Speaker Ellis stated in an interview immediately before the meeting in New East. Listed among the changes the new speaker proposes to make are the allowance of smoking in the assembly hall, encouragement of co-ed membership, and immediate provision for social functions.

Co-ed Speaker—Once

"Five years ago," continued Speaker Ellis, "a co-ed was elected to the speakership of this assembly."

To further the work of reorganization and reconstruction, Ellis appointed a rehabilitation committee composed of Wiley Parker, chairman, Drew Martin, and Stuart Rabb. This committee will recommend further changes next week.

In addition, the assembly voted to have a contest to select a new Phi slogan. All students may participate except officers of the assembly, who will act as judges. The prize for the best slogan will be a number of passes to the Carolina theatre. Definite rules will be announced by the committee tomorrow.

The assembly voted unanimously to co-operate with the Di Senate in establishing a bi-cam-

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS RUSSIANS

Gaily-Dressed Choir Wins Fine Reception in Presenting Brilliant Program.

An enthusiastically applauding audience in Memorial hall last night heard the Russian Symphonic Choir respond almost magically to the direction of Basil Kibalchich in rendering their native songs.

The choir was gaily attired, the men clad in red tunics trimmed with gold braid, and shod with boots, while the women wore sky blue bodices, red skirts and ticorras.

Three-Fold Program

Numbers on the program were divided into three groups, religious, classic, and folk music. The last group received the most enthusiastic applause, especially the director's arrangement of the Czechoslovakian song, "A Lament," which Misses Helen and Effie Stetzenko rendered as a duet.

Vechislav Mamanoff's rendition of the Aria from the opera "Halka," brought the powerful tenor forward for two bows. The audience was also favorably impressed by the number "Bandoura" in which the choir imitated the primitive guitar-playing of the Russian peasants.

The last number on the program, "Back from a Spree," by Dargomijsky, led the audience to applaud for two encores. Director Kibalchich then retired from the stage with an expressive shrug of finality.

PARAGRAPHICS

If campus artists are looking for models, there should be plenty of still life available in the classrooms.

Wouldn't it be nice if Huey Long and Father Coughlin would only observe periods of silence like Gandhi does?

Students condemn prohibition and endorse birth control. Back to the bottle, they say—but not the kind you have to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning to warm.

Dormitories Of the Future

The approving eye with which the Student Welfare Board views Everett dormitory and its new system will, we presume, carry considerable weight in the final administrative policy regarding all dormitories and dormitory management.

Everyone was somewhat upset when the Everett boys did not crash through in scholarship, but there was and is no reason to believe that this did not mean that the inmates were finding the environment increasingly more pleasant and conducive to collegiate enterprise. When the boys themselves, in answering Dean Bradshaw's questionnaire, manifested their satisfaction with the conditions in the "model" rooming house, that alone should be satisfactory enough to the sponsors of the movement.

The essential worth of Everett, we believe, is its experimental teaching, which very probably will be utilized to the utmost in future dormitory planning. But we have to emphasize what we pointed out here before: the results of the winter quarter investigation revealing that Everett freshmen's grades were somewhat superior prove little or nothing, if we're looking for the reason in Everett itself. For, as we mentioned, freshmen signed up in Everett for the quiet it offered and it was their own initiative to do so and not Everett's eminent qualifications which probably caused the better grades. In other words, give the freshmen who want to study an opportunity to do so, and they will.

The real significance in the Everett experiment, drawing out of the experimental teaching, is that if all the dormitories were similarly conducted, the opportunities would be there without the necessity on the student's part to look for them. Consequently, it might result in greatly improved application to those who don't ordinarily seek the better conditions as well as to those who would have been discontented with anything worse.

Mutual Understanding

The administration has taken another step toward promoting mutual understanding between students and administration in the matter of business relations and service enterprises in appointing a student assistant controller.

The administration made a significant choice when it selected Francis Fairley. A member of the Student Advisory Committee and respected by the student body, he should be well qualified for the duties of following up the recommendations made last month by the committee after its investigation.

Speaking the Campus Mind

We Make A Request

The DAILY TAR HEEL takes this occasion to thank its readers for contributions to the "Speaking the Campus Mind" column, but to ask that future ones be kept within 150 words.

National Defense Will Prevent War

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

Now that the "Anti-War Demonstration" passed into history, please allow a word of comment from a professional soldier. Fundamentally, there is nothing wrong with this impetuous expression of aversion against the horrors of war. No sane person wants war, least of all the professional soldier who knows its implications only too well. A lamp-post would indeed be too good for the depraved person who deliberately seeks to foment war, or would embroil our nation in one started by others. The anti-war demonstration of our youth in that sense merely reflects the thoughts and pacific intentions of the American people. Unfortunately, however, not all nations are actuated by ideals of peace and brotherly love, and in all fairness we must admit that our own intentions were not always as pacific as they are today. We became a great nation by fire and the sword, and countless American patriots laid down their lives to establish, to maintain and to preserve this great Republic for generations yet unborn. And it is quite conceivable that other nations may again compel us to resort to arms to defend our heritage. May we hope that in such an emergency the love of the country and loyalty of our youth will prove greater than fear of death and the natural aversion to the horrors of war.

But why, may we ask, was the strike directed also against fascism? Why not against communism, that venomous corruption, that cancerous growth which germinated in the gutter and now seeks the destruction of civilization? The answer is obvious. The Communistic finger in the pie is too apparent. Verily, adequate national defense is not only an effective deterrent to our possible foes without, but it is likewise the only means of preserving our free institutions against the insidious foes within our borders.

A Criticism of The Honor System

Carolina is proud, and rightfully proud, of its honor system. We have a right to flatter ourselves on this system, if it works. There is no doubt that it works, but is it working as effectively as it might? I wish to call the students' attention to one part of the honor system that is especially vulnerable to criticism, namely, the pledge.

In the first place, there is no reason for having a pledge attached to our honor system, for, in my opinion, any student who is dishonest to the extent he will lower himself to the level of cheating on a quiz or exam is equally dishonest enough to sign a statement on his quiz or exam paper to the effect that he has not cheated. It is a known fact that criminals or wrong-doers of any type will seek to cover their offense, even to the extent of perpetrating another offense in order to do so. Likewise, a student guilty of cheating would have no hesitancy in signing a lie in order to cover himself of cheating. Of course, if someone reported him, the Student Council would hold him for the additional offense of lying. If the pledge does have any value, it is that of reminding the student of the honor system.

But if we must have a pledge, let us enforce it. A great number of the professors here are negligent in requiring students to sign the pledge. Some even fail to include anything about signing the pledge when they put a quiz on the board. As it is, a student wishing to cheat does not have to tell a lie; he only has to hand in his paper, minus a pledge, and in all probabilities nothing will be said. This condition at times might even be conducive to cheating.

Let it be mandatory upon every student to sign a pledge, and mandatory upon every professor to enforce the signing of a pledge. Of course, some students will forget to sign the pledge. In this case, let the instructor give them a second or third chance to sign it before giving them a grade, and then if they refuse, let them be brought before the Student Council on a charge of cheating, for they could not possibly have any other reason for refusing to sign the pledge. In this way, if there are any whom the pledge would deter from cheating, it would certainly be effective in doing so. Until forgetful students accustomed themselves to this, it might prove considerable trouble to them and the professors also, but if made a rule, it would prove very valuable in enforcing honesty.

Members of the Phi are invited to bring dates to the meeting next Tuesday, and an invitation is extended to both students and faculty to participate and witness the rehabilitation proceedings of the oldest campus society.

Bills discussed at last night's meeting were: Resolved, that wagons be prohibited the use of state highways, and Resolved, that the south turn to Agrarianism. Speaker Ellis made it clear that in the future there will be included in the discussion one bill of pertinent interest to the campus and one humorous piece of legislation.

Tar Heel Golfers Defeat Duke, 10-8; Pijanowski, Coffin Break Tie In Final

TAR HEELS GAIN POINT IN DOUBLES

Perry and Storm Tie Score with 2-1 Victory over Laxton and Harris in First Match.

TAR HEELS WIN 2ND, 2½-½

Tar Heel golfers extended their one-point lead gained Monday over the Duke dubbers and ended the meet yesterday afternoon winning, 10-8, on the Hope Valley course.

The second part of the two-day meet consisted of two doubles matches. The Tar Heel pairs went to the links with the score 6½-5½ in their favor.

Duke Ties Score

Coach Kenfield's hopes of a split in points in the second day of the tourney was more than filled when the Carolina linksmen turned in 3½ points to Duke's 2½. Yesterday's victory was the fifth win in six starts, and was the team's first win in which their opponents scored more than three points.

Yesterday's meet began with Captain Erwin Laxton and Dick Harris playing against Perry and Storm. The leaders of both teams shot good golf with the Carolina pair gaining one point. On the next nine holes coming in, Perry and Storm returned the lowest card and gained a point.

The total number of strokes for the 18 holes were lowest on the Duke card and the result of the first doubles match was a 2-1 score in favor of the losers.

With the score exactly even for both teams Walter Pijanowski and Will Coffin battled Powell and Justin. On the first nine holes the combinations split with half a point going to each team.

On the last nine holes of play, with two points at stake, Pijanowski and Coffin bore down on their opponents and turned in the best card, to win 2½-½.

Both Berenbaum And Rubin Star As Exhibitionists

The table tennis exhibition tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock features the heralded match between Abe Berenbaum, national champion, and Rudy Rubin, 6th ranking player.

These boys are noted as two of the greatest exhibitionists in the game when facing each other. It is a clash of the unpenetrable and the unstoppable.

Berenbaum has the greatest defense in the game and Rubin is conceded as having the most consistent offense. It is a question of time as to whether Rubin can wear down his brilliant opponent with his confusing array of smash and drop shots.

Rubin Is Jinx

Berenbaum is clearly a master of almost every player in the country but has often met his jinx in Rubin. The youthful N. Y. U. law student has beaten Berenbaum more than any other star in the nation. He has continuously been an obstacle in Berenbaum's advance.

Both use different styles. Berenbaum holds his racquet as one would hold a tennis racquet in the generally recognized "tennis" grip, but Rubin employs the "penholder" grip, which is radically different.

When they meet, the sparks fly. Volleys crossing the net more than a hundred times are common as Rubin tries in vain to batter down the champion's defense. He does succeed many times, much to Berenbaum's discomfort.

Corking Doubles Team

As a doubles team, they are as impressive. It is an ideal combination of hitter and returner. They have won the Great Lakes doubles title and will give proof of their class against Len Rubin and Doug Cartland.

Therefore, the match to watch is Abe Berenbaum versus Rudy Rubin. It is a thrill and is known through the country as the most brilliant get-together of master players.

BABIES DEFEATED IN FINAL FRAMES BY DEACON FROSH

Carolina Frosh Lose Loosely Played Tilt, 8-6; Burnette, LeGrande Hit Hard.

GLASS LEADS WINNERS

After staging a nip and tuck battle down the home stretch the Carolina frosh were defeated by the batting onslaught of the Wake Forest yearlings on Emerson field yesterday afternoon, 8-6.

The Baby Deacons got their eight runs on nine hits, taking advantage of the loose fielding of the Tar Babies. Carolina collected ten hits off the deliveries of Glass and Byrd, but careless base running and a failure to hit in the pinches cost them the game.

The Baby Deacs started the scoring in their half of the second. Smith, clean-up batter, slammed a single into short left field and scored when LeGrande let the ball get passed him. Barnes walked and Brunnemer slapped one past the centerfielder for three bases.

Score Tied

The Tar Babies came back strong in the third stanza to tie up the count on two errors and a timely bingle by Bunny Burnette.

Wake Forest tallied two more in the fourth on a free ticket to first base, an infield error, a passed ball, and Glass's single into center.

Carolina scored once in the fourth on Lloyds' single and Craver's double. The Baby Deacs increased their total in the fifth when Yount who had doubled and stolen third crossed the plate standing up after

IMPS WIN OVER FROSH IN TRACK

Carolina Freshmen No Match for Powerful Duke Club as They Fall, 84 2-3 to 41 2-3.

Durham, April 16.—The Duke freshman track team remained undefeated here this afternoon as it made Carolina's yearlings victim number two, 84 2-3 to 41 1-3. Carolina's consolation came in the fact that it more than doubled its 1934 score against the Imps.

White and Hendricks gained the only first places for the visitors, the former capturing the 880 by a wide margin, and the latter taking the pole vault. Ullman, Umstead, Meroney, and Juliber were other stand-outs for Carolina.

Duke's Yankee Star

Larry Lewis and Charley Fischer, former Connecticut champions, lived up to their reputations as each captured a first and placed in another. Lewis won the 220, but was nipped at the century finish, while Fischer tossed the shot 44 feet 2 inches and placed third

Rubin, Cartland Play For Title at Exhibition

A year old controversy will be settled at the table tennis exhibitions tomorrow and Friday night. Len Rubin and Doug Cartland are scheduled to play for the title of school champion.

Rubin has the slight edge due to his intramural win but either boy has an even chance to win. They will play two games on each night and if games are two all at the completion of Friday's match, a deciding game will be waged.

They will also meet the all-American team in singles and doubles.

TAR HEELS WIN MASS NET MEET OVER DUKE 114-86

Blue Devils Gain in Last Day's Play, 22-18; Carolina's Early Lead Is Victory Margin.

SECOND CONSECUTIVE WIN

Despite a 22-18 setback in the matches played yesterday afternoon, Carolina captured the annual mass tennis meet with Duke by a 114-86 total. Carolina won the last meet, 129-71.

In the five days played, Duke won three to Carolina's two, but the lop-sided 38-2 first-day margin gave the victors a commanding margin throughout.

At Duke

Ferguson (C) over Falling, 6-2, 6-1; Murnick (C) over Snyder, 6-1, 9-11, 6-0; S. Patterson (C) over Anderson, 6-2, 6-2; Beatty (D) over Blackmore, 6-1, 6-3; Lassiter (C) over Callahan, 6-2, 6-2; Budd (D) over Hewitt, 6-4, 6-1.

At Carolina

Black (D) over Warren, 6-4, 6-1; McKay (C) over Cornish, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4; Mac Wall (C) over Wade, 6-2, 6-3; Hendrix (C) over Hawes, 6-0, 6-1; Towner (D) over H. M. Cole, 6-2, 6-2; Harris (C) over Crawford, 6-1, 6-4; Sager (D) over Spies, 6-1, 6-0; Weston (D) over Henson, 6-4, 10-8; McCollum (D) over Atkin, 9-7, 6-0.

Carolina Baseball Team Falls Before Deacons, 6-2; Voliva Hits Double, Triple

QUARLES, JACOBS FIGHT TO DRAW

Decision Booed, Quarles Starts Slowly But Beats Jacobs Bad In Closing Rounds.

Norment Quarles, Carolina's former lightweight champion, fought an unpopular eight-round draw with Stumpy Jacobs last Monday night at Richmond.

The headline battle drew 4,000 fans who booed first when the decision was announced in favor of Jacobs and then again when it was discovered that the two judges and referee had decided on a draw.

Starts Slow

Quarles started slowly and clearly lost the first two rounds. He warmed a little and after an even third round was superior the rest of the way.

In the seventh the Carolina blonde floored his opponent twice with hard left hooks. He slipped once but was on his feet in a second.

Quarles rushed Jacobs throughout the last round but could not quite put on the finishing touches.

MURAL NET PLAY GETS UNDERWAY THIS AFTERNOON

Six Matches Will Be Played Each Afternoon.

Play will commence this afternoon in the intramural tennis competition. There will be two leagues and the winners will meet for the campus title.

Six team matches will be played each afternoon, starting promptly at 4:45 o'clock. Teams will consist of two singles players and one doubles team, and sets will be the best five out of nine games.

Since 12 courts have been reserved for intramural tennis, all singles matches will commence at the above hour. The intramural assistant, Fletcher Ferguson, will be on the courts daily at 4:30 o'clock to receive the lineups of the participating teams. Balls used by the varsity last fall will be available for those desiring them.

CROUCH IS AGAIN TAR HEEL HURLER

Wake Forest Takes Early Lead And Holds It; Captain Vick Makes Two Safe Blows.

RHODES PITCHES VICTORY

Carolina's diamond machine was stopped, 6-2, by Wake Forest in the contest played at Lumberton yesterday.

Crouch, Tar Heel righthander, was touched for nine hits, while Rhodes, the opposing pitcher, gave up the same number of bingles but succeeded in keeping them well scattered.

The Deacons got off to a fast start by scoring three runs in the first inning. They were held in check until the eighth, when they broke loose to score three more markers for their final tally.

Carolina Scores

The Tar Heels scored in the fifth and eighth frames.

Ed Voliva again led the Tar Heel attack with two hits out of three trips to the plate.

The sophomore outfielder scored both of Carolina's runs. He led off in the fifth with a two-bagger and was sent across the plate by Crouch's single. Coming back in the eighth frame Voliva smacked out a triple and tallied when Captain Vick hit safely.

Captain Vick also got two hits out of three times at bat. Both his knocks were singles.

Floyd Patton, big Deacon first sacker, led the Baptist's attack with a triple and a single. Mitchell and Chapell were the other two Wake Forest players to get two hits apiece.

Four Nines Almost Even In Race For American Flag; Yanks Favored

New York Has Well-Balanced Club; Boston May Pull Big Surprise; Cleveland and Detroit Also Rated in Big-Four Group Who Will Battle Things Out; Philly, St. Louis Dangerous.

By JAMES H. MORRIS

Unless one of the dark horses pulls a surprise similar to Detroit's last summer, the American league baseball race will develop into a great four-way battle between New York, Detroit, Boston, and Cleveland.

With such excellent managers as Connie Mack and Rogers Hornsby leading them, Philadelphia and St. Louis may also step into the scrap for top place despite the lack of money in order to build with. Both Washington and Chicago seem headed for certain postions in the second division.

Yankees One?

Although the Tigers finished seven games in front last year and the Indians stack up the most powerful on paper, the Yankees appear to be the outstanding choice to grab honors. Without Ruth New York is certain to be stronger on defense and possibly also on offense as the Babe hit well below .300 in 1934.

Manager Joe McCarthy also pulled a master play when he acquired Pat Malone from the National league. Malone pitched some fine ball for Chicago under Marse Joe several years ago and may prove to be the winning margin for the Yanks this season. With the veteran hurling stars, Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing, ready in addition to some sure winners out of the large group of good youngsters which includes Johnny Allen, Vann Atta, Johnny Broaca, Johnny Murphy, Vito Tamulis, and Jimmy Deshong, New York will have an excellent staff.

Fast Infield

Tony Lazzeri, second, seems much younger while both Red Rolfe, third, and Frank Crosetti, short, have developed into real fielders. Adding Lou Gehrig the Yankees possess a speedy, airtight infield.

The outfield also has tremendous strength since Combs, left, has recovered from last year's injury and Selkirk, right, has replaced the fading Ruth. Of course, the lightning-like Ben Chapman, without a doubt one

Only Two Carolina Net Players Survive Pinehurst Third Round

Potts and Henderson Enter Quarter Final

Fuller Takes Set from Hall; Minor Upsets De Gray; Harris Nosed Out by Welsh.

DOUBLES TO OPEN TODAY

The Carolina net forces were diminished greatly yesterday afternoon on the Pinehurst courts as 14 of the Tar Heel players were eliminated during the day in the North-South tourney.

Only two warriors, Ramsay Potts and Archie Henderson, were left to carry on the Carolina cause. Potts is matched with Wilmer Allison, the best player in the nation, in today's encounter. Henderson will meet Barney Welsh, national parks champion. These are quarter-final matches.

Harvey Harris came two points from upsetting Barney Welsh yesterday but just didn't have the necessary reserve to accomplish the feat. Harvey played perfect tennis and after splitting sets, he ran up a 4-0 lead, but finally lost at 7-5. He turned aside four match points before yielding, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5.

RINGERS GET 18-2 WIN OVER MANLY

S. A. E. Also Triumphs in Mural Ball.

After Phi Kappa Sigma had held a lead for the first three innings, the S. A. E.'s heavy hitting artillery put on an eight-run rally in the fourth and then won the mural contest, 16-6.

Pope, Webb, and Bell led the winners with a home run each. Markham led the losers with a triple, a double, and a single. He also pitched well.

The Ringer's heavy hitting outfit defeated Manly's weak ball club 18-2. Jackson led the winners with his splendid pitching. Joyce made five runs to lead the scoring.

The Woman's Tennis Club will meet tomorrow afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock in the Woman's Association room in Graham Memorial. All co-eds who intend to go out for tennis are urged to be present in order that sets for the tournament may be arranged this week.

MEYER RELEASES COMPLETE PLANS FOR SCOUT EVENT

Four-Day Jubilee Will Be Latter Part of Month; Distinguished Guests to Attend.

GRAHAM TO BE SPEAKER

Complete plans for the Boy Scout Jubilee in recognition of the 25th anniversary of scouting, to be held in connection with the North Carolina Dogwood Festival and Youth Celebration here Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, April 25, 26, 27, and 28, have been announced by Dr. Harold D. Meyer, chairman of a special jubilee committee.

More than 1,000 Boy Scouts, representing communities in every section of the state will trek to Chapel Hill to participate in the elaborate Jubilee program mapped out by the Boy Scout executives in North Carolina and regional executives from New York and Atlanta.

Speakers

Among the speakers for the celebration are Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America; Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus; and Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the Greater University. Special honor guests will be members of the Legislature and presidents of all North Carolina Scout Councils.

Arriving in Chapel Hill Thursday afternoon, April 25, the Scouts will report to the Jubilee headquarters in the Tin Can and set up camp in the woods surrounding Kenan stadium. A color ceremony in the stadium at 5 o'clock will be followed by a supper for all Scouts and leaders. A giant opening campfire and general get-together, directed by Camp Chief W. C. Wessel of New York City, is scheduled for 8:30 that evening. President Graham will deliver a camp-fire talk, and there will be songs, greetings, and announcements.

Campcraft Events

Individual Scouts will engage in campcraft events Friday morning. Demonstration events by patrols will take place during the afternoon. University organizations will conduct the Scouts on a tour of the University, and open house will be held at the fraternities.

All Scouts and former Scouts in the University will be guests at a camp fire program Friday night. A fire lighting ceremony will be conducted by Alpha Phi Omega Scout fraternity, and stunts will be performed by each local council.

Cookeree Circle

A cookeree circle will be held Saturday morning to demonstrate various types of cooking. Demonstrations of the various types of camps will be presented Saturday afternoon.

A gigantic Scout pageant, presided over by Paul W. Schenck, Greensboro, regional chairman, will take place in Kenan stadium Saturday evening. The University band will provide music for the parade and grand entry march for the Scout councils.

Governor Ehringhaus and Dr. James E. West will deliver addresses following group singing and presentation of the council president of North Carolina.

A pageant of scouting, directed by Camp Chief W. C. Wessel will follow with all the councils participating.

Camp church and song service with Rev. Donald H. Stewart, pastor of the University Presbyterian church, officiating will be held Sunday morning. Breaking of camp and dismissal of the Scouts will close the Jubilee at 9 a. m. Sunday.

The Jubilee is to be staged under the supervision of the University Dogwood Festival committee composed of R. M. Grumman, president; Mrs. Paul Green, vice-president; Felix A. Grisette, secretary-treasurer; A. P. Hudson, program; R. W. Madry, publicity; Mrs. George Howe, exhibits; and William Hunt and Phillips Russell, gardens and tree planting.

A special Jubilee committee is composed of Dr. Harold D. Meyer, chairman, R. A. Fetzer, P. L. Burch, Harry F. Comer, Mayor John A. Foushee, O. B. Harmon, George A. Hamer, and Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth.

TABLE TENNIS TIME

The time of tomorrow's table tennis exhibition has been changed from 8 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. so as not to conflict with another program. This time will also hold true on Friday night.

Tickets for the exhibition are on sale at the Book Exchange and Alfred Williams at 25 cents.

of the greatest in the game, will cover centerfield. Two fine reserves in Dixie Walker and Jess Hill make this combination even better.

Bill Dickey is still one of the best receivers in the game and will round out the first team. Besides such a defense the Yankees have scoring strength with Gehrig, last year's leading batter in both leagues, Dickey, Selkirk, Chapman, Combs, and Lazzeri in the lineup.

Red Sox Dangerous

Millionaire Bob Shawkey has spent another wad of cash and this time has added to his Red Sox Joe Cronin, one of baseball's top shortstops and in addition a great leader. Cronin may mean more to Boston than experts have so far figured. His Washington club of two years ago, which topped the American league, did not appear up to the standard of the present Boston team.

Although Bishop, second, and the rookie Dahlgren, first, appear to leave the right side of the infield weak, Cronin, short, and Werber, third, have enough defensive and offensive ability to balance this. With such men as Johnson, Reynolds, Cooke, Solters, and Almada to pick from Boston will also have power in the outfield. Rick Ferrell is all any manager would want for a catcher.

Boston's big question is its pitching staff and on this does its fate depend. If Lefty Grove is really ready then the rest of the league is just out of luck because in addition to the great southpaw Cronin has Wes Ferrell, Ostermueller, Walberg, Rhodes, Hockette, and Henry Johnson.

Gil Hall, but when the seeded ace put on the power in the third set, Eddy wasn't there to meet it. It was a good fight but not good enough. The scores were 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Ricky Willis threw a scare into Allison by taking the Davis Cup star to 7-5 in the final set. Willis hit steadily and with a certain crispness that had Allison on his toes before winning, 6-3, 7-5.

The one upset that was recorded was the ease with which Bill Minor defeated Eddy De Gray, 6-1, 6-3. Minor, however, fared poorly against the seeded Hal Surface.

Doubles will start with Carolina entering about three teams. Potts and Fuller have been seeded fourth with Hall and Allison heading the list.

FRAZER SUGGESTS SERIES OF FORUMS

Freshmen Hear Woodhouse Show Institute Omission.

The Y. M. C. A. cabinets reviewed the recent Human Relations Institute at their regular meeting Monday night.

Professor K. C. Frazer of the government department spoke to the junior-senior cabinet, and Professor E. J. Woodhouse talked to the Freshman Friendship Council.

Frazer suggested the setting up of a series of public forums to deal with current questions and such subjects as were discussed in the Institute last week.

His talk followed a report of the Y. M. C. A.'s activities during the past year given by President J. D. Winslow. Harry Riggs also told the cabinets about the Social Service League conference which is to be held in Winston-Salem next month.

Professor E. J. Woodhouse praised the Institute speakers but suggested to the freshmen that the Institute had neglected problems involved in the administration of justice.

Russell Will Speak In Oratorical Contest

R. Phillips Russell will represent the University in the oratorical contest which the Intercollegiate Peace Association will sponsor here April 29. Norman Kellar has been named as the alternate.

The contest here will be preliminary to the national competition. At least seven or eight North Carolina colleges are expected to send speakers. The state prizes will total $100.

The Reverend O. T. Binkley of the Baptist church, and Dr. W. L. Wilson, and George McKie of the English department, were the judges who chose the University representatives.

INFIRMARY LIST

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Robert Van Sleen, O. R. Yeager, W. L. Farthing, T. F. Henley, T. B. Thomas, R. A. Miller, E. K. Britt, Kirby Smith, Hester Barlow, O. W. Farrell, Lester Kanner, W. T. McGowan, B. V. Fowler, and Gertrude Pridgen.

State P. T. A. Convention

Professor Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department, R. M. Grumman, director of the extention division, and Mrs. M. S. Breckenridge, wife of Professor Breckenridge of the University's law school, are in Asheville attending sessions of the state Parent-Teacher convention.

Tie Again

The Tar Babies tallied again in the last of the fifth when Collins reached second on an error and a stolen base, and came across on LeGrande's smash into right field.

With the score five all, the Carolina yearlings weakened in the final frames and let the Baby Deacons tally three runs to sew up the contest.

Willard and Parker hurled a fine game for Carolina but poor backing and bad breaks prevented a win. Glass starred for the victors, pitching consistent ball and getting a single and a double in the bargain.

Burnette and LeGrande shared the hitting honors for the day, getting three safe blows apiece.

Fusslers to Blue Ridge

Dr. Karl H. Fussler and family will spend a large part of the summer at Blue Ridge, a report to the DAILY TAR HEEL stated yesterday.

Mrs. Fussler, the report revealed, will teach a course in drama during both terms of the Y. M. C. A. graduate school of Nashville, Tenn., which is conducted each summer at Blue Ridge.

ARTISTIC DANCERS TO APPEAR MAY 4

Negro Students Will Interpret Phases of Race History.

Creative dances, artistically interpreting various phases of their race history, will be presented here May 4 by a group of 51 Negro students from the Hampton Institution in Virginia.

The Hampton Junior Quartette will sing songs in accompaniment suggesting the spirit of the dances, which are definitely not creative in the modern sense as applied by Ted Shawn, but rather directly derived from the basic Negro folk dances.

Some of the movements are from ancient African dances, and others are from more modern ones, such as the country breakdown.

The troupe has been working on its performances for the past several years and is now well-known in North Carolina and Virginia.

The Chapel Hill program, which will take place in Memorial hall, includes nine dances presenting a wide scope for artistic interpretation.

Engineers' Scholarship

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers has voted to establish a $50 scholarship. Any upperclassman in chemical engineering is eligible for the award, which is to be made on a basis of personality, scholarship and genuine need.

The committee making the award consists of Dr. A. M. White, Dean Wm. J. Miller, and Dean R. B. House.

Written applications for the scholarship must be in Dr. White's hands by May 1, 1935.

JUNIOR-SENIOR COMMITTEE

There will be a very important meeting of the junior-senior dance committee tonight at 9:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

At this time any bids for the decorations of the coming dances will be received.

Deputation Team Ends Good-Will Trip to Duke

Don McKee, Bob Magill, Jimmy Dees, and Bob Mason were good-will ambassadors to Duke University last night on a Y. M. C. A. deputation trip that is expected to be reciprocated by the Durham boys in the near future.

Magill, new head of the rising sophomore cabinet, spoke on "The Social Aspects of Religion," and McKee, newly-elected vice-president of the Y. M. C. A., talked on "The ABC of Religion."

Between speeches Dees rolled forth his bass voice to the piano accompaniment of Mason.

HUEY I TO SEIZE FEDERAL RELIEF MONEY IN 'WAR'

Delta Dictator Consigns Ickes "To Hell" as Legislature Votes to Seize Money.

ICKES MAY STOP FUNDS

Baton Rouge, La., April 17.—(UP)—Over riding the protest that "this is a declaration of war against the United States," the Louisiana state House of Representatives today passed the royal decree of Emperor Huey I which ordered the seizure and control of all federal relief money that entered the "little kingdom."

Secretary of Interior Ickes in Washington has warned Louisiana that rather than turn over federal money to the dictatorship of the House of Long, he would withdraw all relief from the state. Louisiana's share of the $4,880,000,000 works relief program is estimated at $170,000,000.

Utilizing his favorite denunciation, His Majesty, the King, consigned poor Secretary Ickes "to hell," and ordered the controlled legislators to proceed with their work.

Washington, April 17.—(UP)—The New Deal tonight accepted "the declaration of war" by Emperor Huey I, "ruler by Divine Right in Louisiana," against the United States.

Although administration officials refused direct comment on today's action by Louisiana, they were represented as being determined that they would continue to direct the expenditure of all government money sent there or they would shut off the supply.

PUBLICITY AGENTS WILL MEET HERE

Directors of Southern College News Bureaus to Convene Over Week-end.

Directors of college news bureaus from southern states will meet at the University this week-end for the annual district convention of the American College Publicity Association. Around 30 representatives are expected to attend.

The high light of the convention will be a banquet session at 7 o'clock Friday evening at the Carolina Inn when the scheduled speakers will include W. Joynes Macfarlan, manager of the Raleigh bureau of the Associated Press; Felix A. Grisette, president of the American Alumni Council, and Jake Wade of Charlotte, president of the Southeastern Sportswriters Association.

Coaches to Be Guests

Coaches Carl Snavely, Wallace Wade, and Hunk Anderson will attend the banquet session as special guests.

The sessions will open Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and continue through Saturday. The session Saturday afternoon will be informal. Speakers will include North Carolina newspapermen and college news bureau directors.

Ralph Clark, news director for Rollins College, Florida, and a former president of the American College Publicity Association, will preside. The program has been arranged by R. W. Madry, who is serving as convention secretary.

Foreign Policy League To Select Officers

The Foreign Policy League will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Graham Memorial to elect officers for the coming year. The remainder of the meeting will be devoted to a study of the Stresa conference, which will be led by Niles Bond and Margaret Gaines.

The league will meet again next week, when the Des Moines plan of forum leadership will be inaugurated. This will be the first time that this type of program has been attempted at Chapel Hill.

George MacFarland will speak at this time on the subject: "Can America Remain Neutral in Event of War?" This will be a continuation of the neutrality theme of Dr. Polanyi, who recently spoke on the campus.

STATE WILL OFFER VOCATIONAL WORK

Summer Session to Have Courses On Agriculture, Industry.

Special work in the field of vocational education, to be conducted by specialists in the field, will be offered at the University summer school at Raleigh, according to an announcement from the summer session office here yesterday.

Teachers, principals and superintendents who are interested in developing classes in agriculture, industry, home-making and guidance should especially be interested in the State College courses.

Dr. Arthur K. Getman, supervisor of agricultural education in New York state, writer and Rutgers professor, and Dr. C. E. Hedden, consultant in the field of vocational education in Pennsylvania, will conduct courses in these subjects.

Emphasis will be placed on agricultural economics from the teaching standpoint and on theories and trends in vocational education. Dr. Hedden has had definite experience in manufacturing plants, in the fields of mechanics and textiles.

Political Union

The following members of the executive committee of the Carolina Political Union are asked to meet with Chairman Robert Smithwick this afternoon in 209 Graham Memorial at 5 o'clock:

Phil Kind, Morty Slavin, Nick Read, Betty Durham, Francis Fairley, and Prof. E. J. Woodhouse.

Smithwick announced yesterday that the union was contemplating immediate action in several projects and urged that the committee members be on hand today.

University Club

The University Club will meet in 213 Graham Memorial at 7:15 o'clock tonight. All old and new members are urged to be present as nominations for next year's officers will be made.

The committee on Boy Scout entertainment will meet at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon in Graham Memorial.

Senior Executive Committee

The senior class executive committee will meet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. in a formal session to complete plans for Senior Week and to arrange for the permanent class organization. All members must be present.

WARBASSE OPENS LECTURE SERIES

Institute Speaker to Give Four Talks; Speaks on Consumers League at 7:30 P. M.

Dr. J. P. Warbasse, belated Human Relations Institute speaker, opened his two-day program here last night with an appearance before the graduate seminar in commerce, in Bingham.

The prominent sociologist and advocate of social and economic co-operation will address a group of four or more commerce and economics classes in Gerrard hall this morning at 9:30.

Tonight Dr. Warbasse talks at 7:30 in Gerrard hall on one of his pet subjects, the Co-operative Consumers' League. The address will be concluded in time for listeners to attend the table tennis exhibition in the Tin Can at 8:30.

Tomorrow, Too

Tomorrow's program includes a number of seminars and another appearance in Gerrard hall at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Warbasse, an important consultant of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and his wife arrived in Chapel Hill last night from a trip through the valley.

Practiced Surgery

After practicing surgery for over 10 years, Dr. Warbasse became so interested in social problems that he retired from active practice in 1919 and turned to sociology. Since then he has written a number of books on social and economic questions, with specific reference in many of them to relations of the doctor to society.

His latest book is entitled "Public Health Service," and is devoted to a special development of a new plan for the socialization of medicine.

Senior Life Savers

All examiners and senior life savers wishing to take the examiners' course will meet tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard hall.

Reporters' Meeting

There will be a meeting of the reportorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel tonight in the publication office at 8 o'clock.

ALUMNI CONTEST GETS UNDERWAY

Portrait of Graham and 100-Volume Book Set Will Be Awarded as Prizes.

With the sending out of 16,000 letters yesterday to University alumni in every part of the world, Felix A. Grisette officially opened the "Alumni Loyalty" contest which will be fought out heatedly among loyal alumni between now and commencement.

The previously announced contest is being sponsored by the alumni loyalty fund council of which Grisette is the head. An oil painting of President Graham will be presented to the class winning the championship at commencement.

County Award

At the same time, counties and cities will be waging a vigorous battle for the 100-volume set of University Press books which are to be awarded the public or school library in the town or city which wins the "locality" championship.

Various influential men in the state are acting as chairmen of their classes and all contributions from alumni will go through the class chairmen and be credited both to the class and to the town or county in which the alumnus resides.

Needs Listed

Yesterday's correspondence included 16,000 letters from the class chairmen to their classmates, an actual letter on the matter from one of the class members and an attractive, boxed outlay presenting "A Dozen University Needs Listed as Part of the Loyalty Contest." The contest will be conducted on as nearly a personal basis as is possible.

The portrait of President Graham, although remaining the permanent property of the class which wins it, will be hung in Graham Memorial in order that all Carolina visitors may see it and read about its owners.

Grail Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the Grail tonight at 10 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial, announced George Moore yesterday.

Sharpe's Book Refutes Foremost Authority On Elizabethan Drama

In a controversial book entitled "The Real War of the Theatres," recently published under the auspices of the Modern Language Association of America, Dr. R. B. Sharpe of the English department challenges beliefs held by the foremost living authority on the Elizabethan stage, Sir Edmund Chambers.

In taking issue with Chambers' declaration that the plays of Queen Elizabeth's day had no relation to the political history of the period, Dr. Sharpe is expected to arouse considerable comment and criticism among English scholars.

When Shakespeare walked the streets of London and wrote plays for production in its theatres, he belonged to the dramatic company called the Chamberlain's Men, supporters of and caterers to the aristocracy, and bitter rivals of the more bourgeois Admiral's men.

Tracing the history of these two companies during the decade from 1594 to 1603, Dr. Sharpe finds proof that the great Shakespeare, as well as the other playwrights he overshadows, wrote with an eye on all the developments at court and in the city streets and squares, and made himself the ally of some of Queen Bess's mightiest courtiers in their struggles for power.

Helped Patrons

"The Real War of the Theatres" attempts to prove that there was a significant relation between the high favor the Chamberlain's Men enjoyed during the last years of Elizabeth's reign and coincident political ascendency of certain of their patrons.

The publication of Dr. Sharpe's book as one of the Monograph Series sponsored by the Modern Language Association is a considerable honor in itself. His manuscript was one of five accepted by the society, which has a membership of 4,000, over a period of 10 years.

Co-ed Run-offs

In the co-ed run-off elections yesterday afternoon, Katherine Quigley, Oak Park, Ill., junior, won a close race for the presidency of the Woman's Athletic Association over Frances Caffey, 68-63.

Sallie Page, Chapel Hill girl and member of the freshman class, defeated Jean Van Deusen, 75-55, for the position of secretary-treasurer of the same organization.

FESTIVAL MUSIC PLANS RELEASED

Institute of Folk Music to Begin Dogwood Festival Events Here Saturday, April 27.

Plans have almost been completed for the gala Dogwood Festival to begin here April 27. Begun by the Institute of Folk Music, this year's festival is expected to draw spectators from all parts of the state.

Fiddling "Doc" Hoppas of Estaboe, who was a World's Fair attraction, is promised by Richard Chase, who is in charge of the folk music program. Chase is assistant director of the institute. String bands from the Crossnore School and from Hemp are scheduled.

Ballad Singers

Ballad singers whose melodies have echoed through Carolina mountains will sing their favorite bars and musically tell their best loved stories. Among those on the program are Mrs. Rosalia Schnell of Banner Elk and Mrs. Norma Grindstaff of Spruce Pines. Another ballad singer of much reputation who is to appear is I. G. Grier, head of Thomasville's Mills' Home.

Hymn singers, too, from Bynum, Pittsboro, Jugtown, Hemp, and elsewhere, will reverently retell through melody and rhyme some of the most famous stories of all ages, the Christ stories.

The modern piano, according to Richard Chase, is the legitimate offspring of the Dulcimer. And the best preserved examples of that aged instrument, he claims, will be here. Three of the musicians to participate in the Dulcimer concert are Franklin Scott, Turner Brown, and Mrs. Artemus Ward, all of Jugtown.

Another part of the morning program will be devoted to square dancing. Exhibitions will be given by community groups, two of which will be from Moore county and Crossnore school.

The foregoing is but part of the entertainment which will be offered. The Cherokee Indians will be here to render their native songs and dances.

Players Submit Varied List of Originals

Four comedies, five tragedies, a melodrama of a newspaper office, and a Russian drama of the 15th century compose the group of original plays, now being rehearsed, from which will be chosen between six and nine plays for public Playmaker production next week-end.

Selection of the best plays will be made this week in studio productions which are a part of Professor Sam Selden's course in play-directing.

Admission to the public productions next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday will be by season ticket, and special prices will be made for students.

RELATIONS GROUP CONSIDERS HAVING MORE INSTITUTES

Committee to Present Best Book Of Exhibit to Library; May Print Future Speeches.

SPRING PROGRAM ENDED

Plans to hold the Human Relations Institute more often than every four years were considered at a banquet of the Institute committee last night in Graham Memorial.

Recommendations were advanced to stage the conference every two or three years to insure each University student's having the benefit of attending at least two Institutes during his college career.

"Social Emphasis Week"

Members of the committee also felt there ought to be more emphasis on social, political, and economic questions during the intervening years between each Institute. It was suggested that there be a special social emphasis week each year the Institute was not held.

Dean D. D. Carroll suggested that the next Institute be a Greater University of North Carolina affair with the speakers rotating between the three units of the state institution.

The committee expressed the feeling that the further bringing of speakers to the University this quarter under Institute auspices would be an anti-climax to the Human Relations conference, and passed a motion not to sponsor the appearance of any other platform lecturers this spring.

More Varied Speakers

A resolution that at the next Institute there be presented a wider range and variety of speakers and subjects was also adopted by the group.

The committee voted to keep a number of the best books from the Institute exhibit and present them to the University library as a gift. A committee composed of Joe Sugarman, Har-

CARSON TO OFFER REVENUE MEASURE

Senate to Get Amendment Substituting "Excise or License Tax" for Sales Tax.

Raleigh, April 17.—(UP)—The revenue bill passed the second reading by the North Carolina Senate today by a vote of 21 to 9.

An amendment substituting a luxury tax for the sales tax will be offered to the bill tomorrow by Senator Carson of Alexander county.

Tobacco, Cards . . .

The Carson amendment proposes to place "an excise or license tax" on manufactured tobacco products, playing cards, candy, gun shells, malt extract, automotive vehicles, tractors, admissions, and soft drinks, estimated to raise $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The House of Representatives killed, by refusing to adopt the minority report, a bill of Representative Day of Onslow county to reapportion the state for representatives to the General Assembly.

The calendar practically cleared, the Senate adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow when the appropriations bill will be introduced for consideration.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Boy Scouts are going in for some snappy terminology with their "camporees" and "cookerees." Yoo hoo, Dr. Meyer, chickadee! chickadee!

University geologists are still puzzling over our eastern Carolina craters. Which, to us, is just another way of admitting that real estate down there is still in the hole.

"The course will be open to students who are college graduates . . . and to mature students," says the school of library science. Please, dear Santa Claus, bring us a kiddie car so's we won't have to rent from the bicycle man.

Our Loyal Alumni?

Circulars describing the contest in alumni loyalty, now being conducted, have been sent to graduates and former students of Carolina. The contest in all fairness is to be judged on the basis of the percentage of the members of a class who contribute any amount of money. The amount of the contributions will have nothing to do with the final result. The winning class gets a prize of an oil painting of President Graham. It can be won only by the class with the largest percentage of members contributing.

A dozen of the more pressing needs of the University are listed and described in the inside of the folder. Some of these needs must be realized if the University is to maintain the position it now occupies in the educational world.

This turn to the alumni for financial support is inevitable for the University because of the depression and the insufficient appropriations by the General Assembly. Although the General Assembly has granted the University as much as it could, more is necessary if the University is to advance and not stagnate. With expectation we await the results of this alumni loyalty contest.

Petticoats For the Phi

"Five years ago," continued Speaker Ellis, "a co-ed was elected to the speakership of this assembly."

Well, Mr. Ellis was a brave young man, to tell such ghastly things at his inaugural fling as speaker of the Phi people. A co-ed, no less, leading the Phi Assembly! But under Speaker Ellis' light pronouncement lies solemn stuff.

Was the co-ed who ran the unruly fellows one of such superb qualities that she far overshadowed the masculine element—or was it politics? Did she win because co-eds had as much chance as anyone else, or because a frame-up turned and bit its master? Are there any co-eds now who might become speaker or was this epoch-making event one in a million? Does the Phi really want co-eds and do the co-eds really want to join the Phi?

All these questions were asked us yesterday and many, many more. All we can say is that Mr. Ellis has made the campus heart-strings quiver with his grave reference. No doubt the women students are at last coming into their own. Think of it, a petticoat speaker five years ago—and we just heard about it yesterday.

We Talk to Major Johnson

Major Alexander L. P. Johnson's letter makes us mad and sad at once. What makes us mad is this: the major virtually called us cowards. He thinks, apparently, that our anti-war demonstration was prompted by a fear of death, and of the horrors of war. It was not.

We promise the major that we are as brave as he or any other mercenary. We're not scared to fight for right and for justice; we just can't connect fighting for justice with fighting against men who happen to fly a different flag and speak a foreign language. And we have not seen that any modern, nationalistic war has been waged for the sake of justice.

There might be some excuse for the atrocities of war if it were waged as anything but a racket, Major Alexander L. P. Johnson, but this profession of yours is right now the biggest racket on earth. We suggest you read "War Is a Racket" by one of your former partners in war, Major General Smedley D. Butler. But maybe you haven't time for much reading. Maybe you feel obliged to spend all your time beating a big bass drum and frightening harassed newsreaders with cries of "Communist! Communist!" Well, Major, in that case we'll quote you a little from Butler's book: "For a great many years, as a soldier, I suspected that war was a racket; not until I retired to civil life did I fully realize it." Butler goes on to define a racket as "something that is not what it seems to the majority of the people," and tells us that war is the only one "whose profits are reckoned in dollars and losses of lives." Think it over, Major.

Now, Major, when we began writing this, while we were still formal, and you were referred to only in the third person, we said your letter made us sad, too; here's why: we realize that all too many good men have, like yourself, let themselves be bulldozed with the old "big-army-no-war" line, and we are sorry for you and for them, because your ideas are already so outmoded that we can't see what place you could possibly fill in an America which has at last had its eyes opened to the racket of war.

Following Some Forum

Professor K. C. Frazer suggested a series of public forums for the Y. M. C. A. to sponsor, following out the trend in thought begun by the recent Human Relations Institute. Mr. Frazer, talking to the cabinets Monday night, brought up the same point concerning the Y. M. C. A. and the Institute that has been broached before.

Professor E. J. Woodhouse, speaking on the same program, emphasized the point that the Institute sadly lacked any treatment of the judiciary in national and state governmental set-ups and suggested that the forums could be conducted on this phase.

Combining the suggestions of both men, we have the stereotyped bi-weekly remarks concerning the local Y. M. C. A. and, we imagine, we will unfortunately get in return the stereotyped inertia which usually marks the Y. M. C. A.'s answer.

We would like to push this organization and to help it on the campus. In its more important functions, the Y. M. C. A. does remarkably good jobs, such as the Institute, Student-Faculty Day, and the deputation trips. But when it comes to the little things which concern the students day in and day out, the Y. M. C. A. seems to have nothing to offer.

The forum idea must be carried on with a reorganized system of the present cabinets. Perhaps students will be more interested in discussing things in a small auditorium without organizational ties. At any rate, the idea should be tried—but not with the same spirit as before. This time full energy should be devoted to the idea and vigorously applied toward attracting students, rather than toward making them listen to the report of the secretary or room committee.

The Y. M. C. A. continues to be the potential source of undergraduate information, but unless the new officers get behind it and make things hum, it will always be "potential" and never "potent."

Eliminating Crossings

According to a bulletin issued some time ago by the bureau of public roads at Washington, the elimination of grade crossings is the only obvious way to reduce the heavy toll of human life on our highways.

President Roosevelt has recently announced that a sizable portion of the $4,000,000,000 public works fund will be made available to the states for this purpose. This announcement is a refreshing development coming on the heels of the terrible wreck in which 14 Maryland school children were instantly killed when their bus was struck by an express train.

Similar accidents have plunged other states into sackcloth and ashes. Certainly, too much attention cannot be given this destructive force on our highways which claims more victims than was our mortality rate in the World War.

Scouting Fraternity Will Meet Tonight

The University chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary scouting fraternity, will meet in Graham Memorial tonight at 8 o'clock to finish working out details of its part in the Boy Scout Jubilee to be held here next week.

The local scouters will conduct the lighting ceremony for the big campfire program Friday night. All scouts and former scouts in the University are invited to be guests of the convening scouts at this campfire ceremony.

The feature of the regular meeting tonight will be the pledging of new members.

Forgrave Offers Prize For Best Comic Plot

Les Forgrave, cartoonist now living in Chapel Hill, is offering a prize of ten dollars to the best story submitted for the characters in his comic strip, "Big Sister."

Mr. Forgrave does not want a single joke or wise crack, but a plot which will be good for a series of strips. The actions suggested for the characters must be probable, and in keeping with the characters as Mr. Forgrave has conceived them.

"Big Sister" appears daily in the Greensboro News.

All plots must be mailed to Mr. Forgrave at the Carolina Inn. Students, faculty and townspeople alike are eligible for the contest.

WORKMAN JOINS AAA

J. H. Workman, graduate in education, left for Lumberton today to assume the responsibilities of AAA supervisor. This position will include supervision of a survey that will be made in several counties of tenant contracts under the agricultural adjustment administration.

Workman expects to receive his degree in education this June.

Translating the symbols, the Tokyo telephone operator says, "The connection is made—go ahead, please." Meaning that now you can talk to Japan from any telephone in the Bell System.

Interestingly, Japanese was the first foreign language ever transmitted by telephone—when in the winter of 1876-77 three Japanese students at Harvard visited Alexander Graham Bell in Boston. These men have lived to see the day when they can talk with Boston from their homeland!

Seeking to put the whole world on such easy speaking terms, Bell System service now enables you to reach more than 93% of the world's 33,000,000 telephones.

Galaxy Of Stars To Play In Table Tennis Tourney At Tin Can Tonight, 8:30

Four All-Americans To Give Exhibition

Berenbaum, National Champ, Will Perform; Rubin, Cartland Represent Carolina.

NOVELTY EXHIBITION ALSO

Tonight is the big night in the history of southern table tennis. Chapel Hill plays host to the heralded galaxy of stars who will give their spectacular exhibition in the Tin Can at 8:30 p. m.

Under the flood lights in the huge Tin Can four experts will display their technique before an expected large turnout.

The quartet is composed of Abe Berenbaum, national champion, Rudy Rubin, Chet Wells, and Jack Hartigan. The last mentioned is a recent addition to the troupe.

Feature Matches

Outstanding matches are scheduled on the glittering program. Rubin vs. Berenbaum; Wells vs. Hartigan; U. N. C. vs. the All-Americans; Len Rubin vs. Doug Cartland for school championship; the Rubin family affair, and a grand novelty match to finish things up.

The feature of the night will send Rudy Rubin, sixth in the nation, against Berenbaum, the

VARSITY NETTERS DEFEAT TEACHERS

Makeshift Team Wins from Appalachian State, 7-0.

Playing with a makeshift team, the varsity netters chalked up another victory yesterday afternoon, scoring 7-0 over the Appalachian Teachers College. Ricky Willis acted as captain for Carolina.

Due to the absence of most of the varsity players, who were playing in Pinehurst, Joe Grier and Sid Weinstein were thrust into the contest.

Larry Jones had the greatest scare, barely beating Norris in deuced sets. Joe Grier scored in love sets in singles and also when paired with Jones in doubles.

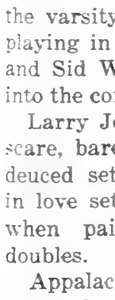
Appalachian only brought five players, necessitating a seven-match contest.

The scores follow:

Willis (C) over George Sawyer, 6-1, 6-3.

Minor (C) over Karl Sawyer, 6-4, 6-2.

Jones (C) over Norris, 7-5, 8-6.



Grier (C) over Copeland, 6-0, 6-0.

Weinstein (C) over Throneburg, 6-0, 6-2.

Minor-Willis over Sawyer-Sawyer, 6-4, 8-6.

Jones-Grier over Copeland-Throneburg, 6-0, 6-0.

VARSITY GOLFERS MEET RICHMOND THIS AFTERNOON

Virginia School Boasts Strong Links Outfit; Will Play At Hope Valley.

LAXTON WILL LEAD OFF

The varsity golfers will meet Richmond University on the Hope Valley course this afternoon.

The visiting Virginia team has always been hard competition for the Tar Heel dubbers in past meets, but the recent Duke meet has given the boys plenty of proper training and should have left them in the best of shape for today's contest.

Laxton to Lead Off

At the lead-off position for the Tar Heel linksmen will be Captain Erwin Laxton. In the last meet his best score was a 73 and the possibility of duplicating this feat or even turning in a lower score is likely if the weather improves.

Dick Harris, who boasts of being undefeated in singles competition, will be defending his record when he plays in his usual second position. His low score of 72, shot in the Duke meet, will be up for duplication and possibly betterment.

Wilson Coffin, having successfully filled the third position in the last meet will probably definitely replace Pijanowski, who formerly held that position.

The only sophomore likely to

FRESHMEN MEET MARS HILL TEAM IN GAME TODAY

Johnny Humphries Will Start on Mound Against Junior College Outfit.

WILL PLAY AT 4 O'CLOCK

The yearling nine will come up against the unbeaten Mars Hill outfit at 4 o'clock this afternoon on Emerson field, in what Coach James terms as one of the toughest games to be played this year.

John Humphries, who pitched two-hit ball in the opener, will be ready to toe the slab in today's contest. Despite the fact that Humphries has had only a two-day rest, he appeared to be in excellent shape during the warm-up drills yesterday.

Batting Weak

The yearlings are all eager to get into action this afternoon, and make up for the misplays which cost them the game against Wake Forest. Yesterday's practice found them still weak in batting.

Mars Hill comes to town today with an enviable record, having remained undefeated throughout last year's schedule and in their games so far this season.

This year's outfit is reputed to be one of their best, and if that is the case, the Tar Babies will be facing one of the first few outstanding nines in the Carolinas.

The frosh will pin their hopes

Tar Heel Baseball Team Defeated By Pro Outfit In Free-Hitting Contest

HENDERSON WINS AT NET TOURNEY

University Sophomore Trounces Barney Welsh, Ex-Duke Star, At Pinehurst Meet.

Archie Henderson, sophomore racquet star, sprang the biggest upset of the present tennis year by soundly trouncing Barney Welsh in the quarter-final of the North-South tournament now underway at Pinehurst.

Welsh, public parks champion and seeded fourth in the tournament, was whipped decisively by the Tar Heel, 6-2, 6-2. Henderson, playing a cautious and beautiful slow game, passed Welsh repeatedly and rode through to victory and his greatest conquest.

Welsh Beat Harris

Only yesterday Welsh had beaten Harvey Harris. This former Duke star, who at his prime was too good for the Tar Heel representatives, was unable to solve Henderson's brilliance and was subjected to a humiliating defeat.

The other Carolina player, Ramsay Potts, went down before Wilmer Allison, national champion, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2. Allison was much too powerful for the sparkling Carolina fresh-

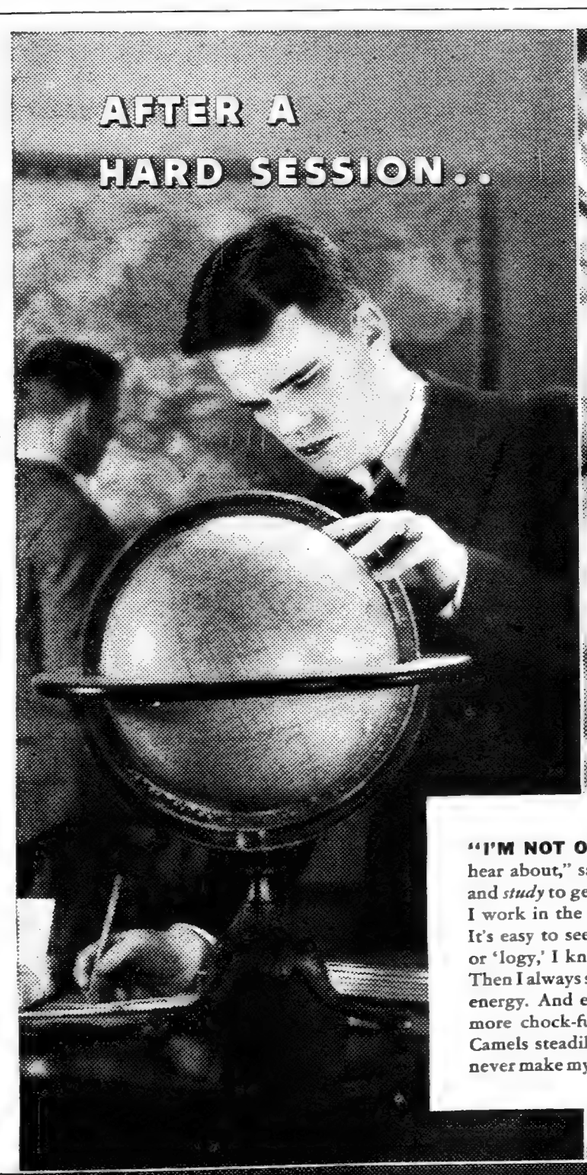
TATUM HITS TWO HOMERS

Leaksville, April 17.—After Carolina had built up a 10-2 lead in the first four innings, Leaksville's professional baseball team went to work to count 11 runs in three frames and finally whip the Tar Heels, 13-11. Both teams got the same number of hits as runs.

Latcher Webster, pitching his first game for Carolina, held the pro club well in hand during the first four innings but in the fifth he gave up a walk, four hits and four runs and then finally had to retire in the sixth in favor of Irby Wright, another rookie.

Carolina's batting punch took form in the first inning as it blasted out one pitcher and drove six runs across the plate. Big Jim Tatum, first baseman, led the way with his home run which cleared loaded bases.



Three More

The Tar Heels got three more in a big third when Captain Vick walked, Webster and Rand hit doubles, and Irwin singled.

BARNETT TO HEAD NEW EXECUTIVES IN POLICY LEAGUE

Margaret Gaines and Niles Bond Are Other Officers; Group Studies Stresa Conference.

CLUB THANKS BAHNSON

At the meeting of the Foreign Policy League last night the following officers were elected for the incoming year: president, Joe Barnett; vice-president, Margaret Gaines, and secretary, Niles Bond. The remainder of the meeting was occupied with a study of the Stresa conference, led by Bond and Miss Gaines.

Barnett was unopposed for president. Don McKee was runner-up to Bond for the position of secretary-treasurer. The office of vice-president was created at this meeting, there having been no such position during the present year.

Co-eds Invited

A bid has been made for co-ed members in the election of Miss Gaines, outstanding among the co-eds in campus activities.

After the voting the program was turned over to Barnett, under whose leadership a vote of thanks was passed for the splendid work of Agnew Bahnson as president during the past year.

Stresa Conference

Attention was then turned to the Stresa conference. Miss Gaines opened discussion of this with a presentation of its historical background.

Niles Bond then continued the topic under consideration by outlining the results, apparent and factual, of the conference. Bond emphasized the opportuneness of the conference in calming the troubled European situation. One possible effect may be renewed military co-operation and alliance between France

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR SENIOR WEEK

Affair Will Last May 6 to 11; Smokers, Receptions, Dances, And Fleece Tapping.

Tentative plans for Senior Week were drawn up by the senior executive committee at its meeting last night. The program arranged will extend from Monday, May 6, through the following Saturday night.

Events begin Monday afternoon with the senior-faculty playground baseball game.

Class Smoker

Tuesday evening a smoker will be held at which class superlatives will be elected and plans for permanent organization of the class drawn up. Dr. Howard Rondthaler, president of Salem College, will speak. Members of the faculty will be guests and various toasts to campus personalities and events will be drunk.

The senior class will be guests of Graham Memorial Wednesday afternoon at a reception. Following this, the game tables and bowling alley will be open for the free use of seniors.

Junior-Senior Dances

Golden Fleece tapping will be held Thursday night and the week will close with Junior-Senior dances on Friday and Saturday.

Other events are now being planned by the executive committee to fill the week out more completely.

Hampton Students Will Perform Dances Of Their African Ancestors

Students of Negro Institution Will Appear Here May 4 In Varied Program.

Weird, outlandish steps and movements to primitive African rhythms will constitute one of the feature performances on the program of interpretive dancing to be given here May 4 by the group of 51 Negro students from the Hampton Institute.

This section of the program, included under the title "African Dances," is made up of six separate pieces dealing with African life before the appearance of the white slave traders on the shores of the dark continent.

"Ya Ma Wisee"

"Ya Ma Wisee" enacts the story of the visit of the God to the tribe. Two boys playing along the river are frightened by the awful sight of him and run away. Then all the people come and worship the God with song and dance.

African beggars travel in groups of two or three; and when they come to a village, they stop and dance for the crowd that gathers to watch them. The Hampton dancers will perform a "Beggars' Dance."

Wedding Dance

"Wyo Mamie" is the name of the dance performed on the night before the wedding of an African girl, on the occasion of her parents' giving their final consent to the marriage.

When the witch doctor had satisfied a person who had been robbed by catching the thief and recovering the stolen article, he would show his joy and call attention to his triumph by swinging into the "Witch Doctor's Dance."

Warriors' Warm-up

On the eve of a battle warriors used to work up a martial frenzy by the wild "Wanda" dance.

The group of African dances closes with "The Feast of Ramadan." This feast is a Mohammedan ceremony introduced into northwest Africa by Arabs. Dancing is part of the celebration.

The variety of their program is one of the most amazing things about the versatile Hampton dancers. For example, immediately after this series of primitive dances comes a piece entitled "Designe Moderne" and typical of some of the most polished modern art in dancing.

PHYSICISTS HEAR SIMMONS TODAY

Graduate Will Explain His Research in Photo-Chemistry.

N. L. Simmons, a graduate student, will address the third meeting of the Physics Colloquiam in Phillips hall this afternoon at 4:30 on "Photo-Chemistry."

As there is no course at the University dealing with the results of the interaction of light and matter, the speaker will cover as much of this field as possible for the benefit of the physics students.

Simmons spent the winter of 1933-34 in research at the University of California, which has one of the best-equipped laboratories for study of this kind in the country. During the past year he has continued his research at Chapel Hill.

If time permits Mr. Simmons will outline the results of his research during these two years.

DRUGGISTS HOLD BIG HOP TONIGHT

Freddy Johnson Will Play for Annual Pharmacy Dance in Bynum Gymnasium.

Under crepe streamers of Blue and White the students of the pharmacy school will dance tonight from 9 to 1 o'clock to the melodies of Freddy Johnson and his orchestra, playing for the school's annual dance in Bynum gymnasium.

Johnson and his boys will be assisted by Miss Peggy Wood, Johnson's feature vocalist, and Gene "Lanks" Whitaker, Miss Wood's song companion.

Two Bids Apiece

Two bids, one a stag ticket, have been issued to each member of the pharmacy school, and any outsiders may purchase bids from them, according to H. T. Murrell, president of the pharmacy school.

The faculty members of the school will act as chaperons for the dance, which will be formal.

Leaders

Murrell, with Miss Virginia Wimbish of Martinsville, Va., will lead the figure. His assistants will be Miss Mary Alice Bennett of Bryson City, president of the school's senior class, with Hugh Davis of Winston-Salem; H. C. Reaves of Raeford, president of the third year pharmacists, with Miss Mary Monroe of Raeford; J. W. Watson, pharmacy sophomore class president, with Miss Eloise Gibbs of Columbia.

The members of the dance committee are: H. T. Murrell, chairman; W. F. Matthews, F. A. Holt, J. D. Mitchell, H. O. Thompson, and Miss Maggie Moore.

Choir to Sing Cantata

"The Crucifixion," the well-known cantata composed by Stainer, will be sung tonight (Good Friday) at 8 o'clock at the Chapel of the Cross by the combined Episcopal and Presbyterian choirs.

The cantata will be directed by George H. Lawrence, with Nelson O. Kennedy at the organ. The soloists are Jesse Parker, Dr. Urban T. Holmes, and James P. Dees.

Program Chairman

Robert W. Madry, director of the University News Bureau, who has arranged the program for the Southern Convention of the American College Publicity Association, which opens at the Carolina Inn this afternoon and continues through Saturday. Mr. Madry was president of the national association last year.

PUBLICITY HEADS ASSEMBLE TODAY FOR CONVENTION

Southern College News Directors To Follow Program Planned By R. W. Madry.

OVER THIRTY DELEGATES

With delegates present from virtually every southern state, the southern district convention of the American College Publicity Association will get under way at the Carolina Inn at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continue through Saturday.

Approximately 30 college news directors are attending, and Ralph S. Clark, publicity director of Rollins College, who is director for the southern district, will preside.

Madry Arranges Program

The program has been arranged by Robert W. Madry, director of the University News Bureau, who is serving as convention secretary. Both are former presidents of the American College Publicity Association.

W. J. MacFarlan, manager of the Raleigh bureau of the Associated Press; Felix Grisette, president of the American Alumni Council; and Jake Wade of the Charlotte Observer, president of the Southeastern Sportswriters Association, will speak at a banquet session at

Students Display Carolina Wonders; Visiting Registrars Fed On Tradition

"And on our left is the famous University of North Carolina library. It contains over 250 volumes," blared out J. A. Barrett, guide for the registrars of Canada and the United States on a bus tour of Carolina yesterday.

"Two-hundred-fifty?" asked one of the visitors.

"The thousand provision goes unsaid, of course," blubbered confused Barrett, his guiding poise greatly disturbed.

In another big, yellow bus rode Simmons Patterson, directing the registrars who had come directly from Raleigh, in the wonders and traditions of Carolina.

Davie Came?

"And when was the University founded?" queried a weak little voice from one of the "admissioners."

"Er—" and ers, more ers, Patterson, ace guide, was floundered, but he came back with a speel about the glories of the infirmary and Swain hall.

The American Association of Collegiate Registrars had just completed its annual meeting, this year held in Raleigh, and the group of registrars from colleges and junior colleges all over the United States and Canada was ending its session with a tour of Carolina and Duke Universities.

Beginning at the co-ed shack, the tour of Carolina progressed under the able direction of Guides Sandy McLeod, Alfred Barrett and Patterson. Up the "main drag" the buses rolled. A turn at the stop light, "this is the fraternity court," University in-

Staff Meeting

The entire staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

It is imperative that all staff members be present, because newly-elected Editor Phil Hammer will set forth plans for the beginning Monday of his term of office.

HOUSE IS LOYAL TO BLUE EAGLE

Johnson Upholds Administration; Banking Act to Have New Deal Likeness.

Washington, April 18.—(UP)—The House of Representatives was given its first chance to vote on major New Deal legislation today and without a gag proved loyal to Roosevelt.

It defeated the radical Townsend and Lundeen plans and promised the President the kind of social security bill that he wants. It defeated the Townsend plan 206 to 56, the Lundeen plan, 204 to 52.

Old Age Pensions

Leaders believe that today's action disposes of both schemes this session and paves the way for the passage of the administration bill, virtually without a major change, late tomorrow or Monday. The administration bill provides for old age pensions in which the federal government will match the state pensions up to $15 per month per individual.

The Senate debated farmers' home corporation legislation and received the Borah resolution to prevent the issuance of private and public foreign loans.

Johnson Defends

The finance committee heard General Hugh S. Johnson defend the NRA. Johnson lashed out at big business, sweatshops, New Deal critics, selfish interests, and rugged individualists. He said that the destruction of recovery leads to the disastrous collapse of the profit system, communism, and revolution.

Washington administration won a smashing victory tonight on the proposed banking act of 1935 when the House banking and currency committee agreed to report it as a whole, leaving in the act advanced views of the liberal New Dealers.

The measure will be formally reported out of the committee tomorrow, and a rule will be sought to prevent it from being used as a target for inflationists and other proponents of drastic panaceas.

Winslow's Father Dies

Called home suddenly by the death of his father, J. D. Winslow left Chapel Hill yesterday for Elizabeth City.

Mr. Winslow, Sr., 76-year-old planter, had been ill all this year, having suffered two strokes of paralysis previous to the one which caused his death yesterday.

Graham Memorial Directors

A meeting of the board of directors of Graham Memorial has been called for this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Further Nominations, Elections Next Week

Shaffner, MacFarland, Lewis, Campbell, Warren Candidates; Committee Offers Four.

ONE NAMED FROM FLOOR

Five students were nominated for the presidency of the University Club at the regular session of the organization last night.

Nominated for the office of president were Louis Shaffner, George MacFarland, Henry Lewis, Francis Campbell, and Julien Warren.

One Floor Nomination

Shaffner, MacFarland, Lewis, and Campbell were presented for the presidency by the University Club nominating committee. Warren was nominated from the floor.

Further nominations for the offices of secretary and treasurer of the organization will be made at the meeting of the club next week. Elections will also take place at that time, and the new officials will assume office.

New Members Installed

Following a brief intermission after the business session, the new members elected to the club were officially installed into the organization.

New members inducted last night are: William Kephart, W. Lockwood Sawyer, George Flynt, Louis Shaffner, B. C. Abels, H. M. Davis, Jerry Kisner, Don McKee, William Priestley, Jr., Boylan Carr, Foster Corwith.

Robert Gardiner, Lyndon McKee, Jr., Julian D. Bobbitt, Philip Kind, Jr., Jane Ross, Eleanor Barker, Lola Reid, Jean McKay, George MacFarland, Joe W. Grier, George Allan, Jr., John G. Johnson, James A. Bruton, Walter F. Illman.

Bill Cochrane, Jack Bower, Lawrence F. Frank, Julien Warren, Jr., Hubert Alderman, Jacob W. Bond, Dick Hicks, John Ericson, Billy W. Daniel.

Following the induction ceremony, refreshments were served for the neophytes.

SENATORS MOVE TOWARD ADOPTION OF REVENUE BILL

Changes Made as Bill Progresses Easily Toward Passage.

Raleigh, April 18.—(UP)—The Senate today turned back toward the adoption of the revenue bill as written by the joint finance committee, replacing the $600,000 it had cut from the measure last week.

It first voted a chain filling stations tax it had previously killed, then voted to replace the three per cent sales tax on hotel room rentals. Each of these levies, it is estimated, will produce $300,000 in revenue.

Further Amendments

The revenue bill, thrown back on its first reading, will be open to further amendments for two more legislative days.

The House cut the 50 cents per hundred weight from the auto license tax rate, cutting it to 40 cents per hundred weight, and also passed a measure increasing the legal width of highway vehicles from 90 to 96 inches.

The House voted 52 to 18 to repeal a previous resolution memoralizing Congress' repeal of the cotton processing tax.

PARAGRAPHICS

And the argument about exempting basic foods from the sales tax seems to us pretty small potatoes.

Roosevelt's $4,800,000,000 bit of legislation was no misnomer. It was work to get it through Congress and a relief now it's been passed.

Of course the professional soldier, as Major Johnson calls himself, may be allowed a word or two. But much more than that comes under the head of advertising—a breach of professional etiquette, Major.

Suggestions Are in Order

At their Tuesday night meetings both the Di and the Phi adopted the suggestion made recently in these columns that the two organizations act as a bicameral legislative body in the consideration of important bills. Each of them appointed members to a joint committee to determine what shall be the procedure for such a plan.

A member of the joint committee has made a few suggestions along this line to the DAILY TAR HEEL. He submits them, through us, to be considered by the committee itself. The suggestions are:

That a joint ways and means committee be established for choosing the bills that will be considered consecutively;

That measures for introduction be divided into national, state, and local classifications, each type to originate in a particular "house";

That each house be allowed to reserve the right of discussing humorous bills, or bills peculiar to its own interests, according to its own procedure and independently of the other body.

Whether or not these suggestions are considered, the importance of careful planning toward such co-operation as is now being considered cannot be overstressed.

Some such suggestions as these, and many more similar ideas on the subject, will be necessary to regular bicameral procedure—procedure which must by no means deprive these historical campus organizations of their independence.

Domestic Products

"What we need at the University," remarked Professor Crittenden of the history department not long ago, "is a Human Relations Institute for our own speakers."

Disregarding the improbability of such an "Institute," we feel that Professor Crittenden has said something that deserves attention. At our University we have some men that are just as outstanding in their fields as those we had the pleasure of hearing two weeks ago. Yet many of us know almost as little about them as outsiders. We know even less, in some ways, for these authorities seldom speak here but, on the other hand, are invited to other colleges. And when they do speak here it is considered a routine matter. Not that they are unappreciated; simply that they are too near to be novel.

Why should we wander so far afield for our speakers? If we do it, let's remember at the same time that our own University is not lacking in speakers of Institute caliber.

Progressive Radicalism

The "radical changes" proposed by Speaker Albert Ellis for the Phi Assembly are, according to informed members of that organization, the first gun in a campaign to transform the tradition-bound—and in some ways "tradition-hampered"—Phi Assembly into a live-wire campus literary society.

The invitation of co-eds, if really desired by both parties concerned, will help attendance, we hope, and give a more complete representation of the campus. By permitting smoking on the floor of the Assembly, Speaker Ellis hopes to make members feel more at ease.

If the progressive spirit begun can be continued, we may see the Phi Assembly once more becoming an integral part of the University.

Caring For Our Youth

Scripps-Howard newspapers called attention last month to the increased preparation for military training now being made by a Congress that has passed the largest peace-time war budget in our history:

"The Senate has added $1,443,774 to the House War Department appropriation for setting up 113 new Reserve Officers Training Corps units in high schools and colleges," says the editorial. "This item, if accepted in conference, will increase the present student R. O. T. C. enrollment of 148,000 by 30,000 to 60,000 youths. Probably most of the new units will be in high schools, and doubtless drill will be compulsory in most units."

"We may not be in danger of invasion by foreign dictatorships," the editorial concludes, "but the invasion of their ideas apparently has begun."

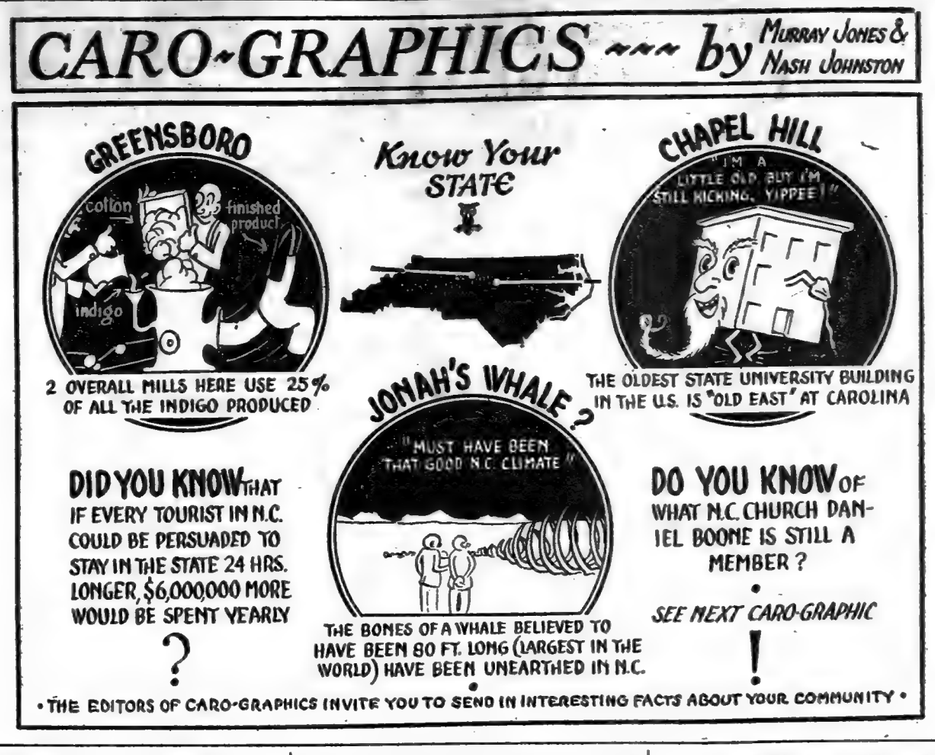
To learn this, then to recall how Americans threw up their hands in horror at Mussolini's conscription of eight-year-old boys, is an inconsistency in our thinking that is extremely dangerous. It is the kind of blindness from which war hysteria is manufactured and by which it is condoned. When the United States was at war, did not all but a few sane people believe that the Germans were butchering Huns and the Allies knights in shining armor? And now after 20 years—years that supposedly whipped and sobered our thinking—do we still believe that Mussolini sacrifices to Baal while we, the free nation, are only too solicitous about our youth?

Our government cares for American youth, apparently—cares for them until it is ready to kill them.

An Antidote for Long and Coughlin

The most wholesome student attitude shown by Virgil Lee's survey of 214 representative undergraduates is that toward political parties. The average student, it would seem, believes "it is the duty of every citizen to vote upon issues as they arise irrespective of party affiliation."

In an age where individual thinking is at a premium, and mass impulse the order of the day, this is a word of encouragement from a small part of the youth of America to those who fear that this nation may rush blindly into a fascistic or "follow-the-leader" government.



Experienced political observers have time after time pointed out the danger arising from the unrest in America today. Huey Long has his ardent admirers, lured on by the honey of a share-the-wealth catch-word. Father Coughlin's demagogic oratory, whose magnetism is enhanced by the fact that the Catholic church is already an organization-nucleus, appeals to thousands more. Doc Townsend, with a fantastic scheme to pay every person over 60 the sum of $200 per month, also has his followers. There are some even who would no doubt be pleased if General Johnson, flinger of dead cats, Saxon epithets, and top-sergeant language, would run for president. William Randolph Hearst, owner of the largest chain of newspapers in America, sways thousands of "people who think" by twisting facts and playing on emotions and prejudices.

Many people deplore democratic education. Democracy, they say, has gone too far when it tries to educate any and everybody. But if the average student turned out by a state institution can declare it the duty of every citizen to consider issues as they arise, on their own merits, this sort of education is justified then and there. It is the best antidote against the toxins of Long, Coughlin, Hearst, and other "leaders" of the American people.

Pater Noster

Of interest to Carolina students is the Father's Day being held at Duke University tomorrow and Sunday. Although we would not propose any such observance for this campus, feeling that Carolina already has its share of holidays, it seems to us a mighty fitting dedication. Fathers, be it recalled, are the people we write home to for money. Thus, they have a small part, one might say, in our education.

And believe it or not, Duke and Carolina students, Dad will need a gay time. Wait'll he gets the bill for your Easter corsages. Yessir, he's the backbone of a college education.

Johnson's History Meets

Cecil Johnson, instructor in the history department, announced last night that he will meet his class in History 3 as usual at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

If any of his students wish to confer with him, he will be in the library from 10:30 to 12 o'clock tomorrow.

SPEND THE JUNIOR YEAR IN EUROPE

At this interesting moment in world history many American college students would like to have first-hand knowledge of conditions in Europe.

The "Junior Year Abroad," a program of supervised study approved by colleges generally throughout the United States, offers highly recommended students from the departments of French, Spanish, and Italian in accredited American colleges an opportunity for a year's study in the countries named below, with full credit toward graduation for the year's work.

For men and women—France: Tours, summer; Paris, regular session.

For women only—Spain and Italy: Perugia, summer; Florence, regular session.

For detailed information, ask the head of the appropriate department in your own college, or address

Table Tennis Aces Thrill Tin Can Crowd With New Conception Of Ping Pong

ABE BERENBAUM TOPS RUDY RUBIN

National Stars Defeat U. N. C. Team as Rudy Rubin and Bacon Are Victorious

TO PLAY TONIGHT AT 8:45

Table tennis made its official debut in the south at the Tin Can last night as a quartet of champions thrilled spectators with a sparkling exhibition of the fastest game on earth.

The little white celluloid ball flew threw the air at an amazing speed as Abe Berenbaum, Rudy Rubin, Chet Wells, and George Bacon, assisted by Len Rubin and Doug Cartland, treated the crowd to one of the most interesting and enjoyable athletic exhibitions ever to take place in Chapel Hill.

Aside from the actual playing of the games, the players amused the gathering after the night's play with a display of trick finger spin service which had the ping pong ball standing on its head and almost shouting.

The first match of the night brought together Chet Wells and Carolina's Len Rubin. Both players were slow in starting, but Wells was the steadier of the two winning the opening game, 21-16. Len Rubin staged a fight in the second contest and barely lost the game, 23-21.

Doug Cartland, second U. N. C. player, was easily beaten by George Bacon, hard hitting fourth member of the troupe. Bacon hit with a peculiar style and overwhelmed Cartland, 21-6, 21-16.

The next match was the feature of the night and the crowd thrilled to their strokes as Rubin laced the national champion to all sides. He won the first game and then tired as Berenbaum's defense tightened. The scores were 13-21, 21-14, 21-16. A few of the volleys were nothing short of miraculous.

CAROLINA AND VA. MEET TOMORROW

Track Teams Will Battle on Emerson; Everett Will Lead Cavalier Outfit.

After two weeks absence from outside competition the varsity track squad goes back into action tomorrow afternoon when it faces the University of Virginia here at Emerson field.

Last year the Cavaliers fell in the Tar Heel wake by a 78¾-47¼ margin at Charlottesville. Tomorrow the Virginia team, with many of its last year's veterans plus some new talent, will aim upon wiping out the 1934 humiliation.

Both teams opened their current campaigns with success. Last Saturday Virginia triumphed over the Cadets of V. M. I., 83-43, while the Tar Heels dispensed with the W. & M. attempts 76-49 two weeks ago.

Everett Outstanding

Outstanding for the invaders will be Captain Grover Everett, who will be remembered as the fellow who showed the way in the 70-yard high hurdles, and was runner-up in the 70-yard lows in the recent indoor games. He is also outdoor Conference champ in both hurdle events.

Against V. M. I., Everett traveled the 120-yard highs in 15.6 seconds, and the 220-yard lows in 25.8, which is very good time for this stage of the season. He also captured the running broad jump.

Besides its flashy leader, the visitors will bring some other standouts. Among them is Bill Bast who was a double winner last week. He captured the quarter and half-mile runs with apparent ease. In addition to the latter event, the Cavaliers swept all places in the pole vault and broad jump.

Banta and Wait are the visitors' best bets in the longer distances, while the trio of Armstrong, Mustin, and Call handle the pole vault assignments in efficient manner, although they needed to go only 11 feet to capture the win against V. M. I.

FRESHMAN STARS ONLY TAR HEELS LEFT IN TOURNEY

All Carolina Boys Eliminated in North-South Except Doubles Team, Potts and Fuller.

HALL DOWNS HENDERSON

At the conclusion of yesterday's tennis play at Pinehurst, Eddy Fuller and Ramsay Potts, freshmen, were the only Tar Heels left in the North-South tourney. The doubles pair did not see action yesterday but are expected to meet a semi-final opponent today.

Archie Henderson, Carolina's sophomore, who upset Welsh Wednesday, put up a great battle before finally bowing to the top-ranking Gilbert Hall in three sets. Hall went to the singles finals by the victory which was 6-0, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

Hall vs. Allison

Hall will battle the United States' number one player Wilmer Allison in the finals of the singles tourney. Allison advanced to the final round by a 7-5, 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Surface.

Carolina's two other doubles teams remaining were pushed out in the quarter-final round yesterday, Frank Shore and Harvey Harris went down before the fast playing of Allison and Hall, 6-2, 6-1.

The Byron Ables-Eddy De Gray combination fell before Welsh and Surface, 6-4, 6-4.

FIRST YEAR NINE GETS 5-4 VICTORY OVER MARS HILL

Tar Babies Forced to Stop Four-Run Rally in Ninth to Win; Humphries Hurls.

GRUBB LEADS TAR BABIES

Staving off a last minute rally in the ninth inning, the Carolina freshmen won their second game of the season yesterday on Emerson field, defeating Mars Hill Junior College, 5-4.

The yearlings jumped into the lead in the first inning when Bunny Burnette sent a smashing double down the left-field foul line and scored a minute later when LeGrande drove a clean single to center.

More in Sixth

The frosh resumed their scoring activities in the sixth when Lloyd led off with a single past third. Grubb advanced him to second with his third hit of the afternoon and the centerfielder scored when Poe fumbled Hernandez's peg.

Parker wild-pitched Grubb to third who counted on Andrews' infield single. Andrews stole second and crossed the plate when Tommy Craver sent a hard single to center. On the play Tutor allowed Craver's drive to go through him and the diminutive second-baseman circled the sacks to tally the fourth and final run of the canto.

Meanwhile Johnny Humphries was putting the opposing batters down without much trouble. He was assisted by a sparkling double play in the fifth when Craver speared Hernandez's drive and doubled Sedberry off first.

Rally in Ninth

The fireworks broke loose in the ninth inning when the Junior College batters got busy and clubbed out five hits. Aided by a pass and an error they succeeded in scoring four runs be-

FROSH NET TEAM DEFEATS HI'S, 8-1

Winston-Salem Victim as Yearlings Continue in Streak; Scarboro Here Today.

Carolina's freshman tennis team continued adding to its column of one-sided wins here yesterday by defeating Winston-Salem High School, 8-1.

The yearlings will have one of the toughest battles of the season here this afternoon when they take on the crack team from Scarboro on the Hudson.

Potts again led the Tar Babies as he turned back Rollins, the number one high school player, 6-0, 6-3. Foreman, playing Brown in third position, was the only Carolina boy to count a love victory in both sets.

The lone Winston-Salem point came in the number one doubles match, Rollins and Croom defeating Yeomans and Bloom, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. It was the only match to go three sets.

Summary:

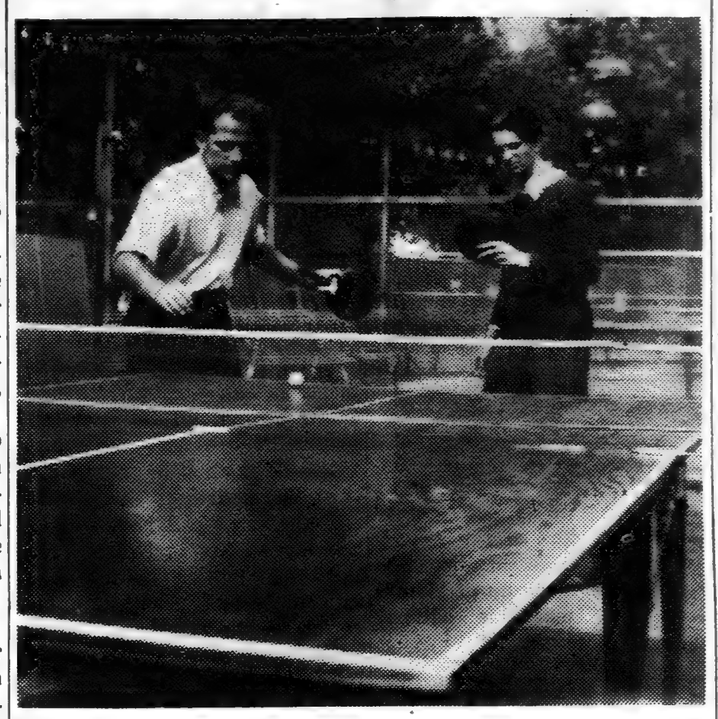
Potts (C) defeated Rollins, 6-0, 6-3.

Robinson (C) defeated Croom, 6-4, 6-2.

Foreman (C) defeated Brown, 6-0, 6-0.

Farrell (C) defeated Sutton, 6-1, 6-1.

Strasburger (C) defeated Dixon, 6-4, 6-0.



Elwell defeated Eagles, 6-1, 6-1.

Rollins and Croom (WS) defeated Yeomans and Bloom, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Bartleman and Ellison (C) defeated Brown and Sutton, 6-2, 7-5.

Fast and Elwell (C) defeated Dixon and Eagles, 6-1, 6-0.

LEAD EXHIBITIONISTS

Rudy Rubin and Abe Berenbaum, top ranking table tennis players in the United States, who were the stars at an exhibition staged in the Tin Can here last night. Playing against each other, the two gave a performance so fast that the spectators could hardly see the ball. These two will head a second exhibition in the Tin Can tonight at 8:45.

Tar Heel Golf Club Ties Richmond In Fast Meet

COFFIN IS STAR WITH A LOW 71

Absence of Pijanowski Hurts Carolina; Laxton, Coffin Score Most Points for Home Team.

PLAY FURMAN HERE TODAY

Playing one of the best brands of golf displayed on the Hope Valley course this season, the Tar Heel links team split its meet with the crack Richmond University club, 9-9.

The absence of Walter Pijanowski, Carolina's regular fourth man, was greatly felt.

Yesterday afternoon's meet was the seventh this season and will be followed up by a meet with Furman today and one with Boston College tomorrow.

The Tar Heels should have little trouble in beating both of the coming opponents providing they play their full team and continue the excellent game of golf they have been displaying during the past week.

20-Foot Putt

One of the features of yesterday's game was a beautiful 20-foot putt sunk by Pittore of the visitors. Will Coffin was medalist of the day with a remarkable low of 71. Laxton was a close second with a 72, while the best score for the visitors was a 74 turned in by Pittore.

Erwin Laxton, playing the usual lead-off position, was matched against Bob Riegal. Despite the fact that Laxton turned in a low card of 72 in the match, all he could beat his opponent by was a 2-1 score.

Dick Harris met Roland Wright in the second individual match of the day and split with his opponent 1½-1½. Will Coffin's low 71 helped him considerably in beating Dave Ewell of Richmond University, 3-0.

Horace Hamilton, substituting for Walter Pijanowski, played a good game, but went down in defeat to Richmond's fourth man, Joe Pittore, by a 3-0 score.

In the first of the doubles matches, Laxton and Harris beat the opposing combination of Riegal and Wright 2½-½. The second doubles match saw Coffin and Hamilton bow to Ewell and Pittore, bringing the score of the meet to 9-9.

ZETA PSI RALLIES TO CAPTURE, 11-6, MURAL CONTEST

Folger Leads to Victory Over Theta Kappa Nu.

After the Theta Kappa Nu's had held a lead for four innings, the Zeta Psi's put on a five-run rally and finally won the only intramural baseball game yesterday, 11-6.

Folger, pitcher for the Zeta Psi's, won his own ball game when he hit a home run with the bases loaded. He also held the opposition to six hits.

BASEBALL TEAM PLAYS MILL NINE AT ELKIN TODAY

Irby Wright Will Take Mound in Effort to Put Tar Heels Back in Win Column.

CHATHAM HAS FAST CLUB

Coach Bunn Hearn will take his baseball team to Elkin for a game with the Chatham Mills club today. The same clubs meet again tomorrow.

Irby Wright, sophomore righthander, will take the mound in an effort to put Carolina back into the win column. It will be Wright's first start.

To date the Tar Heels have dropped three games in five starts. A victory today will give them a team average of .500.

Tatum in Form

Jim Tatum demonstrated the fact that he had finally reached top shape by clouting out two home runs in the game at Leaksville Wednesday. The big first baseman's newly found power at the plate should prove to be a great asset to the Tar Heel club.

Ed Voliva has already proved his worth as a hitter and will be trying to keep his batting average up in today's game.

The Chatham Mills Company boasts of having a strong baseball club, composed of former college and high school players.

Wake Forest won from this same outfit last week in a close contest.

ALPHA EPSILON 2 WHIPS PHI ALPHA IN NET FEATURE

Alpha Epsilon's No. 2 team and Phi Alpha staged the outstanding match of yesterday's intramural tennis competition, with the former taking a 2-1 victory. Mort Singer featured the play in both the singles and doubles.

Alpha Epsilon 2, Phi Alpha 1: Singer (AE) over Lasky (PA), 5-1, 5-4; Sobelson (PA) over Gordon (AE), 5-3, 5-0; Singer-Gordon (AE) over Lasky-Sobelson (PA), 5-4, 5-3.

MIDNIGHT SHOW TONIGHT

WARBASSE URGES PRODUCTION CUT

Former Surgeon Will Speak in Gerrard Hall at 7:30 on Socialized Medicine.

"The trouble with the world today is due to laying emphasis on production and neglecting the consumers," declared Dr. J. B. Warbasse of New York, president of the Co-operative League of the United States and a member of the executive committee of the International Co-operative Alliance and of the Consumers' Board of NRA, in an address at the University last night.

Dr. Warbasse was scheduled to appear on the Human Relations Institute program but was unable to fill his engagement. He will speak in Gerrard hall again tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Over Production

"Production has been carried to a high point of development in the interest of getting money, wages, and profit," he said. "The neglect of consumers' interests has resulted in an impasse at which the consumer is unable to purchase, a case of one fifth of the population, even the necessities of life.

"To meet the crisis in our economic organization, the government in its various departments is going into business and taking into its own hands more economic functions of society. This tendency towards the socialization of industry is expanding throughout the world and it is not sparing our country," Dr. Warbasse declared.

Signs of Fascism

"At the same time," he continued, "in many countries fascism is developing and some initial stages are seen in the United States. The collapse of the prevalent economic profit system is seen in the co-operative method of produce and distribution. Co-operation represents expansion into the whose of society of simple and friendly functions once performed within the family where people produced for their own consumption."

kid brother Len exceeded expectations as Len, bringing to bear all his skill, tried in vain to upset his big brother. It was a brilliant battle from start to finish and at several junctures it appeared as though the local boy would make good.

The volleys were excellent as both players brought offensive and defensive shots into play in their mad attempt to settle the family squabble. The scores were 21-12, 20-22, 21-18.

More thrills are in store for the gallery tonight with a novelty doubles match, a school championship between Len Rubin and Doug Cartland, and another trick serve exhibition.

Tonight's table tennis program starting at 8:45 follows:

Abe Berenbaum vs. Chet Wells.

Rudy Rubin vs. Len Rubin.

Berenbaum-Rubin vs. Wells-Bacon.

Len Rubin vs. Doug Cartland for school championship.

Berenbaum vs. Bacon.

FESTIVAL TO HAVE OIL ARTS EXHIBIT

Southern Art Projects to Sponsor Display April 26, 27, 28.

An exhibition of oil paintings by leading contemporary American artists will be on display in the Hill Music hall here April 26, 27, 28, under the auspices of the Southern Art Projects of which President Graham is chairman. The exhibit will be a feature of the Dogwood Festival.

Of especial note in the collection will be a marine painting by Frederick Gadd Waugh, presented to the University of North Carolina by Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington.

The exhibition will be open Friday, April 26, from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.; Saturday from 10 until 10, and Sunday from 1:30 until 5:30 o'clock.

The paintings were lent by the Macbeth Gallery of New York. The exhibit will include "Tinting the Sail," by George Elmer Browne; "Peonies," by Hattie E. Burdette; "Morning Haze," by John F. Carlson; "Springtime," by Charles H. Davis; "Evening on the Farm," by Charles Warren Eaton; "Morning," by John F. Ensor; "Sunday Morning," by Eugene Higgins; "Winter Afternoon," by Minor S. Jameson.

"Auburn Hair," by Mathilde M. Leisenring; "Park Avenue," by Hayley Lever; "Windmill by Moonlight," by Albert Lucas; "Head of Tosca," by Ivan G. Olinsky; "The New Day," by Roger M. Rittase, and a marine painting by Frederick Gadd Waugh.

additional "dope" in relation to their own squad, and it would not be surprising to see some changes in tomorrow's lineup.

In the recent practice meet between the varsity and freshmen squads, many of the men showed considerable worth in events other than which they had been competing or practicing.

CLUB BEGINS REHEARSALS

The Chapel Hill Choral Club recently began its rehearsals for the selection to be rendered at commencement this June. These rehearsals will be held Monday evening of every week.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Robert Van Sleen, O. R. Yeager, W. L. Farthing, Murray Honeycutt, R. A. Miller, Allan Knott, J. F. Blue, A. N. Norman, Emmaline Henderson, Louise Woodard, Lester Kamer, D. T. Taff, W. T. McGowan, and B. V. Fowler.

Booklet Written By Dean Pierson Shows Work Of Graduate School

Convincing testimony that the University of North Carolina, through its graduate school, is doing for the state just what consulting experts in any great business organization do for private business is offered in the annual report of "Research in Progress," a 130-page booklet in which Graduate School Dean Whatley W. Pierson summarizes projects wholly or partially completed during the year.

The report shows that faculty members and graduate students in more than 20 different departments are devoting a considerable portion of their spare time to digging up and ferreting out facts which have a direct bearing on life in North Carolina—information which has immediate and practical application to the solution to many of the state's everyday problems.

Results Available

The results of these projects are printed annually in bulletins which are placed in the University Library and thus made available to the public through the extension library.

The booklet shows there are a variety of projects on which research workers are busy collecting facts at Chapel Hill.

In the botany department Drs. W. C. Coker and H. R. Totten have recently brought out a valuable volume describing the trees of the southeastern states. They are at present working on another edition which will cover Tennessee, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Chemistry Research

The department of chemistry has a great deal of research under way. Dr. H. D. Crockford is continuing his summer studies on the lead-sulphuric acid storage cell for the United States Naval Research Laboratory. Dr. A. McLaren White is continuing the study of "agitation and mixing."

Dr. J. P. Harland of the department of classics has in preparation a volume on prehistoric excavations.

Of particular significance in the department of economics and commerce is Dr. E. W. Zimmerman's volume on "World Resources and Industries" which won the Mayflower Cup award.

Among numerous important projects in the department of education is a study of recent tendencies and current problems in the curriculum of the American college, with reference especially to North Carolina, by Dr. Edgar W. Knight.

Hickerson Writes Book

A new method for analyzing the bending stresses in buildings, bridges, bents, culverts, viaducts, and other framed structures is revealed in a recent volume by Professor T. Felix Hickerson of the school of engineering. The book contains numerous illustrative drawings and examples and 69 pages of original tables. Many new technical features are involved in Professor Hickerson's method, which has attracted wide attention.

Although Professor George R. Coffman, head of the English department, is continuing his work in the medieval and early renaissance drama, he is now concentrating attention primarily on the study of literature and the thought of the second half of the 14th century in England. Dr. George C. Taylor has published "Milton's Use of De Bartas" (Harvard University Press), and Prof. Arthur P. Hudson is preparing a volume to be called "Humor of the Old Deep South."

Professor William F. Prouty, head of the geology department, has completed studies dealing with meteor craters and fossil whales of North Carolina and is continuing studies as to the origin of elliptical bays and lake basins in the Carolinas. Professor Gerald McCarthy is continuing a geophysical investigation of the Carolina coastal plain.

Metzenthin Makes Study

In the department of German Professor E. C. Metzenthin has expanded the scope of his investigations in regard to old Germanic manuscripts, adding the study of the "preparation" by the copyists of their writing material.

Among significant contributions from the history department are volumes to be published soon by Professor W. S. Jenkins on "Pro-Slavery Thought in the Old South," an historical and analytical study of the mind of the slaveholder, and by Professor W. E. Caldwell and L. C. MacKinney on "A Short History of Medieval Europe."

The school of law reports a number of timely studies, such as "Lynching and the Law," by J. H. Chadbourn; "Control of Electric Rates in North Carolina," by F. W. Hanft; "The Judicial System Becomes Complex," by F. B. McCall; "A New Constitution for North Carolina," by Dean M. T. Van Hecke; "The Sales Tax and Transactions in Interstate Commerce," by E. M. Perkins; and "Corporations As Agencies of the Recovery Program," by R. H. Wettach. Professor Albert Coates has in preparation a research project on "The Code of Criminal Procedure," to be published by the American Law Institute.

School of Library Science

In the library and school of library science, Professor R. B. Downs and Professor Susan Grey Akers have made important studies. Professor Downs' state document center plan has attracted much attention.

Significant among contributions by the mathematics department was a comprehensive article by Dr. Archibald Henderson on the history and achievements of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

In the school of medicine Dr. W. deB. MacNider, a world authority on Bright's disease, has continued studies on diseases of the kidney and liver.

In the school of pharmacy Professor H. M. Burlage and Professor M. L. Jacobs have made an important survey of the drug industry in North Carolina.

The new head of the physics department, Professor Arthur E. Ruark, reports a large number of important projects completed and under way by members of his staff, including "A Search for Artificial Radioactivity Produced by Cosmic Rays, Gamma Rays, and Beta Rays."

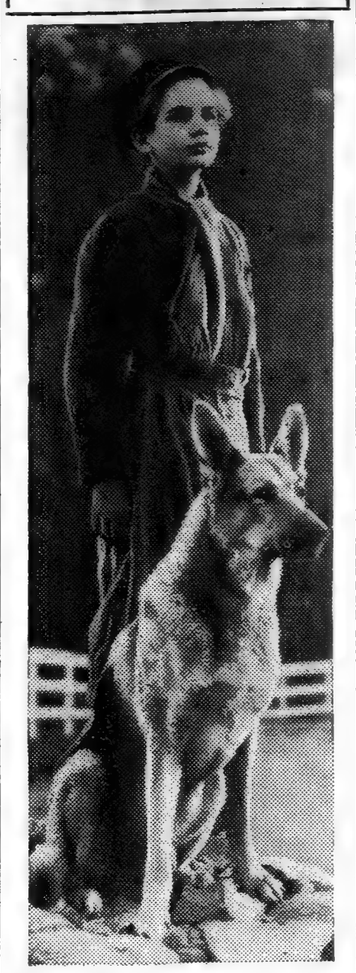
Psychology made several significant contributions, including "Studies in Testimony" under the direction of Department Head J. F. Dashiell.

Contributions by the school of public administration include a study of "The Personnel of Southern Legislatures," by Dean W. C. Jackson; "The History of North Carolina," by Dean Jackson and Professor A. M. Arnett; and a survey by Professor Columbus Andrews of 17 western North Carolina counties.

Romance Languages

In Romance Languages Professor S. E. Leavitt has published a "Tentative Bibliography of Colombian Literature" (Harvard University Press), and Professor U. T. Holmes has completed the first volume of "The Works of Guillaume du Bartas."

The department of rural social-economics, under the direction of Professor S. H. Hobbs, Jr., through the News Letter and staff members has continued its important studies of North Carolina. Among significant contributions were studies by Professor Hobbs on the cost of government in this state and by Professor P. W. Wager on county government.



Sociology Department

The Institute for Research in Social Science and the department of sociology, both headed by Dr. Howard W. Odum, probably take first place in the number of research projects completed during the year. They are working on a specific program of state and regional social research, study, and interpretation. Dr. Odum is to bring out soon a new volume dealing with the south's capacity for social and educational development. The work of the Institute has contributed considerably to the University's national reputation for scholarly research.

In the zoology department Professor H. V. Wilson and Professor R. E. Coker are among those who have done considerable research. Professor Wilson has continued his study of sponges and Professor Coker has devoted chief attention to copepods.

Concluding chapters of the booklet list research organizations and publications and faculty publications.

Wistful Hero

Frankie Thomas, brilliant child star who triumphed in his debut film, "Wednesday's Child," characterizes the sad and thoughtful Nello known to millions as the hero of "A Dog of Flanders," now playing at the Carolina theatre.

Senior Jewelry Bids

The senior ring committee will invite seven leading jewelry firms to make bids for the senior jewelry contract, it was decided at yesterday's meeting of the committee.

The committee hopes to secure rings this year at a cheaper rate than last year.

P. U. BOARD CALLS

Applications for business managerships on each of the four campus publications should be in the hands of Professor J. M. Lear by May 2. Companies submitting bids for engraving, photography, and printing should submit contracts by April 24.

HOUSE MAJORITY SENDS SECURITY BILL TO SENATE

Measure Would Put Government In Entirely New Field of Social Legislation.

PASSED BY 372 - 33 VOTE

Washington, April 19.—(UP)—The New Deal's plan to help 20,000,000 workers to provide against old age and unemployment won the approval of the House today by the tremendous majority of 372 to 33.

The economic security bill, putting the government into an entirely new field of social welfare now goes to the Senate. Before passing it, the House emphatically rejected the Townsend old age pension plan and the Lundeen unemployment insurance bill.

Provisions

The administration bill provides:

1—State unemployment insurance, subject to federal approval and financed through a payroll tax.

2—Pensions for all needy persons over 65, with the initial government contribution of $49,500,000 and the federal matching of state pensions up to a maximum of $15 per month per individual.

3—Contributory old age benefits from reserves to be created through a graduated two to six per cent tax dividend between payrolls and earnings, starting in 1937.

4—Federal aid, totaling $30,000,000 to the states having maternal and child aid.

The bill represented the New Deal's answer to some of the problems arising out of America's depression experience. It appropriates $100,000,000 for social insurance, but as the payroll taxes take effect, the security reserve will average $1,000,000,000 annually.

A. A. U. W. HOLD STATE GATHERING HERE NEXT WEEK

Local Chapter To Be Hostess with Carolina Inn as Headquarters.

The Chapel Hill branch of the American Association of University Women will be hostess at the annual meeting of the State Association Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27. The Carolina Inn will be headquarters.

The program follows: Friday morning, business meeting and luncheon of executive committee; afternoon, the visitors will be taken around the village and the campus and to the Dogwood Festival exhibits; from 4 to 6, a tea at Mrs. Odum's; at 7, dinner at the Inn, with Mrs. E. R. Mosher as the principal speaker; at 9:30 Saturday morning, the Association's business meeting, to be followed by a luncheon at Mrs. Wallace Patterson's.

The chairmen of the various committees are: general chairman, Miss Cornelia S. Love; registration, Miss Katharine Jocher; transportation, Miss Susan G. Akers; reception, Mrs. H. W. Odum and Mrs. R. B. Downs; dinner and executive luncheon, Mrs. W. C. Coker; Saturday luncheon, Mrs. Clarence Heer; publicity, Mrs. A. K. King; entertainment, Miss Mary Cobb; membership attendance, Mrs. W. E. Caldwell.

Hikers Of Lake Trails Found Club Without Officers, Fees Or Meetings

Now is the time to join the most democratic, the most unique club connected with the University—the Lake Trail Hikers.

This club has no officers, holds no meetings, and has no fees. In fact, the only requirement is to walk around the University Lake, some six and two-third miles. The walker then signs his name in a book kept for that purpose in the office of the care-taker of the lake.

The club offers two degrees: the first, that of the Trail Hiker, is obtained by walking the six and two-thirds mile route around the lake, and the second, the Master Hiker, by covering the full 10 miles of trails.

Totten, First Member

Dr. H. R. Totten, University botanist, who mapped the trails laid out by the CCC force last year, is the founder and charter member of the Trail Hikers. The membership now includes people from many different states.

The trails, laid out with an eye for the conservation of wild flowers and shrubs, are well graded and run through one of the most beautiful stretches in this section of the state.

The trail abounds with the ruins of stills, one of them raided less than two years ago. Around that still can be seen rusted tubs, broken jars, and a coil—speaking eloquently of long past nights of surreptious whiskey manufacture.

Pilferer Foiled

Dr. Totten likes to tell about the souvenir collector whom he carried around the lake on a botanical field trip. This gentleman after seeing the coil of the old still, determined to get it for a room decoration.

After he had pulled on the thing for a while, wondering why the darn thing didn't come up, the doctor gently informed him that the other end was connected to a cement block especially put there to anticipate people with a liking for such things.

KOCH WILL LEAD CAST OF HAMLET

Final Tryouts for the Forest Theatre Production To Be Held April 30.

A list of candidates for the cast of the Playmakers' Forest Theatre production of Hamlet has been drawn up. Those retained will be eligible for final tryouts on April 30. All minor parts will be cast at this time also.

Proff Koch has, as he puts it, "been drafted in" to play the lead. It is rumored that the cast will be further supported by faculty talent with public-speaking Professor William Olsen playing the part of the first grave digger.

Final Tryouts

The list of those retained for final tryouts is as follows:

Claudius—Philip Parker, Robert Nachtmann, Harold Baumstone; Ghost — Robert Nachtmann, du Four; Polonius—Baumstone, Robert Nachtmann, Parker, Proctor, Lyerly.

Laertes — Waters, Carl Thompson, William Wang; Horatio—Carl Thompson, Waters; Grave Diggers—Lyerly, Walker, Proctor, Rene Prud'hommeaux and Phillips Russell; Gertrude—Patsy McMullan, Mickey McGuire; Ophelia—Ellen Deppe, Katherine Maynard.

PHARMACY SCHOOL DANCES IN BYNUM

Freddie Johnson Makes Music for Annual Affair Last Night.

With music furnished by Freddie Johnson and his orchestra, the phamracy school held its annual dance last night in Bynum gymnasium.

Leaders in the figure were H. T. Murrell, president of the pharmacy school, and Miss Virginia Wimbish of Martinsville, Va.

Their assistants were: Miss Mary Alice Bennett of Bryson City, president of the school's senior class, with Hugh Davis of Winston-Salem; H. C. Reaves of Raeford, president of the third year pharmacists, with Miss Mary Monroe of Raeford; J. W. Watson, pharmacy sophomore class president, with Miss Eloise Gibbs of Columbia.

DEAN ANNOUNCES JUBILEE PROGRAM

Scouting Events Begin Thursday Afternoon and Continue Through Sunday.

The program for the Boy Scout Jubilee, to be held here next week in connection with the Dogwood Festival, was released yesterday from the office of the dean of administration.

The conference will open at 2:30 p. m. Thursday and will end Sunday morning, April 28, at 8 o'clock.

James E. West, chief scout executive, will be among the speakers at the celebration.

Complete Program

Scouts are scheduled to arrive in Chapel Hill Thursday at 2:30 p. m. At 5 o'clock there will be a color ceremony in Kenan stadium, and at 8:30 there will be a gigantic campfire which will officially open the jubilee.

The program for Friday is as follows: 9 a. m., camp craft events by indivdual scouts; 10 a. m., scout games; 3 p. m., demonstration events; 4 p. m., tour of the University, with all the University departments holding open houses; 8:30 p. m., campfire program.

An address by James E. West will be the chief feature on the program Saturday. The chief scout executive will speak at a scout pageant at 7 p. m. Preceding the pageant will be a Boy Scout cookeree circle which will be held in the morning at 9 o'clock.

The program will close Sunday at 8 a. m. with a camp church service led by the Rev. Donald H. Stewart of the Presbyterian church.

Carbon Club

There will be a meeting of the Carbon Club tonight at 9:30 o'clock in Venable Hall. W. F. Hunter, Jr., will speak on "The Composition and Degradation Products of Peanut Shells."

Staff Meeting

All members of the Daily Tar Heel staff must meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Phil Hammer, recently elected editor will set forth his plans for his coming term.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL BEGINS THURSDAY

Three-Day Program Includes Exhibits, Scout Jubilee, Plays, Demonstrations.

Complete plans for the third annual Dogwood Festival were released yesterday.

The program will last from Thursday, April 25, until Sunday, April 28. A program of new Carolina plays Thursday night will be the first feature.

The exhibits of arts and crafts in Graham Memorial building will be open all Friday from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. Admission will be 10 cents. An exhibit of arts of youth will be held in Peabody hall, and in Hill Music hall will be a display of oil paintings.

Reception Friday

At 4 p. m. Friday there will be a reception in Hill Music hall honoring Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington of Warrenton, N. C., donor of the oil paintings to the University.

Friday night there will be a presentation of new Carolina plays in the Playmakers theatre. Three or four different studio productions will be staged each night of the festival by the Carolina Playmakers.

Handicraft Demonstration

As a special feature of the exhibits, which will be in Graham Memorial from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Saturday, there will be demonstrations of handicraft in the morning and afternoon.

The rest of the Saturday program will be: 10 a. m., folk music program in Memorial hall; 11 a. m., demonstration of rock garden construction by William D. Hunt; 7 p. m., Boy Scout jubilee pageant; 8:30 p. m., new Carolina plays.

Sunday the festival will close. Exhibits will be open from 1:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

MEMORIAL DIRECTORS WILL BUY NEW PIANO

The board of directors of Graham Memorial meeting yesterday afternoon voted to purchase a new Steinway Music Room Grand piano for the lounge. The one at present in the lounge will be retained and will be available at a nominal charge to campus organizations for functions requiring a piano.

Mrs. Gladys Brooks, of Durham, an accomplished concert pianist, will give a concert in Graham Memorial tomorrow afternoon at four as a part of the Memorial's Sunday afternoon entertainment series.

YANDELL DESIRES TO REORGANIZE 'Y'

Plans to Solicit Opinions of Student Leaders at Discussion.

Newly-elected Y. M. C. A. President Billy Yandell recently announced that there will be a general shake-up of the organization during the coming year.

Yandell will solicit the opinions of several student leaders at an important discussion of the Y. M. C. A.'s condition and future to be held the early part of next week.

"I'm going to tell them that I know things need changing in the 'Y'," Yandell stated, "and am going to get to the bottom of those things with the help of these interested students."

Yandell was recently made Y. M. C. A. president in an unopposed race. He succeeds J. D. Winslow as head of the organization.

APRIL PLAYBOOK ISSUE RELEASED

"Cottie Mourns," By Patsy McMullan, Is Principal Feature; Koch Writes Editorials.

Carrying as their chief feature Patsy McMullan's recently produced "Cottie Mourns," copies of the April issue of the Carolina Playbook will soon be on their way to dramatic critics, libraries, and museums all over the United States and in many other parts of the world.

Included in this number of the lively journal are pictures of a scene from Miss McMullan's play of Ocracoke Island folk and of Richard B. Harrison on the occasion of his visit here last fall, two editorials by Proff Koch, the complete text of "Cottie Mourns," and data relative to the 12th annual dramatic festival and tournament, held here last month.

Koch Contributes

One of the editorials, entitled "Ocracoke Island Folk," is the customary Koch introduction to each play he publishes in the Playbook. He gives a brief sketch concerning the "bankers" and their islands and tells a bit about Miss McMullan.

The other editorial is an informal eulogy to the beloved Negro actor Richard B. Harrison, who died about a month ago.

All the dramatic groups who won awards in the tournament are listed in a special section by themselves. An account, written in sprightly, intimate fashion by John Parker of the dramatic festival, completes the table of contents.

NEWS DIRECTORS HEAR AP BUREAU HEAD AT DINNER

Speaker Says Newspapers Are Interested in Campus Strikes, Hazings and Riots.

SESSIONS TO END TODAY

"The newspapers are glad to get the college campus stories about glories heaped upon old Alma Mater, but they also want to be informed about the strikes, riots, hazings, and similar demonstrations that are sure to occur even on the best regulated campuses now and then," W. J. Macfarlan, manager of the Raleigh bureau of the Associated Press, told southern college news bureau directors in an address last night at their banquet session which was the highlight of a two-day convention.

Pointing out the value of constructive stories about campus doings and the eagerness of the newspapers and press associations to co-operate in getting such activities before the public, Mr. Macfarlan also warned that no legitimate news story should be suppressed.

Grisette, Wade Speak

Felix Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund and president of the American Alumni Council, and Jake Wade, sports editor of the Charlotte Observer and president of the Southeastern Sportswriters Association, were the other principal speakers at last night's session.

Stressing the importance of reinterpreting the work of the colleges, Mr. Grisette said this is necessary from generation to generation because of the constantly shifting scenes. College news directors in co-operation with alumni executives, can do much toward helping the public understand this "shifting scene," he said.

Sports Writers Fortunate

Mr. Wade said North Carolina sports writers were fortunate in having so many first-rate college news bureaus, and that the news directors were fortunate in having so many fine teams to write about. He especially commended the work and spirit of the three coaches present.

SIGMA XI TO HEAR LECTURE TUESDAY BY NOTED DOCTOR

Johns Hopkins Pharmacologist to Deliver Annual Address.

Professor W. K. Marshall of Johns Hopkins will speak next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the annual lecture of Sigma Xi, honorary scientific research fraternity, to be held in 206 Phillips hall.

Dr. Marshall is well known in the medical world for his researches in pharmacology. He has recently done some special work on the kidney and has studied in detail the effect of drugs on the various organs of the body.

At Johns Hopkins he has made a very distinct contribution in the methods of teaching. He was appointed to continue up the work of Dr. Abel who spoke before Sigma Xi several years ago and who has enjoyed world renown as the first man to synthesize glandular secretions.

While Dr. Marshall is in Chapel Hill he will be the guest of Dr. MacNider of the pharmacology department.

Most Fraternity Presidents Now Advocating Modified Hell Week

If the majority of the fraternity presidents on the campus have their way the sound of paddle meeting posterior will no longer be heard during that period known as Hell Week.

In interviews a representative group of fraternity presidents expressed themselves as being largely in favor of the modification of Hell Week to the extent of prohibiting paddling and horseplay on the campus.

"I think it brings the boys together," said Mac Bell, president of the local chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, "but I'm not in favor of horseplay on the campus."

Only one of the 20 fraternity presidents interviewed was able to say that his fraternity had no Hell Week—Charlie Hubbard of Sigma Chi. Two other men had pronounced anti-Hell Week views: Frank Wilson of Beta Theta Pi and Bob Page of Phi Delta Theta. The latter made the following brief and illuminating statement when asked for his opinion: "I'm dead agin it!"

Prominent among the ranks of the modifiers was Debater Durfee, who was for a shortened Hell Week but against its total abolition. Equally prominent was Politician Herb Taylor of Phi Gam, who was neither for nor against Hell Week.

The only president coming out for the week in all its phases was John Schiller of Zeta Beta Tau, noted for his frankness.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Druggists Hold Big Hop Tonight." We suggest they impart their secret of how to hold big hops to the Carolina infield.

Speaking of dances, we heard recently that the difference between a stag and a drunk is that the latter is a stag in the comparative degree.

The registrar meeting introduced a novel touch to Chapel Hill liberalism. There probably never has been a group here which can admit so many things.

Still a Load On the Little Man

The state Senate has refused to eliminate the sales tax from North Carolina's system of taxation, but it is encouraging to note that the new revenue bill provides for the exemption from taxation of the bare necessities of life.

The sales tax was adopted in North Carolina in 1933 purely as an emergency measure, and as such should have been eliminated entirely from the revenue bill by the present legislative group. Instead of taking such action the House made matters worse by extending the tax to every single item of food sold in the state. Then the Senate came along and did a better job by exempting the nine basic articles of food from the tax, but demonstrated also that it was still for the rich man as against the little man when it refused to repeal the section that at present limits the tax to $10 on a single item.

If the sales tax is a just form of taxation, as is argued by all its proponents, then why should not those who are able to make large purchases be taxed at the same rate as those who buy but limited amounts of goods? Under our present set-up the person making small purchases pays a tax rate ranging anywhere from three to ten per cent, while one able to buy an automobile for $1,000 dollars pays a flat tax of $10, or one per cent, or a $5,000 diamond ring at the same tax at a rate of 1-5 of one per cent.

The little man continues to shoulder more than his share of the load. Something must be done to eliminate this obnoxious element in our tax system.

Where Was Moses? . . .

Along with the military demonstration the world over and the frantic talk about precautionary measures—in case the vigilant Mars again makes his visit—are to be found practices intending to accustom people to air raids.

The practice had its origin in Japan when "lights were extinguished for two hours and the city was in complete darkness while air raiders roared overhead."

Other nations were not slow in adopting the idea. On March 20 Berlin shut off the switch and engaged in the "most elaborately organized and carefully executed air raid rehearsal ever seen." The French and English were not to be outdone and they, too, have staged their midnight spectacles.

Undoubtedly, America will soon be putting on her pseudo-raids in order to train her populace against any "furriner" invaders. But what city will be the first to shut off its lights and start the ball rolling?

The Baltimore Evening Sun has suggested—the name being appropriate—that Midnight, Miss., shut off its electrical juice and call it an air raid. Or we might go farther south and have New Orleans start it; then we could revive the tune, "Darkness on the Delta."

Strength In Union

The main reason that the various political organizations on the campus have been unable to get a more or less respectable attendance at their meetings is because there are too many different organizations all striving for the same thing.

The Di, the Phi, the Y. M. C. A., the Foreign Policy League, the Carolina Political Union, all have approximately the same aims. Their principle objectives are to have group discussions of one form or another, and to occasionaly bring in outside speakers to address their respective groups.

There is not much power in the request of twenty students which would bring an outside speaker of any ability or renown to the campus. A scanty audience furthermore, does little to boost a speaker's morale while speaking. But if the five organizations listed above were to combine their man power, their prestige, and their influence in an attempt to bring outstanding speakers here, the results attained would certainly warrant the action.

None of the individuality of the groups would be lost through this device. If once per month they were to join forces and secure a fine speaker, then the rest of the meetings could be well devoted to discussing in each of the smaller groups the monthly talk.

One man from each organization could be appointed to serve on an executive committee. That committee would be in complete charge of securing speakers, and making all other necessary arrangements for the program.

And Still Another Angle

While the idea of a warless society is an idealistic one, we are aware of the fact that war can be abolished, and we are working toward that end. But our efforts cannot be said to have gained momentum until, in the course of our amateurish gropings, we strike upon some really effective means of arousing a sincere and lasting opinion against war.

Pacifists seem to see only one side of the picture. Their appeal based upon our unwillingness to get ourselves blown to pieces for no good reason is, perhaps, the most powerful they can employ. But that appeal is to a self interest that can hardly be called enlightened. It seems that in a Christian society some attempt would be made at reaching us through our natural repugnance of murder and murderers.

If it must be called to our attention that we have no particular desire to be murdered as soldiers or as anything else, it shoud not be left unsaid that, as Christians, we should have no particular desire to murder. The thought of being killed is distasteful. Why, then, should not the thought of being a killer be equally so?

Alumni Get On the Ball

As everyone knows, the basic reason for the alumni funds campaign is to raise money to fulfill needs in the University that are not provided for in state appropriations.

The need is definite, and this alone would justify such a campaign. But we feel that such a drive, involving such close cooperation and contact between University alumni, serves another purpose, not so obvious but equally important. It will furnish an opportunity for the creation of a class consciousness, and if this campaign succeeds in welding together the thousands of alumni, the University will be in a much better position in the future for ask and get what it needs.

Back to The Boys

Harvard announced a step recently that will in time undoubtedly prove to be the most forward action that has been taken in the history of American collegiate athletics. All Harvard sports will be run under an endowment fund basis. That is, all athletics at the Cambridge institution will be financed by the income from a fund which will have been accumulated or collected. All varsity, freshman, inter-house, and intramural competition will be handled with the income from this fund while compulsory physical education expenses will be taken care of by the University itself, because it is a required course of the college curriculum.

Gate receipts, instead of being all-important as has been the case in the past, will now simply be made a part of the University's athletic budget. There should henceforth be none of the commercialism which has made its way into collegiate sports. Dependence upon receipts at the field will be greatly decreased and the pressure on the gridiron coaches and on their teams will be reduced.

In one stroke by this partial divorcing of gate receipts and expenses, Harvard has taken a significant step toward giving the sports "back to the boys" where they belong.—Brown Daily Herald.

Mrs. Wootten Returns With Colored Slides

Local Photographer Makes Trip to Famous Southern Gardens.

Mrs. Bayard Wootten has come back from a tour of the low country of the Carolinas and Georgia with 48 slides, in color, of several famous gardens.

She has an engagement to use these pictures to illustrate a lecture at a meeting of garden clubs Wednesday, May 15, in Greensboro. The suggestion has been made that they be shown here in Chapel Hill, and that may be arranged.

The slides were made at the Wormsloe gardens at Savannah, the Magnolia, Middleton, and Cypress gardens at Charleston, the Belle Isle gardens at Georgetown, and the Orton gardens at Wilmington.

"They show the flowers in their natural colors," said Mrs. Wootten yesterday. "The photographs were taken by what is known as the autochrome process; that is, the camera does the complete job, and no retouching is required."

Mrs. Wootten's lecture is entitled "The Gardens of the Low Country."

Bus Hearing April 24

Chapel Hillians Will Attend to Advocate Proposed New Line

After several postponements the hearing before State Utilities Commissioner Winborne, on the proposal to establish a bus line between Greensboro and Raleigh by way of Chapel Hill, has been scheduled for 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Atlantic Greyhound Lines is the company applying for the franchise.

Mayor Foushee, Town Manager Caldwell, other citizens of Chapel Hill, and representatives of student organizations will attend the hearing to support the application. The board of aldermen has adopted a resolution approving the project.

The Carolina Coach Company, which operates busses between here and Durham, is expected to oppose the application. There is a rumor that, if it is decided that the public interest demands the proposed new service, the Carolina Coach Company will ask that it, and not the Greyhound Lines, receive the franchise.

sion yesterday afternoon included A. W. Stamey, news editor of the Herald-Sun papers; Fred Haney, sports editor of the Durham Herald; Frank Jeter, director of the State College News Bureau; Albert Wilkinson, director of the Duke University News Service, and R. D. Bullock of the Atlantic Christian College News Bureau.

The sessions will be concluded today when visiting newspapermen and association members will give other talks.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: W. L. Farthing, Robert Van Sleen, O. R. Yeager, L. M. Parker, Murray Honeycutt, Allan Knott, Arthur Stein, A. F. Thompson, D. T. Taff and W. T. McGowan.

However, Students and Alumni Can Rest Assured That His Band Originated Here.

Jan Garber is not an alumnus of the University of North Carolina.

Press agents have told us that Garber was a student at the University and that he acquired his fraternity pin and southern accent here. According to the Cincinnatti Post "He (Jan) played his way through the University of North Carolina where he acquired a Delta Sigma Phi pin and a southern accent."

For some time Carolina students and alumni have accepted this as true. They have taken a certain pride in believing the celebrated maestro to be a "Carolina" man. However several inquiring students spent hours searching diligently through musty files to prove that Jan really was registered here. Their doubts were dispelled when they found the name of Sammie D. Garber, the only Garber on the record. It was clear to them that Jan had changed his name.

But another more enterprising student was not satisfied—so he wrote to Jan. Here is what the orchestra leader has to say: "I never went to school in Chapel Hill but was taken into the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity there and have been a member since about 1925. Of course I have often played there for finals and various dances, almost since the first day I started a band it seems. I played all over the state and that part of the country for years. I really consider that my starting point."

Although Jan's press agents erred, unknowingly of course, and led us to believe that the "Idol of the Airlanes" is a Carolina alumnus, we do not have to relinquish all claim to him for, as he says, this is his starting point.

Here,s how it seems to have happened: Garber's people came from Holland to the United States and made their home in Indianapolis where Jan was born. While Garber was quite young his parents moved to Philadelphia where, at the age of fourteen, he entered Combs Conservatory to study violin. After graduation he conducted a band in an army training camp. Shortly after the war he came to Chapel Hill and organized a three piece orchestra which grew in size as well as in popularity. His magnetic personality won for him many friends among college students and citizens of the town. He was made an honorary member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity—no longer on the campus.

Roosevelt Moves To End Crisis In Textiles

Appoints Committee of Four To Investigate Industry.

Washington, April 19.—(UP)—Roosevelt moved swiftly tonight to end the crisis in the cotton textile industry in face of reports that mills were closing daily and that hundreds of workers were being thrown to idleness and relief rolls.

Roosevelt named four members of his cabinet to make a thorough investigation of the industry. They are Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper, and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

He said that the committee would make recommendations not only concerning the present emergency but also relating to future plans for the industry.

Tar Heel Nine Wins, 7-3 From Blanketeer Team

Irwin Stars at Bat For Carolina Nine

Flashy Shortstop Collects Four Hits Out of Five Trips To Plate.

WRIGHT PITCHES WELL

Elkin, N. C.—(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)—After giving up a trio of hits to let the Chatham Blanketeers score three runs in the first inning, Irby Wright, Carolina sophomore, pitched shutout ball during the remaining eight frames to enable the Tar Heels to win the contest, 7-3.

The Carolina rookie allowed but six safeties, three of which were bunched in the initial frame, while the Tar Heel nine pounded Harkrader, Chatham pitcher, for 14 hits, five of which were for extra bases.

Irwin Stars

Tommy Irwin, flashy shortstop, led the Tar Heel attack with his timely hitting and sensational fielding.

Besides playing errorless ball, the blond infielder collected four hits out of five trips to the plate. He also accounted for four of his team's seven runs.

Buck McCarn, who has been on the injured list since the opening game, saw action yesterday in the left field position. He was responsible for four putouts and hit a single and a two-bagger out of five trials.

Six Extra Bases

Among the Tar Heels to hit safely for extra bases were Voliva, McCarn, Bullard, Irwin, and Rand. Hambright was the only member of the Chatham nine to garner a two-base knock.

The Carolina team scored in the first, third, fifth, seventh, and ninth innings.

SATELLITES

By CHARLES DANIEL

In watching the baseball team romp around in practice, seeing them win or lose in intercollegiate competition, we are likely to conclude that they're a good lot or just another gang of pellet-chasers. But win or lose, the present Hearn squad is a fun-loving band.

Not so very long ago, Big Jim Tatum calls up his player-mate, Eddie Shapiro, and tells him that he is talking to one Doc Mathis, coach of the Goldsboro semi-pro club. "Doc" proceeds to make a date with Yank to meet him in front of Pritchard-Lloyd at 12:00 where they could discuss possibilities for Ed's playing ball in Goldsboro this summer.

The Yank goes over to Battle and dresses in his best brown pinch-back and arrives at the appointed place 10 minutes early. After nearly an hour of impatient waiting, Yank is hailed from behind and told that he is wanted on the phone. It was Doc explaining that he couldn't get down to the Drug but that if Ed would be kind enough to schuffle up to Swain hall, they'd talk turkey there.

The Carolina right-fielder saunters into the campus mess tent and looks around for one who might be the Goldsboro coach. He sees an old gentleman sitting by himself over in a corner, but he backs away very much abashed upon learning that the man is NOT Mathis. Believing that he is in for another wait, Yank tells some of his athlete friends about having struck oil and asks their advice as to whether he should tell Coach Hearn of his plans before signing a contract. They, in the confidence that one friend has for another, tell him that he should do this by all means . . . more waiting but no Mathis . . . telephone for Yank . . . it's Doc again . . . "sorry to mislead you, Ed, but you can surely catch me this time if you'll come over to the Carolina Inn."

The pride of Manhattan Beach strolls out of Swain humming the alma mater of Goldsboro ("At the Old Ball Game"), and he gets almost into the Inn before smelling something musty about the whole business . . . it was a real scent . . . what to do when gored by a ghastly gang was the question (he couldn't light an Old Gold because he was a ball player) so the tower still burns in right-field.

VARSITY NETTERS WIN FROM STATE

Tar Heels Defeat Wolfpack Tennis Team, 8-0; DeGray Plays Faultless Ball.

The varsity tennis team defeated North Carolina State College, 8-0, in a return meet here yesterday.

Ricky Willis, playing the number one position for the Tar Heels, was pushed hard by Renn of the Wolfpack outfit, before finally winning, 9-7, 9-7.

Eddy DeGray played faultless ball as he defeated Brown, 6-0, 6-0.

Minor, Shore, Abels, and Grier are the other Tar Heels who won their matches.

The last doubles contest was called off because of darkness.

A summary of the matches follows:

Willis defeated Renn, 9-7, 9-7.
Minor over Dixon, 6-1, 6-2.
DeGray over Brown, 6-0, 6-0.
Shore over Fowler, 6-3, 6-4.
Abels over Nading, 6-0, 6-1.
Grier over Jackson, 6-1, 6-1.
DeGray - Willis over Renn-Brown, 6-1, 6-2.
Minor-Johnson over Fowler-Dixon, 6-2, 6-3.

Sales Tax Amended

Raleigh, April 19.—(UP)—The Senate replaced $700,000 a year in the revenue bill by the adoption, 22 to 19, of the amendment of Senator Weathers of Wake removing sales tax exemptions from all but five basic foodstuffs.

The revenue bill, now about $1,500,000 short of the appropriations, was given its first reading. The House passed the third reading of the Senate bill cutting the cost of automobile license tags to 40 cents a hundred weight.

VARSITY GOLFERS DEFEAT FURMAN AT HOPE VALLEY

Captain Erwin Laxton Shoots Two Under Par As Team Wins Meet, 14½-3½.

TO PLAY BOSTON TODAY

Displaying a brand of golf that even surpassed the excellent play demonstrated in the last two meets, the Tar Heel golf team turned aside a hard fighting Furman team by a 14 1-2-3 1-2 score.

Laxton Shoots 68

Honors for low score went to Captain Laxton, who turned in the remarkable score of 68, which is two strokes below par. Francis Dawes, lead-off man for Furman, easily copped low for the losers with a par score of 70. Dawes' excellent shooting was by far the best ever displayed by a member of a visiting team on the Hope Valley course.

Erwin Laxton opened against Francis Dawes, and despite the fact that his opponent turned in a par score, Laxton with a 68 gained a 3-0 victory for Carolina.

Harris Gets Shut Out

In the second position Dick Harris, with a low 71, had little trouble in winning from his opponent, Dave Furguson, 3-0.

Will Coffin suffered the only setback of the afternoon when he lost to Walton Smith of Furman. The visitors' number three man found Coffin off his usual game and took him into camp with a 2-1 victory.

The final singles match of the afternoon saw Walter Pijanowski improve considerably since his last meet to blank Bently Hines 3-0.

Laxton and Harris gained a 3-0 decision over Dawes and Furguson in the first of the doubles matches. The Carolina combination's best ball totaled a low of 65.

The final doubles resulted in a split match score with 1 1-2 points being won by the combin-

NET STARS WIN FROM TAR BABIES

Potts-Fuller Lose to Hall-Allison at Pinehurst.

The last of the Carolina representatives disappeared from the North-South tournament yesterday afternoon at Pinehurst, as Ramsay Potts and Eddy Fuller, sparkling frosh combination, were beaten by Wilmer Allison and Gilbert Hall, 6-2, 6-0.

This semi-final encounter found the youthful Tar Heels playing poorly due to their long, hurried journey, and they proved to be no match for the experienced top-ranked team.

Frosh Rushed

Potts and Fuller were hurried immediately onto the court and were never able to hit their stride. This match put Allison and Hall into the finals against Rainville and Watt, who eliminated Hal Surface and Barney Welsh in the other encounter of the afternoon.

Tomorrow marks the conclusion of the tournament which has been on continuously for five days. Wilmer Allison, the country's finest player, will face Gil Hall, who was seeded second in the tourney.

Allison is a heavy favorite, and is also considered the likely winner with Hall in the doubles. The matches today start at 10:15 a. m.

This marked the elimination of the 26th Carolina entrant. Archie Henderson proved to be the hero of the occasion with his remarkable straight set win over Barney Welsh, national parks champion, in the quarter-finals.

FRESHMAN NINE TO PLAY CADETS AT FOUR O'CLOCK

Revised Lineup Slated to Start Contest Against Strong Oak Ridge Outfit.

GRUBB AT FIRST BASE

A strong Oak Ridge ball club visits Chapel Hill today to battle the improved yearling nine on Emerson field at 4 o'clock.

Both teams met and defeated Mars Hill this past week by the same scores.

Willard or Parker

The Tar Heels will pin their hopes either on the southpaw, George Willard, who dropped a game to Wake Forest, or Daffy Parker who has been seen only in a relief role. Despite the fact that Willard lost his initial start, his pitching qualities are still unknown for his team mates failed to give him proper backing.

Parker displayed a remarkable drop and change of pace when he took over the hurling duties in the seventh inning of the Wake Forest game. However, it is doubtful whether he would be able to go nine innings without weakening.

Visitors Strong

Oak Ridge has always been the outstanding team on the Carolina schedule, and their fine play since the start of this season heightens the belief that today's contest will be just as close as those of the past few years.

Coach James may switch his lineup this afternoon in an effort to install a greater punch into the Tar Baby team. Foy Grubb, whose excellent batting helped win the Mars Hill game, is likely to find himself hitting in the cleanup position, following the dependable Bunny Burnette.

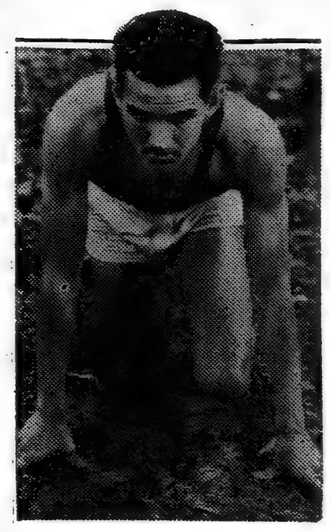
Netters Deadlocked



The frosh net team, lacking Ramsay Potts and Eddy Fuller, were almost subjected to their initial defeat yesterday afternoon at the hands of the powerful team from Scarboro-On-the-Hudson.

This highly rated New York team, here for a two-day match, ran into a 3-0 lead but a desperate rally by the Tar Heels brought the score to three-all before darkness caused a definite halt to the play.

The two teams will finish the matches this afternoon.

Trackmen Meet Virginia At Emerson Today, 2:15

Star Hurdler

Pictured above is Frank Abernethy, star Carolina hurdler, who will be matched with Grover Everett, Virginia flash, in the feature events of the program when Tar Heels and Cavaliers clash in track this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock on Emerson field.

PHI GAM'S, T.E.P.'s WIN NET TILTS

Only Two Contests Played in Mural Circles.

Only two matches were played yesterday afternoon in the intramural tennis competition which saw Phi Gamma Delta and T. E. P. registering wins.

The Phi Gams took the measure of Chi Phi, 3-0, as Chapman and Henggi defeated Sink and Davis, respectively, in straight sets for the singles points. The same men paired in the doubles.

Alpha Epsilon and T. E. P. renewed their rivalry which resulted in the formers No. 1 team dropping a 2-0 decision. Levitch downed Turk in the first singles by a 5-3, 5-2 score. Eisenberg was extended in copping his match from Larry Frank, who forced him to 5-0, 3-5, 5-2, scores before yielding.

The intramural baseball contests were called off by consent of the teams involved.

Art Class

The life class, drawn from nude model, of Miss Lena Tuttle's art studio, will change its regular meeting time from Wednesday to Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Those who wish to attend the watercolor sketch class are requested to be at the studio in Peabody hall by 10:00 o'clock this morning.

HUBBARD IN CONDITION

Carolina's varsity track team will continue its bid for greatness here this afternoon in Emerson stadium when it entertains the University of Virginia squad at 2:15 o'clock.

The Cavaliers are expected to furnish the usual amount of good competition they always do when opposing the Tar Heels. Virginia opened its season last week with a win over the V. M. I. team, which may or may not be any real indication of its strength.

Good Hurdlers

The invading Cavaliers will bring an expert hurdler to Chapel Hill in the person of Grover Everett, captain of the Virginia team. This star won the hurdles event at the Penn relays last spring, and is the present Southern Conference title-holder.

Tom Hawthorne and Frank Abernethy, Tar Heel hurdlers, are expected to give this Virginia gentleman a good race in the meet this afternoon.

Carolina will probably use the same lineup that defeated the William and Mary team in its opener here two weeks ago.

Weak in Field Events

Neither of the teams appear to be heavily fortified in the field events, although the Tar Heels have shown more than the previously expected strength in the weight events. Wrenn, Armfield, and Evins showed to advantage against William and Mary, and continued improvement by them will auger well for future engagements. Evins might not compete because of an injured back.

Hubbard in Shape

This afternoon may see the return to competition of Charlie Hubbard, who shares the captaincy with Hawthorne. Hubbard has been laid up ever since the indoor meet because of an injured leg muscle, but he now appears to be back in shape.

Another one for whom the Tar Heels will be set is Bill Bast, the visitors' bid in the quarter and half-mile runs. "Red" Drake, who was nipped at the finish in the 440 two weeks ago, will offer the chief opposition in the former, while Harry Williamson should be more than ample fortification in the 880.

This meet, along with the Duke engagement on Tuesday, will aid greatly in determining the makeup of the team to be entered in the annual Penn relay events next week.

N.C. PHILOSOPHERS TO CONVENE HERE

Horace Williams to Preside Saturday; Bradshaw to Speak.

The annual spring meeting of the North Carolina Philosophical Society is to be held at the University today with Dr. Henry Horace Williams presiding.

The program will open at 11 o'clock at the Carolina Inn with a discussion of the methods of teaching philosophy, led by Dean Francis F. Bradshaw of the University. The delegates will be luncheon guests of the University.

The afternoon session will get under way at 2:30 o'clock with a symposium on "The Philosopher and Education," with Dr. Williams in the chair. Short papers will be read by President Clyde A. Milner of Guilford College, Dr. Edgar W. Knight of the University of North Carolina, and Dr. Alban G. Widgery of Duke University. A general discussion will follow.

The delegates will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Flinn at a tea at "The Glen" at 5 o'clock.

The program was arranged by Lawrence Flinn of Chapel Hill, secretary of the society.

OH YOU, HUGH!

Glee Club Will Appear At Mt. Airy Friday

Will also Sing in Graham Memorial the Following Week.

The University Glee Club will appear in concert in Mt. Airy next Friday evening, April 26, and in Graham Memorial the following week, it was announced yesterday by John Walker, business manager. He also stated that several new members have been added to the section rendering light opera selections.

All members who made trips to Southern Pines or E. C. T. C. are expected to be present at rehearsals on Monday and Tuesday afternoons and on Wednesday evening at seven. It is necessary for all who plan to make the trip to Mt. Airy to attend these rehearsals promptly.

ation of Coffin and Pijanowski, and the same amount being earned by Smith and Hines.

The decisive win scored yesterday afternoon on the Hope Valley links was the sixth victory in eight starts. A loss to State in a driving rain, and a tie this past week with the crack Richmond team accounts for the two meets not included on the winning side.

This afternoon the team will meet its second opponent played off the home course. The ninth scheduled meet will be against Boston College of Chestnut Hills, and will be played at Greensboro on the Sedgefield links.

Theatre Drawing

The weekly drawing held at the Carolina Theatre last night was won by Miss Lillias Walters, a graduate student from Louisiana.

As a result of holding number 2133 Miss Walters is now $15 richer. Along with the cash award went a prize of a carton of Lucky Strike cigarettes.

FAIRLEY HANDLING KICKS ON SERVICE

All Student Complaints Against U. C. S. P. Referred to Him.

All student complaints about the service of any of the divisions of the University Consolidated Service agencies will be taken care of by Frances Fairley, new student assistant to the business administration in South building.

Fairley recently sent a notice to division heads, asking that they refer all student complaints to him. In this way, Fairley will work as a liason officer between the administration and the student body.

In the recent investigation made by the Student Advisory Committee, of which Fairley, Phil Hammer, DAILY TAR HEEL editor-elect, and J. D. Winslow, ex-president of the Y. M. C. A., were members, it was found that a definite need for such a complaint agency was needed. Accordingly, the committee recommended such a service.

Fairley, who was appointed by L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller, as the first student assistant in the history of the business organization, will have other functions besides that of acting as complaint receiver. As a University employee, he will have certain administrative functions, but as a representative of the student body, he will serve as a student official in matters relating to services which affect undergraduates.

Phi Bills

Phi Assemblyman Harry McMullan, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced yesterday the bills to be discussed at next Tuesday's meeting. They are: Resolved, That the Finjan be abolished, and Resolved, That co-eds be admitted to the University under the same conditions as male students.

"Misprints"

SIMMONS MAKES COLLOQUIUM TALK

Yesterday afternoon at the fourth meeting of the physics colloquium N. L. Simmons, a graduate student, spoke on photo-chemistry.

Mr. Simmons explained that photo-chemistry is the inter-action of matter and light. As this is the process by which plants combine carbon dioxide and water to make sugar its importance is evident.

Chi Psi Dance

Dancing to the strains of Jimmy Fuller's music, the Chi Psi's held their annual spring dance last night at their house way out on Cameron avenue.

Adding to the enjoyment of the dance were the vocal renditions of Miss Eloise Prince. Miss Prince, just returned from New York, where she has been singing in several night clubs, has joined Jimmy Fuller's orchestra for the remainder of the season.

WARBASSE URGES PUBLIC MEDICINE

Former Eminent Surgeon Believes Doctors Should Be Servants of the People.

Dr. J. P. Warbasse, distinguished sociologist and formerly a brilliant surgeon, outlined a plan for the socialization of medicine last night in Gerrard hall.

The crowd was small, but intensely interested in what the New Yorker, one of the leaders of the "co-operative" school of economic thinkers, had to say about the much-discussed question of making doctors servants of the state. Dr. Warbasse named this simply "public health service."

Informal Speaker

Coming down off the platform and speaking in intimate fashion, the white-haired lecturer drove home his points in quiet, undramatic, but deeply sincere words. He told how, during his medical days, he first became interested in the socialization of medicine.

Dr. Warbasse's address marks the last feature of the Human Relations Institute program for this year. He was scheduled to speak during the regular period set aside for the Institute, but because of a previous arrangement had to cancel this engagement. During the whole of his two-day stay here, he has been busy filling demands from various groups to hear him speak.

EASTER SERVICES

Deans Robert B. House and Francis F. Bradshaw will speak at the Easter sunrise service at the United Church on Cameron Avenue tomorrow at 7:30 a. m.

A special quartet will render Bartlett's "The Resurrection." The program will be a united service, and members of other churches are invited to attend.

SCOUTS, ARTISTS AND GARDEN FANS TO GATHER HERE

Festival and Jubilee to Draw Several Thousand People to Chapel Hill This Week.

EXHIBITS TO OPEN FRIDAY

The third annual Dogwood Festival and the first Boy Scout Jubilee are expected to draw several thousand people from all sections of the state to the University village Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of this week.

Approximately 1,300 Boy Scouts, celebrating the 25th anniversary of scouting, will begin a four-day encampment in the woods surrounding Kenan stadium Thursday. Garden lovers all the way from Pennsylvania throughout the southern states will attend the festival and Rock Garden Association convention which is to be held in conjunction with the other events.

To Open Exhibits

The first event of the Dogwood Festival will take place on Friday morning at 10 o'clock when the exhibit of arts and crafts will be opened. Three different exhibits will begin at the same time and continue throughout the week.

Crafts will be shown in Graham Memorial, arts of youth in the Peabody building, and oil paintings in Hill Music hall.

A reception in Hill Music hall is scheduled for 4 o'clock Friday afternoon where Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington of Warrenton, N. C., well known art patroness and donor of a marine oil painting by Frederick Judd Waugh to the University, will be honored.

Plays Scheduled

The Carolina Playmakers will offer a series of new folk play productions at the Playmaker theatre Thursday, Friday, and

N. C. ASSOCIATION OF PHILOSOPHERS ASSEMBLES HERE

Dr. Knight Says This the Most Confused Period in Education.

The North Carolina Philosophical Society held its annual spring meeting here yesterday.

An open discussion on the methods of teaching philosophy was conducted by Dean Bradshaw yesterday morning, followed by a University luncheon.

At a symposium on "The Philosopher and Education" yesterday afternoon, talks were made by President Clyde A. Milner of Guilford College; Dr. Edgar W. Knight, director of the consolidated summer schools of the University, and Dr. Alban G. Widgery of Duke.

"Philosophers of education have been misinterpreted and we have made a fad of curriculum," declared Dr. Knight, giving a summary of the development of educational system. "This is the most confused period of educational history."

"America has more education than any other country and it has made a fetish out of the materials and methods. The philosophy of education is as dangerous as the standardized test movement of experimental psychology which may become a fetish if not handled properly. As it is, we're turning out mechanics—not educated personalities."

FESTIVAL-JUBILEE DIRECTORS

Pictured above are the central figures of the Dogwood Festival and the Boy Scout Jubilee which are to be held here Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The Boy Scouts will set up camp in the woods surrounding Kenan Stadium.

A giant opening camp-fire and general get-together, to be directed by Camp Chief W. C. Wessel of New York City, is scheduled for Saturday evening. Governor Ehringhaus, President Graham, and Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive, will deliver addresses. Paul W. Schenck, of Greensboro, southern regional chairman, will preside.

Kenneth G. Bentz, southern regional Boy Scout executive, is the director of the Jubilee staff. The Jubilee committee was appointed by Dean Robert B. House. Dr. Harold D. Meyer is educational director of the scouts and chairman of the committee. Russell M. Grumman, director of the University extension division, is president of the Dogwood Festival.

MANGUM TO HEAD SCOUT HOSPITAL

Five Doctors and Trained Nurse To Compose Medical Staff.

A field hospital with complete staff and equipment under the direction of Dr. Charles S. Mangum, dean of the medical school, will be an added feature of the Boy Scout Jubilee, it was announced yesterday by Professor Harold D. Meyer, chairman of the Jubilee committee.

Dr. Mangum, who will be the chief medical director of the Jubilee, will have as his assistants Drs. J. B. Bullitt and G. L. Donnelly, of the University medical school, and Dr. W. R. Berryhill and E. M. Hedgpeth of the University infirmary.

The Kenan stadium field house will serve as the hospital. It will be equipped with cots and all types of first aid equipment. A trained nurse will be on duty at all times and a doctor will be available mornings and afternoons.

Eleven Scouts, one to be chosen from each district, will act as orderlies in the hospital. Sanitary conditions, water and toilet facilities will be under the direction of the medical staff and every care will be given to safeguard the health of the Boy Scouts who attend the Jubilee.

HAMLET REHEARSAL

All those who were retained for major roles in Hamlet, and who are not rehearsing in the studio plays at that time, are asked to meet Professor Samuel Selden in the Forest theatre between 4 and 6 o'clock this afternoon for a reading rehearsal. If the weather is unfavorable, these students are asked to report at the Playmaker theatre to find out where the rehearsal will be held.

State Party Bosses Drop Hatchets To Support Government Institute

Party Chairmen Indorse N. C. Plan to Educate for Office-Holding.

Raleigh, April 20.—The state chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties have joined in endorsing the institute of government's non-partisan program of governmental study and education, it was disclosed here today, and in recommending it to local officials and party workers for support.

The two party leaders, Wallace Winborne (D) of Marion and W. C. Meekins (R) of Hendersonville, it was learned, have written to their executive committeemen and county chairmen throughout the state, commending the program, pointing out its potential value to the state, and urging them to aid in the membership drive now under way.

Is State Project

The institute of government is a joint organization of North Carolina officials, citizens and students of government, non-partisan and non-profit in nature, whose purpose is the comparative study of state and local government, with a view to lifting the poorest practices to the level of the best.

Political observers and commentators in the capital city, pointing out that the government of the state and nation is in the last analysis government by parties, regarded the action of the two state chairmen as a significant manifestation of party responsibility.

"It is a fine thing to have both Democrats and Republicans interested, as parties, in such a movement," said one ranking state official.

Bus Hearing

The Atlantic Greyhound Lines will provide transportation for 20 students to the bus hearing in Raleigh at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, DeWitt Carroll, University Club member in charge of the trip, announced yesterday.

The deputation, which will include eight or nine University Clubbers, will leave from Graham Memorial at 8:30 a. m. Jack Pool will make the trip to speak for the student body.

All students who wish to attend the hearing should see Carroll at the Sigma Delta house or telephone him at 6616.

Delta Despot Wants Show-Down in Senate

New Orleans, April 20.—(UP)—His reign over Louisiana made absolute by the latest epochal session of his subservient legislature, Huey Long prepared tonight to return to Washington for a show-down with the Federal administration over the supervision of relief funds in Louisiana.

The legislature, which concluded a five-day session at noon today, handed Huey the complete control of the state's selection of machinery and municipal affairs and placed a stamp of approval on his "quarrel" with the Federal government.

Monday he plans to force a show-down on the floor of the Senate.

Deans Speak

Deans Robert B. House and Francis F. Bradshaw will speak at the Easter sunrise service of the United Church on Cameron avenue this morning at 7:30.

Editor's Exodus

With this issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL, A. T. Dill makes his exit from the editor's chair and turns over his duties of office to Philip Gibbon Hammer, elected for the 1935-36 term two weeks ago in the campus elections. Hammer's first issue will appear Tuesday morning.

Robert C. Page, Jr., who was re-appointed managing editor for the coming term by the Publications Union Board, will abdicate his office in favor of himself. He will work with Hammer for the coming term.

Editor Dill, sojourning in New Bern for the Easter holidays, sent his regards and best wishes to the future TAR HEEL Friday.

DURHAM PIANIST TO PLAY TODAY

Woman Player Will Appear on Regular Graham Memorial Program at 4 P. M.

Mrs. Gladys Calder Brooks, accomplished concert pianist and musical instructor of Durham, will give a recital this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the regular Graham Memorial Sunday afternoon entertainment.

Mrs. Brooks was graduated with honors from the Kidd-Key Conservatory of Music in Sherman, Texas. A scholarship won in a contest sponsored by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs permitted her to do post-graduate work for another year at the same institution. She then became an instructor in piano at the Conservatory.

Since her marriage, Mrs. Brooks musical activities have been of a more informal nature, but have included much solo and recital work, as well as professional coaching, teaching, and accompanying.

Using the new Steinway piano bought by the directors of the Student Union, the Durham pianist will play the following selections: Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, by Bach-Tausig; Andante non Troppo and Intermezzo, by Brahms; Reflets Dans l'Eau and Jardins Sous la Pluie, by Debussy; Sonata in B-flat Minor, by Chopin.

'Y' PLANNING TWO DEPUTATION TRIPS

Rocky Mount and Raleigh To Be Visited Thursday and Monday.

Plans for Y. M. C. A. deputation trips to Rocky Mount and Raleigh Thursday and the following Monday, respectively, are almost completed, it was announced yesterday.

Headed by Mr. Comer, a big group of speakers and musicians will go to Rocky Mount for the entire week-end. Don McKee and Bob Magill have already been selected to make talks on this trip, and other "Y" members will be chosen later to accompany them.

The Raleigh group will be led by Lee Greer and Billy Yandell, newly-elected "Y" president. Together with Lawrence Fountain and others not yet chosen, they will speak in the assembly of each public school and will attend a civic club luncheon.

Music for this trip will be furnished by the State College "Y" group.

No More UP

With this issue the DAILY TAR HEEL discontinues the United Press service.

BURLINGTON CASE GAINS PUBLICITY IN LATEST NATION

Editor Soule Reprints Carolina Magazine Article by W. T. Couch and J. O. Bailey.

PRINTS ERICSON'S LETTER

The publication in this week's issue of The Nation of "Dynamite in Burlington," by W. T. Couch and J. O. Bailey, gives the seven Burlington textile workers convicted of dynamiting the E. M. Holt mill their first widespread publicity since the beginning of their case.

Slightly revised and accompanied by a letter to the editors from Dr. E. E. Ericson, the same article as that carried in the April issue of the Carolina Magazine appears in The Nation under the section "Labor and Industry."

Ericson Appeals

Dr. Ericson's letter, headed "Friends of Labor to the Rescue!", is a request for funds to help finance the appeal that the convicted men are attempting to obtain.

The only editorial comment far different from that enjoyed by the case in a recent issue of David Clark's Textile Bulletin is in the form of a note appended to Dr. Ericson's letter.

The note reads: "The story of the arrest and conviction of these seven men, showing the flimsy character of the evidence against them, is related at greater length by W. T. Couch and J. O. Bailey on page 483 of this issue.—Editors the Nation."

Who's Who

Mr. Couch, director of the University Press, Dr. Bailey, instructor in the English department, and Dr. Ericson, professor in the same department, are three faculty members who have

PUBLICISTS CLOSE CONVENTION HERE

Wilkinson of Duke Elected as New President; Next Meeting Place Undecided.

The annual convention of the directors of Southern News Bureaus came to a close here yesterday.

Albert A. Wilkinson of Duke University was elected southern district director for next year, succeeding Ralph Clark of Rollins College. The selection of next year's meeting place was left with the executive committee.

Yesterday's session was addressed by Edward V. Mitchell, sports editor of the Greensboro Daily News; Ted Mann, sports publicist of Duke University; Dallas Millison, director of the Atlantic Christian College News Bureau, and Miss Virginia Garner, professor of journalism and publicity director of Wesleyan College.

"North Carolina newspapers are fortunate in having such well organized and efficient college news bureaus," Mr. Mitchell told the publicists. "Nowhere in the south are newspapers as well serviced by college bureaus as in North Carolina."

He advised that news stories as a general rule always be told as briefly as possible.

Newspapers are not interested in printing stories that have been broadcast previously in the identical form, he said.

PARAGRAPHICS

It would be a major calamity if the Dogwooders came upon Boy Scouts chopping down dogwood for firewood next week-end.

Politics is as bad as ever. It used to be that it was "no-soap" for business; now there's plenty of soap but it's too soft.

We just read an article by Roscoe Pound. We don't know much about law, but we guess what Pound says ought to carry a little weight.

First Person Plural

Having wondered throughout the past year about the exact origin of the editorial "we," the present administration is still as puzzled as ever. "We" rather suspect some editor, with his tongue in his cheek, of being indebted to the divine right of kings theory for the expression. An emperor might say "we" with the greatest of ease. He might believe implicitly in the ancient dogma that thrones were handed down from the Almighty's hand, that "Dieu et Mon Droit" was the supreme expression of the dualism of his personality. Not so an editor.

An editor is only a part of his paper. By no means could he restrict the attitude of his publication to a mere "we." It is something much more than a two-fold factor. He depends on a staff of workers, and hence his editorial "we" is somewhat a misnomer.

All this speculation aside, having admitted that "we" are as puzzled as ever about how it ever got started, the present editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL turns over his duties, with this issue, to Phil Hammer, chairman of the editorial board for the past year. "We" wish him all success and propound for his benefit the riddle of the "we," to be mulled over throughout his administration. And, still mindful that the "we" is not simply "two and two makes four," "we" express our appreciation to members of the staff who have given their time and effort to the DAILY TAR HEEL.

With this last effort, "we" pluck, so to speak, what Thackeray called the thorn in our editorial seat.

Dogwood
Festival

In addition to the flock of Boy Scouts which will be present next week-end, the University will play host to the annual throngs who will trek Chapel Hillwards for the Dogwood Festival.

The festival is becoming more than an annual event; it is becoming a traditional and symbolic panorama of North Carolina, as a state and as a community. Local color blends together to give the Old North State an ambitious hue, distinctive among the 48 divisions of the red-white-and-blue that is America.

Sometimes we cannot believe that the state which moves to Chapel Hill so often to review its progress and which selects Chapel Hill as the traditional gathering-place of North Carolina lovers of history and government and the arts, can, at the same time, be so duplicitous as to lash the University as being un-American, as being "radical," as being a "bad influence."

However, our bewilderment does not dampen our ardor for these gatherings in the interest in the state. The University is and always will be a "Dogwood Festival" of state loyalty.

Pitching
Our Tent

When 1300 Boy Scouts make Chapel Hill their camping grounds for the coming weekend, Universityites as well as scouts should find the experience pleasant.

Chapel Hill is notably famous for its surroundings and for the type of man who spends four years among the natural beauties and goes forth to make his mark in the world. The Boy Scouts, on the other hand, are famous for their appreciation of nature, for their efforts to perfect themselves in mind, body and spirit. Surely it is significant that they will mingle together, 1300 strong, in the traditional woods of Chapel Hill.

We daresay there are many ex-Scouts and wish-they-had-been-Scouts on the campus who will have lots of fun with the high and grammar schoolers next weekend. Learning how to cook on an open fire, learning how to pitch tents, build fires correctly, find one's way around, is certainly not below the station of a University student, however sophisticated.

We will welcome the Boy Scouts as wholesome American youth, as prospective collegians like ourselves, and as the spirit of our younger generation that even the strain of economic, political, and social malformation cannot sully or bend.

Hearst Is Not Uncle Sam

William Randolph Hearst is something of a puzzle to most undergraduates and we are no exceptions. "Red-baiting Bill," as we'd like to call him, is one of the big army-and-navy men who believe anything that is radical will destroy his pet theory of nationalism, and at the same time, he takes an extremely radical stand toward economic interdependence which anyone with intelligence can tell you is our lot.

Undergraduates, on the whole, have little respect for Mr. Hearst, except that he seems to be, on the surface, sincerely interested in what he is fighting for. Recent analyses of the Hearstian complex, however, show a decidedly crooked path of Hearstian endeavor, crooked in that "Red-baiting Bill" has deviated from a consistent policy.

It is also true that many undergraduates don't even give Mr. Hearst a thought. This is especially true on the Southern campus, where cries of "reds" and "radicals" are usually nothing more than hollow voices in the wilderness. Nevertheless, those who do oppose the great Savior of Nationalism do so with some vociferousness.

We agree with the Hearstian opposition. Hearst is not Uncle Sam; he's a menace.

Shake-up
For the "Y"

The incoming president of the Y. M. C. A. is promising a general shake-up of the organization next year. Incoming presidents usually admit that organizations need shaking up from top to bottom, but after a little flurry at the beginning they seldom disturb the status quo.

We hope the new president is sincere. While the Y undoubtedly serves a great number of the students indirectly, a very small percentage of the student body is directly connected with Y activities. If the incoming officers are able to devise a plan that will add color enough to attract more men to the meetings, the Y will exert a greater influence on student opinion than it has in the past.

The Busy Man Has
Time For Everything

That prominence in extra-curricular activities is in no way correlated with poor scholastic achievement is well indicated by even the most casual perusal of the new Cauldron. Many of the seniors who have consistently held a Dean's List average throughout the five years here have long lists of activities beside their names, and very few of the men with high scholastic averages have less than four or five activities to their credit.

Surveys at other colleges indicate practically the same conclusions. For instance, a survey recently made at the University of Wisconsin shows that the scholastic average of their track team is better than the average for the school as a whole. One man, a sprinter has made a straight "A" average, and only one man had an average below a "C."

Other activities beside athletics would show practically the same results, and several would probably show an even better average.

The figures may show any one or several of a number of things. Perhaps it is because the better scholars are the only ones who have time for activities, perhaps eligibility rules are being more strictly enforced, or it may be that the activities themselves are becoming more selective. In any case, it is quite definitely shown that the "activities hound" who makes a fetish of his extra-curricula work to the exclusion of his studies is mostly a figment of the popular imagination.—Northeastern News.

Casual Correspondent
by

R. S. V. P.

The queerest acceptance to anything we've ever received came the other day in a large white envelope, on which in very green ink was the name "Miss Ellen Gibbs McAdoo" in bold, finely rounded scrip. Through this, three thin lines had been drawn, and our name and address, in much smaller lettering, was split above and below the crossed-out name. We tore open the envelope to discover gleefully that we—or Miss McAdoo; we still weren't sure which—were invited to "Daphne's Debut," a debutante musical extravaganza for which we could purchase a box for the modest sum of 25 dollars. On the bottom of the page was an arrow to indicate that the rest of the message was on the back. We skipped the inside pages containing the names of patrons and patronesses, and got down to business on page four. At the top of the page in great penciled scrawl the message began: "My sweet—Am thrilled. As far as I know now, I'll say (quick like a bunny) YES! . . ." As the letter went on, the writing got smaller and smaller, smudgier and smudgier until we couldn't read it at all. We take it for granted she'll be here.

THOROUGHBRED

Nick Read, perhaps the most promising member of the rising sophomore class, tells us another one on Mrs. Ogden Armour, the wife of the Chicago meat-packer. It seems that she and a Mrs. Cabot of Boston were discussing the values of life and all that. Said Mrs. Cabot of Boston, (Where the Cabots speak only to God): "In Baoston, we think breeding is everything."

"Well, we think it's fun, too," replied Mrs. Armour, "but we don't think it's everything."

HAM OR HAMLET?

Sydney Howard, the playwright, tells this one on Leslie Howard, the actor with whom he is frequently confused. It seems that earlier in the season Katherine Hepburn was considering a production of "Romeo and Juliet." Looking about for a leading man, she gave Leslie Howard a copy of her acting version, asking him to look it over. She saw him next day, and demanded his opinion. "It's a pretty good part," replied Mr. Howard. "How does it end?"

IN WHICH WE TALK ABOUT US

This column began when New Bern's Lonnie Dill took over the editorship of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and it appears for the last time in this, Editor Dill's last issue. It is, we think, an appropriate time for us to acknowledge that the idea of our writing a column at all was Don Shoemaker's; and that the name "Casual Correspondent" was the last-minute brainstorm of a city editor. (Our own title for it was "Letter to ————," which apparently didn't suit anybody but us).

The style we owe to The New Yorker, which we've aped with the greatest possible fidelity, and most of our funniest stories have been told us by people with a keener sense of humor than we have. Our especial thanks are due Miss Elizabeth Bain, secretary of the Romance Language department, without whose help this column would have died a natural death late in October. And most of the little interest "Casual Correspondent" has aroused has been due to its rather peculiar position, for the greater part of the time, at least, as the only column in the paper.

NIGHTMARES

The above seems a great deal of dither about nothing when you realize that this, since April 28, 1934, when it started, is only column number 40. That means that if you threw out news, features, editorials, notices, sports, advertising, and the mast-head, and set the paper only with columns (God forbid!) that you'd have slightly less than seven full pages of this drivel.

For those frequent occasions on which we've been long-winded and tiresome, and gone out of our way to explain the obvious, we're sorry. (Oddly enough, you never know whether it's good or bad until you see it in print). For the times when the type-setters have messed up stories by errors of insertion and omission, we're sure they are—at least when it made any difference.

To those whose feelings were hurt, whose toes were stepped on, speeches misquoted or ideas misrepresented, we extend our apologies, without being in the least sorry for having called attention to anything that's cheap, pretentious, hypocritical, or ridiculous.

APRES MOI LE DELUGE

And to this department, at least, there's something vaguely funny about leaving the staff of the paper we've worked on for three years on Ascension Day. We regret we're unable to report, along with Jesus Christ and Thornton Wilder, that "Heaven's My Destination." Anyway, to everybody: best wishes for a joyous Easter.

Toward the six new TAR HEEL columnists (since Editor-elect Hammer is dispensing with dribblings from this department) we feel as did the master plumber, who caused to be inscribed on his coat of arms the legend: "Apres Moi Le Deluge."

Party Bosses

"The possibilities for improvement of our present government, through the training of incoming officials and the exchange of experience and thought among old officials, are great.

"The program should be of equal or even greater service and benefit," he went on, "in the governmental training of our citizens and youth, for it is along these avenues that better government in the long run will come."

The public schools are taking a large part in the work. High schools in 95 of the state's 100 counties are aiding officials and civic leaders in staging local membership drives. In return, the schools have the opportunity to earn valuable and needed materials on government for their classrooms and libraries, plus $1,000 in prizes.

The only comment in a state journal was in the Textile Bulletin, which carried a long editorial calling the mass meeting held in Gerrard hall to hear the prisoners speak for themselves a fine example of the radical, not to say actually communistic, spirit rampant on the University campus.

Festival

Saturday nights. Three or four different studio productions will be presented each night.

All exhibits will be open from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Friday; 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. on Saturday, and from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m. on Sunday.

A folk music program, under the direction of Richard Chase, is to be given in Memorial hall at 10:30 o'clock Saturday. Ballad singers, hymn singers, square dancers and dulcimer players are special features.

The South Atlantic division of the American Rock Garden Society, holding its annual convention here Saturday, will give a demonstration of rock garden construction under the direction of William L. Hunt, vice-president of the society, on the campus at 11 o'clock.

Indian Ball Game

One of the high lights of the festival will be the Cherokee Indian ball game which will be staged on Emerson field Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The rough and tumble native game in which no punches are barred will be played by two teams from the Cherokee reservation near Lake Junaluska.

The Boy Scout pageant to be given in Kenan stadium Saturday night at 7 o'clock will be open to the public. Paul W. Schenck of Greensboro, regional chairman of the scouts, will preside and the University band will provide music for the parade and grand entry march of the scout councils.

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will deliver addresses following the re-dedication to the scout oath. Frank Belgrano, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, has been invited to attend.

The Boy Scout camp church service will be held in Kenan stadium Sunday at 8:30 a. m.

Williamson Sets Record As Tar Heel Track Team Gets Easy Win Over Va.

CAROLINA WHIPS RIVALS, 96 1-3-30 5-6

Star Runs Mile in 4:20.5; Finley, Farmer, and Efland Show Improved Form for Winners.

HIGBY, EVERETT WIN TWO

In a meet featured by Harry Williamson's record-breaking performance and the double victory of Captain Everett of Virginia, Carolina scored a surprisingly top-heavy 95 1-6—30 5-6 triumph over the Cavalier tracksters here yesterday afternoon.

The meet produced several good performances, even though the visitors failed to offer the expected competition, taking only three first places. Floyd Higby, Carolina ace, also came through with a pair of firsts for the Tar Heel cause.

Running a well paced race throughout, Harry Williamson stepped out in the final 880 yards of the mile event to lower the existing Emerson field record by .7 second. Galen Eliot set the mark nine years ago at four minutes, 21.2 seconds.

Wins Both Hurdle Runs

As was expected, Virginia's outstanding track celebrity, Grover Everett, captured the wins in both hurdle events. He won the 120-yard highs by a three-yard margin over Frank Abernethy, but just barely took the measure of Co-captain Tom Hawthorne in the 220-yard lows.

Hawthorne got off to a marvelous start and headed the Cavalier brilliant up to the last hurdle, at which point Everett came even and captured the victory by the slightest of margins. Abernethy was a close third. The time of 14.9 for the highs came within a second of Abernethy's Emerson record.

The 100-yard dash event saw the return of Charlie Hubbard, Carolina's other co-captain, who had been on the injured list since the indoor meet. Hubbard led for about 90 yards, but turned to look behind, and in that fraction of a second Finlay came up and nipped Hubbard at the tape. It was Finlay's first varsity win.

Nine Points a Try

Carolina swept all places in four events. In the 220-yard dash Higby went into a commanding lead at the start and won by five yards, with Gunter and Connell finishing in order. Higby added another five points by besting Everett in the broad jump.

"Red" Drake furnished the fans with a performance similar to his exhibition in capturing the Conference title last season as he took the 440 in 50.6 seconds.

After running behind as far as the turn, Drake started to open up and with a hard-driving finish, broke the tape 10 yards ahead. Keeney and Rosser took second and third, although Farmer, who was competing unofficial, finished behind Drake. It was Farmer's first try at the quarter-mile race.

Gammon and Bob Gardiner, Tar Heel sophomores, staged a merry battle between themselves in the 880-yard run, with the former gaining the win by the closest of margins.

The field was well bunched at the 440 mark, but Gardiner broke away to lead until a few feet from the finish where Gammon overtook him. The time of 1:58.2 was considerably better than either had turned in thus far.

Perhaps one of the most

WRESTLING

Coach Quinlan announced that the second week of spring wrestling practice will be resumed Monday. All former members of the varsity and frosh squads are requested to attend the next two weeks of practice as this is the only time of the year enough space is available for stressing standing work.

TAR HEELS HAVE BIG CARD AHEAD

Thirteen Contests, Two Title Meets, and Penn Relays on This Week's Sport Program.

Thirteen sports contests and a state tennis meet, in addition to the Southern Intercollegiate golf tournament and the Penn relays will be in next week's schedule for Carolina's teams.

The track team will be particularly busy, meeting Duke here Tuesday in varsity and freshman contests, then sending a relay team and several individual stars, including Harry Williamson, Frank Abernethy, Tom Hawthorne, and Charlie Hubbard, to the Penn relays in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday.

Baseball Here

After a week's absence, the varsity baseball team will make a home stand, playing Davidson here Wednesday and Thursday—then meeting State at Raleigh Saturday.

Before entering the Southern Intercollegiates at Athens, Ga., Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the varsity golfers will meet Davidson at Charlotte Monday, and Furman at Furman Tuesday.

The state championship tennis meet will be held here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, with all the Big Five teams and several outfits from smaller colleges expected to be entered.

The freshman baseball team will play State here Monday; Durham High at Durham Tuesday, then playing the same team here Friday.

Next week's schedule:

Monday: Davidson there (golf); State here (freshman baseball).

Tuesday: Duke here (varsity and freshman track); Furman there (golf); Durham High there (freshman baseball); Duke there (varsity tennis).

Wednesday: Davidson here (varsity baseball); Davidson here (varsity tennis); Duke there (freshman tennis).

Thursday: Davidson here (varsity baseball); state championship meet here (tennis); Southern Intercollegiates at Athens, Ga. (golf).

Friday: State meet here (tennis); Southern Intercollegiates at Athens, Ga. (golf); Durham High here (freshman baseball); Penn relays at Philadelphia (track).

Saturday: State at Raleigh (baseball); Penn relays at Philadelphia (track); Southern Intercollegiates at Athens, Ga., (golf); State meet here (tennis).

COMPOSITION CONDITIONS

The regular quarterly examination for the removal of composition conditions will be given May 24 in 201 Murphey. Students who are planning to take this examination should see H. K. Russell at 203 Murphey Monday, Wednesday, or Friday mornings between 10:30 and 12 o'clock.

NET TEAM EASILY LICKS GAMECOCK TENNIS CLUB, 8-1

North Carolina Gets Victories by Straight-Set Margins; Last Doubles Pair Loses.

SETBACK GOES THREE SETS

The championship of the Carolinas in tennis was brought to an issue yesterday afternoon and at the conclusion of play, the undefeated Tar Heel netters had chalked up another easy victory at the expense of the South Carolina Gamecocks, 8-1.

All of the North Carolina wins were by the straight set route. The sole setback was in the final doubles when the visiting combination recovered their ability in the last set to down Frank Shores and Joe Grier.

Harvey Harris opened the match with a win over McCutchins 6-1, 7-5.

Easy Times

Ricky Willis eased through his man, as did Bill Minor, Frank Shore, and Byron Abels. Joe Grier, playing last singles due to the absence of Eddy DeGray, was the only player to come across real opposition, winning 6-4, 7-5 from Daniel.

Harris and Willis, and Minor and Abels had easy wins in the doubles, giving Carolina an 8-0 lead. It was at this point that Moore and Gooding overcame a 3-0 deficit in the final set to down the Tar Heel duo 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

The scores follow:

Harris (C) over McCutchins 6-1, 7-5.

Willis (C) over Moore 6-3, 6-2.

Minor (C) over Gooding 6-2, 6-0.

Shore (C) over Walker 6-2, 6-1.

Abels (C) over McIntosh 6-0, 6-2.

Grier (C) over Daniel 6-4, 7-5.

Harris-Willis (C) over McCutchins-McIntosh 6-2, 6-3.

Minor-Abels (C) over Walker-Daniels 6-2, 6-2.

Moore-Gooding (SC) over Shore-Grier 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

REVENUE BILL PASSES SECOND SENATE READING

Raleigh, April 20.—(UP)—The revenue bill passed the second reading in the Senate today, 22 to 4. As passed, the bill is some $1,500,000 short of the appropriations although the Senate has replaced the same amount in taxes which previously it had refused to levy.

Among these is a tax on all basic foodstuffs except sidemeat, molasses, sugar, salt, coffee, and milk.

Carolina Nine Loses Last Game With Chatham To Split Series

Capt. Vick Hits Hard But Team Falls, 8-1

Johnson Holds Tar Heels to Seven Safe Blows and Fans 10 Men; Hearn Starts for N. C.

IRWIN STARS IN FIELD

Elkin, April 20.—With the exception of Captain Vick Carolina's nine was held well in hand by Johnson, star hurler for Chatham Mills, and as a result the mill team was able to split the two-game series, winning the baseball tilt here today, 8-1.

Coach Bunn Hearn again used some of his rookie hurlers in an effort to find capable pitchers to work in some of the later conference and Big Five contests. Bunn Hearn, Jr., started his first game for the Tar Heels but had to be relieved by Latcher Webster in the sixth.

Fred Crouch, whose arm became sore from over work during the first four Carolina games, continued to take it easy this week in preparation for the coming conference and state tilts.

Ten Fan

Johnson retired 10 Tar Heels by the strike-out route and kept the seven hits well scattered.

Thurman Vick, last year's leading batter, showed some of his old form by getting three hits in three official trips to the bat. He walked in his other appearance at the plate and counted the lone Tar Heel run on some clever base-running.

Ed Voliva managed to keep his high average pretty well intact by connecting for one safe blow out of three trys.

Tommy Irwin again led the play in the field. He had three assists and four putouts and turned in a beautiful double-play almost single-handed.

H. Stockton, rightfielder, was the star for the winners on offense with his two for three, while Mackie's play at third base was outstanding.

FRESHMEN TAKE SCARBORO, 6 TO 1, IN 2ND MEETING

Northern Team Had Held Tar Babies to 3-3 Tie But Without Potts and Fuller in Lineup.

POTTS WINS OVER BEHR

Spurred on by the deadlock with Scarboro - on - the - Hudson Friday afternoon, the frosh tennis team threw full strength into their second battle yesterday with the visiting New Yorkers and trounced them by 6-1.

Although Gordon Robinson was unable to play, the team was greatly strengthened by Ramsay Potts and Eddy Fuller, who were not present for the first encounter.

Potts, yesterday, decisively whipped the Eastern junior champion, Jackie Behr, in straight sets 6-3, 6-3. Behr, who beat Robinson in the first match 9-7, 6-0, was unable to cope with Potts' brilliant and flawless style. Potts lived up to his high junior ranking in the south by easily defeating the best of the younger players in the north.

Fuller wrote finis over Westerfield's bid for fame by a 6-1, 6-3 victory. Fuller again played sparkling ball and is keeping pace with Potts in all around play.

Red Mehoney, laughing, carrot topped hard hitting star, came through with his second decisive win by toppling Johnny Foreman with a 6-0, 6-2 victory. Mehoney hits hard and consistently. This was the sole loss for the Tar Babies.

Mural Teams To Have Light Card This Week

Only two days of activity constitute the intramural athletic program this coming week. Play will continue in both tennis and baseball tomorrow, but in only the former on Friday.

The track meet with Duke on Tuesday, baseball games with Davidson on two successive days, and the Boy Scout encampment this week-end have caused the curtailment of the schedules.

At 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, Lewis faces Aycock "B," and at 5 o'clock Klutz Building meets Old West in the only ball games of the week. The tennis slate follows:

Monday 4:45 Z. B. T. No. 3 vs. Chi Phi, Everett No. 2 vs. Manly, Zeta Psi vs. A. T. O., Delta Tau Delta vs. Phi Alpha, Kappa Alpha No. 2 vs. Phi Delta Theta, Theta Kappa Nu vs. Z. B. T. No. 1.

Friday 4:45 Ruffin vs. Aycock "A," Kappa Alpha No. 3 vs. Pi Kappa Alpha, Law School vs. Grimes, Mangum vs. Old West, Old East vs. Lewis, Phi Gamma Delta vs. T. E. P.

TAR HEELS DROP ONLY HALF-POINT IN GOLF CONTEST

Boston College Falls Before Excellent Play of Carolina Boys, 17½-½; Pijanowski Gets 70.

CAROLINA CONTINUES TRIP

Playing on the beautiful Sedgefield course in Greensboro, the golf team decisively beat the Boston College team by a 17½-½ score.

Massachusetts' team was the first defeated on the present Carolina trip that will continue southward to Athens, Ga., where it will take part in the Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament scheduled for next week-end.

Walter Pijanowski was medalist of the day with the low card of 70. Wilson Coffin was right on Pijanowski's heels with a score one stroke higher. Both of these low scores were turned in on the difficult Sedgefield course, which is a comparatively strange links to most of the team.

Laxton at One

Erwin Laxton played his usual number one position and beat Featherstone 3-0. In scoring this victory Laxton turned in the third lowest score when he shot a 73.

Furbush, of Boston College dropped the second match of the day to Dick Harris. The Tar Heel dubber beat his opponent with a 3-0 score.

Wilson Coffin continued the fine brand of golf he has displayed this past week by beating Moore 3-0. Walter Pijanowski met McCrady in the fourth singles match and won by the same score as his other teammates.

In the doubles matches Laxton and Harris took over Featherstone and Furbush 3-0, while Coffin and Pijanowski were unable to prevent Moore and McCrady from gaining the only marker for the losers, when the second Carolina doubles combination won 2½-½.

CADETS DEFEAT FROSH NINE, 8-7, IN TOUGH GAME

Score Tied Three Times But Oak Ridge Manages to Get Winning Marker in Ninth.

TAR BABIES VS. WOLFCUBS

The Oak Ridge baseball team squeezed out an 8 to 7 win over the Carolina freshmen yesterday on Emerson field. It was a nip and tuck battle down to the final putout and marked the second defeat of the season for the yearlings.

The Cadets jumped into an early lead when they scored three runs in the opening inning. The entire lineup took a turn at bat in this frame.

Hyder, lead-off man, grounded out. Mock hit an infield single past second and Carolina then missed its chance to end the inning with a double-play when Craver dropped Burnette's peg.

Wildness Costly

Bishop came through with a double to center, scoring Mock. Willard filled the bases by passing Tyson. A wild pitch then allowed Hayworth to score. The Carolina pitcher refilled the bases by issuing a free ticket to Seago. His third straight pass forced in the third run of the inning.

Carolina tied up the count in the fourth. LeGrande and Coffey were walked. On an attempted sacrifice bunt by Lloyd, the centerfielder was thrown out at third. Frank Grubb dropped a Texas leaguer in short

HOPKINS DOCTOR WILL TALK HERE

Noted Professor of Pharmacology Will Address Local Scientific Society Tuesday Night.

Dr. E. K. Marshall, Jr., professor of pharmacology in the Johns Hopkins medical school, will address the local chapter of Sigma Xi, national scientific research society, here Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in Phillips hall on "Report of Special Work on the Kidney."

Dr. Marshall, who is a native of Charleston, S. C., received his M. D. from the University of Chicago and his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University. While at Johns Hopkins he was a pupil of Dr. John J. Abel, who was head of the pharmacology department and later the first associate professor of pharmacology there.

After teaching for a while at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., Dr. Marshall returned to Johns Hopkins as professor of physiology. When Dr. Abel retired as professor of pharmacology, Dr. Marshall was appointed as his successor.

Dr. Marshall's work has been in the field of biological chemistry. One of his remarkable discoveries was that urease, which is obtained from the soy bean, would decompose the substance urea and permit the amount of this substance to be determined.

Dr. Marshall has studied the action of various chemical substances, both in normal and abnormal animals, and has made determinations of the composition of the blood from the two sides of the heart.

gratifying happenings of the day was Tom Efland's five foot, 11-inch high jump victory. Carolina had been desperately in need of a high jumper and Coaches Fetzer and Ranson's hopes were seemingly answered in Efland's fine performance.

The winners continued to show improving strength in the weight events. This time it was Marvin Ray who burst into the picture, as he captured the shot put with a 41 foot, 7 1-4-inch heave. Wrenn, the unexpected winner of the W. & M. meet, took the runner-up post.

Evins, despite a back injury, came through to cop the discus throw as he hurled the platter 128 feet, one inch. Barwick was second and Stewart was third to give the Tar Heels a rather clean sweep.

U. N. C. finished the weight events off in fine fashion as Armfield took the javelin win with a 180 foot, two-inch throw. Stipe of Virginia was second, and the fast improving Stutts of Carolina was third.

Call took the Cavalier's only other victory by besting the field in the pole vault. The winner took first honors by clearing the bar at 11 feet, six inches, while Armstrong of Virginia, Jackson, and Bear tied for second.

The longer distance runs were all Carolina. Williamson in breaking the stadium record put on a solo performance, but Gabori and Banna of the visitors staged good competition in the battle for second. Banna attempted to pull away on the far stretch of the last lap, but Gabori matched him and came home five yards in front.

Ed Waldrop easily again captured the two-mile run, with Marvin Allen following. Aderholt was successful in matching the eighth lap attempt of Wayte to place third.

Engineer Builds Pretzel Steeple Five Mugs High

A pretzel tower almost five beer mugs in height toppled to the floor of Gooch's Cafe at 10:45 o'clock Friday night. And with it fell the hopes of engineering student Elden Bailey—He wanted a six mug tower.

At nine-thirty Bailey began to pile up pretzels—of the stick type. He made a six sided base that went up for some distance—about one mug. Then he built a four sided tower on top of this base. The pretzels gave out. More beer was ordered. And with it came the needed construction material.

As the structure rose the crowd of spectators increased. One of them hinted that the man was drunk. But Bailey denied this emphatically, saying: "This is difficult for a sober man to do; for a drunk, impossible.

The construction went on amid cries of encouragement and advice: "That's a boy! Go to it Bailey! Lean it a little farther this way"—as the tower began to bend and twist under its own weight. "The leaning tower of pretzels," someone called it.

A measurement was taken. The tower was about five mugs—minus the foam—high. Two more pretzels were put on. And then . . . somebody sat down too hard in the adjoining booth. Down went Bailey's dream.

"The engineering is sound," he said in an exclusive interview with the DAILY TAR HEEL. The trouble lies in the table which is affected by vibrations from the floor. Assuming that the table was perfectly solid I think I could build a six-mug tower."

center and Andrews drove a hard single to center scoring Coffey and Lloyd. Grubb scored when Tyson fumbled Willard's grounder.

Cadets Ahead Again

The visitors came right back in the first half of the fifth to again take the lead. Willard walked Bishop who immediately stole second. Tyson flied out to center and Seago was also passed to first. The sacks were filled when Edgerton was walked.

At this point Coach James yanked Willard and replaced him with Daffy Parker. Parker although in a tight position gave out no hits but by virtue of his error and a long outfield fly gave up two runs.

However, the yearlings not to be outdone came back in their half and knotted the count. Burnette shot a sizzling grounder through second. LeGrande took a third strike and Coffey dropped a short fly in left center. Lloyd then sent a liner down the left field foul line and due to a mix-up on the part of the coach was thrown out at home. Here Carolina missed a chance to go into the lead when Grubb sent a liner to right.

Missed Base

The home club received a "break" in the seventh when, with two men on base, Mock drove the first pitch over the rightfielder's head. The shortstop neglected to touch third base and was called out ending the inning with two runs.

The game was tied up for the third time when Bunny Burnette and Harry LeGrande were both passed. Burnette stole third and counted on Mock's error. Lloyd greeted Taylor, who had replaced Culler, with a neat bunt which sent LeGrande to third who tallied a minute later with the tying run as Grubb grounded out.

The winning run came in the ninth inning when Seago led off with a "fluke" triple which took a bad bounce away from Coffey. The old "squeeze" play was brought into action to score the winning run when Edgerton laid down a perfect bunt along the third base line. The heavy artillery of the Carolina line-up could not dent the offerings of relief-hurler Taylor who set Burnette, LeGrande, and Coffey down in order in the ninth.

Johnny Humphries, though nicked for the winning run, was outstanding in his role as relief twirler. Carolina outhit its rivals but the six errors chalked up against the first year men proved costly.

Tomorrow the frosh will attempt to break back into the win column when they tackle the strong State outfit on Emerson field at 4 o'clock.

THEATRE CHANGES RULES FOR WEEKLY DRAWING

The Carolina theatre has changed the rules for its weekly drawing.

Beginning next week the holder of the lucky number will be required to be either in the theatre, or in the vicinity and holding the stub of a ticket used the day of the drawing.

An unused ticket, purchased the day of the drawing, which is good any day thereafter may be substituted for the stub.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Robert Van Sleen, O. R. Yeager, Murray Honeycutt, G. C. Courtney, Allen Knott, S. I. Roberts, Meares Harris, Arthur Stein, A. F. Thompson, D. T. Taff, and W. T. McGowan.

Warehouse Destroyed At Brooklyn Docks

New York, April 20.—(UP)—A spectacular warehouse fire which spread to adjoining structures and caused dense clouds of acrid smoke which overcame 100 persons was brought under control tonight after a valiant seven-hour battle by 400 firemen.

The blaze broke out at noon in the New York Dock Company's East river warehouse in Brooklyn. It got out of control, eating into huge stores of tar paper, rubber, creosote, and spices.

Manhattan firemen and fireboat crews were called to aid. The fire was under control by 8 p. m.

Old Gold Contest Adds Two Money Prizes

Two more prizes have been added to the Old Gold cover contest which the P. Lorillard Company is sponsoring and the interfraternity council is directing on the campus.

The additional awards of $7.50 and $2.50 will be given to non-fraternity men turning in the largest and next largest number of covers from Old Gold and flat fifties packages. Fifty dollars will be the prize for the fraternity polling the most counts.

The contest for fraternities has been running since April 11. Check-ups will be made May 5 and each week thereafter until May 23, when the competition ends.

Old Gold covers count one and flat fifties count six. The covers, with contestant's name affixed are dropped in the box for the purpose at the Book Exchange.

Frank Farrel next set back Steele and Strasburger finished the singles with another easy victory over Bassford.

In doubles, Potts and Fuller were pressed by the powerful Behr - Westerfield combination, but they finally won out in three sets, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3. Farrell and Foreman finished the match with another victory in the final doubles.

The scores follow:

Potts (C) over Behr 6-3, 6-3.

Fuller (C) over Westerfield 6-1, 6-3.

Mehoney (S) over Foreman, 6-0, 6-2.

Farrell (C) over Steele 6-2, 6-0.

Strasburger (C) over Bassford 6-4, 6-0.

Fuller-Potts (C) over Westerfield-Behr 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

Farrell-Foreman (C) over Mehoney-Steele 6-3, 6-2.

CAMPUS KEYBOARD

by the Editor

WE'RE HERE This column and the writer are going to act as buffers for this newspaper. To begin with, we'll hang out a red flag of warning. We have lots of ideas and intend to air them, to the end that we prove our point or are proved dumber than we thought we were.

The editor has been the butt of a quantity of fanciful quips relating to the 117 major changes (no less) in the new TAR HEEL. We beg to remind all that we have added five since that announcement, but the careful searcher will have a hard job finding them, and may never do so. No matter. They're there.

LOUSY TECHNICIAN Bruce Old, whose recent article in the Carolina Magazine on the engineering school situation was well received, is not so highly regarded in the Raleigh unit, we presume.

The Technician, Raleigh unit newspaper, tells us that the artiele was written "by one apparently biased to the extent that he deliberately distorts facts so as to make it appear that the engineering school should really be moved to the Chapel Hill unit. . . ."

"There's no use arguing seriously with a child," the editorial goes on, "for doing something about which he knows practically nothing." Instead, the Technician advises, the article should be "passed up lightly. . . ."

Our opinion is that the State Collegians haven't any answers for Bruce's attack. If the child is really father of the man, we wouldn't blame Bruce for not claiming the Technician editor as a son, granting that Bruce is really a child and the Technician editor really a man.

CIVIC PRIDE The Durham Chamber of Commerce, it is rumored, is doing a great job of tremendous civic import in working to postpone the Greyhound bus hearing and in planning a powerful attack against the granting to the Greyhounders of the Greensboro-Raleigh-via-here route.

We only know what everybody says, but it's logical to suppose that the Carolina Coach Company and the Chamberites are working hand-in-hand to prevent any alteration of the present "via Durham" schedule. We hail the Chamberites as being men full of civic pride, but our love for the gentlemen and their work in this case ends there.

We want the Greyhound service and the Durham folks don't want us to have it. We bet that if we put the Chamber of Commerce in some of the Carolina Coach Company's hacks and transported them a couple of times back and forth to Chapel Hill, they would, civic pride or no civic pride, forget their duties to the Bull City and hurriedly provide Greyhound kennels.

BACKING CARROLL Our hats are off to Dean D. D. Carroll. As far as we can find out, he's the only member of the faculty to side with the fraternities in the freshmen-in-dormitory fight and he has conviction enough to believe that the semester system is better than the quarter system at Chapel Hill.

SCHOOLS TO GET DAILY TAR HEEL NEWS BULLETINS

Don McKee to Head Weekly Service for 75 High and Preparatory Schools.

SAUNDERS LENDS SUPPORT

Next Tuesday afternoon 75 high and preparatory schools in and around North Carolina will receive the first issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service, edited by Don McKee, assistant editor of this newspaper.

Every high school and preparatory institution which has a newspaper—daily, weekly, or monthly—will receive the weekly bulletins, which will tell what is happening in Chapel Hill, with special emphasis on alumni from the institutions receiving the news letter.

Craig to Assist

McKee will have Newton Craig, freshman, as his assistant. These two have the task of compiling the news sheet, mimeographing it, and sending it to its destination.

It is expected that at least 25 additional schools will be on the list next year, according to McKee. The present list of 75 is quite incomplete.

School Alumni

In addition to the general campus news, which will include sports, activities, etc., there will be special items relating to particular school alumni, setting forth interesting accomplishments of these alumni during their stay at Chapel Hill.

The alumni office, under Editor Maryon Saunders, is co-operating fully in the project, supplying much information, clerical work, and equipment. Roy Armstrong, also connected with the alumni division, is lending valuable assistance to McKee on the first issue.

DI-PHI FORMULATE BI-CAMERAL IDEA

Joint Committee Makes Definite Plans for Establishing Legislature-like Procedure.

Moving swiftly, a joint Di-Phi committee last night took definite steps toward establishing a bi-cameral campus legislative body. In a short but active session in the Phi assembly hall the group proposed a joint ways and means committee which will meet weekly to select bills for discussion. Each week one bill will be discussed in the respective halls. Bills will formally originate on the floor of the two houses.

Measures originating in the Phi assembly will be known as "Phi bills," with a number system similar to that in the state legislature. Di bills will be likewise designated.

Path of Bill

After action in one of the houses, the bill will be introduced by a member of the ways and means committee on his own floor. The first meeting of the committee will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 in 116 Saunders. Both societies will ratify the action taken last night at their meetings tonight.

Present at the meeting last night were Mason Gibbes, Crist W. Blackwell, Charles Rawls, and Fred Eagles of the Di Senate; and Wiley Parker, Jim Daniel, and Stuart Rabb of the Phi Assembly.

Presidential Care Slides Upon Pool

Rufus Adolphus, Better Known As "Jack," Unofficially "In."

The outgoing Student Council took its last fling last night and voted two members as hold-over members for next year, subject to the approval of Rufus Adolphus "Jack" Pool's new council next week.

Francis Fairley, new University student assistant-to-the-assistant-controller, was one of the holdover members who will be recommended to the green councileers, and Marvin Allen, sophomore two-miler on the track team, is the other.

The official weight has fallen from the shoulders of Student Body President Frank Abernethy onto the careworn ones of Pool, who is "unofficially president" until his official instatement next Monday.

The departing council also voted to let Pool make the new appointments for the student advisory committee, two of the members of which go out of office. One, Francis Fairley, is now an employee of the University, and the other, J. D. Winslow, is graduating this spring.

The only remaining member of the committee is Phil Hammer, Tar Heel editor, who acted as secretary this year.

"Y" Will Answer Unique Need, Yandell Says

Bradshaw Installs 1935 Officers; Graham Present.

Presenting the principal purpose of the "Y" for the coming year in his inaugural address last night, President Billy Yandell boldly declared that no revolutionary change was advocated but that "we hope to incorporate into our program, building on the experience of the past, an answer to the unique needs of the campus."

Dean Bradshaw presided over the combined "Y" cabinet meeting and conducted the installation ceremony, which it is hoped will mark the long-awaited "new era" in Y. M. C. A. administration.

President Graham, once head of the "Y," emphasized the fact that the special responsibility of the organization is to act as the spiritual dynamo of the University.

HENRY SAYS 390 ON HONOR ROLL FOR LAST TERM

New Number Shows Increase of 48 over Last Quarter's Total; "A.B.-ers" Are Ahead.

JUNIORS LEAD CLASSES

A total of 390 University students averaged "B" or over in three courses during the winter quarter and are thereby included on the quarter's honor roll, according to Assistant Registrar G. K. G. Henry's belated announcement yesterday.

An increase of 83 is shown over the corresponding quarter's honor roll for last year and an increase of 48 over the select list for this year's fall quarter.

A.B. College First

Leading the group of schools for the second time this school year, the college of liberal arts placed 226 on the roll, 152 more than the runner-up commerce school's 74. The schools of engineering, applied science, pharmacy, and public administration followed in order with 42, 36, 8, and 4, respectively.

Among the classes the juniors again triumphed with 102 over the freshmen's 101. Last quarter's junior list numbered 95 and the freshmen's 89. Seniors with 97 this quarter placed third over the trailing sophomore group of 90.

42 Show Perfection

By only one is the "all-A" 42 following increased this quarter over last quarter. This number is also an increase of five over the winter quarter's 37 for last year.

Students making the perfect record on three or more courses are: Eben Alexander, J. Y. Barnett, Nell B. Booker, O. H. Borum, F. S. Brown, S. R. Collett, Jr., Jim Daniel, H. McQ. Emerson, R. F. Furchgott, L. I. Gardner, H. O. Ganella, Loamie Gilbert, Jr., P. G. Hammer, R. F. Harward, S. P. Hatch, W. L. Heady, G. A. Heard, L. E. Hinkle, Robert Hooke, R. C. Harrison, W. P. Hudson.

A. S. Kaplan, B. C. Keeney, Jack Lynch, F. C. P. McGlinn, H. B. Miller, W. H. Mills, P. R. Mulene, R. M. Niel, H. M. Parker, Simmons Patterson, Julia Peebles, John T. Schiller, T. M. Simkins, Julia W. Skinner, J. D. Smith, J. McN. Smith, J. J. Sugarman, G. B. Teachey, J. B. Wiggins, B. S. Willis.

This all-A group represents 12 seniors, 12 juniors, seven sophomores, and 11 freshmen. For schools the College of Lib-

Straw Ballots To Reflect Opinion On Semester, Class-Hour Changes

The DAILY TAR HEEL, in order to sound out student opinion, will sponsor a straw-vote, beginning next Tuesday morning, on two questions which are important to every undergraduate.

Believing that many students have something to say about many things, the editors of this newspaper intend to give them the opportunity of expression this year. The first step is the inauguration of a policy of straw-voting and student surveying.

The two questions under consideration for the first poll are: the proposed change in class-hours at the University, and the adoption of the semester system by the University administration.

Beginning tomorrow, the DAILY TAR HEEL will present facts and opinions representing both sides of both questions. In addition, there will be discussions of how the plans work in other institutions, and a resumé of trends of American campuses in both fields.

Ballots will appear in the newspaper next Tuesday. Ballot boxes will be placed at convenient situations on the campus.

In addition to allowing for affirmative or negative opinions, the ballots will also contain various questions which the students may answer. Full results will be printed next Thursday or Friday, the balloting to last through Wednesday afternoon.

Faculty May Act Within Week On New Class Extension Plan

"Y" Plans May Alter Student-Faculty Day

New Annual Holiday May Be Scheduled for Founders' Day.

The Y. M. C. A. has recently begun to plan for next year's Student-Faculty Day, according to Bill Yandell, incoming president. Suggestions are being considered which will probably change the date to Founders' Day during the month of October.

Yandell mentions the possibility of a freshman Dads' Day to be held in collaboration with the Student-Faculty and Founders' Day. Were this to take effect, the Freshman Friendship Council would be instrumental in arranging a program for the visiting fathers.

"We will welcome all suggestions from the campus," stated Yandell, "and I hope that student opinion will be constructively critical so as to make for an even more successful day next fall."

SELDEN TO STAGE STUDENT DRAMAS

Six Productions Will Be Presented for Dogwood Festival This Week-end.

In their annual effort, usually characterized by badly-memorized lines and makeshift scenery, the Carolina Playmakers will once more give an opportunity to the students of Professor Samuel Selden's play-directing class to present their work publicly.

Six or nine of the 11 plays under rehearsal at the present time will be produced Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Included in the 11 plays are four comedies, five tragedies, a modern melodrama, and a 15th century Russian drama.

Five New Playwrights

Only five of the plays are those of newcomers to the playwriting classes. The others are those which have been produced in the past, or have been written by authors who have already done creative work with the organization.

Good Says Sec. Daniel

In accordance with the usual Playmaker publicity, Secretary Ella Mae Daniel writes: "The plays this year are of unusual merit." In the past, audiences at the production of the new Carolina plays (which include plays set in all parts of the world) have been unhurried to voice their approval.

Conspicuous by their absence this year are plays of Son Paul Green and Loretto Carroll Bailey.

Little Black Sin

Dr. H. W. Crane started telling his psychology class about sin the other day, but he didn't get far before he struck a snag. "Such-and-such," he was saying, "is a mere pecadillo . . ." When the class began to look about as blank as classes can look, Dr. Crane hit upon "pecadillo" as the cause. "Mr. ———," he said, "will you tell the class what 'pecadillo' means?" Mr. ——— would, but he couldn't. A silence followed. Finally a brave Connecticutt boy volunteered to try the definition. "Dr. Crane, I know what a pickadilly is. It's a little colored baby."

Plan Affords Choice Of Additional Classes

Dr. Leon Wiley Introduces Provision to Broaden Undergraduate Education.

GRAHAM FAVORS IDEA

A plan of class-extension, similar to set-ups in other leading colleges and universities, will possibly be adopted by the University faculty within the next week or so.

The idea, set forth by Dr. Leon Wiley and sponsored by this newspaper, allows for a freedom of choice in selecting an additional class each day, such choice to be made according to each student's interest and by the student.

Outline of Plan

Briefly, the plan is this:

Every week professors and instructors submit to the departmental heads a list of lectures which they will give during the week and which they believe will prove interesting to the student body.

The departmental heads revise the lists and turn them over to the DAILY TAR HEEL. Each day a bulletin will be run, announcing the various lectures to be delivered that day, as well as other interesting programs.

Not Allowed to Cut Classes

A student, having a certain period free, can attend any classroom lecture or program on the bulletin for that hour. If, in special instances he sees a program which would actually be more beneficial, he may skip his regularly assigned class. This, of course, is a personal matter and the student must be penalized accordingly for a regular class absence.

To Broaden Scope

The philosophy of the plan, as set forth by leaders for its adoption, is to broaden the scope of undergraduate education by allowing students to participate in classroom programs outside of

FUND WILL HONOR GRAHAM'S FATHER

Student Loan for Charlotte Vicinity to Be in Memory of Dr. Alexander Graham.

Felix A Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, will speak tomorrow night at a banquet to be held in Charlotte inaugurating a campaign to raise a student loan fund in memory of the late Dr. Alexander Graham, father of President Graham.

More than a thousand Charlotte citizens have been invited to attend the banquet. The campaign will be directed toward a goal of $10,000 which will be administered by a Charlotte board and will be available to boys and girls in the vicinity of Mecklenburg county to enable them to continue their education in the Greater University.

A part of the fund will be used for the erection of a handsome bronze marker in the Alexander Graham Junior High School of Charlotte, reviewing the accomplishments of Dr. Graham, who is known as the father of public education in North Carolina. Former Senator Cameron Morrison and Dr. W. L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, will also speak at the banquet.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, HUDSON; NIGHT, SMITH

WHAT WE'RE FOR

The DAILY TAR HEEL is going to get busy.

We may not always be right, but we're always going to be fair and as exhaustive as possible. One thing is certain: there are going to be lots of things aired which have been gathering dust and other dirt. And the air is free.

The staff has been put through a sieve. And news will be treated likewise. We're tired of being a bulletin board only; from now on you'll find the bulletins on the back page where they should be. What the students do and think and want is our news and yours. And we promise you you'll get it.

Speaking casually, there are 40 major points of attack for us. You'll get them one by one, and you'll keep on getting the first one until we get what we're after or a satisfactory conclusion is reached, satisfactory, we mean, to the student body of which we are a part.

We advocate and will fight for a written constitution for this campus. We don't want a thesis on student government; we want a few short paragraphics, delegating authority in certain cases.

We are against the proposed change in class hours. There will be a straw-vote in a few days and we'll hear what you have to say. And we promise you'll get both sides in this newspaper.

We want staff elections. More of this will come later, but we advise campus politicians who might see in our demand the loss of a few political plums to get on the ball in defense, because we are going to force the issue from beginning to end.

We want a complete re-allocation of student fees, following a thorough investigation. Before this is finished, it will involve a complete investigation of the Y. M. C. A., the student union, the debaters, and the classes, for they get bounties and they must deserve them if they are to continue to be favored thus.

We will fight against the move to make freshmen live in dormitories. We have our reasons and we intend to match them fairly with the reasons of the opposition.

We, naturally, favor the class-extension plan set forth by us. If our efforts in this direction are successful, we believe the educational values of the University will be increased.

We are against the consolidation of the engineering schools at Raleigh. We see in it a dangerous threat by the textilists to wipe this "liberal center" off its feet, because it will weaken us as the decreased appropriations have done. We believe that the same force is behind both actions, but we must take time to prove it and then act accordingly.

We favor the Everett plan and will move for its adoption in all dormitories. Its big trouble is that it is not far-reaching enough. But, of course, finances are to be considered.

These are only a few of those questions in which this newspaper can do the campus a service, by speaking the campus mind. Anyone who believes we must use the United Press and go outside of Chapel Hill for our youthful crusading is misinformed or sleepy. We have enough problems immediately before us, which we have evaded in the main because they meant a little effort, to supply thought-food for us all—and others, too.

We intend to work with the student government administration as much as possible, but we're not going to censor one piece of information which is needed for a clear presentation.

The DAILY TAR HEEL will utilize straw-votes, surveys, and many other means to represent student opinion. We want students to make use of our columns. If they don't, we'll have more space to express our own opinions, which may or may not be representative. The best choice would be the former.

The student body may wonder by our slogan "To create a campus personality." Believe it or not, there is no personality now. The campus has its tradition, but there are no traditions for our students. We must create them. We don't want to publicize organization; we want to publicize the men who drew it up. What the students think, what they do, how they express their feelings—these are the news stories in which we are interested.

We will do our best to give you something to think about. If we accomplish nothing else, we will have accomplished something gratifying to ourselves, at least. We're going to have some fun and we invite 2500 others to join us.

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

The Last Meat On an Old Bone

The DAILY TAR HEEL is sponsoring two columns of political views: one (below) presenting the conservative argument; the other, which will apppear Friday mornings, presenting the radical, or left, view.

These columns are highly opiniated and do not represent the policy of this newspaper as such, except in the light that both sides of every question will be presented in this journal. Letters of agreement or disagreement may be sent to the DAILY TAR HEEL and will be duly forwarded to the columnists—Ed. Note.

Being labelled a conservative, and encouraged by the surprising strength of conservative opinion found by Virgil Lee to exist on the campus, I no longer feel constrained to keep to myself what observations I have heard made upon a few of the anti-war arguments that have been brought to the attention of the student body.

Even in the hearts of the most pessimistic and cynical there is a sincere hope for the success of anti-war measures. In the same sense that we dream of a Utopia, we dream of a warless society. But while some are credulous enough to enter wholeheartedly into the spirit of an anti-war demonstration, there are others—to give me a leg to stand on, we'll call them the more conservative—who are aware of the fact that anything so contrary to human nature as eternal peace cannot be secured through such elementary means as appealing to a young generation by posters and speeches.

In the face of the perpetual military propaganda around us, the task of the pacifist is a thankless one. Our civilization has evolved through continual warfare as much as through anything else. We have bred into us such susceptibility to wartime propaganda that the pacifist who harangues us successfully in time of peace finds his soap box his sole companion when a trumpet blows. The most deeply confirmed pacifist cannot deny the pulse-quickening effect of martial music. It may be unfortunate, but it is true that one military march tune can undo in five minutes all that a pacifist speaker can accomplish in a morning.

The belief that we can dissuade our government from declaring war tomorrow by resolving today to turn a deaf ear to the call to colors is as ridiculous as it is specious. It takes no great psychological acumen to convince ourselves that resolutions made today are really broken tomorrow. And especially is this true of resolutions made under the eloquent persuasion of some public speaker.

Nor is it inconsistent to argue that we cannot be made peaceable by constantly calling war to our attention through propaganda designed to make legalized murder repulsive to us.

What campus opinion I have heard expressed does not go beyond this. Evidently those who are not convinced of the efficacy of anti-war demonstrations have nothing better to offer in their place. Still, the fact that the unconvinced here resorted to no no such methods as at Harvard seems to show at least that Carolina students think deeply enough to refrain from jeering something in which they cannot sincerely believe.

That is a good sign. Such consideration for the other fellows' opinion offers encouragement to an embryo columnist whose inexperience may have the whole campus on his neck before the quarter is out—D. S.

their regular schedules. It fits well into the idea of the new curriculum and carries out the function of a continuous Human Relations Institute, as some students have suggested.

Last Friday the DAILY TAR HEEL sent letters to all departmental heads, setting forth the plan in full. This morning the heads will receive another letter, this in the form of a questionnaire. It is planned to have the idea set forth at a faculty meeting if the administration is willing.

President Frank Graham has expressed himself heartily in favor of the system. Comments from several departmental heads also manifest accord, and undergraduate opinion, such as has been sounded out, is favorably inclined.

Tar Heel Golfers Eke Out 10-8 Victory Over Wildcat Linksmen

Harris, Laxton Win 8 Of Possible 9 Points

Coffin Is Blanked, Pijanowski Halved, and Two Lose Foursome by ½-2½ Score.

FURMAN NEXT ON CARD

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Davidson College, April 22.—Continuing their victorious drive southward, the varsity golf team turned aside Davidson, 10-8, on the Wildcats' home links yesterday afternoon.

Furman, who will be met tomorrow, will be the next foe standing before the team on its way to the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament, to be held at Athens, Ga., this week-end.

Laxton Shoots 71

Yesterday's match featured the excellent play of Erwin Laxton, who copped low honors of the day with a brilliant 71.

Starting off the play for the Carolina team, Laxton, with the aid of his low 71, turned aside Ross, his opponent, by a score of 2½-½.

Dick Harris easily defeated Cowan of the Wildcats, by a 3-0 score. Wilson Coffin suffered the only individual setback of the day when he bowed to Snow, who blanked him, 3-0.

Pijanowski Slumps

Pijanowski brought to a close the singles matches of the day by splitting his match with Hamrick, 1½-1½. This was quite a reversal of the excellent form displayed by the Tar Heel team's fourth man last Saturday on the Sedgefield course. In the

BASEBALL TEAM DRILLS FOR TILT WITH WILDCATS

Coach Hearn Will Send Revised Lineup Against Davidson at Emerson Field Tomorrow.

CAPTAIN VICK AT THIRD

Coach Bunn Hearn pushed the Tar Heel baseballers through a fast practice session on the freshman field yesterday. Due to recent rains the Emerson diamond was not in playing condition.

If the field is in shape, the Tar Heels will open a two-game series with Davidson here tomorrow. These two contests were originally scheduled for today and tomorrow, but due to a conflict each has been postponed until a day later.

Revised Lineup

A revised Tar Heel outfit will probably take the field against the Wildcats tomorrow.

Buck McCarn, who has not played in a home game this season, was working at his regular first base position in yesterday's practice. After being on the injured list since the opening game, McCarn returned to action against the Chatham Blanketeers last week, playing in left field. He will probably start at the first sack tomorrow.

Jim Tatum, who played first during McCarn's absence, has returned to his regular duties behind the plate.

Vick at Third

Captain Vick has been alternating with Bullard at third base and may get the call to start in that position against the Wildcats tomorrow.

A knee injury has kept Gus McIver from working with the team for the past several days. Until he recovers, Coach Bunn is faced with the problem of finding another outfielder.

High School Golfers Will Compete Friday

Fourth Annual Tournament to Be Played at Hope Valley.

The fourth annual golf tournament for North Carolina high schools will be held at the Hope Valley Country Club Friday, according to E. R. Rankin, secretary of the high school extension division.

All contestants will meet Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A., where Coach Kenfield will announce the drawings. Kenfield will also have charge of the tournament. Play will start at 9 o'clock Friday morning. There will be team and individual competition, no school being allowed to enter more than four men. Eighteen holes will be played both morning and afternoon.

The team whose members make the lowest aggregate score for the 36 holes will be recognized as the champion, and the player making the lowest score for the 36 holes will be recognized as the individual champ.

BOSTON NETTERS PLAY HERE TODAY

Tar Heel Tennis Team Anticipates Little Difficulty from Northern Opponents.

The second northern team to visit Carolina makes its bow on the Carolina courts this afternoon in the person of the Boston College netters.

This will be Carolina's ninth engagement of the season, the netters having already registered eight decisive victories. The match yesterday at Duke was postponed due to wet grounds and will be played later in the season.

Now on its spring vacation tour, this quartet of Massachusetts collegians has already played Virginia, and after today's match is scheduled to take on State, Wake Forest, and William and Mary.

Captained by Monte Rynne, the Boston aggregation is not considered a serious threat to the undefeated string of Tar Heel wins, but will provide good competition.

Rynne has as teammates Jim Droney, John Koumjian, and Herb Crowly, who will play in that order. The team is managed by Charles Roughan.

As Boston College has brought only four players, the meet will be limited to four singles and two doubles encounters.

Davidson Tomorrow

Tomorrow Davidson will provide the opposition, and then the Tar Heels wade into the midst of the state tournament, which will occupy Thursday, Friday, and Saturday on the local courts.

CAROLINA WHIPS VIRGINIA

Here is the way the camera caught three of Carolina's 11 firsts in the track meet with Virginia Saturday. The Tar Heels meet Duke at Emerson field today.

The next cut on top shows Red Drake, another outdoor conference champion, leading the way to the tape in the 440 with a time of 50.6 seconds. On the extreme left is John Farmer, who, running unofficially, pulled a surprise by coming in second. Barney Keeney got the official second place and is at the right of Drake, while Virginia's Homer Bast is next.

TAR BABIES TAKE POINTERS IN FIRST GOLF MATCH, 10-8

Cirven, Grover Lead First-Year Men to Close Victory on Hope Valley Course.

BLUE IMPS ARE NEXT FOES

In their opening match of the season, the Carolina freshman golf team defeated the High Point high school linksmen by a score of 10-8, in an 18-hole tilt played yesterday on the Hope Valley course.

Playing in the first position for the frosh was Du Pont Cirven, Columbus, Ga., city champ, who defeated Charles Diffendal, 3-0. Cirven turned in no medal score as he picked up on one hole.

At the number two post, Malcolm Grover, Carolina, lost, 3-0, to Dunkalberger. In the foursome match, Cirven and Grover combined to take three points from the high schoolers.

In the first foursome Dunkalberger had low score with an 80.

In the second foursome Bob Baker of Carolina won 2-1 over Oliver. Baker had low medal for the day with a fine 78. Gordon Gifford, playing at number four for the Tar Babies, dropped his match 2½-½ to John Diffendal. However, Baker and Gifford teamed to halve their foursome match 1½-1½, to provide the margin of victory.

Today the Tar Babies meet with the Duke frosh. The Durham aggregation boasts one of the finest players in the country in Jack Munger, 1932 semi-finalist for U. S. crown.

Z. B. T., ZETA PSI WIN INTRAMURAL TENNIS MATCHES

Everett No. 2, Phi Delts Get Forfeits; Others Postponed.

Only two matches were played yesterday afternoon in the intramural tennis competition. Z. B. T. No. 1 defeated Theta Kappa Nu 2-0, and Zeta Psi triumphed over A. T. O. by a like margin.

Stein started the Zebes off in the right direction by taking the measure of MacPhee by 5-2 and 5-1 scores. Simpson forced Kalmanoff to 2-5, 5-3, 5-4 scores.

The Zeta Psi's found little trouble in winning over A. T. O. as Harrison defeated Kirsch 5-2, 5-1, and Stokes was a 5-0, 5-2 victor over Blanton.

Everett No. 2 won from Manly, and Phi Delta Theta from Kappa Alpha No. 2 on forfeits, while the Phi Alpha-Delta Tau Delta and Chi Phi-Z. B. T. No. 3 matches were postponed.

There will be no intramural athletics until Friday due to the Duke track meet this afternoon and baseball games with Davidson on the following two days.

Frosh Baseball

The Carolina-State yearling nine contest was called off yesterday due to wet grounds. The following men are to report at Emerson field at 1:15 sharp this afternoon to leave for Durham where they will play Durham High: Turbyville, Humphries, Parker, Burnette, Dalton, Bricklemyer, Boone, Grubb, Rogers, Coffey, Buccolo, Andrews, Dixon, Collins, Lloyd, LeGrande, Merrifield, Craver, Smart, Redfern, Turk, and Willard.

THRILLS IN STORE AS STARS COMPETE

Carolina Tracksters Meet Ancient Rivals on Emerson Field In Dual Meet at 3 O'clock.

The varsity track teams of Duke and Carolina reach the climax of their respective dual schedules here this afternoon when the two clash in their annual meet on Emerson field at 3 o'clock.

Both teams have well-balanced squads, and the meet is considered by many to be the most outstanding one to come to Chapel Hill within the last decade. A return meet between the freshman squads will supplement the varsity encounter.

While Carolina was administering a humiliating 95 1-6 to 30 5-6 defeat to Virginia Saturday, the Blue Devil tracksters were swamping the Washington and Lee Generals by a 97-29 count at Durham.

A Natural

These two wins marked the two as the oustanding bidders for Southern Conference supremacy, and from all indications the Fetzer-Ranson coached crew will have to step mighty lively to keep its record unmarred.

William and Mary, the only common foe, lost to Duke, 71-54, and to Carolina, 76-49. "Monk" Little, the Williamsburg celebrity, captured four firsts in both meets.

The fact that W. & M. accounted for but five points more against Duke than against Carolina is indicative of the even battle that the two should wage this afternoon. In the indoor meet, U. N. C. registered 45½ to Duke's 27.

STATE STUDENTS TO HOLD MEETING

Pool and Barnes to Represent University at North Carolina Student Federation.

The North Carolina Federation of Students will begin its annual convention in Raleigh Friday, with headquarters located in the Sir Walter Hotel. The program will last through Sunday noon.

The convention will be formally opened Friday afternoon by President Kenneth Gordon of the Duke graduate school. Delegates will then be welcomed by Catherine Moseley, president of student government at Meredith, and Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus. Friday's program will be ended with a plenary session at 3:30 in the Manteo room.

Pool to Lead Discussion

Saturday's sessions will consist mainly of open forum discussions and addresses by prominent men. Margaret McClean of Salem College will lead a discussion group on "Special Problems in Women's Colleges," and Jack Pool of the University of North Carolina will be the leader of the discussion, "Special Problems in Men's Colleges."

Delegates will hear addresses by Dr. R. H. McDonald, member of the State Assembly; Dr. C. E. Brewer, president of Meredith College, and Professor Albert Coates of the University of North Carolina. During the afternoon members will go on a tour to places of interest in Raleigh.

The final plenary session will be held at 5:30, and new officers will be elected at that time. The newly-elected officers will be installed during a formal banquet to be held at 8:15 in the Virginia Dare ballroom. The conference will be ended after church on Sunday morning.

The University will be represented at the State Federation of Students by Pool, Harper Barnes, and one other not yet elected. The Woman's Association will send as delegates Jane Ross and Betty Durham.

with Duke came the same day as the Penn relay events, and Carolina was confident enough in regards to the outcome to send its outstanding star to Philadelphia, but this year the powers arranged a different date. The great 1934 freshman team at Duke was to be considered when it came time for the 1935 squabble.

Duke has not forgotten the 76 2-3 to 49 1-3 reverse of last season—in addition to the fact that it didn't garner any too much of the spoils in the indoor meet. They will be ready, and this time they are set to make a serious bid.

match with Boston College, Pijanowski shot a par 70 and copped low honors.

The first of the doubles matches brought together the combination of Laxton and Harris, who beat the Davidson pair, of Ross and Cowan 2½-½. The final doubles match of the afternoon saw Snow and Hamrick teamed together over Coffin and Pijanowski. The Wildcat pair concluded the meet by beating their opponents by a 2½-½ count.

House Advocates High Standards

"The value of a college will be illustrated in your conduct," Dean Robert B. House told freshmen yesterday at assembly. He spoke of the difficulty of getting high standards in their lives, and he urged them to change their habits when reason showed them to be wrong.

Discussing the difficulty in changing habits, he referred to an auto accident caused by speeding that he witnessed recently. The witnesses did not profit by what they saw but continued to drive fast and recklessly.

He urged them to follow up the stimulus given by the speakers on the Human Relations Institute. He also expressed himself in favor of anti-war conferences.

Dean Bradshaw read a list of 10 questions frequently asked by men who wish to employ college graduates. They are:

(1) How does the student's appearance impress you?

(2) What is his attitude toward the interviewer?

(3) How intelligent is he?

(4) Does he appear to have good health?

(5) Is he keenly analytic? Does he get to the roots of things promptly?

(6) What impression does he give as to character and integrity?

(7) Is he well-informed in his field of specialization?

(8) Does he give evidence of initiative?

(9) Has he a good command of language?

(10) Is he decisive? Does he know his own mind?

by the Editor

COMRADE CLARK The self-styled protectors of our youth, like Bro. Davey Clark and his North Carolina Hearstians, are really the most puzzling individuals we know of.

Bro. Clark, we understand, sent his corps of stenographers down for the Human Relations Institute and when Davey's report was written, on the stenographers' one-track say-so, the institute was denounced in strong terms as about the reddest and most radical thing in existence.

Well, I was on the institute committee and the leftists here blew up quite a storm about the program being over-balanced by conservatism. I didn't think so at the time and still think the program was well-balanced. But the moral is not in my opinion; whatever moral there is is that Davey Clark is as much a menace in his shouting as Bill Hearst. Any man who can't tell the difference between destructive radicalism and inquisitive liberalism should not be allowed to spread his ignorance, for his own sake.

BRAIN WORK The Association of College Editors, to which we belong, is vigorously sponsoring a new plan to stimulate undergraduate thought and discussion. Groups will be organized, according to the plan, on the various campuses, called The Hall. Conservatives and Liberals will band together and have a little fun.

We heard about the ACE plan on the same day the Di and Phi decided to get together in an efficient co-operative movement. It tickled us to think that these ancient orders of ours were not one finger out in the cold.

The old Whig and Cliosophic Societies at Princeton adopted The Hall plan, combining much as the Di and the Phi are planning to do, incidentally.

GREEK BRICKS Back in 1929 the University encouraged the local fraternities to build, and build big. There was an overflow from the dormitories, the college was growing important, and President Chase wasn't a man to quibble over a four-story lodge.

So the Greeks built and built well. The dormitory problem was solved for the University and the fraternities had added "rushing lure" in the form of bricks and more bricks. Also a wad of nice, big mortgages, so that the houses had to be filled.

Now the University suggests —and has been suggesting— that freshmen must live in the dormitories. Reasons: economic and presumably for the green men's morals.

The University must not forget that it helped to build the big, brick houses which will be taken away from the fraternities if they are not filled—and partly with freshmen. An educational institution teaches more things than those from textbooks, and one of them is integrity. Practice makes a good preacher.

SCOUT JAMBOREE STARTS PROGRAM HERE TOMORROW

Scouts Will Be Welcomed at Giant Camp Fire Tomorrow Night.

EHRINGHAUS WILL SPEAK

With many special features included in a varied program, the annual Boy Scout Jamboree will get underway tomorrow.

The arriving scouts will be welcomed at a giant opening camp fire held at 8:30 p. m., at which time Dr. Graham will speak.

Friday Events

The events scheduled for Friday include various campcraft events by individual scouts and demonstration events by patrols. During the afternoon the visiting scouts will be taken on a tour of the University, conducted by University organizations. Open house will also be held by various University departments during this period.

The feature of the Friday evening program will be the fire lighting ceremony to be furnished by Alpha Phi Omega, University scouting fraternity.

Exhibit of Uniforms

An exhibit of scout uniforms of the world; a dozen different forms of camp cookery; 11 types of camps are some of the demonstrations to be held Saturday.

The high light of the jamboree will be Saturday evening with addresses by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive.

Camp church, with Rev. Donald H. Stewart, pastor of the University Presbyterian church officiating, will be held at 8:00 o'clock Sunday morning, after which the visiting scouts will be dismissed and camp will be broken.

DI DEBATES BILL CENSURING PAPER

Six Senators Hold Out for Further Knowledge Against Three Daily Tar Heel Foes.

Great folly was almost committed on the floor of the Di Senate last night, in the opinion of six articulate senators, when that august body almost came, without sufficient information, to a vote on Senator Bob Williams' motion that the DAILY TAR HEEL be condemned for its policy of refusing to print news of a certain campus organization, without a doubt the Di Senate.

While Senator McKee, who is an assistant editor of this newspaper, slumped in disgust in his critic's chair, Senators Weaver, Williams, and Gibbes argued long and earnestly in favor of the action.

Faithful Six

In favor of waiting to act until information given out by Senators McKee and Hudson as to the policy of the paper in regard to printing Di Senate news could be confirmed and supplemented, were Senators Verner, Howard, Yeatman, Kendrick, McKee, and Hudson.

The latter group finally won its way, with the result that the bill was tabled for discussion at the next meeting. It was also passed on to the Phi Assembly for discussion and voting, in accordance with the new plan of bi-cameral action of the two bodies.

"Y" Teams Start Visits Tomorrow, Monday

Groups to Visit Raleigh; to Stay Four Days in Rocky Mount.

Deputation teams to Rocky Mount and Raleigh will be sent out tomorrow and Monday, respectively, according to Harry Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The Rocky Mount visit will last four days, while the trip to Raleigh is a one-day set-up.

Comer will lead the Rocky Mount team with Lawrence Fountain and Bob Magill as speakers. Raymond Brietz and Bonner Hasty are accompanying the group as soloist and guitarist. A full program will include the Civitan and Rotary clubs, six schools, Hi-Y clubs and public welfare organizations. Programs at Sunday schools and Union church service will be conducted Sunday morning, the group returning that afternoon.

The deputation team to Raleigh is being led by Lee Greer who will have Francis Fairley and Bill Yandell with him as speakers. Music will be furnished by a quartette from State College. The program takes in five high schools and a Kiwanis club luncheon.

PLAYERS TO GIVE ORIGINAL DRAMAS

Selden Will Choose for Production Six to Nine Best Plays Of 11 Now in Rehearsal.

The next public production of the Playmakers will be given April 25-27, and will consist of from six to nine best plays out of the 11 original ones now being rehearsed and directed by members of Professor Sam Selden's class in directing.

Included in the 11 plays under consideration are four comedies, five tragedies, a melodrama of a newspaper office, and a Russian drama of the 15th century.

The Comedies:

The comedies now being rehearsed are: "Clam Digger," a comedy of Maine fisher folk by Jean Ashe of Pittsfield, Mass.; "C'aline," comedy of an old woman who finds luxury in a poor house, by Mrs. Kelly Harris of Seaboard, and present director of the Seaboard Players; "Goldie," a comedy of a Negro Saturday night, by Wilbur Dorsett, and "Spare Ribs," a comedy of sailor lads, by Don Pope.

In the tragedy group are: "Pretty Plump Angel," a tragedy of adolescence, by Cecilia Allen, former Playmaker; "New Anarchy," a tragedy of the banking crisis, by Philip Parker; "Hunger," a tragedy of farm folk, by Ella Mae Daniel; "New Nigger," a tragedy of Negro dissatisfaction, by Fred Howard, and "The Devil's Tramping Ground," a tragedy of miscegenation and witchcraft, by Sara Seawell.

Drama and Melodrama

The remaining two plays now being rehearsed are "Back Page," a newspaper melodrama by Don Shoemaker, and "Metropolitan Feodor," a Russian drama of the 15th century by Philip Parker.

New Carolina plays are offered each year by the Playmaker group.

The best of the plays will be chosen by experimental productions and then be presented to the public. Admission to the public performances will be by season ticket.

POOL DISTRIBUTES COMMITTEE JOBS

Willingham, Weaver Are New Appointees to Student Advisory Committee.

Frank Willingham of Winston-Salem, outgoing president of the University Club, and Fred Weaver, newly-elected treasurer of the junior class, were appointed by Rufus Adolphus "Jack" Pool, "unofficial president of the student body," as new members of the Student Advisory Committee yesterday afternoon.

The new men will begin their duties snooping around the service plants and making suggestions to the administration immediately. With them will be Phil Hammer, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, who will act as hold-over member of the committee next year.

Recommended Choices

Pool's appointees were the recommended choices of the outgoing committee, composed of Hammer, Francis Fairley, and J. D. Winslow. Fairley has been graduated to the office of student assistant at the business office and Winslow, ex-Y. M. C. A. president, will be graduated from the University this spring.

The committee will occupy much time within the next few weeks with the recommendations included in the report of the outgoing committee. Many of these recommendations have been adopted and acted upon by the University administration already.

Members of the group received an analysis of student fees late yesterday from Fairley and will direct considerable attention to this study in addition to the other projects.

BUS HEARING GETS UNDERWAY TODAY

Bus Carrying Interested Students Leaves at 9:00.

Transportation for those students who are attending the bus hearing in Raleigh at 10 o'clock this morning is being furnished by the Atlantic Greyhound Lines.

The deputation, including eight or nine University Club members, is being led by DeWitt Carroll. Jack Pool will accompany the group to speak at the hearing for the student body.

The bus will leave from Graham Memorial at 9 o'clock, with room for 25 students. At present only nine have signed up. All who are interested are urgently requested to join the team.

TAU BETES HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

Allison Named President of Honorary Engineering Society.

At a meeting held last night in Phillips hall, the local chapter of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, elected the following officers for next year: Henry Allison, president; Tom Gordy, vice-president; Angus Davis, recording secretary; Robert Neel, corresponding secretary; Ernest Eutsler, treasurer; and Selby Harny, cataloguer.

Henry Allison, newly elected president, was appointed a delegate to the national convention of Tau Beta Pi to be held in Lansing, Mich., next fall.

Among other business, plans were completed for a banquet to be given at the Carolina Inn May 10. The banquet will be held preceding Junior-Seniors.

Quarter Or Semester

Sammie Semester and Quincy Quarter Engage in a Little Juvenile Debate on the Relative Merits of the Two Systems.

SAMMIE SAYS:

I believe in studies in broad fields and the semester system will allow a more thorough integration of allied studies.

There will be more time for thought and study and reading with fewer classes in each subject every week.

I like my teachers and the semester system will give me more time to get close to them.

There will be fewer exams, fewer grading periods, and fewer registrations, all of which are points in favor of this system.

I believe, contrary to the quarter systemites, that the holidays will be more fun under the semester system. At least, we can get down to work after returning, instead of putting things off for a few months as we usually do after the vacation.

There will be adequate time for laboratory work and research. Also, I never was much at learning a language in 2½ months.

Some of my friends who are flunking out up north cannot transfer to the University now because they lose credits when they switch from the semester system to the quarter system. I'd like to see them get a better break in coming here.

Textbooks would be easier to procure second-hand, because there will be fewer courses and less variety.

I like the idea of taking more subjects at less frequent intervals. It does away with much of the routine of every-day study of the same subjects.

QUINCY SAYS:

My name is Quincy and I want the quarter system here. Here are my reasons:

When I'm home for the holidays, I have no worries about coming back to hit examinations.

Not only that, but the holidays would upset the whole schedule if they came in the middle of a semester study.

If I flunk out of school, I won't lose as much credit if we are working on the quarter system as in the semester system. In other words, I can stay out a quarter and get back in without losing much more than one-third of the year's work.

There is greater flexibility in the quarter system, allowing more frequent and more extensive choices of subjects.

The quarter system means greater concentration of work and less time wasted in the classroom.

The quarter system allows for more chance in making up lost courses, because more are offered in the same time at school.

I think that the variety of new courses at the end of every few months means more interest on the part of the students.

Textbooks should be easily procured because the turnover on second-hand books would be greater in the quarter system.

I haven't said much, but the University has kept the quarter system in the face of other changes and it must be good to stay where it is.

CAMPUS LEADERS DISCUSS CHANGES IN Y.M.C.A. WORK

Rankin Claims That Cabinets Are Losing Members Due to Lack of Interest in Work.

FACULTY DAY IS ARGUED

Suggestions on improving the Y. M. C. A. were presented to the new officers of the association by a small group of student leaders last night at a special meeting called specifically to discuss the work of the "Y" on the campus.

Presiding over the session was Billy F. Yandell, newly-elected head of the organization, who stated by way of introduction that he had called the meeting "to get a cross section of the campus views on how to improve the 'Y.'"

Frat Participation

Albert Ellis' suggestion that "the Y. M. C. A. ought to build its program around Student Faculty Day," started discussion as to how fraternities could encourage non-frat men to take part in the visiting program of the holiday.

Newly-elected Secretary of the "Y" George MacFarland suggested that the period for students and faculty to visit the fraternities be the evening before Student Faculty Day, in order to prevent cramming every feature of the exposition into one day.

Lack of Interest

"The chief disadvantage the 'Y' has to contend with is that the cabinets are losing their members due to lack of interest," declared Claude Rankin, editor of the Yackety Yack for next year. "I believe the lack of interest is due to the fact that the work of the 'Y' is not proportioned evenly over the year. I think we could improve the or-

PHI FLARES OVER 'UNGODLY' CHANGE

Assembly Condemns Proposed Reorganization of Hours, but McMullan Stands Pat.

Campus opinion flared white-hot against one of the administration's newest ideas, the 8 o'clock class period, at the meeting last night of a rejuvenated Phi Assembly.

Condemned by five assemblymen, the bill was assailed thus by Drew Martin, opposition leader: "A relapse in brain and mind will be the result of this ungodly bill."

Sleepy Head

Bass Singer James Dees told the Assembly that "I had just as soon get my sleep." Speaker Albert Ellis added his opinion that he was heartily and directly opposed to an 8 o'clock class.

Billy Seawell asked consideration for the commuting students. Harry McMullan, lone supporter of the semi-daylight saving proposal, praised the bill as a "blessing to the University."

Di to Hear Bill

After the bill was mashed by a 28 to 4 majority, it was designated "Phi bill number one," and will be introduced at the next meeting of the Di Senate.

A bill extending honorary membership to all co-eds who attend two consecutive meetings was introduced by ex-Speaker Robert Smithwick and passed unanimously. Six co-eds were present at last night's session.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, KAHN; NIGHT, GILMORE

WE WANT IT WRITTEN

Many students have asked us why we want a written constitution for this campus, why we cannot work efficiently on the good old English precedent basis. Disregarding the obvious fact that nobody has any records of any precedents that lasted more than a year and that if there were records of the precedents, nobody would know how to interpret them, we'll give you a few recent examples of our student government without rule, without code, without delegated authority.

Last winter the Publications Union Board boys, two of them, desired faculty rotation on the board and the abolition of the permanent office of treasurer, held by a faculty member who was commonly dubbed "King Lear." The latter was a tremendously efficient gentleman, but the boys wanted control of the students' publications.

Where to turn? The Student Council didn't know anything about the situation and "figured as how they didn't have authority anyway." The administration, acting fairly, said it was a student matter. The Student Activities Committee (defunct but maybe only in hibernation) handed down its verdict, but made it very, very clear after a 4½-hour session that the opinion was only advisory. But President Graham took the advisory opinion and the boys won the fight, after exactly 63 days of trying.

Then take the Buccaneer episode. The Student Council abolished the magazine on June 11, reversed itself on September 19, then made a mess of things by appointing censors when, according to precedent or something, it wasn't its duty, then found out after creating a new magazine that it couldn't do so, and finally wearily extricated itself by some remarkably hit-and-miss methods.

Then take the case of the ineligible boxers (or were they ineligible?). A faculty committee huffed around first, then the Student Council stepped in and un-huffed things, and then the administration jumped in and started the huff all over again. Finally, after the boxers (they were involved, too) had been declared ineligible until things cleared up, the mixed-up council absolved them, except one, who was put on conduct probation because of a breach of honor, which is laughable even to novices such as ourselves.

What good will the written code do?

Simple. It will delegate authority in certain instances, and in delegating it be flexible enough to allow for some exercise of judgment on the part of the Student Council, giving them the benefit of the doubt.

In other words, if the Student Council has no power over editorial policy of the publications, who does? The code will tell you. If the Student Council tries cases of honor, where does the administration of the University come in? The code will tell you. If the Dean of Administration suspends a student, can the Student Council step in or not? The code will tell you.

Since we began agitation in our quaint and simple way some months ago, we have received several drafts of proposed constitutions, with lengthy allowance for a judicial department, a legislative branch, and an executive authority, with all sorts of committees and courts and robes and gavels and braid. But these are not what we want.

We want a simple few paragraphs, so simple that even the greenest freshman and the most sleepy senior could read it and understand. We want the new student administration to start immediately about this work. The DAILY TAR HEEL will be thoroughly behind all efforts in this direction.

FOR AND AGAINST

On the front page of this issue are presented a few arguments for and against the semester system. Tomorrow we'll similarly treat the class-hour proposal.

We hope that the straw-vote which we will conduct next week will bring in some constructive results of student thought on the matter. Student opinion on these matters ought to count heavily in deciding their adoption or rejection and the DAILY TAR HEEL stands to reflect this opinion as best it can.

There are other arguments, but we leave them up to you.

SPLASHES

By BOB PAGE

There may be times when the readers of this paper will wonder what kind of a column this is. There are bound to be times when the writer himself will wonder the same thing. As a starting point to embark upon this strange field, however, we have decided to elaborate upon a topic of general campus interest—the social activities for the remainder of this quarter.

The freshman class and the Grail started the spring season out a couple of weeks ago in the Tin Can with Billy Knauff and Bill Allsbrook. We don't know whether it was a result of the freshman dance, but the sophomores called off their proposed hop immediately following the affair.

But nothing daunted by this turn of affairs, their big brothers, the juniors and seniors, are going ahead rapidly with plans for another big upperclass blowout in the Tin Can May 10-11. Rufus Adolphus Pool can be seen scurrying about on the campus any afternoon hatching his dark schemes to make Junior-Seniors a success.

They almost struck a snag right off the bat when they found practically every prominent orchestra tied up with long contracts, which they refused to break. Luck finally came the way of the dance committee and they have secured Barney Rapp and his New Englanders to carry on for the prom-trotters. Pool just wandered in the office a few minutes ago, mumbled something about a cotillion for the Saturday night dance, and then sneaked out the door.

A week before this class celebration comes the annual May Frolics. We haven't been able to find out much about these festivities except that Irvin Aaronson and his boys, who have been featured at the famous Paradise restaurant in New York City, have been signed on the dotted line to furnish the music.

The week-end following Junior-Seniors, May 17-18, the co-eds (bless their hearts) will throw their quarterly shuffle that Friday evening. Take a tip and start making some time at home now, because this affair is going to be as good as usual.

The Order of the Grail will follow up Saturday evening with their second and final dance of the quarter and of the current year. Both these functions are scheduled for the Tin Can but the orchestras have not been signed as yet.

Last but certainly not least we have the German Club Finals June 7-8. It looked for a while as if they would wait until after commencement to have these in order to get Hal Kemp for the entire set, but complications arose as usual and they have been sandwiched in between exams and commencement. Now it's Kemp for the Friday dances and Ozzie Nelson for the Saturday dances. There may be another for Thursday night, but we'll let you know about that later. Regardless, Kemp's name marks this set as oustanding.

Vague rumors have floated in that our so-called brothers at State have Casa Loma and Red Nichols under their wings for their Finals the same week-end.

We just looked back over this resume and noticed that we skipped the week-end of May 24-25. We can't find anything listed for that time. Wait a moment. That's the week-end before the week-end before final exams. No wonder. We'll take our leave on that.

The lecture was one of an annual series of talks sponsored by the local chapter of Sigma Xi, honorary engineering research fraternity.

Infirmary

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Robert Van Sleen, John McInnis, E. M. Edens, M. P. Cummings, Allen Knott, A. Greenberg, Mrs. Harry Moore, J. D. Winslow, A. K. McAnally, W. T. McGowan, Melvin Ward, F. S. McArthur, and Francis Hulme.

REGRETS

The editor regrets that three most interesting letters to this newspaper could not be run this morning due to an excess of advertising. They will be duly carried in tomorrow's edition of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

It will be our policy to run as many open forum letters as space permits.

TAR HEEL CAPTAIN MAY NOT APPEAR IN TODAY'S GAME

McCarn Expected to Return; Crouch to Start on Mound; Tatum May Catch.

GAMES WILL START AT 4

Carolina's baseball team may be without the services of Captain Thurman Vick this afternoon when it opens its two-game series against Davidson on Emerson field. Both the games today and tomorrow will start at 4 o'clock.

Vick injured his finger while taking infield practice yesterday at his new third base position. In addition to the Tar Heel captain, Gus McIver, veteran outfielder, and Buck McCarn, sophomore first baseman, are also on the casualty list.

McCarn Returns

McCarn is expected to return to his old position at first today and to make his first home appearance, while it is not certain yet whether McIver will be ready to play or not.

Coach Bunn Hearn announced last night that his star pitcher, Freddie Crouch, would return to the mound for the battle. Crouch has had a week's rest and his arm is ready to try a revenge act against the Wildcats.

The 'Cats beat Crouch in his first start of the year, 4-3, after 11 innings. Crouch will likely be opposed by Charlie Harris, the same boy who bested him in the extra-frame opener.

Tatum May Catch

With McCarn back at first,

FRESHMAN GOLF

The freshman golf team yesterday lost to the Duke freshmen at the Hope Valley course by a score of 17½-½.

The Duke men had little trouble in downing the Tar Babies, most of them playing methodical golf throughout. They lived up to their enviable reputation which places them above the varsity.

TAR HEELS TAKE FURMAN IN GOLF

Win Proves Carolina Teemen Can Win on Opponent's Links As Well as at Home.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Greenville, S. C., April 23.—Continuing their march to Georgia, the varsity golf team turned aside Furman here today, 14½-3½.

This afternoon's victory proved that the team could beat opponents on their home course as well as on visiting links.

Erwin Laxton once again copped low honors with a well-played 72. Today's card for the Tar Heel ace was but one stroke more than the one over par score he turned in yesterday.

The day's matches began with Laxton taking Francis Dawes, leader of the Furman team, into camp by a 3-0 score.

In the second match between Dick Harris and Dave Ferguson, the Furman man got his revenge for the 3-0 beating handed him by Harris last week, and turned the tables to beat Harris, 2-1.

Coffin Wins

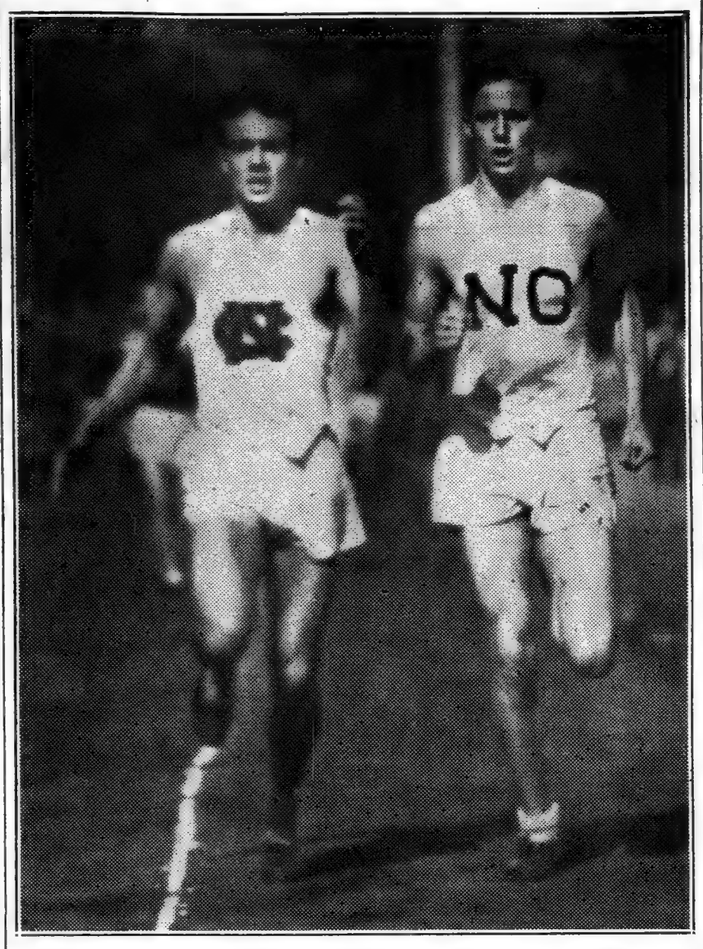
Wilson Coffin seemed to find his regular game and easily beat Walton Smith, 3-0. The singles matches ended up with Walter Pijanowski gaining a 2-1 win over Bently Hines.

Carolina's two lead-off men combined their cards, and won the first of the doubles matches, 2½-½, over the best ball card of Dawes and Ferguson.

The second doubles match was easily won by the combination of Coffin and Pijanowski, who blanked the opposing pair of Smith and Hines, 3-0.

Freshman Nine Raps Durham by 15-6 Count

The frosh finally won a ball game yesterday, taking Durham High into camp, 15-6. The scrubs got their first chance to show just what they could do and they played heads-up ball.



The only loss suffered by Carolina during the afternoon came when "Dynamite" Dixon, the candy kid himself, failed to get a bingle in his last appearance at the plate, and thus lost a wager of two ice cream cones to Coach Wright.

Collins and Merrifield slugged hard for the Tar Babies, while Lougee, Parrish, and Morris led the Durham youngsters at the plate.

STELLAR MILERS

The above photo shows Ed Waldrop and Dick Gabori breasting the tape to tie for first place in the mile run against Duke yesterday. Waldrop pulled an iron man stunt by also winning the two-mile event.

These two men will represent Carolina in the Penn Relays at Philadelphia Saturday.

U.N.C. HAS TENNIS WIN OVER BOSTON

Carolina Team Chalks Up Ninth Victory with 6-0 Score.

The ninth victory was dropped into the tennis team's victory bag yesterday afternoon as the Tar Heels easily defeated Boston College by a 6-0 score.

Ricky Willis played first singles for the varsity and although the scores were rather close with Monte Rynne, he was never really in danger of defeat. Ricky won at 8-6, 6-3.

Opponents Get Four

Only four solitary games were garnered by the visitors in the following three singles. Harvey Harris dropped one to Jim Droney, 6-0, 6-1, and Frank Shore relinquished three to John Kaumjian, 6-1, 6-2.

Archie Henderson, the Pinehurst boy, limited Herb Crowley to a minimum of points in a shutout victory, 6-0, 6-0.

The Levitan-Willis and Grier-Shore teams won the doubles.

The varsity meets Davidson this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

DUKE OVERCOMES FROSH TRACKMEN

Yearlings Drop Meet to Imps as Lewis and Fischer Star.

Duke's freshman tracksters made it number two over the Carolina yearlings here yesterday afternoon, but by the less humiliating count of 76-50.

"Windy" Rowley turned in two fine performances, taking the mile victory by a brilliant finishing spurt, and placing second to Carlton White in the 880-yard run.

Lewis Flashes

Larry Lewis repeated his dangerous work against Carolina in the sprints tying with Ullman for the win in the century and stepping far out in front to capture the 220.

Charlie Fischer won the shot put with a distance of 45 feet, 2 7-8 inches. The throw was only nine inches short of Evin's varsity triumph.

"Red" Hendricks equaled the varsity mark and broke the freshman record as he took the pole vault with a leap of 12 feet.

CO-CAPTAIN WINS TWICE IN VICTORY

Charlie Hubbard, Other Co-Captain, Waldrop, Williamson, Evins Also Stand Out.

DUKE TAKES EARLY LEAD

Carolina's Flying Phantoms pulled through to win over Duke University's track team yesterday afternoon by the score of 73-53, after the Durham neighbors had piled up a 39-24 lead at one point in the meet.

To Co-Captains Tom Hawthorne and Charlie Hubbard went the laurels for outstanding performances. Hawthorne, speedy hurdler, showed his heels in both the highs and the lows, and equaled the University and Emerson stadium records in both runs.

Hubbard Jumps

Hubbard, too, played a stellar role. With the score 51-49 in favor of Duke, the husky star took only one jump in the broads, but that was enough. The Duke jumpers could not match the leap and Carolina went into the lead when Floyd Higby grabbed a second.

Carolina's two great runners, Harry Williamson and Ed Waldrop, were also double winners along with Hawthorne. Williamson, premier middle-distance star of the south, captured both Coach Hearn is not quite sure what to do with Big Jim Tatum. Tatum caught the only game in which McCarn played first and Strayhorn has done the backstopping since, while Tatum has been filling in at first. Both boys are capable receivers and either may catch today.

With a chance that Vick and McIver both will be absent from the outfield, Tatum might be shifted to one of the gardens. Ed Voliva, who has been doing some heavy hitting so far, is certain of one outfield post, while Lefty Groome and Eddie Shapiro are other likely players.

Bullard at Third

Ed Bullard, rookie, will be back at third while the usual fast keystone combination of Tommy Irwin, short, and Trip Rand, second, will complete the Tar Heel lineup.

Having no better than a .500 average so far, the Tar Heels need to win both tilts over Davidson if they expect to remain in the race for the Big Five championship.

Besides Pitcher Harris, Davidson will line up with Lofton, shortstop; Rogers, centerfield; Mackorell, third base; Morgan, leftfield; Bumgarner, second base; Dickson, rightfield; Burns, first base, and Ravenel, catcher.

OFFICIAL JURISDICTION An important member of the faculty yesterday told his class that the written constitution idea is contrary to the principles of our free and liberal student government.

Our student government is supposed to be one of these "of, by, and for" governments and we pride ourselves on the fact. But if nobody knows where the authority rests, whether students or faculty members or administrative officers hold the reins, this fact is of little value.

There is confusion as to where one power ends and another begins. "Of, by, and for" becomes "Here, there, and everywhere." If we realize that our student government is and ought to be limited in a certain sense by the administration, then a clear definition of the limitation would tend to increase our efficiency of control in the certain spheres of student authority.

A BUSY PRESIDENT The new president of the University Club will be chosen tonight. Frank Willingham is giving up a well-done and difficult job.

An organization such as this, built on spirit and thriving on self-sacrifice, needs a steady hand on the helm. And official duties are not the half of what is actually demanded of the leader.

The hard part about the office of incoming president of the University Club is that the new head has to be inoculated with large doses of "For-the-University" spirit as well as acclimated to a thousand details. We hope a strong man of popular ability is selected.

AMERICAN LIBERTY Winthrop Durfee, platform performer and a man of ideas, is stirring up some of the conservative thought on the campus in order to organize it. He, with Republican DuPont Snowden, is planning to form a local chapter, as it were, of the American Liberty League, pledged to the right and aggressively conservative.

Organization and conservatism is rare in most youthful circles. When there's crusading to do and the tang and keenness of bucking the status quo hits a college man, it's not difficult to get him to join up in a movement to express his opinions against the existing order. There is a certain sense of accomplishment in standing up for a new deal that most youth can't resist.

But usually defending the old order offers none of the thrill or the excitement. Students are either mildly interested, completely oblivious, or enthusiastically for reform.

Within the last few months, however, the conservatives have found excitement a-plenty. If this campus is as conservative as evidence shows it is, the American Liberty League might go places in Chapel Hill.

That is, if the weather doesn't get any warmer.

BOY SCOUTS BEGIN JAMBOREE TODAY; GRAHAM SPEAKS

Chapel Hill Prepared to Welcome 1500 Scouts in Twenty-fifth Anniversary Celebration.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK HERE

Some 1,500 Boy Scouts will arrive in Chapel Hill today to open the annual Boy Scout Jubilee and 25th anniversary of Scouting to be held in Kenan stadium. The opening event will take place tonight at a camp fire meeting at which President Frank P. Graham will be the principal speaker, with Camp Chief W. C. Wessel presiding.

The program tomorrow will include demonstrations by individual Scouts and patrols, practice drills, a tour of the University and another camp fire program at night.

Governor Ehringhaus

The chief event of the Jubilee will take place Saturday night at 7 o'clock in Kenan stadium, at which time Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Dean R. B. House and Scout Executive James E. West will speak.

The Jubilee will close at 8 o'clock Sunday morning with a camp church service conducted by Rev. D. H. Stewart of the Presbyterian church.

This encampment is being held in celebration of the 25th anniversary of Scouting. Prof. H. D. Meyer, educational director for the southern region and program chairman, has had the cooperation of state, national and regional executives in arranging the Jubilee, and one of the largest state meetings of Scouts on record is expected.

DeWOLF HOPPER UNABLE TO COME

70-Year-Old Actor Will Not Give "Mikado" in May.

DeWolf Hopper, famed 70-year-old actor, has written Dr. J. P. Harland, head of the Student Entertainment Committee, that he feels unable to make the trip here to produce the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "Mikado," which was to be produced Wednesday, May 1.

He added that he hopes to bring the DeWolf Hopper Comic Opera Company here sometime next year.

Harland stated that several agencies have already been consulted in an attempt to secure a satisfactory substitute for Hopper, to appear here early in May. He hopes to obtain a popular New York star, but no definite arrangements have been made.

SWIMMING, LIFE-SAVING COURSES WILL BE HELD

Carolina students will have an opportunity to take swimming and life-saving instruction in the Duke University pool May 1-4 inclusive. Courses in these subjects will be given by the North Carolina Examiners' Corps and sponsored by the local Red Cross.

The Corps will offer an examiners' course conducted by Raymon Eaton. Senior lifesavers 20 years old or over who wish to take a review are eligible to take the course.

Lee Greer and Ellis Fysal are the advisers. Officers include Co-Captains John Brabson and Bob Williams and Secretary Tom Humphries.

"Absolute Bunk"

That's what Dean A. W. Hobbs (above) of the school of liberal arts called the Daily Tar Heel's proposal for class-extension at a meeting of the liberal arts school yesterday.

HOBBS SAYS PLAN 'ABSOLUTE BUNK'

Liberal Arts Dean Offers Opposition to Class Extension Idea Before His Freshmen.

The first public opposition to the proposed class-extension plan of this newspaper was uttered yesterday as Dean A. W. Hobbs of the school of liberal arts defined the proposal as "absolute bunk."

Speaking to students of his school, Dean Hobbs rambled into the discussion of the new idea from an exposition of the new curriculum. The ex-Guilford baseball star left the impression that the plan would lead students astray from the basic foundations of educational curricula.

The Sawdust Trail

Class-extension, Dean Hobbs believes, would lead to the adoption of a chautauqua plan of education, with Billy Sunday in every classroom. At least, students who heard the dean opined that his attitude was to be so interpreted.

Dean Hobbs' stand is not unlike the opinion of several other

Do You Want 8 O'clock Classes?

Interviewer Questions 28 Students; 14 Favor Present Class Hours, 12 Want Earlier Classes, Two are Satisfied; Co-eds Consider Four Morning Classes Sufficient.

What do you think of having 8 o'clock classes next year? Do you think the quarter system should be scrapped in favor of the semester plan?

Fourteen out of 28 representative students opposed any change in the class hour, 12 favored beginning the school day at eight while two were so indifferent as to have no opinion.

Said Phi Assemblyman Billy Seawell, "I am against 8 o'clock classes, because they handicap self-help students who have early morning jobs."

In view of the fact that the student will have to rise earlier and will still continue to go to bed late, Debater Durfee and Ex-Editor Pete Ivey objected on a possibility that the health of the early risers might be impaired.

Durfee even went so far as to say, "It will mean that the co-eds will have to eat more carrots or use more lipstick to keep their beauty."

The two co-eds who were interviewed, Mary Pride Cruickshank and Frances Caffey, agreed on the question but did not give the same reason. They simply think that four class periods in the morning are enough.

Speaking for those who live at a distance from the campus, Archie Henderson, Jr., objected on the grounds that "those who have a long way to walk will have difficulty in getting breakfast early enough to make class on time."

Representing the other side, Agnew Bahnson said, pulling his bicycle up to the curb for a second, "It's a good idea to have 8 o'clock classes. It is all a matter of forming the habit of waking a half an hour earlier. Besides, the elimination of chapel period will mean a better utilization of the morning hours."

J. D. Winslow is also in favor of the change "because it will result in less congestion and overcrowding of class rooms."

Practically everyone approached, expressed the hope that the quarter system will not be abolished. Only three out of 26 were in favor of the semester plan. Two assumed an indifferent attitude.

The chief reasons given for a continuation of the present system were that it allows one to enjoy holidays free from annoying thoughts of examinations, concentrates study, and allows frequent change and greater variety of courses.

Those who wanted a change to the semester system were Archie Henderson, President McKinnon of Ruffin and Bill Lamm, pride and joy of Wilson and Phi Gam. They thought extended study such as the semester plan would give one a more thorough mastery of each subject.

Students, Villagers Ask New Line As Action Begins In Bus Hearing

The long awaited hearing of the petition by the Atlantic Greyhound Bus Line to secure a franchise to operate service between Greensboro and Raleigh, via Chapel Hill, began in Raleigh yesterday, with about 10 students, several townspeople and faculty members present.

Jack Pool, R. M. Grumman and Deans Bradshaw and Pierson presented the University's case, while Mayor Foushee spoke for the town of Chapel Hill. A crowd of over 100 persons, representing officials of both companies, lawyers and delegations from all along the line of the proposed route crowded into the chamber to observe and to give evidence.

The session is expected to last at least three more days and possibly longer, with hearings conducted both morning and afternoon. At the conclusion of yesterday's hearing, Stanley Winborne, chairman of the utilities commission, stated that the chances of the Atlantic Greyhound Company are fairly hopeful in spite of the stiff opposition being presented by high officials of the Carolina Bus Company.

Pool, in his testimony, emphasized that the Carolina coaches are not being used now because of their run-down condition. Many conventions in the state are being turned away from Chapel Hill because of poor transportation. Bradshaw and Grumman made statements showing that an average of 12 national conventions are turned away from Chapel Hill annually.

Greyhound President

Among the officials of the Greyhound Lines present were: A. M. Hill, president of the entire Greyhound system and chairman of the motor bus code authority, and J. L. Gilmer, vice-president of the company. Three students and several faculty members were entertained at a luncheon by officials of the Greyhound Line.

Points brought by members of other delegations were that the new line would connect practically all the major educational institutions in the state and would furnish one day service to Raleigh and return. Over 3,000 signatures were presented by the Greyhound delegations.

Fish At Own Risk

An effort to obtain daily weather reports for the DAILY TAR HEEL has been frustrated on several attempts.

It was planned to have nightly service from the Weather Bureau in Raleigh, but the Raleigh weatherites wait until the main office in Washington makes the forecast, the Washingtonians send it only through the Associated Press, and the Associated Press costs lots of money, so we have no weather report.

Furthermore, the service cannot be obtained from neighboring dailies who get the AP service because it's against the AP rules. Consequently, we apologize for not having the service and hope that the April showers are well prepared for by your own good judgment.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL WILL OPEN TODAY WITH EXHIBITIONS

Three-Day Program Features Scout Jubilee, Music, Plays, Indians, Demonstrations.

BALL GAME SATURDAY

The annual Dogwood Festival, which features the giant Boy Scout Jamboree, the Cherokee ball game, and a folk music program, will get under way early today, continuing through Sunday.

The arts and crafts exhibits will be open during the entire festival at three University centers: Graham Memorial, Peabody, and Hill Music hall. Featured at these exhibits will be oil paintings by contemporary artists, needlecraft, woodcarving, Indian craft, pottery, disabled veterans exhibits, and various displays by group exhibitors.

Folk Music

At 10:30 Saturday morning, the folk music program, under the direction of Richard Chase, will include ballad and hymn singers, square dancing, and the playing of ancient instruments, including the dulcimer.

The Cherokee ball game, described as the roughest game ever witnessed, has been set for 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. According to observers, the Cherokees have a game which "makes baseball look like tiddle-de-winks."

The Indians are making the trip from their 63,000-acre reservation adjoining the Great Smoky Mountains National Park to put on the exhibition here. The Indians will bring with them some of the wares which they so deftly manufacture by hand in the Smokies.

ORIGINALS SERIES TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Second and Third Bills of New Plays Written, Directed by Students Will Be Played.

The production of the second and third bills of new Carolina plays, written by students of Professor Koch's playwriting class and directed by members of Samuel Selden's class in directing, will begin tonight and last through Saturday night.

The plays on tonight's bill are: "Spare Ribs," a comedy of sailors by Don Pope, directed by Carl Thompson; "Hunger," a tragedy of Carolina farm folk by Ella Mae Daniel, directed by Patsy McMullan, and "Goldie," a comedy of a Negro Saturday night by Wilbur Dorsett, directed by Ralph Lyerly.

Tomorrow's Bill

Plays for tomorrow night include: "Metropolitan Feodor," a Russian drama of the 17th century by Philip Parker, directed by Frances McCraw; "Ca'line," a farce of life at the county home by Mrs. Kelly Harris, directed by Kenneth Bartlett, and "New Nigger," a Negro tragedy by Fred Howard, directed by Eloise Sheppard.

On Saturday night "New Nigger" and "Ca'line" will be repeated and "Back Page," a newspaper melodrama by Don Shoemaker, directed by Margaret Wallace will be presented.

In honor of out-of-town visitors to the Dogwood Festival, special prices are offered for the productions.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, SMITH; NIGHT, RABB

AIRING CLASS HOURS

Believing that what we have to say will mean more in the case of the class hours than in the semester system, we are going to present pros and cons in the former discussion in our editorial column rather than in a feature form as of yesterday concerning the latter discussion.

We are definitely opposed to a change in class hours and we will mention it even before the students express their opinions. However, below you will find both sides of the question.

Here are some advantages claimed by proponents of the change:

Decreased necessity for afternoon classes.
Decreased need for new classroom buildings.
Decreased trouble with schedule conflicts.
The provision of three "favored hours" instead of two.
Extra hour of preparation time for many students.
Less likelihood of four straight hours for students with four courses.
Better opportunity for appointments in the morning.

We appreciate the arguments set forth and grant that several of them have much worth and certainly warrant our consideration. Here are a few points against the change (we are not hard-shells):

Extreme bother and inconvenience caused to faculty members who have early classes and children in Chapel Hill schools.
Greatly increased cost and added inconvenience to Chapel Hill boarding houses which must serve early meals (we'll have figures on this in a few days).
Distastefulness of rising early during winter and late fall quarters, directly contrary to "leisurely process" idea of our educational system.
Abolition of a common get-together period at 10:30 in the morning, which will not only do away with a casual period of relaxation but also make faculty-student contacts extremely difficult and inconvenient.
The early rising may be unhealthy instead of healthy like the old axiom advises, because Carolina students don't and can't go to bed early and Carolina students won't hit breakfast as regularly as they do now (that sounds old-maidish but it's a fact).

For these reasons we are opposed to the change, but a recent poll of two dozen campus men shows that campus opinion is somewhat divided.

Incidentally, in a survey of members of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, in which about 100 schools were contacted, 65 institutions had classes beginning at 8 o'clock and 34 between 8 and 9 o'clock. So we're among the minority, from the looks of things.

WE GET LETTERS

We have received eight letters from departmental heads regarding the class-extension plan which we have set forth. Here's the way the opinions, in part, ran:

One: ". . . very valuable addition . . . provided it was strictly controlled."

Two: "There is danger in the plan in that some instructors will be tempted to transform their class lectures into popular ones."

Three: "I think it is excellent."

Four: "I think it will be a disaster to the University, to the state, to the students to adopt your plan."

Five: ". . . I am very much interested in the plan . . ."

Six: ". . . there would be danger that the University would move (insensibly or unintentionally) toward the chautauqua circuit idea."

Seven: "In view of the nature of (our) instruction . . . we cannot go beyond the second paragraph of our letter sent to you . . ." (There were only two paragraphs expressing interest but not approval.)

Eight: "I shall call the department together . . ."

The general consensus of opinion thus far seems to manifest considerable doubt of the feasibility of the plan.

Nevertheless, we are still strongly for it and will press the issue until some conclusion is reached. We hope that the faculty can agree after discussion to adopt the proposal.

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

By EARL W. WOLSLAGEL

Well, here we go . . . off on a non-stop flight of some 180 issues of this venerable ol' news sheet . . . that is, if we last that long and if you and I remain friends . . . mutually with Skipper Hammer, of course! . . . One morning each week, (so help me!), this column will attempt a feat that has never been accomplished in this paper . . . that of giving its readers a low-down on the ups and downs of the current motion pictures that will sooner . . . yep, mostly sooner . . . grace the silver canopy at the far end of E. C. (Everyday Cinema) Smith's playhouse on our own Great White Way.

. . . Every once in a while we're gonna get some news-copy and sidelights on the new radio broadcasts that will be coming out, with notes on the stars appearing on these programs, and if time and space permit, we will let you in on some of their secrets too.

. . . Sooo-o-o, as Ed Wynn would put it, we'll start off right here with a little inside stuff . . . under-cover work has been a life-long ambition of mine, and now I've got a good chance . . . the rumors have it that Hal Kemp, the favorite maestro of this campus, will become the proud father of twins within the fortnight . . . Watch out, Hal, we're liable to put you in the race with the Dionnes . . . and by the way, that famous family is expecting another addition during 1935! . . .

. . . Get ready, all you movie hounds, and all you others who see only one show every week or so, for next week Jean Harlow in her most exciting role since "Red Headed Woman" will appear at the Carolina . . . she and Bill Powell hold the spotlight in M. G. M.'s latest eye-opener, "Reckless," and from all advance reports audiences everywhere have gone hog-wild over them in this picture . . . incidentally, M. G. M. held a contest to select 10 of California's most beautiful girls to appear in the show, and if you have any feeling that the judges might have been "framed," go and judge for yourself . . . the girls are really beauties . . . two of them members of sororities at California Universities . . . Jean herself says she lost a lot of beauty sleep during the filming of "Reckless" by getting up at 6:15 in the morning to be on location, but you'd never notice it. . . .

. . . Bing Crosby, whose Tuesday evening (Columbia, 9 o'clock) broadcasts with the Mills brothers and a new guest artist each week have proved so popular, hustles back and forth from studio to race track . . . Bing now owns six fine horses, and is entering one or two each day in the races at Bay Meadows . . . so far his steeds have been mostly stoods, but the crooner still has high hopes . . . Maybe if he went "up" and crooned some sweet ditty in their ear during the race they would air out and come in the winner . . . while on the subject of horses, Bing's gettin' to be quite one himself . . . it is reported that since he went into movies he has gained some twenty-five pounds . . . why, Bing, how could you? . . .

. . . And while we are on the weight question, what do you think Mae West, the Buxom Blonde from Back East tips the scales at . . . hardly that much! . . . she weighs only 118 pounds, and her secret is "Do the best you can with what you've got" . . . another motto of our she-ro is "Take advantage of what's good, and get along with the bad" . . . you'll remember Mae as the originator of the phrase "C'm up 'n' see me sometime. . . . ?? . . . Now figger that 'un out if you can! . . . Mae's gonna be seen here next month in one heckuva swell show . . . It will not open in New York 'til the middle of May, and we are to get it at the same time . . . 'Tis "Goin' to Town," and Mae takes off sho-nuff in this'n . . . that one and only figure of hers stands out to best advantage in the new 1935 stream-lined duds she sports around . . .

. . . Cecile B. Now YOU'RE Talking

LIKES IT

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I can see from your first paper that you intend to start things humming. And even if you slip up and get yourself in dutch you will at least have had the glory of getting off to a better start than any editor since I have been here.

I talked to a lot of students on the campus yesterday morning and most of them were particularly impressed with that formidable (with more promised) array of reforms for which the paper is going to fight. You will probably catch the devil from the hardshells on the campus but I want to tell you that I am for them all and backing you a hundred per cent.

We have been needing something like this to jar the campus out of its lethargy for a long time. Now we have it. I only hope that you won't let all your good intentions die with the first few issues of the DAILY TAR HEEL like all your predecessors. Hit it hard and make 'em like it!

AN INTERESTED STUDENT

HE DOESN'T

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I notice that, among other things that the new DAILY TAR HEEL is going to be "fair." That's fine.

I also notice, in the form of a news story, a sarcastic, strongly biased attack on the Playmakers which, in a sneering, inconsistent, and inaccurate manner passes judgment on an event which has not yet taken place. If this is being fair Mr. Webster should be notified of the change in definition.

From any standpoint whatever your attitude is indefensible. It is bad journalism, bad ethics, bad taste, and bad sportsmanship. It is sophomoric and unworthy of a college newspaper. No reputable paper in the country indulges, or would dare to indulge, in such antics.

I shall not attempt any refutation of facts, though what few alleged facts you include are at best questionable. I happen to be a Playmaker and to have a play on the present bill, so you could accuse me of self-interest and personal bias. Let's drag no red herrings across this particular trail. The issue is clearly one of principle. You have gone on record as advocating editorializing in news columns, the passing of judgment a priori, and the printing of anonymous criticism. Let's see you defend these beliefs. Let's see you be consistent in your application of them. We are justified in expecting you to treat other campus events in the same way you treated this one.

We are looking forward with interest to the time when your columns announce that the Carolina theatre is presenting its customary makeshift entertainment which E. Carrington Smith, in accordance with his usual publicity, claims possesses merit. When that happy day comes it is to be hoped you will have access to a good lawyer.

MORE FUEL

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Congratulations on your bold and sensible stand. I am heartily in favor of most of it. However, I noticed that in your reallocation of fees idea you had nothing to say of re-allocation or investigation of athletic fees or publication fees. And may I also suggest, while on the topic of investigations that you also probe a bit into the doings of the not altogether impeccable athletic association.

I am told by those who have had "dealings" with it that those dealings were not always of the highest ethical character. Then, too, this is a new unexploited field for investigation and there is no telling what interesting, if not actually shocking and amazing, facts might be discovered.

It would be interesting to find out what connection there is between the athletic association and out-of-state students submitting state addresses. Frankly, I should also be interested in learning how much subsidizing is really done; methods of recruiting our athletes; methods of keeping our athletes once we have them; earnings of the athletic association; actual salaries of the coaching staff; how and to whom the earnings are distributed, etc. Then, too, why should students be forced to pay ten dollars a year in athletic fees and then not be allowed to sell their own tickets? Especially is this exasperating to the students who don't give two whoops in hell for all the athletic events you may have here in 50 years, and are neither allowed to sell or return those tickets.

This, too, should be added to your program. You have made a great start. Won't you add these suggestions to your program?

NORMAN KELLAR.

Tar Heel Nine Rallies In 7th And 8th To Lick Cats, 6-5; McCarn Stars

CROUCH REVENGES DEFEAT BY HARRIS

Davidson Takes 5-1 Lead with Big Fourth but Carolina Comes Back; Vick Features Afield.

BUMGARNER LEADS CATS

With the score 5-1 against it, Carolina's baseball team put on two-run and three-run rallies in the seventh and eighth innings here yesterday and as a result defeated Davidson, 6-5.

Trip Rand, Tar Heel second baseman, drove in the first run of the seventh with a single over third and then brought in the winning tally during the following frame with another bingle to left field.

McCarn's Homer

Buck McCarn also featured the last rally as he started the inning with a home run blast, the ball clearing the centerfielder's head and almost rolling out of the gate at the end of the track.

Freddie Crouch and Charlie Harris, both veteran stars for Carolina and Davidson , again met on the mound with the Tar Heel getting revenge for his early season loss.

Crouch had the Wildcats under control except for the fourth when all five runs were scored on clever base-running, five hits, and Harris, both veteran stars for

Another Battle Today

Carolina and Davidson will meet in baseball again this afternoon on Emerson field at 4 o'clock. Coach Bunn Hearn announced yesterday that his rookie battery, Irby Wright, pitcher, and Bill Strayhorn, catcher, would start the tilt for the Tar Heels. Davidson will likely use Jenkins on the mound and Ravenel behind the plate.

YEARLING NETMEN BLANK BLUE IMPS

First Year Racqueteers Remain Undefeated as They Crush Duke Freshmen, 9-0.

The frosh tennis stars kept pace with the varsity as an undefeated contingent by rolling roughshod over the Blue Imps of Duke yesterday afternoon, 9-0, on the loser's courts.

Potts, Fuller Star

Ramsay Potts and Eddy Fuller again brushed aside Collins and Ed Doyle. Potts routed Collins 6-1, 6-0, as Fuller downed Doyle 6-0, 6-1. In the previous encounter Fuller had walloped Collins and Potts had taken the measure of Doyle.

The other scores follow:

Robinson (C) over Nutter, 6-3, 6-1.

Foreman (C) over Nixon, 6-3, 7-5.

Farrell (C) over Beals 6-4, 6-1.

Strasberger (C) over Smith, 6-3, 6-1.

Potts-Fuller (C) over Collins-Doyle, 6-0, 6-3.

Robinson-Foreman (C) over Nutter-Nixon, 6-0, 6-0.

Farrell-Strasberger over Smith-Beals, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Hockey Practice

Due to a conflict with the regular freshman co-ed gym classes, hockey practice for upperclassmen will be held in the future on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4 o'clock in Kenan stadium.

TRACKMEN LEAVE FOR PENN RELAYS AT PHILADELPHIA

Nine Stars Accompany Ranson; Williamson, Waldrop Plan to Join Them for Events.

TEAM MAY ENTER RELAY

Nine University trackmen accompanied by Assistant Coach Dale Ranson, left late yesterday for the Penn relays at Philadelphia tomorrow and Saturday.

Harry Williamson and Ed Waldrop were unable to get away with the others but will leave this morning to join the team at Philadelphia.

North Carolina's 11 representatives in the relays are Graham Gammon, Dick Gabori, Harry Williamson, Ed Waldrop, John Drake, Floyd Higby, Jim Finlay, Bob Gardiner, Tom Hawthorne, Frank Abernethy, and Tom Evins.

Four Mile Relay

Williamson, Gammon, Waldrop, and Gabori, entered in the four-mile relay, are expected to make the greatest bid for honors. They will be matched against such outstanding teams as Pittsburgh, Manhattan, Ohio State, Yale, Penn State, Cornell, New York University, Drexel, Army, Michigan State, and Columbia.

The Manhattan University team won the event last year with the time of 17:47.

Drake, Higby, Finlay, and Gardiner are entered in the sprints medley, with Drake to run the 440. Higby and Finlay the 220, and Gardiner the 880.

Hawthorne and Abernethy will be the Tar Heel representatives in the high hurdles, while Evins will be in the shot and discus events. Higby will compete in the broad jump.

North Carolina will probably enter the 880-yard relay event in which four men run 220 yards each. If this is done, the four will be chosen from Abernethy, Hawthorne, Higby, Finlay, and Drake.

The hurdles, sprint medley, and discus will be run off tomorrow afternoon, while the four-mile relay, shot put, broad jump, and 880 relay will be held Saturday afternoon.

GOLFERS TO BEGIN CONFERENCE PLAY

Laxton, Harris, Coffin, and Pijanowski Will Compete with Stars at Athens.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Athens, Ga., April 24.—About 15 crack golf teams from all parts of the country east of the Mississippi are gathering here on the invitation of the University of Georgia to participate in the open Southern Intercollegiate golf meet this weekend.

Numerous nationally prominent amateur players will represent the competing schools. The favorites are Richmond University, Georgetown, and Georgia Tech.

Manager Henry Bridgers brought here Erwin Laxton, Dick Harris, Wilson Coffin, and Walter Pijanowski, leading four members of the Carolina golf team. The Tar Heel team enters the meet with a good season record. In 11 starts, the team has garnered nine wins and suffered a setback at the hands of State and a tie with Richmond University.

North Carolina spends this year less than $19 per child enrolled as a state average for operating its public schools.

VARSITY NETTERS NIP DAVIDSON, 9-0

Three Matches Go to Limit as Carolina Makes Clean Sweep; Team Still Undefeated.

Continuing their rapid pace, the Carolina netters routed a highly touted Davidson team yesterday afternoon by the shutout count of 9-0.

Although Davidson failed to break into the win column, three of the matches went the limit with the Tar Heels barely ekeing out victories.

Harvey Harris, playing his number one position, dropped the first set to Carlyle Lewis, but coasted through the final two sets to win.

Willis and Minor

Willis had to go to a deuce set before defeating Phifer. In the next match, Bill Minor was pressed for the first time this season as he turned back Barnett.

Walter Levitan made his singles debut after a layoff of a few weeks. He looked impressive as he scored in love sets over Hornbeck.

Byron Abels won in the final singles, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, from Marrow.

The only doubles match to draw attention was the one in which Levitan and Willis rallied superbly from a deficit of 4-0 in the deciding set. They won six straight games for a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 win.

Harris (C) over Lewis, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Willis (C) over Phifer, 6-2, 7-5.

Minor (C) Over Barnett, 8-6, 6-1.

Shore (C) over Elvery, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5.

Levitan (C) over Hornbeck, 6-0, 6-0.

Abels (C) over Marrow, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Harris-Abels (C) over Elvery-Barnett, 6-4, 6-1.

Levitan-Willis (C) over Lewis-Phifer, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Minor-Shore (C) over Hornbeck-Garrett, 6-0, 6-0.

Harvey Harris Leads Field Into Fight For State Crown

Seeded One

Harvey Harris, blond Tar Heel net ace, who has been seeded at the top of the entrants in the state championship opening this afternoon at 2 o'clock. A strong field lies in the path of Harris and he will have to be at the peak of his game to emerge victorious.

"Eat It for the Team"

At a meeting of the Woman's Athletic Association last night the co-eds voted to give a banquet in honor of the various co-ed teams. The banquet will be held the latter part of May. At that time athletic awards will be made to the members and managers of the teams who have earned a given number of points.

VACATED THRONES ENLIVEN BATTLE

Kenfield May Throw Full Carolina Strength into Fray; Doubles Play Opens Tomorrow.

A field of 32, headed in seeding by Carolina's Harvey Harris, opens hostilities this afternoon at 2 o'clock upon the local tennis courts, in quest of the state individual championships.

State, Duke, Davidson, Elon, and Carolina have already entered players and pending entries from three other universities are yet to be verified.

Seeded Players

Behind Harris come Ricky Willis, also a Tar Heel, Carlyle Lewis, Davidson, and Jim Martin, Duke. These are the four seeded stars who will battle it out for the crown vacated by Jim Halverstadt of Davidson who won it last year. The runner-up, Barney Welsh, is also absent from this year's competition.

The struggle this year will be keen with Carolina providing sufficient material, by itself, to give the seeded stars considerable trouble. Besides Harris and Willis, Coach Kenfield is entering Eddy De Gray, Frank Shore, Bill Minor, Walter Levitan, Archie Henderson and probably Byron Abels and Lawrence Jones.

Doubles superiority will also be settled, this division of play opening tomorrow.

The draw for today's singles play will be held at noon today. Two rounds are expected to be completed before the end of the afternoon.

and an error. Crouch allowed four scattered hits during the rest of the game and fanned three men. Two of the strikeouts came during the 'Cat uprising.

After allowing a first-inning run because of an error and two fielder's choices, Harris had the Tar Heels popping up and hitting weak grounders until the late-frame run-making. His fast curve was especially effective.

Captain Thurman Vick, in spite of an injured finger, was in centerfield for the Tar Heels and made six putouts, several of his catches coming after long runs.

McCarn with his homer and a single out of three tries led Carolina's batting, while Rand and Vick each connected for two safe blows. Bumgarner, second baseman, got a triple and double and Porter, centerfielder, singled twice to lead the Wildcat offense.

Mackorell started Davidson's big inning, hitting a double and making third when Bullard dropped the throw-in. Morgan, Dickson, and Ravenel followed with singles through the out-of-position infield, Mackorell and Morgan tallying.

A fielder's choice brought Dickson home and Bumgarner's triple to deep center drove in two more. Crouch finally fanned Quick to end the inning.

Carolina began in the seventh when Bullard walked, took second on Crouch's infield out, and came home, after two were out, on Rand's first big blow. Rand took second on Irwin's line single to left and counted when Mackorell threw Groome's grounder wild to first.

After McCarn had done his damage, Shapiro and Bullard were safe on errors, Bullard's sacrifice bunt being fielded poorly by Harris. Crouch bunted to advance both men and then successive singles by Captain Vick and Rand brought both home.

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1935 — NUMBER 154

by the Editor

WE LIKE FRANKNESS

Rev. Donald Stewart, the Presbyterians' youthful and well-liked Chapel Hill pastor, has done more to stimulate student thought than any one single influence on the campus this year.

Sunday morning he will deliver a sermon on "Whom Shall I Marry?" The topic intrigued me and I asked him how he meant to present it from the pulpit.

"I want to help them to realize," he said, "that religion is not a preparation for some Life beyond, but for an enrichment for Life's 'heres and nows.' One phase of this enrichment is the whole problem of mate-dom."

Donald Stewart believes that marriage is not one of those things we have to "muddle through." We can be guided wisely and permanently. To him for his frankness and sincerity, to Dr. Ernest Groves for his presentation of the same marriage problem, we, as students, tender our appreciation and respect.

Some hard-shells may disagree with our "liberal" attitude. We'll not disturb them in their snug parochialism, we promise.

HOTNESS AND LIGHT

Spring, as Bill Wang would put it, is definitely here. The buildings department's much-maligned power mowers are on the ball and the turf is once more green and closely-cropped.

We took a few moments off yesterday and went to see the Boy Scouts disembark into the vernal wood back of Kenan stadium. After a pleasant stroll in that vicinity we ambled around to where the new athletic field is taking shape. Activity everywhere.

Maybe we have been wrong when we have attributed much of this campus' lethargy to the southern clime. From the looks of things, Chapel Hillians, like big, brown bears, don't get underway with anything suggesting momentum until it gets hot enough to slow down the northerners a bit.

DURHAM vs. THE WORLD

Jack Pool tells me that the Tar Heel bogey-man, Old Man Provincialism, pervaded the sanctum of the State Utilities Commission at the bus hearing Wednesday afternoon.

The Durham lawyers, Pool says, were there in oratorical glory, much to the dismay of Chapel Hill forces. The consensus is that the Greyhounders' cause (and ours) came out somewhat the worse for wear. Stanley Winborne, commission chairman, said things looked hopeful, however.

The 3000 signatures which the Greyhound folks presented in favor of their side tells only half of the picture. It might have been a good idea to show 3000 additional signatures from other persons who wouldn't ride in the Carolina Coach Company's hacks if they were paid 50 cents for the Durham round-trip.

SPRING FESTIVAL GETS UNDER WAY; LARGE AUDIENCES

Beautiful Exhibits Attract Record Crowd to Meets; Folk Music at Hill Hall Today.

DULCIMISTS WILL PERFORM

The third annual Dogwood Festival is underway, with the largest crowd ever to attend a meet of this sort. Featured among the attractions this year are exhibits of handicraft and art, vocal and instrumental folk music, games, dances, and floral displays.

The principal exhibits are in Graham Memorial in which are displays of Indian craft, baskets, block prints, brooms, copper, coverlets, hooked rugs, mica, books, pewter, needlework, photographs, pottery, quilts, silver, weaving, woodcarving, wrought iron, and jewelry.

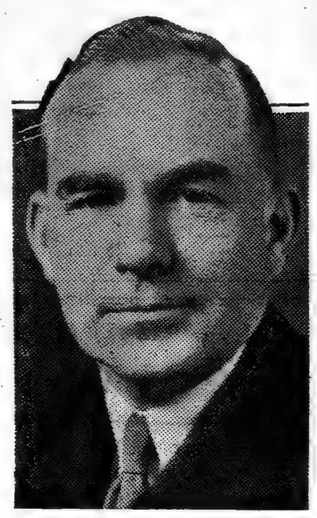
In Peabody hall there is an exhibit of the Arts of Youth, including the work of amateur artists under Miss Lena Tuttle and stage arts and posters.

Art Exhibit

An art exhibit of more than 40 oil paintings by contemporary American artists, lent by the Macbeth Gallery of New York and circulated under the auspices of the Southern Art Projects, is on display in the Hill Music hall.

The folk music program under the direction of Richard Chase will include the singing of ancient ballads and hymns, with instrumental accompaniment, and selections on that antiquated instrument, the dulcimer. Among those who will appear on this program are Fiddling "Doc" Hoppas of Estatoe, who was a World's Fair attraction; Mrs. Rosalia Schell of Banner Elk; Mrs. Norma Grindstaff of Spruce Pine; I. G. Greer of Thomasville, and Franklin Scott, Turner Brown, and Mrs. Artemus Ward, all of Jugtown, who will strut their stuff on the resurrected dulcimer.

Straw Vote



Warm up your arguments and get set for the DAILY TAR HEEL straw-vote beginning Tuesday morning.

Two questions, the proposed class-hour change and the semester vs. quarter system proposition, will be put before the students for their opinions.

Ballot-boxes will be placed at convenient places throughout the campus in which the ballots, clipped from the fourth page of this newspaper, will be placed.

Several arguments for both sides of each question have already been presented in these columns. Take your choice and let us know what you think.

Scouter

Professor H. D. Meyer, educational director of Scouting in the southern region who, with the co-operation of national and state executives, arranged the Boy Scout Jubilee.

Red Cross Sponsors Examiner's Course

Many University students will be interested in the Red Cross Life Saving Examiner's course which Ramone S. Eaton, national field representative of the Red Cross, will conduct in the Duke University pool, May 1-4.

Members of the local University Examiner's Corps, recently chartered by the American Red Cross, are asking all senior life savers over 20 years of age and all examiners who want to take a review to meet at special practice periods in the Bynum gymnasium Monday and Tuesday at 7:15 p. m.

Free transportation to Durham will be provided during the days of the course by the local chapter of the Red Cross. Coeds are also eligible and invited to participate.

Last year a similar examiner's course was conducted and 25 Carolina students participated, 15 of them completing the course.

For further information regarding the event, interested and eligible students are asked to see Lee Greer at the Y. M. C. A. or Vernon Ward at the Phi Kappa Sigma house.

Charter members of the local corps are: Ellis Fysal and Lee Greer, advisors; Bob Williams and John Brabson, co-captains; Tom Humphries, secretary; Vernon Ward, Marshall Bell, Jesse Parker, George Rowe, Charles Rose, Bob Bolton, Ben Blood, and Billy Greet.

Three New Greeks

Phi Kappa Sigma announces the pledging of the following new men: Everett L. Peterson, Clinton, and George S. Barbee, Jr., Zebulon.

Zeta Psi announces the pledging of John R. Harris, Wilson.

WEEKLY NEWS RELEASE

The first release of the DAILY TAR HEEL Weekly News Service will be mailed Monday to 40-odd high schools in the state and 35 preparatory schools in and around North Carolina.

Featured in the bulletins will be news of the University with special emphasis on the alumni from the institutions receiving the news service. Each school will be sent two mimeographed pages of general University news and another typewritten sheet of personals written specifically for each institution.

There will be no costs for the news service on the part of the schools receiving the bulletins. Financing the project is the University Alumni office which is headed by J. Maryon Saunders.

Don McKee, assistant editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, is manager of the weekly news release and is assisted by Newton Craig, freshman reporter.

SCOUT JAMBOREE IS IN FULL SWING

Individual Demonstrations Feature on Morning's Program; Patrol, This Afternoon's.

With approximately 1,580 Boy Scouts registered, the annual jamboree will get into full swing this morning at 9 o'clock with campcraft demonstrations by individual Scouts. Demonstrations will be given of fire building, first aid, compass work, and other Scouting requisites.

At 3 o'clock demonstrations will be given by patrols and at 4 o'clock University organizations will conduct a tour of the University for the visiting Scouts.

Campfire Service

All Scouts and former Scouts now connected with the University will be guests at tonight's campfire, which will start at 7:30. The fire lighting ceremony will be furnished by Alpha Phi Omega, student Scout fraternity.

Tomorrow, at 1 o'clock, President and Mrs. Graham will give a luncheon in honor of Chief Scout Executive James E. West.

The jubilee will reach its climax tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in Kenan stadium, at which time Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Dean R. B. House, and Scout Executive James E. West will speak to the assembled Scouts.

Cubber

William C. Wessel, camp chief of the Boy Scouts of America, who will direct many features of the four-day celebration of the 25th anniversary of Scouting which is being held at the University this week. Mr. Wessel will direct the Scout pageant to be given at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Desk Staff

There will be a meeting of the entire desk staff of the Daily Tar Heel this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the publication office. All members of the desk staff are asked to be present and to be on time.

Stadium Woods Sprouts Scout City; Trees, Boys Doing Well

Swarming four-foot-nines-in-khaki, half drooping pup tents, piles of striped blankets, and the hum of busy little men filled the Kenan stadium woods yesterday afternoon as truckloads upon truckloads of fire-filled Boy Scouts poured into the camping grounds for the 25th anniversary of Scouting Jubilee . . . energetic business men, dressed in brown, vying with each other for "leading" their troops.

The gang from Leaksville was really "there." Having just arrived in a shiny new bus they were gathered on the sidewalk by the Tin Can . . . gathered about one of their group who had just produced a sun dial . . . a real, live sun dial, according to the owner.

"And just let me see you tell me what time it is right now?" asked an unbeliever.

Down on their knees went the "whole bunch" and the leader aimed his machine "North." Someone let go the answer, "20 minutes 'till three" . . .

"Yes, 20 minutes 'till three," declared the sun worshipper from his suppliant posture.

"I'll be jumped-up," flared one of the others, "My watch says 21 minutes 'till three."

Along came a strange aggregation from some other Scouting village . . . The strangers had on shorts.

"He's a sissy," the long-breechered Leaksvillians confided in each other.

"I don't care if he is a sissy," piped a little rebel in the corner. "I shore wish I had some . . . might, too, by tomorrow . . ."

Over on freshman field the Winston-Salem 132-strong representation was pitching a row of big tents on the roadside. A sweating second classman plowed his way through the heat and camp-making rubbish, past a group of tenderfoots sitting down . . . some were just sitting . . .

"How long are you going to be out of school?"

"Two whole days—Thursday and Friday . . . Sounds mighty good, too," declared the little fellow wiping his wet, red face. He was a worker and talker.

At the edge of the tennis courts sat a number of Scouts . . . one fellow was bedeckled with merit badge honors . . . there was an Eagle Scout . . .

"Where's a first aid kit?" Duke University tennis player McNeill, entered in the state tournament, had hurt his knee in a game . . . There was a mad scramble of the "junior-docs" . . . "Where's that kit?" . . . "This'll burn a little," said the ring leader with the kit open.

"That's all right," replied McNeill . . . "Thanks a lot." . . .

DEPUTATION TRIP

Yesterday afternoon Donald Comer of the "Y" led a deputation trip to Rocky Mount accompanied by L. F. Fountain, Nick Read, and Bob Magill.

While in Rocky Mount the deputation will visit seven schools, a hospital, a local civic club, and the Hi-Y club. A banquet will be held for the visitors on Saturday night before their return to Chapel Hill Sunday.

PHI SLOGAN CONTEST

A contest sponsored by the Phi Assembly for the best slogan for the Assembly submitted during the week ending April 30 is now in progress. The prize for the best slogan is seven tickets to the Carolina theatre.

Officers of the Assembly will be judges and may not enter the contest. Entrants may submit as many slogans as they wish to the officers.

Julien Warren Elected To Head University Club

MacFARLAND GETS SECRETARY'S JOB

Position of Club Treasurer Is Bestowed Upon Joe Williamson Grier of Charlotte.

OLD OFFICERS THANKED

Julien Knox Warren, Jr., of Trenton was selected to head the University Club for the coming year at an election of the organization last night in Gerrard hall.

Other officials elected are: George MacFarland of Charlotte, secretary, and Joe Williamson Grier, also of Charlotte, treasurer.

Runner-up to Warren for the presidency was Francis Campbell of the old club.

Campbell, Louis Shaffner, Henry Lewis, and George MacFarland were nominated for the presidency at the meeting of the club last week by the University Club nominating committee. Warren's name was proposed when the floor was opened to further nominations.

MacFarland Secretary

MacFarland, self-help student, withdrew his name last night from the list of candidates for the presidency; but in the vote for the secretaryship he won by a large majority over the two other students nominated against him, Phil Kind and Laurence Frank.

Runners-up for the office of treasurer were George Allen and Walter F. Illman.

Warren, a rising junior, has distinguished himself during his two years at the University in class government. He has served for two years on his class executive committee and during this past year was chairman of the sophomore dance committee.

POOL PRESSES ON IN BUS LINE FIGHT

Student Body Head Cites Isolation of Chapel Hill; Defends "Carolina Gentlemen."

Jack Pool continued the fight for an Atlantic Greyhound line through Chapel Hill in Raleigh yesterday. Pool cited the fact that, although approximately $10,000,000 have been spent in Chapel Hill and nearly $40,000 spent on roads leading to and from here, Chapel Hill is still isolated. He stated that the present bus facilities are "inconvenient, unsatisfactory and inadequate," and called the present service below the average.

"Carolina Gentlemen"

Major C. P. McClengahon, attorney for the Carolina Coach Company, while cross-examining Pool, asked if it were not true that Chapel Hill students riding on the present Carolina Coach Company's busses from here to Durham were sometimes rowdy, and took signs and mats from the busses for their rooms. Pool retorted, "Sir, the students at Carolina are gentlemen."

Pool said last night in response to a question concerning the progress being made toward the securing of a Greyhound line through Chapel Hill, "I think that a bus will be routed through here."

WHAT THE PLAN IS

We have an idea that many persons, faculty and students alike, are laboring under somewhat hazy conceptions of the class-extension plan (we can think of no other name) which we have set forth and which was suggested by Professor W. L. Wiley.

Nobody would call anything "absolute bunk" from a platform if he respected himself, unless he was sure of what he was saying. And anybody can call this plan "absolute bunk" if they understand it and speak with authority.

We asked Prof. Wiley to set it forth, briefly and clearly. He did so and here it is:

> It seems appropriate to try to clear up some misconceptions that have arisen with regard to the so-called class-extension plan. The "plan," which is not particularly original and certainly not complicated, perhaps is unworthy of the dignity of a title. In essence, it suggests simply that the DAILY TAR HEEL carry daily (or possibly tri-weekly) a calendar of lectures in regular University courses that might prove of general interest. These lectures on these specific days then, would be open to any student or faculty member that might wish to attend.
> There is no intimation in the proposal that regular classes are to be neglected, or that any professor is to change the nature of his course. The scheme would enable, however, any member of the University to listen to authoritative discussion of subjects outside his field of specialization—for example, Brahms, or Einstein, or Vergil, or Greek religion. The project carries in it no idea of compulsion; nor does it seek to popularize or evangelize our educational system. Its sincere desire is to increase the number of our outlets of knowledge.
> (Signed) W. L. Wiley.

Nothing, we believe, could be clearer. It was our fault not to make the plan clearer in the beginning, but we insisted on telling about the routine so that it probably did look like a return to the "sawdust trail."

We want to see this plan adopted. It is not "absolute bunk," but an earnest effort to broaden the scope of our curriculum.

LOOKING INTO FEES

We expect to go into the question of re-allocation of student fees thoroughly before many moons pass. As more or less of a preliminary, we have Francis Fairley's recent analysis of the fee situation at hand and believe some of the observations are rather interesting.

One thing in particular struck us in the analysis. We found that all fees collected for student activities (transferred monthly to the Student Audit Board) comprise approximately 28 per cent of the total collections made by the business office.

This means that over one-fifth of all the money we pay to the University, in tuition charges, matriculation, and all other payments (excluding rent and board) goes for the support of the various activities.

The ratio varies with the schools, of course. In the engineering school, where the tuition rates are higher, the ratio is less, while in the liberal arts school, it is considerably higher.

Then take the analysis of the matriculation fee, which is $14.50. For the library, infirmary, gymnasium, and registration costs, goes $9.75. The Athletic Association fee is $3.33, the physical education fee (for intramurals, paid to the Athletic Association) is $1.25, and the Debate Council fee is 17 cents each quarter.

It is odd that the Debate Council fee is included in the matriculation fee. Reason: it was the first activities fee, the others being added more recently. Debating was "top" then.

It has been so long since fees were allocated that nobody knows the exact procedure. But we believe that recommendations of the Student Advisory Committee will serve the purpose of placing the question before the trustees effectively enough for action.

That our fees have remained constant is not compatible with our other ideas of progress. There must be changes as different student generations demand them. So, in addition to the immediate re-allocation which we advocate, we would like to see some sysem set up whereby periodic re-allocation could be effected, or, at least, periodic analyses made.

There will be more about this in these columns later.

From a COLLEGE WINDOW
By WILLIS S. HARRISON

The entire breed of college rah-rah boys has not been wiped out, according to Professor Irwin Edman of Columbia, but the college student has become a more serious person.

The Minnesota Daily laments the fact that hell week still clings to the University of Minnesota, terming it an "outmoded institution" and further saying that "in its playful moments at least the fraternity group is still in the grip of high school traditions."

In a protest against the "sheep-voting habits" prevalent on the campus of the University of California, the Daily Bruin, student newspaper, points to the abolition of block voting among the sororities of Syracuse University.

". . . Evidence now shows," says the Daily Bruin, "that inhabitants of this country's educational institutions are not only following in the political footsteps of their fathers, but have evolved a system of fraternity and sorority block voting which would put adherents of the Donkey and the grand old Elephant to shame."

Said an article in the DAILY TAR HEEL just before the recent election: "For the office of treasurer . . . Stuart Leake . . . was nominated before nominations could be voted closed." He was an independent candidate.

Communism at the University of Minnesota is rampant, according to one Major A. E. Potts. The major, said the Daily Minnesota, implied that the cost of printing posters and pamphlets advertising peace meetings were defrayed by communists. This gentleman also warns against a red-sponsored movement to crush Boy Scout activities.

Charles R. Walgreen, drug store magnate and prominent Chicago financier, drew fire from the college press by withdrawing his niece from the University of Chicago because, he said, she was "acquiring new ideas." One of the new ideas, allegedly, was communism.

L. A. Tatum of Laurel Hill, refers, in an Open Forum article published in the Charlotte Observer, to the "Marxian birds," occuping he says, professorships at this university. He protests . . . "the free use of the University where they may inject their corrupting tenets in every class on the campus, in fraternity aud sorority houses, while the unsuspecting students plunge from a world of belief into a chaos of doubt."

Whenever someone wishes to approve or condemn our present educational set-up, they make a survey of undergraduate thought . . . always, strangely enongh, coming to the conclusion they wanted to believe in the first place.

The Literary Digest is now publishing a series of articles on undergraduate trends quite different from the usual type. They are written by Evelyn Seeley and based upon a careful study of representative institutions.

Commenting upon the reaction of parents to the social-problem-consciousness of present-day college students, Seeley says: "Some grow disturbed and withdraw their children into the shelter of their homes—and, perhaps, their financial support. Some dismiss it as youth's wild oats. Others—and the wisest, perhaps—are delighted that their children are thinking at all. It is the new American tradition."

Now YOU'RE Talking

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I wish to contest strongly the suggestion contained in the letter of Norman Kellar which you published April 25. He wants to have the Athletic Association investigated. It is plain from his letter that Kellar hasn't got the Tar Heel spirit. He doesn't seem to care whether our teams win, lose, or draw. But some of the rest of us think it is pretty important to win. You've got to remember that we beat Duke only one point and a stroke of luck in football this year. We lost to them once in basketball, and came much too close to an upset in track. Think what an investigation of athletic funds might mean in a tight situation like this. It really wouldn't be fair to ourselves. Duke isn't having its athletic funds investigated, so why should we?

COLLEGE PRESS

Chicago and Its Liberalism

Repeated attacks on the administration of the University of Chicago through the columns of the Chicago Tribune marks another campaign that colors another comparatively docile situation a bright red. The seemingly endless anti-New Deal campaign which has filled the Tribune's columns for years has undoubtedly dealt a hard blow to its big circulation figures, but the typewriter artists continue to use their supply of black and red pigments for painting biased stories for the world to read.

The faculty of the University of Chicago in general and a few professors in particular are being accused of communistic tendencies in their teachings, and a public hearing before the board of trustees has been demanded. Among the demanders is Charles R. Walgreen, drug store magnate and prominent Chicago financier, who recently withdrew his niece from classes at Chicago because, he claimed, the teachings there did not reflect true American tendencies.

President Hutchins has agreed to receive any substantial proof which Walgreen may present, and, to make the accusations look even more foolish, the niece, Lucille Norton, stated that her uncle's outburst was unwarranted and that she "perceived no undercurrent of propaganda."

A University of Chicago student who visited this campus last week described the situation there as being quite different from the general impression resulting from press stories. As a student in political economy classes, she stated that the subject is studied in an unbiased manner, under the able tutelage of one of the attacked professors and that the rioting and story-making demonstrations are instigated and carried out by a comparatively small group which consists mostly of graduate students. Fraternities and the university paper, the Maroon, have directed their efforts towards dissolving the group that is causing the University so much unfavorable publicity in unwarranted prominent stories.

We would suggest that drug store magnates concentrate their entire efforts in promoting drug stores; that educators continue to present to young America the fact of an ever-changing, open-minded world; and that the Tribune, as a newspaper, fill its columns with interesting, unbiased news of Chicago and the world.—The Purdue Exponent.

By SPARTACUS

This is the second column sponsored by this newspaper on political views. A regular schedule will begin Sunday when "Speaking from the Right" will appear. This column will appear again next Tuesday. On these days the two columns will be run regularly every week.

Readers are reminded that the opinions expressed are not those of the editor of this newspaper.

South Carolina's Gamecocks took the Tar Heels for a loss when the students down in Columbia militantly struck against war on April 12th, while we sat cosily esconced in the pews of Memorial hall. Tar Heels, what kind of a bunch of sissies are we to have allowed our benighted fellow-students to have done what was done on every campus over the entire country? The fact that over a third of our students came to the indoor meeting is, however, a good sign, for this is perhaps the largest crowd of students ever to get together here for any other purpose than that of cheering the dear old team to victory. Next time let's not let a few raindrops force us to flee indoors, and let there be a real strike. What do you say? Of course, it might not suit Comrade Davey Clark, and we might get our appropriation cut if we carried a red flag as they did at South Carolina. That's probably going too far, but at any rate they responded, and with vigor.

While we are on the subject of Davey, we might say that one reason for the existence of this column is to save Davey the trouble of sending a G. P. U. of stenographers up here every time we students wish to inquire into the manipulations of some of Davey's sponsors. And besides, we promise more accuracy, as Davey's journal has been found to be inaccurate at times when it came to spelling his worthy opponents' names.

Anent red flags, the sage might remark that America needs more of them. For the red flag used to be a symbol, my grandfather says, of men at work.

Though it's funny enough to anyone who knows the real facts, the attack being carried on by Hearst, Fish, and, lately, Believe-it-or-Not Ripley, deserves more than a horse laugh. People ought to understand why. Besides being interested in sensationalism as a fellow journalist, Hearst has a good bit else at stake—gold mines, shares in dozens of corporations, a big ranch. There would be hell to pay if the workers in Hearst's corporations ever got wise to what really was being done in Russia. Fish is the inheritor of a neat pile accumulated by the piracies of one Hamilton Fish, a particularly energetic buccaneer who added some of the stench to Grant's administration. Ripley is, of course, only a hired man. But it would be a big slice of his dough if the Hearst syndicate quit handling his stuff.

Willie has one honest employee, though. He is Lyndsay Parrott, Hearst correspondent in Russia. We know him personally to be a true and hard-headed reporter—though after the fourth drink he insists upon shouting with raucous abandon the limpid verses of A. E. Housman. It is not strange that none of the Hearst sheets printed his denial of having seen anyone going hungry in the U. S. S. R. Of course, most of Willie's slaves are not far enough from home to thumb their noses at him as Parrott does.

LEVITAN TOPPLES 4TH SEEDED ACE IN STATE TOURNEY

Beats O'Neill of Duke with Ease; Six Tar Heel Players Reach Quarter-Final Play.

HARRIS vs. DE GRAY TODAY

The first and second rounds of the 1935 state tennis championships faded into history yesterday afternoon with Walter Levitan, Carolina captain, providing the main fireworks as he easily ousted the fourth seeded player, O'Neill of Duke.

Of the eight players to survive to the quarter-final round, six were stalwarts of the Tar Heel team. Harvey Harris, Ricky Willis, Eddy De Gray, Levitan, Frank Shore, and Bill Minor made it a banner Carolina day as they eliminated every other school outside of Davidson, which placed Phifer and Lewis in the select eight.

Harris Wins Twice

Harvey Harris, seeded on top, led the field into the quarter with victories over Barnett and Hornbeck, both of Davidson. Harris shutout Barnett but had a little more difficulty with Hornbeck before cowing him.

Ricky Willis, seeded second, after eliminating Parson of Duke was the victim of a thorough scare as "Punk" Jones captured the second set from him before yielding.

The other seeded played to come through was Carlyle Lewis, Davidson, who defeated Mark Lynch in the opening round and escaped extinction at the hands of Elon's Red Jones, after a hard battle.

Features of the day's matches were Phifer's victory over Martin of Duke, the 13-11 set that Frank Shore waged with Joe Grier, and Caton's win over Jim Johnson.

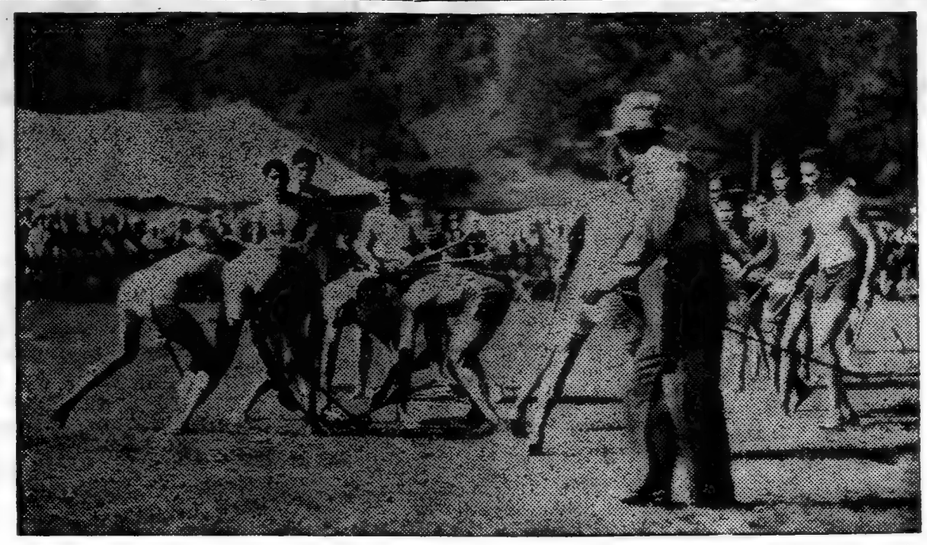
Today's Get-Togethers

Today's matches abound in expected thrills as Harvey Harris is exposed to the terrific drives of Eddy De Gray, and Ricky Willis attempts to solve the biting twists from Shore's racquet.

The other two matches are equally as interesting as Levitan, who is staging a brilliant comeback on his return to competition play, meets Phifer, and Bill Minor opposes Lewis, the third seeded player.

The doubles also gets underway today with 11 teams providing the competition in pursuit of the title. De Gray and Levitan, Lewis and Phifer, and Harris and Abels are the three outstanding combinations.

The scores follow:



FIRST ROUND

Harris (C) over Barnett (Dav), 6-0, 6-0.
Hornbeck (Dav) over Nading (St), 6-4, 6-2.
De Gray (C) over Folley (St), default.
Caton (Duke) over Johnson (C), 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.
Levitan (C) over McNeill (Duke), 6-3, 6-2.
Ashby (Duke) over Abels (C), 6-4, 7-5.
Phifer (Dav) over Martin (Duke), 6-0, 1-6, 7-5.
Crabill (Elon) over Henderson (C), default.
Willis (C) over Parsons (Duke), 6-2, 7-5.
Jones (C) over Brown (St), 6-4, 6-3.
Shore (C) over Renn (St), 6-2, 9-7.
Grier (C) over Gill (Duke), 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.
Lewis (Dav) over Lynch (C), 6-2, 7-5.
Jones (Elon) over Elvery (Dav), 6-3, 2-6, 6-0.
Minor (C) over Dixon (St), default.
Harrison (C) advanced by a bye.

SECOND ROUND

Harris (C) over Hornbeck (Dav), 6-4, 6-4.
De Gray (C) over Caton (Duke), 6-3, 6-3.
Levitan (C) over Ashby (D), 6-1, 6-4.
Phifer (Dav) over Crabill (Elon), 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.
Willis (C) over Jones (C), 6-1, 1-6, 6-2.
Shore (C) over Grier (C), 6-4, 13-11.
Lewis (Dav) over Jones (Elon), 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.
Minor (C) over Harrison (C), 6-0, 6-4.

INDIANS PLAY DANGEROUS GAME

This is a typical scene during the progress of one of the Cherokee ball games which is to be played on Emerson field Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock as a feature of the Dogwood Festival. The participants are Cherokee Indians who are making the trip to Chapel Hill from their 63,000-acre reservation adjoining the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in the western part of the state.

HIGH LINK TEAMS COMPETE TODAY

Play Will Begin at 9 O'clock on Hope Valley Course.

Under the direction of Coach Kenfield, the state High School Athletic Association is sponsoring its fourth annual golf meet for North Carolina high schools.

Entries have been received from 12 teams. Drawings were held last night at 7:30 at the Y. M. C. A. and play will begin this morning at 9 o'clock on the Hope Valley course.

Awards will be given to the individual turning in the best score as well as to the team turning in the lowest aggregate score for the 36 holes to be played.

Last year's team winner was Salisbury, and the individual award went to a member of the Charlotte team. The 12 teams entered are Charlotte, Durham, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Greenville, Henderson, High Point, Raleigh, Reidsville, Salisbury, Southern Pines, and Winston-Salem.

The present number of entries is the largest received since the meet was inaugurated. A trophy cup will be awarded to the team winner. The cup will remain in play until one of the teams wins three times to fulfill the requirement for permanent possession.

Ruffin Rings Again

Visitors to the lower quadrangle are surprised and incredulous these days. Ruffin, formerly the "world's worst dormitory," has gone in for horseshoe pitching instead of water throwing, firecracking, shortsheeting, and other pranks for which this domicile has earned such widespread fame.

The missionary credited with the uplifted morale is "Plowboy Pete" Wall who, homesick for Ole Betsy, bought himself a set of horseshoes to keep as a memento. Pilfered were the mare's footwear, put into service as quoits. Ruffinites are now practicing feverishly in order to get in shape to challenge the S. A. E.'s.

How peaceful the anvil chorus sounds compared to the caterwaulings, detonations, etc., which formerly emanated from this same sector.

Writer Likens Rough Indian Game To Gangster Riot In Chicago Streets

By HARRY FREDERICKS

To the ordinary observer, baseball is just a sissies' game compared to a Cherokee Indian ball game. Mrs. Eddie W. Wilson in a recent magazine article says: "There's as much difference in a Cherokee Indian ball game and an ordinary baseball game as there is between a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society and a gangster riot out in Chicago."

Those wishing to draw a comparison will be able to do so tomorrow afternoon when a typical Cherokee game will be run off on Emerson field at 3 p. m.

Rough n' Tumble

This game, which has been described as "the greatest rough and tumble fighting ever witnessed, with about 10 fights going on at the same time and no holds barred," is similar to lacrosse.

Each player has a long handled bat tipped at the end with a netted pocket. The ball is home-made and about the size of a golf ball, stuffed with hair and covered with leather. There are two sets of goal posts, consisting of live trees stuck into the ground about 150 yards apart. The usual number of players is about nine or 10 and the team scoring 12 goals is the winner. Pairing off and guarding follow somewhat in the manner of basketball. The officials are also Indians and carry long switches which are brought down on the backs of the players many times throughout the contest.

The players advance onto the field from opposite directions yelling defiance at each other. The centers stand facing each other and a medicine man tosses the ball up for them to strike—and the battle is on!

If one of the centers knocks the ball goalwards, he makes a run for his own goal. It is the duty of his team mates to open up a path for him. Throughout the game the ball may be thrown or taken out of the net with the hands, but it must be caught and picked up in the net.

In the effort to carry the ball back of the goal (the scoring of a point), a player often holds the ball in his mouth as he feels it is safer there than in the net of his bat which may easily be struck from is hand.

If a player tackles too roughly, or if the group squabbles too long over the ball, the referee, or "whipping boss," strikes the offenders' bare backs with stinging blows from his keen switch. When a player drops out on one side, one from the other side must quit the game also.

There are no rules to prevent extreme roughness. A player may get possession of the ball in any manner he sees fit. As the saying goes, "all is fair in love and war," so it is with this game of Cherokee Indian ball.

The general admission to the public will be 50 cents, but Carolina students will be admitted for 25 cents.

YEARLING GOLFERS EKE NARROW WIN

In a most exciting match held yesterday at Fayetteville, the freshman golfers defeated Fayetteville High School by the score of 9½-8½.

Gordon Gifford, No. four man for the frosh, was the heavy scorer for the day. He took all three points from his opponent, to lead the Tar Babies.

Malcolm Grover, No. two, greatly aided the frosh by winning 2-1 over Goodman of Fayetteville. He was teamed with Dupont Kirven, the Carolina lead-off man, and took the best ball in the first foursome by the score of 2½-½. Kirven held up his own end by splitting 1½-1½ with Miller.

Bob Baker, No. three for the freshmen, halved the first nine in his match with Tripp, thus gaining one-half point which provided the narrow margin of victory. Best ball in the second foursome went to the high school lads, 3-0.

Golfers Lead

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL*)*

Athens, Ga., April 25.—In the first round of the open southern intercollegiate golf meet, the Tar Heel team crashed through to victory.

Steady shooting on the part of all four members of the team brought the total score to 615 on the hard par 73 course. Georgia Tech, one of the favorites in the tournament, was second to Carolina, while the Duke team was third.

Medal honors of the day went undisputedly to Yates of Georgia Tech who turned in a card of 138. Yates' brilliant low score totaled six strokes below par on the 36 holes he played.

Laxton led the field for the Carolina team with a 150. Harris and Pijanowski were not far behind with their 153 score apiece. Coffin was next in line, turning in a 159 card.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Herman Johnson, Meares Harris, Edith Wladkowski, Kathleen Krahenbuhl, and William McGowan.

Visitors Take Lead At End of Fourth

Irby Wright Makes Home Debut On Mound; Morgan Leads at Bat with Three Hits.

McCARN HITS HOME RUN

With timely hits in the first, fifth, and eighth innings, Coach Hearn's Tar Heels defeated Davidson, 7-5, at Emerson field yesterday for their second straight win over the Wildcats.

Irby Wright, making his debut before local fans, gave up 15 hits. Aside from a bad fourth inning, when he allowed three hits to account for a trio of Davidson runs, the sophomore righthander pitched effective ball.

Jenkins, Wildcat hurler, gave up nine hits and issued three bases on balls.

Fast Start

The Tar Heels got off to a fast start in the first inning when Captain Vick tripled into deep left field. Rand got a base on balls and stole second. Irwin came through with a timely single to score Vick and Rand. McCarn fanned, and Tatum followed with a base knock. Strayhorn hit a long fly to right field to send Irwin across the plate. Shapiro singled and went to second on Porter's error. Montgomery walked and Wright grounded out to Bumgarner.

'Cats Take Lead

Davidson pushed one run across the plate in the first and came back strong in the fourth with three markers to take a 4-3 lead.

After going hitless for three innings, Carolina turned on the steam to score a trio of runs in the fifth. McCarn personally accounted for two of the runs by clouting a homer into deep center field with one on base.

Jim Morgan, Davidson outfielder, led the batting with three hits out of four trips to the plate. Captain Vick and Irwin led the Tar Heels with two for four. One of Vick's hits was a three-bagger.

der. All I can do is thank you. God bless you!"

Following a word of thanks to the club for its work during the past year, Frank Willingham, retiring president, turned the chair over to Warren.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered the outgoing officials by the members of the organization.

"The University Club is something that has made a history for itself," declared President Warren, paying tribute to the old officials, "and we've got to do the best we can. I'll do the best I can and I hope all the club will co-operate."

Examinations for Jobs

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced from Washington that open competitive examinations for various governmental jobs will be held in the near future. Full information may be obtained from S. W. Bynum at the Chapel Hill post office.

As some of these examinations will be open for a short time only, it will be necessary to act promptly.

Playmakers Give First Of New Originals

Koch's and Selden's Classes Present Second and Third Bills.

The production of the second and third bills of new Carolina plays began last night with the presentation of three original plays, written by students of Professor Koch's playwriting class and directed by members of Samuel Selden's class in directing. The production will last through tomorrow night.

The plays presented last night were "Spare Ribs," a comedy of sailors by Don Pope; "Hunger," a tragedy of Carolina farm folk by Ella Mae Daniel, and "Goldie," a comedy of a Negro Saturday night by Wilbur Dorsett.

GRAHAM TO SPEAK BEFORE ENGINEERS

The North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers is holding their annual meeting here today. The student branches of Duke, State, and Carolina will be represented.

The meeting opens at 2:15 p. m. with the speech of welcome by Dr. Frank Porter Graham. At 6:00 there will be an informal dinner at the Episcopal parish house. Plates will be furnished to members and guests at a cost of one dollar. At 7:30 H. A. Affel of the Bell Laboratories of New York will speak on "Precise Frequency and Time Over Wires."

All meetings will be held in 206 Phillips hall.

DORMITORY ELECTION

Elections of dormitory officers for next year will take place Wednesday, it was decided by the Inter-Dormitory Council last night.

Nominations will be held Tuesday night.

It was suggested by Albert Ellis, president of the Inter-Dormitory group, that the polls be closed in the afternoon after the dormitory stores close and that the secret ballot be used.

Dick Haynes, Charlie Hubbard, Bill Cochrane, and Jim Stephens were appointed as a committee to work with the Order of the Grail in presenting the Grail plaque award to the most outstanding dormitory on the campus.

Physicists in Washington

Ten members of the physics department and the graduate school are in Washington attending a meeting of the American Physical Society.

Dr. Arthur E. Ruark, head of the physics department, and Dr. E. K. Plyler accompanied the following graduate students and teaching fellows on the trip: C. J. Craven, Scott Barr, William Lamont Smith, James White, R. D. Weatherford, and Paul Steele.

Johnson, Couch at Meeting

Guy B. Johnson and W. T. Couch of Chapel Hill, and Clarence Poe of Raleigh are in Atlanta attending the Foreign Policy Convention.

At this meeting a study will be made of crop conditions in relation to foreign trade, agrarian policy, regulation of industry, democratic institutions, internal political relations, and various other pertinent subjects.

Carroll at Meeting

Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce left yesterday to attend a meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business in New York City this week.

Less than 12½% of the varsity football players this year are employed by the FERA.

PLAYERS TO GIVE 'HAMLET' IN MAY

Koch Will Play Title Role in Classic; Selden to Direct Shakespeare's Drama.

Shakespeare's immortal "Hamlet," the last Playmaker offering of the year, and the 16th Forest theatre production, will be presented on the Playmakers woodland stage on May 24 and 25.

Seated on the floor of the forest's natural auditorium, the audience will see "the greatest of Shakespearian characters in the greatest of Shakespeare's tragedies." Professor Frederick H. Koch, Playmaker founder and Shakespearian enthusiast and actor, has this year relinquished to Professor Samuel Selden the task of directing the play, and will himself portray the Prince of Denmark.

Elaborate Production

Plans are under way for special music and elaborate sets and costuming, and the production will mark the height of the Playmakers' Forest theatre career, which began in 1919. "Hamlet" is the ninth Shakespearian play to be produced in this theatre, the first being "The Taming of the Shrew," in which "Proff" portrayed Petruchio.

Members of the cast have not yet been definitely chosen, but a number of promising actors are being retained as a result of recent try-outs for the major roles. Around 35 players will take part in the production.

N. C. SYMPHONY GROUP TO HAVE MEETING TODAY

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Symphony Society is to be held here in the Hill Music hall at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. All members are urged to attend.

Next year's program of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, which has been giving concerts during the current year throughout the state, is to be discussed at this meeting.

Colonel Joseph Hyde Pratt is president of the society, Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington is vice-president, Felix A. Grisette, secretary, and Dr. Robert W. Linker, treasurer.

Advisory Committee Will Begin Activities

The Student Advisory Committee, two new members of which were recently appointed by "unofficial student body president" Jack Pool, will begin activity Monday afternoon by making an extended survey of the University Consolidated Service Plants.

The investigation, which will be led by Francis Fairley, student assistant to the business administration, will be made to allow the new members to see the whole physical set-up. The one remaining old member, Phil Hammer, will not make the tour as he was involved in the recent inspection which the outgoing committee conducted.

After the initial orientation, the committee will settle down to concentrated work on the questions of student fee re-allocation, general dormitory changes, and other campus problems.

The chairman of the committee will be chosen by the members Monday afternoon. Fairley was formerly chairman until his appointment as a University employee. Hammer acted as secretary.

Attend Officer's Camp

Billy Yandell, Rev. Watt Cooper, and Tres Yeatman will leave today to attend the Student Officer's Training Camp at Randleman. They expect to return Sunday.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Ruffinites Argue Long, Pro And Con, About Proposed Class Hour Change

Early Risers Held Slight Majority as Heated Session Ended; Others Think "There's No Sense in Getting Up So Early!"

It all started when that potent question of the change in class hour came up. More than the usual number had gathered in and around the Ruffinites' favorite rendezvous—the dorm store. The air is always full of opinions on these occasions but at this particular time they were flying in and out uncommonly fast and furious.

If a vote had been of the group, it is safe to say that those favoring the 8:00 o'clock classes would have had a slight margin over the others—surely they talked the loudest. For some unexplainable reason they argued almost solely from the standpoint of sleep and the fact that it would enable them to have more free time in the afternoons.

Said fastly-improving Trackman Stutts, "The most pathetic thing in the world is to see a man sleep all the morning; a man wastes entirely too much of his life sleeping," and his thoughts were echoed by his large following. From here they rambled around citing Thomas A. Edison's sleeping habits and that inevitable example of the soldier who due to a wound received in the war can no longer sleep. As usual the details of this story differed in almost every respect.

Upholding the conservative side, All Campus Guard Vinson objected to the change by asking the question, "Say, I thought this was a liberal school, not a military academy. There's simply no sense making us get up so early when the present system apparently works O. K."

About this time a son of the soil walked in and loudly damned any move that would deny him of the chance to catch up on some of the sleep that he has missed back on the farm.

"Now take Stoney here," argued one rightist, "when he comes in late at night an extra half hour the next morning will surely help him to get over that hang-over." Stoney half-heartedly agreed that there might be something in that.

But those so disdainful of the loving caresses of Morpheus continued to push their point. Speaking for the self-help student, Senior Reagan offered, "A fellow who has known what it is to get up at an early hour to go to work won't mind; he really feels better and makes better grades. It's you guys who have had everything handed to you on a silver platter that's doing all the kicking about this extra half an hour which can't make any difference."

Glee Club Will Sing In Mt. Airy Tonight

The University Glee Club will appear in concert this evening in Mt. Airy.

The club will leave at 1:45 p. m. from the Hill Music hall.

Making the Mt. Airy trip are the following: Larry Anderson, John Barney, Walter Bateman, Bob Bolton, John Briggs, Ralph Burgin, Clarence Courtney, Bruce Culbreth, Grey Culbreth, Charles Daniel, James Dees, Edwin Dougherty.

Harold Gavin, Walter Henderson, Tom Hicks, Sam Dane, Mack Mann, Strange McNeil, Willard Miller, Marion Savin, Louis Shaffner, John Walker, L. G. Weaver, John Wiggins, and Bertram Winkler.

FRAZER, ROBSON ATTEND MEETING IN WASHINGTON

Professors Frazer and Robson of the department of history and government leave for Washington today to attend the 29th annual meeting of the American Society of International Law.

The subject chosen for this year's meeting is "Neutrality" which is in direct line with the purpose of the society. Appearing on the program will be Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Senator Gerald P. Nye, and the ambassadors to the United States from Brazil and Japan.

Saunders Asks Spirit During Senior Week

Spike Saunders last night urged the senior executive committee to get behind the coming events for commencement week and put them over. Last year, he said, several events on the commencement program were almost completely ignored by seniors.

He suggested that the present graduating class show more spirit than its predecessors in attending its final exercises.

Saunders asked the committee to appoint sub-committees to act as publicity agents in getting the senior class to turn out wholeheartedly.

A. A. U. W. MEETS HERE TODAY AND TOMORROW

The North Carolina division of the American Association of University Women is holding its eighth meeting at the University today and tomorrow with headquarters at the Carolina Inn.

Today the delegates will visit the Dogwood Festival and tour the University village and campus. They will be entertained at tea at the home of Mrs. Howard W. Odum, and at dinner at the Carolina Inn with Miss Cornelia Love presiding. Mrs. E. R. Mosher will be the principal speaker.

"Convention City"

Chapel Hill becomes "Convention City" in effect if not in name this week when no less than seven important meetings convene here.

In addition to the four-day Boy Scout Jubilee and the Dogwood Festival which began yesterday, the North Carolina division the American Association of University Women open their eighth session today.

The North Carolina division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers also hold council at 2:15 o'clock today in Phillips hall. The annual meeting of the North Carolina State Symphony Society will take place in Hill Music hall at 2:30 o'clock today.

Tomorrow morning, the South Atlantic division of the American Rock Garden Society will hold its annual sessions.

The seventh "convention" is the annual North Carolina Commercial Contest to be held tomorrow morning, in which expert typists and shorthand experts will compete.

OPINION ON PLAN It is quite interesting to notice the varying tenor marking the answers of the various departmental heads to our letters concerning the proposed class extension plan.

The language departments show a sharp contrast of opinion. The classical gentlemen are decidedly against the idea; the Romance professors are very favorably impressed and receptive.

Very likely it is in the peculiar characteristics of the subjects taught. At least, that may be the argument presented. Then again, it may be personal opinion. We can see no reason, however, why Greek or Latin would differ from Spanish or French in the application of the plan.

On the contrary, it would seem that lectures of programs on Livy or Homer would offer more interest than modern French or Spanish celebrities. The situation reflects different interpretations and points of view, it would seem, rather that innate departmental differences. Which is all very well, but a definite drag on the plan's progress.

BEHIND A NAME The preliminary skirmishes in the fight to re-christen the humor magazine as the "Buccaneer" instead of allowing it to bear the present title of "Finjan" are particularly amusing.

Incoming-president Pool is close-mouthed about the whole thing. Francis Fairley, unsuccessful candidate against Pool and hold-over member of the Student Council, which will decide the question, is pro-Buccaneer. Marvin Allen, another hold-over member, has reversed his stand from pro-Buccaneer to pro-Finjan. It will be a jolly fight when the boys get together and all reverse and proceed at the same time.

We hope there is less foolish dickering this time than last fall.

The name "Finjan" is the most asinine title we could possibly think of. Why Chapel Hill boarding houses should be used as a source of information for the humor magazine's title campaign can be answered only by Gaskins, who was on the poop deck as the Buccaneer rose and fell.

FREE FOR ALL Yesterday afternoon one of our guest Scoutmasters reported the theft of valuable personal property from a "Kenan Valley tent," where the visitor was encamped.

The night watchman, on being asked for information, said he couldn't afford to stop everyone with a suitcase, because he'd get written up in the paper and lose his job. The local police were more sublimely oblivious.

We, as well as Boy Scouts, must "Be Prepared" in Chapel Hill. It looks like it's every man for himself, even Pansy Chandler.

FESTIVAL TODAY TO INCLUDE GAME, MUSIC AND PLAYS

Indians to Play Ancestral Ball Game; Scout Pageant, Folk Plays End Program.

FOLK MUSIC BEGINS DAY

The Dogwood Festival program today will include a folk music concert, Cherokee Indian ball game, Boy Scout Jubilee pageant, and a production of the new Carolina folk plays.

At 10:30 in Memorial hall the Folk Music program under the direction of Richard Chase will feature the old time fiddlers, dulcimer players, string bands, old hymns, ballads, square dances, and Cherokee Indian music.

Dulcimer Music

Probably the most unique part of this program will be the selections played on the dulcimer by Franklin Scott, Mrs. Artemus Ward, and Turner Brown, all of Jugtown.

Youth will be represented at this demonstration of old-time music by a group of students from Crossnore school, which is situated in the mountains of North Carolina.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock two teams from the Cherokee reservation will demonstrate their own brand of ball game. This game, which is usually played with 10 men on each side, has the appearance of a free-for-all; there are few rules for the game and none whatsoever to prevent extreme roughness.

The ball game, which is one of the oldest games of Indian origin, will be played in its primitive form. When played on the

Cash Winner Gets Horse Laugh But Takes Off Prizes

Hollingsworth Stops Show to Collect $15, Lucky Strikes.

Although he had to suffer several moments of acute embarrassment and self-consciousness in order to collect, Willard Revelle Hollingsworth firmly grasped his $15 in cash and the carton of Lucky Strikes, which he won at E. Carrington Smith's weekly drawing at the Carolina theatre last night, and trod the clouds back to the Sigma Nu house.

Promptly at 9 o'clock Herr Smith toted his box of numbers down to the front of the theatre and pounced on Eben Alexander, S. A. E., to draw forth one of them. Eben up and picked number 304; Smith called it out three times; no Hollingsworth stepped forth; Smith announced the contest closed and doubled the prize for next week.

Interrupts Movie

After that little flurry of excitement, the audience settled back to enjoy the new "March of Time." Hardly had more than two scenes been flashed upon the screen when the lights came on once more and the screen became blank. Smith was once more holding forth in front and was accompanied by a rather ill-at-ease and sheepish young man.

The manager hurriedly apologized and begged to explain that Mr. Hollingsworth had been outside in front of the theatre at the time of the drawing but had to shove his way through the crowd and had become so excited at hearing his name called that he couldn't explain coherently to the

SCOUTS TO HEAR EHRINGHAUS TALK TODAY IN STADIUM

Governor Will Inspect Camp; Chief Scout Executive West Also to Address Scouts.

PAGEANT IS TONIGHT AT 7

With two days filled with activity, the 1,500 Boy Scouts here looked forward today to the visit of their two distinguished guests, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and Chief Scout Executive of America, Dr. James E. West.

Governor Ehringhaus and Chief West will arrive this morning at 10:30 o'clock, and following a tour of inspection of the camps, Governor Ehringhaus will address the Scouts at 11:45 in Kenan stadium.

Guests of Grahams

The Governor and Scout Chief will be luncheon guests of President and Mrs. Graham.

Yesterday's program was devoted chiefly to campcraft events by individual Scouts, games directed by Camp Chief Wessel, demonstration events by patrols, a tour of the University and the Dogwood Festival, and a campfire session at night, with all Scouts and former Scouts of the University as guests.

Pageant Tonight

The high light of the program, the Scout Pageant, will be held at 7 o'clock tonight in Kenan stadium. Administrative Dean R. B. House will express the University's welcome and Chief Scout Executive West will deliver the principal address.

Paul Schenck of Greensboro, regional Scout chairman, will preside.

The 11 councils of the state will participate in the pageant which is expected to be the most colorful affair of the Jubilee.

Another event keenly anticipated is the Cherokee Indian ball game this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

ENGLISH EXHIBIT

A unique exhibit has been prepared in connection with the Dogwood Festival by Drs. Harry K. Russell and J. O. Bailey of the University English department, and is now being shown in 112 Saunders.

Included in the exhibit are themes and various other kinds of work done in freshman English. The exhibit clearly points out the difficulties that the students have in writing, and the trouble the instructors face in teaching them.

MEMORIAL FUND CAMPAIGN BEGUN

Charlotte Group Inaugurates Drive for Fund to Honor Dr. Graham's Father.

The campaign to raise ten thousand dollars in Charlotte and Mecklenburg county for the Alexander Graham Memorial fund was officially begun Wednesday evening at a banquet held by the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce.

This fund, which will aid North Carolina students in obtaining their education at their state university will be a memorial to the late Dr. Alexander Graham, a leading educator in the state and the father of Dr. Frank Graham.

The money will be collected in Charlotte and in Mecklenburg county and turned over to the University for administration. This decision was made by the committee appointed for handling the fund, in view of the outstanding success with which the University has met in the administration of similar sums.

Grisette Speaks

Felix A. Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, attended the meeting and spoke about the remarkable work accomplished by education loan funds in the state. Speeches were aso made by former Senator Cameron Morrison, and Dr. Lingle, president of Davidson, extolling the memory of Dr. Graham and discussing the proposed fund and its purposes.

The banquet was attended by 75 citizens of Mecklenburg county, and the plan met with their hearty approval.

Pageant Head

Paul W. Schenck of Greensboro, regional chairman of this region of the Boy Scouts of America, who will preside at the Scout pageant at Kenan stadium tonight at 7 o'clock.

Law Officers Elected

Robert R. Reynolds, Jr., of Asheville, was elected president of the Law School Association yesterday.

Other officers for next year are Dan B. Bryan of Wake Forest, vice-president; John Taylor Manning of Chapel Hill, secretary-treasurer; and Francis Irving Anderson of Leaksville, member to the Student Council.

Rotary Hears Hudson

Dr. A. P. Hudson of the English department spoke before the Chapel Hill Rotary Club at its regular meeting this week on "The Bell Witch of Tennessee and Mississippi," one of his pet stories in the field of southern folk-lore.

Scout Leader

Dr. James E. West of New York, chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will be the principal speaker at the Scout pageant in Kenan stadium tonight at 7 o'clock.

THIEF ROBS TENT OF SCOUTMASTER

Leader of Goldsboro Troop Returns from Camp-Fire to Find Tent Ransacked.

Apparently someone unfortunately missed his Boy Scout training in his more youthful days because one of the chief Scout rules was smashed to pieces Thursday night when one of the neatly-erected tents was entered and ransacked between 8 and 9 o'clock.

M. L. Smoot, Scoutmaster of Troop four from Goldsboro, returned to his tent between the Tin Can and the intramural field Thursday night after attending the camp-fire celebration to find that someone had artistically plundered his temporary abode and made off with a new black alligator Gladstone bag, containing two army blankets, another black blanket, a pair of Oxford grey trousers, a belt, a sterling silver key chain and a bunch of keys, an Eastman folding kodak and case, other wearing apparel, and toilet articles.

Mr. Smoot was forced to return to Goldsboro yesterday but has offered a liberal reward to anyone giving any information concerning the stolen articles or returning them to him at Box 448, Goldsboro, or to the DAILY TAR HEEL office.

Sophomore "Y" Group

Monday evening there will be a combination meeting and social gathering of the "Y" committee of the rising sophomore class and all rising sophomores who care to attend. The group will meet in front of the "Y" at 6:00 to go on a weiner roast near the Forest theatre.

The eating over, Mr. Comer, Drew Martin, and Nick Read will speak on the program of the "Y" next year.

Students who were in any way connected with the cabinet when it was the Freshman Friendship Council are especially urged to attend. Those wishing to accept this invitation will please call Miss Hodges at the "Y" before noon Monday.

Leavitt Attends Meeting

Zeb Long and Dr. Breckenridge Present Gifts on Part of Law Students and Faculty.

DEAN ANNOUNCES AWARDS

With sparkling energy Carolina law students and faculty members last night paid tribute to Kenan Professor of Law Emeritus Atwell C. McIntosh at the ninth annual dinner of the Law School Association in the Carolina Inn.

"In affectionate recognition of 25 years of devoted teaching," the entire evening affair was dedicated to "Dr. Mac," the "old gentleman" of the law school.

"The Man Himself"

Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell, representing the state of North Carolina, praised the splendid service that Dr. McIntosh had rendered the state, the school and the students. "His greatest service to the state of North Carolina," declared Seawell, "is an unconscious one . . . it is the man himself."

Resounding to the praise of "Dr. Mac's" intimate, inspiring association with the Carolina students, Zeb Long and Professor M. S. Breckenridge gave the greetings for the occasion from the students and the faculty, respectively.

Receives Watch

Long presented the honor guest with a watch from the students—"To serve and remind him of their continued devotion." From the faculty of the law school, Professor Breckenridge gave the law school a photographic portrait of Mr. McIntosh.

Concluding the program, Dr.

Hero Harmon Finds Ravenous Scouts Hard On His Food Supply

Dining Hall Manager Buys Out Chapel Hill Meat Dealers in Search for Veal.

One of the biggest problems ever to face a dining hall manager has been disposed of by J. Obie Harmon, manager of Swain hall. That problem was to feed 1,500 Boy Scouts at the Jubilee here this week-end.

Manager Harmon has worked out a system whereby the Scouts eat breakfast early, are fed lunch in Kenan stadium, and are served ahead of the regular group of student diners.

His figures as to the quality of food required for the 1,500 boys is rather amazing. For their breakfasts over a three-day period they will eat 600 dozens of eggs, drink 1,400 gallons of milk, and consume 1,000 pounds of potato chips, in addition to eating around 200 dozens of rolls at each meal.

In buying veal for the Scouts, Manager Harmon purchased all the available stocks in Chapel Hill and Durham warehouses—and still didn't have enough. Other articles were of corresponding enormity.

For lunch the boys are fed in Kenan stadium. In cafeteria style they line up for their rations, which are dished out by lines of self-help students working with the dining hall forces.

The boys generally concede that Manager Harmon should be listed as one of the heroes of the Scout convention.

CONSOLIDATED SERVICE

We received a report yesterday of some of the recommendations of the Student Advisory Committee which have already been put into effect by the University administration.

Students will not realize at the outset how these changes affect them, but sooner or later the increased efficiency will manifest itself in several respects.

In the Book Exchange, several innovations have appeared. In response to the recommendation that a more accurate and available price system on retail goods be set up, the administration has ordered all articles priced and placed the system under the direction of the purchasing department.

Periodic sales of old and obsolescent merchandise has already begun. There should be some saving here.

Regular and more frequent inventories have been ordered, so that quarterly checks are made. And rehabilitation of the storerooms has already been effected or is in the process of being carried out.

In the dormitories and buildings department, other recommendations have been adopted. The order for complete screening of all dormitory windows was issued April 19 and the work will begin shortly. Bronze screens with wooden frames will be installed.

At the laundry increased efficiency is noted, with a new student claim agent in the person of footballman Babe Daniel and with the added services of the new student assistant. Physical improvements, the darning machine, and the new laundry-bundle downtown office are other effects of the business administration's new and vigorous progressivism.

The report on other divisions of the service plants will reach us tomorrow. It looks like the students are at last being heard when it comes to University business connections.

GIVING YOU A RING

Jake Snyder, brawny fellow and member of the senior ring committee, gave us some interesting facts yesterday about senior rings in the past, present, and future.

Only 212 members of the combined classes of 1932, '33, '34, and the incumbent graduating group have purchased official class rings. This, according to Snyder, averages to the "insignificant sum of 50 rings per graduating class or one ring wearer for every eight graduates in the past four years."

Far be is from us to add "Buy Senior Rings" to our growing list of "things to do." But let us present three principal reasons which our local expert gives for the paucity of jewelry-wearers on the campus:

The restrictive cost of the rings, which at present is over $24.00.

Lack of information as to where to purchase rings and whom to see about them.

Lack of sentimentality on the part of would-be graduates.

We understand that the committee is working to procure a contract which would make the rings available to everyone. More power to them.

CHAPEL HILL CRUSADE

Since the first issue we have added several "things to be done this year."

One is the objective to make a complete study of Chapel Hill boarding houses and eating places, so that we may expose dirt where it is found and give credit to those who believe in protecting their boarders' health.

Another is an analysis of comprehensive examinations as a practicable and desirable form of educational study. A survey of other schools, a poll of students, and a few ideas of our own ought to make some kind of argument.

In the meantime, we are not proposing to slow down on anything else. We're just rallying our forces for a few drives down the field.

Tuesday's poll and next week's publicity concerning other of our policies will begin our official crusading.

PIGS HAVE WINGS

BY MILTON KALB

'The time has come,' the Walrus said,
'To talk of many things:
Of shoes — and ships — and sealing-wax—
Of cabbages—and kings—
And why the sea is boiling hot—
And whether pigs have wings.'

PIGS HAVE WINGS? OF course they do. All one has to do is hear any munitions maker defend his smelly transactions on the basis of "patriotism," or a crooked banker remind the investigators of the damage THEY may do to the depositors, or William Randolph Hearst lead a crusade for clean movies, for the most simple-minded to see the truth in this seeming paradox.

I AM GETTING SICK AND tired of hearing the unmitigated baloney of "the urge to fight is fundamental in man and as long as human nature is what it is" type of pro-war argument. In the past year or so I have heard quite a few people who would ordinarily be suspected of being somewhat human saying, "What this country needs is a GOOD war—it would stimulate business and would get rid of a lot of the unemployed who are such a burden on the taxpayer." Yes, as long as human (?) nature remains as piggish and unhuman as this shows it to be, war is inevitable. It is not the urge to fight that makes war inevitable—because most of us are rank cowards—it is the urge to pack our pockets with more dollars, pounds, marks, francs, or what have you.

IT IS POSSIBLE THAT EVER-ett students make good grades because, rather than go out, they remain diligently in their rooms at night in the hope that they may be rewarded by a glimpse of leg from the Graham peep-show across the way.

TO THOSE IDEALISTS WHO still believe in the integrity of scholarship the following is offered. An instructor who is noted for his interesting lectures was paid an "unofficial" visit by a committee of his colleagues. They cautioned him not to spend so much time preparing for his classes inasmuch as advancement in the "profession" is not dependent on good teaching, but merely on so-called scholarly research. Of course, their advice came from the best of intentions—they wanted to see the hard-working young man get ahead, but toward the close of their visit they inadvertently let slip that his diligence in making his classes interesting was hurting them, because he was setting a standard of splendid teaching

EARTH-QUAKES

By JOHN SCHULZ

This business of acting as the DAILY TAR HEEL'S only contact with the wide, wooly, and warlike world is a bit overwhelming to say the least. However, a brief resume of recent doings among the Europeans might help as a warming-up exercise.

Handsome Adolf, Austria's gift to the Germans, has been acting as the whiskey-sour in the European tea party. For no sooner had the old ladies of old Europe begun to rest easily after the Saar crisis and to sip their tea to the tune of such scandal as whether or not the Prince of So-and-So should ought to have married the coal miner's daughter—no sooner had all of this happened—than Adolf upset the ash can almost by breathing on it.

One quiet day in March he announced to all-whom-it-may-concern that his private chemists had made a careful analysis of the paper upon which the Treaty of Versailles was printed and that, after careful consideration, he, Adolf (Napoleon) Hitler was willing to certify personally to the world that it was not fit even for the waste-basket. He also announced the formation of a German conscription army which would make Frederick the Great beam with just pride. This came March 16.

The natural result in Rome, London, Paris, and Moscow was confusion and consternation. Britain endeavored to pour oil on troubled waters by sending Sir John Simon and Captain Anthony Eden to confer with the statesmen of most of Europe. The really satisfying remark which they received from Adolf was that he would be pretty well content once the pre-war territories and colonies were returned to Germany.

On April 11 the former Allies team went into a huddle at Stresa, Italy, with triple-threat Benito (he can threaten war, peace, or the opposition) calling signals. They finally decided to stick together in condemning the German action and started the game off with a forward pass play to the League of Nations. The Couicil of that body, in a statement issued April 17, solemnly made the Reich's uni-lateral treaty breaking trick play illegal by a vote of 13 to 0, only little Denmark refusing to vote.

Last Saturday, April 20, was Adolf's birthday. His ever-loving countrymen presented him with 41 fighting planes, and he in turn presented the members of the League Council with 14 (one for each member) notes of protest. The text of his note was simple: he merely opposed in a "most resolute manner" the council's condemnation and went on to explain that not one of the nations involved was in position to judge Germany on a matter of morals. He did not, however, fail to leave himself open for further negotiations.

And such was the situation in Europe when the Formosans (mostly Chinese although Japan owns the island) decided to turn attention their way by staging an earthquake on Easter Sunday. There was a loss of over 3,000 lives in the two provinces which were devastated by the shock. Army units distributed rations and joined the gendarmerie in preventing looting.

War still blazes in the Chaco. If one can believe either side, the darn thing is about over. Just who is winning is a little more difficult to decide. It seems to depend largely upon which army gets its packet of tall stories to the newspaper men first. The Bolivians have been working faster this week.

Leaving wars, threats of wars, and earthquakes aside for a while, let's take time out to congratulate the Pan-American Airways upon the successful non-stunt flight of their Clipper from Alameda, California, to Honolulu and back. The performance was so outstanding that it is said to have justified the start of a regular schedule . . . . It won't be long before we're dashing over to Pearl Harbor for our nightly pineapple juice.

Now YOU'RE Talking

AGAINST SEMESTERS

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In order to keep human interests stimulated, a system must be maintained which varies from the monotonous humdrum of scholastical day-after-day repetition of scheduled work. In the semester system, we would have a longer time in which to toil upon a larger number of studies. This continuous schedule, lasting for half a school term, would soon begin to bore us by its repetition of daily duties.

Insanity is often caused by lack of variety in one's work. However, I do not think Chapel Hill contains any boys or girls who are studious enough to go to that extreme. But the point I wish to make is clear that the quarter system we have now is more suitable for a better education and varies more from monotone than would the semester system.

As it is now, our interests are devoted to a relatively small number of studies at one time. By the time our interest has been exhausted in one subject, we are ready to pass to another; or if we are not interested in some subject, we do not have to endure it for so long a time. Human nature loves changes in routine of activities, and demands it.

We now have more time for social activities than the semester system would allow. Most of our afternoons are free from scholastic duties, and, after all, an educated man is one who has wisdom in a large variety of fields, of which a classroom presents a minority.

So let us be original. We do not have to follow the semester system just because other schools have not waked up to the advantages in the quarter system. Great things cannot be accomplished without some originality. The trouble is "We have a good thing and don't realize it."

Dear Good Friends:

I clipped your pictures from the Daily News and put them in my Scrap Book.

Your Pictures show you to be Intelligent in the common Acceptation of Intelligence.

But I am Sorry to say I am SURE you have been Mistaught like I was.

I am 71, have given our Educational system about 30 Very Careful Study.

I find it about 90% PURE BULL. That being TRUE, after You Boys Come Out Our Colleges and Universities you find No Jobs in the Line You Have Been Taught,

Then that Steady Grind of Getting Bull out of your Minds and Study Something Useful.

My advise to You is Go through, but Get some PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE along with that Bull Son?

Quit Studying How to be a Lawyer, that Profession is already Over done.

Quit Studying how to be a Great Merchant, Banker, Insurance Agent, or any way of Trying to get a Living without doing Honest Work?

Delve into the Mechanical, Scientifical, and Inventive fields?

Be Sure and Study some Mechanical Trade, there is always an OPENING for the Expert Mechanic, and Inventors.

Harris And Minor Stroke Through To All-Carolina Final Round In Tourney

Minor Comes Through as Dark Horse to Defeat Conqueror Of Willis, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

FINALS THIS AFTERNOON

Carolina Places Three Teams in Doubles Semi-Finals, to Be Played at 10:30 A.M.

Harvey Harris and Bill Minor, both of Carolina, crashed through to the final round of the state tennis championships yesterday afternoon with sparkling straight-set victories in both the quarter and semi-finals.

"Big Bill" Minor proved to be the dark horse of the tourney and all eyes are trained on this colorful player as he attempts to capture the state title this afternoon against Harris.

Harris Beats Levitan

In the semi-finals both players downed dangerous Tar Heels. Harris took on Captain Levitan and rode into the final by 6-1, 6-3, 8-6 scores. Levitan was visibly outplayed in the first set, recovered somewhat on the second, and then staged a true battle in the last one.

Harris also administered a severe beating to Eddy De Gray in the quarter-final, 6-1, 6-0. De Gray put up a miserable exhibition as Harris waded through him with surprising ease.

Minor Whips Shore

Minor was indeed impressive as he crushed Frank Shore in the semis, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. Shore had previously pulled a mild upset when he defeated Ricky Willis, seeded second, in a brilliant encounter that was alive with sparkling play.

Before beating Shore, Minor had eliminated Lewis of Davidson, who was seeded third, in low score straight sets.

The final today between Harris and Minor has as its background the real possibility of Minor rising against the top seeded ace. This match will start at 3:30 o'clock, with the doubles final scheduled for about the same time.

In the doubles tourney, three Carolina combinations moved into the semi-final. De Gray and Levitan and Abels and Harris paced the field with two victories each, and Minor and Shore won by default. Lewis and Phifer's victory for Davidson over Taylor-Martin of Duke provided the thrills in a long three-set match. The semi-finals go on this morning at 10:30.

STUDENTS, THIS IS A SITUation which affects everyone of us. We are all familiar with the "big man" who turns out to be a dud. The reason that he is a dud is that his reputation for bigness was built on an ability to do almost useless research—and the ability to do exhaustive research, if it does not require that a man be a dud, it certainly has the faculty of eventually making him one. Our profs must wake up—revise the notes they made twenty-five years ago and are teaching from today. Students, and their enlightenment, is the great object of education, and the reason why Geoffrey Shakespeare or somesuch spelt baloney in three different ways in the year 1892 is not!

Hi Golf

The fourth annual golf meet for North Carolina high schools was won by Durham yesterday with a score of 656. Ernest Reemey of Greensboro won the individual title with a score of 156 for the 36 holes played.

High Point was second and Greensboro third.

The meet was played on the Hope Valley course. Coach Kenfield took charge of the play and pairings in behalf of the State High School Athletic Association. Twelve teams took part in the meet, the largest number of entrants since the tournament was inaugurated.

Golf Team

Athens, Ga., April 26.—In the individual matches here on the second day of the open southern intercollegiate meet, Erwin Laxton and Dick Harris of the Tar Heel team lost to Paul Leslie of L. S. U. and Charlie Yates of Georgia Tech, respectively.

Walter Pijanowski won over Francis Dawes of Furman, Wilson Coffin defeated Jack Lovell of Tennessee, and Henry Bridgers downed Bayward Storm of Duke.

Laxton and Harris got defaults in the afternoon, will play each other tomorrow. Pijanowski beat Stafford of Augusta, is to play Fred Haas, Jr., of L. S. U. Coffin's win over Bridgers allows him to meet Powell of Duke tomorrow.

Carolina Nine Battles N.C. State At Raleigh; Crouch Will Pitch

Flythe Will Probably Oppose Tar Heel Star

Wolfpack Lost First, 5-2; Montgomery, Third, and Tatum, Catcher, Likely Starters.

IMPORTANT TILT IN RACES

Freddie Crouch will once more be on the mound for the Tar Heels when Carolina's nine battles State at Raleigh this afternoon.

Coach Bunn Hearn will take almost his entire squad to the capital city for the Big Five and Southern Conference game. With a victory over the same Wolfpack already tucked away, Carolina has a perfect record in the conference.

Flythe, who the Tar Heels defeated 5-2 in the game at Chapel Hill, is expected to again pitch for State. Freeman, a lefthander, may start in the box although Carolina has a long list of right-handed batters who would usually give a southpaw plenty of trouble.

Crouch One Up

In the first meeting of the opposing clubs Crouch held the Wolfpack to five hits and one earned run. Flythe also allowed but one earned marker, his team mates' errors causing the defeat.

Coach Hearn announced yesterday that Jim Tatum would probably do the catching today and that Tatum and Strayhorn would alternate from now on.

Harry Montgomery, who started his first game just two days ago, will again be at third. The football captain had a perfect day in the field and got one hit in three times at bat against the Wildcats.

Rest of Team

The rest of the infield will contain the same usual trio of Buck McCarn, Trip Rand, and Tommy Irwin. Captain Thurman Vick in center is the one sure man to start in the outfield, while the other two players will be picked from Ed Voliva, Ed Shapiro, Gus McIver, and Lefty Groome.

Besides its pitcher, State is expected to use Johnson, second base; Williams, first base; Lambeth, shortstop; Norwood, centerfielder; Staton, Catcher; Rex, leftfielder; Farrar, rightfielder, and Ware, third base.

With four wins and two losses already on their Big Five record, the Tar Heels must take this contest if they expect to keep pace with Duke's fast-stepping outfit. The Blue Devils now lead the state race with Carolina second.

reservation the game follows a series of tribal ceremonies based upon ancient customs of the race.

The climax to a busy day for the 1,500 Boy Scouts will be the Jubilee pageant at 7 o'clock in Kenan stadium. This pageant will be the highlight of the part played by the Boy Scouts and will dramatize phases of the life of a member of this youth organization.

The Carolina Playmakers will continue their series of new plays tonight at 8:30. The bill consists of a repetition of "New Nigger," by Fred Howard, and "Ca'line," by Mrs. Kelly Harris, and "Back Stage," a newspaper melodrama, by Don Shoemaker. These plays were all written by students of Professor Koch's playwriting class and Samuel Selden's class in directing.

FRESHMEN BEAT DURHAM HIGH, 6-3

Yearlings Take Early Lead and Then Play Safe; Burnette Gets Homer in First.

In a loosely-played game the Carolina freshmen beat Durham high school 6-3 on Emerson field yesterday. The game was slow and marked by erratic fielding on both sides.

Bucculo started on the mound for the home club but could not find the plate, issuing three passes. He retired with no men out in the second inning in favor of Parker who pitched the remaining eight frames and allowed the visitors only five hits.

The Durham aggregation scored one run in the first and added two more to their total in the second by virtue of two walks, a couple of miscues, and a hit.

Frosh Tie Score

The frosh tied the score in their half of the first when Bunny Burnette clouted one over the left-fielder's head for a homer.

The following inning saw the yearlings take the lead with a three-run rally which was featured by Bricklemyer's triple down the left field foul line. His blow drove in two runs, and he himself tallied a minute later on an infield out.

Two more runs were scored by the first-year men in the sixth. LeGrande walked, and successive singles by Lloyd and Bricklemyer, with an infield out, sent two men across the plate.

Lloyd, with two hits in four trips to the plate, and Bricklemyer, with a triple and a single, captured hitting honors for the freshmen. Outstanding for the visitors were Lougee and Morrison, each collecting two safe blows. Parker also looked good in his role as a relief pitcher.

ALUMNI CONTEST INTEREST STRONG

Old Grads Vie with Each Other In Contributing Sums for Use of University.

The two contests in alumni loyalty being sponsored simultaneously by the Alumni Fund office are in full swing, interest among old graduates is running high. Awards will be made as a part of the commencement exercises.

The first of these contests is between the alumni classes. The award, an oil painting of President Graham, will be given to the class which has the largest per cent of its members making some donation to the Alumni Loyalty Fund during this year. The winners will be declared champions in alumni loyalty, and the picture, becoming the permanent property of the winning class, will be hung in Graham Memorial.

Second Contest

The second contest is between counties, and is similar to the other except that the competition is limited to the counties of North Carolina. The prize is 100 University Press books, which are to be placed either in a public or school library in the winning county.

The only restriction placed on the classes and counties is that they have a minimum of 25 members.

In all North Carolina there are only 14 counties which are unable to meet the required quota. All of the classes from 1881 to 1933, inclusive, have the required number.

LEWIS, OLD EAST FEATURE MURALS

Old West, Aycock "A," S. A. E. Are Other Tennis Winners.

Lewis and Old East featured the intramural tennis competition yesterday afternoon as the former won a long drawn-out match by a 2-1 count.

In the other matches Old West conquered Mangum, 2-0, Aycock "A" won over Ruffin by the same score, and S. A. E. completed an unfinished match with St. Anthony, the former taking a 2-1 verdict.

Kasen of Lewis got off to a fast start and whipped Ellis, 5-1, 5-0, but Leight's loss to Taylor, 1-5, 5-1, 5-2, caused the doubles to be played.

This was also a long match, but Kasen and Ditch finally took the win by a 5-3, 1-5, 5-4 margin over Ellis and Taylor.

Fiore of Aycock defeated Clark of Ruffin, 2-5, 5-3, 5-3, and Onasch won by 5-0, 4-5, 5-3 scores over Ogelsby to make a clean sweep for the upper quadrangle team. McNair and London won for Old West in straight sets over Hendrix and McMichal, respectively.

After ending in a 1-1 deadlock last week, the S. A. E. and St. Anthony teams met in a doubles match to decide the verdict, in which Poe and Cope, S. A. E., defeated Morris and Wetherbee in straight sets.

ABERNETHY FAILS IN HIGH HURDLES

No Results Obtained on Medley Relay Event in Which Four Tar Heels Were Entered.

FOUR-MILE RELAY TODAY

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 26.—Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne of the University of North Carolina, after placing second in the semi-finals of the 220-yard low hurles, qualified for the finals which will be held here tomorrow.

Frank Abernethy, another Tar Heel ace hurdler, won his first heat in the 120-yard highs, but failed to qualify in the finals after not placing in the semi-final heat.

The Tar Heels' crack four-mile relay team is one of the favorites in the event to be run tomorrow afternoon. This team, composed of Harry Williamson, outstanding middle distance runner of the south, Dick Gabori, Graham Gammon, and Ed Waldrop, should come close to breaking the existing relay record for this event.

In the first day of events at this annual meet, in which 3,000 athletes representing 500 institutions are participating, Jack Torrance, former L. S. U. intercollegiate and A. A. U. champion, threw the shot put slightly over 62 feet to break the world's record and provide the real thrill of the meet.

Grover Everett, stellar Virginia hurdler and Southern Conference indoor and outdoor champion, performed brilliantly in defense of his Penn Relays championship, and is favored against a strong field tomorrow afternoon.

Teams from every section of the United States except the Pacific Coast are gathered at Franklin Field in this year's meet, regarded as one of the most brilliant in all Penn Relays history.

Banquet

Van Hecke announced the law school student honors for the year. The Hill Law Review prize of $50.00, established by George Watts Hill of the Durham bar, for the best total contribution to the North Carolina Law Review during the year was awarded to Donald W. Markham.

Markham was also designated by the faculty as student editor-in-chief of the Law Review for next year and as faculty research assistant.

Frank Marion Parker was named as assistant student editor-in-chief of the Law Review and also as faculty research assistant. William Robert Booth was appointed to the third faculty research assistantship.

Order of the Coif

Selected from among the highest ten per cent of the class in point of scholarship, Joel Barber Adams and E. C. Willis, Jr., were elected to membership in the North Carolina chapter of the national honorary law school society of the Order of the Coif.

For distinction at the bar, Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell was elected to honorary membership in the Order of the Coif. Dr. Van Hecke also announced that Adams had also been granted a Sterling graduate fellowship at Yale University school of law for next year.

Brogden Present

President of the Law School Association Herbert Taylor's banquet was preceded on the outside of the Carolina Inn by the arrival of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court W. J. Brogden of Durham. "Will Rogers of our Supreme Court" Brogden packed the young lawyers and banquet guests about him . . . The Carolina sports fan was a good talker.

Large Crowd Views Crafts; Exhibits To Continue Today

Yesterday the arts and crafts exhibits of the 1935 Dogwood Festival were thrown open to the public, and a large number of visitors thronged the Graham Memorial, Peabody, and Hill Music hall exhibit rooms to see the many examples of native handicraft and art on display.

The crowds of spectators viewing the exhibits would indicate that the opening day of the festival was a decided success. In Graham Memorial they examined with interest the many collections of basketry, block prints, books, brooms, copperware, coverlets, hooked rugs, Indian craft, jewelry, needle-craft, pewter-ware, photographs, pottery, quilts, silver-ware, tooled leather, weaving, woodcarving, and wrought iron.

Banquet Room

The banquet room in Graham Memorial was piled high with the various exhibitions, with many Chapel Hill women obligingly pointing out to the onlookers the articles of most interest and narrating the story behind the outstanding pieces.

The articles requiring more skill in craftsmanship were displayed in the Grail room, among which were examples of delicate woodcarving, handsome pieces of hand-wrought silverware, and striking exhibits of wood-work by our own University buildings department.

Children's Exhibit

The arts of youth exhibits were shown in Peabody hall. These exhibits consist mainly of the work done by children in the graded schools of the state, and show remarkable artistic ability on the part of these amateur artists. Some of the attempts of the youngsters at artistic expression provoked amusement on the part of the spectators. One of the visitors, after looking intently at one of the pictures, was overheard to remark that "the biology department ought to investigate this cow."

An exhibition of oil paintings is being held in Hill Music hall. These are mainly paintings by contemporary American artists, and are being loaned to the Dogwood Festival by the Macbeth Galleries of New York City.

STUDENT MEETING OPENS IN RALEIGH

N. C. Federation Will Discuss Student Problems and Present Educational Situation.

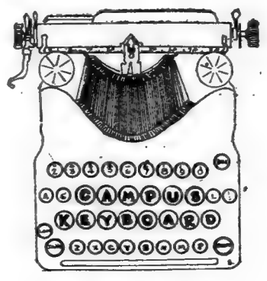
The annual convention of the North Carolina Federation of Students opened yesterday with a banquet at the Sir Walter hotel in Raleigh. All of the major colleges of North Carolina, except Davidson, and many of the smaller colleges are represented.

The meeting which will last through Sunday, is being held to discuss national student relations, various problems of student government, publications, and the educational situation in North Carolina.

Speakers at the convention are Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Ralph McDonald, Dr. Sheldon Smith of Duke, and Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial.

Carolina Student Founder

The state federation was founded in 1930 by John Lang, then a student at Carolina and now president of the National Federation of Students. It was the first state federation in the United States. Among the Carolina men who have served as its officers are John Lang, first president; Haywood Weeks, president during 1932-33; and Jack Pool, present chairman of the executive committee.



"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, APRIL 28, 1935 | NUMBER 156

by the Editor

BARKING OPINION

We note a little item from the Waynesville paper, which ran it as follows:

"The Kings Mountain Presbytery yesterday voted against dancing in any form at Davidson College."

We're not going to pass an opinion, but we'll let the little fellow speak for himself. All we have to say is that a dog is much better off scratching a gadding flea, which he dismantles with much pleasure, than trying to rid himself of a lowly tick which sucks all his life blood.

Which all goes to prove that we have an excess imagination. At least, it ought to prove that to the Kings Mountain Presbytery.

PLATFORM EDITOR

Henry Nelson Lansdale, new Finjan editor, is a most versatile person. First he has a splintery plank in a campaign of local politics, and most recently he has become chief mourner at the funeral of a defeated politician.

You see, one candidate for public office ran on the strength of a supposed "dirty deal" toward Mr. Lansdale. This candidate lost, which meant little or nothing to the latter. Now, the victorious candidate for the student body presidency won't lift a finger toward helping Mr. Lansdale get his Finjan changed to the Buccaneer again because it was the slogan of one of his rivals in the recent political imbroglio, "Change Finjan Back to Buccaneer."

It must be fun to be so fought over. The funny part about the whole thing is that Lansdale has had no interest nor has been involved in the political wrangling and its subsequent results.

As for ourselves, we'd rather be the editor of a magazine than just another issue. So would Lansdale.

BOVINE SURVEY

The Association of Southern Colleges and Secondary Schools, as we know, was polled by the administration to see what the general rule for class hours was.

Over 65 of the institutions (around 100 answered) reported that they held classes in the morning at 8 o'clock.

We like polls and this was a good one. But we scanned the list of this association yesterday and found that most of the schools were rural institutions.

In these institutions even 8 o'clock is probably regarded as being afternoon, since the cows were milked three or four hours earlier. Also, the butter was churned and the pigs fed in the meantime.

Belonging to the Association of American Universities and being rather proud of the fact, we believe that this University would do a better job polling institutions more like ourselves.

We would suggest that the southern group be polled again and all schools reporting retiring hours before 9 p. m. be thrown out. That would help some.

INCOMING COUNCIL WILL DISCUSS BUC-FINJAN QUESTION

Incoming Editor Lansdale Wants Return to "Buccaneer" in Name, Not in Policy.

COUNCIL TO MEET TODAY

The Student Council, full of new members, will be put to test tomorrow night for the first time in the 1935-36 administration as the Buccaneer vs. Finjan controversy claims its attention.

Incoming humor magazine editor Nelson Lansdale wants the name of that publication to be changed back to "Buccaneer" again, after a year's appearance as the Carolina Finjan. So the Student Council will put its brains together and decide the question of grave importance.

Last fall there was considerable difficulty after the Carolina Buccaneer had been abolished, because the Student Council could not solve how to apply Buccaneer fees to the newly-created Finjan. This was finally achieved after some haggling.

Lansdale does not want people to get the impression that his desire for the re-instatement of the Buccaneer title is motivated by a plan to put out a magazine similar to the ill-fated Buccaneer.

"'Finjan' Means Nothing"

"Changing the name to Buccaneer does not involve any return to the policy of the old Buccaneer," he stated yesterday. "The name Finjan simply doesn't mean anything to me or

McKEE LAUNCHES N. C. NEWS SERVICE

Weekly News Service to 80 State High and Preparatory Schools Will Start Tomorrow.

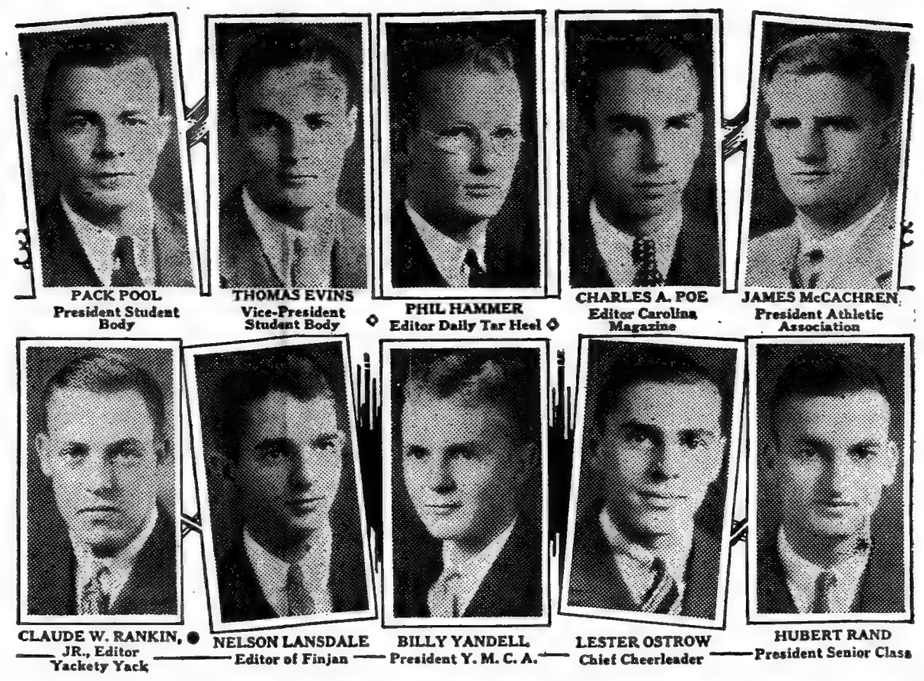
The first release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service to North Carolina high school newspapers will be sent out tomorrow afternoon.

Forty-five high school publications in the state and 25 preparatory institutions in and around North Carolina will receive the News bulletins.

General News

Included in the two mimeographed pages of general news about the University will be presented the results of the Penn Relays, the formation by the Di and Phi of a bi-cameral legislative body, the reorganization of the DAILY TAR HEEL, the Boy Scout Jamboree, the state high school golf tournament, recent Carolina track meets and baseball games, the numerous victories of the Carolina tennis team, the Southern Conference golf tournament, and the Everett dormitory plan.

The results of a report by Associate Registrar Ben Husbands showing from which towns in the state Carolina gets most of her students are also included in the bulletins.



In addition to the two sheets of mimeographed material which will be sent to all the institutions on the list, approximately 40 schools will receive a page of personals telling what their alumni are doing at Carolina.

Weekly Feature

The news service, which is one of the features of the new DAILY TAR HEEL program, will be sent out weekly until the end of the

McKie Will Read Drama Of History Tonight

Professor to Give "Valley Forge" At Playmakers Theatre.

Professor George McKie of the English department will read Maxwell Anderson's historical drama, "Valley Forge," in the Playmakers theatre tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

"Valley Forge" portrays Washington at his noblest and bravest, with the bitter world for a background. Historically accurate, and telling as it does, the story of courageous, outspoken men and women in the language of the period, it is a play to be read as well as seen. In it the defiant spirit of 1776 is brought to life again as no dramatist has done before.

The play enjoyed a successful season in New York where it was presented by the Theatre Guild with Philip Merivale playing the role of George Washington. It was favorably reviewed by the New York Evening Post, the New York Times, and the New York Sun.

The reading of "Valley Forge" is the eighth Sunday evening reading to be given by the Playmakers this year.

Professor McKie has read "Green Pastures," "Capponsachi," and others on the play reading program.

SCOUTS TO BREAK JAMBOREE CAMP AFTER BREAKFAST

Khaki-Clad Youths Conclude Four Days of Activity Today After Camp Service.

GOVERNOR TALKS TO BOYS

Concluding a jam-full four days of Sociology Harold D. Meyer's "camporee," the 1,500 North Carolina Boy Scouts will officially make their exit from Bob Madry's "University Village" this morning at 9 a. m.

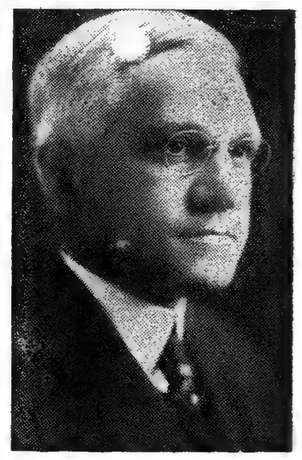
Again awaking the fraternity sleepers at 6 o'clock, the anniversary celebraters will breakfast this morning with Swain Hall Harmon and at 8 o'clock will attend the Rev. Donald Stewart's camp church and song service.

Breaking Camp

Dr. Meyer has set 8:30 for breaking camp of the huge statewidely represented aggregation of little men in khaki who have this week cheered together their own national leader James E. West, University President Frank Graham, State Governor John Christoph Blucher Ehringhaus, and other "American Scouts."

Running the little men 16 hours a day, Meyer yesterday sent the Scouts through their most important day which included last night's brilliant "pageant of scouting."

Administrative Dean "Bob" House extended the University's welcome and Chief Scout Executive West delivered the principal address. Paul Schenck of Greensboro, regional scout chairman, presided.



Many Councils

Various councils of the state Scout organization participated in the colorful affair which ended with the salute to the flag and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner." The University band under the direction of Earl Slocum furnished music for the occasion and William Wessel officiated in his capacity of camp chief.

For James E. West, President and Mrs. Graham entertained at a beautifully appointed luncheon yesterday at 1 p. m. in the president's mansion. Guests

Saunders Announces Commencement Plans

Senior Executive Committee Hears Schedule of Events.

Spike Saunders presented the tentative schedule of events for the 1935 commencement to the senior executive committee, at a recent meeting held at the "Y." Those events that have been definitely arranged are listed below:

On June 9, Baccalaureate Sunday, at 11 a. m., the Baccalaureate Sermon will be given, and at 4 p. m., a lawn concert will be given by the University Band. On June 10, Alumni Day, at 10 a. m., the Carolina theatre will present a movie, "Old Days in Chapel Hill," and at 9:30 p. m., there will be an alumni reception and ball.

On June 11, at 7:00 p. m., graduation exercises will take place at Kenan stadium. Hon. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, governor of North Carolina, will give an address and present the diplomas to the graduates.

Our Mistake

Yesterday's picture of Paul W. Schenck, regional Boy Scout chairman, might have appeared in disguise. In fact it was in terrific disguise. Really the picture was that of Kenneth Bentz, regional Scout executive from Atlanta, Ga. Both Schenck and Bentz are taking part in the Scouting Anniversary-Jubilee.

CAMPUS LEADERS TO BE INSTALLED MONDAY AT 10:30

With One Committee Appointed, Pool Will Be Inducted as Student President.

FEW HAVE BEGUN DUTIES

The winners of the recent campus elections will be inducted into office tomorrow morning at 10:30 in Memorial hall.

Among those who will formally begin their terms at that time, is "Jack" Pool, who energetically assumed the duties of his office as president of the student body a few days ago with permission of the present Student Council.

Already the newly elected president has begun appointing committees, notably the student activities committee which, for the coming year, will be composed of Fred Weaver, Frank Willingham, and Phil Hammer.

"Madame" Hammer

Although he beat the starting gun by over a week in publication of the DAILY TAR HEEL, Phil Hammer will be installed as editor at the ceremony tomorrow morning.

Nelson Lansdale will take over the helm of the Carolina Finjan, although he already has started reorganizing the staff and collecting copy for his first issue.

SCOUTS PRESENT CLOSING PAGEANT

Many Important Executives Present Last Night as Scouts Celebrate Anniversary.

Marching behind the Stars and Stripes and the banner of the Boy Scouts of America, stepping four abreast to the martial strains played by the University band, some 1,500 Scouts entered Kenan stadium last night to participate in the greatest pageant of Scouting ever presented in the south.

The occasion was in recognition of the 25th anniversary of Scouting which is being celebrated at this time. Rededicating themselves to the Scout oath led by Dr. James E. West, chief Scout executive, the vast assemblage of Scouts filed into the reserved section for the impressive ceremonies which were presided over by Paul W. Schenck, regional chairman.

Scout Instruction

Various scenes depicting phases of Scout instruction were presented by North Carolina councils. Scouts were instructed in citizenship activities, community life, in fun and leisure, and in training for the service of his fellowman.

Most impressive were the bridges of advancement which the Scouts were made to cross before finally reaching the highest goal in Scouting, the eagle award. Proud were the 22 who received this award from the hands of their chief, who gave each a slap on the back and a word of encouragement.

Chief Scout of the World, Lord Baden Powell of England, presented to Dr. West the Golden Arrow of brotherhood and international good-will.

To the strains of the Star Spangled Banner the youthful Scouts closed the ceremony, and with the call to quarters they filed from the stadium.

FRATERNITIES MUST MOVE

Fraternity men have lined up their forces to defend themselves against administrative action in compelling freshmen to live in dormitories. They argue that the move would be ruinous to many local lodges.

The strength of their argument lies in the supposed fact that the University encouraged the building of large fraternity houses in the late '20's to provide space for overflow students from the dormitories. To keep freshmen from staying in the fraternity houses now would be an unethical, unfair act on this basis.

We backed the fraternities on the same assumption. But yesterday we were emphatically shown that the University did NOT encourage the building. In fact, they discouraged it.

Let us take this as an assumption, rather than a fact, because we have no figures or black-and-white proof at the present.

There are three roots of the drive to keep freshmen from fraternity houses: alumni and trustees who believe the fraternities are a demoralizing influence upon freshmen; administrative and trustee officers who consider the financial needs of the University; and alumni, faculty, and administrative leaders who feel that the unity of the freshman class is broken up by fraternity rooming.

The only obvious answer which the fraternities can have to the first root is that fraternities ARE a definitely developing and ameliorating influence on the freshmen. This can be proved, not by the simple statement of the fact, but by a definite move to improve fraternity conditions, to vindicate the only logical excuse for fraternities, namely: to add something more than the dormitories can give.

There is no fraternity answer to the second. Nobody can foretell economic conditions with accuracy and the fraternities will have to shift for themselves as best they can. If they can't, they go. And it's their own responsibility. If mistakes were made in building mansions instead of houses, then they must suffer or retain enough upperclassmen by their goodness to survive in the face of non-frosh-rooming.

To the last root, the answer must be action. Fraternities must prove that fraternity unity is more important than University unity. They must wake up, adopt a tutorial system, systematize, become positive instead of negative influences. Those which cannot do so must fall.

The problem is not North Carolina's; it is the nation's. Everywhere fraternities have had to get on the ball to vindicate their existence. Colleges and universities have improved dormitory facilities. If the fraternities have nothing better to offer than physical lay-outs, they must leave, because dormitories are being improved in many other ways also.

Local fraternity men have made several errors. Firstly, they have taken their own lodges and adopted a bigoted attitude, hostile to the administration. Secondly, they have waited for a move on the part of the administration, which will not come. The trustees are the actors, not the administration. The fraternities should have come out and showed efforts of reform and action toward improvement. This would be a strong argument for the trustees. But the inactivity and silent suffering are poor talk.

Our student government is given more freedom than any in the entire United States. Fraternities have the opportunity of combatting a move against them by showing improvement. But they have failed to be awakened. And they gripe because they think the administration is antagonistic.

Don't take our word for it; we leave the assumption an assumption, though we are convinced. Fraternity men should convince themselves, and do something about it. It is not the administration's place to go around suggesting this and that; it's the fraternities' responsibility.

A little known fact is that the one man in the administration every one has shouted at for the proposed policy is the only man, absolutely the sole man, who has been upholding the fraternities' viewpoint. He has advocated giving them a chance to act and they have been blind. It was he who checked the policy's being adopted last fall, when the trustees wanted to do it.

The problem, then, boils down to this: fraternities must answer charges by action to vindicate themselves. Those which cannot do so must be abolished. The campus body will be better off.

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

Heywood Broun once remarked that Hoover is a man who can't even be given credit for having tried hard. Personally, I don't feel that I am qualified to take issue with Heywood Broun, but I hope that when—and if—Herbert Corey, author of "The Truth About Hoover," read Mr. Broun's comment, he felt moved to call the columnist what he calls most of the others who are reduced to slinging mud at an ex-President when they can find nothing else to say.

There's no need to defend Hoover by resorting to the time-worn argument that he was simply unfortunate in being President when a crash came. Such a premise would admit that Hoover is the vacillating do-nothing his enemies paint him.

Herbert Hoover is a keen-minded, one-hundred per cent American whose personal and political reputation was blackened by the efforts of Democratic propagandists in 1932. New Deal exponents promised to relieve the depression in short order, but before they could begin anything constructive, it seemed necessary to them to deal out a little something in the way of destruction—which, of course, is nothing new in campaign policy. The nearest target for them to aim at was the President in office at the time of the crash. They were fortunate in having him for an opposing candidate. At such close range, it was hard to miss. They did their work well, and when they were through, Hoover was widely believed to be a crook, a liar, a snob, a slacker, and several other such names that are most commonly heard when second rate politicians begin to sling mud.

By contrast to President Roosevelt's undeniable personality and his extensive self-advertisement, Hoover's retiring manner and his quiet way of going about a job make him appear at a disadvantage. Actually, he is as dynamic and as efficient a man as his successor.

At present, Hoover is before the public eye as the protagonist in a back-to-the-Constitution movement. Those who have read his "Challenge to Liberty" are aware that he sees nothing in the present state of affairs that makes it necessary to resort to radical measures for solution. He has warned us of the trend towards Fascism under the New Deal just as he warned the world of an impending crash before it came.

Hoover is being listened to. The Republican party is busy girding its loins for next year's battle. Hoover's attack upon the New Deal is the song of the trumpet ringing in his party's ears. And mixed in among the Republicans can be found no inconsiderable number of those who, once staunch New Dealists, have grown weary of following the New Deal without being told its itinerary.

If Hoover can keep clear of what someone had in mind when he said, "If you can't think of anything else, give them patriotism," his appeal will be a strong one. There is a tendency to soar into flights of oratory when discussing the Constitution. That sort of thing went, once, but we're too hard-bitten these days to call a thing good simply because it is sentimental. —D. S.

Now YOU'RE Talking

STRAIGHT STUFF

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

This letter is for the information of Mr. Norman Kellar, "A Loyal Tar Heel," and any others who may have the same misconceptions regarding the finances of student organizations.

All student organizations collecting compulsory fees through the University are operated under the system set up by the Student Audit Board. This system provides for the keeping of adequate records of financial transactions, and for the auditing of these records by a certified public accountant. The board, realizing that most rumors of graft and mishandling of funds are due to lack of knowledge of the facts, has gone a step further and provided that annual statements of all organizations be published in the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Due to lack of space it is impossible to publish more than condensed statements. However, as has been repeatedly announced, it is the privilege of any student paying fees to an organization to secure any detailed information he may desire regarding the finances of that organization. This may be done by calling at the Student Activities Fund office, 208 Graham Memorial.

ROBERT H. SHERRILL,
Student Activities Auditor.

WANTS INVESTIGATION

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

If the letter by "A Loyal Tar Heel" in the issue of April 26, relating to an investigation of the Athletic Association, was intended to awaken the student body and provoke a storm of criticism, I venture to say that it was rather successful.

On the other hand if it was an expression of a supposed serious thought, it most certainly represents the criterion of stupidity and narrow-mindedness.

For a college student to oppose an investigation of possible, and may I add, probable fraud, for the simple reason that our superiority over Duke is threatened, appears to speak poorly for the present generation.

If the Athletic Association activities warrant a thorough investigation, by all means encourage one, and I am sure that Carolina will not suffer on the field of sport. The writer seems to indicate that an honest organization cannot possibly send a powerful team upon an athletic field.

And he adds that Duke does not investigate their association. Such logic is incredible! Possibly Duke does not have the necessity, but a growing tendency on this campus calls for a probing, and therefore let one be held.

"ALSO A LOYAL TAR HEEL"

SUPPRESSION IN SPENCER

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In every modern college, students are supposed to have the right to draw up and present petitions, if some situation is not to their liking. Why should we be denied this right?

The co-eds in Spencer hall have enjoyed radios most of the year without any official protest. When an announcement was posted on the bulletin board to the effect that radios were not allowed in girls' rooms, ostensibly because they were disturbing, a petition was started saying that the undersigned had no objections to the girls owning and operating radios in their rooms, and asked that they be granted this privilege. The petition had been posted, on the same bulletin board, only a short time before over 60 of the 75 girls now living in Spencer had signed it. Others had declared their intention of so doing; indeed, the writer of this letter, after extensive questioning, has failed to find any girl who did not intend to sign the petition if she had not already done so.

But before the signing could be completed, and the sponsors of the petition could take it to Mrs. Stacy, as they had planned, two things happened in swift succession. First, all of the girls known to have radios were called to Mrs. Lee's office and ordered to surrender them. These radios are now locked up in a storeroom. (The writer does not own a radio, nor does her room mate, so she is not motivated by any desire to regain a confiscated possession, but solely by a desire to see permitted what she believes to be an integral part of student government).

The second occurrence was the removal of the petition by Mrs. Lee. It was not allowed to be signed by those who had not yet done so; nor, more important, were its sponsors given an opportunity to present it to Mrs. Stacy, whom they believed the proper authority. The presentation is a necessary part of any petition. Surely if the right of making a petition is ours, we are allowed to complete it to the extent of presenting it! What strange custom allows a third party, not a petitioner, nor the person to whom the petition is addressed, to decide its disposition?

A SPENCER CO-ED.

GINGERBREAD

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The debate on class extension could probably be greatly clarified if both proponents and opponents would read an editorial in this week's Saturday Evening Post, entitled "Tercentenary." In the fourth paragraph the editor speaks of knowledge as a "pill," and at the very bottom of the column he advises us that anything save the classics—English, Latin and Greek—may be called "gingerbread." In any event, thinks this eminent editor, education—whatever it is—should be prescribed by the faculty, a student unwilling to swallow the pill presented will be kicked out of school.

A position of that type is hard to maintain in these times. Young people have been told at church that the doctrine of Jesus is so much better than the ten commandments that, even in religion, it is permissible to use a bit of common sense. They have been allowed to take moonlight drives until it has practically become obsolete for a swain to smack his gal with a war club, in order to win her affection. They have heard eminent speakers declare from our rostrum that financial "seers" of

Harris Wins State Crown In Fast Five Set Victory After Trailing Bill Minor

Doubles Title to Be Decided Next Week When Levitan-De Gray Meet Minor-Shore.

MINOR IS HAILED AS STAR

Losing at Intermission, Harris Shows Thrilling Comeback to Win Next Two Games.

A superb rally in the closing minutes of yesterday afternoon brought Harvey Harris, Carolina ace, a thrilling five-set victory over Bill Minor, and with it the state tennis championship.

The doubles title will have to await next week until a definite decision will be made. Levitan and De Gray are to meet Minor and Shore in the final encounter. The match, scheduled for play immediately after the singles was cancelled because of darkness. It is another all-Carolina final.

Five Long Sets

Playing with brilliant smoothness and remarkable coolness, Harris returned to the court after the first intermission, trailing two sets to one, and attained a new pitch as the thronged bleachers watched Minor falter on the verge of recognition and bow by the scores of 3-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The match was one of the finest played contests on the Carolina courts this year. Both boys hit soundly and cleanly and the exhibition was worthy of a state championship final.

"Big Bill" Minor played as he has never played before. He was consistent in hitting and Harris' rock-bound defense made the volleys long and sparkling.

The players divided the opening two sets with equal ease, but Minor steadily increased his tempo and when he captured the third set, he appeared well on the path to his greatest victory.

The fourth and crucial set

CHEROKEE INDIANS ARE NOT SOFTIES IN NATIVE GAMES

Standing Deer Gives Archery Exhibition.

Led by the speedy, side-stepping Crow, the Wolftown team defeated the Yellowhill club, 12-8, in the native ball game staged by the Cherokee Indians on Emerson field yesterday.

After the ball game, Chief Standing Deer, champion of the Cherokee reservation, gave an archery exhibition. Using arrows and a borrowed bow, Chief Standing Deer demonstrated remarkable accuracy. At about 30 yards he hit the middle of a target several times and also a tennis ball and small paper cup.

Roll and Wrestle

Wearing nothing but shorts as protection, the Indians raced, rolled, and wrestled all over Emerson field as the two sides attempted to score by getting the small ball through the pairs of pine trees at each end of the field.

The Cherokees did just about everything a professional wrestler and football player would plus using the two sticks with nets which each player carried in order to catch and pick up the ball. However, just one man received an injury and he managed to last the entire contest.

Star Halfback

Crow showed that he could be a star halfback on almost any football team in the country. He scored six of his team's points, several times taking the ball between the pines after beautiful long dashes.

A. Juanita was by far the best for the losers. He caught opponents from behind who had broken loose in the open and also scored several of the Yellowhill points.

Carolina Donkeymen Will Ride Against Duke's Bronco-Busters

Mule Riders Will Compete in Unique Baseball Contest Sponsored By Lions of Durham; Volunteers Wishing to Participate in Games, Leave Their Names with Herman Schnell.

To all experienced (and inexperienced) jackass riders:

There will be a chance to display your capabilities as bronco-busters next Friday at Durham in the donkey baseball game between Carolina and Duke. This will be another opportunity for the "loyal sons of old Carolina" to display her superiority on the "athletic" field.

A series of these bizarre games will be played, starting Tuesday, April 30. They are sponsored by the Lions Club of Durham and the proceeds will go towards its blind fund. These contests will be played at El Toro park under floodlights.

The game itself is played the same as playground ball except that the locomotion is provided by our long-eared friends of the animal world. A soft playground ball is used and the bases are about 60 feet apart. A circle about eight feet in diameter serves as a base.

Mules "Trained"

The mules are trained and will not buck. This, however, is no sign that they will not suddenly take the notion to stand where they are, or to stop halfway between bases and roll over.

Everyone except the catcher, pitcher, and batter rides a jackass—if he can. The batter stands in his box and when he hits the ball he must mount the donkey's back and try to get it started in the direction of first-base. The real job is to get the animal in the right mood to run at the right time. If it assumes an attitude of "not choosing to run," no amount of coaxing will change its mind.

Also, a fielder, in attempting to retrieve a hit or a throw, must stay on his "charger's" back until he is able to pick up the ball without taking more than one step from said donkey. One of the favorite methods is to hook the foot in the reins and to stretch out on the ground as far as possible. It is necessary to throw all balls from the mounted position.

The Carolina team will be made up of the remaining members of last year's championship intramural baseball team and such volunteers who desire to put their ability as "baseball players" to this supreme test. All those who wish to participate in the game are to leave their name with Herman Schnell on the third floor of South building.

Tickets to the game are now on sale at Alfred-Williams, and if bought in advance will cost 25 cents, whereas, if they are bought at the gate the admission price will be 35 cents.

TRACKSTERS WIN INFORMAL MEET FROM DEACONS

Carolina Varsity and Freshmen Defeat Wake Forest, 97-29.

The remainder of the varsity track squad which did not go to Philadelphia engaged in an informal meet with Wake Forest here yesterday afternoon. The unofficial scoring gave Carolina 97 to Wake Forest's 29.

Freshmen from both schools also competed, and five victories were taken by the Tar Babies. Morris won the javelin throw for the Deacon's only first place. The eight other firsts went to members of the Carolina outfit.

Perhaps the most outstanding performances of the afternoon were those of Gunter and Juliber. The former, a fast improving varsity sprinter, took the century with a time of 10 seconds flat, while Juliber, frosh shot putter, won his event with a 44-foot, 6½-inch heave.

Ullman captured the 220-yard dash in 22 seconds flat; Graham won both hurdles events, and Carlton White took the half-mile for other freshman victories. Two ties occurred, Lou Conte and Marvin Allen in the 1½-mile run, and Bear and Jackson in the pole vault.

The summary:

100-yard dash—Gunter (C), Connell (C), Ullman (C). Time: 10.0.

220-yard dash—Ullman (C), Connell (C), Gunter (C). Time: 22.0.

440-yard run—Keeney (C), Farmer (C), Williams (WF). Time: 51.4.

880-yard run—White (C), Rosser (C), Staton (WF). Time: 2:05.3.

Mile run—Haywood (C), Lynch (C), Drake (WF). Time: 4:47.2.

1½-mile run—Tie between Conte (C) and Allen (C); Leonard (WF). Time: 7:37.5.

120-yard high hurdles — Graham (C), Davis (C), Jones (WF). Time: 16.3.

220-yard low hurdles—Graham (C), Canady (WF), Lambert (C). Time: 25.9.

Discus—Sniscak (C), Barwick (C), Jones (WF). Distance: 124 feet.

Shot put—Juliber (C), Jones (WF), Daniels (WF). Distance: 44 feet 6½ inches.

Broad Jump—Efland (C), Wall (WF), Connell (C). Distance: 21 feet 1¾ inches.

High jump—Triple tie among Parker (C), Efland (C), Wall (WF). Height: 5 feet 6 inches.

Javelin — Morris (WF), Daniels (WF), Turner (WF). Distance: 165 feet 6 inches.

Pole vault—Tie between Jackson (C) and Bear (C); tie for third between Wall (WF) and Lane (WF). Height: 11 feet 6 inches.

Carolina Places In Four Events At Penn Relays

Tar Heels Follow Michigan State And Army to Capture Third Place in Four-Mile Jaunt.

FINISH FOURTH IN 880

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Philadelphia, Pa., April 27.—In one of the closing events of the Penn Relays held here today, the famed four-mile Tar Heel relay team took third place behind Michigan State and Army.

Tom Hawthorne had tough going and finished fourth in the high hurdle event. Co-Captain Hawthorne was preceded by Ward of Michigan, Dod of Bowdoin, and Everett of Virginia.

In the 880-yard relay the team of Abernethy, Hawthorne, Drake, and Finlay finished fourth after Columbia, Cornell, and Pennsylvania. The only other final event in which Carolina took a place was in the broad jump event. Floyd Higby came in third after Peacock of Temple and Little of William and Mary.

About 40,000 spectators saw the 3,000 odd athletes compete in the annual meet which is probably second only to the Olympic games. The meet for a change was run off in perfect weather with a result that many of the Penn Relay ground's records were broken.

Pat Gaskins, out-going editor of the Finjan, named his magazine after the broken handles on the cups of Carolina boarding-houses. This, according to Gaskins, was humorous.

THREE RUN ERROR HANDS STATE WIN OVER TAR HEELS

Freddy Crouch Victim of Heart-Breaker as Six-Hit Pitching Is Loosely Supported.

Riddick Field, Raleigh April 27.—Due to superb fielding by the State outfielders and lax support to Freddy Crouch's six-hit pitching, the boys from Carolina lost a heart-breaker to State here today, 3-1.

Burly Buck McCarn, Heel first-sacker, slapped the first ball pitched to him, at the opening of the second inning, over Norwood's head in centerfield to round the sacks and count Carolina's only marker in today's game. It was the third successive homer for the clean-up man in as many games.

Cap Vick, Shapiro, and Montgomery garnered a single apiece to complete the damage done to the offerings of Flythe, State flinger. Shapiro and Irwin both hit a couple of balls stenciled hits, but sharp fielding by Doak's gardeners prevented threats.

Drastic Sixth

With Carolina holding State by one to nothing through five innings, Dalrymple, Tech third baseman, singled to center, his second hit of the afternoon. Rex, next up, went out Crouch to McCarn, Dalrymple moving up a base on the putout. Norwood followed at the plate and smacked a stiff one close to the ground through Irwin in deep centerfield; it was a hard ball to field. McIver failed to back the shortstop on the play, the ball rolling into deep left-center, Norwood scoring behind Dalrymple.

Scales then singled over second, but was thrown out going down to the middle sack. Johnson hit a bounder to Crouch who threw the pellet over McCarn's head, the hitter going to second on the error. Staton followed with a single to score Johnson for State's third run. Norwood

Festival Is Human Gathering

Dogwood Celebration Is Breeding Place for More Than One Good Story That Would Never Get into State Papers; Bullitt Takes Look at Mountain Carvings but Sticks to Pathology.

Tired perhaps of pathology, Dr. James B. Bullitt sauntered with his pipe into the buzzing midst of women preparing festival exhibits on the second floor of Graham Memorial Thursday afternoon. Everything was confusion, efficiently swinging skirts, folk arts and crafts and female voices. It was decidedly no place for a man. If he wasn't uncomfortable at being such a hopeless minority, he was at least in the way. Dr. Bullitt is a physician, though, and iron-nerved; and he persevered until he found what he wanted, the wood-carving exhibits. He stood looking at the smooth, beautifully-wrought articles for the space of half a pipe, then shook his head and went away muttering, "I had intended to bring some of my own carvings up to show, but this mountain work is too fast company."

That's just one of the little festival features that didn't get into the state papers. When a town's population is suddenly doubled, there are bound to be many anecdotes. Here are some more, which may be true and may not. They're hearsay.

Pi Betes Lose Out

A sad story for one of the campus sororities is the account of how well the exhibits from the Pi Beta Phi-sponsored settlement in the western part of the state sold. As soon as they were put on display, there was a great demand for them. The only hitch was that the good ladies who were handling the exhibit didn't know at what price the articles were to be sold. Boss Elsie Lawrence couldn't be found, so the good ladies made a guess and began doing a great business in Pi Phi exhibit articles at 30 cents each. They cost 40 cents though. . . .

Good Turns

For Don McKee, head of the newly-founded DAILY TAR HEEL news service for neighboring high and prep schools, the festival was a marvelous opportunity. It meant that he had a group of 1,500 Boy Scouts to roam amongst and collect addresses of high school newspapers. He worked at the rate of 15 addresses per 45 minutes . . .

Youthful-spirited Dr. Charlie Mangum got more than he bargained for when he accepted the job of handling the Scout field hospital and requested the high-sounding title, "Chief Medical Director." For these have been thirsty, summer-like days, and the Scouts were boys away from home with a little money; consequently the canteen set up at the east end of the Tin Can prospered and one day as many as 50 Scouts were laid up in the field house, which served as the hospital, with more or less severe cases of soda-popitis . . .

Best House had a house party, with the Indian ball players as guests. "Very tame," was the Best House pronouncement on the "savages" . . .

And so on . . . The Dogwood Festival is a very human gathering . . .

Baseball

with two singles in four tries led the Tech batsmen.

Doak Plays

"T" Vick, first up for Carolina in the sixth, dropped a bingle into leftfield and the blow was errored by Rex, allowing Vick to reach third. Rand fouled out to the catcher. The squeeze play was on with Irwin at bat, but the shortstop bounced a bunt into the pitcher's hands as he came in to field the intended sacrifice and Flythe zoomed the ball in to Staton who was blocking the plate from the speeding Vick.

The catcher successfully blocked and put out the Heel captain, but in so doing was knocked down and out by the resulting collision, the ball still in his hand. Irwin had reached first at this juncture, but was prevented from advancing to second when "Chick" Doak, Tech coach, grabbed the ball from the prone catcher's hand and threw it to Flythe, an action against the rules but carrying no penalty other than that preventing the man on base from advancing after the ball has been touched by one not participating in actual play.

Oratorical Finalists To Speak Tomorrow

The annual oratorical contest sponsored by the Intercollegiate Peace Association will be held in Gerrard hall tomorrow at 8 p. m.

The contest, which is on the general topic of "Peace," is the state finals, the preliminaries having already been held in the various schools.

Three prizes, $50, $30, and $20 have been offered for the best speakers, the winners to be entered in a national contest in New York.

Campus Leaders

body to be inducted tomorrow are Charles Poe, who will begin his task as editor of the Carolina Magazine, and Claude Rankin, who succeeds Robert Drane as editor of the Yackety Yack.

Tom Evins will become formally the vice-president of the student body, and Jim McCachren will assume the duties of president of the senior class. Hubert Rand will be inducted as president of the senior class, and Lester Ostrow as cheer leader. Bill Yandell becomes the head of the Y. M. C. A.

Now You're Talking

the past generation were nothing but ordinary men able for a time to run a bluff. And, finally, they have been advised by all and sundry to keep an open mind, to listen to all kinds of theories, and to form their own opinions.

If educators had not been too busy with other things they would have seen that trouble was on the way. Most people like gingerbread better than they like pills, and if both are proffered on the same campus it is not at all startling that quite a few young hellions shy away from the pill, or at least try to chase away its bad taste by a nibble now and then at something more palatable. The logicians of the faculty will be able to forgive all such, I am sure.

And then so many pill-less guys have actually had the effrontery to succeed! The present commissioner of revenue, the state superintendent of public instruction, a prominent candidate for governor, and the editor of The Progressive Farmer, just to mention a few, get along apparently about as well as those stuffed with pills. But I must not prolong this spiel, for I am neither a student nor a member of the faculty.

Can't you compromise with the opposition by arranging under class extension that elective lectures shall be as dull as most prescribed courses?

Very truly yours,
C. E. M'INTOSH.

wavered in midair as both players broke each other's services continually. However, at four-all, Harris held service and whipped through Minor's offerings to knot the sets at two each.

In the final set, both players again continued their sparkling play, but Harris proved the more powerful and that he had greater reserve.

This noteworthy effort by Minor stamps him as a coming star. Always a dangerous opponent, he reached new heights yesterday as he backed Harris against the wall.

MUTE PRAISE

Yesterday morning when the new campus officers trooped onto the Memorial hall stage to be officially installed, many of them wondered whether the program-arrangers hadn't made a mistake and were leading the officers into where the audience should be, and vice versa.

The program was very inspiring, but the paltry audience wriggled in self-conscious agony nevertheless. They, too, realized that there were almost as many on the stage as in the seats.

One of the new officers, however, told me that it wasn't as bad as it might have been. While somebody was up speaking about student government and how representative it is here, this gentleman counted the audience and the programmers and found that the ratio was 3-1 in favor of the audience.

Which is very encouraging. After all, it's not the numbers but the representative spirit which counts. In other words, the spirit was present but the bodies and souls were not. That's what you call representative government.

RACQUET RACKET

Jack Pool gave us this item clipped from the Commerce School Bulletin of New York University. It follows a discussion of the merits of the N. Y. U. tennis team and the value of publicity and big matches in perpetuating such athletic organizations. Here is the item:

"Down south, there is a team named the University of North Carolina. That squad is wiping up the earth with all the good court outfits under the Mason and Dixon line. They haven't been stopped for so long that the inhabitants of the college town are willing to bet that they haven't been stopped at all. What would make a better 'natural' than New York University vs. University of North Carolina?"

On May 2, 1933, the Tar Heel netters licked N. Y. U. on one of its famous northern trips, 9-0. Since then, it is reputed that N. Y. U. has become much stronger.

We like to hear large northern schools say they want publicity by playing Carolina. Usually we're crying to play Yale at football for the publicity. Perhaps in the long run it all evens up.

BAITING HEARST

Red-baiter Hearst is the butt of the attack in the latest edition of the Chronicle of World Affairs which Joe Barnett and his Foreign Policy League are placing on sale here for the sum of one nickel.

Hearst is a menace to us all in his jingo jabber, because millions of people read his false baloney.

The whole subject of jingo journalism is treated and treated thoroughly in this newspaper's survey. We think it would prove extremely interesting to all students inquisitive enough to know what's behind the headlines of their favorite papers.

IRVING AARONSON PLAYS THIS WEEK FOR MAY FROLICS

Orchestra of No Mean Fame Engaged for Annual Set Friday, Saturday.

NOW ON SOUTHERN TOUR

The spring social season really gets underway this week-end when Irving Aaronson and his Commanders arrive here to put on the annual set of May Frolics Friday and Saturday.

The Commanders have earned for themselves an international reputation as a crack orchestra, having been featured in the smart places of two continents, from the Les Ambassadeurs in Paris to the Roosevelt hotel in Los Angeles and including the Kit Kat Club in London and the Congress hotel in Chicago.

Although the band has been a favorite musical organization on the two continents for nearly a quarter of a century, none of its present members, with the exception of the founder and director, Aaronson, are that old.

There have been of necessity many changes in personnel during the years, but it is unique that the original traditions of the orchestra, as well as its style, have been carried on consistently.

Was in Movies

The orchestra has been featured in several big Broadway musical comedy successes with such stars as Irene Bordoni. It has appeared in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures and also with Bing Crosby in "She Loves Me Not." It was one of the first bands to play for sound movie productions.

The Commanders was one of the first orchestras to feature individual entertainment by its musicians, special vocalists and choir ensembles. The band numbers 16, including Aaronson and the two vocalists, Lois Still and Skippy Carlstrom. It has registered a pronounced success on the stage as an enter-

ORATOR RUSSELL DECLARED WINNER

Former Brussels Delegate Takes First Place in Annual Peace Oratorical Contest.

Speaking on the subject, "The Student and War," R. Phillips Russell, University of North Carolina delegate to Geneva last winter, was declared winner of the annual state peace oratorical contest held in Gerrard hall last night.

Five speakers, representing North Carolina colleges, appeared on the program condemning war, sponsored by the International Peace Association. In addition to Russell was Miss Mary Lee Leonard of Lenoir-Rhyne College, R. L. Batts of State, O. P. Dickinson of Atlantic Christian College, and Charles U. Harris of Wake Forest.

Miss Leonard, who took second place, spoke on the "Golden Rule." Asserting that inflated nationalism is a constant danger she stated: "If wars were less profitable, fewer wars would exist."

In his speech Russell urged students to come out of that attitude of smug complacency which they have gradually slipped into since the World War.

PRESS RELEASES BOOK BY WRIGHT

Elizabethan Middle-Class Culture Discussed by Scholar.

W. T. Couch, director of the University Press, announced yesterday the release of "Middle-Class Culture in Elizabethan England," by Louis B. Wright.

"The Elizabethan tradesman," says Wright, "was the backbone of progressive enterprise in England and the direct ancestor of a civilization to predominate on both sides of the Atlantic . . ."

This study represents exhaustive research among rare sources. It is divided into three parts. In Part I the topic is "The Background," in which the author discusses the citizen's pride in citizenship and defines the middle-class. Part II deals with the "Whole Duty of the Citizen," and Part III is the "Citizen's Literate Recreations."

Wright received his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina and taught here. Among the appointments he has held are: Johnson research scholar at Johns Hopkins, Guggenheim research fellow in England and Italy, and visiting scholar of the Huntington library. Dr. Wright is now at the Huntington library.

POOL HEADS BODY OF N. C. STUDENTS

University Senior Elected President of State Federation.

The sixth annual convention of the North Carolina State Federation of Students ended in Raleigh Saturday with the election of Jack Pool of the University of North Carolina as president.

Other officers elected were William Aycock of State College, vice-president; Ann Bradsher of Meredith College, secretary, and Annie Laura Newsom of Duke, treasurer.

The federation has formulated plans for a drive to establish absolute student government in the North Carolina colleges, based on the present forms of student control at the University and State College. Committees were appointed to carry out the plans for this drive.

The conference also passed a resolution endorsing the work of the National Federation of Students for the maintenance of world peace, and its nation-wide educational radio broadcasts.

The next convention of the federation will be held in Greenville, the home of Eastern Carolina Teachers College.

Pool announced yesterday that he has extensive plans for next year's federation.

Students Vote Today, Tomorrow On Semester, Class-Hour Change

Faculty Considering Adopting Both Plans

Ballot Boxes Located in "Y," Graham Memorial, Spencer, Everett, and Grimes.

TO SOUND STUDENT MIND

Students will have the opportunity of expressing their minds today and tomorrow in the DAILY TAR HEEL straw vote which will begin this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Two questions, relating to the proposed class-hour change and the adoption of a semester system at this institution, will be the subjects for student balloting.

Students to Vote

Ballots, which appear elsewhere on this page, are to be filled out by students interested in voting and placed in any one of the five ballot-boxes on the campus.

Boxes will be placed this morning in the Y. M. C. A. lobby, Graham Memorial lobby, Spencer hall, and the dormitory stores in Everett and Grimes dormitories.

The two questions have been previously discussed in the DAILY TAR HEEL. The one concerning class-hour changes was recently submitted to the Student Welfare Board, which, with but one dissenting vote, favored the idea.

Semester Question

The semester matter is under consideration by the faculty in connection with the new curriculum, although official statements deny that this system must necessarily follow from the adoption of the curriculum as already planned.

The editors of the DAILY TAR HEEL are sponsoring the vote in order to sound out student opinion rather than to make a policy stand, although they have expressed a definite opposition to the class-hour change.

The balloting will close tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Chronicle on Sale, Discusses Jingoism

One hundred copies of the Chronicle of World Affairs, published monthly by the League of Nations Association, will be put on sale this morning in the Book Exchange by the Foreign Policy League. The newspaper sells for five cents per copy.

This particular issue of the Chronicle is directed against William Randolph Hearst, Chicago's jingoist, and his policies. The whole subject of jingo journalism is well covered.

According to Joe Barnett, president of the Foreign Policy League, the League of Nations Association has sent considerable material to the league throughout the year and, due to the association's co-operation and to the interesting nature of the present issue of its Chronicle, the local group decided to take 100 copies to sell on this campus.

STUDENT STRAW VOTE

Below is the official straw vote ballot.

The proposed class-hour change means no more classes per student, but five class periods in the morning instead of four as is the case at present.

There is a possibility that the semester system will be adopted next year, although there is uncertainty on the part of the administration.

Ballot boxes will be placed this morning in the Y. M. C. A. and Graham Memorial lobbies, in Spencer hall, and in the stores at Everett and Grimes dormitories.

Note: students' names will not be used in tabulating the results of this poll. Ballots must be signed, however, in order to count in the results.

Student Straw Ballot

Do you favor the proposed change in class-hours stipulating five morning classes on the hour beginning at 8 o'clock?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Do you favor the adoption of a semester system for the University of North Carolina's undergraduate schools instead of the present quarter system?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Carolina Buccaneer Is Re-Born As New Council Acts Speedily

Councillors Go to Town, Grant Lansdale's Request After Half-Hour Deliberation.

EXIT "HANDLELESS CUP"

The Carolina Buccaneer is arisen again.

"An intelligently written and edited publication—and I hope it will be that—comes into the world under a terrific and unreasonable handicap if it has to bear the name 'Finjan.'"

That is what Editor Nelson Lansdale of the erstwhile Finjan told the Student Council last night, among other things.

Goodbye, Finjan

So the Student Council, meeting in its initial session and as one of its first acts, last night re-established the Carolina Buccaneer, ending the one-year stand of Pat Gaskins' Finjan, born of the ill-fated Buccaneer of 1934 and previous years.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating, but I'll have to ask you to believe that a re-born Buccaneer will not cling to the unsavory tradition of the past." Thus Lansdale pledged himself to a high standard of humor and a New Deal in humor publications.

And so ended a political controversy, and an ephemeral "cup without a handle." Last night's decision took less than one-half hour.

Daily Tar Heel Staff

All staff members of the Daily Tar Heel who plan to attend the annual banquet in Graham Memorial Thursday night at 6:30 o'clock must pay their assessment of 75 cents to Lonnie Dill or Bob Page at the Daily Tar Heel office by 4 o'clock this afternoon.

This afternoon is absolutely the last time that arrangements may be made to attend the banquet.

CAMPUS LIBERALS UNITE TO SOLVE SOCIAL PROBLEMS

New Group Plans Campaign of Action Rather Than Words.

Meeting in Graham Memorial last night, a group of liberal faculty members and students formed a club dedicated to a campaign of action on campus social problems.

First on the calendar of the club is a fight for better working conditions and wages for the self-help students of Carolina. Instances were cited of students working for as little as 12½c an hour for their board. Other issues which the club will face are those of peace, civil rights, and social justice.

The next meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. in Graham Memorial. All those students who have been previously invited, and all others who are interested in the problems which this club has set for itself to face are urged to attend.

News Service Out

The first release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service was sent out yesterday to 46 high and 34 preparatory schools in and around North Carolina.

The news service will be a weekly feature of the DAILY TAR HEEL'S program and is under the management of Don McKee, an assistant editor of this paper, and Newton Craig, freshman.

Two mimeographed pages of general news made up the release yesterday. In addition, approximately every high school newspaper in the state received a typewritten page of personals telling what its alumni are doing at Carolina.

OFFICIALS BEGIN TERMS OF OFFICE

Pool Says Committee Doesn't Have to Submit Constitution Unless It Wishes.

A small crowd gathered in Memorial hall yesterday morning to witness the formal induction of the newly elected campus officers. Frank Abernethy, outgoing president of the student body, presided over the meeting.

Jack Pool, speaking on behalf of the incoming officers, expressed their appreciation of the trust which the student body has placed in them. In his ex-officio position as head of the student council, Pool declared his intention of "making the student council more than just a court."

About a Constitution . . .

He also made it clear that the committee on constitutional problems is not expected to submit a constitution unless the committee sees fit to do so; its purpose is to make an intensive and sincere study of problems on the campus.

President Frank Graham spoke of the history back of the various publications and organizations which we have on our campus today, describing the growth of the Yackety Yack, the DAILY TAR HEEL, and the student council.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, KAHN; NIGHT, HUDSON

STRAW VOTE

The straw vote which this newspaper is conducting today and tomorrow is not purported to act as a panacea for student grievances. It is merely an attempt to get student opinion on two questions which may or may not be adopted by the administration. What the students say should carry weight in the decisions.

Arguments on both sides of the questions have been presented here before. We're asking students to answer the questions on the ballots with a little thought and to mark "yes" or "no" after some little deliberation.

Not that the matters are of such grave importance, but we want student opinion in the raw, and these matters offer an opportunity for such expression.

CONCENTRATED POLICIES

First we shaved our 40-odd major points of editorial attack or airing down to 10 important matters for vigorous prosecution. Now, however, we feel that certain outstanding reforms or changes are particularly needing our attention and consequently this newspaper will drive steadily toward definite goals this spring in four major channels.

Firstly, we will fight for a written constitution.

Secondly, we will make a steady drive for complete investigation and subsequent re-allocation of all student fees.

Thirdly, we will endeavor to present an exhaustive study and picture of the fraternity and dormitory situations on this campus.

Lastly, we will continue our backing of the class-extension plan which we have set forth.

Narrowing down thus does not mean that other questions will be dropped. It merely means that we are going to concentrate on particular objects.

We have a group of student thinkers and advisers who are making complete studies and recommendations which will help shape our policies. And those policies which we set forth will result from these investigations through honest, fair interpretations.

ADMINISTRATION'S MOVE

How to proceed in trying to press our class-extension plan is not clear to us.

It's not our place to demand a faculty meeting, or anything like that. We have presented the plan and many students have backed us up in its support. If the faculty and the various departmental heads see fit to act upon it, we would be greatly pleased and believe the action would vindicate the objects which the plan has.

Most of the letters which departmental heads have sent us give evidence of a certain skepticism, in some instances a downright rejection of the plan. Those members of the faculty who do see, however, that the class-extension idea has possibilities—and there are a dozen or so, we're sure—should do what they can to arrange a faculty discussion on the idea and see that some action is taken.

We're not trying to pass the buck but students should not try to force anything on their teachers, who probably know a lot more about class schedules than they do. What we're trying to do is back a plan which we like and consider a good one. Action must come from the administration itself. Our duty ends when we have done our utmost to present the student's viewpoint on the situation.

Any action, either pro or con, by the faculty administration will be appreciated by us. At least, it will show that they are as interested in what we are doing as we are in their own activities.

By SPARTACUS

Tomorrow is May Day. Reactionaries commonly charge that communism and socialism are foreign importations. Nothing could be more untrue about May Day than that it is alien. It is as American as the Fourth of July. It was originated in Chicago in 1886 at the famous Haymarket "riot." While one Parsons, a radical who had ancestors on the Mayflower, was demanding an eight-hour day and other extremely communistic measures, a bomb exploded. It is beyond doubt that the explosion was a frameup, but Parsons and several of his associates were hanged. In the nineties the First of May was decided on as the day when workers of all nations should unite and rededicate themselves to the cause for which Parsons was judically murdered—the cause of labor.

For some of us it will mean only a set of droning lectures to attend in polite silence, to others, a chance to store sleep for next week-end when life begins anew. But to hundreds of millions of people it will be the great holiday of the whole year. In Russia the whole population, which has increased by thirty million in the last ten years, Mr. Fish, will turn out to celebrate with fiery enthusiasm the international struggle for the freedom of the laboring masses. In China millions of workers and poor peasants will demonstrate in triumph at the recent victories of the Chinese Red Army. Perhaps you don't know that Red Army won last week a smashing victory over the imperialist forces of Chiang Kai-shek, but all China knows and is preparing a demonstration of enthusiasm and relief beyond anything that ancient country has ever seen. In New York, Chicago and most of the large cities of this country May Day will be observed by hundreds of thousands of marching workers. In Chapel Hill we may be able to organize a game of bridge or perhaps even go to the movies.

A May First demonstration of another sort is likewise being held officially and respectably in America. It is "Child Health Day." Again we shall be assured that American children must be cared for, that they are, in fact, the hope of the future. After the unctuous speeches are over and all the kind rich people have gone home, there will still remain for the majority of American children the starvation, the filth and the misery which the play of capitalist forces has given to them as a birthright. What a comfort it must be to the starving to know that for one day in the year the state of their health is spoken of with concern!

The comrades of the Right last Sunday devoted all their space to a panagyric of the late (politically speaking) Herbert Hoover. His case is a sad one, whose tragedy ought to serve as an object lesson to those who defend the decaying capitalist system. His promises were no wilder than Roosevelt's. He came as close to putting two cars in every garage as the present incumbent will be to ending unemployment or giving the masses security. The worst trick Frankie played on Herbie, however, was to steal all his stuff. It was during Hoover's administration that every one of the major plans of the New Deal were first tried out. The big idea of the AAA—crop reduction—was anticipated by Hoover, as Huey Long pointed out some time ago. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was taken over lock, stock, and barrel by Roosevelt. The number of such thefts could be indefinitely extended. The one thing that Hoover didn't do was tinker with the currency. And this is the one thing that has probably caused most distress to the masses by forcing prices up much faster than wages went up. If Spartacus believed in capitalism, he would follow the forthright, though somewhat mediocre, Hoover rather than his successor who smiles and smiles and is yet a villain.

Now YOU'RE Talking

MYERS AGAIN

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

There seems to be some confusion as to the meaning of my letter signed "A Loyal Tar Heel," which appeared in the issue of April 26. The writer signing himself "Also a Loyal Tar Heel" is "sure" that an investigation of the distribution of funds and favors to Carolina athletes would not result in teams with less winning ways. Nevertheless, that is precisely what I did mean. I am perfectly serious when I say that if Carolina is to retain her present high position athletically, the disposition of funds and favors to her athletes should not be scrutinized too closely. Don't kill the goose that lays the golden footballs.

The further implication of my letter was that an investigation would be very much in order if amateur athletics are to be resurrected at this university. I personally think it would be a fine thing if that could be done, but I realize the tremendous advertising pull of successful teams, and the great pressure both from alumni and undergraduates for winning teams at (any) cost. From personal observation, I believe that Carolina athletes are to some degree paid athletes. It is well-known that most other colleges throughout the country also pay their athletes, in one way or another. It is obvious that if we stop paying our athletes, the University of North Carolina will no longer be "chosen" by so many as their Alma Mater. Therefore I say: "Think several times before you launch into a serious investigation of funds in connection with athletics."

DAVID MYERS.

Pool Asks Students to Write to Commissioner Winborne.

The Atlantic Greyhound bus hearing, which has attracted state-wide attention, is still in progress and according to observers will be prolonged for several days.

Every college in the state is rallying behind the University in its fight for better bus service. Petitions containing a total of 13,454 names have been presented by colleges and universities of North Carolina.

R. A. "Jack" Pool, president of the student body, urges Carolina students to write letters to Stanley Winborne, chairman of the public utilities commission of North Carolina, protesting against the present service and in favor of the proposed Greyhound line. These letters should be written immediately, according to Pool.

TAR HEELS PLAY FINAL STATE NET MATCHES TODAY

Levitan-De Gray Meet Minor-Shore for State Intercollegiate Doubles Title.

FIRST TEAM IS FAVORITE

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the state intercollegiate tennis doubles title will be settled on the Carolina courts, with all the participants full fledged Tar Heels.

Eddy De Gray and Walter Levitan face the combination of Bill Minor and Frank Shore. The first team formerly played first doubles for Carolina and is a slight favorite to capture the title. Minor and Shore are an untried combination but showed considerable strength in crushing Harvey Harris and Byron Abels in the semi-finals.

Defeated Davidson

De Gray and Levitan defeated the only non-Carolina team to reach the semi-finals when they eliminated Lewis and Phifer of Davidson. These matches were played Saturday morning, and the final match was postponed until today because of a shortage of time.

The singles was completed Saturday afternoon, Harvey Harris annexing the state crown by rallying to beat Bill Minor in five sets.

AIR STATION OPEN FOR APPLICATIONS

Norfolk Air Station to Receive Applications for Naval Reserve Pilots Training.

The Naval Air Station at Norfolk, Va., has announced that it will receive applications for naval reserve pilots training to be given during the next four years.

This station at Norfolk has charge of applications from the fifth district, which comprises the states of North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland. Seniors and graduates only are eligible for this training.

Students who have studied aeronautical engineering or a curriculum leading to a B. S. degree are better prepared for the training; however it is not absolutely limited to them.

Four Year Training

The training, which will continue over a period of four years, will include both flying and the technical side of aviation.

The government expects to spend $25,000 on each man accepted for training. He will receive $75 per month during the first year and $125 a month for the other three years. In addition, he will receive a subsistance of a dollar a day and a bonus of $1,500 at the end of the training period, at which time he will return to civilian life.

Anyone desiring to make application should see Professor E. G. Hoefer of the department of mechanical engineering in 213 Phillips.

Up until the time they started on a southern tour two weeks ago, the Commanders had been playing at the noted Paradise restaurant in New York City.

Their Recordings

The organization has recorded for both Brunswick and Columbia. Two of their Brunswick records were taken from the picture, "Love in Bloom," and featured Bing Crosby as the vocalist. The four numbers are "Love in Bloom," "Straight from the Shoulder," "Humming and Whistling," and "Singing to Myself."

Some of their Columbia hits included "Pardon My Southern Accent," "When You Ate an Olive," "Flirtation Walk," "Me Without You," "In an Old Log Cabin," "Let's Be Thankful," and "Way Back Home," and "An Evening in June," the latter two to be released May 15.

The orchestra was heard on the radio on the Studebaker program before this was taken over by Richard Himber and his orchestra.

FROSH TENNIS MEET

The freshman tennis team will meet Danville's strong outfit this afternoon on the University courts at 3 o'clock. The matches will proceed simultaneously with the state varsity championship doubles battle.

Meeting Draws Faculty

Dr. R. B. Vance of the sociology department, Professor H. E. Evans, Dr. W. F. Ferger, and Dr. E. W. Zimmerman of the commerce department will leave Wednesday to attend a conference on population studies in relation to social planning.

Today's Mural Card

Due to the baseball game's being changed, there will be intramural matches today. The schedule follows:

BASEBALL

4:00—Theta Chi vs. Phi Delta Theta.

5:00—Kluttz Bldg. vs. Old West.

TENNIS

4:30—Aycock "A" vs. Aycock "B," Sigma Chi vs. A. E. No. 2, S. A. E. vs. Phi Alpha, A. E. No. 1 vs. Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Alpha No. 3 vs. Phi Kappa Sigma, Theta Kappa Nu vs. Delta Tau Delta.

N. C. Divot Diggers Win Southern Open

Pijanowski Stars as Team Wins First Annual Southern Intercollegiate Open.

The varsity golf team returned yesterday from Athens, Ga., where they copped the lowest team play score to win the first annual southern open intercollegiate golf tourney. Despite the fact that they faced some nationally famous collegiate golfers, Erwin Laxton, Dick Harris, Walter Pijanowski, Wilson Coffin, and playing manager Henry Bridgers turned in a total score of 615, only two strokes more than that of the team winning the national intercollegiate golf title last year.

Second place among the teams was won by the highly touted Georgia Tech team of which Yates, the national collegiate champ, is a member. Tech's score of 621 was followed by Duke's score of 628, which gave the Durham team third place. L. S. U. failed to come in among the team leaders despite the fact that two of its team members reached the final round.

The individual championship of the tourney was won by Paul Leslie who beat his fellow teammate Fred Haas. The last mentioned L. S. U. man advanced to the finals as a result of his beating Walter Pijanowski in the semi-final round. The Carolina man was one of the main surprises of the tournament. "Pijie" usually plays fourth man in dual meets, but in the tournament play, his excellent shooting surpassed that of his teammates as well as that of the many opponents he beat in his surprising rise to the semi-final play.

An interesting fact revealed in the tournament was that the two finalists, Haas and Leslie, were not only students in the same school, but also roommates and fraternity brothers.

LAST FRIDAY WAS BAD ON ATHLETES

It Wasn't the 13th, but There Were Casualties Anyway.

This past Friday wasn't the 13th, but it might just as well have been as far as Carolina varsity baseball and frosh track is concerned.

Ed Bullard, who has been doing a capable job at the third base position, was temporarily disabled with a broken nose. The accident occurred during the freshman game. A ball supposed to go to the catcher went astray and Bullard's nose provided an impromptu target.

The other Friday calamity was "Red" Hendricks, premier yearling pole vaulter. After completing his afternoon's practice on the pole vault, he tried some practice broad jumps, and on one made a one-point landing instead of two, resulting in a broken ankle.

FROSH AND DEACS PLAY IN RETURN ENCOUNTER TODAY

Recent All-Round Poor Playing Makes Outlook Gloomy for Carolina Baseballers.

HUMPHRIES WILL PITCH

A determined band of yearling ball players will journey to Wake Forest today in an attempt to avenge their first conference loss, suffered recently at the hands of the Baby Deacons.

Their initial encounter ended with Carolina on the losing end of an 8-6 score. The loose fielding and general bad play which caused the Tar Babies to lose the tilt contested here on April 17 is still prevalent.

Scrubs Shame Regulars

In their last game against Durham High, the frosh regulars won a close decision. The Tar Baby seconds trimmed the same nine only two days earlier by a 15-6 count.

Yesterday the yearlings played an inter-squad game which the regulars managed to win despite their all around poor play. Although the diamond was ripped up due to the Boy Scouts' tents, the errors were unmistakably the fault of the players.

If they hope to win the Baby Deac tilt this afternoon, they will have to display a vastly improved brand of ball. Humphries will be on the mound, and that should make the Tar Babies favorites to win. But even Humphries and his terrific speed will not be sufficient to gain a victory if the Carolina frosh continue to play as poorly as they have in the past.

Tar Heel And Deacon Outfits Battle In Fayetteville Today

Intramural Tennis

St. Anthony Hall copped the feature intramural tennis match yesterday afternoon, winning out over the Betas by a 2-1 margin. Phi Delta Theta and Zeta Psi were 2-0 victors, respectively, over Chi Psi and Kappa Sigga.

The summary:

Phi Delta Theta 2, Chi Psi 0: Wilson over Kavanaugh 5-0, 5-1; Williams over Barwick, 5-3, 1-5, 5-1.

Zeta Psi 2, Kappa Sigma 0: Harrison over Robbins, 5-1, 5-1; Stokes over G. May, 5-1, 5-1.

St. Anthony 2, Beta Theta Pi 1: Parker (St. A.) over Van Hecke, 5-1, 5-3; Wilson (Beta) over Jennings, 5-2, 5-3. Parker and Hard (St. A.) over Wilson and Van Hecke, 5-3, 3-5, 5-3.

Soil Erosion Experts Studying Reservoir

Carl Brown, a graduate from the geology department, is in charge of a party of scientists from the soil erosion service, which has been in Chapel Hill for the last week making a study of sedimentation in the University reservoir.

Since the construction of the dam, the thickness of the sediments has been noted at several points of the basin. Observations were made in various parts of the lake, both near the entrance of Morgan creek and as far down as the dam.

The rate of sedimentation is a rough index of the erosion that is taking place in the basin of the stream above that point.

Crouch Will Oppose Rhodes in Third Game

Place of Game Shifted to Enable Eastern Folk to See College Teams in Action.

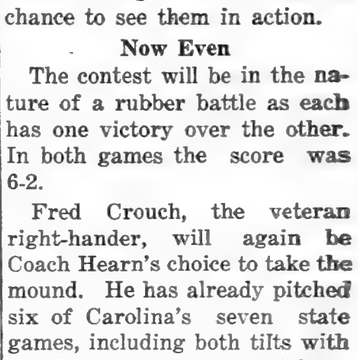
VICK, BULLARD INJURED

Still determined to make a race in the Big Five for the championship, Carolina's nine will journey to Fayetteville for a third clash with Wake Forest at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The game was originally scheduled for Chapel Hill, but, as in the meeting at Lumberton a couple of weeks ago, the two teams are staging the game in an eastern North Carolina city in order to give more fans a chance to see them in action.

Now Even

The contest will be in the nature of a rubber battle as each has one victory over the other. In both games the score was 6-2.



Fred Crouch, the veteran right-hander, will again be Coach Hearn's choice to take the mound. He has already pitched six of Carolina's seven state games, including both tilts with the Deacons. In his initial try against the Baptist club he held it to three bingles but the second time Crouch's sore arm could do no better than allow nine blows.

Wake Forest will probably put Rhodes in the box in his second chance at the Tar Heels. It was this boy who conquered Carolina at Lumberton. The Deacons will also have Johnson, only Big Five pitcher who has defeated Duke, and Gaddy available to Query: What is the solution to the munitions question?

HAMPTON DANCERS WILL APPEAR HERE

Creative Dance Group to Perform on Campus Saturday.

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., the Hampton Institute dancers will present a recital in Memorial hall on Saturday, May 4.

This creative dance group, which has been developed as a part of the physical education department of the Institute, will present as a part of its program genuine African dances, some of the participants being actual natives of the dark continent.

Under a division of the program entitled "Dances of the People," will be given Polish, Gypsy, Italian, and Russian interpretations. The depression is symbolized in a powerful creation which has been entitled "The Cycle of the Depression." This is a fascinating expression which attempts to interpret each phase of that period of depression and discouragement.

This terpsichorean program is a new field in the arts for the Negro race.

New Debate Plan

After the Maryland, Georgia, and Carolina debate is finished tomorrow, there will be a 15-minute open forum during which time any one wishing to take the floor and express his views may do so. This scheme was tried several months ago in connection with a labor question.

Also, IT'S TRUE that Nelson Eddy is descended from President Martin Van Buren!"

P. U. Board Interviews Applicants Monday

Applicants for business managerships on the four campus publications will be interviewed by the Publications Union Board next Monday afternoon at 3:30 in Graham Memorial.

The written applications were in the hands of the board yesterday in order to allow several days for individual investigation by the members of the board.

Although the list of persons to be awarded Publication Union keys has not been finally decided upon, the eligibility of some of the editors' recommendations has been questioned. At next Monday's meeting the final weeding out will take place.

Museum Visitors

During the past year over 1,000 registered visitors have been through the University of North Carolina geological museum. This number represents over 30 states and 10 foreign countries. It has been estimated by Curator Bob Copeland that at least twice this number have visited the museum who did not register.

The popularity of the museum has grown greatly since the time of its origination in 1930 by Drs. Prouty and Cobb of the geology department. The reason for this growth of interest on the part of the public rests in the fact that the museum puts before them and explains many of the things that nature has concealed for millions of years.

Minerals Interest Visitors

Among the exhibits that have proved to be the greatest attraction to the visitors are the mineral collection, particularly featuring the various minerals found in this state. There is also represented the type of exhibit that always creates a great deal of excitement in all museums—the exhibit of the evolution of man. Equally interesting is the exhibit of dinosaur models and bones.

Rather large collections of fossils, rock specimens, and ores have been made.

Much of the material now in the museum has been collected by students and others while doing field work; other material has been purchased.

The museum is open every day from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. An invitation is extended by the curator to everyone who wishes to see the wonders of nature in relation to geology.

Geology Museum Gets Petroleum Exhibit

Curator Bob Copeland of the geology department, announced yesterday that the geological museum has received a display rack showing a typical refining process for Pennsylvania grade crude oil.

The exhibit, which was furnished by the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association, includes among other things, small bottles containing samples of petroleum products from the raw crude to finished motor oil, gasoline, kerosene, and wax stages. A sketch of a typical refinery flow chart indicates the points in the process at which the above products are removed.

This exhibit will become a permanent part of the school's displays depicting various industrial processes.

Musicians of Local High Place in N. C. Contest

Chapel Hill High School took four second places in the contest held by the North Carolina High School Music Association in Greensboro Thursday and Friday.

The girls' glee club was one of four schools to receive a second rating. Charles Giduz won second place playing the French horn. Mary Frances Odum took second place playing the piano. Ned Hamilton received second place singing a baritone solo.

Two thousand, nine hundred and forty-four students, representing 115 high schools, registered in the 77 events.

hurl.

Although they are trailing the Blue Devils by three games, the Tar Heels still have a chance at the 1935 state title, but need to win just about every Big Five contest between now and the four-game series with Duke during the latter part of the season.

With Ed Bullard still on the injury list and Captain Thurman Vick still suffering with a bad finger, Harry Montgomery has the inside track for the third base job. Strayhorn is expected to return behind the plate, if his arm is in good shape. Ed Voliva may get another chance at the outfield.

The Wake Forest lineup includes Dallis Morris, third; Gold, rightfield; Mitchell, second; Wall, centerfield; Patton, first; Chapell, short; B. Morris, leftfield, and Myers, catcher.

FAIRLEY SPEAKS TO 'Y' CABINETS

Yandell Appoints Committees And Reports Are Heard in Business Session.

Francis Fairley, student assistant to L. B. Rogerson, spoke to the junior-senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets last night on the business department of the University.

Explaining the new organization of the business department as set up by Assistant Controller Rogerson, Fairley told some of the aims of the business officials to improve the University.

"The administration is sincerely interested in giving the students a square deal," Fairley declared.

Business Taken Up

President Yandell appointed a committee to arrange for the Hampton dancers who will come here May 4.

It was announced that students wishing to apply for the editorship of the Carolina Handbook should give their names to George MacFarland, secretary of the "Y."

Lee Greer reported on the Raleigh deputation trip, Yandell on the Rocky Mount trip, and T. P. Yeatman on the Randleman conference.

George MacFarland reported on the results of the meeting of campus leaders last Tuesday which was called to discuss the work of the "Y" on the campus.

T. P. Yeatman and Don McKee were appointed as a committee to work up a delegation to Blue Ridge this summer.

Plans were made for increasing membership in the cabinet.

Snakes Squirm, Sneak Over Floors Of Davie

Cotton Mouth Moccasin from Washington, N. C. Is Prize Boarder.

After being host to the Boy Scouts over the week-end, those students who have classes in Davie hall have some new guests. On display there is a collection of snakes.

One of the most interesting of the specimens is the "Congo snake." It is a cotton mouth moccasin, a very poisonous pit-viper. It attains the length of about five feet and hails from Washington, N. C.

The black snake, according to Dr. Ditmars, is not a constrictor. It has no power to squeeze and feeds on animals smaller than itself. Being very timid, it avoids man. They display rather more intelligence than do most serpents, and will quickly learn to come to the hand that feeds them.

Water snakes complete the collection.

The students watching the snakes say that they show little activity, just eat and sleep.

Ericson to Go to Texas

Dr. E. E. Ericson of the department of English here will teach the history of the English language at the University of Texas this summer.

SOPH 'Y' CABINET HAS FIRST MEET

Magill, Read, and Comer Speak At Weiner Roast in Battle Park; New Members.

Opportunity for increased campus service, fellowship, and study of human problems were points emphasized at the first meeting last night of the rising sophomore cabinet.

The meeting was held in the woods near the Forest theatre in the form of a weiner roast followed by a short program, with Nick Read, Drew Martin, and Mr. Comer as leaders. Several co-eds were present and a suggestion was made that opportunity be given all co-eds interested to enter into the programs of the "Y" cabinets.

The first part of the meeting was given over a camp fire and weiners and the remainder of the program was devoted to short talks by various members. Nick Read spoke on the opportunity for study of campus and social problems, Drew Martin on chances for service on the campus, and Mr. Comer concluded with a plea for practical idealism. Bob Magill presided and emphasized the opportunity for fellowship in service and study.

Between February 1st and 3rd eight people were killed and 23 were injured in accidents in North Carolina.

WRONG TIME Several students have reported to us that particular members of the faculty who teach them devote a great part of the class hour almost every day in expounding their own political beliefs.

Now we don't begrudge any man his opinion nor the opportunity to tell other folks what he thinks. But when professors are paid by the state to teach certain subjects, then it is their duty to teach those subjects alone and let the personal political views go until later.

The radicals and conservatives have plenty of time to thrash out their disagreements after class hours. Political pedagogy better stick to the moments of leisure for vocal expression on social organization.

DORMITORY PRESTIGE Dormitory elections will occupy many souls all day today. Nominations were made last night.

The work of the Dormitory Council under Albert Ellis this year was very gratifying. Disregarding for the moment any actual moves it has made, we can cherish the feeling of dormitory personality which we believe has grown under the system.

It is the hope of many of us that some day dormitories will be the same potent organized groups that fraternities are, so that they may develop not only in intramural athletics but in intramural scholarship and extra-curricular endeavors.

UNDER PAID When the group of liberals met recently and set a program, the members launched first on a fight for "better working conditions and wages for the self-help students of Carolina."

Instances were cited, according to the liberals' report, where students were getting as low as 12½ cents per hour.

Nowhere on the campus where regularly assigned self-help students work are the wages below 25 cents, by official University order. If the 12½ cent wages is really paid to others—and we believe we have an idea where they are—then the matter should be prosecuted.

But students who secure jobs through the self-help office must be paid 25 cents per hour. The University went to a great sacrifice to see that this wage was maintained in the 32 per cent cut days of early slashing.

We repeat, however, that students getting jobs without the self-help committee's aid should be treated as fairly as the others. We must protect the student who must work for his education.

POWER'S CHEAP The Phi folks kick at editorializing in the news stories of the DAILY TAR HEEL. They used to make fun of the paper because it was so dry.

All we can say is that they're going to keep on kicking, because we're not going dry.

LEADERS CHOSEN FOR MAY FROLICS BEGINNING FRIDAY

Irving Aaronson and His Commanders Will Furnish Music For Set of Dances.

SHAFFER TO LEAD FIGURE

Leading the annual May Frolics dance set opening Friday afternoon in the Tin Can, Charlie Shaffer, president of the social organization, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and ace Carolina football star, will escort Miss Charlotte Winborne of Marion.

Assisting this well-known couple will be Sherwood Hedgpeth, vice-president and Kappa Sigma, with Miss Marshall Young of Charlotte and Sweetbriar; Agnew Bahnson, secretary-treasurer and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with Miss Barbara Fulton of Knoxville, Tenn.

Buddy Upchurch, assistant secretary-treasurer and Sigma Chi, with Miss Louise Brown Michaels of Greensboro; Hubert Rand, Beta Theta Pi, with Miss Sarah Badham of Edenton; Bruce Old, Sigma Nu, with Miss Pickette Kendall of Raleigh; and Dick Lewis, Zeta Psi, with Miss Marion Gwaltney of Lincoln, Ga.

Starts Friday

This series of dances, considered one of the most brilliant social events of the spring season here, will swing into action Friday afternoon with an afternoon tea dance and a formal evening dance. There will be a luncheon dance in Durham Saturday at the Washington Duke hotel, another tea dance in the Tin Can that afternoon and the set will end with the final formal evening dance in the Tin Can Saturday night.

The personnel of the May Frolics organization at the present time consists of seven social fraternities: Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Zeta Psi, Sigma Chi and Beta Theta Pi.

Irving Aaronson and his Commanders, internationally famous orchestra and recently entertainer at the noted Paradise restaurant in New York City, are expected to arrive here early Friday morning to furnish the inspirational rhythm for the festivities.

HAMPTON DANCERS TO GIVE PROGRAM

The Hampton Institute creative dance group will appear in Memorial hall Saturday evening at 7:30 under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. program.

The program, which is arranged by the students of Hampton's physical department under the direction of their instructors, will contain many original native dances. The group will include some native African students who have made valuable contributions to the interpretation of known forms of African dances.

One of these dances entitled "Wyo Mamie," is a typical interpretation which portrays ancient African custom in connection with their wedding ceremony.

In these programs Hampton Institute has made a unique contribution to art and culture, taking full advantage of the original and native endowment of the Negro in the dance.

STUDENT STRAW VOTE

Yesterday's balloting in the DAILY TAR HEEL straw vote went almost 20-1 against the adoption of the semester system and 3-1 against the proposed class-hour change.

Ballot boxes will be collected this afternoon at 5 o'clock, when all voting must end. Boxes are located in the lobbies of Graham Memorial, the Y. M. C. A., and Spencer hall, and in the stores of Everett and Grimes dormitories.

Both questions under consideration are or have been before the University administration, with the possibility of the adoption of either or both next fall.

The names of voting students will not be used in tabulating the results of this poll. Ballots must be signed, however, in order to count in the results.

Student Straw Ballot

Do you favor the proposed change in class-hours stipulating five morning classes on the hour beginning at 8 o'clock?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Do you favor the adoption of a semester system for the University of North Carolina's undergraduate schools instead of the present quarter system?

Assemblymen Allege Editorializing in News; Condemn Paper As Durfee Beats Tom-Tom.

Acting with surprising alacrity the Phi Assembly last night passed Debater Winthrop Durfee's resolution condemning the DAILY TAR HEEL for what he called "editorializing in its news stories."

Citing as an example of the alleged "editorializing" a story concerning the new Playmaker productions contained in the April 23 issue, Durfee unleashed a stream of invective against a supposed practice that he claimed was "almost slander."

Fact or Opinion

"Selden is an innocent man," Durfee continued, "Selden and Koch work their heads off with little salary." The much discussed news story contained the statement that the experimental plays given by the Playmakers were characterized by "badly memorized lines and makeshift scenery." Argument was centered around whether the statement was fact or opinion.

Durfee claimed that all bias should be kept out of news stories, citing the papers of much buffeted William Hearst as an example of opinionated journalism.

The bill passed last week by the Di Senate which condemned the DAILY TAR HEEL for curtailing news of certain campus organizations and recommending the appointment of a committee to investigate the publication was defeated by a vote of 18-7. This bill was known as Di bill number two.

Commends Administration

The resolution suggested by Francis Fairley commending the University business administration for their co-operation with students was passed with little discussion.

James Van Hecke and Wiley Parker were chosen to debate against representatives of the Philomathesian (Wake Forest) Society here Tuesday. The Phi will advocate the affirmative of the question: Resolved, that North Carolina should adopt a one-house legislative body.

Meanwhile the Phi slogan contest, with a week's passes to the Carolina theatre as a prize for the best slogan submitted to Albert Ellis, Francis Fairley or James Van Hecke before next Tuesday night, moved forward.

Daily Tar Heel Staff

There will be a general staff meeting of the Daily Tar Heel this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the publication office. All members of the staff must be present and on time.

Second Forum Debate Will Be Held Tonight

The second Forum debate of the spring quarter will be held in Gerrard hall tonight at 8 o'clock, at which time teams from the Universities of Maryland, North Carolina, and Georgia will present their plans for a solution of the munitions question.

The Georgia team is composed of co-eds. J. W. Kirkpatrick and Oliver Cross will present their plan for the University of North Carolina.

After the debate there will be a 15-minute open forum.

Tonight's debate will be the first humorous platform affair of the year. It should prove a novelty as the subject will be treated in a light vein. An innovation in local debating will be the use of six performers.

Press Release

W. T. Couch, director of the University Press, announced yesterday the release of "Early Negro American Writers," by Benjamin Brawly, professor of English at Howard University.

The book covers the period from 1761 until the close of the Civil War. Biographical and critical introductions accompany the selections from the works of the foremost Negro writers of that period.

Most of the selections deal with religion, politics, or the social condition of the Negro.

HOUSE ANNOUNCES '35 SCHOLARSHIPS

Over 300 Applications Submitted For University's 70 Endowed Scholarships.

Dean R. B. House, chairman of the committee, announced the scholarship awards for the year 1935-36 yesterday afternoon. A total of 342 applications were submitted for the University's 70 endowed scholarships.

Of the 70 students who held endowed scholarships during the present year, 34 were granted renewals by the committee. Three resident students were given new awards, and new students for next year were given the 33 remaining endowed scholarships.

Renewal Scholarships

No resident student whose scholastic average was less than "C" was given a scholarship, and financial need was the prime consideration in making the awards. The following renewal scholarships were awarded: R. W. Baker, Mocksville; R. L. Barron, Charlotte; R. D. Baxley, Wagram; D. F. Bennett, Asheville; G. E. Betts, Fayetteville; S. H. Blow, Edenton; D. NOMINATIONS FOR DORMITORY HEADS MADE LAST NIGHT

Students to Elect Officers Today; Make Take Offices Without Opposition.

STUDENTS' DUTY TO VOTE

Students of the nine dormitories of the campus met last night to nominate their respective officers for next year. Elections will be held sometime today, according to individual dormitory regulations.

Albert Ellis, president of the Inter-dormitory Council, urged dormitory members to "be as conscientious as possible in the selection of your officers, so that the dorm councils may function efficiently next year. It is just as much your duty to vote for dorm officers as it is to vote in campus elections."

Nominees

The following were nominated for 1935-36 dormitory officers: In Mangum, president, Allen Knott; vice-president, Willis Sensenbach; athletic manager, Bunn Hearn; councilmen: first floor, Forest Kee and Charlie Daniel; second floor, Brooks Petty; third floor, James Turlington and Dick Gabori; fourth floor, Don Leeper and George Smally.

In Lewis: president, Hinson Smith and Lewis Puckett; vice-president, Roger Ginsberg; athletic manager, Joe Derrickson; councilmen: first floor, D. C. Williams; second floor, Page Hancock, Francis Glenn and Jerry Winters; third floor, Sam Roberts.

DI HEARS GROVES ON STERILIZATION

Sociologist Discusses History And Methods of Recently Publicized Operation.

Speaking before the Di Senate Dr. E. R. Groves of the sociology department last night discussed fully the now-prominent and much talked of question of sterilization of men and women unfit or unwilling to become parents.

Methods of sterilization were first outlined, with particular emphasis on a simple, safe, surgical operation recently perfected and successfully experimented with. By this method, it is claimed, none of the evils of castration result, and the sex life of the sterilized person is not curtailed.

Sterilization in U. S.

Dr. Groves told the history of sterilization laws in the United States, the only nation in the world, until the recent sterilization decrees in Germany, where it is legal for a man or woman to be deprived of the ability to reproduce. In a recent test case, the Supreme Court upheld Virginia sterilization laws. At present about 38 states, including North Carolina, have similar statutes.

Sterilization of the mentally diseased or deficient will not, the sociologist said, produce the generally expected decrease in feeblemindedness and insanity, such misfortunes being related to heredity in a much more complex way than is popularly supposed. The value of sterilization is rather to prevent children from being born to parents

Meyer Solves Puzzling Mystery Of Baden-Powell's Disappearance

The Boy Scout pageant was in full swing. Next on the program would be a parade before the large audience in Kenan stadium of the uniforms and flags of the many Scout nations of the world. Chief Scout of the United States James West was in the reviewing stands with regional directors and various University representatives.

With a fanfare from the University band the parade began and the flags passed by the stand. At first slowly and then faster . . . Norway . . . Sweden . . . Japan . . . Egypt . . . until finally they crowded the spotlight.

Lord Baden-Powell

But where was England? Canada was there, to be sure, but no sign of "John Bull." Then the announcer informed the audience that Lord Robert Baden-Powell, chief Scout of the world, would present United States Chief West with the Golden Arrow as a symbol of international good will.

While some wit in the stands broke the spell that had come over the crowd with a snatch or two from "Here comes the British," the "Union Jack" moved out of the shadows and with it came a slim, quick stepped man in shorts. The University band broke into "God Save the King." Thirteen hundred Boy Scouts and perhaps twice as many spectators rose from their seats while the soldiery figure pinned the symbol on Chief West's lapel. Lights flashed and cameras clicked.

Then Baden-Powell disappeared again into the darkness. Many Scouts wanted to meet him. Many others wanted his autograph. Why had he left so soon? Why hadn't his coming been made known? Questions were flying thick and fast.

Local Scout enthusiast Dr. Meyer knew the answers. He explained the facts that the announcer had omitted. Lord Baden-Powell was at home in England and his double for the night had been a young Scoutmaster from Greensboro.

"However," added Dr. Meyer compromisingly, "we are trying to get him to come over for the national convention that will be conducted in Washington sometime soon."

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, GILMORE; NIGHT, JORDAN

FRATERNITIES AND DORMITORIES

The DAILY TAR HEEL must serve the students as the particular medium of setting forth student problems.

We believe that the fraternities and dormitories have immediate problems and in this connection, we will attempt to follow this course:

To present the fraternity situation as it exists on this campus to the fraternities themselves, for their consideration and action.

To set forth the dormitory situation to the administration, that they may work for the interests of dormitory inhabitants.

The ultimate object of our presentations will be to improve student living and working conditions on the campus.

In the case of the fraternities, we can do nothing more than set forth the problems attending the present situation. It is for them to take initiative and act, if they see fit. In the case of the dormitories, however, we feel that our support is needed, as they have not the facilities nor the requisites for blowing their own horns.

On successive days, beginning tomorrow morning, we will present what we have found in these fields. Our editorials will not be highly opiniated, for our objects are rather to encourage action and to stimulate attention rather than to force an issue.

What policies we adopt will result from a study made by a representative group of students. It is our earnest desire that some good will come from our efforts.

WELL-DRESSED BUCCANEER

The change of name of our humor magazine is a matter of no tremendous weight, but the name Buccaneer is rather welcome after a year's hibernation in the Student Council vaults.

Editor Lansdale's plans show that whatever the new Buccaneer will look like, he will be a much better mannered swashbuckler than in the good old days. And that's exactly what this campus has needed, but there's been no way to effect a change.

It's rather peculiar that a political twist gave what may turn out to be a new deal in campus humor. Under the old system, the dirty humor perpetuated itself, because the better writers (only good writers can write clean jokes well) shunned the magazine and the less clever continued in power generation after generation, throwing dirt into the columns because it was within their ability to do so easily.

The campus has liked it sometimes and disliked it others, and particularly when students' families have skimmed through scum has the latter been true. At any rate, the low humor has been an unfair representation of the student body and there's no denying that.

The unsuccessful attempt by Pete Ivey at clean humor in the pre-Finjan days bears out the point that with a staff steeped in the traditions of dirty humor, little can be done toward being humorous when the dirt is extracted. Editor Lansdale's staff includes a considerable number of clean new faces.

Now that politics have inadvertently broken the hold of the self-perpetuating low-wit writers, it is possible and, we hope, probable, that the better standards of humor will result from following generations. To be clean is not enough; the jokes must have humor to them. And it takes good writers and good writers only write for good magazines. So it seems that if the chain is begun and a clean dish is handed up, a clean tradition will be handed down.

We are looking forward to seeing the witty Buccaneer in a tuxedo and carrying a poking cane rather than a slashing sword for his effectiveness.

SPLASHES

By BOB PAGE

The first big social event of this quarter as set forth in this column last week is just about upon us. Friday afternoon Irving Aaronson will lift his baton and Charlie Shaffer, ace halfback, will sidestep his way for a two-day gain when the annual May Frolics hold sway Friday and Saturday.

And who is going to run interference for Charlie when he leads the way? Why none other than little Charlotte Winborne, former Carolina co-ed. Remember her, boys?

We just got a squint at a picture of the seven girls in the figure and they're queens. Of course, it's a matter of personal choice, but our vote goes to Bruce Old's girl for Queen of the May. And she's from Raleigh. We like that place. How about an introduction this weekend, Bruce?

And Sweetbriar is there as usual. That name sounds vaguely familiar. We think we would like that place, too. Anyway, we might try to pull a One-Eye Connelly soon. It certainly looks like a swell blowout in the offing.

While we are rambling on the subject of dances, here are a couple of bouquets to the T. E. P's. They really know how to throw one. Their co-operative system of introducing all the guests to each other is the secret of their success.

We just found out why the senior electrical engineers took off in such a hurry yesterday morning on their investigation trip to New York, when they were supposed to depart yesterday afternoon. They wanted to make Baltimore in time to catch a burlesque show. And from what we hear they plan to examine the electricity at Minsky's in the Big City. Oh, for the life of an engineer.

There are a couple of stories floating around concerning the Boy Scout Jubilee here last week that are too good to pass up. A couple of freshmen, namely Wick Exum and Bobby Dicks, got sort of riled Friday morning when the Scout buglers awoke them unceremoniously from their peaceful slumbers at an early hour.

Accordingly, the pair formed a coalition, recruited Hoge Vick, Crist Blackwell and Tommy Wilson, and set sail for the camping grounds in Dick's car a little after midnight. While the latter three set off a few firecrackers, the two ringleaders stationed themselves at opposite ends of the cemetery near where the Scouts were sleeping, produced trumpets, and started blowing reveille unmercifully.

Fifteen hundred youthful heads popped out of pup tents and in a moment the scene became one of wild disorder. Scouts and Scoutmasters were dashing around, bumping into each other and shouting. Meanwhile the conspirators had piled into the car and zipped down toward the Tin Can. That was their error. Ellis Fysal stepped in front of the car, hauled them out and took them to confront Herbert Stuckey, southern Scout executive.

Fortunately, Exum proved to be an old friend of his and after being admonished to be good boys, they were set free. However, Exum took Mr. Stuckey to dinner Sunday in way of atonement.

And when Frank Willingham suddenly seized one of the Scouts by the nape of the neck at a showing of "The Mark of the Vampire," the latter nearly went through the ceiling.

Lola Reed, Shack inhabitant, really caught it Sunday. While listening to Reverend Donald Stewart's excellent sermon on "Whom Shall I Marry?" Lola was accosted by a freshman who apparently had a class with her. She didn't remember his name, but, nevertheless, he sat by her in church and then strolled down to the Shack with her. She thought surely he must leave when they reached the door. But it all wound up by his inviting himself to have dinner with her at the Shack. We don't know when he finally did leave, but we must say that he's learning mighty fast. It's taken us three long years here, buddy, to learn how to invite ourselves.

And does anyone know where Editor Hammer got to Saturday night?

Now YOU'RE Talking

SIC 'EM, TIGE!

To Mr. Winthrop C. Durfee,
Via DAILY TAR HEEL:
My dear Mr. Durfee:

At this time there seems to be considerable interest on the campus about our general social and economic situation. As a means of bringing some of the questions to an issue, we are submitting a challenge to you, as a representative of the more conservative campus opinion, to meet us in a public debate. We suggest tentatively this proposition: Resolved, that the elimination of capitalism is necessary to the health of modern society.

We trust that you will have no difficulty in enlisting from either the faculty or the student body a speaker to join you in defending the present system. Other details we can work out in a personal conference.

We represent no organized group on this campus. We speak for ourselves entirely, except that Mr. Williams is a member of the Socialist party and will naturally present, in part, its program.

We believe that this debate would be an admirable way of bringing some of the questions that confront us to a partial issue.

Sincerely yours,
ARNOLD WILLIAMS,
JAMES WISHART.

COLLEGE PRESS

"Genius Class" Is Successful

A selected class of 25 sophomore and junior students at the San Jose state college as San Jose, California, have sold fourteen poems, four articles, and one story as well as producing one full-length drama already this year, newspaper stories tell us. The class well earned its name of a "genius class" and as an experiment has proved quite successful.

This all goes to show that selection pays. Students will do more when they feel the spirit of competition such as must be felt in that class. Those students know they are in a selected group and that the other members of the class are as capable of writing as themselves. Thus, to keep up they have to work all the harder.

The duller students would tend to benefit as much by the selection method as would the more brilliant students since they would have more of a chance to stand at the head of their class and would have more of an incentive to work.

This subject has been harped upon by psychologists and much editorial space has been devoted to it so it behoves us little to devote our feeble efforts towards sounding the gong once again. But we cannot see why since everyone agrees that the grading of students into two classes according to the mental ability is so desirable that nothing is done about it. We don't think it would hurt John's or Mary's parents back home to know that their children were forced to enroll in a third rank English or history class. John and Mary would probably learn much more in a class with their intellectual equals than they would in a class spotted with virtual geniuses.

Even though the enrollment in certain classes was too small to permit the grading idea to be carried out without financial loss in many of the freshman and sophomore courses.

It remains for some man—a man who will rightly be termed in the pages of history as "great"—to come along and popularize the idea of grading of students according to mental ability enough so that colleges all over the country will put into force such a practice.—Daily O'Collegian.

Electrical Engineers Leave for New York

Seven seniors in electrical engineering left yesterday morning for an inspection trip to New York. They will be gone until Sunday.

Among the major points of interest which will be visited are a steel mill of the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Bell laboratories in Philadelphia, and Radio City in New York.

Those seniors making the trip are R. M. Query, A. J. Snively, J. Giobbi, B. B. Parker, L. Hagood, R. Van Sleen, and J. G. Farrell. They are accompanied by Mrs. and Mrs. R. F. Stainback.

Expenditures for the United States Navy for 1935 are estimated at nearly 338 millions.

LEVITAN, DE GRAY GAIN POSSESSION OF DOUBLES TITLE

Winners Rally to Defeat Shore And Minor, Proving Themselves Best Doubles Team.

TAR HEELS ARE SUPERIOR

A five-set victory yesterday afternoon by Captain Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray over Frank Shore and Bill Minor, gave them joint possession of the state intercollegiate doubles title. The scores of the long drawn-out battle were 6-3, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

As in the singles final last week, when Harvey Harris overcame Minor after trailing two sets to one, the winning team yesterday also rallied from a set deficit to capture the crown.

Although the match does not compare in color with that of the singles final, it produced some fine play by the individual participants and many a thrill as the battle waged on.

First Set Easy

Levitan and De Gray simply rode through the first set, taking an early 4-0 lead and romping through to a 6-3 win. However, Shore and Minor braced and came out on the long end of the next two sets by 6-4 scores.

It was then that Levitan and De Gray showed the calibre that has marked them as the most outstanding doubles combination in Carolina. Levitan was consistant and coupled with De Gray's slashes, the pair finally wore down the resistance of their opponents to take the title.

Service Breaks

The final set was extraordinary in the number of service breaks. However, Levitan held near the end and with his final stand came the North Carolina title.

This doubles final was, as was the singles, an all-Carolina affair and clearly showed the superiority that the Tar Heels hold over the other teams in this state.

FROSH NETSTERS CRUSH DANVILLE

Potts, Fuller, Farrell Get Love Matches in 7-0 Win.

The frosh netters took another step forward yesterday afternoon in their mad race to keep abreast of the undefeated varsity netters by whipping George Washington high school, Danville, Va., by a 7-0 count.

Three of the five singles that were played went to Carolina by love victories. Ramsay Potts, Eddy Fuller, and Frank Farrell accomplished the feat, all winning 6-0, 6-0.

Gordon Robinson, playing in second singles, certainly had his hands full before stopping Willeford in three long sets. Willeford managed to win the second set, and Robinson barely took the third set by a 6-4 count.

The doubles provided another thriller as Ray Bartelman and Ellison, substitute Carolina combination, eked out a three-set victory over Danville's strongest pair. The final set was 7-5.

This afternoon, the frosh meet Washington High, a youthful team from eastern North Carolina.

The scores follow:

Potts (C) over Arnstein, 6-0. 6-0.

Robinson (C) over Willeford, 6-1, 8-6, 6-4.

Fuller (C) over Satterfield, 6-0, 6-0.

Foreman (C) over Gibson, 6-3, 6-1.

Farrell (C) over Sager, 6-0, 6-0.

Bloom-Yeomans (C) over Sager-Gibson, 6-4, 6-4.

Bartelman-Ellison (C) over Willeford-Arnstein, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

Wake Forest Yearlings Chalk Up Five Runs in First Two Innings.

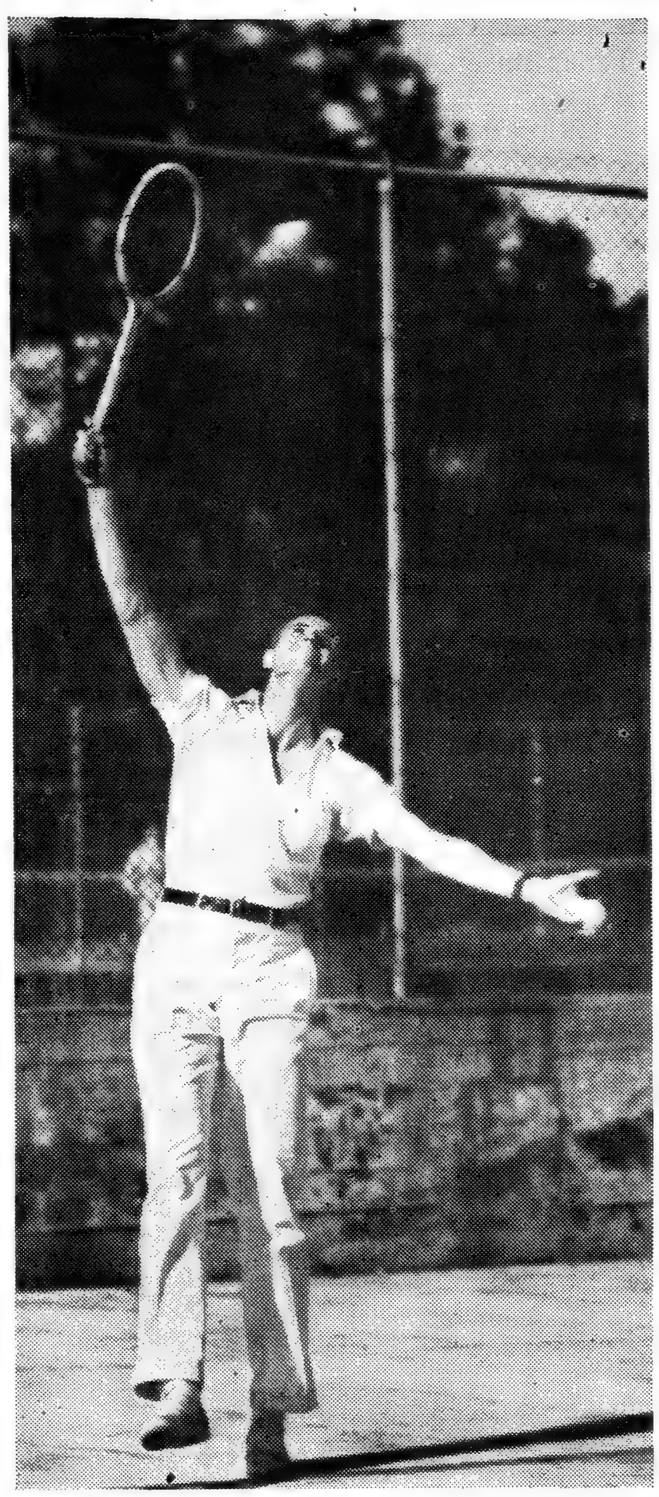
Scoring five runs in the first two innings the Wake Forest freshmen downed the Carolina first year men on their home field yesterday by a 6-2 count.

Johnny Humphries, ace hurler of the frosh outfit, walked six batters and was nicked for three hits in these first two frames. He topped this off by striking out six batters in the same two innings.

Bases Cleared

The first man up was walked and the second hit a single. Humphries loaded the bases by passing the next batter. Smith, clean-up hitter, cleared the sacks with a long triple.

The Carolina team missed its best opportunity of the afternoon in the first inning when they filled the bases with none out but failed to score.



After the first two innings the game settled down to a pitcher's battle between Humphries and Byrd. The lanky right-hander of the Carolina team allowed only one hit in the last seven innings for a total of four. Byrd, however, succumbed to seven hits in his nine-inning stretch.

The Tar Babies were held scoreless for seven innings but pushed over two runs in their half of the eighth. These runs came as a result of two hits and an error.

Carolina's infield showed up particularly well in the eighth when they completed a sparkling double play. With a man on third, Collins came up with a hot grounder and whipped it over to first to beat the batter. The man on third was nipped on a fast peg from Grubb to An-

Those B class teams still in the race in the eastern part of the state are Roanoke Rapids, Garner, Roseboro, and Whiteville, while those remaining in the west are Rockwell, Burlington, and Paw Creek.

Mural Ball Games

The favorite Phi Delta Theta's gained an early lead and defeated the Theta Chi's, 13-1, in yesterday's intramural game.

Wolslagel starred at the bat for the winners with two home runs and a single.

Klutz Building made a rally in the seventh inning but could not overtake the lead that Old West had piled up, losing the game 11-10.

QUARLES WHIPS STUMPY JACOBS

Former Carolina Lightweight Gets Decisive Revenge Win; To Fight Steve Smith.

Norment Quarles, Carolina's former Southern Conference lightweight champion, took a big step up the boxing ladder last Monday night in Richmond by winning a decisive 10-round decision over the high-ranking Stumpy Jacobs.

Jacobs is one of the two boys who has defeated Quarles since he stepped from the college ranks into the professional class a year ago this spring.

Smith Again

Steve Smith of Bridgeport is the other pro with a decision over the Carolina blond. Norm will also have a chance to avenge this setback when he takes on the tough Bridgeport pug in Durham, May 10.

It was boxer against fighter when Quarles and Jacobs clashed for the third time Monday night. Jabbing and hooking with his powerful left and throwing occasional short straight rights, Carolina's former champ gave the Richmond fans one of the finest exhibitions they have ever seen.

Almost a Knockout

The winner cleverly stayed out of Jacobs' way all through the fight and was never touched by a hard punch. The veteran ringsman was continually off

Gold Bats Out Homer For Wake's Early Lead

Crouch Hits Three and Pitches Nice Game Despite Baptists' Eleven Hits.

STATE HERE TOMORROW

Fayetteville, April 30.—Playing before two thousand fans the University of North Carolina baseball club today lost the second of its three engagements with the Wake Forest nine, 6-5.

Gold, big right-hander for the Deacs, laid into one of Freddy Crouch's spinners and laced it over Ed Voliva's head in right-field and rounded the sacks behind Dal Morris to count Wake Forest's two runs in the first inning.

Slow Fielding

Gold's slash to right was run down by "T" Vick, Carolina centerfielder, who, handicapped by a sore index finger on his throwing hand, threw the ball in to Trip Rand. Trip failed to get in front of the heave; consequently, the sphere rolled through the infield to the baseline between third and home, allowing Gold to score. On two other occasions, the fourth and sixth, Carolina outfielders permitted tallies which could have been cut off at the plate had the throw-ins been good.

Carolina evened things in their half of the first, counting twice on walks to Captain Vick and the Tripper Rand who shuffled home on a two-baser by Tommy Irwin.

Bunny Hearn's boys lost a sweet chance to take the lead in the third when Vick and Rand were left stranded on second and third as the third man was retired.

Noble Effort

After Wake Forest had chalked up two markers in the fourth and one each in the sixth and seventh, making the score 6-3,

Jacobs started fast and won the first and third rounds by fair margins, but then Norment found his range and the fight was all his the rest of the way. D. T. D., L. C. A. WIN FEATURE MATCHES

Alpha Epsilon No. 2 and S. A. E. Win; Aycock Teams Play.

Delta Tau Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha captured the feature matches in yesterday's intramural tennis competition, as the former won over Alpha Epsilon No. 1 and the latter over Theta Kappa Nu, both by 2-1 scores.

However, the A. E.'s managed to earn an even split for the afternoon as its No. 2 pair conquered over the Sigma Chi's 2-0. S. A. E. took a 2-0 win over Phi Alpha, and Aycock "A" team bested the same dorm's "B" team by a like margin.

The summary:

Alpha Epsilon No. 2, 2, Sigma Chi 0: Singer (AE) over Neal, 5-3, 3-5, 5-3; Gordon (AE) over Barney, 5-0, 54. Lambda Chi Alpha 2, Alpha Epsilon No. 1, 1: Turk (AE) over Reid, 5-0, 5-1; Brooks (LCA) over Frank, 5-3, 4-5, 5-1, Brooks and Reid (LCA) over Turk and Frank, 5-3, 5-4.

Delta Tau Delta 2, Theta Kappa Nu 1: MacPhee (TKN) over Roulier, 5-4, 5-3; Corwith (DTD) over Simpson, 5-3, 5-2; Roulier and Corwith (DTD) over MacPhee and Simpson, 5-0, 5-1.

S. A. E. 2, Phi Alpha 1: Poe (SAE) over Sobolson, 4-5, 5-4, 5-2; Cope (SAE) over Lasky, 5-4, 5-1; Aycock "A" 2, Aycock "B" 0: Onasch (A) over Cucuzzella 5-0, 5-2; Fiore (A) over Rubin, 5-4, 5-1.

Collins, Humphries, and Burnette led the hitting for Carolina. Collins collected a double and a single, while the last two collected two bingles apiece.

For Wake Forest, Young accounted for two of their four hits, while Smith's triple knocked in three runs in that hectic first inning.

The frosh resume activities on Friday when they take on the strong Duke outfit. The Duke yearlings have a find in J. Dean and a keen pitching battle is expected if he opposes Johnny Humphries.

As Punishment

The speaker declared that sterilization should not be used as a punishment and that it would not be constitutional to employ it for that purpose.

In concluding, Dr. Groves gave it as his opinion that the chief obstacle to universal adoption and increased use of sterilization were ignorance and its companion, fear.

TENNIS VARSITY FAVORED IN DUKE MATCHES TODAY

The varsity netters travel to Duke today in an effort to chalk up their eleventh straight victory of the season. The Tar Heels have met very little competition as yet and are heavy favorites to rout the Blue Devils this afternoon.

This is a return engagement, Carolina already having beaten Duke 5-1 a few weeks ago. That match was played during the mass tennis meet at Chapel Hill. The doubles were postponed because of rain. The sole singles loss was brought about by Ashby's victory over Lawrence Jones.

Demons, Carolina having scratched again in the fifth, Screw-ball Crouch led off with a bingle in the last of the ninth to greet Rhodes who had gone in for Johnson to fling 'em for the Baptists. Vick walked for the second time to put two Heels on the sand-bags. Rand was retired and both runners advanced.

Crouch crossed the plate as Irwin went out, and Vick scored on McCarn's hit. Tatum was then passed, but with the tying and winning runs on the first two junctions, Voliva was thrown out to end the game.

The Hearnmen will swap knocks with the State College technicians on home soil tomorrow afternoon at 4:00. Irby Wright will most probably chunk for the hosts.

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

DEMOCRATIC GREEKS Many persons wonder why there are so many fraternities on the campus, or, more specifically, why the University administration encouraged Greek entrance on the campus to the present number.

There were two points of motivation, we understand. One was, curiously enough, the matter of democracy. The other, not at all peculiar, was the housing problem.

The question of aristocracy vs. democracy arose when the isolated community of Chapel Hill realized that the handful of fraternities in those days didn't contribute toward democratic student mixing. So more fraternities were encouraged, to dilute aristocracy and give us democracy.

Now we have democracy. The ex-aristocrats are making a good job at democratic politics, thereby justifying the administration's early 1920 encouragement.

CAMPUS MIND When Professor Woodhouse joined up with American Liberty Leaguer Durfee yesterday, he uttered words which should become famous on this old oaken campus:

"Too many of these radical assumptions go unchallenged."

We agree with Mr. Woodhouse. On the other hand, we would also agree with a radical who says "Too many of these reactionary assumptions go unchallenged."

In fact, we believe that's one of the main reasons for this campus' giving a lethargic appearance. Everything goes unchallenged, even junior class treasurer's reports.

Consequently, nobody takes issues because there's nobody to take issue with. Except in the Phi, which is at least not splenetic in its traditional grandeur.

SOCIAL STUDY Ignorance and fear were the two reasons Dr. Ernest Groves gave the Di Senate Tuesday night why universal adoption and increased use of sterilization has not taken place.

Ignorance results in many instances among the younger of us from sheer indifference. And fear is a natural companion of ignorance, although fear is less common among persons of our age than among our elders.

The same generalizations hold true in other sociological problems. In the fields of the family, race, crime, general pathology—in all of them we are grossly ignorant, blundering along as best we can, fearful of changing our ways.

To our department of sociology goes much credit for its ability to stimulate student thought in problems sociological. North Carolina is a gold-mine state for explorers in the field of social problems.

We look forward to the particular course in the new curriculum which will provide a sociological treatment of history and economics.

DORMITORIES PICK 1935-36 OFFICERS IN QUIET ELECTION

New Dorms, Destined for Co-eds Next Year, Held No Elections; Many Chosen Unanimously.

RUFFIN ELECTION TODAY

After comparatively quiet balloting last night, eight dormitories elected their officers and floor councilors for next year. Ruffin, failing to meet Tuesday night, met to nominate officers, and will elect them today.

Elections are not being held in the New Dorms this year since they will be occupied next year by co-eds.

As a rule, several positions in each dormitory were filled by unanimous vote. All but three positions in Mangum were filled in this manner. Those elected here were: president, Allan Knott; vice-president, Willis Sensenbach; athletic manager, Bunn Hearn; councilmen: first floor, Charles Daniel; second floor, Brooks Petty; third floor, Joseph Turlington; fourth floor, Don Leeper.

Old East

In Old East all the councilmen were elected without opposition. Their officers were as follows: president, George Hux; vice-president, David Scott; athletic manager, Adair McKoy; councilmen: first section, Derrick Giles; second section, Carl Peiffer; third section, Randy Cooner.

Manly Dorm elected both president and vice-president unanimously, while elections for the remaining positions are being held over until next year. Their officers are: president, Dowe Pickard; vice-president, Jack Smith.

Steele

Steele officers are as follows: president, Emery Raper; vice-president, Henry Lewis; councilmen: first section, Frank Gooding; second section, David Allen; third section, Julien Bobbit.

Elections in Grimes resulted in two ties and an up-set for president when Niles Bond rose to defeat Paul Teal. Other officers are: vice-president, Grover Murray; secretary, W. H. Ray; treasurer, G. F. McKendry; councilmen: first floor, Wilbur Swain; second floor, Scott Hunter; third floor, Duke Tate, tied with Robert Jurney; fourth floor, John Frye, tied with Du Bose MacDowell; athletic man-

DEFEND CAPITALISM

Professor E. J. Woodhouse and Winthrop Durfee, who have accepted the challenge of English Instructors Arnold Williams, socialist, and James Wishart, communist sympathizer, to debate on private property and profits.

The challenge was made through the columns of the Daily Tar Heel.

DEBATERS SPLIT RANKS ON QUERY

Small Audience in Attendance at Triangular Forum Affair; Two Co-eds Speak.

Speaking under the assumption that no plan they could offer would be any worse than the present situation debaters from Maryland, North Carolina, and two co-eds from Georgia last night presented their personal remedial measures for the munitions question.

Cross, of North Carolina, favored a governmental commission similar to the I. C. C. to regulate the manufacture and sale of munitions and supplies. His plan was similar to that presented by the Georgia co-eds. Unlike the other representatives, Miss Geffin and Miss Miller stuck together and supplemented each other's argument.

Kirkpatrick Supported

Taking up a good portion of their time in making cracks at each other, Debaters Lee and Jacob of Maryland presented widely divergent plans. Jacob offered a rather idealistic plan involving international agreement, while Lee sided with Kirkpatrick of Carolina in favoring nationalization of the industry.

Yesterday's issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL announced that the debate was intended to be humorous. This statement was erroneous, but an air of informality that characterizes forum debates was conducive to several humorous incidents.

After the rebuttal part of the audience of a dozen participated in a 15-minute open forum.

Campus Daily Making Survey Of Fraternities To Determine Standings

In order to determine whether Greek lodges on this campus are keeping abreast of national fraternity trends, two members of this paper's editorial staff are conducting an intensive investigation by personally visiting every chapter house with a questionnaire of nearly 40 items.

The survey is in line with this journal's intention to inform Greek lodges of the possibility and probability of a University prohibition against freshmen rooming in fraternity houses, and of the growing desire here to improve dormitory facilities to a point where University rooming places will be able to compete with the social orders.

Freshmen Prohibited?

Since the principal contention which is used by those who advocate prohibiting freshmen in the chapter houses is that fraternities do not take advantage of their opportunities to encourage scholarship, the existing tutorial and counsellor system were first studied.

Only one of the dozen odd fraternities thus far visited has a regular tutor living in the house, although at least five maintain compulsory study hours for freshmen, especially before exams, and all affirm that upper classmen are willing to coach the younger brothers. One chapter requires its freshmen to bring bi-monthly signed reports from each professor.

Advice Plans

No organized plan for advice-giving was found for other than freshmen, who are counselled principally by their pledge masters. But two houses restrict pledge drinking and several more prohibit gambling by any member.

As regards study habits among fraternity men, it was discovered that the houses with the larger number of inhabitants are generally used less for studying, although all but one reported that a majority of members prefer their rooms to the University library for a place to study. The libraries maintained by the fraternities themselves are dandy places for dating.

Quiet hours are best enforced during the eleventh hour before exams. At least four houses reported regular quiet periods, usually from 8 to 11 p. m., and all have rules that radios be turned down during this time if any member is disturbed.

Straw Voters Turn Thumbs Down On Early Classes, Semester Plan

The semester system and the proposed class-hour change went down in defeat before the keen minds of 500 student voters in the DAILY TAR HEEL'S straw vote which ended late yesterday afternoon.

Not favoring change in either question, Tar Heel undergraduates registered the following counts:

THE SEMESTER SYSTEM
For—20 Against—473

PROPOSED CLASS-HOUR CHANGE
For—112 Against—390

The class-hour proposal was recently passed by the Student Welfare Board, representative campus group, with but one dissenting vote. It is possible that the DAILY TAR HEEL did not carry on an effective enough campaign in giving publicity to the question. From the beginning this newspaper has been against the proposed change.

Large Majority

The vote in the semester matter was unexpectedly heavy for the quarter set-up. Pre-vote surveys gave evidence of a close vote, but campus minds deemed otherwise.

Results of the balloting may prove to be strong influences in administrative action in the class-hour proposal. The semester question, however, is almost purely an administrative matter which curricular conditions might dictate as necessary for adoption.

SENIORS TO HONOR GRADUATES OF '85

Josephus Daniels, Ambassador to Mexico, to Return with Other '85ers for Commencement.

Old alumni of 1885 will be the guests of honor during commencement week this year. Members of the class from all over the United States are planning to be present from June 9 to 11.

This year is the 50th annirersary of that class. Out of 25 members who secured degrees, 10 are now living. There are also 17 non-degree men still alive. These men will receive seats of honor at the alumni luncheon to be held in Swain hall during the week.

Distinguished Members

A. D. Ward, attorney of New Bern, is president of the class. Among members of the class who have received national reputation and achievement are: Marion Butler, former U. S. Senator; Father Bryan, famous minister of Birmingham, Ala.; A. H. Ellar of Winston-Salem, and Dr. W. C. Riddick, former president of State College and now dean of the school of engineering at State.

Josephus Daniels, also a member of the class and U. S. ambassador to Mexico, is scheduled to be present and will take part in the commencement program.

Government Professor Will "See Air Cleared"

Conservatives to Fight Elimination of Capitalism Suggested By Williams, Wishart.

RADICALS EXPLAIN STAND

Snatching up the gauntlet for capitalism, Professor E. J. Woodhouse yesterday volunteered to join Winthrop C. Durfee in upholding during a debate private property and private profit against the shafts of Arnold Williams, Socialist, and James Wishart, communist sympathizer, both instructors in the English department.

"Too many of these radical assumptions go unchallenged," quoth Woodhouse, professor of government. "I will be glad to see the air cleared."

Conferring late yesterday, Williams and Durfee agreed upon a revised and more definite query: Resolved, that socialism is the only hope for the American society. Sponsored by the Carolina Political Union, the debate will occur Monday, May 15.

Left-Wing Challenge

Attracted by Durfee's New England Republicanism, Williams and Wishart in a letter appearing in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL defied him to choose a cohort and defend the question: Resolved, that the elimination of capitalism is necessary to the health of modern society.

"I am willing to defend any query specifying the issues of private property and private profit," declared Woodhouse, Democratic ex-Virginia lawyer. He objected that the question as stated in the challenge to Durfee was too broad to be effectively debated.

"Any question raising the issues of private property and private profit is acceptable to us," said Williams, member of the Socialist party. "We propose the debate as a means of presenting our viewpoint to the students, not in an attempt to spread propaganda or enlist recruits for any radical organization."

The proposition of the debate was conceived by Wishart, according to Williams. Though Wishart denied membership in any radical organization, he is expected to assail capitalism from the stand of communism.

"At its present stage, capitalism is an anachronism and a menace to society," was Wishart's statement of his position in the controversy.

"Capitalists will never allow themselves to be reformed or voted out of existence," said Williams, presenting his belief that complete abolition of capitalism by force or threat of force is necessary to the welfare of society.

Old Guard

Durfee, old guard party stalwart in the Phi Assembly, was singled out as a target by the challengers because of his agitations in preparation to establishing on the campus a branch of the American Liberty League, described by Williams as "the stronghold of organized conservatism." The challenge was cast, Williams told the DAILY TAR HEEL, in the hope that the Democratic government professor would enter the lists in the cause of conservatism.

Among the anti-capitalists, Wishart is expected to present

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, RABB; NIGHT, KAHN

BRIEF WORD TO THE GREEKS

The fraternities on this campus must blow their own horns but first they must have something to blow them about.

When the board of trustees meets to decide about freshmen in fraternity houses, they will have a large report of the administration showing dormitory improvements effected or underway. But it looks as if there will be nothing to present the fraternities' virtues or activities. So it might go hard with the Greeks.

Our tenet it this: fraternities here, in the face of increased dormitory service, have to get on the ball to vindicate their very being. They have the facilities for superiority; they are eminently well fitted to offer the freshmen more educationally and morally. They must prove to the trustees that they can do this.

One thing must be remembered. The administration is playing laissez-faire; if the fraternities can prove to the trustees that freshmen are helped rather than injured by fraternity connections, they must do it on their own initiative.

This short article is presenting, therefore, the fraternity situation to the fraternities themselves. Then we will also play laissez-faire and hope that we've done some good.

In the field of the tutorial system, fraternities can seize the opportunity of developing their men. The administration has hinted that it will provide tuition for fraternity tutors. Is not this an opportunity? Some say it is impossible; then why not a fraternity counsellor plan, with seniors as advisers?

Speaking of the counsellor plan further, there is an excellent opportunity for the dissemination of sex information to the freshman, vital stuff. For the bolstering of morale, for confidence, for ambition—these are purposes of fraternity counsellor plans.

Study periods must be enforced. Fraternity men have much better chances of coöperative studying, yet they often fail to grasp the idea. And for those freshmen who are in bad scholastic shape, the fraternities can stringently require intense study hours.

The house-mother situation is one to be considered. There are obvious advantages, advantages which the trustees as well as the Greeks themselves would appreciate. On the other hand, there are disadvantages. But why not coöperative investigations, discussions, considerations, of the plan's merits?

Fraternities must supply places for study. Keep the date room, but fix up the library for concentration on Virgil. Greeks must take the responsibility of seeing that they themselves are taking advantages of their own good fortune.

Social contacts should be stimulated and encouraged. This should be somewhat organized, with opportunities for all fraternity men in getting their share of social mixing and entertainment.

In improving faculty student relations, fraternities have excellent opportunities. Weekly informal gatherings should be encouraged where faculty and students may mix together.

Shaking up the Inter-fraternity Council should be an immediate consideration. The council should be the medium for common action; it should set certain standards and then there would be something to write the trustees about; it should be a vigorous, progressive group with the welfare of the Greeks at heart.

It is through council action that fraternities can make their stand against the probable action of the trustees. With the same stone another bird can be killed: the second-rate, inefficient fraternities can be eliminated if they fall below the standards.

This presentation has been all too brief. But it should serve as a reminder that all that glitters is not gold; brick houses do not mean the coöperative betterment of fraternity men.

We will not press the point. The fraternities can take what we've suggested or leave it. We'll help if they let us.

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

Guess the doctor was just a wee bit too optimistic, but anyway, we congratulate Hal and the Mrs. on this, their second blessed event. . . .

. . . D. B. Pope, a Playmaker by profession, gave birth to a brilliant (?) thought last Thursday . . . He thought it was high time that the DAILY TAR HEEL announced that the Carolina theatre was presenting its "customary makeshift entertainment which E. Carrington Smith . . . claims possesses merit" . . . It seems to us that all Mr. Pope need do would be to take in a couple of shows at the Carolina to determine once and for all that the entertainment there is only the best, the latest and the most entertaining . . . We wonder if the Playmaker theatre has ever been as full for one of Mr. Pope's shows as the Carolina theatre for its worst bill??? We hardly think so, and if Mr. Pope wishes to continue this squabble, we shall welcome it!! We have some more things to say about the Playmakers if he wants to see them published . . .

. . . Charles Butterworth-Una Merkle will be featured in a riotous comedy on Saturday at the Carolina . . . There have been more pretentious comedies filmed, but "Baby Face Harrington" is the fastest moving, most ingenious, and funniest to come out in years . . . On Sunday "Party Wire," another mirth-provoking feature starring Jean Arthur and Vic Jard will be shown . . . Now YOU'RE Talking

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

D. S., in the last paragraph of his column Speaking From the Right last Sunday, wrote, "if Hoover can keep clear of what someone had in mind when he said, 'if you can't think of anything else, give them patriotism,' his appeal will be a strong one. . . ." Evidently D. S. doesn't think much of the demogogic appeal to pseudo-patriotism.

Let's go back to paragraph three of the same column. D. S. writes, in support of his hero, "Herbert Hoover is a keen-minded, 100 per cent American whose personal and political reputation . . ." etc. What is patriotism doing here? "If you can't think of anything else . . ." I would like to invite D. S. to devote his column some day to giving us a rational definition of 100 per cent Americanism.

Aycock Run-offs

Aycock balloting made necessary three run-offs: vice-president, Gene Bricklemeyer against E. L. Peterson; secretary, Wriston Helms against Howard Osborne; second floor councilman, Ike Bynum against Scott Amoscato. Remaining officers are: president, Bill Cochrane; treasurer, Bill Stauber; councilmen: first floor, Bill Peacock; third floor, Frank Daddario; athletic manager, Joe Kornegay.

In Lewis all but two positions were elected without opposition. Those who were contested are: president, Lewis Puckett; second floor councilman, a run-off between Page Hancock and Francis Glenn. Uncontested officers are: vice-president, Roger Ginsberg; athletic manager, Joe Derrickson; councilmen: first floor, D. C. Williams; third floor, Sam Roberts.

In Old West all but the offices of councilmen were unopposed. Hugh Davis became president; Jack Horne, vice-president, and Phil Womble, athletic director. The winners for the position of councilmen were: Knox Britt first section; Dan Gallagher, second section; and Harry Stein, third section.

Ruffin Nominees

Clyde Stuttz received no opposition for president in nominations for next year's officers in Ruffin last night. Students were also unanimously installed in four other positions.

Those who went in without being contested were: vice-president, B. E. Oglesby; athletic manager, Bill McKinnon; councilmen—first floor, W. R. Worsley; second floor, R. M. Ledford. Nominations for the two remaining councilmen are: third floor, R. E. Williams and Bob Browdy; fourth floor, Berger Saylor and Paul Troutman.

Elections will be held today.

the tactical objections of capitalism. Williams will probably proffer the theoretical cons of capitalism and pros of socialism.

In the ranks of the defenders of the present order, Woodhouse styles himself a "right-wing liberal" and Colleague Durfee as a "left-wing conservative."

Declaring his trust that the forensic clash will proceed "upon an unemotional basis, with no strikes and bombs," Durfee accepted the challenge. "I will be glad to hear the isms and spasms of the socialists."

N.C. State And Carolina Nines Play Third Match Here Today

Wright and Flythe To Battle on Mound

Tar Heels Trying to Shake Hard-Luck; Strayhorn to Catch; Montgomery at Third.

CONTEST STARTS AT 4:00

Hoping to get rid of the hard-luck jinx which has been trailing it during most of the season, Carolina's baseball team will battle State this afternoon on Emerson field at 4 o'clock.

This contest will be the third meeting between these two teams and each has one victory. The Tar Heels won the first tilt, while the Wolfpack came back the second time, last Saturday, to get a 3-1 margin.

Wright vs. Flythe

Coach Bunn Hearn will send to the mound Irby Wright, rookie twirler who defeated Davidson last week in his lone Big Five start so far. He will probably be faced by Flythe, fastball twirler who held Carolina to two hits last week.

Carolina, last year's Big Five title team, is now in third place as a result of four losses in eight starts. The Tar Heels seem to have gotten tough breaks in most of the contests, losing by close scores because the batters didn't come through with one or two hits at the right time.

Strayhorn to Catch

Strayhorn is expected to see action once more behind the plate, while Jim Tatum will likely be moved to the outfield along with Captain Vick and Gus McIver, Lefty Groome, Ed Shapairo, or Ed Voliva.

Harry Montgomery will hold onto his hot-corner post although Ed Bullard is off the injury list and Jake Austin is showing lots of improvement. Tommy Irwin, Trip Rand, and Buck McCarn will fill the other infield posts.

State will lineup with Williams, first; Lambeth, short; Dalrymple, third; Rex, leftfield; Norwood, centerfield; Scales, rightfield; Johnson, second, and Staton, catcher.

Frosh Tennis Win

Continuing their consistent winning ways, the frosh tennis players rolled over Washington High 7-0 yesterday in the most complete rout of the season.

Only one shutout win was recorded, Gordon Robinson whipping Harrington by the much desired 6-0, 6-0 score. The remainder of the matches were almost as decisive, and at no time were the frosh in any trouble.

The scores follow:

Potts (C) over Gurganus, 6-1, 6-1.

Fuller (C) over Stewart, 6-0, 6-1.

Robinson (C) over Harrington, 6-0, 6-0.

Farrell (C) over Brown, 6-1, 6-0.

Strasberger (C) over Hodges, 6-2, 6-1.

Ellison-Bartelman (C) over Stewart-Harrington, 6-0, 6-2.

Bloom-Yeomans (C) over Brown-Gurganus, 6-1, 6-2.

Taxi Business Good

"Business is very good, but we hope it will be better," says Bob Lineberry, pharmacy student and co-owner of the newly established Carolina Cab Company.

The stand is located at Gooch Brother's Cafe. The cab is available for special sight-seeing tours and out-of-town trips at reduced rates. Regular rates are 25 cents for one to five occupants anywhere in the combined limits of Chapel Hill and Carrboro. As yet the company owns but one cab.

Intramural Tennis

Five matches were played in the final afternoon for the week of intramural competition yesterday and all were won by 2-0 scores.

Lewis defeated Manly, Kappa Alpha No. 1 beat A. T. O., Sigma Nu triumphed over Z. B. T. No. 1, Kluttz Building won over Everett No. 1, and Phi Gamma Delta took T. E. P.'s measure. The only forfeit went to Old East from Aycock "C."

The summaries:

Lewis-Manly: Kasen (L) over Broady, 5-0, 5-0; Smith (L) over Hendel, 5-2, 5-1.

Kappa Alpha No. 1-A. T. O.: Everett (KA) over Blanton, 5-0, 3-5, 5-0; Lovell (KA) over A. V. Kirsch, 5-1, 5-0.

Sigma Nu-Z. B. T. No. 1: Brown (SN) over Stein, 2-5, 5-4, 5-3; Old (SN) over Kalminoff, 4-5, 5-4, 5-0.

Phi Gamma Delta-T. E. P.: Henggi (PGD) over Levitch, 5-3, 5-1; Chapeman (PGD) over Eisenberg, 5-0, 5-2.

Kluttz Bldg.-Everett No. 1: McCrary (K) over Kalb, 5-1, 5-0; Outlaw (K) over Ressler, 5-3, 5-4.

Ex-Track Star

Dr. J. P. Harland, known to many students as head archaeologist, also known to a few as a crack ex-Princeton sprinter who can still do the "100" in 11 flat, will go to Goldsboro Saturday to lecture before the North Carolina Archaeological Society.

The University professor will give an illustrated lecture on "Archaeological Excavations." William I. Garis, University senior, will be among others to speak.

NETMEN GO TODAY ON NORTHERN TRIP

Outlook for Tar Heels Dark with Princeton Strongest Threat; Virginia Tomorrow.

The varsity netters, undefeated in 12 starts, pack up their bags this afternoon, and depart on their annual northern tour. The noted Carolina invasion of the district above the Mason-Dixon line opens tomorrow afternoon when the Tar Heels clash with the Virginia Cavaliers.

Following that, on the successive days excluding Sunday, they ram into Rutgers, Princeton, Yale, Army, Amherst, Williams, and Dana College.

Bleak Prospects

With the present play of the Tar Heels prospects are rather bleak. Almost every player, with the exception of Harris and Minor, has been playing poorly and is in dire need of recovery, if the undefeated status is to be retained.

Princeton, with its snarling Tiger, is of course the greatest obstacle. The team that dropped the powerful squad last year by a 9-0 count, is just about as strong as it was then, and a vastly improved team is needed for that match.

Make Trip

Harvey Harris, Bill Minor, Frank Shore, Ricky Willis, Walter Levitan, Eddy De Gray, Byron Abels, and Archie Henderson are the eight to make the trip.

DIXON HITS HOMER AS VARSITY LOSES

Inter-Squad Practice Features Rallies, Counter-Rallies.

"Dynamite" Dixon, the candy kid himself, started the ball rolling yesterday in the biggest inter-squad slugfest seen in these parts, when he slammed the second pitch of the game over the wall for a home run. Pete Boone and Bob Hooke got two more distance clouts and carried the frosh yannigans through to a 10-9 victory over the hard hitting regulars.

The regulars recovered from their surprise and staged a comeback in the final innings only to have the last batter up strike out with the tying and winning runs on the base paths.

Coaches James and Wright bet on the contest, the former winning a chocolate sundae.

The game was marked by the return to life of the Tar Baby sluggers as both teams displayed some potent batting. The balls flew thick and fast and when darkness crept over the frosh diamond, the coach was forced to call it a day, but the second team insisted that their game would be continued today.

Intramural Baseball

In one of the fastest intramural games of the season Beta Theta Pi took an early lead and defeated Kappa Sigma 5-3.

Swain Hall won over the Law School with two runs in the first inning, five in the third, and four in the fifth for a final score of 11-2.

TAR HEEL NETMEN DEFEAT DUKE, 8-1, FOR TWELFTH WIN

Minor Plays Second, Shore Third; Willis, Fourth, Fights Hard Battle to Down Gill.

ONLY LEVITAN DEFEATED

The twelfth victory was recorded in the Tar Heel tennis campaign yesterday afternoon as the varsity netters walloped the Blue Devils at Duke by 8-1.

The majority of the netters won with ease, Ricky Willis being the only victor to encounter difficulty. The only loss of the afternoon was suffered when Walter Levitan succumbed to the consistent stroking of Ashby, Duke's sensational upsetter.

Ashby dropped the opening set 6-0, and then returned to win the final two sets, 10-8, 6-1. It was this same Blue Devil that threw a cog in the last U. N. C. win, preventing the Tar Heels from twice scoring a shutout.

Willis-Gill Match

The peculiarity of the Willis-Gill match makes it a noteworthy one. Ricky ran through the first set 6-0, and then was the victim of similar treatment as Gill won the next set in straight games. The final set went to Willis 7-5.

The Carolina players competed in an entirely new lineup. Harris, as usual, was first but was now followed by Bill Minor, the state singles runner-up. Frank Shore has been ad-

COLORED DANCERS HERE ON SATURDAY

Hampton Institute Creative Dancers Sponsored by "Y."

That Hampton Institute has made another contribution to culture and art is the verdict of those who have seen the creative dance program to be given in Memorial hall Saturday evening under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Subjects which have been molded into dance forms include "The Cycle of the Depression" and "The Inevitable." Several dances in which native Africans participate will be presented. Such native dances as "Ya Ma Wisee," "Ogugu," and "Witch Doctor's Dance," appear on the varied program.

Tickets at 25 cents will be placed on sale at the "Y" today. A special section will be reserved for Negroes who might wish to attend the performance.

Between 1930 and 1934 total expenditures for education dropped over 50 per cent. Federal appropriations for aid to states for schools declined nearly 20 per cent in the past year, while expenditures for the national defense increased by nearly 23 per cent. The Federal government now spends almost six times as much for war preparation as for education.

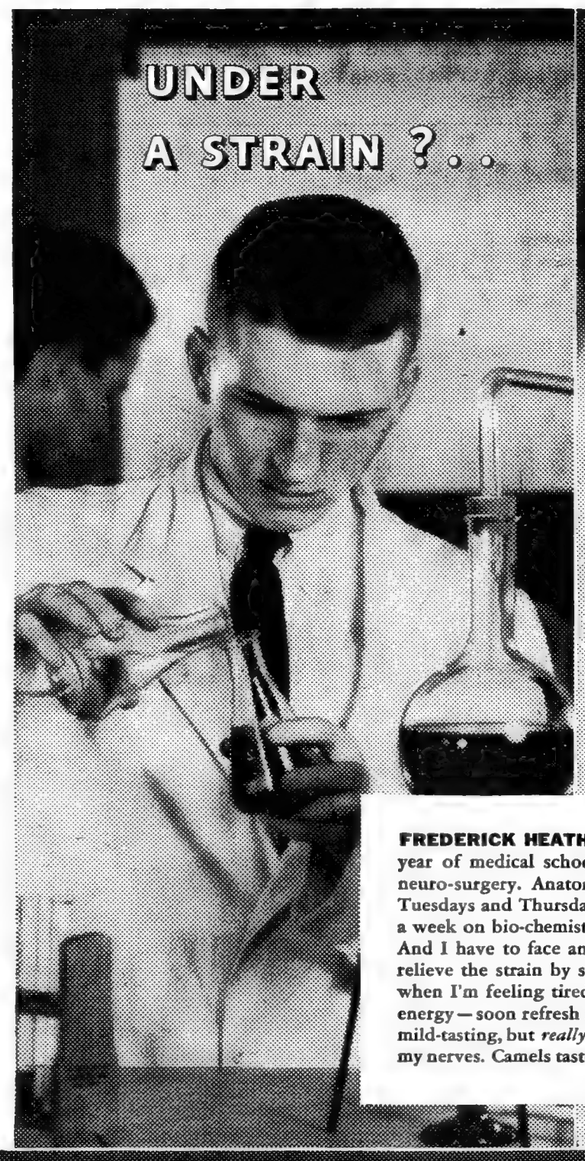
An artist friend sends us this—



Dear people who make Arrow Shirts:

I used to be known as the loneliest man on East 57th Street. Other fellows had dates with swell-looking girls. All I did was to draw pictures of them . . . . Finally I discovered Arrow Mitoga shirts, S.S.* They looked great--they fitted great. As a result, look at me now up there in the picture. See that blonde clinging to my right arm, and that vision clutching my left. That'll give you just a rough idea of how I'm doing. And, my friends, I owe it all to Arrow Shirts.

Gratefully yours,

FREDERICK HEATH—MEDICAL. Heath says: "I'm in first year of medical school now, with the idea of specializing in neuro-surgery. Anatomy 'lab' takes three afternoons a week. Tuesdays and Thursdays—embryology. I spend three mornings a week on bio-chemistry, three on physiology 'lab' and lectures. And I have to face an exam in about one subject per week. I relieve the strain by smoking Camels. I prefer Camels, because when I'm feeling tired or distracted they unlock my supply of energy—soon refresh me. Camels are extremely mild. Not just mild-tasting, but really mild. They never tire my taste or get on my nerves. Camels taste so good 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

SOCIAL LEADER. "The minute I begin to feel tired, I stop and smoke a Camel," says Mrs. Ludlow Whitaker Stevens, of New York. "Fatigue disappears. It's remarkable the way Camels renew your energy."

STUDENTS SUGGEST

Dean House told us yesterday that the class extension idea must be presented a la statement to the faculty before any official action could be taken.

We know it would be asking too much to desire a move on the part of the faculty of its own accord. However, it is something to be desired. We don't want the faculty to think we're trying to cram something down its throat, so we haven't pushed the idea more than to suggest.

When the faculty does meet and the proposal for class extension is presented, there will undoubtedly be lots said on both sides. If nothing else is gained and if the proposal is dropped, we nevertheless feel that something has been accomplished in our setting forth a plan backed with real student opinion.

But we're not despairing. The students will be heard when the faculty discusses the idea. Then let the faculty act.

CLEANING HOUSE

Jack Pool's move in appointing the committee on activities and improvement naturally tickles us to death, because we have consistently maintained that something must be done to straighten out the administrative mess which we call "student government."

Not that the committee is a panacea for campus ills. But it is indubitably a step toward some amelioration of conditions such as were evidenced several times last year.

We hope the committee's report burns the thing up. If nothing else, it should be able to present the facts of governmental bungling which in themselves, without elaboration, should speak well for a constitution to allocate power where it belongs.

FORGOTTEN SURVEY

We don't doubt that some of Dean Bradshaw's boys took a questionnaire around Everett dormitory recently to find out that resident students thought of the plan. But we can't figure out what is wrong with the inmates down there who can't remember answering the thing.

During our recent investigation of the dormitory situation, we had occasion to see over 40 per cent of Everett's inhabitants. None of these ever saw the questionnaire, which Dean Bradshaw has as a testimony in favor of the Everett system (it was very favorably thought of, according to the poll).

Questionnaires are not very practicable means of sounding out student opinion, because they are usually "yes" and "no" questions. Maybe the answers were so short that the Everettites forgot giving them.

IRVING AARONSON TO PLAY

The sixth annual series of May Frolics, sponsored by seven fraternities here, will start this afternoon at 4:30 in the Tin Can with Irving Aaronson and his Commanders, international favorites, playing for the affair.

The tea dance this afternoon will be followed with a formal dance tonight from 9 to 1 also in the Tin Can. The series will continue tomorrow with a luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham, another tea dance here tomorrow afternoon, and the final formal dance here tomorrow night.

Leading the dances will be Charlie Shaffer, D. K. E.; Sherwood Hedgpeth, Kappa Sigma; Agnew Bahnson, S. A. E.; Bruce Old, Sigma Nu; Dick Lewis, Zeta Psi; Buddy Upchurch, Sigma Chi, and Trip Rand, Beta.

The May Frolics were organized here in 1930 by six fraternities: Beta Theta Pi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta and Zeta Psi. The Florida Rhythm Club and Jelly Leftwich played for the series that year.

The next year the Phi Delts pulled out to help organize the Spring Festival and Kappa Sigma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon were taken into the group. The personnel has remained the same since that year.

In Other Years

Emerson Gill, Don Bestor, Kay Kyser and Noble Sissle have played for the Frolics in the order named. Aaronson and his band have been signed for the present set.

Officers of the organization are: president, Charlie Shaffer; vice-president, Sherwood Hedgpeth; secretary-treasurer, Agnew Bahnson; assistant secretary-treasurer, Buddy Upchurch. Rand, Lewis, and Old are on the executive committee.

Class-Extension Idea To Get Consideration At Faculty Meeting

Plan Will Be Presented to Administration with Possibility of Faculty Action.

A statement of the class-extension plan sponsored by the DAILY TAR HEEL will be presented to the administration today or tomorrow for possible faculty action at the next meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Dean R. B. House said yesterday that no action could be made on the proposal until a definite statement had been presented. Consequently, such an outline will be worked up.

The plan has been discussed considerably recently, but no action has been suggested. However, it is likely that some definite stand will result from faculty consideration next week.

BAND TO PRESENT CONCERT IN OPEN

University Band Will Give First Spring Musical on Campus.

The University band will give its first spring concert Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock on the campus near the Davie poplar.

This will be the first time in several years that the student body and townspeople have heard lawn concerts during the spring months. The band is under the direction of Earl Slocum and composed of about 40 student musicians whose interest is in the rendition of standard concert and classical music.

Following is the program to be played Sunday: March Royal, Smetsky; Overture to the Opera "Ione," Petrella; Three Kings (Cornet Trio), Smith, Soloists: Jack Klingman, C. C. Martin, John Frye; American Rhapsody "Cabins," Gillette; March of the Spanish Soldiery, Smetsky; Ballet Suite "The Enchanted Lake," by Tschaikowsky (a) Scene; (b) Dance of the Swans; (c) Hungarian Dance; Concert March, Christain Bach; Intermezzo from "The Jewels of Madona," Wolf-Ferrare; National Emblem March, Bagley. The program will end with the playing of "Hark the Sound," the Alma Mater of U. N. C.

New Dorms May Be Remodeled For Use Of Women Graduates

Signed Petition Sent Administrative Heads

Request Calls for Remodeling of Battle-Vance-Pettigrew for Occupancy Next Fall.

TO BE DECIDED IN SUMMER

Battle - Vance - Pettigrew, staunch old University dormitory considered by many male undergraduates as the best on the campus, will in all probability be turned over to the women graduate students next year, according to reports received by the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday.

A petition signed by the 87 women graduates enrolled in the University at present has been presented to Dr. Graham, Dean House and other members of the executive committee.

Extensive Remodeling

The plans as set forth in the petition call for extensive remodeling of the old dorm. They include the building of a game-room, lounge, tea-room, and making the bedrooms into suites of rooms with a bath for every two residents. The dorm under

Senior Regalia

Senior regalia, in which fourth-year students will strut next week, is now at the Student Co-operative store and may be obtained today and tomorrow, according to Senior Simmons Patterson.

The raiments are available all day on these days.

DORSETT TO HEAR WORKMEN'S CASE

Industrial Commissioner J. Dewey Dorsett will hold a hearing in a workmen's compensation case this morning at 10 o'clock in the third year class of the law school.

Testimony in the Holland-Highland Cordage Company case will be given by Dr. Bullitt of the University and Dr. Forbes of Duke.

According to M. S. Breckenridge, it is the first instance of a workmen's compensation act hearing to be held in the University.

Those students who are interested are invited to attend.

LIBERTY LEAGUE ORGANIZES HERE

Group Pledges to Expose Radical Classroom Propaganda; David Clark May Speak Soon.

Carolina conservatives, long the target of organized radical campus groups, awoke last night in the organization of a local chapter of the American Liberty League.

Under the leadership of Winthrop Durfee, some 25 students pledged membership in the national body which stands for the defense of American principles against fascism and socialism.

Durfee Made Head

Durfee, who was elected president of the chapter here last night, made it clear that the organization here will use all its power "to prove to North Carolina and the nation that this University is not a 'hotbed' of radicalism."

Meanwhile, plans have been made to secure David Clark, Textile Bulletin editor, to speak early in May on behalf of the organization.

Other officers elected last night were: DuPont Snowden, secretary, and Frank McGlinn, Robert Smithwick, Oliver Cross and Wiley Parker, executive committeemen.

Present also was Socialist Eston Everett Ericson who sought to justify the tendency of certain professors to expound their social views in the classroom.

SENIOR PROGRAMS BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Pool Announces Varied Program For Senior Week; Regalia To Be Donned Monday.

Sports, smokers, receptions, tappings, dances, and senior regalia will characterize the program for senior week which begins this Monday, according to Jack Pool, president of the class.

The senior class against the faculty baseball game will constitute the first item on the program, taking place Monday afternoon. Tuesday night a senior smoker with a program full of surprises will be held. Pool vouches for the surprises and promises all attending a fine evening.

A reception for all seniors will take place in Graham Memorial Wednesday night, and a free show has been secured to follow the reception. The game room will be open all day.

Fleece Tappings

Golden Fleece tappings, the long awaited event of the year, will be held Thursday night in Memorial hall; and the week's program will be concluded on Friday and Saturday with the Junior-Senior dances, ending with the Senior Cotillion.

Members of the class will wear their senior regalia commencing Monday. Negotiations are under way to secure Dr. Howard Rondthaler, president of Salem College in Winston-Salem, as a speaker at the class smoker Tuesday night.

New Reporters

Any member of the student body interested in doing reportorial work on the Daily Tar Heel may call by the publication office today or tomorrow between 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock to see the city editor.

Constitution Hopes Boosted As Pool Names Committee

More Duties

Harper Barnes (above), ex-president of the student body and present manager of Graham Memorial, will add his years of experience in student government to a new committee under his chairmanship appointed yesterday by Jack Pool, incumbent leader, to investigate student government and the practicability of a written constitution.

GROUP TO COMPILE 'USEFUL MATERIAL'

Appointment Comes as Result of President Pool's Pre-Campaign Platform.

The possibility that Carolina student government will finally become organized seemed imminent with yesterday's action on the part of Jack Pool, new student body head.

A committee on activities and improvements, headed by ex-student body President Harper Barnes, was appointed yesterday by Pool to look into the advisability of a written constitution for local student government, among other things.

Extra-Curriculars

"I do not ask this committee necessarily to submit a written constitution," Pool explained yesterday. "What I do wish is material which might be useful in compiling a manual on extra-curricular activities of the campus."

Members of the group besides Barnes are Haywood Weeks, Mayne Albright, Phil Hammer, Fred Weaver, Joe Sugarman, Albert Ellis, Frank Willingham, and Francis Fairley.

Tar Heel Campaign

The DAILY TAR HEEL is carrying on a vigorous campaign for a written constitution for Carolina student government. The appointment of the present committee came as a result of Pool's pre-campaign platform and governmental connections as much as from the newspaper's crusade, however.

"For some time," Pool went on yesterday, "I have felt that there has been a need for clarification as to the definite responsibilities of the campus organization and the relation of one organization to another. I believe that a brief statement would

CREATIVE DANCES TO BE PRESENTED TOMORROW NIGHT

Hampton Institute Group Will Offer Interpretative Program Under Auspices of "Y."

INCLUDE AFRICAN DANCES

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., the Hampton Institute Dance Group will present their program of creative and interpretive dances in Memorial hall tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The first half of the program has been divided into two general parts: "The Cycle of the Depression" and "Dances of the People."

"The Cycle of the Depression" is composed from the study of economic struggles in the world which is comparable to the general struggles of man to win freedom from his enslaving factors.

Folk Dances

Under "Dances of the People," folk dances are used which are characteristic of different European nationalities. The native dances of Russia, Poland, and Italy are represented in this division, along with a character study of the Gypsies.

After these will be a group of native African dances which include "Ya Ma Wisee" in which the visit of God to an African tribe is shown, "The Beggar's Dance," depicting the wandering African beggars as they pass through villages in groups of two or three singing and dancing for the amusement of the crowd, and the wedding ceremony which is called "Wyo Mamie."

Modern Trends

In the latter part of the program, the dance turns to a more modern trend in the "Design Moderne," which takes form in lines peculiar to modern influence in art. "Cutting the Sugar Cane" by Shawn is a vivid portrayal of a phase of Cuban life.

The admission for this performance has been set at 25 cents. A special section will be reserved for Negroes.

WAR DISCUSSION AGITATES LEAGUE

MacFarland, Magill Speak, Supported by Woodhouse, Frazer, Stoney, Bahnson.

Facing competition from the DAILY TAR HEEL banquet on the other side of the partition and surrounded on a mythical platform by Mr. Woodhouse (he once beat out Calvin Coolidge for mayor of Northampton, Mass.), Don McKee, and Don Becker, George MacFarland gave Chapel Hill its first taste of what the Iowa plan can really do for public meetings.

He was preceded by Bob Magill's 10-minute short on current happenings across the seas, a talk which was comprehensive yet to the point—and something new to the Foreign Policy League.

Neutrality Problem

MacFarland gave a decidedly intelligent presentation of the neutrality problem which has done so much to draw the United States into past wars. He started out by saying that our government can't ignore public opinion and get away with it. As a result our foreign policy is dictated by the "state of mind" of the people, a state of mind which has been opposed since pioneer days to kowtowing to a foreign government. His parting shot was that the United

THE DORMITORIES' SIDE

Now it's our turn to present the dormitory situation to the administration. It's true that the vigorous business office doesn't need much presentation of dormitory facts; in fact, there's very little which this efficient administration doesn't know, which is in sharp contrast with the inefficient business administration of several years ago.

However, we have had an exhaustive investigation conducted and following is a brief survey of what we have to suggest for the dormitories, to be effected either by the administration or dormitory leaders themselves.

First, of course, comes the physical lay-out. The Student Advisory Committee made numerous recommendations in this respect. Some of them have not been acted upon and should be looked into.

For instance, there must be more stringent dormitory inspection and improved janitorial service. There must be generous applications of paint. There must be toilet rehabilitation. There must be considerable furniture replacement. There must be social rooms.

This last item depends on re-allocation of fees to provide for this. How were the rent fees set in the first place? Well, nobody seems to know, even the administration. This bears more investigation and action.

Then consider the Everett plan. The plan's all right, but in operation it has been a failure. Even Dean Bradshaw's questionnaire won't shake our stand on that. We have found that there is no supervised study; no attempt is made to maintain conditions favorable to study; there is no genuine freshman segregation; the dormitory is not quiet and, contrary to administrative reports, students have been known to move out of Everett for this reason; the councillors are not qualified to tutor freshmen; the social room is not "social" nor is it attractive.

What must be done? Finances preclude extensive housing rehabilitation, but foundations can be laid. And dormitory men can coöperate.

We suggest these things:

Use of part of rent fee for providing social rooms.

Maintenance of dormitory libraries by contributions from inmates and library administration by store-keepers.

Organized dormitory government, to carry on organized political efforts, intramural participation, sex information, councillor work among freshmen, enforced quiet hours, efforts toward congeniality, with regular dormitory meetings in places other than the noisy halls.

Revitalization of the Inter-dormitory Council, so that it may act toward better dormitory coöperation, toward unified movements in the fields of self-government, extra-curricular participation, standards of scholarship and athletics, and social adjustment.

We grant that most of these reforms must arise from the students themselves, but the administration can pave the way by providing better living conditions and more attractive quarters. The need for social rooms, for instance, is great; any good sociologist can tell you that dormitories are forces against social expansion, or clean concepts of social conduct.

Dr. Groves said that he will instruct councillors in dissemination of sex information. Here is a field for great work on the part of dormitories as well as fraternities.

We will publish all the facts which our investigations have shown. From this preliminary analysis we offer these conclusions:

The administration must continue to help the dormitories. The dormitories must share the responsibility and aid the administration in arranging a new era of housing improvement.

From a COLLEGE WINDOW

By WILLIS S. HARRISON

The purpose of this column is to present a picture of the college world with its trends of undergraduate thought, its activities, and its many sidelights—with comments upon the same.

The latest group of state legislators to attract attention to themselves by their red-baiting activities is the state legislature of California. They have denounced the political science department of the University of California for daring to say that the United States should have joined the World Court. Their latest denunciation attempts to crucify eighteen professors of the same university for protesting against the proposed passage of an anti-red bill.

The denunciations take the usual form of "un-American, European ideas," and other trite and patriotic phrases. Regardless of the alleged faults of the communistic doctrine, the legislators, if they really possess such hide-bound faith in existing institutions, should not be afraid to have the future citizens of the country inspect these institutions from a critical viewpoint and to compare them with other systems of government.

Certainly they should know that oppression only fosters the growth of such movements.

The student paper of the University of Washington has nominated for its Hall of Fame professors who:

Can fire facts, uninteresting as they may be, at their classes without putting them to sleep.

Gain student interest by plunging their classes into spirited discussions of the League of Nations, tariffs, the relative merits of Shakespeare and Johnson, or any other subject which they are studying.

Wear polka-dot ties on Tuesdays and Thursdays and knit ties on the other three days.

Find it unnecessary to take roll because they make classes too interesting and valuable to miss.

Stimulate thinking instead of sixth grade memorizing.

Tell jokes no older than the earliest Mae West gags.

Give tests oftener than two or three times a quarter.

Have read something on their subject since 1928.

Realize spring with its canoe-days has arrived without reading about it in the weather reports.

Illustrate their lectures with incidents which happened (1) in states other than their own home state; (2) to children other than their own; and (3) sometime after 1910.

The University of Pittsburgh student paper speaking for professors would recommend to the Hall of Fame students who:

Can stay awake and show at least a slight interest in their courses, even if they do not intend to use them in their life's work.

Are well enough read in current events and practical economics to carry on a conversation of average intelligence.

Wear something besides dirty sweatshirts and cords and shave and comb their hair at least once a day.

Prepare their work from day today and do not depend on others for their assignments.

Realize that even though spring is here, they must put in at least a reasonable amount of work.

Contribute something to the course besides what is read in a textbook or heard in a lecture.

Take enough pains to make an examination paper at least readable.

Schedule courses because they wish to learn about the subjects, rather than because the courses are required.

Act grown up.

COLLEGE PRESS

Are Fraternities Serving a Purpose?

Fraternities have been coming in for a more than usual "raking over the coals." Several weeks ago there was a nation-wide protest against the alleged inhuman practices of fraternity "hell-week." The charge was made that the amount of torture, or the ability of a man to "take it," was no true measure of his fitness to belong to the Yappa Yappa Yappa fraternity.

Fraternities call themselves social organizations. It would seem logical then they should consist of a group of students banded together because of a belief in a certain set of principles. In any event men shouldn't have to prove their fitness for social life by seeing if they can stand having their faces smeared with silver nitrate.

And now there comes to the fore the suspension of a fraternity for alleged immorality. The fraternity in question is accused of having bad women in its house for immoral purposes. The same fraternity on another campus was ordered disbanded because it was in the habit of holding frequent drinking parties.

In still another instance, the members of a fraternity are facing charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, following an alleged drinking party.

Are fraternities decaying? If they are, it is about time that they begin to set their houses in order to avoid extinction. Probably the last two instances cited are merely isolated cases and do not apply to the whole system. But all fraternities should conduct a thorough house-cleaning where it is necessary.

Fraternities can and do serve a very definite purpose on the campus of any institution. They are of immense help in making contacts that are of infinite help to the student in future life. But the system seems "lost in a fog" right now. Only straight thinking and decisive action will bring them out of it.—The Butler Collegian.

Engineering—Where?

Just now while the Chapel Hill division and the Raleigh division of the Greater University are struggling for possession of the consolidated Engineering School, the public stands by and closely watches every move made by the two factions.

It is most doubtful that a decision will be made by the Legislature at this session, since

Now YOU'RE Talking

NOT SO SWEET

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Earl W. Wolslagel's column is just a little too much to stomach. When one of your freshmen confuses the Playmakers' studio production with the experimentals and, on that basis, editorializes in the news columns at the Playmakers' expense, that's all right—once. After all, we expect a few more than the regulation number of stupidities in the first issue of a new TAR HEEL. But when that stupidity is defended in a column which is nothing in the world but free advertising for that greatest of philanthropists, E. Carrington Smith, it's going too far. Or is Wolslagel's ballyhoo free? Maybe great-hearted Smith drops him a little something for it. If he does, suppose you tell the campus about it. Tell us if he doesn't.

Tell us the truth, but in the name of Horace Greeley, quit beating your advertiser's drum. Instead of repeating—as Earl probably will, before long—that story about the organ Smith gave us because he couldn't sell it for a tenth its purchase price—or the one about his giving the town the old Pickwick for a police court—to quash all hopes of competition—why don't you tell us that no other theatre in the state has as high an average admission price as his? Why not tell us that the Carolina is the most envied theatre in the state. Finally, why don't you junk Wolslagel's column; it's a twobit rehash of Movie Mirror and a direct steal from E. C. Smith's advance blurbs.

Now you talk.

CHARLES LLOYD.

MORE SOUR NOTES

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

When 68 members of a group of 75 people appreciate the finer things in life and want to bring some of them to our campus by means of the radio, can two people deny them the privilege?

Last week a notice was posted on the bulletin board at Spencer hall to the effect that all radios were to be removed from the girls' rooms because they were disturbing the other co-eds.

The following day a petition stating that the undersigned had no objections to the operation of radios in the dormitory was posted on the same bulletin. Sixty-eight signatures immediately appeared on the petition and only the lack of writing space prevented other signatures from being added. Before another paper could be posted the petition mysteriously disappeared and all the radios were collected and stored. It has since been learned that the petition was removed by Mrs. Lee, dormitory house-mother.

Regardless of the fact that we are well known as a student governed University, Mrs. Stacy, at a meeting of the co-ed radio owners recently, made a statement to the effect that petition or no petition the radios are to remain in storage and other radios are positively not to be operated.

The problem is not a new one with the group. Last fall the various ukeleles in the dormitory were collected and stowed in spite of loud protest from the co-eds. One ukelele has since been returned, but others remain in storage.

Is the University of North Carolina a liberal institution, or "do stone walls a prison make?"

ANOTHER CO-ED.

Policy League

States can not keep neutral in another big war.

Then the Iowa plan, which plants men on the platform primed to start discussion, swung into action as the Y. M. C. A.'s Don McKee asked why the United States couldn't cut out all trade and shut up like a clam. He was immediately backed up by Agnew Bahnson, business manager of the Yackety Yack, and Richard Stoney, who continually backed himself up by "Isn't that right, Mr. Woodhouse?"

Started by Frazer

Whereupon government's Dr. Frazer startled all by profoundly stating that neutrality and impartiality are two different things, and Joe Barnett said that, while Sweden might accede to domineering by the British, the chances are that we'd fight first.

Francis Fairley closed the meeting by hinting darkly of some co-operation between the Foreign Policy League and the Y. M. C. A. for next year. This brought forth a promise by President Barnett that he would confess his entire plan of attack at the next meeting, May 16. But after the official adjournment no one left—they were all too interested in fighting about how to keep us from fighting another war!

Technicians Stick Tars To Garner 3-2 Victory After Big Mound Fray

FLYTHE SWATS FOR DOAKS

Fifteen Cavaliers Here Today For First of Brilliant Two-Game Series.

Playing uninspired ball and failing to hit consistently with men on the sacks, Carolina's pellet-chasers yesterday lost the second of three games played with the State Techs.

Rookie Wright's little brother, Irby, pitched six-hit ball for the Heels and aided his own cause by driving in his team's one earned run of the afternoon only to see his cohorts let down in the fifth frame, giving State two runs and enough to win the game. Leaving seven men lounging in the pathways, six of them on second or third, Carolina batters relinquished scoring possibilities in the second, fifth and eighth.

The Tar Heel nine will meet Virginia in the first of a two-game series at Emerson field this afternoon.

Freddy Crouch will pitch for Carolina and will probably be opposed by Captain Orlin Rogers, brilliant Cavalier hurler.

The game will be called at 4 o'clock.

Dalrymple, hot-corner man for State, was walked three times, given life by an error on one occasion and was credited with a harmless triple in the ninth; on base safely five times, he scratched the surface of the home platter only once.

University Scores

To start the home team half of the first, Captain Vick chiseled the goonish Flythe for a hike to first. He went out a moment later, however, as Rand forced him, short to second. Tommy of the short-field in turn forced Rand in the same way, waiting only 13 seconds before redeeming himself in safely snitching the key-bag. Flathead McCarn walked, and after playing catch-me with Mr. Flythe and immediate family, he and Thomas enacted a double steal, going to second and third, respectively, while Staton counted the blue stitches on the horse-hide. Irwin scored as McIver's roller was errored by Lambeth. Strayhorn whiffed to end the fun.

McIver, first up in the fourth, made Carolina's first hit, a single, into short left-center, went to second when Strayhorn's bunt bounded for a hit. Tatum rolled out a sacrifice, advancing both runners. Montgomery popped to Johnson, and two were out. Irby, the pitcher, then took his stance and with the count two and three, poled a sharp single to left, scoring Mac, but speedy fielding by big Rex prevented Stray from counting a second run. Vick pulled the curtains on the home-town scoring as he flew one squarely into Rex's waiting basket.

Hanged Luck

State drew its first ace in the fourth after Staton had been retired for the first out. Flythe walked, Williams got life when Irwin played crocket with his hard-hit grounder, and Dalrymple strolled for the third successive time to occupy the last vacant sand-pile. Bunny Lambeth ankled also to force Flythe in

N. C. CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF TOURNAMENT WILL START TODAY

Tar Heels Lose Erwin Laxton, Pin Hopes on Pijanowski as Duke Becomes Strongest.

MATCH WILL START AT 9:30

Today the air around the Hope Valley course will resound with cries of "fore" and the whip of a golf ball as Carolina plays host to the finest N. C. intercollegiate golfers in the annual state championship golf tournament.

Beginning at 9:30 this morning the meet will run throughout the day. At stake will be the state individual championship as well as the state team title.

The Tar Heel team will be considerably weakened by the absence of Erwin Laxton. Carolina's lead-off man and ace player of the team will not be on hand as he was compelled to go out of town. With the loss of the Tar Heel dubber's star, Duke now stands one of the best chances of coming out on top.

Eyes on "Pijie"

Anxious eyes will watch Walter Pijanowski to see whether he can repeat the excellent brand of golf displayed at Athens in the southern intercollegiate tournament last week.

The Red Devil team is about the only other formidable foe in the play today, and might stand in the way of Duke or Carolina's success. The Raleigh boys were not in the tournament last week, and therefore it is difficult to compare their ability in tourney play. Since their team is composed mainly of veteran players, they are sure to offer a hard fight for the team title.

The present list of entries is one of the largest ever to compete in a state golf meet. Catawba helped to swell the previous number of annual contestants by entering competition this year. Among the teams taking part today are Davidson, Duke, Wake Forest, State, Carolina, and Catawba.

Durham About Cinches Baseball Tournament

The state-wide high school baseball tournament is rapidly drawing to a head, according to R. W. Rankin of the extension division. East and West will play in Chapel Hill on May 9 for the B division championship, and the A division game will be held on the 10th.

Roanoke Rapids will play Roseboro at Rocky Mount Saturday for the eastern representative, while Burlington plays Paw Creek for the eastern championship on the same day at Lexington.

In the A division, Durham has practically clinched the championship for the east. Greensboro will play Gastonia in a series of three games for the western winner. These will take place in Gastonia and Greensboro today, Monday and Tuesday, respectively.

Epic Of A Homer

By LEE TURK

"Hit us a homer," the mighty mob shouted,
As the mighty Dixon strode up to the plate.
He had three big bludgeons hard on his shoulder.
And a sincere belief in his luck and his fate.
He faced the ball-tosser with confident grin
And begged him to hurry and toss the ball in.
The first crossed the plate but Dix let it go.
"Strike one," bawled the ump, but it really was low.
The next one was over and he hit it so hard
That he knocked it a-soaring out of the yard.
And great was the joy on the yannigans' bench,
For now did the regulars falter and stagger
And they thereupon dropped the decision, 10-9,
Because Dynamite Dixon had hit a four-bagger.

LEGION WILL GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY

The American Legion of Chapel Hill will stage the musical comedy, "The World's All Right," in Memorial hall on Monday and Tuesday nights. Many prominent townsmen will take part in the event.

The Harlem High Steppers with Bill Sougg and Margaret Howard capture the spotlight; however, the rest of the cast is by no means outdone.

James Phipps, Chapel Hill judge, is reported to be the latest find. In the role of radio announcer he does much toward making the play a success.

The Hill Billy act will vie with the best of them. One old gentleman was forced to drop out of the act as the rehearsals interfered with his sleep.

The proceeds of the play will go to the American Legion Hut fund. High school and University students will be admitted at half price and grammar school students at 10 cents.

Past Instances

Pool was evidently referring to several instances which this newspaper recently brought out where a written constitution or some such similar document could have averted controversies arising from misconceptions of precedental policies and powers.

The new committee will also act as a sort of advisory committee to Pool and members of the new student administration.

VARSITY NETTERS BEGIN PLAY TODAY IN NORTHERN TOUR

Virginia Cavaliers First Opponent; Rutgers, Yale, Princeton, Army Are Next.

WILL BE EIGHT-GAME TRIP

The Carolina netters launch their northern campaign this afternoon at Charlottesville against the Virginia Cavaliers. This match opens a strenuous eight-game trip against the best teams that the north has to offer.

Virginia has the Southern Conference singles champion in their squad, and this will call forth the best Harvey Harris has to offer in the initial singles.

Carl Rohmans is the personage that will face Harris in the feature match. Fred Barclay, second singles for Virginia, is a sensational sophomore and is also a serious threat.

Stuart Taylor is the third of the dangerous Cavaliers. This marks his third year on the Virginia team and his experience itself warrants careful play by the Tar Heel who faces him.

Coach Kenfield will probably return to the original lineup for today's match. This will have Ricky Willis at second spot and Levitan in third. However, this is very indefinite and the coach is planning to play the men as the occasion demands.

Saturday will find the team in New Brunswick, N. J., battling the Rutgers combination. Sunday is a day of rest, and the team will launch into their intensive campaign against Yale, Princeton, Army, and the other top-notch northern schools.

Academy of Science

The North Carolina Academy of Science is holding its annual meeting at the Woman's College today under the leadership of Professor H. R. Totten of the botany department of the University, the retiring president.

Several members of the faculty are to deliver papers on research and work done here.

Tracksters Seek Fifteenth Win In Tomorrow's Meet

FROSH NET STARS BEGIN TOUR TODAY

Potts, Fuller Lead Team of Five; Hold First Match With Asheville Tomorrow.

Eddy Fuller and Ramsay Potts are at the head of a contingent of five freshman net stars, who depart this afternoon for Asheville for their opening encounter of their northern tour.

The other three players are Johnny Foreman, Frank Farrell, and Gordon Robinson. Although original plans provided for but four players, the relative parness of the above three caused Coach Kenfield to send out a team of five.

Meeting Asheville School for Boys tomorrow, the frosh continue with Biltmore Forest Country Club on Sunday, Woodberry Prep in Orange, Va., on Monday, the Virginia freshmen in Charottesville on Tuesday, Episcopal High in Richmond on Wednesday, and finally clash with St. Christophers in the same city on Thursday.

The team will leave this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and will return in time for next Friday's classes.

Professors to Speak At Social Conference

Howard Odum, E. R. Groves, H. D. Wolf, Sanford Bates, Governor Ehringhaus and E. A. Filene of Boston will be among the leading speakers at the N. C. state conference on social service to be held in Winston-Salem beginning Sunday and lasting through Tuesday.

The student division will meet separately for four conferences, during which time it will hear addresses by Dr. Keister and Norman Block, both of Greensboro. Four papers will be presented by students from Duke, Meredith, Wake Forest and Carolina.

Francis Fairley is scheduled to deliver a paper before the student division.

Harry Riggs and Harry Comer are president and adviser, respectively, for the state organizations, as well as for the local chapter.

All students interested in attending the conference should sign up with Comer at the "Y."

FAVOR TAR HEELS TO CAPTURE EVENT

State, Carolina, and Duke Freshmen Will Also Settle Disputes in State Meet.

The number 13 is generally considered unlucky, and it may be just that for Carolina tracksters when they attempt to capture their fourteenth straight win in the annual state meet here tomorrow.

Only once since the Tar Heels commenced their domination of the track arena have they not come out the winners—in 1921 when State College took the title by a 60 to 59 1-3 margin. Davidson last won in 1918.

Tomorrow Carolina will not be fearing black cats, ghoulish bats, or any of the like, but real honest-to-goodness Blue Devils, for Duke is the team most favored to topple Carolina from the heights.

The meet should produce another close battle between these two arch rivals and with Duke apparently benefitting greater from the additional 39 points more than the dual scorings, it would not be the least surprising to see the Durhamites win out.

After closely figuring the outcome on a basis of this season's performances—and considering slight outside competition—Duke rates about four points ahead of the defending champs. The prognostic count is 74-70.

Last year Carolina took the title with 85 points. Duke was runner-up with 37, and Davidson came third with 33. In that meet nine state records were broken—five by Carolina performers; three by Davidson, and one by State. Five of the men who set up six records will return.

In addition State freshmen will settle their disputes, with there being little doubt that the Blue Imps of Duke should receive any too much trouble. Last year they won with 116 2-3, Carolina was next with 31, while Davidson and State trailed with 7 1-3 and 7, respectively.

Admission prices are set at 50 cents for the general public, and 25 cents for students. The 30-event program will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Track Admission

Admission prices for the state intercollegiate track and field meet scheduled to be held on Emerson field Saturday afternoon are 50 cents for general admission and 25 cents for students with passbooks.

Carolina Donkey Riders Will Take Field Against Duke Team Tonight

Game to Be Played at 7:45 in El Toro Park, Durham; Starting Lineup for Carolina Not Yet Decided; Betters Base Heaviest Backing on Jackasses and Don Jackson's Pitching.

Tonight at 7:45 nine stalwart sons of old Carolina will take the field against an equal number of Duke representatives in a donkey baseball game to be played at El Toro park in Durham.

The starting lineup has not been decided upon but will be chosen from the following: Don Jackson, Bill Moore, Dick Buck, Marion Diehl, Emmett Joyce, Jack Ericson, Bob Stewart, Fletcher Ferguson, Earl Wolslagel, Dave Scott, Hump Snyder, Dave Mosier, Oliver Schriver, Elmer Wrenn, Malcolm Everett.

Jackson to Pitch

The Tar Heels will rely heavily on the pitching of Don Jackson. Jackson gained renown as an intramural pitcher in last year's tournament. They are also looking for some nice healthy wallops from the bats of Emmett Joyce and Dick Buck to keep them in the running.

No attempt will be made to pick the winner of this epic battle. The bets, however, should be placed on the jackasses. Carolina's hope lies in them and Don Jackson. The object after hitting the ball is to get said animals to run. Let's hope that we have a good bunch of donkey-coaxers on the team.

Herman Schnell has stated that anyone having a car and desiring to transport players over to the game will be given a free pass. They are to report to Emerson field at 6:45.

Tickets for this contest are on sale at the athletic office and at Alfred Williams. The price of admission will be 25 cents at either of these places, but tickets purchased at the gate will be 35 cents.

Came the seventh round. Flythe singled, and Williams got another on a tricky bunt; Dalrymple was on when Wright held onto his intended sacrifice, filling the stations. Lambeth drove in a score with his fly to center, and Dalrymple was number two on Norwood's single. Scales terminated the afternoon's scoring on both sides as he bounded out, third to first.

The Virginia baseball squad is here today for the first game in a series of two with the Tar Heels. The second game of the set will be played in Greensboro Saturday afternoon.

EATON, RED CROSS AQUATIST, TO TALK

Carolina to Receive Examiners' Corps Charter from Life-Saver.

Carolina swimming aces, including the 37 students now participating in the Red Cross examiners' course being given at Duke University, will hear national field representative of the Red Cross, Ramone S. Eaton in Gerrard hall at 2 p. m.

Aquatic expert Eaton, nationally known instructor and life-saver, will formally present Carolina with her Examiners' Corps charter at the Gerrard hall open meeting.

Local Red Cross chairman R. M. Grumman is scheduled to introduce the tall, blond athlete who will recount his "Experiences in Live-Saving." Eaton, with a belt of saved-scalps to his credit and a record of co-eds in his instruction classes, is expected to include a number of peppy and thrilling incidents in his speech.

Before his Gerrard hall lecture. Eaton will speak to the members of the Examiners' Corps at 1 p. m, lunch time. "Y. M. C. A." Lee Greer and "Football" Ellis Fysal are local advisers.

Eaton's four-day course at Duke is being participated in by more than 135 students. The instructor teaches often from within the pool, demonstrating all the while. He has become as interesting in the water as a "wet" professor.

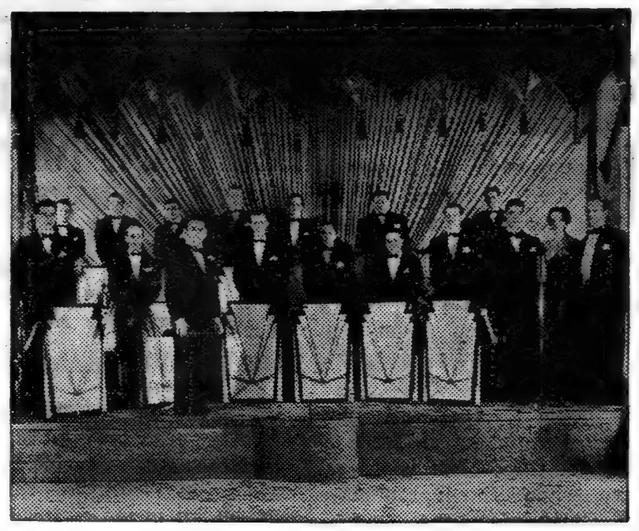
there have been but too few recommendations offered to consider the ultimate location of the Engineering School. Both institutions are waging one of the most interesting sieges ever seen in educational circles.

Some impressive facts have been brought out that should arouse the attention and curiosity of the public, and at the same time show the advantages of the final location in Raleigh rather than at Chapel Hill. At Carolina there are 2,704 students enrolled, or an increase of only 11 per cent over last year's figures. State College's enrollment of 1,802 is an increase of 21 per cent over last fall. Of the 2,704 students in school at Carolina, there are only 265 taking engineering, this being slightly less than 10 per cent of the entire student body. At State College, however, of the 1,802 enrolled, 670, or slightly more than 37 per cent of the student body, are in the Engineering School.

On the basis of graduates and the budget appropriations for the school, each engineering graduate at the Chapel Hill division cost the taxpayers of North Carolina last year $1,862, while the cost at State College per engineering graduate was only $891, or less than 50 per cent of the Carolina figure. The State College figure also includes graduates in mathematics. If this department were not included, the total cost per graduate would have been about $100 less.

Carolina's graduating class last year of engineers was only 20. The enrollment in the same school last year was 224 students. In other words, the Chapel Hill division apparently has a high mortality rate among its engineers, since, judging from the figures, only about one out of every 11 matriculating in engineering were graduated, while at State College one out of every five and one-half received diplomas. Of the 600 enrolled here last year 112 were in the 1934 graduating class.

The number of graduates in the Engineering School at Carolina for the past five years also shows an interesting comparison. In 1930, 38 were graduated; in 1931, 36; in 1932, 34; in 1933, 27; and in 1934, 20. If the figure continues to decrease, the school there is apparently doomed to die a natural death.



This institution has practically every advantage over the Chapel Hill site for the location of the Engineering School. In the first place, there is more equipment and better facilities here; in the second place, this is recognized as one of the best technical colleges in the country; in the third place, the enrollment in the Engineering School here far surpasses that at Carolina; and in the fourth place, there is a great deal of engineering work carried on in the city of Raleigh, which is almost entirely absent in Chapel Hill, and which therefore provides a great deal of practical knowledge for students enrolled here.

Just why some wish to locate the consolidated school at Chapel Hill is not very clear, unless for sentimental reasons. Consolidation was inaugurated as a practical enterprise, and sentiment should have but little to do with the location. One of the more rabid Chapel Hill proponents has gone so far as to suggest that secret enemies are at work to undermine the Carolina division. The accuser, John Sprunt Hill, with such a small amount of apparent thinking on his part, should never make any further statements along this line if he wishes not to be held up to public ridicule. His accusation was the occasion for a great deal of amusement when it was published in state newspapers.

If the Chapel Hill division would take a look into the future, it might see that the best location for its law school would be in Raleigh, which is the best laboratory for law students in the entire state. In this city there is located practically every type of court from the magistrate's court to the State Supreme Court and the federal courts. In making their demands for the entire Engineering School, the Chapel Hill advocates might take the aforementioned proposal into consideration. Raleigh has many advantages which the town of Chapel Hill can never offer.

The State College delegation realizes that it has a tremendous task ahead of it, and is now working tirelessly towards the placing of the consolidated Engineering School here.—State College Technician.

Silk Hat, Baby, Human Bones Collected In Carolina Theatre

E. Carrington Smith and Staff Return Scores of Forgotten Articles Collected on Their Nocturnal Treasure Hunts.

Every night after the show the local theatre force goes on a treasure hunt, and included among the things they find are hats, shoes, books, overcoats, raincoats, gloves, and various and sundry unmentionables.

Women seem to be more forgetful than men, if one can judge by the articles left at the theatre. Then again, rainy weather appears to be more conducive to forgetfulness than sunny weather, just as winter seems to have it over summer.

Coat to Florida

More things are left at the theatre on dance nights than at any other time, said E. Carrington Smith, theatre manager. The theatre has had to mail a coat to Florida, shoes to New York, and feminine apparel to all parts of the state.

Quite a few pocketbooks are found. One containing $200 was discovered several years ago; it belonged to a Carolina student, but that was several years ago.

Queer Assortment

The theatre force finds dozens of letters of many types. Most of them are turned over to the postoffice. Among the more peculiar articles found were: one high silk hat, bones belonging to a med student, and one automobile pump.

The most valuable, noisy, and unintentional present was made to the theatre when some country woman left her three-year-old boy. The entire force became wet nurses for the kid until the forgetful mother discovered her loss and drove back to town to reclaim the child.

SAYLOR AND WILLIAMS WIN RUFFIN ELECTIONS

Bob Williams and Berger Saylor were elected third and fourth floor councilmen, respectively, in the Ruffin elections yesterday.

Other officers, nominated Wednesday night without opposition, are Clyde Stuttz, president; B. E. Oglesby, vice-president; Bill McKinnon, athletic manager; W. R. Worsley, first floor councilman; and R. M. Ledford, second floor councilman.

Freshman Executives

Ten members of the Freshman Executive Committee met last night and talked at length on the enticing subject of obtaining a $15 refund from the Yackety Yack on the $150 paid for pictures.

Class President Clyde "Pete" Mullis appointed a committee to plan a freshman smoker, to be held in Swain hall two weeks before exams. The committee consisted of Jack Tate, Billy Seawell, Drew Martin, Bob Garland, Warren Haddaway, Stewart Leak, Carl Peiffer.

Tar Heel Spree

Free advice not to try too many chances at one time was received by Editor Hammer from the University's journalism department, O. J. Coffin, at the annual DAILY TAR HEEL banquet last night.

Along with the advice, which has been anticipated by Hammer in his recent condenstation of the paper's policy into a fight for four big goals, went praise for many of the changes and a verbal pat on the back from the journalism professor.

When "Big Sister" Les Forgrave talked and drew, an astonishingly full knowledge of comic strips was displayed by the campus newsmen in the questions they asked. It was further proof of the long-known fact that if the public reads nothing else, it reads the "funny-papers."

The annual issue of The Campus Backspace, a take-off on the DAILY TAR HEEL, made staff members neglect their shortcake to look for their names in the "news" articles.

Hoey to Talk at Fleece Tapping Next Thursday

Clyde Hoey, Shelby's probable candidate for governor, will deliver the principal address at the tapping for Golden Fleece next Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Mr. Hoey will be introduced by Dr. Horace Williams, founder of the order, and by Frank Abernethy, present Jason.

Last year's speaker for this annual occasion was Lieutenant-Governor A. H. Graham. Those tapped for membership at that time were: Stuart Aitken, Frank Abernethy, Simmons Patterson, Agnew Bahnson, Robert Drane, Lonnie Dill, Alex Andrews, Joe Sugarman, Thor Johnson, and Ralph Gardner.

the new plan would accommodate 60 students.

Women were admitted to the graduate school here in 1898. Since then 272 graduate degrees have been awarded to women, including 21 Ph.D's. and 251 M. A's. The petition claims that women who would have come here to school have gone elsewhere because of lack of proper facilities to accommodate them here.

Advisory Report

In the student advisory report submitted to the administration last quarter it was recommended that Battle-Vance-Pettigrew be turned over to the co-eds and it is rumored that the recommendation was received favorably.

The administration has been and still is considering the plan. It will probably be decided this summer, and if the decision is favorable, the dorm will be remodeled during the summer months and turned over to the co-eds or the women graduates when school opens next September.

TEMPORARY CAST BEGINS ON HAMLET

By means of try-outs held last Wednesday, a tentative cast has been selected for the production of Shakespeare's immortal Hamlet, to be given in the Forest theatre on May 24th and 25th.

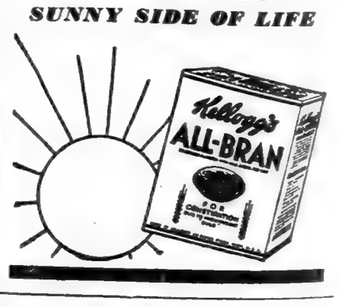
The part of Hamlet will be played by none other than "Prof" Koch, the master Playmaker. His supporting cast will be taken from the following: Claudius, Robert Nachtmann; The Ghost, Harry Davis; Polonius, Harold Buamstone and Phillip Parker; Laertes, William Wang; Horatio, Waters; First Grave Digger, William Olsen; Second Grave Digger, Robert Proctor and Kenneth Bartlett; Gertrude, the Queen Mother, Louise McGuire and Patsy McMullan; Ophelia, Ellen Deppe and Patsy McMullan; Rosencrantz and Guilderstern, Joel Lasky, Henry Page, Harry Pearson; Marcellus, Bernardo, Francisco, Joel Lasky, Lawrence Cheek, Fred Howard, Bob DuFour, Charles Lloyd, Peter Hairston; Player King, Douglas Hume; Player Queen, Patsy McMullan, Ellen Deppe; Lucianus, Fred Howard; Priest, Ralph Burgin and Bob DuFour.

Rehearsals have already begun to determine a final cast. As yet no roles are definitely filled.

ACCEPTED BY SCIENCE

FAVORED BY THE NATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is accepted by the American Medical Association Committee on Foods, and is approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. As you know, the seals of these two distinguished organizations are granted only to wholesome products of the highest merit.



Millions have discovered that this delicious cereal corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Unless checked, this ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. You feel below par—fail to be at your best in the classroom and on the campus.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies generous, mild "bulk" to aid regular habits. Also vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it pleasanter to enjoy this food instead of taking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Ask that ALL-BRAN be served at your fraternity house or campus restaurant.

The most popular ready-to-eat cereals served in the dining-rooms of American colleges, eating-clubs and fraternities are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. They include Kellogg's Corn Flakes, PEP, Rice Krispies, Wheat Krumbles, and Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Also Kaffee Hag Coffee—real coffee—97% caffeine free.

WE'RE IN THE TREND It is interesting to note how the dormitory and fraternity situation on this campus fits in with the general trend all over the United States.

In most colleges the administrations are improving dormitory conditions, raising dormitory standards, setting new criteria. In each instance, fraternities have been forced into activity, into effort toward improvement, so that the Greeks may vindicate their existence, such vindication being based on the assumption that they offer more, educationally and spiritually, than the dormitories.

The moves on the part of the college administrations have come as the result of several factors. Alumni have clamored for superiority, administrators for new educational standards, educators for new methods of teaching, officers for as much financial support as the undergraduate can give. The latter cry naturally advocates putting the undergraduates in the dormitories instead of letting their fees flow into private fraternal groups.

Fraternities are getting on the ball elsewhere. Local Greeks had better do the same. The trustees like results.

CAMPUS DEBATES The debate squad has been dealing with a problem for many moons and nobody gives them credit for their efforts to come to a satisfactory conclusion for all involved.

The problem: shall local debates cater to the masses, both in subject matter and exposition, or shall they maintain something of an intellectual level and debate national problems systematically before a handful of college spectators.

Several obstacles to a compromise have presented themselves. In the first place, teams from other schools can debate, as a general thing, only the big national issues. Secondly, it's a tough job getting topics of local interest worth debating at all. And thirdly, debating has a certain educational value and there's no sense prostituting ability on a lot of trash.

Some sort of compromise has been worked out, however, and a real treat is promised Wednesday night at the humorous declamatory exhibition. If intercollegiate schedules can be lightened, there's no good reason why the debaters can't continue to mix the serious and the humorous in future debate schedules on the campus.

CAROLINA CLASS Senior Week is coming up and the campus will let seniority reign in a few days of organized strutting.

Very few people will agree with us that class consciousness is something to be desired. Even a little thing like wearing the same kind of jersey for a few days means something in a spiritual way. It at least entitled you to put "'35" after your name, which is something.

HAMPTON TROUPE PRESENTS VARIED DANCING TONIGHT

Negro Dancers Accompanied by Junior Quartet Will Mix Historical with Modern.

MEMORIAL HALL AT 7:30

The Negro creative dance group from Hampton Institute will present their program in Memorial hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The performance is under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Tickets for the affair may be secured for 25 cents at the "Y" office and at the door. A special section will be reserved for Negroes who wish to attend the recital.

The dances for this program were composed by Mrs. Bernice M. Smothers, teacher of dancing at Hampton, and are under the direction of Charles H. Williams, the director of physical education at the Institute. The music for the dances on this program was arranged by Noah F. Ryder, with singing accompaniment by the Hampton junior quartet.

Depression Dance

The program for the recital will be as follows: "The Cycle of Depression," which has been divided into The Approach, Patience, Rebellion, Chaos, and Hope. Under "Dances of the People" are Russian Kazatchka, from Poland, the Varsovienne, Tarantella from Italy, and Gypsy and Plantation dances. In the group of original African dances are Ya Ma Wisee, the Beggar's Dance, Wyo Mamie, the Witch Doctor's Dance, Wandai, the Feast of the Ramadan.

In the more modern group is the Design Moderne, Pastorale, and Characteristic Rhythms which include the Train and Juba.

The Negro folk section of the program is characterized by the Inevitable and Labor Rhythms under which are Cutting the Sugar Cane and Dis Ole Hammer.

The program is brought to a conclusion with three spirituals entitled, "Go Down Moses," "Nobody Knows de Trouble I See," and "Deep River."

UNIVERSITY BAND PLAYS TOMORROW

Open Air Concert Will Be Given Near Davie Poplar.

The University band will open a series of open air concerts in honor of National Music Week. The concert will be given Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock near the Davie Poplar.

A feature of the program will be a cornet trio, "The Three Kings," by Walter Smith, to be played by John Best, C. C. Martin, and John Frye.

Ample seating arrangements will be provided by the building department.

On May 19 the band will join the other bands of the Big Five colleges in a North Carolina music festival to be held at Raleigh.

Gramm: "Aw!"

Carolina Inn Fred Gramm was not at home at the Carolina theatre last night and his lucky number 1892 went unredeemed.

E. Carrington announced that the prize would be made $30 and two cartons of Luckies for next Friday's meeting of the class.

MAY DANCERS

Above are the seven girls who will be escorted tonight at the May Frolics by the dance leaders from the seven fraternities sponsoring the affair.

Three of these fraternities are giving house parties, and the rest, all of which have brought many out-of-town girls here for the dances, have scheduled affairs for the week-end.

The Frolics continue today with a luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham, a tea dance here this afternoon, and a formal dance tonight, which closes the affair.

Fraternities Must Better Study Facilities, New Survey Indicates

Daily Tar Heel Check-up on Greek Lodges Shows Only Phi Delta Theta Has Tutorial System; Many Have Quiet Hours Near Exam Time, But Otherwise Study Aids Are Few.

By IRVING D. SUSS

Fraternities haven't been on the job.

A survey, now in the process of completion by two members of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff, indicates that the majority of the lodges on the campus have not taken the opportunity which is theirs to improve a condition of inactivity which has been pointed out to them through national chapter bulletins.

When the trustees of the University consider the relative merits of rooming in and out of the dormitories, they will probably disregard the amorphous creation of social values, and the inculcation of the principles of friendship that the fraternities present as their main purposes.

Educational Benefits?

The important consideration, for them, will be the relationship between the University and the affect of the rooming place of the student as regards educational benefits. They will be concerned with the plans of the University for the organization of a tutorial system in the dormitories. They will be concerned with the lack of an organized system for educational aid in the majority of the fraternity houses on the campus.

It is true that many of the lodges have in force strict study rules for pledges deficient in academic work. All insist that the upperclassmen living in the house are free to be called upon by the freshmen for assistance in academic work. There is only one house, however, of the 20-odd so far surveyed, that has a graduate student employed as a regular tutor for the fraternity: Phi Delta Theta.

There are a number of houses that check at regular intervals on the grades of the pledges, and require those who are in danger of failing courses to attend a specially conducted study hall. Invariably, with the exception of Phi Delta Theta, educational supervision ends with the completion of the pledge period.

Quiet Hours

The quiet hour, a study necessity which was supposed to have been achieved in the administration's pet white lamb, Everett dormitory, seems to be an integral part of fraternity study habits.

About half the lodges have definite periods of the day set aside for quiet hours all during the year. The majority of the others have them during the approach of the zero hour of exams. Several fraternities reported that quiet hours were not necessary.

In line with purely academic aid, there is another proposition

BUS LINE DECISION EXPECTED IN JUNE

Utilities Commission Will Decide Question of Greyhound Franchise Next Month.

Several weeks will elapse before the Public Utilities Commission will come to a decision on the question of a franchise for the Atlantic Greyhound Bus Company's proposed route from Greensboro to Raleigh through Chapel Hill. June 1 is a possible date for a final decision.

The hearings on the question have consumed six days, from Wednesday of last week through Tuesday of this week. A great volume of testimony has been offered by both advocates and opponents of the franchise. Since the transcribing of this will require at least two weeks, the commission has scheduled the arguments for Monday, May 20.

The Major Opposes

The Greyhound application is being vigorously opposed by the Carolina Coach Company, represented by Major L. P. McLendon. The Major contends that his revenue would be so reduced by the competition of the proposed new line that its solvency would be endangered. He also denies that the new line is justified by the public need.

The Greyhound lines have promised a schedule of five buses a day, each way, through Chapel Hill. This would, of course, make the trip to either Raleigh or Greensboro not only shorter but much quicker with the delays caused by the change in Durham eliminated.

MAY FROLICS SET HAS ENTHUSIASTIC TWO-DANCE START

Aaronson's Orchestra Overcomes Early Doubts of Merry-Makers to Win Their Favor.

THREE MORE HOPS TODAY

Opening yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can with one of the most enthusiastic tea dances given here in some time, the sixth annual set of May Frolics continued merrily last night with its first formal dance from 10 to 1 o'clock.

The prom-trotters, apparently not having heard much of Irving Aaronson and his Commanders in this part of the country, seemed to regard the orchestra with a touch of suspicion for the first hour of the tea dance, but the lively brand of music he dished out consistently finally won them over.

Popular Vocalist

After the band and the dancers had more or less gotten together, quite a few of the frolicers gathered around the platform, calling for more numbers by Lois Still, feminine vocalist, who kept bouncing around and receiving a large share of the applause.

The Tin Can was decorated very prettily in alternate strips of green and white crepe paper, young pines and a large crystal ball suspended from the ceiling and reflecting the rays cast upon it from a spotlight on the floor.

A green crepe paper-covered barrier had been erected in front of the orchestra's platform to keep the spectators from drawing up their chairs and occuping the dancing space. The only draw-back to the affair was the terrific heat which pervaded the building, both at the afternoon and night dances.

Set Continues Today

The set will continue today with a luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham, another tea dance from 4:30 to 6:30 in the Tin Can and will end tonight with the final formal dance from 8 to 12 in the Tin Can. The figure will be formed tonight.

The Frolics are sponsored by

Handbook Applicants

Four students have applied for editorship of the Carolina Student Handbook, according to Harry Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. They are: Ralph Burgin, Jim Daniel, Drew Martin, and Don McKee.

The committee on appointments will meet to consider the applicants next week. This committee is composed of three faculty members appointed from the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. by the chairman of the board.

The greater part of the work on the handbook is done before commencement, while the book is issued to all incoming freshmen in September.

Honor to Harrer

Dr. G. A. Harrer, professor of Latin and Roman Law, was made executive committee member of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South which met at St. Louis recently. It is the largest classical association in America.

ACTIVITY ORGANIZATION

The committee on activities and improvements which Jack Pool appointed Thursday has a Gargantuan task before it.

Nobody realizes how disorganized student government and activities are on this campus more than the student leaders themselves. When their Student Council does not know its own powers, when their own conceptions of activities control don't jibe with anyone else's or the historical "precedent," then they become more and more convinced that some sort of organization is needed.

What kind of information can the committee assemble in building up an organization?

They can collect facts on the many instances of Student Council incompetency, which has largely resulted from the "precedental" division of power. We are firmly convinced that this work should not cease until a written constitution is drawn up.

Then, they can gather material on extra-curricular activities which can play an important part in training students for future participation. Freshmen in particular don't know what they are missing half of the time and, on the other hand, many freshmen enter into activities because their fraternities pushed them although they were not fitted for the particular work.

The compilation of facts on the publications will undoubtedly bear out our contention that editors should be selected by the staffs, not the student body. This University is one of the few relics of the old "democratic" election idea which is built upon the false assumption that the student body knows as much about the qualifications of candidates for editorships as the staff.

Students who believe we must search elsewhere for facts to aid in our grasp of government are mistaken. There is enough virgin soil in government on this campus to develop dozens of Thomas Jeffersons if we will only realize it.

UNIVERSAL PROBLEM

Contrary to the beliefs of many people, the fraternity situation is not localized on the North Carolina campus.

The universities of America are heading generally toward the type of education commonly associated with Oxford University in England, and the fraternity must adjust itself to the new environment instead of complacently awaiting developments.

Here is a program outlined by Dean William L. Sanders of Ohio Wesleyan, who believes that this program would establish fraternities as instruments of educational value, in addition to whatever social advantages they may now possess:

(1) Establish an interfraternity council within the university.
(2) Estabish a faculty and alumni fraternity council to closer relate the fraternity with the university.
(3) Unite the fraternity treasurers into a group that could promote coöperative buying among the houses.
(4) Require monthly examination of financial accounts by a university official or professional auditor.
(5) Sponsor periodical house inspections to eliminate fire hazards and unsanitary conditions.
(6) Eliminate "hell-week."
(7) Train pledge masters in the art of handling and guiding freshmen.
(8) Hire housemothers to expand social privileges and to improve living conditions.
(9) Train social chairmen.
(10) Engage fraternity counselors as a means to better scholarship and as advisers.

These points, proposed for fraternities the country over, correspond remarkably to the program for fraternities on this campus outlined recently by the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Pigs HAVE Wings

By Milton K. Kalb

IRISH CONFETTI (BRICKbats to you) is the principal ammunition of this column. Nevertheless, occasionally, an extremely noble effort, especially in the line of reformation or revival, comes into view and precludes the hurling of the warlike missiles. Accordingly, posies, gardenias, laurels, or what have you, are due the English department. Long regarded as one of the stodgiest departments in the University, the Englishers have evidently awakened from their hibernation. This awakening did not come unportened, however. Two months ago on the comprehensive exam, the Englishers included as optional questions criticisms of Babbitt, and Hervey Allen's monster, Anthony Adverse. Now, when the English department can come down into this century they are awakening. Accordingly, this column kept a watchful eye on these learned Ponce de Leons. Then, lo and behold, the Englishers, in the persons of Wishart and Williams, came out with their truly courageous challenge. Whether they are right or wrong, these two men deserve applause for their outspoken stand, but, no more do they deserve applause than does the department which can develop such men, foster such fearless thinking, and encourage such freedom of speech.

THE GREEKS HAVE ONLY themselves to blame if the administration puts across the proposed "freshmen dormitories" rule. The other day, one of the more socially prominent fraternities initiated a freshman. Not content with the usual minor tortures they went down to his room in Everett dormitory (good old quiet Everett), dumped all his stuff on the floor, and then hilariously amused themselves by pouring water on his clothes and bedding with the result that considerable damage ensued. The freshman, the usual "good kid," had to stand idly by, pretending that he liked the proceedings, lest, by his inability to "take it," he miss the grandeur that is Greece or something.

IRENEE DUPONT MUST BE immensely gratified that his super-patriotic American Liberty League (no, not baseball, politics) has finally reached all the way down to Tarheelia. He must be doubly gratified that one of the prime movers among local patriots is his namesake, Mr. DuPont Snowden. The American Liberty League is a truly noble organization, and accordingly demands the wholehearted support of the campus. Far from being the crass materialists that socialists, communists and even capitalists are supposed to be, The Leaguers are devoted to great abstract principles such as liberty, freedom, Laissez-faire, and other such doctrines for which great altruists have fought and died. In this respect the Leaguers are almost martyrs. They take the pious stand that freedom of speech, or lack of government control, is far more important for a poor worker than food, clothes and lodging. How noble they are! They say (and who can deny it?) that it is far better for a workman to starve to death than to debase his spirit by accepting relief, or by allowing himself to be "regimented" under the higher, but still scarcely livable wage of the NRA. Come, let us all join this holy order, let us support these modern Knights Templar, so that the world will be once more safe for Fishiana, Hooverdom and DuPontocracy!

PRISON CAMPS CAN BE hell-holes of filth, relief can be pitifully inadequate, schools must continue with curtailed terms, bootleggers can continue reaping a glorious harvest—all this because the Legislature refused (not without temptation) to sell its collective soul to the devil by voting down, in the Promethean manner the Day (nee Hill) state liquor control bill. Again we are saved!

EARTH-QUAKES

By JOHN SCHULZ

The CANADIAN BORDER, which has been disarmed ever since the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817 with England, became the innocent cause of a recent dispute between President Roosevelt and the War Department on one side and the House Military Affairs committee on the other. It all started when the secret testimony of Generals Kilbourne and Andrews in regards to an air base near the Canadian frontier leaked out in a manner most embarrassing to the administration. Our friends across the border got all hepped up—and justly. That good old disarmament agreement has been the pride and joy of peace advocates for over a hundred years. Franklin D. gave the House Committee hell for letting the testimony spill over so stupidly, and one congressman retaliated with the brilliant statement, "But a lot of admirals and generals should keep their mouths shut and not talk about foreign policy." No doubt army officers should just refuse to talk when called upon by Congress to give testimony—which by the way was supposed to be strictly sub rosa. Roosevelt's prompt action has done much to calm the Canadians' ruffled feelings.

While we're on the subject of ruffled feelings we might as well consider the Japanese. One of their great dailies, the Nichi Nichi (the same to you) looks upon our Pacific FLEET MANEUVERS as proof that we are trying to maintain "world supremacy," and the recent epoch-making flight of Pan-America's clipper to Hawaii as a mere "pretext" to cloak our military machinations. Well, we can always throw their permanent seizure of the League of Nations mandates in their faces.

Handsome Adolph is still keeping things popping in the old countries. Or perhaps we should blame this one on the British attache who discovered that Germany has built 12 NEW U-BOATS—causing the Treaty of Versailles to turn over in its grave and the British Parliament to turn over on the Thames. Nobody is taking the German denial seriously. The British claim that they are through with notes and economic sanctions. From now on they want action, and action means REARMAMENT! Another thing to give the English goose-pimples is the news that the famous German submarine school at Kiel has been in operation for six months or so.

Shades of the old frontier! Let's hop in our covered wagons and trek off to gold and riches in ALASKA. With the land rather than gold as the lure, that is exactly what is happening to 200 families from Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Guess those Swedes can't stand the heat of the Great Lake region. Nope, we're wrong again. The Matanuska Valley, where they are going to be the government's first "experimental settlers," is so tempered by the Japanese current that it seldom reaches 15 below in the winter—which is exactly 35 degrees warmer than Dartmouth College at Winter Carnival.

This would seem to be the summer to take your little EUROPEAN JOY-RIDE. Lloyd's, the famous London house which will insure anybody on anything, is giving 20 to 1 odds AGAINST THE OUTBREAK OF WAR in Europe within the next year. It really does make you breathe a little easier, doesn't it? Twenty to one is a lot of odds, and Lloyd's has been in the business a long time.

ACTIVITIES GROUP WILL BE REVIVED

The defunct Student Activities Committee, once-potent undergraduate and faculty organization, will be revived Monday night as old members and new meet in a banquet session.

Student leaders, including editors, class presidents, and other activities men, will mingle with faculty leaders in an unofficial capacity, which has often decided administrative policy.

Not since the epoch-making four-hour session on the Publication Union Board's revolving-membership fight has this committee met. In that case, however, what the committee decided eventually became the administration's policy.

Jack Pool, peppy new student government head, is responsible for the rejuvenation. "We'll make it hum," he said.

Duke Threatens Carolina Cinder Supremacy Today In Big Five Title Battle

Emerson Field Meet Will Begin at 1:30

Davidson's Strong Distance Men Put Tar Heels and Blue Devils on Equal Terms.

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

Carolina's long domination of state track circles may come to an abrupt end here this afternoon in the annual championship meet in Emerson stadium, starting at 1:30 o'clock.

General opinion rates the outcome a toss-up, but those who have applied their prognostic views to paper favor the Blue Devils. The fact that Carolina has captured 13 straight titles lends nothing to the current status.

Will Reputation Hold?

Many regard these views of the dopesters for naught, referring to the 73-53 triumph of the Tar Heels over Duke two weeks ago as their strongest argument, plus the fact that because Carolina has won for so long, she will again.

However, these arguments are readily discountable. There will be outside opposition, an additional event, and a change in the scoring, which gives the meet 165 points instead of the dual total of 126.

It is from these changes that the Dukesters appear to benefit, but Carolina will certainly not be licked before the meet and possibly not afterwards. Anything may happen.

Heading the Davidson entrants will be Earl Frazier in the distances—an event usually regarded as a Carolina fort. Last year the Wildcat runner set records in both the mile and two-mile runs. Here the new competition will hurt Carolina, whereas it will not injure Duke at all.

Evins Will Count

As Assistant Coach Ranson mentioned to the writer recently, Carolina's chances will depend greatly upon the success of Evins in the shot put, he and Barwick in the javelin, and Baer and Jackson in the pole vault. Evins took the shot against the Dukesters last time, but whether he can repeat is uncertain.

Besides Frazier, five other 1934 record breakers will be in action. Heading the Carolina quartet will be Harry Williamson, who set the 880-yard mark at 1:54.2.

Trio Again

Co-Captains Charlie Hubbard and Tom Hawthorne, and Frank Abernethy comprise the remaining trio. The former will attempt to better his broad jump mark, while the latter pair will go after their hurdle records in the low and highs, respectively.

Another couple who will be expected to do big things for Carolina is Ed Waldrop and "Red" Drake, whose performances in the distances and 440 respectively, have been high lights in the year's campaign. Higby, Gunter and Hubbard

Netters Whip Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., May 3.—Despite rain Carolina and Virginia managed to get four matches of their tennis meet played, the Tar Heels continuing their victory streak by a 3-1 margin.

Carl Rohmans, Southern Conference champion, scored the only Cavalier point with a triumph over Harvey Harris, 6-0, 6-4. Rickey Willis, Eddy De Gray, and Frank Shore tallied for Carolina.

The summary:

Rohmans (V) over Harris, 6-0, 6-4.

Willis (C) over Taylor, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2.

De Gray (C) over Sloan, 6-3, 6-8, 6-3.

Shore (C) over Fine, 6-4, 6-2.

Levitan (C) and Williams, 6-1, 7-9, 3-3.

NEW TRACK TO BE EQUAL TO FINEST

Construction on Track and Fields Will Be Finished by Middle of Summer.

Work on the intramural athletic field, one of the government's relief projects, is expected to be finished before the middle of summer.

The new track, when finished, will be one of the finest in the country. It will be 30 feet wide, compared to the Emerson field track which is 18 feet, and will be constructed of a 4-inch stone base and a 6-inch layer of cinders with a concrete curbing. The 220-yard straight-away will be in front of concrete stands which will seat about 6,000 spectators.

Intramural Fields Too

Included in the project, and adjoining the track, is parking space for several hundred cars, and adequate space for intramural activities. The fields have been graded and drainage systems installed.

Construction was started on the fields in November, 1933, under the CWA and continued until that organization went out of existence last May. Most of the excavation and grading was done by local hand labor.

Plans include also a small field house with toilets and a meeting room. The track, when completed, will rival the beauty of Kenan stadium in its natural setting and surroundings.

IRWIN SEES RED BLOOD

Carolina's nine bunched six hits in two frames and played airtight ball behind veteran Freddy Crouch's pitching to turn back Virginia, 5-3, here yesterday in the first tilt of the annual two-game series.

Trailing 3-2 in the last of the fifth, the Tar Heels went on a three-run rally to get their winning margin. Yank Shapiro, right-hander, led off with a double smash along the left-field foul line and then circled the bases with the tying run when Hooff let the ball get by him.

After Captain Vick had singled over second, Trip Rand, little second baseman, pulled the hero act by lining a home run between the center and left-fielders.

Carolina and Virginia play the second contest of the series this afternoon at Greensboro. The tilt starts at 3 o'clock. Orlin "Lefty" Rogers, Virginia's best pitcher who starred in centerfield yesterday, will take the mound, while the rookie Latcher Webster is Coach Hearn's choice for the boxwork. This summer, Rogers, playing with Coach Hearn's Kinston team, led the Eastern Carolina league in twirling. He will face several of his old teammates this afternoon.

Diehl Digs Donkey Deep But Devils Dig Deeper

"A great fight, a stirring spectacle," said the fans of the never-to-be-forgotten donkey diamond duel which hard-slugging, but slow-moving Tar Heels lost to the swooping Blue Devils by the meagre margin of 2-1 last night.

Marion Diehl scored the only tally for the home team in the first inning. It is estimated that it took him a good 10 minutes to round the bases. Later in the game Diehl poked out another hit which landed far away in the outfield. It took five minutes to field the ball, but Marion's mount just couldn't make it to first in time.

It looked as though Bobby Stewart was the only man who could handle his donkey. Perhaps there was a bond of sympathy between them.

Joyce and Snyder of the Chapel Hill outfit kept the large crowd on the verge of hysterics.

BABIES AND IMPS OPEN HARD SERIES

Johnny Humphries and Lefty Dean to Prove Arms This Afternoon at Duke.

They're playing ball in Durham town,
Today at three fifteen,
And Dean and Humphries take the mound,
To throw what can't be seen.

A veritable battle of the century will take place on the Duke diamond where the four game Blue Imp-Tar Baby series gets under way this afternoon.

Duke's Lefty Dean has proved himself to be the most consistent pitcher in the Carolinas, and the Babies will have to have their batting eyes well focused today to hit the southpaw's terrific curves and baffling slants.

However, Johnny Humphries, who will open the series for the Chapel Hill contingent, is no slouch when it comes to good hurling. "Hump" has been slightly erratic of late, but he has shown his fine pitching ability in the earlier contests.

"Make the Blue Imps just plain blue!" is the Tar Baby slogan. To do this they will have to cop three of the four games, and with the Dukesters in their present form, it's sure to be a tough trick to work. But the frosh are determined to do it and they might come through.

The squad is hitting and fielding now, better than they ever have in the past, and if they hold the "pep" which has been theirs these last three days, Duke will be in for the hardest fought series of the season.

Young Koch?

Pre-frolic creators of our "Campus Personality" last night waved short their radio modesty and between the boys of 30 Steele dorm and some Chapel Hill George was carried on a short period of (humorous) joke telling, with George's Louise getting the innocent listener-in vote for the best announcer and most uncompromising joke teller.

Should Louise continue her short wave pranks, George's radio station here will certainly be broadcasting the most popular program in the country, airing everything. The boys in Steele enjoyed it—and so did the snooping reporter in Old East with his silent receiver.

TAR HEEL GOLFER WINS FROM PERRY

Carolina Team, Missing Captain Laxton, Loses to Blue Devils by 7 Strokes.

DUKE LINKSMEN CARD 612

In the biggest upset of the current season Wilson Coffin, Carolina's No. 3 golfer, walked off with the individual honors in the state golf tournament held on the Hope Valley course yesterday afternoon.

Coffin's uncanny shot-making gave him the low score of 147 for 36 holes, which was equalled only by Perry of Duke, the present Southern Conference champion. The two leaders had a nine-hole playoff which the Carolina golfer won with ease, holding a three-stroke advantage at the close of play.

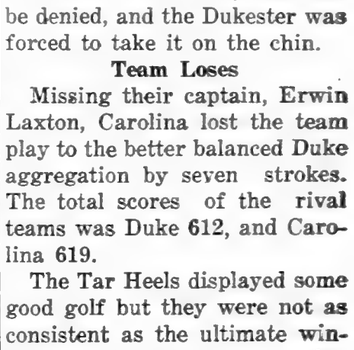
Steady Game

The new champion has been a steady player throughout the season but never has his playing reached the heights of perfectibility which he attained yesterday. All of his shots were well planned and well executed. His drives off the tee were straight and long, and he gave a truly masterful exhibition of putting on the greens.

Duke's Perry was in excellent form yesterday and his play on the first 36 holes was of championship calibre, but the determined shooting of Wilson Coffin in the final nine holes, could not be denied, and the Dukester was forced to take it on the chin.

Team Loses

Missing their captain, Erwin Laxton, Carolina lost the team play to the better balanced Duke aggregation by seven strokes. The total scores of the rival teams was Duke 612, and Carolina 619.



The Tar Heels displayed some good golf but they were not as consistent as the ultimate winners. Led by Perry, the Blue Devils managed to take the championship through steady, and oftentimes spectacular, play.

The State contingent finished seven strokes behind Carolina with a 626 total, while Davidson, Wake Forest, and Catawba were out of the running all the way. This was Catawba's initial entrance in this tournament and they gave promise of making play more interesting for their foes next season.

Undelivered letters received in the dead-letter office of the Postoffice department during 1934 increased 7¼% over the number received last year.

FAIRLEY, GRAHAM TO GIVE LECTURES ON SOCIAL NEEDS

Fairley Brands New Deal Attempts at Social Security As Only Skin-Deep.

CONFERENCE OPENS MAY 5

"We need social security increased five times over the present provisions," declares Francis Fairley, quoting from the speech he is to give at the North Carolina Conference for Social Service to be held in Winston-Salem Sunday through Tuesday. Fairley went on to state: "The New Deal attempts at social security through public works are not real or lasting."

Ex-President Graham

Dr. Frank Graham will speak also on "America Planning for Security." Dr. Graham was president of the conference for two years, during which time the Workmen's Compensation Act was pushed through the Legislature by conference leaders.

The conference will be divided into student and adult units, which will meet separately part of the time. Over 21 different state colleges and universities will be represented, with 10 student delegates from Carolina.

Reforms Pushed Through

Abolition of flogging in the state prisons, establishment of juvenile courts, creation of a state board of charities and public welfare, and the Australian ballot are some of the outstanding achievements of the conference during the last 23 years. Since 1930 conference committees have been working on a social code for the state.

Big Shots

Outstanding speakers at the meeting will include Sanford Bates, well known here for his visit during the Institute on Human Relations; E. W. Knight, director of the summer school, and Governor Ehringhaus, who recently submitted gubernatorial comment through the newsreels on the Mecklenburg prison case.

Faculty members Wolf, Odum, Groves and Grumman will also be present. Harry Riggs and Harry Comer, president and adviser, respectively, of the state and local student division, are both planning to attend.

Archaeological Society Meets at Goldsboro

The third annual spring meeting of the Archaeological Society of North Carolina is being held today in Goldsboro. Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell, University history professor and president of the society, and Dr. Guy B. Johnson, sociology professor and secretary-treasurer, are officiating.

On the program are Douglas L. Rights of Winston-Salem who will speak on "Some Archaeological Projects of North Carolina;" W. E. Garis of the University who will speak on "The Tuscaroras," and Dr. Guy B. Johnson who will speak on "Some Problems in American Archaeology."

The organization is one of the few of its kind in the United States. It was founded two years ago and has grown steadily until at the present it has approximately 75 members. Anyone who is seriously interested in archaeology may become a member of the society.

Barrel-Rolling Fliers To Give Daring Show At Airport Tomorrow

Squeaky Barnett to Lead Airmen At Free Exhibition of Aerial Antics and Stunts.

Squeaky Barnett, the South's most daring stunt flier, will thrill the crowds with breath-taking exhibitions of inverted flying over the Chapel Hill airport on tomorrow afternoon. A spectacular balloon ascension and at least one parachute jump will send ripples up and down the spine of the most placid spectator.

Barnett is the undisputed champion of southern stunt lots. He has flown in many major air meets throughout the country and formerly flew with the nationally renowned company of airmen, the Air Entertainers. His daredevil tricks, especially inverted flying, never fail to bring gasps of amazement to the lips of distraught onlookers.

Human Fly

A hot air balloon ascension will add color to an already colorful program. This will be followed by a death-defying parachute jump. The human fly who makes the leap can't get much more of a thrill out of it than the awed spectators who watch with aprehension the tiny speck dropping through space. When everyone is certain that the chute has failed to open, a flash of white silk eminates from the fast approaching daredevil and snatches him out of the jaws of death. Only then does the audience resume breathing and wipe the beads of perspiration from their brows.

Several veteran pilots from Danville Va. will be here to participate in the show. Spectators will have the advantage of viewing the events from the air as commercial planes will be flying during the show.

Fraternity Survey

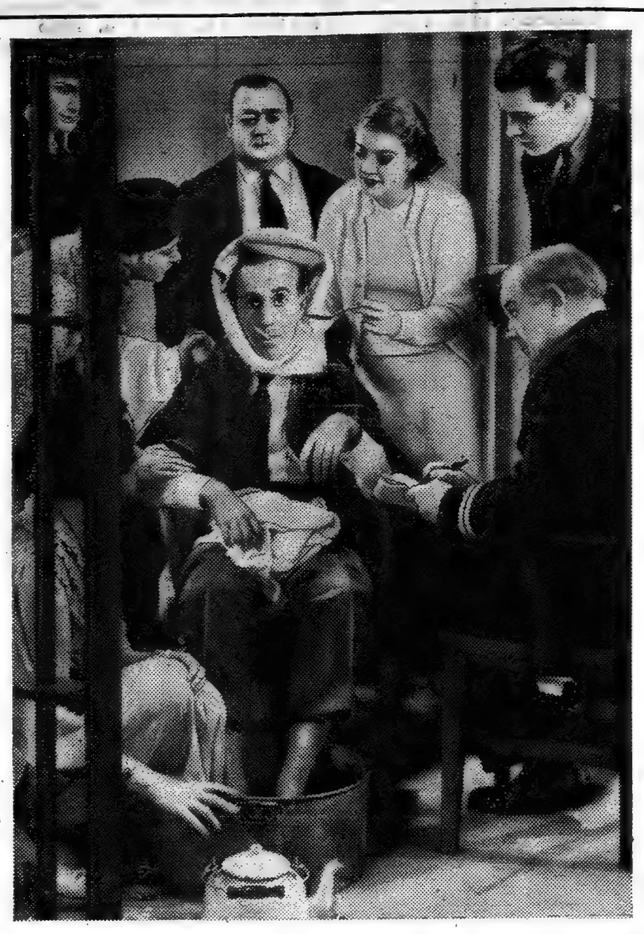
confronting the fraternities of which they have been lax to take advantage. It was found that with one exception there is no fraternity on the campus that has an active, organized system of counselling the freshmen along social and personal lines.

Lambda Chi Alpha has a definitely outlined plan for instructing pledges in conduct, fraternity life, dress, University and fraternity traditions, and many other phases of collegiate life. The national chapter of the fraternity provides each pledge with a comprehensive booklet covering all these fields, and each first-year man must pass satisfactorily a series of tests on the information studies before he is considered for initiation.



This is by far the most outstanding of any of the plans offered, although there are some few fraternities which have special committees to carry on the same type of work, but none so definite nor comprehensive.

In line with this, there are three houses on the campus which prohibit freshmen drinking and gambling, and several which prohibit gambling by the active members of the lodge.

From this preliminary study, there is adequate demonstration of the fact that the campus Greeks are neglecting a phase of fraternity philosophy which alone could indicate a definite cultural and educational advantage over University dormitories.

When the administration completes its plans of spreading the tutorial system, and presents these plans to the trustees, it is certain that a comparison will be drawn along these lines.

an entirely different team in comparison with its past play. The infield turned in 16 assists with but one error and pulled Crouch out of holes twice with double plays, Shortstop Tommy Irwin starting one and Third-Baseman Montgomery the other. Rand acted as pivot on both occasions.

Irwin received a bad cut over his right eye when a ball took a bad bounce during fielding practice. After getting the eye bandaged the shortstop started the tilt and performed in top fashion.

Both Crouch and his pitching opponent, Abbitt, allowed nine hits, but the Tar Heel blows were longer and more bunched. Abbitt fanned five and Crouch two. Neither twirler gave up a walk.

Virginia Scores

The Cavaliers scored first in the fourth on Hall's one base blow, Cowgill's sacrifice bunt down the first base line, and Roger's single through third base.

Carolina went ahead in the last of the same inning with two tallies. Rand doubled down the left-field line and came home when Irwin singled. Irwin took second on the throw-in attempt to catch Rand and crossed the plate after two were out on McIver's one-base drive to left.

The last two Virginia runs in the fifth resulted on two hits. Carter doubled to center and counted on Cardwell's bingle over short. Carter took second on a fielder's choice, third on Abbitt's infield out, and then scored on a squeeze play, Male bunting.

The Cavaliers threatened in the final frame when Rogers tripled and Bouldin reached first with an infield blow. Crouch tightened to fan Hooff and force Carter to ground to second.

Rand's double and home run out of four times up headed Carolina's offense. Shapiro snapped out of his long batting slump to connect twice in three. Irwin also got two safe blows.

Lefty Rogers, scheduled to hurl today, led Virginia both on offense and defense. His single in the fourth drove in a run and his triple in the ninth put Crouch in a bad hole. Afield Rogers caught five flies.

will head the Blue and White sprinters.

Zori of N. C. State is expected to return to defend his discus title, and to be accompanied by the colorful Ray Rex, the Wolfpack's leading shot putter. Rex will be making his last appearance before Chapel Hill fans.

Entries have also been received from Wake Forest and Lenoir-Rhyne, with all the Big Five schools having representatives in the freshmen battle. Few can doubt the supremacy of the Blue Imps in this division, but the real battle will probably be to see who can cut into its margin the deepest.

The afternoon's slate will consist of 30 events, with trials and finals all completed within one session.

GLEE CLUB SINGS HERE TOMORROW

The Carolina Glee Club, professing to be heartily in favor of the present quarter system and heartily against any such thing as 8 o'clock classes, will give a concert tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Mr. Giles, tenor, of Greensboro, will be guest soloist on the program. He will be followed in this role by James Dees, bass, and former member of the Glee Club.

The repertoire of songs will include sacred and Russian music, sea chanties, and southern ditties.

There will be no admission charge.

Dr. Bullitt Testifies In Law Case Here

A Workmen's Compensation hearing was held before J. W. Dorsett of the industrial commission in Manning hall yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. This is the first case of its knd ever to be held in the law building.

The inquiry grew out of the death of George W. Holland of Catawba county, textile worker, whose heirs are claiming compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Most of the evidence had been previously given in Catawba courts, and the testimony heard yesterday, given by Dr. J. B. Bullitt of the pathology department and Dr. Forbus of Duke University, considered whether or not his death was due to negligence or natural causes. Dor-

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII | EDITORIAL PHONE 4351 | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MAY 5, 1935 | BUSINESS PHONE 4356 | NUMBER 162

by the Editor

MILKY WAY We talked to Dr. Graham yesterday morning about the dormitory and fraternity situations, stressing the need for a practicable plan of dormitory improvement, one which would not cost too much for this University but would be workable and effective where the Everett plan is notably weak.

Graham realizes the needs of the dormitories and with his usual appreciation of the situation, set down two definite and immediate wants: social rooms for each dormitory and a councillor system comprised of selected men attracted from all over the nation for this particular work of advising students.

We must, of course, work first with our present facilities as well as possible. But we better hitch our wagon to a star and plan for bigger things in the future, which financial rehabilitation might make possible for our undergraduates.

FLEECE CHOICE The Order of Golden Fleece will make its annual tapping ceremonies next Thursday night, culminating the year's program of student activities and achievements.

In former days, the DAILY TAR HEEL ran a list of possibilities for the highest of campus honors, becoming a prognostic as well as a review journal. The policy, however, seems a foolish one, insomuch as the Fleece is doing the choosing and needs no help from anyone else.

We recall the fate of one editor who played up the pre-dope with giant streamers, featuring himself as an outstanding candidate. After being overlooked on tapping night, however, his newspaper didn't even run the story of the tapping.

Which proves that the Fleece had its collective mind made up long before the power of the press started to tell the Argonauts how to vote.

DEAR SUBJECT The American Alumni Council, of which our own Felix A. Grisette was recently named president, awarded first place to the local Alumni Review in the 1934-35 contest for the best editorial appearing in alumni magazines during last year.

Under ex-TAR HEEL editor Maryon Saunders, the Alumni Review has come to occupy an integral part in alumni-University relations. Presenting not only campus news but also complete alumni activity, Mr. Saunders' journal is recognized as one of the best of its kind.

The particular editorial which won the prize was entitled "Prof. Composite Offered Job; Not a Fairy Tale." It appeared in the February issue and applied particularly to our underpaid faculty situation.

This is perhaps the first and only instance where the cut in local faculty salaries has resulted in anything profitable for anyone in Chapel Hill. It's expensive editorial matter, to say the least.

FROLICERS FINISH ANNUAL PROM SET IN TORRID TIN CAN

Dancers Melt and Wither under the Combined Heat of Absorbed Sunlight and Music.

NEED: COOL AIR SYSTEM

The sixth annual set of May Frolics wound up last night at midnight with the final formal evening dance in the stifling heat of the Tin Can, which had turned every nicely starched dress shirt in sight into something resembling a thoroughly saturated dish-rag.

Red Rhythm Bug

Someone up north must have put a bug in Irving Aaronson's ear that southern dancers took to red-hot rhythm, because most of the numbers presented by the Commanders was just that. The one thing they failed to take into account was the weather. When the prom-trotters filed out of the building after the final strains, they looked more like a group of starving Armenians going into exile.

The series continued yesterday with a luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham, the second tea dance in the Tin Can in the afternoon, and ended with the dance last night. That is, except for the late dates early this morning.

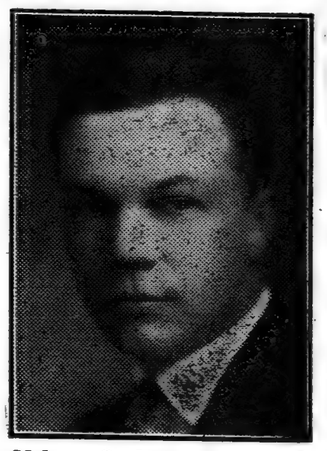
Heat Hurts

The Frolics on the whole proved to be an enjoyable set of dances except for the heat. They had all the necessary ingredients—beautiful girls, good music and the festive spirit. One big thing it did prove to Percy Promtrotter—a crying need for an air-cooling system in the Tin Can.

Glee Club Today



The Carolina Glee Club will offer a concert of numbers arranged in five groups this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Graham Memorial. Paul Gyles of Greensboro is to sing two selections as guest artist for the performance.

The Club, 25 strong and boasting such voices as those of John A. Walker, tenor, and Harold X. Gavin, baritone, expects to appear before a large audience inasmuch as there is no admission charge and the program today is the only one to be presented in Chapel Hill during the current season.

INFIRMARY

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Earl Ruth, Joseph Davis, Miles Winslow, Allen Darden, June Hogan, John Klingman.

Departing Pedagogue

Nelson O. Kennedy (above), assistant professor in the department of music, who recently resigned from the teaching staff of the University. The resignation will become effective at the end of the spring term.

'Y' SENDS GROUP TO VISIT CONVICTS

An unusual feature of deputations will take place this afternoon when the Y. M. C. A. sends a group composed of Don McKee, Bill Yandell, and George MacFarland to the convict camp at Hillsboro, R. F. D. 1.

Yandell stated that "we feel that we have something to share with the inmates of the convict camps in the vicinity of Chapel Hill, and we will try to present programs that will be entertaining as well as educational."

The team, leaving at 2:30 this afternoon, will present a program as well as plan with the camp directors for next year.

KENNEDY RESIGNS POSITION HERE AS MUSIC PROFESSOR

Well-Known Organist, Teacher Will Leave Ranks after Completing Spring Term.

RUMOR IS SUBSTANTIATED

Assistant Professor Nelson O. Kennedy, instructor in harmony, sight-singing and ear-training, has resigned from the ranks of University pedagogues, it was learned yesterday.

Kennedy, who is well known for his Sunday afternoon organ recitals and his solo work at the Chapel of the Cross, will continue with his official work until the end of this quarter, but will not return next fall.

Substantiates Rumor

Although the administration as a rule makes no official announcement of resignations and appointments until the year's termination, an official statement of Kennedy's forthcoming demise was released yesterday when the DAILY TAR HEEL sought to substantiate rumors that he was leaving.

The organist will probably study and teach at some other institution next year, it is reported. A new instructor will be secured for this University during the summer months, although Dr. Glen Haydon has made no official statement of his plans for next year.

Kennedy has been a member of the University faculty for almost a decade.

President

Dr. A. Byron Holmes of Fairmont, president of the medical alumni of the University, who will preside at the luncheon of University alumni-physicians at Pinehurst Tuesday.

MEDICAL ALUMNI GATHER TUESDAY

Medical alumni of the University will meet for luncheon Tuesday at Pinehurst during the session of the North Carolina Medical Society.

Dr. A. Byron Holmes, president of the medical alumni, will preside.

A survey by Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth, secretary of the alumni group, which will be given at the meeting, shows that more than 1,300 doctors have received their training in the University.

1,200 Sawbones

Of this number approximately 1,200 are living, many of them residing and practicing in North Carolina.

The organization of the medical alumni, which is a division of the Alumni Association, includes in its membership alumni who studied medicine elsewhere as well as the 1,200 graduates of the University medical school.

Officers of the organization are: Dr. A. Byron Holmes of Fairmont, president; Dr. J. B. Wright of Raleigh, vice-president; Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth of Chapel Hill, secretary.

'Y' Cabinet to Attend Joint Quarterly Meet

The new plan of joint meetings once a quarter of all Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. cabinets of the Greater University will be further carried out tomorrow evening on the campus of the Woman's College in Greensboro.

All cabinet members who can make the trip are expected to attend, and students will be present from the Woman's College, State College, and Carolina. The meeting will be held at 6 p. m., in the Y. W. C. A. hut.

This plan of quarterly gatherings has only been in effect for one year, the first meeting having been held during the fall at Chapel Hill, and the second at State College.

Library Gets Ritual

The ritual of the Union League of America, published in 1870, a secret political organization of the North, was given to the library recently by Mr. A. B. Andrews of Raleigh.

This league was formed during the Civil war to check dissatisfaction with the U. S. government and "to make loyalty effective." It was organized like The Southern Ku Klux Klan of a later date. This booklet describes a wierd initation ceremony.

LEAGUERS TO AIR POLITICS TAUGHT IN CLASSES HERE

Virgil Lee Will Report at Meeting; Durfee Spikes Socialist "Repression Rumor."

PLATFORM IS DRAWN UP

Members of the newly organized Carolina chapter of the American Liberty League will hear Virgil Lee report tomorrow night on the dissemination of political propaganda in the classroom at the University.

This report is in keeping with the first plank in the local Leaguers' platform: To make public the names of those who expound their political beliefs behind the classroom doors and to analyze their teachings.

Socialist Repression Rumor

Meanwhile it was rumored in campus socialist circles that the American Liberty League intended to adopt a policy of repression. One prominent professor was quoted as having said the League wished to deny the right of speech to the more radical elements.

Newly-elected League President Winthrop Durfee made it clear, however, in a statement last night that the League here would stand for the free discussion and airing of political questions. He pointed to the section of the local League's platform in which the members pledge: "To debate and discuss governmental problems with any foes of

BAND OPENS LAWN MUSICALES TODAY

University Band Will Present First Outdoor Program at 5 O'clock Near Davie Poplar.

Opening its series of open air concerts in honor of National Music Week, the University band will present a variety program this afternoon at 5 o'clock near the Davie Poplar.

For the first time in several years the student body and Chapel Hillians will hear a series of lawn concerts rendered by the band during the months of the spring quarter. Ample seating arrangements for today's concert and the others will be provided by the buildings department.

Join Big Five

After their series of outdoor presentations here, the members of the band will join other bands from the Big Five colleges to participate in the state musical festival to be held in Raleigh May 19.

Under the baton of Earl Slocum, the 40 student bandsters will present a program suitable to anyone's musical palate: marches, overtures, and a balanced blend of concert and classical music will be played throughout the series.

The program which the band will present this afternoon will consist of 10 numbers.

NEWS GOES OUT AGAIN

The second release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service will be mailed out tomorrow afternoon to high and preparatory school newspapers in and around North Carolina.

Eighty educational institutions will receive the service this week, 48 high schools and 32 preparatory schools.

Regarding Everett

Below are printed excerpts from a report which Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw drew up for the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday. The report arose from a question which this newspaper brought up regarding a recent investigation by staff members into the Everett plan and the validity of a questionnaire which the administration circulated in that dormitory.

A full explanation of the administrative action in the matter is included in Dean Bradshaw's report:

"Last summer, in August, as I recall it, a suggestion came, principally, I believe, from a Trustees' meeting, that the University consider requiring all freshmen to live in dormitories. In part because students sometimes ask to be released from their room contracts because of poor study conditions in the dormitories, it seemed to the administration wise to experiment with ways of improving such conditions before making the comprehensive change in policy involved.

"Everett Dormitory, which had not been filled the previous year, was selected for the experiment (arising from Board of Trustees action), and Mayne Albright was asked to manage the experiment. He appointed, with the approval of the administration, six assistants. The original intention was to use graduate students and possibly some seniors, and to limit the dormitory entirely to freshmen. Neither of these two features of the plan could be carried out, however, on account of the speed with which the arrangement had to be set up. Only a little more than half of the residents of the dormitory are freshmen, and most of the resident advisers selected were known at the time not to be in position to give much assistance in studies.

"Mr. Albright and his assistants were given the general responsibility of doing whatever they could to improve study and living conditions and scholarship of the dormitory. However, the dormitory was to be organized as a self-governing body, just as are all the other dormitories, the responsibility of the advisers was definitely understood to be advisory rather than supervisory . . . . .

"At the end of the fall quarter the grades of the Everett freshmen were compared with those of freshmen in adjacent dormitories. There was some difference in favor of Everett, but investigation showed that Everett freshmen had a slightly higher aptitude rating. It was discovered, however, that, whereas 22% of the freshmen in adjacent dormitories moved from their dormitories at the end of the fall quarter, only 10% of the Everett freshmen moved. This difference seemed large enough to have some significance. The winter quarter grades of Everett freshmen improved more than those of freshmen in adjacent dormitories, but here again the freshmen remaining in Everett and the new freshmen moving in appeared to have decidedly better aptitude test scores. This might mean that more studious freshmen were choosing Everett, but did not appear to mean that condi-

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, RABB; NIGHT, SMITH

PLOW THEM UNDER

The Student Activities Committee, useless junk that it is, will meet tomorrow night as President Pool seeks to renovate some of the dust-covered institutions which are student government.

What good this group will do after renovation is a question. As it stands, we have enough advisory bodies to sink a battleship and not a single one which has any power at all.

Not even the Student Council. You can take the Buccaneer and boxing episodes of the fall and winter quarters to prove that. All the Student Council has been able to do is act when the administration has allowed it. That is, except in the breach of honor cases, which the council has handled after a fashion.

We believe the best idea is to junk the advisory groups and give us authoritative bodies. That is why we want a written constitution, so that somebody knows who has control and when.

For instance, what authority has the women's council at present? Who can change the Publications Union Board constitution (which looks like a relic from the ark)? Who can declare boxers ineligible, the Student Council or the administration or both?

These and other questions must be settled and settled immediately. At last we have a nucleus of students who have enough regard for student government and enough pride in the Carolina system to want to do something about it.

POLICY POT-POURRI

There are several things we have on our mind which call for crusading. As a representative organ, we demand immediate investigations. We say "demand" because it is possible somebody somewhere might lend a little more attention than if we said "ask."

There is an organization here called the Student Audit Board, with full policy-determining powers in the student activities fund business. We have been unable to find out who is on this board this year, whether it has met or not, and how things are running in the pecuniary side of the campus.

There is an auditor hired by the board. He evidently doesn't need the board's advice, because a student board usually hasn't much advice in things technical. The auditor can go ahead and draw his salary and do his work, which is done well. But where is the student control purported to mark the system?

Maybe most campusites don't care where their money goes, but we are in the minority which cares and wants to have something to say. Let it be added that we hold the auditor absolutely above suspicion. All we want to know is: where do you get the "student" in the Student Audit system?

Another thing we'd like to know is how to get our student fees re-allocated. Our recent investigation showed that virtually every student fee is in need of re-adjustment, re-application.

No one seems to know how this can be done. Some say the student body can do it; others say the trustees are the ultimate authorities; still others say it is merely an administrative function.

This question which we raise brings about as intelligible an answer as the one we recently received when we asked "How were the room rates set for our dormitories?" The administration recollected that the buildings were brick, that some rooms were better than others, that some buildings were erected at a certain expense and others at another, so presto! out jumped a nice rate.

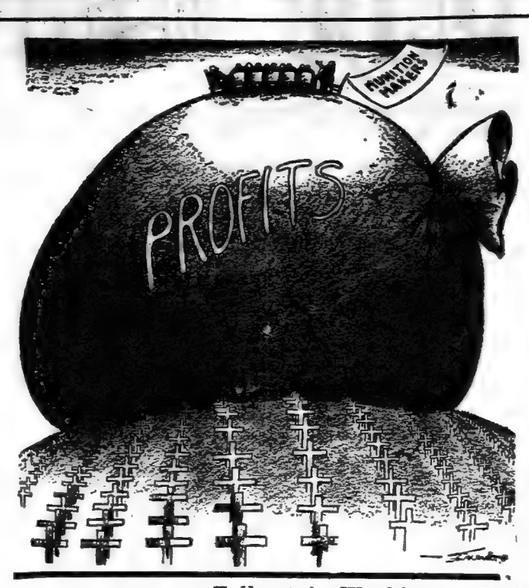
It's fun to ask questions but it's more fun to be answered, especially if the answer means anything to you. And, we assure you, answers to both of the above problems are important.

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

Thanks to the efforts of two of the few sincere radicals on the campus, the squabble between conservative and radical opinion is at last going to be raised above the plane of informal bull session discussion.

The challenge from two radical members of the English department may be taken as an excellent illustration of the way in which campus radicals have the jump on conservatives. Radicals, sincere or otherwise, never let the opportunity to express themselves pass without making some attempt to grasp it by the forelock. Conservatives seem more or less satisfied to sit back and regard the antics of socialists and such with ill-disguised cynicism. In times like these, when evils in the administration are painfully obvious, attacks from the left take on a serious aspect and may gain ground where, in better times, they would be regarded purely as Union Square, May Day foolishness.

With Huey Long and Norman Thomas theorizing all over the place, and with evidence of what has been called Fascism in the New Deal, conservatives cannot afford to continue in their complacent lethargy. Radical opinion is dynamic; those who wish to combat it must be dynamic.



Winthrop Durfee, in organizing a branch of the Liberty League at the University, is hurling the gauntlet among radicals who have too long had things their own way. If his Liberty League chapter can do nothing else, it will serve to restrain the outspoken, and often unthinking, attitude of insincere campus radicals who have unfairly and harmfully branded the University as a stronghold of socialism in a state that is predominately conservative.

It's a bit hard to believe that pigs have wings. Exponents of evolution might be persuaded that pigs once had, or some day will have, the wherewithal to fly, but at present their most remarkable characteristic is an incorrigible delight in wallowing in mud—especially on rainy days. And too, as others have remarked, there is often more fat than meat to a pig.

One W. F. F. has asked me to define "100% Americanism." I'll play ball with him, but I have the privilege—or I'll take it—of playing in my own back yard. A general definition of anything so superlative as "100% Americanism" is, I confess, quite beyond me. And if it were not, I doubt whether the DAILY TAR HEEL would grant me the space necessary for such a definition. None the less, and taking a long, deep breath, I shall attempt—purely for the gratification of W. F. F. (none other need read it if he has better things to do)—to get at what I had in mind when I referred to Hoover as being 100% American.

Fascism, socialism, communism, and Nazism are all, I've been told, foreign theories. American democracy is as domestic as the expression "nuts to you," and it stands for personal freedom that is not recognized under any of these radical systems. A 100% American, then, is one whose confidence in the justice and efficiency of American democracy remains unshaken by the violent attacks being made upon it, and who, like Hoover, (If I may repeat myself) sees no good reason for destroying the whole barrel because a few of the apples in it are suspected of being rotten.—D.S.

Purdue
Politics

In our opinion the independent students on the Purdue campus play a woefully small part in the workings of student activities, government, and, we might add, general social activities. And, being a firm believer in the creed, "Don't let your studies interfere with your education," or "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," we resent the fact that we are forced to draw this opinion.

We believe that more participation in student affairs on the part of unorganized students would not only make the campus life of these students more interesting and of more real value to them than it is at present, further, that it wouldn't hurt some of the organizations we know of on the campus to turn over a share of their responsible positions to independent men and women.

When we realize that probably nine-tenths of the activity work on the campus is carried on by the organized group, comprising only about a third of the total student enrollment, we wonder how fraternity men manage to gain control of so many positions. That is, we wonder until we survey the lack of organization that exists among the students who don't wear fraternity pins—then we wonder how the one-tenth from that group managed to maintain enough interest in the face of obstacles to get that proportion of student positions. As far as we can determine, very little coöperation is given an independent aspirant for office besides that which he can draw from his own mind, his room-mate, and a fraternity clique that may want some independent support.—Purdue Exponent.

Students and Government

Pennsylvania college students are vitally aware of government and governmental problems, if preparations for the 1935 Intercollegiate Conference on Government can be taken as a criterion. More than 30 colleges and universities, totaling over 200 delegates, are planning to meet in Harrisburg tomorrow to begin a three-day conference.

Last year the convention of students drew up a model constitution that in many respects surpasses the Commonwealth's present Constitution for efficiency and economy. The venture was especially significant in that it represented the first movement of such a nature to be sponsored by college students in any state. The body will convene this year as a uni-cameral legislature, at which plenary and committee sessions will be held.

Some will wonder what worth while results such a conference may accomplish. Or what last year's meeting accomplished. The importance of the movement can be appreciated from a study of the effective reforms which are necessary in Pennsylvania's present Constitution. The model constitution drawn up by the student convention last year removed the outstanding faults in the actual Constitution of the state. The conference scheduled for this week-end will continue to help bring about a realization of the potentialities of youth in the field of statecraft.

Students do have a knowledge of government and their statesmanship is sensible enough to make veterans conscious of its significance. — Daily Pennsylvanian.

Course in Life-Saving Comes to Conclusion

The courses and tests in life-saving that have been held at Duke University during the past week under the direction of Ramone Eaton, Red Cross regional examiner, were concluded Friday night, with about 30 Carolina corps members passing examinations.

A meeting was held Friday afternoon on the Carolina campus at which Eastman spoke and presented certificates granting affiliation with the national organization and examiners' rank to the local life-saving corps. Ellis Fysal, football coach, was chosen as a delegate to Camp Sapphire, which the American National Red Cross uses for training its examiners.

Eaton commended Lee Greer on his splendid work in organizing the local corps from a small group of one or two members to the present organization which includes over 30 students.

Tar Heels Take Fourteenth Straight Track Championship

Carolina Cindermen Down Duke Threat 75½-67; Records Tumble

Flyer's Win Four Places in Half-Mile to Gain First Advantage; Three Track and Two Field Records Are Broken by Home Team; Williamson and Woodard are Double Winners.

For the fourteenth successive year Carolina's Flying Tar Heels captured the State track championship, successfully defending its title against Duke by a 75½ to 67 margin in the annual battle here yesterday.

As was expected the Carolina and Blue Devil squads staged a virtual dual meet throughout, neither gaining any decided advantage until Carolina swept all four places in the half mile.

In scoring its victory the Tar Heels smashed three track and two field records, while none were broken by outsiders. Davidson came third in the scoring with 12½ points, N. C. State was fourth with 5, and Wake Forest and Lenoir Rhyne tied with 2 each.

The meet only produced two double winners—Harry Williamson and Woodard of Duke. The brilliant Tar Heel set a new mile mark, led the Carolina quartet in the half, and ran a fast anchor on the victorious mile relay.

Woodard definitely proved himself "king of the state sprinters," taking the century after a thrilling duel with Floyd Higby and easily capturing the 220-yard without trouble.

The 120-yard high hurdle race saw Frank Abernethy looking like old times, so much so that he lowered his own record by one-tenth a second. Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne was runner-up in the highs, and the two reversed positions in the 220-yard lows.

As was predicted in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL, Carolina's chances depended greatly upon its success in the shot put and discus. This proved a correct assertion, and when Tom Evins bettered Cochrane of Davidson's mark in the shot put and Armfield came second in the javelin, Duke's wide margin in the field events was severely cut down.

Evins' new record is 46 feet, 7 3-8 inches, 4-8 inches better than what the Wildcat weight man tossed the 16-pound oval in 1934. Armfield led until the final throw in the javelin, when West of Duke's heave carried 205 feet, 5 inches to overtake the former's lead.

The other field record went to Higby, whose leap of 24 feet, 7 inches, was far enough to defeat Co-Captain Charlie Hubbard in the event and also wipe out the latter's own state mark. The dimunitive star also produced fine performances in the 100-yard dash, staying on Woodard's heels the entire way in both the trials and the finals.

Duke gained its only other running victory in the 440-yard dash when Winstead sneaked through a "box" that held Carolina's Conference champ, "Red" Drake, to win. The carrot-topped Tar Heel tried desperately to break through on the home stretch, but could not, and had to be content with second.

If his defeat in the quarter was his own fault, Drake certainly more than vindicated himself in the mile relay event, in which the Carolina quartet established a new mark of three minutes, 21.1 seconds.

Following Farmer and Gardiner, Drake overcame a Duke lead of about seven yards and handed Williamson a seven-yard advantage, with which the latter easily went on to win.

Earl Frazier produced the Davidson high-light of the meet, successfully defending his two-mile title. However, the crowd was more captivated by the gruelling battle for second between Morse of Duke and Haywood of Carolina. The two

Omaha Upsets Dope To Cop The Honors In Kentucky Derby

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 4.—"It was Rebel Dixie against the D. Yankee North, and Ol' Kaintuckee stood by the Cunnel" when Omaha, a horse born in the Blue Grass state came from behind to win the sixty-first Kentucky Derby.

A crowd of almost 60,000 people braved a steady drizzling rain to witness America's greatest turf event, and probably our oldest regular sporting event. The track was slow, and odds changed constantly as none of the favorites could be assured of victory. Although Omaha was the son of Gallant Fox, a Derby winner in 1930, he was by no means one of the favorites.

It was not until almost the very last stretch that the winner broke through the field of 18 thoroughbreds to beat out the Derby's first favored filly, Roman Soldier, who was followed by Wiskilow and Nellie Flag.

CAROLINA GOLFERS TIE DAVIDSON 9 UP

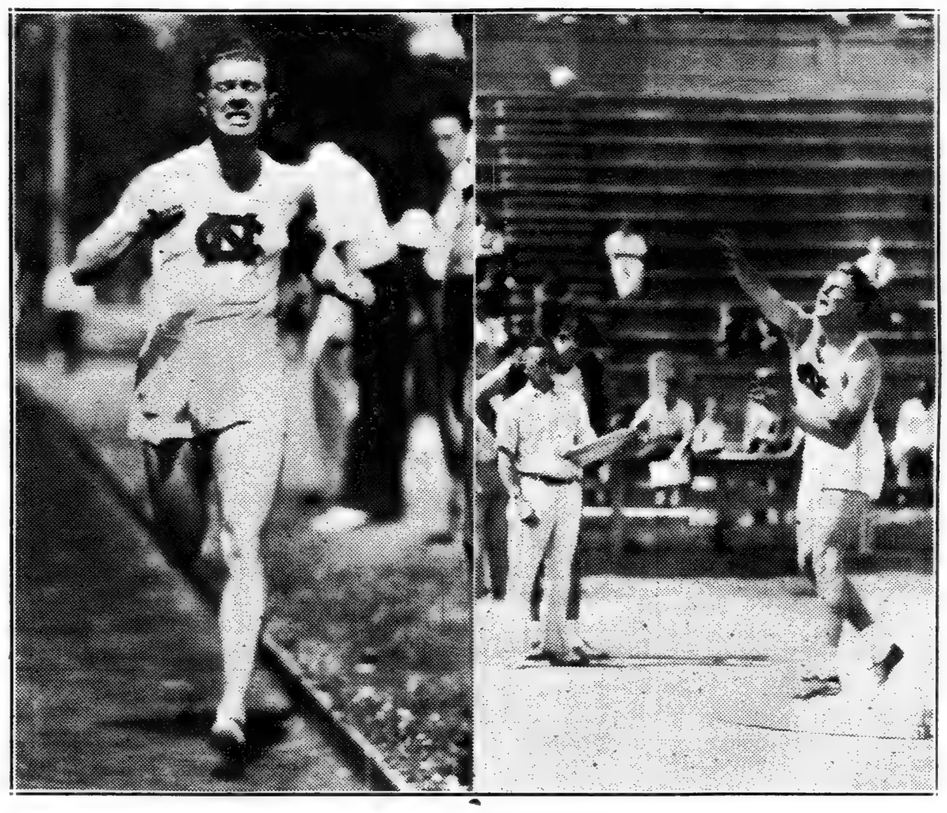
Tar Heels Play Without First and Second Position Men; Meet Duke Tomorrow.

Playing without the services of their two regular first and second position men, the Tar Heel golf team could do no better than split yesterday's meet with Davidson, 9-9.

Walter Pijanowski made up for his none too brilliant showing yesterday by sinking a deciding 15-foot putt. By sinking this remarkable shot, "Pijie" halved his match, thereby not allowing the Wildcat team a winning margin.

Medalist honors of the day went to Bill Snow, lead-off man of the visitors. Snow turned in a 72, which he made in his match against Coffin to cop the honors.

Wilson Coffin did not play the consistent brand of golf which brought him the state title Friday, and dropped his match by a 2-1 count.



Ross increased the visitor's early lead when he blanked Horace Hamilton 3-0 in the second individual match. Pijanowski copped the first victory for the Tar Heel team when he decisively whipped Cowan, 2½-½.

Manager Henry Bridgers, one of the best of the reserve players, whipped Hamerick in the final singles match of the meet, 2-1. Bridgers has participated in intercollegiate matches during the last three years at odd times, and is about the only member of the team who can boast an unbeaten record.

The first best ball match was won by Snow and Ross, who

Two of Carolina's record-breakers in action: Harry Williamson, left, about to cross the finish line after running the mile in 4.21.8. This is a new state record. He was one of the meet's two double winners, also taking the half-mile and running anchor on the record relay team. The other photo shows Tom Evins putting the shot. Evins established a new state mark with a heave of 46 feet, 7 and 3-8 inches.

TAR BABIES TAKE BLUE IMPS, 10 TO 5

The Blue Imps went up in the air yesterday at Durham and dropped the decision in the final innings to the hard-hitting Tar Babies, 10-5.

After the Babies had faced the southpaw slants of Lefty Dean for six frames, they suddenly lost all fear of him and started to slug consistently.

Dean Fans 16

Although Dean gave the Carolina yearlings a grand total of 12 base knocks, he also struck out 16. Humphries let the Dukesters down with only six hits, while he set 11 of them down via the strike-out route.

With the score tied four-all into the eighth, the frosh went on a belated batting spree to tally three and take the lead for the first time in the contest. Bricklemyer's double, singles by Lloyd and Boone, and timely sacrifices by Grubb and Humphries accounted for the runs.

The Babies tightened their hold on the lead in the ninth inning, scoring three more when Craver, Bricklemyer, and Grubb singled, and Boone doubled into right center.

Pete Boone and Foy Grubb led the Babies at the bat, while Lefty Dean and Wagner starred at the plate for the Duke yearlings.

Full Sports Week Ahead; But Only Two Events Here

Varsity Baseball, Tennis, and Track, and Freshman Tennis Teams Will Play Away.

Carolina's sports teams will have a full schedule of activity next week, but the majority of the contests will be on foreign fields.

The varsity baseball, tennis, and track, and the freshman tennis teams do not have a home game scheduled—leaving only the varsity golf and freshman baseball teams with games here.

The varsity nine will play two games—State at Raleigh Thursday, and Duke at Durham Saturday, while the track team will journey to Annapolis to engage the Navy Saturday.

The golfers will play at Hope Valley—home course for both Tar Heels and Blue Devils—Tomorrow-Tuesday, will meet Washington and Lee at Sedgefield (Greensboro) Thursday, and will enter the Southern Conference tournament at Sedgefield Friday and Saturday.

The freshman baseball team will meet State at Raleigh tomorrow and Duke here Wednesday.

An additional feature next week will be the high school championship games here. The class B final game will be played Thursday and the class A game Friday.

The varsity tennis team is making its annual eastern tour. The freshman netters are on a week's tour of Virginia, meeting prep schools and freshman teams.

Next Week's Schedule

Tomorrow—Duke at Hope Valley; State there (freshman baseball); Princeton there (varsity tennis); Woodberry Forest at Orange, Va., (freshman tennis).

Tuesday—Duke at Hope Valley (golf); Yale at New Haven (varsity tennis); Virginia at Charlottesville (freshman tennis).

Wednesday — Duke here (freshman baseball); Army at West Point (varsity tennis); Episcopal High at Richmond (freshman tennis).

Thursday—State at Raleigh (varsity baseball); Amherst at Amherst (varsity tennis); Washington and Lee at Sedgefield (golf); St. Christophers at Richmond (freshman tennis); State high school championship class B game here (baseball).

Friday—Williams at Williamstown, Mass., (varsity tennis); Southern Conference tournament at Sedgefield (golf); State high school class A championship game (baseball).

Saturday—Duke at Durham (varsity baseball); Navy at Annapolis (track); Dana College at Newark, N. J., (varsity tennis); Southern Conference tournament at Sedgefield (golf).

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

The following men are to report at Emerson field at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to leave for the double-header at State:

Turbyville, Humphries, Dixon, Craver, Collins, Le Grande, Burnette, Grubb, Andrews, Lloyd, Bricklemyer, Coffey, Willard, Boone, Parker, Redfern, and Turk.

All car owners who desire to take the team to and from Raleigh should get in touch with A. A. Sherr at 115 Aycock or "Bo" Shepard at once. All expenses will be paid.

Frosh Tennis

The frosh racquet wielders experienced little difficulty in turning back the Asheville School at Asheville yesterday, 7-0.

Scores are as follows: Fuller over Gilkey, 6-2, 6-1; Potts over Pettit, 6-1, 6-2; Foreman over Nelson, 6-1, 6-0; Farrell over Seelback, 6-2, 6-4; Robinson over Holden, 6-0, 6-0; Potts and Fuller over Gilkey and Seelback, 6-1, 6-4; Farrell and Robinson over Pettit and Nelson, 6-0, 6-0.

CAVALIERS BLANK TAR HEEL NINE 4-0; TWO SPLIT SERIES

Lefty Rogers Hurls Four Hit Ball in Shut-Out at Greensboro; Irwin Slugs Hard.

WEBSTER HURLS FOR N. C.

Carolina's nine went down before the fine hurling of Virginia's ace moundsman, Lefty Rogers, losing out 4-0 in the final of the two game series held at Greensboro yesterday afternoon.

Rogers proved to be too much for the Tar Heels and they were only able to garner four hits off his southpaw speed. The inexperienced Latcher Webster pitched fine ball and kept the 10 Virginia blows well scattered.

Don't Repeat

The Carolinians captured Friday's tilt from Virginia by a 5-3 count, but yesterday's game was a different story. The Tar Heels were unable to solve the baffling curves and fast ones of Rogers until the ninth inning when they staged a belated rally which just fell short of breaking the shut-out.

Tommy Irwin got two for three while Trip Rand and Lefty Groome collected the other two bingles for Carolina. Fitzhugh, Hall, and Hooff gathered seven of Virginia's 10 hits to lead their team at the plate.

DUKE FROSH AGAIN TAKE TRACK TITLE

Imps' 85 2-3 Points Nearly Double Carolina's 43 1-3; Varsity Record Bettered.

Totaling 85 2-3 points, which almost doubled Carolina's 43 1-3, the Duke freshman track team again captured the yearling state title here yesterday afternoon. Davidson followed with 19 3-4, State with 4 1-4, and Wake Forest with one.

Steckel headed the Blue Imps as he created new marks in both the hurdles events, negotiating the 120-yard highs in 15.4 seconds, and the 220-yard lows in 25 flat.

Sprint Battle

Larry Lewis and Fred Ullman of Duke and Carolina, respectively, continued their battle for sprint honors. Lewis easily captured the century, in which event Ullman was third, while Ullman took the 220 by defeating Lewis.

Carolina's outstanding win was that scored by Ed Juliber over Charlie Fischer of Duke in the shot put. Juliber's toss over 43 feet was sufficient to capture the event but both boys have thrown better and were evidently bothered greatly by the heat.

Yea, Frosh

Pengelly of Duke produced one of the sensations of the afternoon as he easily won the 440-yard dash by a big margin. However, the crowd thought nothing extra about it until the official time gave him a new

Class Of '35 Awaits Advent Of Senior Week Tomorrow

Seniors Ready for Last Fling Together; Program Includes Baseball Game with Faculty.

Senior Week, opening tomorrow, will give members of the class of '35 their final fling together at Carolina.

The elaborate program, designed to bring the graduates into closer fellowship, will open at 4 o'clock tomorrow on the freshman field with members of the class executive committee battling Rookie A. W. Hobbs' faculty fielders in a baseball game.

Faculty Phantoms

Lanky Archaeologist James Penrose Homerun Harland, Punster William Anderson Olsen, Economist John Brooks Woosley, and the Hobbs Brothers—Ex-Guilford pill slinger A. W., and business law's Richard Junius Mendenhall—will be among the faculty who will take the field to oppose President of the Senior Class R. A. Pool's executives. Captain A. W. Hobbs will pitch for the faculty faction.

Final Smoke

The class of '35 will gather Tuesday night at 9 o'clock for a final smoker at which Dr. Howard Rondthaler, president of Salem College, will speak.

Wednesday the Graham Memorial game room will be open from noon until 10 p. m., free to all seniors. At 11 o'clock there will be a free movie.

Clyde Hoey of Shelby will speak before the Golden Fleece tapping Thursday night at 8:30. Hoey is a probable candidate for governor, and will be introduced by Horace Williams and Frank Abernethy.

Junior-Seniors

The week will close with the annual Junior-Senior dances Friday and Saturday. A tea dance will open the set Friday at 4 p. m. Another ball will be staged Friday night from 9 to 1; and the series will close Saturday night after another afternoon tea dance.

Simmons Patterson, chairman of the Senior Week program, urges all members of the graduating class to wear their senior regalia during the week and to attend as many of the events as possible.

freshman record of 49.2 seconds, .5 seconds better than the varsity mark.

"Red" Meroney tied for the win in the high jump event with Turner and Gardner of Duke, but won the toss for the medal from the Durhamites.

Naudain of Duke turned in a spectacular performance in beating Carlton White of Carolina in a thrilling 880. Duke's other winners were DuBois in the two-mile; Koop in the mile; Harkness in the broad jump; Clark in the javelin, and the mile relay team. Davidson took a pair of wins as Fort captured the pole vault and Freeman the discus.

NO DEBATE

Due to a change in the Wake Forest exam schedule, the Philomathesian Literary Society of Wake Forest will be unable to debate the Phi Assembly of this University Tuesday, as formerly planned.

Wiley Parker and James Van Hecke, of the Phi, were to debate the Wake Forest team on the query, Resolved, that North Carolina should adopt a one-house legislature.

This would have been the second inter-society debate sponsored by the Phi, the first being with Duke last month.

Regarding Everett

tions for study gave Everett freshmen any great advantage out of proportion to their ability.

"The week before the end of the winter quarter a FERA student was asked to interview the Everett freshmen. The questions to be asked were made out by Mr. Albright and myself. At that time there were rooming in Everett forty-one upperclassmen and forty-nine freshmen. Of these the interviewer was able to locate at the time forty-three freshmen. The upperclassmen were not interviewed. The results were as follows:

1. Has dormitory been kept quiet at night to permit study? Yes, 32. No, 9. No answer, 2.
2. Has it been kept clean and in good repair? Yes, 31. No, 4. Not altogether, 7. No answer, 1.
3. Has there been a congenial atmosphere? Yes, 42. To some extent, 1.
4. Complaints about store, laundry service, etc. No complaints, 31. No answer, 3. Laundry rough on clothes, 3. Accounts not kept right in handling of laundry, 2. Dormitories not clean as could be, 2. Janitor service bad, 2. Store untidy, noisy, not enough fresh air, 2. Hot water not early enough, 2. Windows dirty, 1. Lighting in bathrooms bad, 1.
5. Have advisors been helpful in:
   a. Classwork? Yes, 19. No. 9. No answer, 15.
   b. In advising about schedule, activities, etc? Yes, 23. No, 10. No answer, 10.
   c. In keeping order? Yes, 40. No, 3.
6. How has Everett been different from other dormitories, if at all?

Quieter, 13. Cleaner, 8. More friendly attitude on part of students, 8. Better equipped, 3. More noise, confusion, 2. Better view, 1. Advisors help more, 1. No difference, 9. No answer, 11.

7. Would the plan have worked better if only freshmen had been allowed to room in Everett? Yes, 9. No, 28. No answer, 6.
8. What suggestions would you make to improve dormitory life in general, and Everett in particular? More reading material, 4. Keep quieter, 4. More entertainments and social functions, 4. Hot water earlier, 3. Keep cleaner, 3. Better janitor service, 2. Light bathrooms better, 2. Continue it like it is now, 6. More furniture in social room, 2. Stricter council members, 1. New mirrors in bathrooms, 1. Dormitory tutors, 1. No suggestions, 24.
9. Do you think it would be advisable to set aside three or four dormitories exclusively for freshmen who desire to room there, and to have advisors in these dormitories? Yes, 17. No, 24. No answer, 2.
10. What is your opinion of the Everett plan? Plan all right, 36. Plan all right but not carried out as intended, 4. Plan has failed due to presence of upperclassmen in dormitory, 1. No answer, 2.

"In your issue of Friday you stated that your own check-up covered over forty per cent of Everett inhabitants and that 'none of these ever saw the questionnaire.' This could very easily be true, since the forty-one upperclassmen and six freshmen not interviewed comprise almost exactly fifty per cent of the residents of the dormitory. You also state, 'Questionnaires are not very practicable means of sounding out student opinion because they are usually 'yes and no' questions.' Strictly speaking, the method used could not be called a questionnaire, which would ordinarily be a written set of questions to be answered in writing. Furthermore, you can see that it was not quite limited to the 'yes and no' method . . . . .

"The upperclassmen were not interviewed at all, since they were included in the experiment only incidentally . . . . .

"The TAR HEEL's interest in this enterprise is greatly appreciated by the administration. Any suggestions you may have for improving the validity of the check-up will most certainly be incorporated in the procedure.

"Most cordially yours, Francis F. Bradshaw."

MEET THE MISSUS!

So Al Jolson seems to be saying. It's a great day for Mrs. Jolson's little boy. You see, Ruby Keeler is appearing with him in a picture for the first time and the picture is Warner Bros.' latest musical hit, "Go Into Your Dance." It's on view at the Carolina theatre tomorrow and Tuesday.

Platform

Text of the Liberty League's platform is as follows:

1. To expose and make public all political propaganda taught in the classrooms at the University of North Carolina.
2. To prove to North Carolina and to the nation that our University is neither a "hot-bed of socialism" nor a "breeding-place of radicalism."
3. To conduct personal investigations of such state social problems as the Burlington dynamiting case; and to present the facts unemotionally.
4. To analyze proposed forms of government that are now in the "crusading" stage, such as the "Share-our-Wealth" society, the National Union for Social Justice, the Townsend plan, etc.
5. To debate and discuss governmental problems with any foes of American government.
6. To obtain prominent speakers who are interested in the League to come to Chapel Hill.
7. To combat the growth of bureaucracy, the spread of monopoly, the socialization on industry, and the regimentation of the American people.
8. To further the restoration of employment and the rehabilitation of agriculture, business, and industry; and to oppose all unnecessary interference and competition by government with legitimate business.
9. To advocate economy in government by abolishing useless commissions and offices, elimination of extravagance; and to advocate a sound fiscal policy and a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards.
10. To uphold the constitutional rights and liberties of American government.

LET'S PLAY POLICEMAN It is rather peculiar that City Manager Caldwell should get upset about the advertisement of "G-Men" to the extent that he wants to prosecute on a statute which he apparently had forgotten.

If Mr. Caldwell gets so up in the air about one violation of the town rule that posters advertising events not connected with the displayer must not be shown, why didn't he ever do anything about it before?

"G-Men," you know, is a movie about a government gang which is the strong-arm bunch, shooting on sight and all that sort of thing. Maybe Mr. Caldwell doesn't like "G-Men" on general principles or maybe they don't like him, or something. Or maybe there really aren't such things as "G-Men."

As to the statute, it should be taken out and burned. It's only taking up space in Mr. Caldwell's files. Local policemen are big, strong out-of-doors fellows and probably don't like statutes cramping their style anyway.

REWARD FOR MERIT That University debaters will very probably tour Europe next summer under the auspices of the National Student Federation comes as an unexpected delight.

Debaters on this campus have consistently taken it on the chin, because they haven't pleased enough people. But they have tenaciously stuck at it and, although it doesn't alleviate the situation as regards campus interest, the reward of the European trip justifies their effort.

Congratulations are in order for Bill Olsen and his boys. We hope that competition for berths on the international band will result in an increase of interest in local debating as well as in selecting some worth-while Tar Heel show-pieces.

SHUTTING THE EYES Davey Clark came out again in an open letter to the Greensboro Daily News, bombasting about a pamphlet entitled "Can Guns Settle Strikes" which was indorsed, so Davey says, by President Frank Graham.

Mr. Clark says the document is "filled with false statements and misrepresentations." However true his cries are (we are ignorant), Davey is a poor one to be speaking.

For instance, he deliberately inserted a convenient "NOT" in the 7-a clause on collective bargaining because he was opposed to the clause and "NOT" would give him an opportunity to fight it whereas the true statement was above reproach. That's what we are told anyway, and copies of his deed in the Textile Bulletin are said to bear this out.

He also raised sand about taxpayers' money being used in the Human Relations Institute program, writing this with a program of the institute and its money sources in front of him. It must be fun to shut our eyes when we don't want to read things we should read.

NSFA HEAD SAYS LOCAL DEBATERS MAY TOUR EUROPE

Lang Reports That Three U.N.C. Debaters Will Probably Represent U. S. in 1936.

TO DEBATE FOREIGNERS

Three debaters from the University will represent the National Student Federation of America in Europe during the spring and summer of 1936; according to an unofficial announcement issued by John Lang, ex-Tar Heel and outgoing president of the national organization.

The Tar Heel debating invasion is tentative only insofar as incoming Federation President Neblett of L. S. U., carries out the federation's policy in regard to the annual European tours.

Emory Last Year

Carolina debaters won the right to represent American youth to European platforms through their work in intercollegiate debating. West Virginia sent three men in 1934 and Emory University's debating squad has the honor this year.

Local members of the international squad will be chosen by the debate council next year, in the event that President Neblett and his executive committee follow the N. S. F. A. plan. The men will be chosen on their ability and their contributions as debaters throughout the debating year.

On the tour the debaters will meet representatives of many of the larger colleges and universities of Europe, debating with them on a selected list of topics dealing with international problems in which youth can and will take a part.

LEE GIVES REPORT TO LIBERTY GROUP

League Hears Survey of Campus Opinion; Carolina More Conservative Than Others.

Virgil Lee last night presented to the second meeting of the newly formed local chapter of the American Liberty League a survey of campus opinion on trends in government which he termed "more conservative than I had previously thought."

Asked whether he was "more conservative or radical as a freshman than now," Lee replied that "he was more radical as a freshman."

Lee based his campus trends survey on a 36-item questionnaire which was given here last fall to 214 students ranging from sophomores to seniors. He found that, according to the terms in the questionnaire, the general campus was a shade on the liberal side. The generalization average showed a proportion of two reactionaries, nine conservatives, 12 neutral, 11 liberal and two radical elements.

Conservative

Lee pointed out that the subjects were far from consistent in their answers, and that individuals had widely separated views on different subjects. He found that the students at Carolina are more conservative than those of other schools, especially in the fields of religion and the home.

Meanwhile, a tentative acceptance of an invitation to speak here was received from David

Hammer Resigns Post On Advisory Group

Phil Hammer, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, resigned from membership on the Student Advisory Committee yesterday afternoon. He had served as secretary since his appointment by ex-president of the student body Virgil Weathers last fall.

Jack Pool, present student body head, announced yesterday that a new member to take Hammer's place will be appointed today. Pool recently appointed Frank Willingham and Fred Weaver as the two members of the board to serve in place of Francis Fairley and J. D. Winslow, outgoing members.

The committee yesterday made the recommendation that the editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL be made an ex-officio member of the group. Pool will consider this recommendation this afternoon.

Pluvius Puts Stop To Classic Clash On Local Field

Gallant Faculty Crew Struggles Bravely with Seniors, Both Thwarted by Downpour.

Senior-faculty, called in the second inning, rain.

But not before the faculty showed the seniors that they were no sissies.

With such stars as the Hobbs brothers, heavy hitters and steady fielders, J. Penrose Harland, fast base runner and snappy shortstop, and Fred Dashiell, Dick's father, who struck out but was going to do better next time, the faculty promised to go to town against the motley senior team composed of politicians like Albert Ellis and Simons Patterson, Footballer Shaffer, and Journalist Poe.

Harland Called Out

The first inning was scoreless. Economics Professor Woosley, lead-off man for the faculty, hadn't had sufficient warm-up and flied out to First-Baseman Harrison, Former Sprinter Harland was almost fast enough to beat out the throw from an infield roller, but Snooks Aitken, umpire, is through taking archaeology, and called him out. To retire the side, the sophomore football star's father took three hefty swings without much effect.

With two out in their half of the first inning, the seniors placed men on first and second, only to have Charlie Shaffer hit a pop fly to Center-Fielder R. J. M. Hobbs, who didn't muff it.

Phi May Recommend Sterilization of Unfit

Assembly to Discuss Important Social Problem Tonight.

A bill providing that North Carolina broaden its present sterilization laws to include all those socially unfit, regardless of sex or race, comes to the Phi assembly for discussion tonight in the form of Di bill No. 3.

In this bill, the phrase. "socially unfit," is interpreted as signifying the lack of mental or physical characteristics that should be transmitted to future generations.

This bill has been discussed several times in the state legislature and is generally considered to be one of the more pertinent social questions.

MILLIS, STUDENT, KILLED IN WRECK ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Freshman Here Killed When Cars Crash in Graham; Others Slightly Injured.

FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON

Bill Brooks Millis, 18-year-old freshman in the University, was killed almost instantly about 11:30 Sunday night in Graham when a new Ford, driven by Walter Wood of Burlington, crashed into the Pontiac coach in which he was riding with Fred Bahnson and Paul Mickey, also University students.

Bahnson was driving his car about 30 miles an hour, according to reports, coming through Graham from Winston-Salem. At the intersection a block above the signal light the Ford dashed out of a side street, struck the rear end of the Pontiac, and hurled it against a rock-crushing machine which was being used in the erection of a new post office and had been left standing on the corner.

Crushed Against Machine

The entire right side of the Pontiac was staved in and Millis, sitting on the right side of the front seat, was crushed against the machine. Bahnson cut his forehead and Mickey, riding in the back seat, suffered scratches and shock.

Someone immediately rushed Millis and Mickey to the Burlington hospital, where Millis died about five minutes later.

Agnew Bahnson, Fred's cousin, was trailing the car in which the students were riding by about 100 yards. He picked up Fred and brought him to the hospital, where he collapsed when Mickey informed him that Millis was dead. Mickey remained in the hospital overnight, while Agnew took his cousin back to Winston-Salem. Mickey was back in school yesterday.

Wood was ordered jailed without privilege of bond, pending a more thorough investigation.

It is reported that Millis had

P. U. Board Appoints Business Managers

New Business Heads to Serve Publications Coming Year.

Displaying remarkable dispatch in the handling of applications, the Publications Union Board yesterday read the letters of almost a dozen applicants, interviewed them individually, and chose four of them to occupy the business managerships of the four campus publications for next year.

When the three hours were up each member had had the opportunity to express his opinions; Butler French had received the DAILY TAR HEEL, Niles Bond had been reappointed to the Buccaneer, Ned McAllister had been chosen for the Yackety Yack, and the business manager post for the Carolina Magazine had fallen to the lot of Herbert Osterheld.

In Memoriam

Deeming it "fitting" to adjourn freshman chapel as a token of respect for Bill Millis, a member of the class who was killed in an automobile accident Sunday, Jack Pool did not address the freshmen at assembly yesterday.

Speaker

Judge R. H. Sykes, class of '99 and president of the Citizens National Bank of Durham, who will speak to members of the senior class at their smoker tonight in Swain hall.

SYKES ADDRESSES SENIORS TONIGHT

Seniors Will Select Superlatives After Class Prophecy Read.

Judge R. H. Sykes, class of '99, and president of the Citizens National Bank in Durham, will speak to the seniors at their smoker at 9 o'clock tonight in Swain hall.

After the reading of the class prophecy, the seniors will elect class superlatives.

Judge Sykes is a director of the general Alumni Association and will speak as the representative of that organization. He is speaking in the place of Dr. H. E. Rondthaler of Salem College, Alumni Association president, who was unable to make the trip to Chapel Hill.

Words of wisdom will fall from the lips of Class Prophet Carl Thompson when he delves into the futures of men and women of '35 in his class prophecy.

MONOGRAM CLUB AWARDS TONIGHT

Certificates to Be Presented; Plans to Enforce Monogram Code to Be Discussed.

Winter sports certificates will be awarded and sweaters will be given to new monogram winners at the special meeting of the Carolina Monogram Club tonight at 7:30 o'clock in 214 Graham Memorial, according to President Ralph Gardner's announcement yesterday.

During the short meeting which will end before time for the senior class smoker, Chairman Charlie Shaffer will give a detailed report of the work done by the executive committee in its weekly meetings during the last three months.

Nominations

A nominating committee whose duty will be to select eligible candidates for next year's officers will be appointed at tonight's meeting, according to Gardner. The club will also discuss the proposed plan to invest in the executive committee the power to divest members of their monograms in case of their violating the monogram code during training season.

New monogram winners are especially invited to attend tonight's meeting which will be concluded with a short refreshment period.

Carroll Talks Tonight

Dean D. D. Carroll will give a commencement address at Creedmore high school tonight, and Walnut Cove high school tomorrow night.

THEATRE MANAGER VS. CITY MANAGER IN FIGHT OVER AD

Caldwell Has Cagney Picture Removed from Shop; Smith Has It Replaced.

COURT MAY DECIDE CASE

City Manager J. L. Caldwell and Carolina Theaterite E. Carrington Smith don't have the same ideas about things in general and city ordinances in particular.

James Cagney was looking out of a poster advertising "G-Men," a movie coming here soon concerning governmental undercover men, when one of the local police force, commissioned by Caldwell, tore him and the rest of the poster from its resting place in the Carolina Confectionary window.

All About Cagney

Caldwell says this is the reason why Jimmy Cagney's picture couldn't hang in the eats-and-drinks shop:

Section 14, Chapel Hill zoning law: "Within any residence zone, business zone No. 1 or business zone No. 2, no structure shall be used as a ground sign or commercial billboard except that the inscription on the advertisement thereon apply solely to the premises upon which structure is erected or to a structure thereon conducted . . ." Caldwell interprets the law to mean that no billboards not relating to the business shall be placed in the show windows.

The city manager is unable to take any definite steps until a test case is brought before court. For this to take place, he must instruct that a warrant be sworn out for the proprietor of the Campus Confectionary, and have a legal ruling made on the law. Caldwell, however, when pressed for a statement, refused to say whether he would have a warrant sworn out for any specific violation now existing.

Only Display Denounced

This is the only specific bill display that has been vigorously denounced by the city manager, according to Smith. A reporter from the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday counted, on one side of the business block, 18 advertisements in no way relating to the several businesses, and it is a well-known fact that advertisements for University athletic contests are placed in the Chapel Hill show windows every week.

The DAILY TAR HEEL was informed yesterday by prominent Chapel Hill attorneys that in their opinion, the case, if taken to court, could not be successfully prosecuted.

"Smith is the kind of fellow whose whole world revolves around his picture show, I reckon," said Mr. Caldwell yesterday.

Smith Replaces Ad

Smith, ignoring Caldwell's warnings, replaced the advertisement soon after it had been torn down, and it is alleged that he threatened to have Caldwell written up in the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Smith is awaiting the next move by the city manager, and expressed his intentions of fighting Caldwell in court if that should be necessary. He claims that the issue is a personal one with Caldwell, and pointed out the fact that billboards not relating to the respective businesses have been displayed in Chapel Hill windows before.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, KAHN; NIGHT, SMITH

USE WHAT WE HAVE

It is apparent that we will have to work out the Everett plan or a similar system with our existing material and without any too much financial support. And on that basis, the Everett plan, if applied as its precepts stipulate, will do as much as possibly can be expected for our dormitory inhabitants.

One of the main drawbacks to the successful working of the plan is the incapacity of upperclass "advisers." Naturally, it is not any fault of their own; they are busy men and have barely enough time for their own work, much less for student tutoring.

The solution, of course, is to get capable students, preferably graduate students, who have time to devote to freshman tntoring. And to get them, you must offer something attractive.

We have the administration's assurance that all possible efforts will be made to secure funds in order that excellent students working for degrees in the graduate school can be attracted from all parts of the country, attractive by a liberal stipend which would stipulate their devoting half-time to tutoring freshmen.

Until such efforts bear fruit—and even the most optimistic of us realize that at least a year must be taken—we must work as best we can with what we have. If the Everett plan is spread to six dormitories, as the Student Welfare Board recommended, it must be amended and developed greatly. These improvements can well be effected without financial or administrative strain.

Therefore we recommend that serious attention be paid immediately to the following necessary additions to the plan: dissemination of sex information, lending libraries, dating rooms with co-ed participation in dormitory social activities, suggestions for improvement of individual room lay-outs, organized scholastic and extra-curricular activity, and definite study hour enforcement.

— BILL MILLIS —

He gave a timid knock at the door and after receiving a gruff summons to "Come on in, freshman!" he walked into the room. I had never seen him before and at first glance he appeared to be just another twelve year old new man rather bewildered in a prep school a long way from home. Then he showed himself with, "I'm Bill Millis and the Headmaster told me to see you about a room," and then he grinned! From that moment on it was as though I had known him all my life. He was just that kind of a boy. Today while all of his host of friends are grief stricken at the tragedy that took him from us I can't help but think of a poem written by Edgar Guest about James Whitcomb Riley. One line stands out in my mind, "The angels sort of missed him so they called him back to home," and that must be the answer to the question in our minds today. Heaven must be just a little brighter today because Bill Millis walked in and grinned! Through life he went making things around him sunny and binding new acquaintances to him as lasting friends with that sincere, happy smile. Behind that smile and sustaining that cheery nature was a clean mind and we loved him for them all. Carolina has lost his presence but his fine and unselfish spirit will go on to make those who knew him try harder to make life for those around us a little brighter as Bill did. And so as we wonder why the One who watches over us all should take back to Him one whom we loved let us remember that maybe all wasn't right in Heaven and a smile was needed. I imagine He said the other night, "Bill, the angels were getting lonely so I called you back to home." And we know, Bill Millis, that even Heaven is a little brighter today.

By SPARTACUS

The local branch of the American Liberty (?) League finds itself in a tough spot. The first principle of the national organization declares for freedom of speech and press, but the local branch finds its membership clamoring for class-room snooping in a big way. Witness its program as announced in Sunday's DAILY TAR HEEL leading off with an expressed determination "to expose and make public all political propaganda taught in the class-rooms at the University of North Carolina." To head up a "pep rally" to start off this crusade, the Liberty Leaguers are bringing to the campus, the Honorable David Clark of the Southern Textile Bulletin.

Two years ago "Little David" offered a cash reward for evidence proving that President Graham or any other local professor had membership in the League for Industrial Democracy "or other radical organization." His latest exploit is his slanderous statements concerning President Graham and Professor Odum in connection with the summer school of the University of Moscow. It is customary for foreign universities that make a bid for American students to include in their catalogue (by permission) a committee of American professors in an advisory capacity, a courtesy that American universities as well ask from European faculties. This was the cordiality that led Mr. Clark to label President Graham and Dr. Odum "communists."

In this he did not play a lone hand. Finding in the New York Post a fac-simile of the page from the Moscow catalogue containing the names of the American professors, accompanied by a slimy editorial from the pen of "Wilhelm Ramshorn" Hearst, Mr. Clark took pains to include the whole in his Textile Bulletin. Furthermore, we are informed, he had copies struck off (the names of Graham and Odum having been encircled) and is broadcasting them throughout the state, with a view to prejudicing North Carolina citizens against President Graham and the University.

Apparently the Liberty Leaguers approve Editor Clark in this action; otherwise why this haste and zeal to have him come here and spit his slimy rheum all over the place. And if he comes, are the students to understand that he comes by way of administering a rebuke to our liberal professors and to put them in their places? Some explanation from the League on these points is due the student body.

So far as this columner is concerned, he does not want the conservatives curbed. Let them glorify the old order, be it the protective tariff or the Dred Scott decision. But don't pick on the dozen or so professors on the campus who have discovered that the United States is not Utopia, that the competitive system is legalized racketeering, and that Calvin Coolidge was a few steps removed from St. John the Divine. Seven-eighths of the ideas presented to students are conservative or reactionary; yet the Liberty League would throttle the few men who happen to hold heterodox views.

One last word. Where are these new holy-rollers going to stop? Many people have criticized Paul Green for his attitude toward the Negro in his plays. The patron saint of the League, Mr. Clark, wrote the Baileys up for their mill-worker play, "Strike Song." Shall we have to see Grand-old-man Koch and tell him hereafter that his proteges must turn out plays upholding the status quo? A legislator last year hurled invective at Dr. Harry Wolf for his services on the workingmen's compensation committee. Others do not like the Human Relations Institute, since it draws too many radicals. Will the League warn Mr. Harry Comer and his committee of the damage they are doing to the University?

Only the completely ignorant person can be unqualifiedly intolerant. Even among Liberty Leaguers there will be a few chinks that will let light through. This columnist believes that most of them, even the one who is distributing Huey Long share-the-wealth literature on the campus, are too intelligent to be consistently intolerant. If that be the case, they had best stick to their knitting. Let them continue to show that Herbert Hoover was one of the finest statesmen that the world has produced and that if he had been let alone, he would have seen to it that every garage had two cars in it and that a Sunday rooster was in every pot.

Now YOU'RE Talking

"... TO TAKE THE REST"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Thousands of years ago God made woman from the rib of the first man. She was meant to be a help-mate for the creature that God had chosen to rule the world. As luck would have it, she got him into trouble before he had time to prepare for it. Not being satisfied with merely a rib from this wonderful man, she took away his freedom in the Garden of Eden and caused him to be thrown out in a cold world to work for his bread. As the years passed she thought that she was actually as good as man, and that started more trouble. Man out of pure compassion gave her partial freedom, and soon she was gathering her forces for an insurrection. Woman finally won her right to vote and to hold public office. The war had just begun.

After being made from a rib, she decided to take the rest of man—she did. At the present woman has taken the jobs of men, men's clothes, men's ideas, and now she wants to run the men out of their own homes. Battle, Vance, and Pettigrew are the next objective. May we not be delivered from the snare of the fowler and the noisome pestilence?

Campus Funsters Again To Attempt Humorous Debate

Three wits and a wag will regale the campus at large with a banquet of pleasantries apropos the effects of a University education tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Pete Ivey, campus wit No. 1 by common acclaim, will lead the foray against higher learning under the banner of the resolution: Resolved, that a University education leads to physical, mental and moral debauchery.

Sophisticate Nelson Lansdale, girded with prep school debating awards and his standing as editor-elect of the intellectual Buccaneer, will assist at the slaughter.

Father Pat Gaskins of the late Finjan, completing the ranks of the wits, said to have debated no more than three persons at once in his life, will lend the weight of his wit to uphold higher learning.

Wag Winthrop Durfee, who enlivens debates with red flags and St. Vitus dances, may leave off assailing the opposition to assail Universities.

Dr. Archibald Henderson (Shaw's biographer, Einstein's disciple and a wit in his own right) will be chief speaker at the debaters' annual banquet, to follow the contest. Also for the feast a feminine vocalist will render highly popular songs.

UNC Netters Vanquished 7-2 By Princeton For Second Straight Year

Bill Minor Scores In Singles As Shore-Henderson Win Doubles

Harris, Levitan, De Gray Fight Gamely Only to Lose; Move On to New Haven Today.

SHORE INJURES HIS BACK

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Princeton, N. J., May 6.—Princeton's crack tennis team met the fine University of North Carolina net contingent here today and vanquished the southerners with ease, 7-2.

The Tar Heels, touring the east on their annual invasion, presented a hard-fighting club, but went down in defeat for their second straight year to a great Tiger aggregation.

Harvey Harris, number one for the visitors, gave Flynn, key man for the Nassau club, a battle throughout. The scores are no indication of the fine fight the southerner put up.

How N. C. Scored

The two points that the North Carolinians scored came as a result of a win in the singles and another in the doubles. Bespectacled Bill Minor counted the victory in the singles, turning back Oelsner, 6-3, 9-7. Frank Shore and Archie Henderson, sophomores on the southern team, licked Bender-Goodwin, 1-6, 8-6, 6-3, for Carolina's doubles victory.

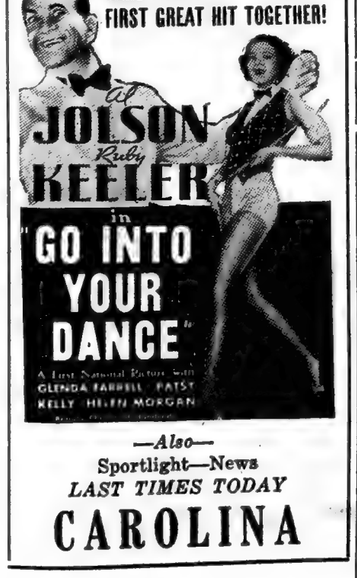
Playing conditions were far from ideal; the matches were played during a steady drizzle of icy rain.

Frank Shore, number six Tar Heel, pulled a muscle in his back, not getting sufficiently warmed up prior to the matches.

The Tar Heels will leave tonight for New Haven, Conn., where they will meet Yale tomorrow. Saturday, the scheduled Carolina - Rutgers match was rained out.

Summary

Singles—Flynn (P) over Harris, 6-3, 6-1; Tilney (P) over Willis, 7-5, 6-2; Minnich (P) over Levitan, 6-4, 6-8, 6-1; Whitman (P) over De Gray 6-3, 8-6; Minor (NC) over Oelsner, 6-3, 9-7; Tilden (P) over Shore, 9-7, 6-3.



Doubles—Flynn-Whitman (P) over Harris-Abels, 6-1, 6-4; Tilney-Tilden (P) over De Gray-Levitan, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; Shore-Henderson (NC) over Burder-Goodwin, 1-6, 8-6, 6-3.

TRACKMEN LOOK TO BATTLE WITH NAVY SATURDAY

Midshipmen, Victors over Virginia, 90-36, Have Versatile Club; Patterson Is Star.

Carolina tracksters had just settled down to an afternoon's workout yesterday when ole Jupiter Pluvius burst forth and sent the squad inside to showers.

Following their victory in the state championship meet on Saturday, the "Flying Tar Heels" will attempt to keep their record inviolate when they meet the U. S. Naval Academy team at Annapolis, this week-end.

Last year the Middies lost to Carolina, 67-59, here on Emerson field, but with many of the 1934 stars, plus very creditable performances thus far they are certain to give the Tar Heels plenty of competition.

The only common foe was University of Virginia. Last Saturday, the Cavaliers were sunk by Navy 90-36, whereas they were dealt a 96 1-3 to 30 5-6 reverse here two weeks ago.

Against Carolina, the Virginia team took three firsts, but were limited to a pair last week-end by the Midshipmen. A boy whom Carolina should fear is Patterson, one of the few to cross the finish line in the 220-yard low hurdles ahead of Everett of Virginia. He also took the broad jump event with a leap of twenty-three feet, seven, seven-eighths inches.

Tar Heel Golfers Drop Meet To Duke

Blue Devils Win 10½-7½; Laxton Wins Medal Honors with 70; Coffin Trails with 71.

Jupiter Pluvius played havoc with the play of both Carolina and Duke golf teams in their second meet of the year yesterday, but the Blue Devil dubbers proved to be the best on the muddy Hope Valley course and turned back the Tar Heels, 10½-7½.

In their earlier meeting with the Methodists, the Carolina linksmen licked Duke 10-8. With the exception of one match, that between Harris, Carolina, and Storm, Duke, the individual scoring yesterday remained practically the same.

Medal honors for the day's play went to Acting Captain Erwin Laxton who shot a 70. Laxton burned up the first nine holes with a 32 but slowed down considerably coming in. Wilson Coffin, individual titlist of the state meet, trailed close on the heels of Laxton with a 71.

In the opening match, which proved to be a duplication of their former meeting, Duke's ace, Perry, turned back Laxton, 2-1. Storm upset Dick Harris, Carolina, to avenge Harris' win of their last match. Storm's superior drives and consistent putting gave him a 2½-½ win.

Wilson Coffin, Carolina, shooting straight from the tee, beat Justin by a 2½-½ count. Powell, Duke, found Walter Pijanowski decidedly off form and blanked him 3-0.

Best ball matches were run off yesterday with Carolina splitting honors. Perry-Storm, Duke, won 2-1 from Laxton-Harris while Coffin-Pijanowski, Carolina, downed Justin-Powell 2½-½.

TAR BABIES WIN, LOSE TO TECHLETS

Parker Pitches Two-Hitter to Annex Opener of Double Bill; Bricklemyer, Boone Clout.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Raleigh, May 6.—After routing the State Wolflets, 9-2, in the first encounter, the Carolina Tar Babies dropped a close extra-inning decision, 8-7, in the second game of a double-header here today.

Dave "Daffy" Parker, cocky Carolina hurler, gave the State frosh only two bingles in winning the opening tilt. Parker pitched fine ball, and set the hard hitting Techlets down in order after the third frame.

The Babies hit hard in the first two innings, scoring three in the first and four in the second. Home runs by Burnette and Bricklemyer featured the initial scoring, while Boone's double, and singles by Burnette, Lloyd and Grubb, accounted for the tallies in the second. Carolina failed to score again until the last inning when two errors and singles by Boone and Lloyd scored two.

Burnette and Boone led the Babies at the plate in the opening contest. Mann and Berlinski were the only State freshmen who were able to hit Parker's teasing curve ball pitching.

The Wolflets came back strong in the next game and got off to a four-run lead in the first frame on three triples, a double and a single. The Babies were held well in check by Hart until the sixth inning when consecutive

QUARLES TO MEET VIRGINIA BATTLER IN GRUDGE FIGHT

Blond Lightweight, Beaten in First with Smith, Tries Again In Durham Thursday.

Norment Quarles, the ex-college champ, will meet Steve Smith from Bridgeport, Conn., in a feature grudge fight at Durham Thursday night.

Smith has ranked with the nation's leading lightweights for a number of years. A two-fisted fighter, he is known as one of the toughest men in the game.

The first Smith-Quarles bout will long be remembered. It was the first professional bout for the classy Tar Heel lightweight, and he lost a close decision after a terrific battle.

Quarles has fought twelve matches since that night with only one loss. That was to Stumpy Jacobs, and he settled that score last week, pounding out a decisive win over the Virginia boy.

Quarles Improved

Ring followers say the Tar Heel has improved greatly with experience and are giving him a chance to settle the second score—that with Smith Friday night.

However, the "Bridgeport Ironman," who made a big hit with the fans for his hard hitting and fine sportsmanship in his last appearance in Durham, still rules the favorite.

He fought Smith handicapped. It was his pro debut, and his first try over the longer route. Thursday is another story.

Rubin Pictures Impressions Of Sixty-First Kentucky Derby

Sent 1200 Miles, Expense Unpaid By Tar Heel, Reporter Gets "Big Thrill" from Derby.

Sports Editor's note: Here's a bird's eye view of the Kentucky Derby, the nation's turf classic, as viewed through the eyes of Len Rubin who had the pleasure of seeing his nag run home 16th . . . but let him give you the dope.

By LEN RUBIN

Racing thoroughbreds, a dismal rain, and an extraordinarily gay throng are the lasting impressions this correspondent retains from his just completed trek to the Kentucky Derby in Louisville.

Sent by the DAILY TAR HEEL, expenses unpaid, this writer, in company with five other youths from Aycock, traversed 1200 miles over treacherous, winding mountain roads, and was awarded with a hurried glimpse of horseflesh thundering past for a fraction of a second.

Here are some slight recollections, jotted down at rare intervals: Louisville was transported on Friday night into a combination of New York on New Year's Eve, New Orleans on the day of Mardi Gras, and Chicago at the height of the World's Fair . . . It was a city of jostling thousands, tooting horns, and mad gaiety . . .

Churchill Downs, sprawling scene of the turf's classic, lies outside the city proper . . . shrouded by falling rain, this proud father of 61 derbies, became a frenzied land of milling thousands as the mob slopped happily through the slush. . . .

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Asheville, May 6.—Carolina's crack freshman tennis team routed the Biltmore Forest Country Club aggregation here today, 6-0.

Gordon Robinson was the only Tar Baby to drop a set. Eliza Coxe, famous female net star, played for the local country club but was downed easily by Fuller, playing number one for the University frosh. Miss Coxe also took part in the doubles.

Fuller (C) over Coxe, 6-3, 6-2; Potts (C) over Rogers, 6-0, 6-1; Foreman (C) over Robertson, 6-2, 6-3; Robinson (C) over Smith, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5; Potts-Fuller (C) over Coxe-Rogers, 6-0, 6-0; Foreman-Farrell (C) over Robertson-Coxe, 6-1, 6-2.

ACTIVITIES GROUP TAME LAST NIGHT

First Meeting of New Student-Faculty Body Is Quiet Discussion of Campus Affairs.

The Student Activities Committee, official student-faculty view-airing group, discussed reallocation of student fees, the class extension plan, the new Carolina Buccaneer policy, and other questions of current undergraduate importance at its first meeting af the year last night.

Newly-elected student officers, both male and female, faculty leaders and administrative officers were on hand to present the "tamest Student Activities Committee session I've ever seen," as presiding-officer Jack Pool, student body president, put it.

Constitution

Hints at the need for a written constitution creeped into the discussions, once in a verbal plea by one of the students, and at other times in the general tangling of policies after conflicting remarks put the discussion on the basis of Carolina's precedental activities procedure.

Among the more verbose of the calm and collected speakers were Dr. John Booker, Dr. William Bernard, Dean D. D. Carroll, Mr. William Olsen, Phil Hammer, Joe Barnett, John Schulz, and Dean of Students F. F. Bradshaw.

ERICSON TO SCORE FRAME-UP TRIALS

Will Feature Burlington Case in Speech in Winston-Salem.

"The recent conviction of seven workers in Burlington on trumped-up evidence was accomplished because the case was tried in an atmosphere tense with the conflict aroused by the strike situation," said Dr. E. E. Ericson in explanation of the talk he will make before the Society for the Abolition of Capital Punishment, which will meet tomorrow in Winston-Salem.

Dr. Ericson's talk on "Convicting the Innocent in North Carolina" will deal with the various cases in which justice has miscarried, and with the Burlington case in particular. In indicating the tenor of his address to be given in Winston-Salem tomorrow, Dr. Ericson decried the mounting number of executions in North Carolina.

"Few intelligent people believe that we are doing anything other than appeasing the outraged feelings of a community when we inflict the death penalty," he said. "Nor is there," continued Dr. Ericson, "any betterment by way of our substiting the lethal-gas chamber for the electric chair. Our attention should be directed rather to the environment of the accused and the background of the crime."

DI TO GET CONSTITUTION

The original constitution of the Di Senate will be presented to President Charles Rawls tonight at the regular meeting by M. J. Andrews, president of the Senate in 1895. He receeived it from Kemp Battle, president 44 years before, who had obtained it from a still earlier Senate leader.

President Graham and other former Di Senate members are especially invited to attend the meeting. Two important bills will also be discussed.

singles by Bricklemyer, Boone, and Grubb, mixed with two timely sacrifices scored three runs.

After knotting the count at seven-all, and forcing the game into extra innings, the Carolina frosh lost when Ebner knocked a fluke hit over first, stole second, and scored the winning run a moment later on Berlinski's line drive over second.

Collins and Bricklemyer hit home runs in the second game. It was Bricklemyer's long clout which knotted the game at 7-7. Boone led the Tar Babies in batting with three for three, while Charley Gadd took the batting honors for the Techlets.

Firemen Come And Go But Hear, See Nothing As Kalb's Auto Burns

Students in the Upper Quadrangle wiped the sleep from their eyes late Sunday night and donned bathrobes and slippers to see what was the cause of the ungodly racket going on in the infernal region of the Lower Quadrangle.

Most of them arrived in time to witness the excited students of the Lower Quadrangle attempt to quench a car which had caught on fire. These almost nude students had formed a bucket brigade in the absence of the local fire department and were passing waste-baskets of water from the basement of Lewis to the burning car.

The car was a model "A" Ford belonging to Lewis Dorm's Kalb. The fire was discovered by one Halloway who raised the alarm which caused the Lower Quadrangle to empty its dormitories, that is, all except Graham whose curious denizens did their peering from behind drawn shades.

What, No Fire-Fighters?

When the fire was nearly out the Chapel Hill fire department drove up, and, in spite of driving within a few feet of the burning car and in spite of the noise made by the students, seemed unable to discover the fire. The fire truck turned into the Upper Quadrangle drive and was seen no more.

Nothing goes on in the town unless our police force knows about it, though. A few minutes after the arrival and departure of the fire truck a car bearing the forces of the law drove up to be hailed with crys of "Cheese it, de cops!" and "Here comes the Light Brigade!"

The cops made a quiet but efficient investigation of the case probably hearing the opinion of Halloway that the fire had been caused by a cigarette duck thrown out of a dormitory window.

The cops retired. The students retired. All was quiet in the Lower Quadrangle.

Yandell, McKee Address Joint "Y" Gathering

Ten Attend Greensboro "Greater University" Session.

Billy F. Yandell, president of the Carolina Y. M. C. A., was one of the speakers at a meeting of the Consolidated University "Y" cabinets held last night at the Woman's College in Greensboro.

Stating his plans for the coming year along with President of the Woman's College Y. W. C. A. Martha Thomas and president of the State College Association Henry Pierce, Yandell stressed his program to send a large delegation to the Blue Ridge conference.

Don McKee of the Carolina delegation also made a brief talk.

Dr. E. L. Mackie of the Tar Heel "Y" board of directors, led the local delegation which was composed of Bob Magill, S. B. Bradley, Bill MacDonald, Paul Wolfe, Paul McKee, Guy Phillips, Bert Smith, Yandell, and Don McKee.

SENIOR SPIRIT

"That's the d—dest shine I've ever seen," said many an undergraduate yesterday as seniors, in their jolly blue polo shirts, termed "senior regalia," wended their ways about the campus.

Well, maybe they are shines. But why not? Most Carolina students are so rutted in traditional smugness that when blue polo shirts are worn, to designate seniors from their less-graduated student mates, they start beefing about "prep school stuff" and "fun for the kiddies."

Far be it from us to laud the polo shirts as sartorial wonders. Some of our seniors looked like wounded bluebirds in the regalia. But the spirit behind class consciousness, whether manifested in polo shirts or beer jackets, is undeniably sincere and creates a feeling of "senior brotherhood," in its own simple way, which is more often completely lost than otherwise.

GRAVE ERROR

We erred in our reference to Davey Clark's misrepresentation concerning the NRA 7-a clause yesterday.

Mr. Clark did not insert a "NOT" in the 7-a clause when he ran it in his Textile Bulletin. He was much less in the wrong; he merely inserted a convenient "NOT" in the Winant report on the 7-a machinery which was given to the President.

Here's the way it ran: "The board does (NOT) feel that swift and efficient protection of the rights of labor in collective bargaining should be secured through new machinery."

The insertion made a lot of difference to the readers, we imagine. Maybe Davey's fingers slipped. He ought to sit on them.

HONOR ATHLETES

When the work of the executive committee of the Monogram Club was reported last night, it was obvious that a new note in student self-government has been reached.

The Monogrammers have set up a system whereby they can maintain a high standard of sportsmanship in Carolina athletics. Instead of leaving the duty of selecting men who will wear monograms to the coaches, the athletes have taken it upon themselves to set certain principles which must be regarded before any monograms grace the breast of the athlete.

This is student government of the highest type. Initiative comes from within, from a personal responsibility to see to it that athletes, like all others, work and play with more in mind than vanity on the field.

This action should serve as a model for all undergraduate activities. It is not so much the purpose of the committee which we admire, because it is merely the honor system interpreted to fit athletics, but it is the spirit of responsibility in which the duty of maintaining the standards have been assumed.

Men deserve monograms as much for their sportsmanship as for their brilliance.

FLEECE WILL TAP TOMORROW NIGHT IN ANNUAL RITUAL

Outstanding Campus Leaders Selected According to Character and Achievement.

CLYDE HOEY IS SPEAKER

One of the most important events of Senior Week, the annual Golden Fleece tapping, will be held Thursday night in Memorial hall, with Clyde Hoey, likely Democratic candidate for governor, making the address of the evening.

At the tapping, which will take place at 8:30 p. m., some 10 or 12 students will be selected who are considered leaders in the major campus activities. Character and achievement are regarded as prime requisites for membership in the order.

Clyde Hoey

Clyde Hoey, the speaker, one of the most successful lawyers in the state, was editor and owner of the Cleveland Star at Shelby for 14 years, and has served as a member of the state legislature and as a representative to congress. It is regarded as significant that Lieutenant Governor A. H. Graham, who made the Golden Fleece address last year, is also regarded as a certain candidate for governor.

The ritual of tapping is always very impressive, as with lowered lights, the members of the order move slowly up and down the isles, from time to time pouncing upon new men for selection. The honor society was established here in 1902 as the second oldest organization of its kind in the United States. Dr. Henry Horace Williams is regarded as the founder of the Fleece, which was fashioned after the Skull and Bones Society at Yale.

Fleece Members

Members of the Fleece now on the campus who were tapped last year are: Frank Abernethy, Jason of the order; Agnew Bahnson of University Club and Foreign Policy fame; Bob Drane, editor of the Yackety Yack; Lonnie Dill, ex-editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL; Joe Sugarman, ex-editor of the Carolina Magazine; Stuart Aitken, Alex Andrews, Ralph Gardner, and Simmons Patterson. Thor Johnson, director of the University of Michigan Little Symphony Orchestra which was received with such acclaim here last month, was also tapped last year.

FRENCH PLAYERS TO GIVE THRILLER

French Club to Present Annual Dramatic Venture Tomorrow.

Blood will spurt on the Playmaker stage next Thursday, May 16, when the French Club will take possession of the theatre to reproduce a typical evening in a famous horror theatre, the Grand-Guignol of Paris.

This year's production, now in rehearsal, is the second annual theatrical venture of the French Club.

"Une Soiree au Grand-Guignol," this year's play, written and directed by W. D. Creech, Jr., will be acted by an all-student cast including: Catherine Hodges, Olive Newell, Lillian Allen, Mary McKee, Scott Hunter, Raymond Reeves, Warren Barrett, Cecil Ford, and Lawrence Cheek.

UNRULY ATHLETES TO LOSE LETTERS

Monogram Club Will Punish Those Who Break Training.

Heated discussions on athletes breaking training were featured in a meeting of the Monogram Club last night in Graham Memorial.

Pros and cons that were both heated and heavy followed a motion that athletes who break training be stripped of their monogram awards. The motion finally was carried, and judicial power was granted the executive committee.

Charley Hubbard read the executive committee report in the absence of Charley Shaffer, chairman.

Among the committee recommendations, was one that bestowed service awards to athletes not quite deserving of the monogram honor. This award would be in the form of a chain or key with the individual's name and sport inscribed on the back. Those awarded this service medal would then be entitled to Monogram Club membership.

New members which were admitted at last night's meeting are: J. R. Edwards, J. R. Lothian, Jule Medynski, Max Novich, Joe Fisher, B. J. Webster, Bucky Harris, Billy Harrison, Marion Diehl, Lammie Alderman, Allan Bonner, M. C. Ward, F. L. Bowen, H. W. Gwyn, Wilbur Gholson, Frank Umstead.

PHI SMASHES BILL EXCLUDING CLARK

Assembly Advocates Bill Favoring Extension of Present Sterilization Laws.

After unanimously defeating a bill providing that David Clark be prohibited from speaking at the University, the Phi Assembly last night overwhelmingly passed a resolution inviting the Textile Bulletin editor to make a talk here.

Francis Fairley and Drew Martin, opponents of the prohibitory measure, based their arguments on the alleged fact that to suppress such a speech would be contrary to the liberal tradition of the University.

May Temper Clark

While discussing the resolution to invite Clark to speak here it was pointed out that a visit to the University might acquaint Clark with actual conditions and perhaps temper his caustic criticism.

Stuart Rabb told the Assembly that the American Liberty League, under whose auspices Clark has been invited, did not necessarily indorse all of the Charlottean's views. Rabb stated that Clark's visit might do much toward proving to the state that the University is far from being "a hot-bed of radicalism."

The Assembly advocated by a vote of 15-2 a bill favoring extension of the present sterilization laws to include all persons socially unfit.

ADVISORY ASSISTANTS

The following students were appointed yesterday by Jack Pool to act as special assistants to the Student Advisory Committee, to aid in a study of campus organizations and systems: Sam Leager, Irving Suss, Milton Kalb, Carl Thompson, Don Wetherbee, Jim Daniel, Morty Slavin, Jake Snyder, and Bob Page.

DI SENATORS BOIL FOR EX-MEMBERS IN HEATED SESSION

Attacks Center on Ericson as Senators Declaim Political Propaganda in Classes.

GRAHAM FAVORS TAR HEEL

The Di Senate put on a violent and heated show last night before a group of former members which included Attorney-General A. A. F. Seawell and President Graham.

Words flowed in a stream of unprecedented speed and eloquence, and feelings reached a new high as the Senate barely defeated the two most controversial bills that have been discussed on the floor this year.

Col. W. J. Andrews, president 44 years ago, who presided over part of last night's session, had the roll called on the resolution condemning the DAILY TAR HEEL for a policy of curtailing news about certain campus organizations and suggesting an investigation into the matter.

Attack Ericson

Centering their attacks on Dr. E. E. Ericson, Senators Mullen and Gibbes strongly declared themselves in favor of Senator Weaver's bill, "Resolved, that professors of this University hold to the subject they are paid to teach and refrain from spreading their political views in the classroom." No roll call of the close defeating vote was made, because Senator Eagles, who voted with the supporters, hastily moved an adjournment.

Senators Weaver, Gibbes, Williams, and their constitutents did win one point last night in their defeat of Senator McKee's proposal that the Senate discuss and vote on his bill, "Resolved, that the Di Senate go on record as favoring the DAILY TAR HEEL and the policy of Editor Hammer."

The meeting opened with the presentation by Col. Andrews of the original constitution of the Di Society to President Rawls.

Vanished Glories

Mr. Seawell and Mr. Kenneth Gant, another former member, also spoke, recalling the vanished glories of the Di and uttering the hope that it might again reach its former position of prominence.

Asked by Senator McKee to state his opinion on the new policies of the DAILY TAR HEEL, President Graham said that the administration "is deeply interested in and grateful to the DAILY TAR HEEL for its investigation of many important problems," and that he considered its editorial suggestions very good.

"We need to improve dormitory life," he continued, "but the students themselves can do much toward remedying some of the bad features." He is in favor of social rooms in each dormitory.

COKER TO DIRECT SCHOOL

The Alleghany School of Natural History in Alleghany National Park, N. Y., opens for its seven-week term on July 5, according to Dr. R. E. Coker, director.

This school offers courses in botany, zoology, geology, and nature study, combined with a vacation in the state park. Dr. Coker says that the school attracts teachers, scout and camp leaders, and naturalists for the annual courses.

High Learning Stands Or Falls As Campus Brains Clash Tonight

McKee Appointed to Advisory Committee

Don McKee, University sophomore, was appointed yesterday afternoon to take the place of Phil Hammer on the Student Advisory Committee. Jack Pool, student body head, made the appointment following Hammer's resignation Monday afternoon.

Hammer will continue as ex-officio member of the committee, Pool acquiescing in the committee's recommendation that editors of the DAILY TAR HEEL be given such positions.

McKee is well known for his work as manager of the DAILY TAR HEEL news release to high and preparatory schools and has been prominent in other activities for two years. He will begin his work on the committee this afternoon.

Dance Bids To Be Distributed Today

Dance bids for the Junior-Senior dances to be held here this week-end will be given out to juniors and seniors at the Y. M. C. A. today from 9:30 to 1 o'clock and from 2 to 4 o'clock.

These bids will also be given out during the same hours tomorrow and from 10:30 to 12 o'clock and from 2 to 3:30 o'clock Friday. No persons will be admitted to the dances by any other system of passes and all students who are due bids are asked to secure them as early as possible during the days mentioned.

A limited number of bids will be sold to members of the professional schools for $4.00 the set. Individual bids will be sold for $1.50 per afternoon dance and $2.00 per night dance.

Co-eds Discuss Radio Situation in Spencer

The recent radio situation in Spencer hall became the subject of a round-table discussion at a meeting of the co-eds Monday night. The co-eds were informed that the radio petition was removed by Mrs. Lee in order that it might be sent to Mrs. Stacy for consideration.

The group voted to send a representative from the dormitory to the meeting that has been called by Dr. Graham and Mrs. Stacy to discuss the affair.

Miss Bobbie Moore took over her duties as house president of the dormitory at the meeting, at which plans for a tea dance were also considered.

'Franklin Street' Wins $25 Prize for Alumnus

Bradford White, University alumnus and graduate student at the University of Wisconsin at present, has just been awarded first prize of $25 for the best poem of the year published in College Verse, a monthly magazine of college poetry.

White won the honor with his poem, "Franklin Street," which first appeared in the old Carolina Magazine last spring under the editorship of Don Shoemaker. Besides the cash prize, the poem also won a monthly award from the same magazine.

The judges in the contest were Professors Robert E. Spiller of Swarthmore; Sanford Salyer of the University of Oklahoma, and Garland Gruver of the University of Southern California.

Wave of Investigating Embraces Universities

Ivey and Lansdale Will Contend That Universities Debauch; Gaskins, Durfee, "No!"

CO-EDS WILL BE REFEREES

At last standing toe to toe with the most momentous question of American education, four campus intellectual leaders will debate the value of higher learning at 8:30 tonight in Gerrard hall.

Dedicated to the proposition that a University education leads to physical, mental and moral delinquency are Puckish Pete Ivey and Nelson Lansdale, scion of one of the better families of Maryland.

Opposition

Convinced by ponderous research in historical jurisprudence and sundry other pursuits that college education should not be investigated, Right-Winger Winthrop Durfee and Retreating-Editor Pat Gaskins of the Finjan are expected to attempt to divert the discussion into other channels.

"We shall attempt to prove that a University education is a colossal failure, a physical calamity, a mental frivolity, and a moral holocaust," declaimed Alfred Guy "Pete" Ivey to the press yesterday. "Sans mens in sans corpore, phooey. Non compos mentis, et cetera usufruct, in toto, vice versa, nux vomica, E pluribus."

Cohort Lansdale, rumored to have drafted a roomful of campus intelligentsia to write his speech, amen-ed the above sentiments: "When I take the stump tonight, the University will be out on a limb and the opposition will be hacked. This will be a debate to end debates."

American Durfee

Ruffled by the back-handed gibes of the DAILY TAR HEEL'S anonymous columnist Spartacus, Durfee asserted his position in the approaching fray: "I am for 100 per cent Americanism, the American Liberty League, the debate society and anything else that is safe and unrevolutionary."

Gaskins seized upon the vital issues of the controversy with: "When I get through telling those fellows a thing or three, they won't know their debates from a hole in the ground. Tell

CATCHING OUR IDEA

Dean D. D. Carroll caught the idea of our efforts in pushing the class-extension plan when he told the Student Activities Committee Monday night that "it isn't the plan but the purpose which is so important."

Many members of the faculty have found disadvantages and drawbacks to the class-extension plan, but it took Dean Carroll to do what we've been waiting for: to show how the plan would not be practicable but at the same time to offer one based on the same motives and philosophy, differing only in application.

The reasons we have given for advocating the class-extension plan are: to utilize our remarkable pedagogical resources; to allow for a broader scope in undergraduate education; to add zest to the professorial duties of lecturing.

Dean Carroll does not believe the last purpose holds much water, because pepping up lectures does not necessarily mean better classroom continuity and this latter phase must be considered before any class-extension comes into play.

Acting upon our suggestion, Dean Carroll made this outline of a plan: starting classes at 8 o'clock, running them until 10, when there would be a free hour at which time certain campus professors would deliver public addresses, to those who wish to attend. The others may rest. Classes, of course, would be resumed at 11 o'clock.

We know how the students feel about 8 o'clock classes, but the other benefits to be derived from the plan are numerous. They remedy the situation where the class-extension plan failed; namely, overcrowded classrooms will be avoided, chautauqua-ism evaded, classroom continuity will not be interfered with, the danger of students cutting one class to attend another will not be possible, the additional burden of preparing special lectures will be less frequent, and other disadvantages avoided.

The reason we say we are glad Dean Carroll brought up the weaknesses of our plan and suggested another system is that our main motive was in utilizing to a greater extent our present ability in the faculty ranks to the broadening of undergraduate scope in our curricular offerings.

We wanted discussion and we're getting it. If the presentation of the class-extension plan does nothing more than create faculty and student interest in mutual efforts to get more out of what we have bridled, then our work will have been a success.

PUT IT IN INK

Speaking of the Student Activities banquet, nothing was more obvious than the need for a written constitution.

The Publications Union Board was under discussion and the differences of opinion regarding that group's power to do things were simply astounding. Then the re-allocation of fees came up and a similar situation arose: everybody agreed something ought to be done in this line, but where the power to do anything was vested nobody seemed to know.

We suggest an immediate session of Pool's new constitutional committee. We know that Chairman Barnes is in favor of some sort of code regulation and authority allocation, and it is saying something when we mention him in connection with student government, because his experience therein is greater than that of any other single man on the campus, with the possible exception of his predecessor in two fields, Mayne Albright.

Any member of the committee who has been in activities—and they all have—should know what is needed and act accordingly.

SPLASHES

By BOB PAGE

Well, we did get to the May Frolics last week-end after all. And they turned out to be as good as they promised. The only thing that marred our fun was writing the story for Sunday morning on Saturday afternoon that the Saturday night dance was hurt by the heat and then it turned off cool on us. We had plenty to go on after the scorcher Friday night but the local weather man fooled us as usual. Was our face red!

Sweet Briar, as we prophesied, was there in force. All we had to do to meet a beautiful girl was to wander over to the right of the orchestra and there they were—Nancy Nalle, Carrie Marshall Young, Hilma Wilson and Ada Denton—just to mention a few from the Briar Patch.

Practically every city, town and village in the state was represented by at least one fair damsel. And one little maiden had come all the way from California to take them in. Our own fair co-eds, however, seemed to be holding their own with the foreign competition this time. They were sprinkled all through the mob that filled the Tin Can. Even Ignis Fatus was there. We intended to meet those cute Bush twins, Jean and Joan, but failed again. We are still determined.

They are originally from our own home town of Charlotte but they have escaped the fate of knowing us as yet. However, we used to go with a girl there named Jane Bush, who could pass for their sister anywhere.

The Tin Can was decorated as prettily for the Frolics as we have ever seen it. The orchestra persisted in playing sizzling tunes in spite of the sultry weather that prevailed most of the time but the chronic shaggers hung on grimly.

The music was fairly good but the chief attraction of the Commanders proved to be their vivacious, curlly-haired torch singer, who insisted on bouncing around perpetually like a rubber ball. One wag remarked that she could lose her voice and still keep her job.

All the femmes bade au revoir to Chapel Hill and the house parties Sunday but we imagine that quite a few of them will be treking right back Friday afternoon when junior-seniors open up with the first tea dance in the set. Rufus Adolphus Pool says Barney Rapp and his New Englanders will pull in early Friday to take charge of the festivities.

The dance committee put their foot down on Jack's confetti-throwing ideas and the cotillion for Saturday night might not pan out so well. But we are looking forward to another ace set of dances and are plenty willing to take the Rapp. Wups, that war a bad 'un, as one of our fellow columnists so aptly puts it.

If you fellows want to meet the Queen of Sweet Briar, just look us up this week-end. As Dan Lacy himself says, she is smooth. Several house parties are on tap for this week-end, too.

We must take time off here to pay tribute to Dr. J. P. Harland, maestro of archaeology in the University. When celebrating his fortieth birthday several days ago, he became rather annoyed at telling people his age and receiving no raised eyebrows or flattering compliments on his youthful appearance. Being a former Princeton track star, he hurried home that afternoon to dig up his track outfit, which had not been touched in 18 years. Donning his trunks and shoes, he set out to run the 100-yard dash for the psychological effect only. And it is rumored that he was clocked in 11 seconds flat! Not contented with this feat, he was a standout at shortstop for the faculty in their baseball game with the seniors Monday until rain put a halt to his activities. A versatile professor, we'd say.

The only kick we have to make is that we always bump into him everytime we have a date with a certain co-ed when we should be perusing those assignments of his on ancient Greek life.

Netters Return To Form With A Crushing 8-1 Win Over Yale Team

Carolina Team Plays Brilliantly In Setting Aside Strong Eli Squad

Racquet Wielders Sweep Singles; First Doubles Team Suffers Only Defeat.

HENDERSON SEES ACTION

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

New Haven, Conn., May 7.—The Carolina netters shook away the Princeton defeat of yesterday and trampled on a powerful Yale team by the runaway score of 8-1 this afternoon.

Weather conditions again hindering, half of the matches were played indoors. The matches were brilliant in calibre and it was only after the greatest difficulty that the Tar Heel players were able to down their Eli opponents.

Harris Over Stevens

Harvey Harris scored his fifth consecutive win over Stevens when he stopped the Yale star in the opening encounter. This match sent the Carolina net team into a lead which they never relinquished.

Eddy De Gray, playing fifth singles, was down set point at 15-40 in the final set against Ellis, but staged a sensational rally to win, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

Rain and poor weather have trailed the Carolina team continuously on this northern tour. The Rutgers match has already been rained out. Today the netters continue against the Army

EX-GOB ACCLAIMS NAVY TRACKSTERS AS STRONG SQUAD

Bill Cox, Former Middie Hurdler, Predicts Trouble for Carolina This Saturday.

VARSITY OPENS PRACTICE

After Monday's forced lay-off the Carolina varsity track team settled down to a tough series of drills yesterday afternoon in preparation for its important clash with Navy at Annapolis this Saturday.

During the session Coach Dale Ranson had as an unexpected guest Bill Cox, former Navy hurdler, who competed against the Tar Heels four years ago, when the two teams clashed in their first dual meet. The Middies lost out then by a 65-61 count.

Cox stated that this year's Navy team is a well-balanced squad, and from his discourse one can be readily assured that the Southern Conference champs are going to be in for an afternoon's work. He also had considerable praise for Patterson, who is star performer in both the hurdles and broad jumps.

Besides Patterson, the Midshipmen have many other fine men. In the javelin throw is Bakutis, who won the event against Virginia on Saturday with a toss of 200 feet 4½ inches but if Armfield keeps up his good work, the latter will enjoy some good competition.

Carolina's usual strength in the mile event will be contested quite seriously as Navy will probably use Shetenhelm, who ran 4:29.5 against Virginia. Worthy of note is the fact that Navy has three high jumpers who tied at 5 feet 9 inches for the victory last week-end.

Norm Quarles Favored To Whip Steve Smith In Durham Brawl

Despite the fact that Steve Smith, Bridgeport, Conn., scrapper, already holds a decision over him, Norment Quarles will enter the ring tomorrow night at the Banner warehouse, Durham, an odds-on favorite to reverse this previous decision.

Quarles, former Southern Conference champ at Carolina, must erase this black mark from his record in order to clear his slate. Smith is the only man to whip him decisively. Ed 'Stumpy' Jacobs beat him last year, but Quarles came back to hand Jacobs one of the few lacings of his career.

Quarles Improved

Many followers of the "Blond Terror" have been clamoring for this return meeting, arguing that Quarles was too "green" for fast professional competition when they met last summer. This bout was the professional debut for the "Hendersonville Flash," and marked his first bout over the longer route. Quarles now has a year's experience and should prove his mettle tomorrow night.

The supporting card is an excellent one, especially attractive to Chapel Hill fans. Billy McCauley, local high school lad, will mix with Eddie Neamon, North Carolina amateur lightweight champ, in one of the prelims. These two boys met in the recent amateur tourney in Raleigh where Neamon was awarded an unpopular verdict over McCauley.

Add Warren, former Carolina boxing star and present Duke ring mentor, has billed one of his usual fine programs, which should prove satisfactory both from the point of view of the spectators and the participants.

Debate

Lansdale and Ivey to watch out, I'm a lone coffee cup without a handle and tonight is my night to drip."

Student interest in the cataclysm was demonstrated as crowds buzzed about Debating Coach Olsen's stirring placards on Franklin street and about the campus. Hopes were voiced that the debate will not be an anti-climax to the posters.

Especially honored will be the debaters' annual family party following the debate, a night lunch at 10 p. m. in the Carolina Inn, by the presence of co-ed chaperones of the contest.

Dr. Archibald Henderson will lead the battery of dinner speakers. Sundry original and "conjectural" divertissments, some of which may materialize, promise rare sport for the party.

Serving as ushers at the debate and as chaperones at the dinner will be Martha Croom, Jane Forgrave, Playmaker Patsy McMullan, President Bobbie Moore of Spencer, President Jane Ross of the Woman's association, and Doris Weaver.

SIX STATE GAMES ON BUSY PROGRAM FOR VARSITY NINE

Four Games Scheduled with Blue Devils on Bill Opening Tomorrow with State.

HITTING POWER SOUGHT

Carolina's in-and-out ball club has just a little over a week to pull itself higher in the Big Five and Southern Conference races. The Tar Heels are scheduled to play one tilt apiece with Wake Forest and State and four with Duke, all within the next two weeks.

Resting peacefully in third place, Carolina can hardly hope to reach the top in either race but will still have an opportunity to climb a notch and get some victories over the leading Duke club.

Hitting Lacking

Although the pitching staff was thought to be weak at the beginning of the season, it was not this department which fell down for the Tar Heels. In the majority of the contests the hurlers lost because of poor fielding and lack of hitting.

The defense in recent games has been as good as any in the state but the men that hit hard on last year's title club have failed to come through.

Coach Bunn Hearn believes that if he can get his big batters to hit as heavily as they once did, Carolina will take the Deacons, the Wolfpack, and the majority of the contests with the Blue Devils.

The nine journeys to Raleigh tomorrow for its last game with State. In the three tilts already played between the two clubs the Wolfpack has two verdicts.

WOMAN'S COLLEGE DEAN TALKS TO LIBRARY CLASS

Dr. Geneva Drinkwater, dean of women at the Woman's College, spoke yesterday to Mr. Downs' class on the history of books and libraries, on "Early Printing at Subiaco," a town located in the mountains, south of Rome.

The speaker was especially fitted to talk on this subject as she spent a great deal of time examining the books kept in the monastery at Subiaco to determine their origin and their relationship with other early writings.

Dr. Drinkwater's talk was of a scholarly nature, but she enlivened it with many anecdotes which added interest to the subject. For example, she said that the monastery had been built at Subiaco because of the excellent fishing facilities in the surrounding country.

"Abroad's all right with me, Jim ... But see you go on a German Ship"

What the Governor means is that crossing on a German Liner gives an opportunity for first-hand observation on what he terms "combining the Science of Navigation with the Art of Fine Living."

SOMETHING like orchestral playing is this running of ships across the ocean—a special aptitude for ensemble work required of all members . . . You find it on German Ships: Every steward, seaman, officer born to a part, trained by years in working in unison. Ships and equipment as fine as can be made, kept in perfect order. And a tradition that has its hand on every shoulder, day and night.

Everything that Science really knows about making cigarettes is used in making CHESTERFIELDS

LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

The cigarette industry could never have been what it is except for these modern cigarette machines . . .

They make good cigarettes and smokers know each individual cigarette receives the most careful inspection.

You'd hardly believe such attention to detail possible unless you could see it with your own eyes.

When the Chesterfield tobacco comes to the cigarette making machines it has been blended and cross-blended.

Then it is cut into long even shreds just the right size to smoke right and burn right.

Every Chesterfield Cigarette has to be perfectly made to get by our inspectors.

Until you open the package yourself the cigarettes are scarcely touched by human hands.

Mild ripe tobaccos, skilled workers and the most modern up-to-date machinery all help to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

TONGUE TIED The Mangum Medal in Oratory was established way back in 1878 and is awarded to that member of the senior class who shall deliver the best oration in commencement.

Among prominent winners of this coveted award are the late Edward K. Graham, the late E. A. Allen, Chief Justice Stacy, and Judge J. J. Parker. With such a traditional history the medal must still retain some value.

But since the announcement of this year's contest almost a month ago, only one or two seniors saw fit to become candidates. In other words, the Mangum Medal has lost its lure, or else the students their tongues. But even the Di and Phi make noises.

As Prof. George McKie says, if the contest is out-of-date, let's abandon it; if not, let's make a good job of it during commencement. We are not a whispering body but one which can talk. Somebody may have our money but we've still got our tongue.

SPORT AND THE DEVILS We have at hand the following squib from Duke's Chronicle:

"A Duke freshman, who is not noted for a belligerent attitude, was accosted Saturday night by George Barclay, U. N. C.'s all-American guard. Barclay, who was slightly under the weather, asked "Do you wanna fight?"

"Well, I hadn't thought about it, but now that you ask . . ." and with a cleverly executed right cross, he kayoed the all-American. Barclay's irate friends were not to be stopped, unfortunately, until they had demolished a sizeable chair over our freshman's head. The police were a bit griped about the situation—mainly because they had been gunning for Barclay for weeks, unsuccessfully. With due importance given the possibility for the story's metamorphosis in transit from Chapel Hill, it still doesn't look as if much love were lost between the two aforesaid universities. Take care of that bruised hand, freshman."

We know nothing of the incident or its Durham metamorphosis. All we can say is that this is a fine way to effect Duke-Carolina co-operation. And we're still fools enough up here in the office to believe that this friendliness should be fostered and can be realized. That is, if our all-Americans will keep their energy to the fields of sports and their bad manners to themselves.

WE MAY BE WRONG People have asked us why we don't sail into the Carolina Playmakers while we're crusading this spring.

Our answer is that if somebody will show us constructively anything wrong with the Playmakers, we'll scorch them as we intend to scorch other inefficient or useless undergraduate organizations.

Ivey Is Shamed But Wins Debate Over Seven Wits

Pressmen Say Ex-Buccaneer Editor Wins for "Proving" University Influence Baneful.

RELATES PITIFUL TALE

Blushing with shame, Pete Ivey cited himself, his opponents and the audience as exhibits illustrative of the baneful effects of University education to win a seven-sided match of wits in Gerrard hall last night.

Dissenting from the formal decision, awarded to the editor of the Tar Baby of 1795 who "wrote all the jokes used during the debate," a concensus of the battery of pressmen present named Ivey victor.

Simple, Innocent

Spinning a simple tale of his coming, an innocent Rocky Mount lad, to the University and tracing his descent from pitfall to pitfall, Ivey treated the assemblage to exhibitions of shadow boxing, football playing, Mother Goose rhymes and original poetry.

Three other announced debaters, the master of ceremonies and two volunteer performers staged a three-ring circus which broke all records for debate attendance and packed Gerrard hall. Relating their tirades in some measure to the topic at hand, the contestants dissolved all ties of allegiance and charged both sides of the platform without discrimination.

Confessed Editor Lansdale of the renovated Buccaneer, allegedly upholding the affirmative of the query against colleges, "This is the first debate I've ever been to." Replying to the oppo-

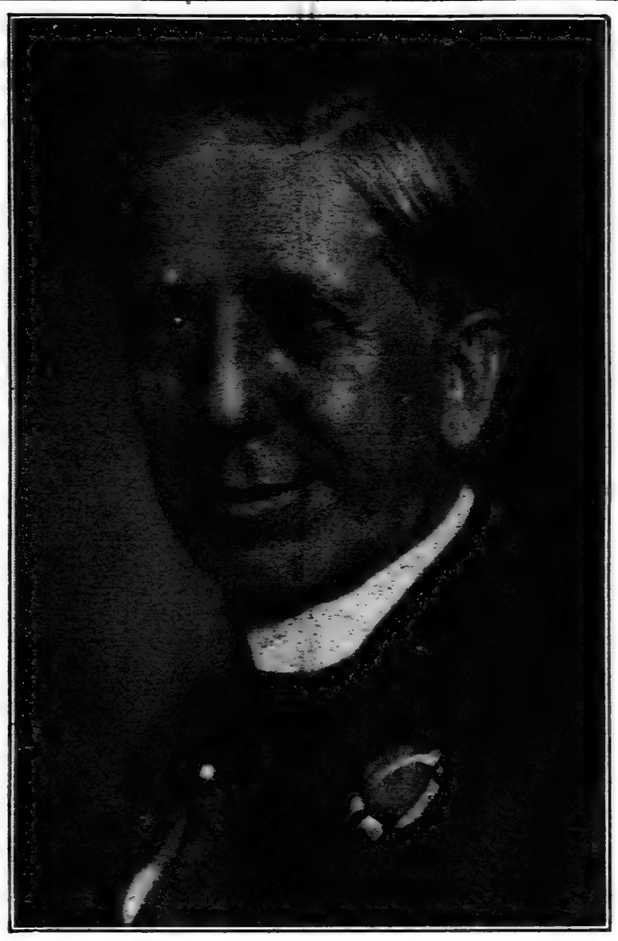
FACULTY, SENIORS TO BATTLE TODAY

Hobbs, Ex-Guilford Star, May Assist Faculty in Second Classic with Seniors.

After a day full of privileged entertainment, ending with a free show granted by E. Carrington Smith, the seniors will continue their program today with the faculty-senior baseball game in the afternoon and the Golden Fleece tapping in Memorial hall at 8:30 tonight.

Jack Pool promises that he will be out for the senior-faculty baseball game if his foot gets well in time. The remaining line-up on both sides will be practically the same as that during the rain-called game Monday. Fred Dashiell, psychology athlete, ex-Guilford baseball star Hobbs and brother, and J. Penrose Harland will probably be at bat for the faculty.



Superlative Seniors

Best politician Albert Ellis, most popular by Simmons Patterson, and handsomest boy Charlie Shaffer will be among those pulling for the class of '35.

Clyde Hoey, certain Democratic candidate for governor, will be the principal speaker at the Golden Fleece tappings tonight. Frank Abernethy, Jason of the present group, will be in charge, as the hooded tappers pounce on prospective neophites.

The week's program will be concluded on Friday and Saturday with the Junior-Senior dances, ending with the Senior cotillion.

SPEAKER AT FLEECE TAPPING

The Hon. Clyde Hoey, successful lawyer and former Cleveland Star editor, who will deliver the principal address at the Golden Fleece tapping tonight. Mr. Hoey is regarded by many as a sure choice for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Chain-Letter Craze Gains Foothold Here

Everybody Wins, Nobody Loses —Much; Many on Bandwagon.

A new bug has bitten the undergraduates of the University —the chain-letter, or get-rich-on-a-dime plan.

The idea behind the plan is this: A letter is received from a friend which states that the receiver, by sending a copy of the letter to five friends, and sending a dime to a person whose name tops a list of six in the letter received, and by putting your name at the bottom of the list and leaving off the top name on the list that you send out—by this simple plan you may receive as much as $1,625.50.

It Works

As strange as the idea may seem, if carried out to the letter it will work. It is simply a progression.

At the rate the letters have been going around, the peak will soon be reached, of course, as the progression quickly works up into the thousands.

The plan had its origin in Denver, Colorado, and it has spread all over the United States. To do away with the sneerers it may be said that one boy on the Carolina campus received twenty dollars in one day. One fraternity house sent out fifty letters in one day.

Although the plan can not hold up long, those in it at the beginning are sure to make some money on it.

Freshman Council

The freshman honor council will conclude this year's business Wednesday night in a meeting when a committee will be appointed to work with officers of the 1935 first-year class in forming a freshman honor council in that body.

All members are requested to be present, as the meeting is very important.

RAPP TO FEATURE JUNIOR-SENIOR SET DURING WEEK-END

Orchestra Leader Will Add Novelties and Vocal Specialties To Routine Program.

BROADWAYETTE IS SINGER

Barney Rapp and his New Englanders will arrive here early tomorrow to open the annual series of Junior-Senior dances with the first tea dance in the Tin Can from 4:30 to 6:30 tomorrow afternoon.

The set will continue tomorrow night with the Junior Prom from 10 to 1, the second tea dance Saturday afternoon from 4:30 to 6:30, and will end Saturday night with the Senior Ball from 9 to 12.

Headliner

Rapp and his orchestra have been headlined for the past 10 years on the leading vaudeville and hotel circuits of the country and has been featured on the air over the major networks during the past eight years,

To the regular routine of dance music Rapp adds a number of those orchestral novelties and vocal specialties which has made the band a favorite with theatre and radio audiences. Among the added attractions will be vocal numbers by Miss Ruby Wright, formerly featured in the Broadway show, "Music in the Air," and a program of harmony numbers by the orchestra's trio, "The New Haveners."

Rapp and his band have made a successful tour of the country's outstanding dining and dancing spots. Among the most notable of these engagements has been his series of repeat performances at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City, aggregating 41 weeks in all.

Other important spots which have featured Rapp and his musicians at various times include the Netherland-Plaza hotel and

Evans Under Knife

Bill Evans, type-setter par excellence and member of the faithful four that actually make the Daily Tar Heel, was rushed to Watts hospital in Durham last night for an emergency appendicitis operation.

Also transferred to Watts hospital with Evans last night was T. F. Gregory, who was also ill with appendicitis.

As the campus daily went to press, Evans' condition was described as serious, but not critical. Members of the Daily Tar Heel staff joined in wishing for him a speedy recovery.

FACULTY CONSIDER CLASS PLAN TODAY

Departmental Heads Have Already Expressed Their Opinion of Tar Heel Plan.

The general faculty will consider the DAILY TAR HEEL class-extension plan, among other things, this afternoon in Bingham hall at 4 o'clock.

The plan will be submitted by Dean A. W. Hobbs, chairman of the faculty, who will preside at the meeting. It was submitted to Dean Hobbs by this newspaper.

No Action Expected

It is doubtful whether faculty action will immediately result from the presentation of the plans. In any event, it will be a matter of considerable time before any definite arrangements can be made.

All departmental heads have been advised of the proposed idea and many of them have answered newspaper letters, suggesting certain changes and expressing various opinions.

The Plan

The class-extension plan is, simply stated, as follows:

Faculty members will submit to departmental heads a list of lectures or programs which will be presented in their classes during the week. The departmental heads arrange the lists and submit them to the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Every morning bulletins announcing the various lectures and times will be run. All students having free periods at the time of certain lectures which they would like to attend are invited to do so.

The burden of discrimination in drawing up the weekly lists rests upon the departmental heads. All the DAILY TAR HEEL has to do in the system is to collect and publish the lists as submitted.

Carroll Gives Advice

Dean Carroll spoke yesterday to the freshmen of the school of commerce on methods of making up back work. He urged them to come to the summer session in June or to take courses by correspondence before they get too far behind.

U. N. C. Scores

Professors R. H. Wettach of the law school, R. J. M. Hobbs of the school of commerce, and Mr. P. L. Burch of the University buildings department were elected aldermen of Chapel Hill Tuesday.

Principal Speaker Hoey May Be Next Governor

Campus Seems Sure That Certain Men Will Feel Tap at Ceremony Tonight.

10 OR 12 TO BE SELECTED

Conferring what is considered one of the highest honors a Carolina student can receive, the Golden Fleece will at 8:30 tonight, tap 10 or 12 outstanding campus leaders.

The speaker of the evening is Clyde Hoey, probable gubernatorial candidate. Coincident is the fact that the speaker at last year's tapping, Lieutenant Governor A. H. Graham, is also said to have his hat in the ring.

Rumors

Rumor was rife on the campus yesterday as to what men will be picked. Since character and achievement are regarded as prime requisites for membership in the order, certain campus leaders are generally regarded as sure choices.

The Golden Fleece was established here in 1902 and is the second oldest organization of its kind in the United States. Philosopher Henry Horace Williams is regarded as the founder of the organization, which was fashioned after the Skull and Bones Society at Yale.

Impressive Ritual

The ritual of tapping tonight will consist of members of the order, as the lights are dimmed, slowly moving up and down the aisles at intervals pouncing upon new men for selection.

Clyde Hoey, the speaker for tonight, is one of the most successful lawyers of the state. He is a University alumnus, for 14 years has served as a member of the state legislature and as a representative to Congress. He was for a number of years a member of the state Democratic executive committee.

His name has been closely associated with the dry cause in North Carolina, and when the 21st amendment was recently repudiated in this state he was conceded one of the most important political figures in the Old North State.

Members of the Fleece, tapped last year, who are now on the campus are: Frank Abernethy, Jason of the order; Ag-

HANDBOOK EDITOR SELECTED TODAY

Martin, McKee, Daniels, Burgin Apply for Position.

The editor of the Carolina Freshman Handbook will be appointed today, according to Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The four students who have made application for the editorship will be interviewed at chapel period in the office of J. M. Saunders, at which time the appointment will be announced. Those applying are Drew Martin, Don McKee, Jim Daniels, and Ralph Burgin.

The committee on appointments, which is appointed from the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., is composed of, in addition to Saunders, Dr. W. L. Mackie and Dr. C. P. Spruill.

The greater part of the work on the Handbook, which is issued to all incoming freshmen, is done before commencement.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, KAHN; NIGHT, RABB

LET'S DANCE

There was considerable discussion yesterday afternoon as members of fraternities and dormitories got together to discuss the dance week-end problem.

To make moralists out of ourselves and to preach is not our object; we simply believe that students at Carolina should have enough respect for themselves and the University not to make fools out of themselves when dances come around. Last week-end was noisy but what week-end isn't, especially with dances on the Hill? So our saying "making fools of themselves" does not mean making vocal celebrities of themselves but becoming so disorderly as to draw the wrath and disdain of visitors on the University's head.

We believe that no sort of administrative regulation is necessary to control student exuberance on week-ends. We also believe that no editorial attack is necessary. Students have enough sense to realize that corn whiskey will sneak up on them and make them tear down highway signs, so it is their responsibility to control the sneaking, as it were.

There will always be, as was brought out yesterday, a certain element which gets out of control. And there will also always be a certain group of spectators which will holler at the slightest provocation about students "going to h— and the d—." To the first element, no concession should be granted except in the form of setting an example which will curb their effervescence. To the latter element is due the consideration of a gentleman to his courteous society: an exhibition of manners which will prove better than apologies that students have enough self-respect and good manners to act decently if they want to.

It boils down to the question of wanting to act decently. Most of us do; those of us who don't can be set aright not by catching it in the neck about their actions, but by being made to want to maintain high standards of conduct. That is our job.

SPEAK FOR YOURSELF

Students have asked us how the dormitory men should take it upon themselves to work toward amelioration of dormitory conditions and the development of a workable dormitory government.

Of course, we're not in a position to tell anybody on the campus how to do anything. The entire dormitory problem as we have printed it was gathered by a group of students interested in the problem, gathered to present the facts as nearly complete as possible so that the dormitoryites would have an opportunity to see a crystallized report of what they have before them.

Naturally, much of what is to be done must be done by the administration and at present they are making great efforts to improve the dormitory system, although they are considerably hampered by low finances and lots to do with what they have.

Here are a few channels for student initiative, however:

Inaugurate through the Inter-dormitory Council a workable system of dormitory government which will enforce study hours, encourage lending libraries, allow for group participation in athletics, scholarship, and extra-curricular work, and evolve a better system of dormitory inspection and service.

Spread the fight for training councillors, who for the time being can be upperclassmen, and for the dissemination of sex information.

Organize with the definite purpose of trying to effect better living standards on the basis of present conditions.

Make a clamor for general dormitory improvements, so that the Student Advisory Committee and the DAILY TAR HEEL will know whether you really want what we think you do.

Now YOU'RE Talking

CAPEHART

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The Capehart phonograph, a part of the college music set—a gift to the students of the University!

Without any malice, may we volunteer the suggestion that this part of the gift, so far as the students are concerned, may as well have not been given to us? Of course we realize that the machine is valuable, and, in its operation, delicate. We do not advocate handing it over without restrictions to Tom Jones, Humphrey Clinker, etc., but we sincerely believe that some plan could be worked out whereby responsible students might be able to hear it.

We, the music loving students on the campus, appreciate the use of the records of the set but the machines which are available are below par, placement of par being optional! The Majestic is exceedingly weak and terribly unbalanced and the two General Electric machines have the very bad habit of causing their tones to vibrate through, at their worst, as much as a semitone—aside from this minor fault they are in excellent condition. Should anyone care to verify this statement the test is easily made and is particularly convincing at night.

It isn't idle curiosity that prompts us to ask if the FERA assistants who work in the music department couldn't be trained to operate the machine and give students a chance to hear music at night or in the late afternoon when standard solutions, rheostats, and other things that occupy us during the time that the office of the music department is open, have been put away for the day?

Is there no way by which, still protecting the machine, students can hear music reproduced in a manner that is a revelation?

HE WANTS CONFIDENCE

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Every action its reaction. The same operates with a kick in the pants. In other words never kick our capitalists and industrialists in the pants. The return is much too effective. Such in my opinion has been the experience of our alphabetical administration. The various recovery acts conceived in the mind of our illustrious executive and enacted by our legislature was the kick in the pants, however, the elongation and continuation of inconceivable human suffering and disorganization has been the reaction.

Admitted that our capitalistic system has been the embodiment and personification of legalized racketeering. Admitted that our economic system is fundamentally rotten and unstable. But admit also that the various imported isms have suggested no means of salvation; have created no Utopian state. We are still operating under a capitalistic regime, and the sooner such a realization is driven through and into the stupid skulls of idealistic, impractical and crack-brained individuals the better. The co-operation of this so-called system can only be obtained when we have as a whole decided to play ball their way. We may field a few flies, but the rest are way over the fence. Conceive, realize if possible, the tremendous resources and finances in existence in this country alone. A veritable flood of available funds held back only by the flood gate of anger, revenge and resentment against stupid government meddling. The key to such? . . . merely confidence. Co-operation, if you like.

Realize even more the tremendous demand on the part of the public for the various necessities of life that has been set up in the past three years. The public is without money. Has been. A dollar earned will necessarily be a dollar spent immediately. And that God Almighty Dollar can only be obtained when our industrial wheels have been set in motion. Imbue enough confidence into this capitalistic regime of ours to set up such a motion. Stop throwing nails into the clutch housing of our industrial wheels and hollering Hell! Hoping against hope that something will start moving. With our present wrangling and groping, our pitifully futile attempt, it never will. Perhaps such industries will run at a loss, but a nation-wide program of work, backed by the tremendous resources, financial and otherwise, of our industrialists, will result in a turnover, a reaction to a dollar earned, so great, that such a temporary loss will soon appear infinitesimal.

Less wringing of hands and less consideration of untried, unproven theories while our financial hole becomes a bottomless morass, and the grim spectre of physical starvation becomes a reality. More realization that there is little hope of the cycle of prosperity turning our way of its own accord. It never will. It needs a push. And if the capitalist and the industrialist are to be the pushers . . . so be it! More realization that there is a demand, and only the lack of finances to satisfy this demand. To hell with our former principles and convictions! If selling out means the return of economic security and the termination of chaos, and if selling out means playing ball with the holder of the purse strings, let's sell out! We're licked and we know it. It is sound economics to merge when bankrupt, and if this isn't the time to merge, then another year of chaos, disorganization and disintergration should make it more than obvious.

L. A. YANKE.

STUDENT FUNDS

To the Editor,
The DAILY TAR HEEL:

From an editorial in the DAILY TAR HEEL of May 5, "We have been unable to find out who is on this board (the Student Audit Board) this year, whether it has met or not, and how things are running on the pecuniary side of the campus."

The office of the Student Activities Fund is approximately 25 feet from the DAILY TAR HEEL office, and would seem to be the logical place for such information. We have been, are, and will be glad at any time to answer all of the above questions, which unfortunately were not asked before this editorial was written.

The editorial further implies that this board has control over student finances, and that the board, or its student members are not exercising this control. This board, as shown by the ballot used in setting it up, has the duty of auditing and reporting on the finances of each student organization collecting student fees through the University. It has no control over these finances. Student control is exercised by the members of each organization, which each year adopt a budget which is presented to the board. So long as an expenditure is covered by this budget, the auditor has no right to refuse to pass it, assuming of course, that it is proprerly signed and is not irregular.

The student audit board passes on charges to be made to the various organizations, hires the bookkeepers and auditor, indicates the general policies and methods of auditing, and receives and publishes reports on the various organizations. Necessarily the actual detailed auditing is left to the auditor.

ROBERT H. SHERRILL,
Student Activities Fund Auditor

In making these tests, 6336 meaningless syllables are spoken — while observers record what they hear. Comparison of sounds actually spoken with those heard, shows how well the new apparatus reproduces the many sounds of which speech is composed.

Such thoroughness is typical of Bell System methods. Years of inventing, improving and testing have led to the apparatus which transmits your words so clearly.

Freshmen Defeat Duke 8-3; Humphries Stars In Box

Ace Tar Baby Twirler Sends Sixteen Blue Imps Down Via Strikeout Route.

Striking out 16 men and allowing only six hits, Johnny Humphries led the freshman ball club to an 8-3 win over the Duke first-year team here yesterday.

The Tar Babies jumped into a lead in the very first inning and were never overtaken. Bunny Burnette and Steve Collins shared the batting spotlight with homers in the second and eighth innings, respectively.

Collins followed the example of all good lead-off men as he got a pass on his initial trip to the plate. Craver and Burnette reached first on successive errors, and Pete Boone started things going with a single to right field, which sent his mates across and the victors into a 3-0 lead.

Collins and Burnette again crossed the plate, following Burnette's circuit clout in the Carolina half of the second. The home team again filled the bases with but a single out in the sixth, but managed to only tally once. Grubb counted in the seventh following a double, and Collin's homer in the eight completed the winner's scoring.

The Imps first dented the scoring column in the fourth inning when Wagner drove to left field for two bases, and scored on Walker's single. This was the only earned run Humphries gave up during the nine-inning stretch.

A two-run rally in the eighth inning ended Duke's scoring for the afternoon.

QUARLES-SMITH GO FEATURES DURHAM PROGRAM TONIGHT

Ex-Carolina Champion Will Attempt to Settle Score in Banner Warehouse Battle.

BOUTS COMMENCE AT 8:30

Tapering off his extensive training seige with a light workout yesterday, Norment Quarles appeared to be in excellent condition for his return bout with Steve Smith tonight in the Banner Warehouse, Durham.

After watching Quarles finish his work, the writer journeyed to Durham to get a glimpse of the Bridgeport Bomber in action. Smith worked two fast rounds against Tommy O'Flaherty, and two more with Red Lewis, who will see action in the semi-final.

CAROLINA-W. & L. MEET ON LINKS

Former S. I. C. Champs to Face Tar Heels Today in Season Final At Greensboro.

The Carolina varsity golf team will meet Washington and Lee this afternoon over the Sedgefield course at Greensboro in its final dual meet of the season.

The Generals are the defending Southern Conference champions and have experienced a fine season thus far.

Leading the play against the Lexington outfit will be Captain Erwin Laxton, individual conference champ in 1932. Dick Harris will be the choice for number two position.

Wilson Coffin, newly crowned state intercollegiate title holder, will fill the number three post, while fourth place will find Walter Pijanowski, S. I. C. finalist, fulfilling the assignment.

Late Bulletin

Duke's freshman golfers made it two straight over the Tar Heel frosh yesterday afternoon at the Hope Valley course, winning by a 16-2 score. Gordon Gifford, playing number four, was the only Carolina man to win.

VARSITY TO PLAY WOLFPACK TODAY

Carolina's varsity baseball team will end its annual four-game series with State College at Raleigh this afternoon. In three meetings State has taken two to Carolina's one.

The opposing moundsmen will probably be Stuart Flythe for the Wolfpack, and either Irby Wright or Fred Crouch for the Tar Heels.

The Carolina team will be without the services of Captain Thurman Vick, and his post at centerfield will no doubt be filled by Cicero Groome, southpaw, from Greensboro.

Minor Returns

Bill Minor, varsity tennis star, is back in school after winning the only singles match against Princeton. Due to work in the law school, Bill was unable to continue the northern trip.

CAROLINA BEATS WEST POINT, 6-3; MATCHES CLOSE

Army Team Sends Real Scare Into Tar Heel Ranks; Take Two Singles, One Doubles.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

West Point, N. Y., May 8.—University of North Carolina's crack contingent, on its annual eastern tour, today downed the U. S. Military Academy tennis club, 6-3.

Although the southerners walked off with top honors in the final scoring, the Cadets gave Carolina a scare in capturing the number one and two singles and then leading after the first sets were run off in the doubles matches.

Harvey Harris, cotton haired key man for the Carolinians, had Daly, Cadet ace, 4-1, in the final set to lose ultimately, 6-4.

The matches were well attended by an enthusiastic gallery. The courts were fast, and the weather was ideal.

SUMMARY

Singles: Daly (A) over Harris, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; Tyler (A) over Willis, 6-3, 6-3; Levitan (NC) over Waters, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4; De Gray (NC) over Worthington, 6-4, 8-6; Shore (NC) over Bell, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1; Henderson (NC) over Chenoweth, 8-6, 7-5.

GENE SARAZEN, championship golfer, who has smoked Camels for years

The mild cigarette the athletes smoke is the mild cigarette for YOU!

A cigarette so mild you can smoke all you want—that's what athletes say about Camels. And when a champion talks about "condition"—"wind"—healthy nerves—real tobacco mildness—he's got to know.

Gene Sarazen says: "Playing as much as I do—I have to keep in condition. I smoke Camels steadily. They are so mild they never get my 'wind'—never upset my nerves."

Other athletes back him up...."I smoke all the Camels I want, and keep in top condition," says Mel Ott, slugger of the New York Giants.... Georgia Coleman, Olympic diver, says: "Camels don't cut down on my 'wind.'"... Bill Miller, oarsman; Jim Lancaster, N. Y. U.'s 1934 basketball captain; John Skillman, pro squash racquets champion—hundreds of sports stars smoke Camels regularly and report that Camels never get their "wind" or nerves.

What this mildness means to you!... It means you can smoke Camels all you want! Athletes have made this discovery: Camel's costlier tobaccos are so mild, they can smoke all they please, without disturbing their "wind" or nerves.

CONDITION IS IMPORTANT TO YOU TOO—on vacation, in college, at home. You can keep "in condition," yet smoke all you please. Athletes say: "Camels never get your wind."

SO MILD
YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

Fuller's Band Will Play At Summer Dances

Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra will furnish the music for all summer school dances, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The contract was issued jointly to Maestro Jimmy Fuller and Fred Koch, who will act as business manager for the organization. The orchestra, which will contain not less than 10 pieces, will play for both terms of summer school.

During the summer dances are given on every Friday and Saturday nights and on other special occasions.

The organization has also recorded for Victor.

The orchestra numbers 15 members, including Miss Wright and Rapp, the leader. It consists of three violins, three saxophones, two trumpets, trombone, bass violin, drums, guitar and piano.

The dance leaders for the Junior Prom tomorrow night will be Ernie Eustler, Harry Montgomery, Johnny Bost, Claude Rankin, Bob Page, Charlie Edwards, and Frank Rogers.

The leaders for the Senior Ball Saturday night will be Jack Pool, Malcolm Bell, Frank Abernethy, Colin Stokes, Scott Blanton, John Hoggard, and Luther Cromartie.

'35 SUPERLATIVES ELECTED TUESDAY

Ralph Gardner Elected President Of Alumni; Officers Through 1940 Are Selected.

At their class smoker in Swain hall Tuesday night, 200 members of the senior class elected their class superlatives, best this, and most that, with much hesitation. Launching on a new five-year plan, the class also elected alumni officers with Ralph Gardner as president, to hold office through 1940.

The class superlatives are as follows: Best looking co-ed, Speas Coppedge; most popular co-ed, Peggy Woodard; handsomest boy, Charlie Shaffer most popular boy, Simmons Patterson; best all-round boy, Ralph Gardner; best athlete, Harry Williamson; best dressed boy, Frank Kenan; best executive, Jack Pool.

"Damdest Machine"

Damndest machine, L. M. Cromartie; most original, Carl Thompson; most studious, Thomas Simkins; best writer, Joe Sugarman; biggest bull-shooter, J. D. Winslow; best speaker, Kenneth Young, and best politician, Albert Ellis.

Proceeding with plans for a permanent class organization, a vice-president of the alumni was elected from each school in the University. Gardner, and all but two of the following officers, were elected without opposition, the two being Sherwood Barefoot over Pat Gaskins from the school of Applied Science and Walter King over Erwin Laxton of the school of engineering, both for vice-president.

The remaining officers are: Secretary, Albert Ellis; vice-presidents: liberal arts, Agnew Bahnson; education, Sim Efland, commerce, John Wiggins, and pharmacy, Dick Bunn.

With Jack Pool, hard-working class and student body president, presiding, Charlie Poe, class testator, read the last will and testament of the class. This epistle included such epigrams as "we will fight our way to the heads of corporations or to the head of breadlines," and "Jim Tatum wills his place on the all-American Beauty team to Jim Hutchins."

Spike Saunders, in introducing Judge R. H. Sykes as the speaker of the evening, commented on the senior regalia in stating that the "blue shirts do not represent another fascist organization but are to let the proffs know that those wearing them expect to graduate."

Judge Sykes, University alumnus and Durham lawyer, emphasized the need of loyalty to the University, charging the seniors that "although you have been supported by the University for four years, it will be your turn after graduation to be the support up against which the University must lean."

The class prophecy, prepared by Carl Thompson of Southern Pines, was presented in the form of a newspaper, "The Class of 1935 Sun," issue of May 7, 1965.

Befuddled Australian Baffles Alumni Review

"Alumni" and "aluminum" may have certain letters in common, but even oldest inhabitants here are unaware of any general connection in the definition of the two words. Evidently in faraway Australia there is such confusion of terms.

"The Alumni Review" yesterday received a request from a publishers' agent in Sydney, Australia, asking for exclusive rights in soliciting subscriptions for the magazine of the University Alumni Association.

"I have contacted many would be subscribers for journals on aluminum and am confident I can do business with your publication," read the letter. References as to the agent's standing are cited, including government railways in Australia and various concerns in this country.

The Alumni Office is at a loss in framing a proper response to the Australian request.

Quarles

Smith may truly be termed an "Iron Man." He has been fighting for 10 years and has met the best in his weight. His face, bearing many marks, is good evidence of his many years of ring warfare. Yet, he is a pleasant, cheerful, easy-going man with a love for the squared circle sport.

Smith told the writer that he believes his experience will be too much for his younger opponent. However, he looks for a harder scrap than last summer, but expects to again come out on the winning end.

When asked what he thought of Quarles' possibilities for the future, he smiled and said if Quarles was brought along slowly and followed the directions of a good manager, he would probably go a long way in the fistic game.

Pharmacy Elections

W. J. Smith was elected president of the junior class of the pharmacy school in a recent election. Other officers are: Joe Watson, vice-president, and Horace Kee, secretary-treasurer.

Debate

sition's charge that the state will preserve its institutions by sterilizing the insane, countered Lansdale: "That leaves the University a barren prospect."

Maligned by both sides for his alleged libertine's countenance, Pro-College Pat Gaskins defended the integrity of college students: "Pete is not really bad—he just thinks he is."

Waving signs from the Kenan stadium woods and testing the opponents' virtue with a half-full pint bottle, Research Authority Winthrop Durfee braced his points with alleged quotations from Assyrian and Egyptian classics in the original. Painting Ivey and Lansdale with the pastel shades of innocence, he dared them to refute him.

Not advertised was Defender of the Public Morals Joe Barnett, who interrupted Ivey in the midst of a five-foot manuscript to protest Durfee's swilling glasses of water on the platform.

Master of Ceremonies Don Seawell, to allay any fears concerning the state's sterilizing of insane activities, commented that Durfee comes from out of the state.

Following the illustrated, irrigated, free-for-all, which starred recitations and pantomimes, the contestants adjourned to the annual debaters' conclave, a night lunch at the Carolina Inn.

Junior-Seniors

In a write-up concerning the Junior-Senior dance bids, it was announced that a limited number of bids would be sold to seniors in the professional schools for $4 the set and $1.50 per afternoon dance and $2 per night dance.

We wish to correct this statement to the effect that all seniors who are in professional schools may secure their dance bids by paying the class fee for the winter quarter.

TICKETS RESERVED The junior-senior boys aren't selling extra bids to their functions this week-end, thereby depriving many underclassmen of the opportunity of helping to jam more completely the spacious capacity of the Tin Can.

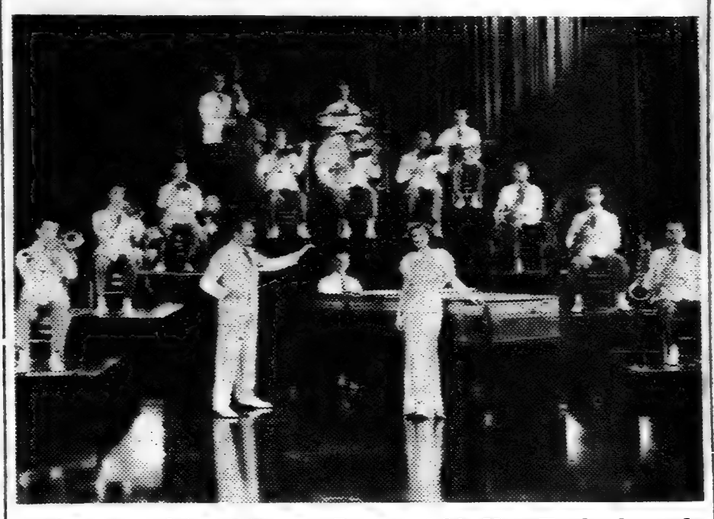
President Pool and President Eutsler and all the rest are using their heads. Why junior-senior committees ever submitted to pressure and sold their bids other than to members of the two classes is rather puzzling. Heaven knows the Tin Can cracks its hoary old ribs enough without a few extra kidney punches from visitors.

If in the past it has been finances which has caused the additional selling, then these classes stand for censure in that they couldn't make their budgets stand the strain. An economically-priced orchestra and fewer broken backs and crushed souls are far more to be desired than Harry Hotstuff's Collegians at 2000 bucks and a mortality list to boot.

TAR HEELS ON JOBS Even the New Deal with its many employment opportunities is not alleviating the problem of what to do after the four-year residence at Chapel Hill.

We understand that the Tar Heel quota in Washington has long been filled, so that enterprising ex-Carolina University men can't rely any longer on the Rooseveltian pork barrel for their bread-and-butter after college.

On the other hand, there has been an increase of applications for graduate employment by private concerns. Maybe it is the result of a Farley-New Deal policy we know nothing about, or else we must be getting into prosperity again.



WE'LL TRY ANYTHING The recent success of Williams College students in boycotting the local Walden theatre for showing Red-Baiter Hearst's Metrotone News shows that collegians have hit upon an effective method of making the influence of their opinions felt.

The Williamstown boys rose up in arms against the Hearstian propaganda, with its troops and guns making noises "for the glory of the empire" and promptly set about through the columns of Editor McConnell's Williams Record to tell the Walden management that Hearst wasn't desired by them.

Finding this means ineffective, they simply banded together and stopped patronizing the theatre. It was only a question of a few days before Walden announced that the Metrotone would shine no more on the local screen. Attendance bounded back to normal.

A similar method might be used here as regards boarding houses. After a careful investigation, we are going to sponsor boycotts of eating places which don't come up to scratch. It ought to work.

Hopes For Class Extension Plan Rise As Faculty Acts Favorably

Professors Vote Group To Report Next Fall

Dr. Wiley, Others Favor Plan Not So Broad as That Advocated by Daily Tar Heel.

NEW APPEAL PROCEDURE

Climaxing a long and heated discussion evidencing intense interest, the faculty in general session yesterday voted to appoint a committee to work out in full a class extension plan, in co-operation with a student committee, to be presented next fall.

According to T. J. Wilson, Jr., secretary of the faculty, a great deal of sincere interest was shown in the plan offered by the DAILY TAR HEEL, much time being consumed with motions galore, which were finally summed up in one conclusive resolution.

Plan Too Broad

General opinion among the professors seemed to be that the plan should not be so extensive as set forth by the DAILY TAR HEEL. Dr. W. L. Wiley, originator of the idea, gave the impression that he had not conceived it to be quite so ambitious as Editor Hammer would have it.

The plan as originally set forth, provided that "every week professors and instructors submit to the department heads a list of lectures which they will give during the week," and "every day a bulletin would be run in the DAILY TAR HEEL announcing the various lectures to be delivered that day."

With Dean Hobbs presiding, the faculty also decided on a new procedure to be followed on a grade appeal from a student. In the future all appeals will be presented to the college dean of the respective student in writing within 30 college days after conference with the professor on the question.

Formerly the appeal was presented to the president of the University, who appointed a committee to decide upon it. Under the new plan the appeal will then be turned over to the administrative board of the school, whose decision will be final.

New Student Forum

A local branch of the Christian Fellowship Movement will be organized at the United church Sunday night at 7 o'clock and will take the place of the student forum which has been operating regularly at that time, it was announced yesterday.

EUTSLER TO LEAD JUNIORS IN FIGURE AT DANCE TONIGHT

Junior-Seniors Open with First Tea Dance in Tin Can at 4:30; Continue Tomorrow.

BARNEY RAPP WILL PLAY

Climaxing a full program of events for Senior Week, the annual set of Junior-Senior dances will start this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Tin Can with the first tea dance, which will last until 6:30. Barney Rapp and his New Englanders will arrive early today to play for the affair.

The series will continue tonight with the Junior Prom from 10 to 1 o'clock. The dance leaders of the junior class, who will present the figure tonight, are: Ernie Eutsler, chief, with Miss Betty Felton of Goldsboro; Harry Montgomery, first assistant, with Miss Betty Fugitt of Atlanta, Ga.; Johnny Bost, second assistant, with Miss Pickette Kendall of Raleigh; Claude Rankin, third assistant, with Miss Ethel Highsmith of Fayetteville.

Bob Page, fourth assistant, with Miss Jacqueline Moore of Richmond, Va.; Charlie Edwards, fifth assistant, with Miss Jerry Bonkemeyer of Greensboro; and Frank Rogers, sixth assistant, with Miss Pattie Pratt of Louisville, Ky.

The second tea dance of the set will be given tomorrow afternoon from 4:30 to 6:30 and the series will end tomorrow night with the Senior Ball, at which time the seniors will present their figure.

Student Accounts

The administration of the University wishes to remind all seniors and other candidates for degrees that before they can receive their diplomas it is necessary that they settle all amounts owed to the University, including accounts with the business office, Swain hall, the library, the laundry, the Book Exchange, Spencer hall, the student loan fund, and also all laboratory fees.

In addition each candidate for a degree is reminded that he must pay $5 diploma fee and must make arrangements with the Book Exchange for the rental of a cap and gown.

DORMITORY GROUP SEEKS TO IMPROVE LIVING CONDITIONS

Council Decides to Take Action On Plan Instigated by Daily Tar Heel.

UNIVERSITY BEHIND MOVE

The newly formed Dormitory Council, composed of the presidents of the individual dormitories, unanimously agreed last night on two points of action: to reduce the noises and disturbances prevalent in their respective dorms, and to take up the agitation, recently started by the DAILY TAR HEEL, for an improvement in the general condition existing in the dormitories.

Dean Bradshaw stated that President Graham and the school officials were showing tremendous interest in the drive for better dormitory conditions which was recently instigated by the DAILY TAR HEEL, and that definite action, in the form of a new budget and survey, was being taken in preparation for the ensuing year.

Said Dean Bradshaw: "The University has decided that the only way to fill the dormitories is by making improvements rather than by compulsion." It was decided that each dormitory should make a complete study of it, finding their greatest needs and then presenting a list of these needs to the school officials, this being in preparation for next year.

Mayne Albright, coming to the rescue of his much derogated pet, Everett dormitory, stated that regardless of what anyone says to the contrary, they have really accomplished something; he was promptly seconded in this remark by Dean Bradshaw who gave proofs in the form of comparisons of grades and the tendency of students to remain in Everett.

WARREN APPOINTS CLUB COMMITTEES

Plans Also Made to Entertain Members of Visiting Athletic Teams.

"We've got a bunch of things in mind to try to start," declared University Club President Julien Warren last night as he appointed five committees to carry out the work of the organization during the spring and coming year.

The club also plans to entertain members of visiting athletic teams during the coming weeks.

Committees named by President Warren are:

Game committee: Bob Gardiner, chairman; Francis Campbell, adviser; John Erickson, Henry Lee McDowell, Hugh Davis, Dick Cox, Hubert Alderman, Byron Abels.

Arrangements committee: Louis Shaffner, chairman; Phil Kind, Jack Clare, Bill Daniel, Robert Williams, James Bruton, Jake Bond.

Publicity committee: Don McKee, chairman; Jack Bower, Bill Cochrane, Laurence Frank, George Allen, Ernest L. McKee.

Alumni and inter-school relations committee: Henry Lewis, chairman; Boylan Carr, Julian Bobbitt, Bill Flynt, Jane Ross, Jim Boone.

Cheerio committee: Lester Ostrow, Bill Priently.

Golden Fleece Taps Hoey And Nine Student Leaders

Junior-Senior Bids

Today will be the last day that juniors and seniors may receive their dance bids.

The bids will be given out in the Y. M. C. A. lobby from 10:30 to 12 o'clock and from 1:30 to 3 o'clock.

McKEE WILL EDIT FROSH HANDBOOK

McKee Appointed from Four Applicants; Will Meet Potential Staff Members Today.

Don K. McKee was appointed editor of the Carolina Freshman Handbook yesterday by a committee from the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A.

McKee, who is a rising junior, was appointed after the committee had interviewed four applicants for the position. The committee on the appointment was composed of J. M. Saunders, alumni secretary, and Drs. E. L. Mackie and C. P. Spruill of the University faculty.

The new Handbook editor is a member of the Student Advisory Committee, an assistant editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and manager of the new DAILY TAR HEEL weekly high school news service. McKee is also vice-president of the Y. M. C. A., member of the University Club, Foreign Policy League, Di Senate, and contributor to the Carolina Magazine. He is well known over the state through his work on the deputation teams sent out by the Y. M. C. A.

The business manager of the publication will be appointed within the next few days. This appointment is made by a committee composed of the editor of the Handbook, the president of the "Y," the treasurer of the board, student treasurer, and general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

All students who are interested in working on the Handbook staff are requested to meet the editor today at 3 o'clock in the Grail room in Graham Memorial.

Freshmen Plan Smoker To Climax Activity

Mullis, President, Appoints Committee to Select Date.

A freshman class smoker will be held sometime next week, according to Pete Mullis, president of the class, who met with the class executive committee last night.

Mullis appointed a committee composed of Warren Haddaway, Bill Seawell, Stuart Leake, Jack Tate, and Drew Martin to draw up plans for the smoker, the definite date of which will be set in the next few days.

"The committee will be working hard," stated Mullins, "toward putting on a successful smoker which will bring the activities of the class to a climax, and we hope that all members of the class will co-operate by being present."

Bond, Chesterfield, Ladies

Professor Richmond P. Bond of the University English department will address the Colton English Club of Meredith College tonight on the subject of "Lord Chesterfield."

World Needs Real Men, Hoey Declares in Talk

Evins, Rand, Poe, Montgomery, Eutsler, McCachren, Taylor, Pool, Hammer Tapped.

TAPPING RITES IMPRESSIVE

Membership into the Order of Golden Fleece, considered the highest honorary organization on the campus, was bestowed last night upon nine student leaders and Clyde Hoey, who delivered the address of the evening.

Men taken into the organization, in the order tapped, are: Clyde Hoey of Shelby; Thomas Moore Evins, Oxford; Hubert H. Rand, Garner; Charles Aycock Poe, Raleigh; Harry N. Montgomery, Tarentum, Pa.; Eugene Ernest Eutsler, Jr., Goldsboro; James Roland McCachren, Charlotte; Herbert Hamilton Taylor, Jr., Tarboro; Rufus Adolphus Pool, Raleigh, and Philip Gibbon Hammer, Wilmington.

Hoey's Address

Preceding the tapping ceremony, Clye Hoey, regarded as a certain candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, delivered an address on the subject, "The Citizen and His Government."

"The supreme need of this hour is a man—a real, downright, upright, all right man," declared Hoey, stressing the fact that no government is better than its citizenship.

A real citizen, Mr. Hoey said, needs: (1) an open mind; (2) to be linked up with the everlasting realities of life; (3) loyalty for ideals; (4) a reverent soul.

"An open mind is a mind willing to accept and investigate new truths," Hoey stated, pointing out that one who closed his eyes to truth was doomed.

Mr. Hoey said the citizen needs to be linked with the realities of life in order "to keep his feet on the ground." One must be able to "give it, take it, and laugh at it," he declared.

"In the reverent spirit we feel we are akin to all around us and linked up with everlasting power," he declared.

Dr. Williams Speaks

Mr. Hoey was introduced by Dr. Henry Horace Williams, who deplored the fact that there is "a shortage of adequate men today." The philosophy professor, one of the founders of the Golden Fleece, also sketched a brief history of the organization.

Dr. Williams was introduced by Frank Abernethy, Jason.

Following the tapping ceremony, old and new Fleece men were entertained at a supper in Graham Memorial.

DR. HUDSON WILL PRESIDE OVER PHILOLOGICAL CLUB

Dr. A. P. Hudson of the University English department was elected president of the Philological Club at a meeting held last Tuesday night in the lounge of the Graduate Club.

Other officers elected were: Professor John E. Carroll of the French department, secretary, and Professor George Horner of the English department, treasurer.

Dr. W. M. Dey read a paper to the club on "Pessimism and Optimism of Alfred de Vigny."

SEX EDUCATION

The National Inter-fraternity Conference is not dead.

It is too bad that the individual chapters of the various national fraternities do not make use of the facilities which the conference offers. This inter-fraternity group does not appeal to the emotions with pretty references to everlasting brotherhood in their justification of the American fraternity system.

On the contrary, it does things—definite things—for the advancement of fraternities, for the justification of their appearance on the American college scene, and for the stimulation, through well-organized educational plans, of academic-fraternity interdependence.

Of the many pamphlets which the conference publishes, one of the most important is that on social hygiene. At the present time, the organization is revising the material on this subject. In the fall, the new publication will be ready for distribution to the various members of the conference.

Here, in a sane, wholesome manner is presented information on one of the most important situations facing the college man. In the survey recently completed by the DAILY TAR HEEL, a question on sex education was greeted with smirks on the part of some, surprise or embarrassed grins on the part of other fraternity men.

The collegiate attitude towards sex must be revised. It is not a matter for the bull session; rather, it is of such importance that a clear presentation of the facts is of utmost necessity to clear up the misunderstood stench that surrounds any mention of the word.

The average college man has never had presented to him, in any adequate form, a thoughtful discussion of the true facts of sex activity. The fraternities are in a position to see that this knowledge gets to each of their men. It is an absolute necessity that they do so, especially since the administration offers no such course of instruction to undergraduates until their senior year.

The necessary information should be presented to FRESHMEN. There can be no doubt that much of the repression, the fear, and the self-indulgence, so prevalent in the college man, would be done away with with adequate sex instruction early in collegiate life.

The national chapters have shown the way. The local chapters must get on the platform with them.

SPREADING THE BURDEN

The selection of Golden Fleece men last night brings to mind: just who are the campus leaders?

There are various fields from which to choose and the men on the top are the logical ones for the honor. But we often overlook the fact that many factors besides intrinsic ability contribute toward making the Golden Fleece man.

On the other hand, there are on the campus several dozen students so overburdened with scholastic and extra-curricular work that excellence in any one field is virtually impossible. For him Golden Fleece is something to be desired, but rarely achieved.

The point we're making has been made many times before: student activities are too much the burden of a comparatively few, upon whose shoulders rests far too much responsibility. This is one thing President Pool's new committee can do: make recommendations regarding the advisability and the practicability of a more extensive student participation in campus activities.

Now YOU'RE Talking

Because of limited space, the DAILY TAR HEEL in the future will accept no letters for publication which are more than 200 words long.

MORE ABOUT ERICSON

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Not often do a professor's students find it necessary to defend him against the attacks of sheer ignorance. But sheer ignorance, and of a vicious sort, has characterized the attacks made on Dr. E. E. Ericson in recent sessions of the Di Senate.

It is true that Dr. Ericson discusses politics in his classes, but so does every teacher of the sophomore survey course in English literature. Even a lackwit must know, or be capable of understanding, that to teach Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron, Carlyle, Matthew Arnold, and Ruskin without referring to their social views would be impossible. Many a nineteenth century literary man, living in the best days of democracy, was guilty of feeling and writing strongly about the political abuses of his time. Dr. Ericson, living in the sorriest days democracy has yet seen, cannot "hold to the subject he is paid to teach" and ignore this fact.

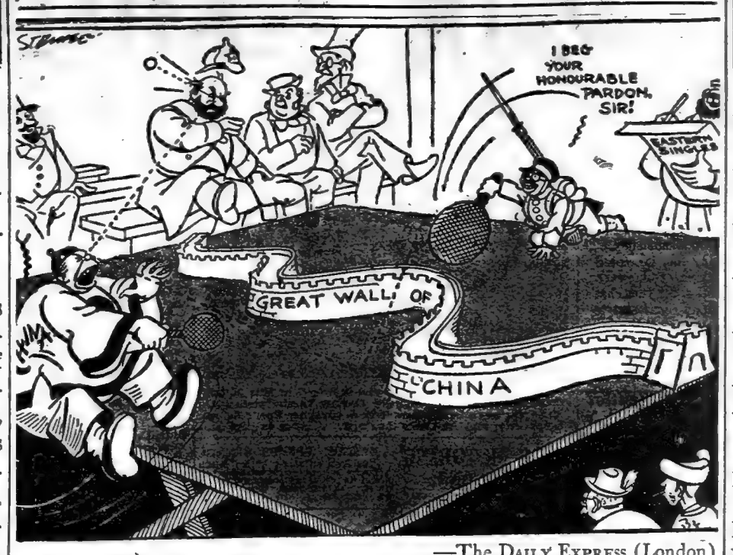
When Dr. Ericson mentions political topics in his classes, he never does so with the intention of proselytizing his students. No one in any of his classes can say fairly that Dr. Ericson ever uses his class time inculcating Ericson politics. Since the true interpretation of literature depends on a relation to the familiar, it is far from subversive for a professor to make stimulating comments on present issues.

Far more distressing to us, however, than the personal attacks on Dr. Ericson, is the spectacle of enlightened youth in an institution which should pride itself on its liberal tradition, following blindly the reactionary, suppressive tendencies so prevalent in America today. When such mental cripples as Senators Weaver, Mullen and Gibbes grow up and become members of state legislatures, they pass anti-evolution laws. It is a sad and ironical fact that one of the fundamental principles underlying the favorite system of these gentlemen who would stamp out liberal criticism is freedom of speech.

L. H. McCAIN,
W. F. McNEIR.

"FAREWELL, OLD FRIEND"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:



Farewell, Old Friend—In the six years that you have fostered my education I have seen you grow older gracefully. Your exterior has only mellowed, not grayed. I leave with no vain regrets for your soul has been sold to a strange purchaser.

When we first met you were a true member of the old guard. You had run the gauntlet of wars, depressions, and changes in politics and had come through a real martyr. But now you have bowed to radicalism. Your finest teachers have been forced to leave you, for you failed them. You promised fidelity and gave prettily painted visions of the future in socialism and communism. You turned down your state and creed to join with a class of foul foreigners. You opened your portals to all and did not retain the STATE University for the State of North Carolina.

As you close your gates behind me don't think ill of one who has tried to understand you. Forgive me if I have done anything to offend. You will be here long after I have gone into the great beyond. You are immortal, I am merely mortal. Try to hold your head though the parasites of today gnaw and eat away your inner being. Farewell, Old Friend.

PING PONG IN THE ORIENT

—The DAILY EXPRESS (London)

From a COLLEGE WINDOW

By WILLIS S. HARRISON

Discovered among some old clippings: extracts from a little magazine published by Ginn and Company of New York and called "What the Colleges are Doing." These extracts contain various formulae for making universities and colleges much sweeter places. Here are some of them:

"Abolish old-fashioned compulsory chapel. Substitute peppy all-college assemblies with a dash of the inspirational or spiritual.

"Do away with the execrable injustices of outgrown marking systems and their regimentation of mediocrity.

"Trim the fraternities of their follies and see that they contribute to the sanity of the campus or go out of business.

"Abolish Hell Week and all its slanderous publicity, even if you do it with an axe.

"Cut out antiquated and non-social courses. Make them all show results in the broadening of altruistic knowledge, and not alone, as so frequently at present, in merely personal satisfactions.

"Take the Ph.D. degree off its pedestal. The lure of pure intellectualism is gone, and the college may as well accept the fact."

Just a few of the highlights. Draw your own conclusions.

In contrast to the above item is the speech made by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler on the occasion of the 81st anniversary of Columbia University.

Dr. Butler, said an editorial of the Charlotte Observer some time ago, bewailed the tendency away from good books, the classic in literature and particularly in good manners. "And for the tendency of youth to get away from the fine old ways, modern educational systems are largely to blame."

The "Fact-Finding Sub-Committee on Student's Social Adjustments" of the University of Minnesota makes the following report on the non-participation of students in social and extra-curricular activities:

1—The non-participants refrain from choice and are probably simply non-social people.

2—A fine and diversified program of activities is open to students and beyond making such a program available, the University has no further responsibility in the matter.

3—The non-participants are, in general, a "poor lot" and

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

By EARL W. WOLSLAGEL

There is absolutely no hard feeling between the author of this column and the Playmakers. We simply thought that someone, namely Mr. Poe, stepped out of his territory in criticizing the general run of movies in Chapel Hill. But when another Playmaker takes sides with the first, and when said actor hints that there is something rotten in Denmark we must defend ourselves, and rightfully so.

Through this column it may seem that we are "beating our advertiser's drum" . . . We are! But we are also trying to give you something beside advance notices of the shows that will play here. Let us say that we get no pennies thrown on our drum for beating it . . . no passes . . . no graft . . . just a lot of fun. . . .

Speaking of "great-hearted Smith," to use the title originated by Mr. Lloyd, does Mr. Lloyd have a birthday during the school year, or is he peeved because his birthday comes during the summer and he does not get his pass? And does Mr. Lloyd realize that were it not for "great-hearted Smith" several deserving students would not be getting their education at the University? As for the organ, we knew nothing of the story connected with it!

We also think that the admission price is "right" at the Carolina . . . where Mr. Lloyd can see first run shows in the evening with his best girl (if he has one!) for 60c!??? . . . And now that we have gotten back to shows, prices and whatnot, let us tell you that Mae West's newest and best starring vehicle, "Goin' to Town," will be here as scheduled soon, and at the regular price. Paramount Pictures threatened to keep Mae in other parts of the state because she was only going to get thutty cents in Chapel Hill from you fellows . . . They thought she was worth at least 50c, plus tax; you can have her—if you're patient—one night before long for the regular price . . .!!

Our nag cost us a pretty penny in the Derby Saturday . . . Chance Sun, the winter favorite by virtue of splendid victories at the larger tracks, did not fare so well . . . his trainers are still cleaning the mud off his head and sides that was kicked there by the flying hooves of the 13 or 14 horses that finished ahead of him . . . Tom George, who brought you the story of the race over CBS stations received a letter, evidently penned by some inebriated lout, the other day that read something like this: "If you will take me to the Derby with you, I'll guarantee the winning horse will say, 'Hello, Mom. It was a turf race, but I won.'" . . . and we think Orange County

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Doak Field, Raleigh, May 9.—Jumping on Pitcher Bugg in the first inning of today's game, the Carolina nine bunched a total of five hits, which together with two errors by Shortstop Lambeth, resulted in six runs. Eleven men went to bat in the wild half of the first, with Jim Tatum leading the slugging.

Through the second inning the game was a farce of errors, hits, stolen bases, and poor fielding on the part of both teams.

Carolina Outhit

Carolina got the sum of 12 safeties against 14 garnered by the Raleigh team. Wright, who worked on the hill for the Tar Heels during the first seven innings, allowed 12 bingles, only one of which went for extra bases.

Freddy Crouch went in to pitch the last of the eighth, relieving Wright with the score 9-7 for Carolina. In the last two frames, Chick Doak's boys touched Crouch for two hits and one run in the ninth, but with the tying run on base, Fred fanned Staton to end the game.

Vick Gone

Carolina played today's game minus the able services of her captain, Thurman Vick, who has left school for Kinston where he will work as scout and "sign-up" man for the semi-pro ball club in that city during the time remaining before the eastern Carolina league play opens in early June.

Quarles Wins

Durham, May 9.—Norment Quarles, University of North Carolina lightweight, registered his second revenge win in a row here tonight when he beat Steve Smith in the feature 10-round bout at the Banner Warehouse.

Carrying the fight to his more experienced opponent, the Carolina scrapper left no doubt as to his superiority over Smith, who defeated him last summer. Quarles looked good as he hooked and jabbed his way through 10 cantos to carry off the verdict of the referee and two judges.

Roanoke Rapids Hi Wins Class 'B' Title

Burlington Loses Close 6-5 Score In Championship High School Ball Tilt.

With a three-run rally in the eighth inning, Roanoke Rapids nosed out Burlington yesterday on Emerson field 6 to 5, to cop the state Class "B" high school championship.

Burlington, defending champions, opened the scoring in the second inning when they pushed across three runs on three singles and an error. The winners tied the score in the sixth inning when Wilson was nicked for three bingles and his mates committed two errors.

Lead See-Saws

Burlington again took the lead, tallying two markers in their half of the eighth, and apparently had the game on ice until the heavy artillery of the Roanoke Rapids team came to bat.

TAR HEELS SWEEP SINGLES

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Amherst, Mass., May 9.—The Carolina racquet wielders added another victory to their already long list by overwhelming the Amherst netters, 8-1, here today.

The weather was fine and a large crowd turned out for the contest. The first singles match between Harvey Harris and the Amherst captain, Winston, was by far the best of the afternoon. The Carolina boy got off to a poor start losing the opening set, 9-11, but came back strong to win the next two, 6-2, 7-5.

Singles: Harris (NC) over Winston, 9-11, 6-2, 7-5; Willis (NC) over Meldrum, 6-2, 6-1; Levitan (NC) over Bielaski, 7-5, 9-7; De Gray (NC) over Mahoney, 6-2, 6-2; Shore (NC) over Howell, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2; Henderson (NC) over Coleman, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Doubles: Winston-Mahoney (A) over Harris-Abels, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4; De Gray-Levitan (NC) over Bielaski-Meldrum, 6-3, 6-3; Shore-Willis (NC) over Keesey-Sundquist, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

Linksmen Score 14-4 Win Against W. & L. Golfers

Team Will Play on Same Course In S. I. C. Tournament Today; Laxton Is Medalist.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Greensboro, May 9.—Playing on the difficult Sedgefield course here, the Carolina golf team scored a 14-4 victory over the Washington and Lee team.

Today's decisive win is of particular importance as it showed that the Tar Heel golfers will have little to worry about concerning the General's chances in tomorrow's Southern Conference tournament on the same course. The Generals are defending champions, and previous to today were considered likely candidates to retain the title.

Laxton Medalist

Erwin Laxton was medalist of the meet with a 75, while playing manager Henry Bridgers ran a close second with a 76.

Laxton, with his medalist card, won his match with McDavid by a 2½-½ score. Harris, in the number two position match, split with Watts, 1½-1½.

Coffin once again played a consistent game, and easily

KNIGHT BOLDLY SCORES STATE SCHOOL SYSTEM

Dr. E. W. Knight, director of summer school at the University, spoke last night to a public meeting sponsored by the Association of American University Women of Greenville scoring the present system of complete state control and support of schools.

Dr. Knight stated that equality of education cannot be fully provided by the present system. No democratic country or state has ever succeeded in high educational centralization, and the promises of state control advocates are far from fulfilled.

New York, California, and Maryland's schools are not so highly centralized and are among the best in the country, the local educator pointed out, and are conspicuous object lessons for this state.

MINER DISCOVERS NEW TYPE FOSSIL

Geologist Says It Is Only Known Bituminous Fossil Plant.

A startling new discovery of a fossil plant was made by one of the miners at the Cumnock coal mine near Sanford, according to a statement issued by Dr. W. F. Prouty of the geology department. "As far as known, no bituminous fossil plants have been previously discovered," Dr. Prouty said.

This specimen was found in the roof of the mine about 30 feet from where a basaltic dike cuts through the Cumnock coal seam. According to Dr. Prouty, the specimen was formed when the heat from this mass of injected igneous rock changed the coal of that locality into coke.

Some of the tar, driven from the coal in this natural coking process, apparently found lodgment in a cavity in the sandstone which had been occupied in Triassic time by a Triassic forest tree.

The fossil plant is about four inches in diameter, black in color, brittle, and has many ports marking the presence of former gas bubbles. It has been secured by Dr. Prouty and will be placed on exhibition in the geology museum.

Library Receives New Geological Collection

R. B. Downs of the University library, announces the acquisition of a geological collection from the state numbering about 10,000 volumes.

The books, which contain geological reports of the federal government of nearly all of the states, and a representative collection of reports from foreign countries, were collected by Colonel Joseph I. Pratt and J. A. Holmes.

For some years the books have been stored at Raleigh, a bill passed by the present legislature turning them over to the University library.

The reports, extending over a period of a hundred years, will give the University one of the most valuable and important geological libraries in the country.

Medical alumni of the University meeting in Pinehurst at a luncheon session during the annual gathering of the State Medical Society, elected Dr. W. D. James of Hamlet president of the medical unit of the University Alumni Association. Dr. A. Byron Holmes of Fairmont, retiring president, was toastmaster at the meeting.

Talks were made at the luncheon by Dean Charles S. Mangum, Dr. I. H. Manning, and Dr. J. B. Bullitt of the medical school faculty, Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, who represented the University administration, and Alumni Secretary Maryon Saunders.

Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth, infirmary physician, was re-elected secretary of the society.

Willis Succeeds Webb as Head of Dance Club for Next Year.

Benny Willis, D. K. E., was elected president of the German Club yesterday afternoon at a meeting presided over by outgoing President Joe Webb.

Officers selected to serve with President Willis during the coming year were: vice-president, Van Webb, S. A. E.; secretary-treasurer, Charlie Edwards, Kappa Sigma; assistant secretary-treasurer, Oscar Tyree, Beta.

The executive committee, usually appointed at this time, will be appointed some time within the next week.

The German Club sponsors one set of dances each quarter. The last set for this year will be held on June 6, 7, 8. On the night of the last dance the new officers will be installed. Orchestra arrangements for the dances are still tentative.

This year's officers were: president, Joe Webb; vice-president, Bruce Old; secretary-treasurer, Chapin Litten; assistant secretary-treasurer, Charlie Edwards.

DUDLEY, GREENAWAY GET POSITIONS IN LIBRARIES

Miss Mary N. Dudley of Houlton, Maine, and J. E. Greenaway of Springfield, Mass., members of the graduating class in the school of library science, have accepted positions in library work.

Miss Dudley's work will call her to the Woman's College of the University where she was formerly a student. She will be an assistant in the periodical department of the library.

Greenaway will be called to the Enoch Pratt free library in Baltimore, Md., where he will assist the librarian in special research.

VOLUME XLIII | EDITORIAL PHONE 4351 | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1935 | BUSINESS PHONE 4356 | NUMBER 167

by the Editor

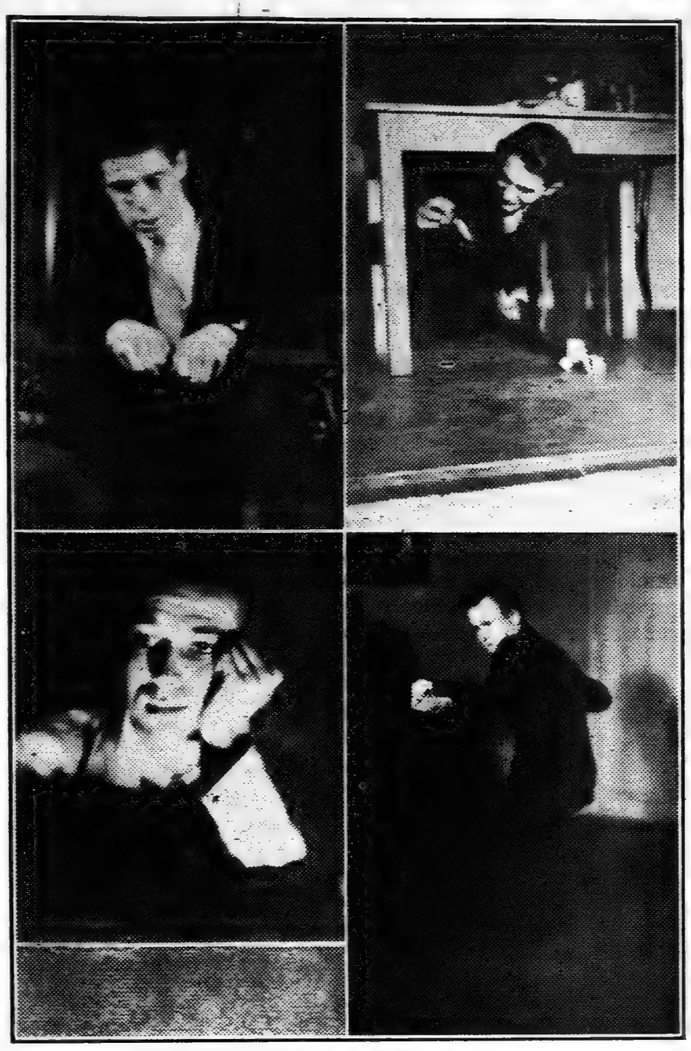
WEEK-END DEFENSE This, as you all know, is dance week-end for lots of us. If you find some of the columns upside down in the newspaper, don't blame us. The paper will be edited between dashes to dances and pounces to parties and favors to females.

Dance week-ends are really and truly as much a Carolina tradition as the Davie poplar. They tell us that out in the state people think Carolina activities are nothing but week-ends, but that is false. Week-ends have their place in our schedule and dances have first place on the week-ends. But we do other things besides celebrate. That's why we're the best university in the south.

LOCAL SUPPORT Dr. E. W. Knight scored the present system of complete state control of public schools because he says equality in education cannot be fully provided by the present system. "No democratic country or state has ever succeeded in high educational centralization," is what the newspapers credited him with saying.

We wonder, as interested dilettantes, why North Carolina could be condemned on this basis. The burden of public schools rests as plainly now on the local units as on the central state control, insofar as local units have the power and duty to vote supplements in support of their schools.

In 1929 North Carolina taxed itself sufficiently to raise an average of $33.00 per pupil for current school operation. For the present school year, the total sum raised from both local and state sources will average less than $21.00 per pupil enrolled. The state can't recapture the difference any better than the local unit. It seems logical that the burden would still be as much the latter's as the former's.



The lowered classroom morale is a local problem primarily and it is the local unit's business to see that its schools are supported. The change to state centralization should not have the effect of centralizing education any more than in the matter of county finances, which is handled by the Local Government Commission. It can't be said that in the latter case the responsibility was shifted altogether. And so it is in the school situation.

THE HON. MR. HOEY Our sophisticated student body had to snicker up its collective sleeve at the Hon. Clyde Hoey's Bryanesque oratory here Thursday night.

That was what you call a political speech from way back. But it wasn't very satisfying to government students and others interested in current affairs. It was just so much showmanship and nothing more.

But the great mass of people evidently like to hear such eloquence and we wouldn't be a bit surprised to see Mr. Hoey take Sandy Graham over the bumps at election time.

BOSTON COMPANY GIVES COMIC OPERA TUESDAY EVENING

"The Secret of Suzanna" Will Be Presented at 8:30 P. M. In Memorial Hall.

STUDENT ENTERTAINMENT

"The Secret of Suzanna," a comic opera in one act, will be presented by the Boston Chamber Opera Company Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Series.

Well known and favored by New England audiences, the Boston troupe has performed at many schools and colleges this season, notably the Bates College, Colby Junior College, Bradford Academy, and the University of New Hampshire.

Wolf-Ferrari Author

The repertoire of the company consists of many of the short operas written by world famous composers for performance by small groups of artists. The selection Tuesday night is written by Wolf-Ferrari, composer of "The Jewels of the Madonna."

The story is a charming one of a count deeply in love with his wife and strongly opposed to smoking. Returning home one day, he smells cigarette smoke not knowing that his wife enjoys an occasional smoke in his absence. Surmising that his wife is receiving attention from a Piedmont gallant, he makes several unsuccessful attempts to catch them together.

He returns home unexpectedly one day to find his wife smoking. He is overjoyed to discover that his wife is faithful and sits

MANNING TO STUDY NEW ENGLISH PLAN OF MEDICAL CARE

Former Medical Dean Favors Socialized Hospitalization Service Used in London.

SAILS FOR BRITAIN SOON

Dr. Isaac H. Manning former dean of the medical school, will leave next week for England to make a study of the voluntary contributory hospital fund now operating successfully in London.

This hospitalization system has met with great success in England, but has not yet gained a strong foothold in the United States.

The purpose of the plan is to provide hospital service for all those who are in need of it. Dr. Manning has worked with untiring effort on this plan since he was first inagurated as president of the State Medical Society.

Neighboring Interest

"Neighboring states have already shown an interest in the project," says Dr. Manning, "and it seems incumbent upon us to set up a model plan not only for adjacent states, but for other states essentially like North Carolina.

"We are very fortunate in having the Duke Endowment thoroughly in sympathy with this movement. It has been very generous in providing the funds for the study of the English system, and the inauguration of the plan in the state. Without this grant the attempt would probably have been abandoned."

This is the first attempt to conduct a group payment plan on a state-wide basis to receive the approval of the State Medical Society.

TIN CAN CROWDED AT BRIGHT DANCES GIVEN YESTERDAY

Barney Rapp and His New Englanders Received Enthusiastically at Junior Prom.

EUTSLER LEADS FIGURE

Following the tea dance held in the Tin Can yesterday afternoon at 4:30 the Junior-Senior dance series gained momentum, getting into full swing with the Junior Prom which lasted until 1 o'clock.

The dancers gave an enthusiastic reception to Barney Rapp and his New Englanders. The Tin Can was colorfully decorated in alternate strips of green and white crepe paper with young pines and a crystal ball hung from the ceiling.

Figure Leaders

The dance leaders of the junior class who presented their graceful figure were Ernie Eutsler, chief, with Miss Betty Felton of Goldsboro; Harry Montgomery, first assistant, with Miss Betty Fugitt of Atlanta, Ga.; Johnny Bost, second assistant, with Miss Pickette Kendall of Raleigh; Claude Rankin, third assistant, with Miss Ethel Highsmith of Fayetteville.

Bob Page, fourth assistant, with Miss Jacqueline Moore of Richmond, Va.; Charlie Edwards, fifth assistant, with Miss Jane Shelton of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Frank Moore, sixth assistant, with Miss Pattie Pratt of Louisville, Ky.

Rain, Rain, Went Away

The rain in the late afternoon, although it interferred somewhat with the tea dance, cooled off the atmosphere very pleasantly, so that the intense heat which wilted the Frolickers last week was not suffered.

Y. M. C. A. TO NAME MANUAL MANAGER

Applicants for Business Managership of Handbook to Be Interviewed Wednesday.

Applications for the business managership of the Carolina Freshman Handbook must be presented to Mr. Harry F. Comer before 10 a. m. Wednesday, it was announced yesterday.

Before applying for the position, candidates should see Mr. Comer to obtain the proper blanks with which to make application.

The chief duty of the business manager of the Handbook is that of obtaining advertisements for the publication.

Interview Wednesday

The applicants will be interviewed Wednesday at 10:30 a. m., by a special committee composed of "Y" members, the new editor of the Handbook, and a member of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A.

The following will name the Handbook business manager: Billy F. Yandell, new president of the Y. M. C. A.; Professor Harold D. Meyer, treasurer of the "Y" board of directors; Tres P. Yeatman, new treasurer of the "Y;" Harry F. Comer, general secretary; and Don McKee, newly selected Handbook editor.

Last year Eli Joyner, University sophomore, served as the business manager of the publication.

Dave Clark Will Defend Charges That University Is Radical Hotbed

On Leave Next Year

Dr. Lee M. Brooks, well-known University sociologist, who has been loaned to Alabama for one year. He will organize a general course in contemporary problems at Alabama College.

Editor of Textile Bulletin Will Be Sponsored Here by Local American Liberty League.

GROUP IS ANTI-SOCIALIST

Appearance Will Be of Interest To Both Right and Left Elements on Campus.

Charlotte's David Clark, editor of the Textile Bulletin and self-appointed leader of critics of the University, will speak here next Tuesday night under the auspices of the American Liberty League.

Clark's appearance here will be an event to both conservative and "radical" elements on the campus. Whether favorably received or not Mr. Clark will be assured a large gathering.

The University chapter of the Liberty League, chief exponent of conservatism on the campus, came into being two weeks ago when a group of 25 students met to pledge themselves to the creed of this organization which "stands for the defense of American principles against fascism and socialism."

No "Reds" Here

One of the chief purposes of the group, as stated at this initial meeting, is "to prove to North Carolina and the nation that this University is not a 'hotbed of radicalism.'"

Also among the first ideas springing from this pioneer conservatist movement here was to bring Mr. Clark to the University to speak in behalf of the organization.

A telegram received yesterday from league member Stuart Rabb, who had gone to Charlotte for a personal interview

BROOKS TO TEACH YEAR AT ALABAMA

University Sociologist Will Help Start Sophomore Course at Alabama College.

Dr. Lee M. Brooks of the University sociology department has been invited by Alabama College at Montevallo, Ala., to participate in the establishment of a general course for sophomores in contemporary problems during the academic year, 1935-36.

Dr. Brooks will substitute for Dr. J. R. Steelman, who received his doctorate from the University in 1928 and who, after making a reputation for himself in Alabama, was appointed conciliator of labor last year by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Granted a year's leave of absence from the University, Dr. Brooks will aid in an attempt to treat current problems in a unitary manner rather than as special social sciences. His going to Alabama is a part of a general policy of the sociology department to participate in constructive efforts along this line throughout the south.

Dr. Brooks is a native of Massachusetts and did his undergraduate work at Boston University. His graduate degrees

Black Snakes Infest Local Golf Course

Professor George Horner likes to play golf, and he also likes American literature; but when black snakes interfere with his game, he prefers the literature.

Thursday Professors Horner and G. L. Paine took the afternoon off for a round of that austere game. After several holes, the bag weighed mighty heavily on Professor Horner's shoulders; and he decided that something was amiss.

In order to discover the source, he emptied the contents of the bag on a green, and out wiggled a six-inch black snake which had caused the undue weight of the bag.

Horner left.

Not so with Professor Paine, who Saint Patrickly drove the vicious and terrifying reptile into the rough, which was not far distant.

TWO ORCHESTRAS TO GIVE CONCERT

Symphony Orchestras from Woman's College and University Will Play Together.

The joint appearance of the Symphony Orchestra of the University and the Woman's College next Wednesday evening in the Hill Music hall will mark the last of the musical entertainments of the school year, announced Earl Slocum, conductor of the University Orchestra yesterday.

The orchestra here at the University is composed of some 40 students, professors, and townspeople. The Woman's College orchestra is somewhat larger, about 50 or 60 students and townspeople being members. The two combined orchestras will give a full instrumentation and the concert here should prove to be one of the outstanding musical events of the year.

Play at Greensboro

It was also announced that there would be a concert given by the combined orchestras in Aycock auditorium in Greensboro on Tuesday evening, Mr. Slocum conducting. The concert here will be under the direction of Henry H. Fuchs of the Woman's College.

The program to be presented here and in Greensboro is as follows: "Egmont Overture," Beethoven; "Symphony No. 8 in F Major," Beethoven; "Waltz of the Flowers," from the "Nutcracker Suite," Tschaikowski; "In the Village," "In the Mosque," and "March of the Sarder," from "Caucasian Sketches," Ippolitow-Ivanow.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, HUDSON; NIGHT, GILMORE

DORMITORY ACTION

It is very gratifying to see that the new edition of the Dormitory Council will attempt to get at the bottom of the dormitory situation upon which we have been harping for some time.

We don't want the dormitoryites to think we're trying to cram something down their throats. We're not. Every stand that we have taken concerning dormitories has resulted from investigations which dormitory men themselves have conducted.

The new members of the council decided upon two points, one of which was to take up where the DAILY TAR HEEL's agitation left off. The other was to reduce the dormitory disturbances.

We have not purposely tried to derogate the efforts of the administration in the Everett experiment, but have consistently pointed out that, in practice, the plan has not been the success that was anticipated. But that is not the important point: the essence of the Everett results is that there are certain phases of the plan which necessarily must be revised and there are other phases which must be continued and pressed more strenuously.

Dean Bradshaw hit the nail on the head when he said: "The University has decided that the only way to fill the dormitories is by making improvements rather than by compulsion." That is exactly what Mr. Rogerson's energetic department is setting about to do, to improve. And it is obligatory that the dormitoryites carry their share of the burden in the improvement drive by suggesting, co-operating, and helping to work out plans and methods.

With the support of the administration and student opinion through these columns, the dormitory men can render a great service in working for dormitory betterment.

MORE MOTIONS

The action of the Dormitory Council wasn't the only thing pleasing to the editors which happened Thursday.

When the faculty, after quite a session, voted to appoint a committee to work out in full a class-extension plan in co-operation with a student committee, our efforts toward establishing some sort of similar plan seemed to have borne some fruit.

In fact, the results of the faculty consideration were better than we anticipated. Numerous faculty members had objections to our proposal, objections ranging from over-crowded schedules to over-scheduled crowds. We knew that there would be many revisions and we still think there will, but we didn't anticipate any definite action, for the simple reason that it was asking a lot to expect any more than discussion at the first gathering.

We hope that Dean House will see to it that the committees are immediately appointed, so that a plan can be worked out in detail and revised thoroughly before the spring session ends. And we repeat that our hearts are not set absolutely on the particular plan which Prof. Wiley drew up and we sponsored. Basically, however, it should be drawn up to embrace the same functions and carry out the same purposes.

We believe that there are too many distinguished members of our faculty whose abilities and learning have not been utilized half enough. By "utilized" we mean served up to the advantage of our students and other members of the faculty. That is one reason for our hearty approbation and sponsorship of class-extension as part of our curricular set-up.

The other is that students in most instances have little opportunity for branching out into allied fields, despite the fact that our curriculum is broad and allows quite a bit of academic freedom. Let's lead the horses to water and more of it.

Now YOU'RE Talking

Because of limited space, the DAILY TAR HEEL in the future will accept no letters for publication which are more than 200 words long.

PAGE MR. SMITH

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I hate to write nasty letters as much as you hate to get them; but it's not my fault that Earl Wolslagel's column has to be followed up every week with a correction of his misrepresentations of the truth.

Our pal Earl didn't answer Don Pope's letter; the truth is that he either misunderstood or garbled its meaning, as anybody with half an eye could see from yesterday's column, in which Earl interpreted Don's letter as simply an attack on the much-mentioned E. Carrington Smith. It wasn't anything like that. Don was protesting against an instance of unfairness shown the Playmakers, and he cited the DAILY TAR HEEL's policy on Smith's theatre publicity by way of what seemed to the campus at large a pretty telling contrast. Earl or anybody else can re-read Don's letter and see that what I have just said is the truth.

Now, I want to negotiate a bargain with Earl, and I want the campus to know about it. I'll give Earl Wolslagel a list of thirty new ways to call a Playmaker a pansy, with four new psychological insults — not involving inversion—five second-hand puns—the sort he favors —and a subscription to HECTIC HOLLYWOOD thrown in, on condition that his column quits talking about E. Carrington Smith as a super-super-super impresario. Nobody called Mr. S. a black rogue, and nobody bears him any malice; we're just a trifle weary of hearing him touted by Earl at the expense of the Playmakers and the English language. Maybe he's tired of reading stuff about himself.

Do we trade? Now you talk —turkey.

BUC IN PORT

The Buccaneer Puts Into Port

So the Swaggering Buc is back again
Welcome him, boys, he's a darn good guy.
He likes his fun, but he doesn't pun;
He may not be rough, but he's a darn good guy.

Last fall they kicked him off the wharf
For getting drunk and raising hell.
He nearly tore down the school
And half the state as well.

That old Buc could dish more dirt
Than Ballyhoo itself.
But the P. U. Board put his muzzle on,
Placing him gently on the shelf.

He's come back now with top hat and spats
And promises to be subtle and sly.
This time we'll have a good comic
Or know the reason why.

DICK HICKS.

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

An over ripe bouquet of cabbages and tomatoes to that latent laity who habitate the comfortable lounges of Graham Memorial and persist, either through ignorance, in the sense of being dumb, or by a complete disregard of their own property, in resting their hobnailed and gritty shoes on the nearest convenient article, be it on a smoothly polished table, fine plush lounge, or sofa cushion.

A census could not be taken as to how many of them had been raised in a barn, but a very conservative estimate based on these despoilers' actions would give the barn-born babies a very safe majority.

It is quite right that everyone should feel perfectly at home at any place, but there should be some repression of this when those who are in the category of barn-dwellers begin to feel and act at home. Then it is time that some action be taken to protect these valuable articles in question which are gradually being marred and defaced.

EARTH-QUAKES

By JOHN SCHULZ

God save the king! And don't forget the Queen. King George pressed a button the other day and a huge bonfire streaked toward heaven in Hyde Park, where everybody, on Sundays, talks about everything. This was the signal for the lighting of over 2,000 fires over all of England—to say nothing of thousands more in that great empire upon which the sun never sets. London itself looks like a garden in bloom, with flowers and gay-colored ribbons festooning even the poorest streets. Why all the excitement? It's nothing less than the celebration of the 25th year in the reign of George the Fifth—perhaps the most beloved monarch the old isle has ever had. George, moderate and respected, is personally the thin thread by which the far-flung British dominions are held together. He's so popular than even the Nazis are telling the world of his German origin. And America is as enthusiastic in its praise as the rest. It's a long time since Bunker Hill!

There are doubtless many who approve of the trouble Mussolini's men are meeting in Africa. The Italians are finding something more than Niggers to fight in their proposed conquest of the Land of Sheba. Malaria, heat and drought are taking their toll of the Roman legions. In other words, Mussolini is really getting somewhere in his search for a place under the SUN. And when the summer rains blow away next September, he is likely to find that an Abyssinian in the bush is worth three Italians in the open.

Not that the "WHITE MAN'S BURDEN" is resting so easily upon us at present. Over 60 lives were lost in a revolt near Manila last week. And they weren't all rebels, either. The leader of the revolting Sakdalist party was careful to be in Japan, where he is reported to be getting much sympathy, at least, from the largest political organization in the Volcanic Isles. Acting governor of the Philippines Hayden, however, said that he had no suspicions of Japan being directly involved in the plot. Manuel Quezon, president of the islands' senate and now in the United States blames the trouble on the terrible economic conditions brought about by recent American tariffs on Philippine goods. These tariffs were brought about by our decision to give the islands their long-sought-for independence. Looks like we get into trouble over there whether we stay in or get out.

France and Russia have agreed on quick aid in case of peril. If the nations keep on signing these mutual-assistance pacts we can be sure that everybody will be in the next war . . . Venizelos, exiled leader of the late-lamented Greek revolt, has been given a death sentence in Athens. Wouldn't mind one myself if I were in Paris like the old gentleman . . . Mt. Ararat, Armenia, has been rumbling with volcanic activity. Imagine Noah's surprise if it it had rumbled when he set the Ark down there . . . Twenty years after, Captain Karl Scherb, who was on the submarine which sunk the Lusitania, says that only 30,000 lives were lost in the German effort to retaliate upon the Allies' "hunger blockade" which caused the death of 800,000 persons in the Fatherland. Looks as if the Germans did get the worst of it . . . Brazilian artillery broke up a mud-flow which was about to demolish a

Erwin Laxton Shoots 148; Wins S.I.C. Championship

Duke Wins Team Crown as All Golfers Shoot Above Their Games in Hail and Rain.

CADDY NEARLY DROWNS

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Sedgefield, May 10.—Erwin Laxton proved himself a good mud horse by winning the Southern Conference golf crown at Sedgefield today. Trailing several strokes at noon, he shot brilliant golf in the afternoon handicapped by a drenching rain and hail storm.

Six schools were in the Southern Conference meet and there were a score of good golfers. Laxton proved that he was a master of the game under all conditions and repeated his feat of year before last. His morning round was a 75 and in spite of the inclement weather he cut two strokes off of this when everyone else was adding to their scores, giving him a total of 148 which was excellent golf under the conditions.

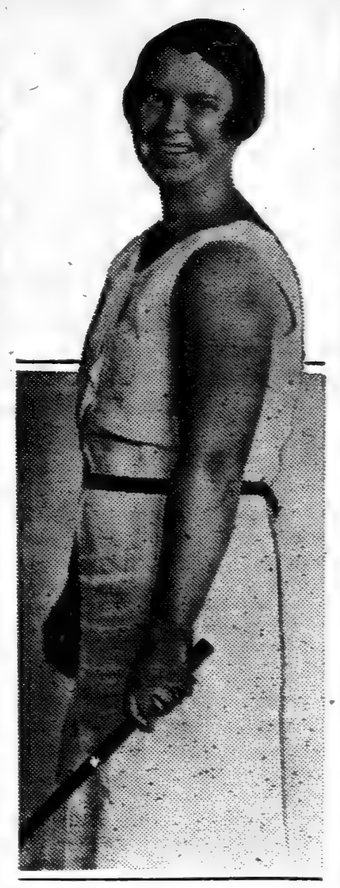
The team as a whole was not so fortunate and found considerable trouble in the rain. Harris, playing number two, could not get going and had 164. Coffin shot far above his usal game and turned in a 159. Pijanowski shot much better golf than his 155 would indicate, since a great majority of his strokes came on the 18th hole of the morning round.

Carolina was second with a total of 626, trailing Duke by 13 strokes. Duke's win can be credited to the excellent golf of their number two man, Bayard Storm.

It rained so hard that the stream which ran through the course was running three feet over the bridges and washed away many of them. Those golfers who had no chance of winning swam across at one place and one very small caddy, who was washed into the stream, bag and all, had to be pulled out by the players. Hail came down so hard at one time that many putts were driven completely off line.

This meet ends a very successful season for the Tar Heels. Beaten only twice, once by Duke and once by State, both in return matches after having won the first encounter, they won the team play at the Southern Open Intercollegiate and were runners up in the State and Southern Conference tournaments. There is a possibility that the team will go to the National Intercollegiate tourney to be held in Washington the latter part of June.

MEDICAL ALUMNI OFFICERS



Dr. W. D. James of Hamlet was elected president of the medical alumni of the University at a luncheon meeting of the State Medical Society held in Pinehurst Tuesday. Dr. A. B. Holmes of Fairmont, retiring president, was toastmaster at the meeting.

Dean F. F. Bradshaw represented the University administration, while other talks were made by Mangum, Manning, and Bullitt of the medical school faculty. Other officers elected were Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth as secretary, and Dr. E. C. Judd of Raleigh as vice-president.

Dean House Returns Today

Dean R. B. House will return to Chapel Hill this morning from an extended trip over the state which included several lectures and attendance at the Social Service Conference.

Sharpshooter

Miss Estelle Lawson, Chapel Hill girl, who yesterday scored a 3 and 2 victory over Miss Jane Cochran in the semi-final round of the women's Carolina golf tournament in Greenville, N. C.

Miss Lawson, recent winner of the women's North and South title, will meet Miss Kathryn Hemphill in the final match today.

Holder of the Carolinas' title year before last, Miss Lawson broke her No. seven iron early in the final match last year and, unable to overcome this handicap, lost to her opponent.

with the Textile Bulletin Editor, said, "Clark will arrive Tuesday night for speech defend statements concerning University."

Anti-University

For many years Clark has jumped at every opportunity to make a thrust at the University. Lovers of the University have naturally resented the remarks which have appeared in Mr. Clark's editorials. He has been accused of deliberately distorting the truth to push his point.

Whether these accusations are true or not is a matter for individual opinion, and those who have criticised him will have an opportunity to hear his own statement as to the truth of his writing. In any case he should be given a fair hearing.

Clark's appearance here will mark the realization of the first major project in the Liberty League's program for this spring.

TRACKMEN IN MEET WITH MIDDIES AT ANNAPOLIS TODAY

On Paper Meet Looks to Be Close One, Carolina Having Slight Edge.

VIRGINIA BEATEN BY BOTH

A squad of some 30 Carolina tracksters will invade Annapolis this afternoon for its fourth annual dual meet with the U. S. Naval Academy.

Carrying with them 14 consecutive state titles, the Southern Conference indoor and outdoor titles, and three straight wins over the Middies, the Carolina contingent will present a lineup of record holders and rising winners—the class of Dixie.

Despite this fine reputation the Tar Heels have built up, it will be a none-too easy task to conquer the Navy team on its own track, one which has no straight-away longer than 100 yards.

Both teams have had fine seasons thus far; their only common opponent, the University of Virginia, was an easy meet for both. Navy downed the Cavaliers 90-36, while the Tar Heels took them 95 1-6 to 30 5-6.

Last year the Midshipmen came to Chapel Hill; this was in itself an honor for Carolina as they seldom leave Annapolis, except to meet Army. Carolina showed her opponents a 67-59 reverse.

Today a great deal of the burden will rest upon the shoulders of men who have not only been successful in the field of athletics, but in scholarly and extra-curricular activities as well.

Frank Abernethy, ex-president of the student body, is a Phi Beta Kappa and Jason (president) of the Golden Fleece; Tom Evins is vice-president of the student body and was tapped Thursday by the Golden Fleece.

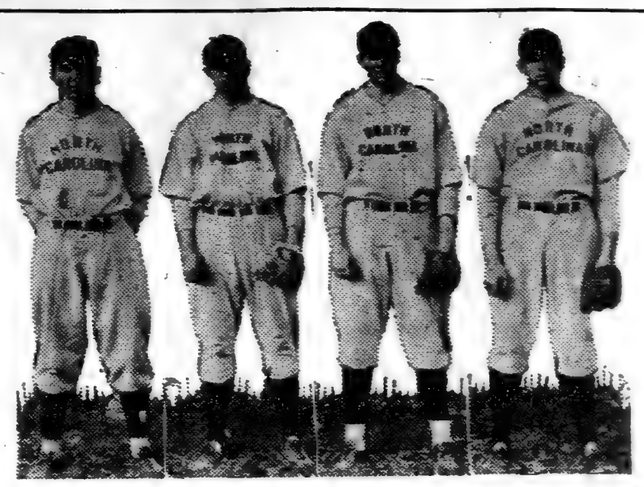
Leading an excellent cast is Miss Gertrude Ehrhart, the countess in the opera, New England's foremost soprano, who has appeared in the more important choral circles of the east. She has been prima-donna with the Boston Chamber Opera Company since its organization.

Playing with Miss Ehrhart is Hudson Carmody in the part of the count. Mr. Carmody gives a distinctive performance, having had years of stage and operatic experience with a background of several years study in Europe.

Raymond Simonds and Willem Frank complete the group. Mr. Simonds plays the pantomimic part of the mute servant, while Mr. Frank is the pianist for the group. Both will appear on the concert program which supplements the opera performance.



Handbook Applicants

Students interested in trying out for the Carolina Freshman Handbook staff met yesterday with newly elected Editor Don McKee and made plans for the forthcoming publication.

Students trying out for positions on the staff were Mac Smith, Emmet Spicer, Bill Cochrane, Ira Sarasohn, and Jim Daniel.

A staff will be appointed for the publication next week by the editor. Other students interested in working on the Handbook should see Don McKee from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon in the DAILY TAR HEEL office.

Harris and Willis Lose in Singles But Rest of Club Has Easy Time; De Gray Is Star.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Williamstown, Mass., May 10.—After losing the number one and two singles matches Carolina's tennis team settled down to sweep through the rest of the battles and finally whip Williams College, 7-2, here today.

As usual the Tar Heels met new playing conditions. This time the officials had to sweep water from the courts and then burn gasoline on them before starting the matches. A large, enthusiastic crowd witnessed the southern win.

Eddy De Gray, sophomore, took off honors for Carolina. He lost only one game in his singles encounter with Phipps and then teamed with Captain Levitan to conquer Swan and Hopkins, 6-0, 6-2.

The summary follows:

Kelleher (W) defeated Harris, 6-3, 6-1; Jones (W) defeated Willis, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Levitan (C) defeated Weller, 6-4, 6-2; De Gray (C) defeated Phipps, 6-0, 6-1; Shore (C) defeated Swan, 6-4, 6-4; Henderson (C) defeated Reynolds, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4; Abels and Harris (C) defeated Jones and Kelleher, 6-4, 7-5; De Gray and Levitan defeated Swan and Hopkins, 6-0, 6-2; Shore and Willis defeated Phipps and Weller, 6-4, 6-4.

FROSH NETTERS BACK, VICTORIOUS

The freshman tennis team returned from its northwestern tour undefeated in five meets.

The yearling aggregation rolled up the one-sided scores of 7-0, 6-0, 7-0, 6-1, and 7-0 against their opponents.

Eddy Fuller, Ramsay Potts, John Foreman, Gordon Robinson, and Frank Farrell make up the frosh team.

The 6-1 victory over Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Virginia, was commendable as the high schoolers have been undefeated for the past three years. The only match lost on the entire tour was registered when Frank Farrel bowed in a close three setter in the Episcopal encounter.

U. N. C. Press Releases "90 in the Shade"

New Book on South Written by Alabama Professor.

The University Press announced yesterday the release of "90 in the Shade," written by Clarence Cason, professor of journalism in the University of Alabama. According to the Press, this book, a character study of the south, is one of the best-written volumes it has ever published.

Cason analyses the south, showing its glaring inconsistencies, its paradoxes, its cultural lag. Each page is a cross section of southern life, describing a land of pseudo-sentiment, poor whites, Judge Lynch, Huey Longs, Tom Heflins..

CAROLINA TO PLAY GAME WITH DEVILS IN DURHAM TODAY

Having Won from State Thursday, Hearnmen Will Throw Strength at Duke at 4:00.

FREDDY CROUCH TO HURL

Looking better at bat in Thursday's contest with State than they have for some time, Coach Hearn's pellet-chasers will lock horns today with the Coombs boys at Duke in the first of four games to be played between the two nines this spring.

The loss of Captain Vick, veteran centerfielder, is doubtlessly a great handicap to the Tar Heels, but little Cicero Groome, left-hander from Greensboro, turned in a most creditable performance against State Thursday as he filled the captain's shoes both at bat and in the field. If the late 9-8 win over the Technicians can mean that the Carolina boys have found an eye for the ball, sadly lacking heretofore, they may complicate matters a bit with a win or wins over the Big Five leading Blue Devils.

Pitting Fred Crouch against Hal Weafer, Duke's best chunker, the Heels will take the field with all hands on deck and in top shape for a game that promises to be a hair-liner.

HANDBALL

Sometime next week, a handball tournament will be initiated to determine whether there is enough interest in the sport to warrant its being added to the intramural program next season.

Herman Schnell, director of intramural athletics, will conduct the tournament. Rules and information concerning the filing of entry blanks will be announced in a few days.

INSTITUTE MAKES GIFT TO LIBRARY OF 80 NEW BOOKS

$150 Gift May Be Beginning of Permanent Human Relations Institute Collection.

DOWNS AIDS IN SELECTION

The Third Quadriennial Institute on Human Relations, which was held here last month, has announced a gift to the University library of some 80 books costing approximately $150.

This collection includes the most valuable books, recently on display in the Institute's book exhibit. The purchase of so large a collection was made possible partly through the generosity of publishing houses in offering sizeable discounts.

Begins Collection

This gift is the beginning of what the Institute committee hopes will grow into a large Institute collection in the University library, the plan being to add to the collection whenever funds are available for this purpose.

This is a peculiarly valuable gift to the library at this time after a period of no budget which has prohibited the purchasing of many of the best recent books. The selection was made through the co-operation of R. B. Downs, University librarian, in order to insure the inclusion of the most important books and to avoid the duplication of volumes already in the library.

A list of the entire collection follows:

"American at Play," by Steiner; "Human Exploitation," by Thomas; "Farewell to Revolution," by Martin; "Carolina Low Country"; "In the Shadow of Liberty," by Corsi; "Japan in Crisis," by Wildes; "The Good Neighbor," by Shotwell; "The Great Wall Crumbles," by Clark; "France's Crisis," by Einzig.

"Toward Understanding Japan," by Gulick; "Ten Years of Adult Education," by Cartwright; "The U. S. and the Carribbean," by James, Norton and Moon; "The Making of Citizens," by Merriam; "The Cost of Medical Care," by Folk, Rorm Ring; "Public Opinions and World Politics," by Wright; "Interpretations of American Foreign Policy," by Wright; "Education versus Indoctrination," by Kallen; "The Control of Radio," by Kerwin; "Monetary Chaos and Gold"; "Unemployment Insurance," by Gilson; "Autarchy—National Self-Sufficiency," by Tippette.

"A Positive Program for Laissez-Faire," by Simons; "An American Foreign Policy," by Gideonse; "U. S. & Great Britain," by Fish and others; "Toward the New Spain"; "Wanted: Intelligent Self-Government," by Fairweather; 'The Law of Citizenship in the U. S.," by Gettys; "Civic Attitudes in American School Textbooks," by Pierce; "Mexico," by Rippy; "Must We Fight in Asia?" by Peffer; "The Price of Peace," by Simonds; "Murder in Germany," by Liepmann; "Can America Stay at Home?" by Simonds.

"Little Napoleon and Dummy Directors," by Werner; "Peace and the Plain Man," by Angell; "Understand the Chinese," by Martin; "Iron, Blood and Profits," by Selden; "From Chaos to Catastrophe," by Simonds; "France in Ferment," by Werth; "Science in Social Needs," by Huxley; "Who Gets the Money?" by Rautenstrauch; "Sold Out to the Future," by Helton; "The Common Soldier," by Wilson; "The American Adventure," by Bonn; "China Magnificent," by Carter; "Farewell to Reform," by Chamberlain; "Do We Want Fascism," by Haider; "Towards the Understanding of Karl Marx."

"Orient and Occident," by Kohn; "China — Collapse of a Civilization," by Peffer; "Sea Power," by Richmond; "Our Master's Voice Advertising," by Rorty; "College Women and Social Sciences"; 'Negro Intelligence," by Kleinberg; "Battle for Democracy," by Tugwell; "Democracy Faces the Future," by Everett; "Adam Smith," by Ginsberg; "International Labor Organization"; "Canada," by Dafoe; "Molders of American Mind," by Woeffel; "Alexander Hamilton," my McKee; "Displacement of Man by Machines"; "German Election Administration," by Pollock.

"Financial Trends in Organized Social Work in N. Y.," by Huntley; "The Illegitimate Family in N. Y.," by Reed; "Redirecting Education," by Tugwell; "The Study of International Relations in the U. S.," by Ware; "Experiments in Credit Control," by Whitney; "Mobilizing for Chaos," by Riegal; "The Blue Eagle from Egg to Earth," by Johnson; "American Diplomatic Game," by Pearson and Brown; "Who Pays?" by Greenwood; "The Inevitable World Recovery," by Fisher; "Britain Political's Future," by Allen; "Development of International Law," by Lauterpacht; "The Reason for Living," by Wicks; "Bituminous Coal Miner," by Morris.

PLAYS BY GREEN, COX TO BE GIVEN AT FOLK FESTIVAL

Playmakers Asked to Chattanooga Festival; Can't Attend.

Plays by Paul Green and Bill Cox will be presented at the National Folk Festival to be held in Chattanooga Tuesday through Friday. Miss Gertrude Knott, who used to be at the University as director of community drama, is national director of the festival.

The Carolina Playmakers, present at the first annual festival last year in St. Louis, were also invited to attend, but however, found it necessary to decline. The festival directors have invited Black Mountain College and Lenoir-Rhyne College in Hickory.

Robert Wunsch, a Carolina alumnus and director of Black Mountain College, is arranging to present Green's play, "Fixina." The play, "Last of the Lowry's," by Bill Cox, former playwright, will be presented by Lenoir-Rhyne.

Paul Green is national president of the Folk Festival.

PLAYERS PREPARE TO STAGE HAMLET

Production Will Celebrate Koch's 30th Year of Playmaking.

Rehearsals for Hamlet, to be presented May 24th and 25th, are well under way, and the staff is joining its forces to make the production a gala event in the history of the Carolina Playmakers.

This great drama will be produced in the Forest theatre this year in celebration of the 30th year of Professor Koch's playmaking. Professor Koch himself will play the title role.

Professor Samuel Selden, associate director, has designed an impressive stage setting and will direct the entire production. He will be assisted by Harry Davis who will direct the stage lighting. Earl Slocum of the University music department, will direct the orchestra in music especially arranged for the play, and Ora Mae Davis will design and supervise the execution of the elaborate costumes. Phoebe Barr will direct dances composed especially for this event.

Savo, Balieff, Szabo, Steinke, Etaoin, Shrdlu

Called the greatest pantomimist in America today by the great Charlie Chaplin, Jimmy Savo at last brings his inimitable comedy to the screen in the new Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur picture, "Once in a Blue Moon," now playing at the Carolina theatre. The plot of the picture centers around Savo, with such well-known personalities as Nikita Balieff, Cecelia Loftus, Sandor Szabo, and Hans Steinke in the cast.

FRENCH STUDENTS TO GIVE GORY PLAY

Playmakers Theatre Will Be Made into Parisian Play-House for Thriller.

Le Theatre du Grand-Guignol, famous in Paris and the world over for horror plays in which the gory details are carried out with nauseating realism, will be recreated for a campus audience by the French Club at the Playmakers theatre Thursday evening.

The theatre will be transformed into a Parisian playhouse for this "Soiree au Grand-Guignol," which will attempt to reproduce the atmopsphere of a picturesque French institution. The performance, which begins the moment each spectator encounters the usherette, will feature a horror play especially written for the occasion. The scene of this horror play to end horror plays is an asylum for the feeble-minded.

Thriller Cast

The cast for the play, which is called "Le Crime d'un Cerveau Malade," for want of a better title, is as follows: Marie Couche-toi-la, Lillian Allen; Hecate, vielle femme, Catherine Hodges; La Belle Helene, Olive Newell; Zulu, l'infirmiere, Mary McKee; Le Docteur Mouriquand, Lawrence Cheek; Polypheme, le borgne, Ray Reeves; Jacques Sans-abri, Scott Hunter; Le Docteur Policard, Warren Barrett; Pere Dupanloup, Cecil Ford.

There will be no admission charge.

Playmakers Preparing Mask Awards List

Players This Year Requested to Make Out Service Lists.

The Carolina Playmakers are preparing their list of recipients for the Mask awards presented each year at the spring capers to students who have done work of merit with the Playmaker group, and ask that all those who have done work with the group this season leave their names and records of their work at the theatre by Monday afternoon.

The awards are made on a basis of merit points which includes participation in performances, technical work, playwriting, and directing. A scale of merit points for the Mask award will be posted on the Playmakers' bulletin board, and all students concerned are asked to check this scale and leave their record immediately so that the awards may be ordered.

FLORAL SHOW

Dr. W. C. Coker attended the annual flower show in Raleigh Wednesday at the Sir Walter Hotel. The display consisted largely of ordinary garden flowers, such as roses and peonies, but there were also wild flowers on exhibit, among which was the Blazing Star, a native of this section.

RANKIN GETS CLASS POST

Ray Rankin of Wilmington was elected president yesterday of the senior class of the law school for the coming year. Other officers are: vice-president, N. A. Townsend, Charlotte; treasurer, Barry Groves Connor, Wilson; secretary, L. H. Fountain, Tarboro.

Party for Faculty Wives

All faculty women of Chapel Hill are invited to a garden party to be given on the east lawn of the girls' campus at Duke University Tuesday from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. In case of rain, the party, given by the Faculty Women's Club of Duke, will be in East Duke building on the girls' campus.

Chemical Society Plans To Meet Here in '37

The American Chemical Society decided at a recent meeting in New York to hold its meeting for spring of 1937 in Chapel Hill. This is very unusual, for the membership is about 18,000 and the attendance is so large that the meetings are usually held in cities where there are ample hotel accommodations.

The society will meet during the spring vacation in order to secure sleeping quarters in the dormitories for a large number of the attending members. The session will last from Monday through Saturday, with the society divided into groups for the purpose of making talks and discussing researches and industries. There will be banquets and excursions to nearby cities to inspect factories.

This is by far the biggest organization to convene in Chapel Hill, members coming from all over the United States. Much credit is due Dr. Cameron of the chemistry department, who originated the idea, and proposed it to the society secretary, who was favorably impressed by the University campus.

MED SCHOOL EXAMINED BY VISITING COMMITTEE

The University medical school has recently been visited by a survey committee which will make a report on its findings before a meeting of the Association of American Medical Colleges in Toronto next fall.

The committee was appointed by the American Medical Association, the Association of American Medical Colleges, and the National Association of Medical Examination Boards. The official rating of the University medical school will largely depend on this report.

PARDON US

A correction on the article in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL concerning Miss Mary Dudley. Miss Dudley will have a position in the University library at Chapel Hill rather than at the Woman's College library in Greensboro.

Institute of Folk Music

The Institute of Folk Music met yesterday afternoon in the office of R. M. Grumman, extension division director, to consider plans for reorganization of the department. The name will probably be changed to the Institute of Folk Lore.

FIGURES ON NEW DEAL

We are indebted to the Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer for another little item. It is meant to be the latest set of statistics on the New Deal, compiled by a local business man:

Total population of U. S.		124,000,000
Less eligibles for Townsend plan		50,000,000
		74,000,000
Less those on government payroll and relief		30,000,000
		44,000,000
Less those debarred from work by child labor law		30,000,000
		14,000.000
Less those unemployed		13,999,998
Total left to support nation		2

The two left, as you are aware, are you and me. I'm tired and worn out so that leaves the whole job to you.

This is a very pertinent observation. The only suggestion we have to make is that we leave you out of it too. There's no sense in pooping out the last pillar of our society.

CAUTE ET CANDE

Most of us are glad that we will have the opportunity of hearing Mr. David Clark Tuesday night. Everyone is expecting some rather harsh denunciations of Chapel Hill and its "liberalism" and Mr. Clark will satisfy himself for once that every word he says will at least reach the ears of the subjects or objects thereof.

We believe Mr. Clark will find this conservative undergraduate body anti-radical and resentful of his repeated "red-baitings," because of its very conservative make-up. When we say conservative we don't mean "non-liberal"; in our mind, conservatism as applied to this campus means caute et cande, the caution in the long run bringing about consistency, and the candor giving us that "liberal" air which marks all fair considerations.

Mr. Clark presumably has many things to say. With our traditional open mind, we should listen and take note. He is speaking for many in the state and we may have something to tell them every one after we hear their presentation.

MUCH YET REMAINS

Dr. Lee M. Brooks, who will be on leave from the University for a year in Alabama, is a member of one of the most brilliant sociology departments in the nation, our own Alumni Building outfit.

In a changing economic and social and political era, it is natural that research in social science is perhaps the most important field in education. Regional planning, problems of crime and poverty, wealth and sanitation, life in the new order, call for intense study and consideration and it is here that the sociologist, co-operating with the economist and the administrator, plans for America's future.

Mr. Brooks' absence will be felt in a department where so much is to be done and is being done.

Survey Reveals Still Further Failings Among Carolina Greek-Letter Lodges

Fraternities Agree That Inter-fraternity Council Is Inefficient; House Mothers, "Civilizing Influence," Inactive and Scarce—They Cramp Brothers' Style.

Carolina's inter-fraternity council is regarded by most member houses as an extremely ineffectual organization.

When interviewed by survey-workers from this journal, Greek-letter men stated their belief that the Pan-Hellenic Council has failed to achieve the unity among fraternities which is generally regarded as its purpose. Its history has been marked by inactivity; its place among campus organizations has aroused no envy.

According to general belief, the council enjoys a happy hibernation in the interval between the publicizing of rushing rules in the fall and the uproarious banquet for its members in the spring.

Expect Improvement

However, the status of the Pan-Hellenic group is expected to improve as a result of the recently adopted system of having chapter presidents represent their houses on the council. This plan will give a greater authority to the council's decisions because of the greater authority of the representatives.

At least, it is expected to obviate the policy which fraternities have pursued of grooming younger brothers for the council presidency by sending them down as members before their senior year.

Fraternity Purpose

"What do you consider the purpose of a fraternity?" was another question on the survey. In general the answers repeated the age-old platitude that fraternities exist to unite kindred souls. In other cases the responses were marked by a say-nothing-and-be-safe attitude.

From all the impromptu answers the following was, perhaps, the least indefinite: "The purpose of a fraternity is, in a great measure, implied in the word itself: to band together a congenial group of boys for the mutual benefiits which may be secured from each other's company, and to carry out the idea that in learning to live with others one may, in a measure, learn to live a better and more serviceable life after college days are over."

The truth of the matter is that fraternities don't know

BALTIMORE RABBI WILL APPEAR HERE

Jewish Theologian and Scholar Edward Israel to Speak Under Auspices of "Y."

Rabbi Edward Israel, eminent Jewish theologian of Baltimore, Md., will speak Tuesday and Wednesday nights in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A.

The address Tuesday night will be at 7:30 in order not to conflict with the student entertainment program, and the meeting on Wednesday will be at 8 o'clock.

Rabbi Israel, who is well-known on the campus for his work here last summer, has chosen as his subjects, "The Social Ideals of Hebrew Prophets," and "The Social Needs of Modern Judaism." Rabbi Israel is a profound scholar in economics and sociology and is deeply interested in social planning. In his address Wednesday night he will probably deal with the situation of Jews in Germany along with other phases of the Jewish problem.

Rabbi Israel is a member of the Har Sinai congregation of Baltimore.

CIVIL SERVICE POSITIONS

Open competitive examinations for appointments to the United States Civil Service have been announced by the United States Civil Service Commission. Positions to be filled by these tests are: architects and architectural engineers, various positions, $2,600 to $5,600 a year, in the forest service, department of agriculture, treasury department, and veterans' administration; taxation economists, various grades, $2,600 to $4,600 a year, in forest service and the department of agriculture.

Full information as to time and place of examinations may be obtained from S. W. Bynum at the post office here.

PLAYMAKERS BILL FIVE NEW DRAMAS

Plays Written in Quarter's Play-Writing Course to Be Produced Tomorrow Night.

Light and funny will be the general tone of the Playmaker experimental productions tomorrow night, except for Charles Poe's tragedy, "Hangman's Noose."

The five new dramas, written in the playwriting course this quarter, will be shown on the Playmaker stage beginning at 7:30 p. m.

William Wangs "So It Will Last," is a real 18th century romance, with an inkeeper's daughter, three gamblers, a blue-blood lord nick-named "Mad Jack," and an old fiddler. Carl Thompson is the director, and Jane Ross will play her "fiddle."

A Greenwich Village tea-room is the scene of Joseph Lee Brown's "modern tea-room comedy," "The Best Butter," directed by Jean Walker.

"A satiric interlude" is the bill's description of "Virtue," a textile town story written by Leonard Rapport and directed by Patsy McMullan.

The scene of Poe's play, directed by Kenneth Bartlett, is a modern southern town on a midsummer day.

The final production, "Bathroom Echoes" or "The Tale of a Tub," is described by Author-Director Walter Terry as a "slightly ribald farce of character."

The recently adopted practice of criticism between plays by the audience will be followed in the productions tomorrow night. Everyone interested is invited to come.

Still Down

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were E. D. Whitley, J. H. Murnick, and W. L. Heady.

RAPP'S ORCHESTRA ENDS POPULAR SET

Senior Week Closes with Senior Ball Last Night; Orchestra Wins Fine Reception.

A gay and crowded Senior Week ended last night with the farewell strains of the music of Barney Rapp's New Englanders, supplying rythm for the senior ball.

With its smooth, windy playing, Rapp's orchestra won hearty acclaim and proved one of the brightest features of the colorful week-end.

Chi Phi House Party

A list omitted in yesterday's story, of the young ladies at the Chi Phi house party follows:

Martha Skinner, Winston-Salem; Douglas McDonald, Harrisonburg, Va.; Elaine Schmidt, Hannasqua, N. J.; Caroline Cooper, Oxford; Catherine Alford, Raleigh; Garnelle Rainey, Salisbury; Frances Lashley, Sanford; Kit Threlkeld, Charlotte; Dot Bradley, Burlington; Raggie Mann, Greensboro; Gene Knight, Atlanta; Jane Goodwin, Greensboro; Eleanor Echols, Greensboro.

Evelyn Barbee, Durham; Louisa Carpenter, Gastonia; Margaret Sears, Winston-Salem; Mary Louise Wurst, Franklin; Mary Baptist, Calyton, Ga.; Eleanor Nunn, Greensboro; Gladys Fortune, Greensboro; Helen Lewis, Raleigh; Mabel Miller, New York; Elizabeth Torrence, Charlotte.

Chaperones: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Armstrong, Chapel Hill.

Results Of Survey Show Spring Is Here

We wish to nnounce once and for all that spring, that intangible something that supposedly turns young men's thoughts lightly to love and which offers such a plenteous source of copy to columnists, is here.

Spring is undeniably, irrefutably, and beyond the shadow of a doubt (no one has doubted it anyway) here. As a matter of fact spring has been here for almost two months, or something like that.

DAILY TAR HEEL investigators have been vainly striving for several weeks for tangible evidence upon which to base this startling information. Of course they had their suspicions, but there was something lacking. Suddenly, like a tiger pouncing upon its prey, they had it! The buildings department had made its annual gesture of putting up keep-off-the-grass fences.

Deductions followed deductions . . . to put up fences to keep people off grass meant there was grass somewhere around . . . if grass was now where grass wasn't recently, then grass was growing! Hah! And grass grows in the spring (or so they have been told). Simple, wasn't it?

Be it understood here and now, that no more reference is to be made in the sheets of this newspaper announcing the arrival of this epochal period of the year.

Strike In Printing Plant To Cause Delay In Yackety Yack Delivery

Annuals Will Be Mailed To Students Individually

Company, Not P. U. Board, Must Bear $500 to $800 Extra Cost for Mailing.

UNION ASKS CLOSED SHOP

This year's Yackety Yack, following and surpassing the example of Alex Andrews' book last spring, will not be out on time.

A strike which went into effect Monday in the plant of the Queen City Printing Company will prevent that company's delivering the Carolina annuals as per schedule by May 27-28.

The strike, which is confined to the Queen City Printing plant, occurred after the refusal of the owners to accede to the union's demand for a closed shop. As far as is known on this campus, the workers had no other complaints.

Company Fights Back

Although the company is endeavoring to bring in other printers to do the work on the Yackety Yack and the other college annuals which it handles, it is practically certain that the delay which has already occurred, even if the strike were to end immediately, will make it impossible for the yearbooks to be delivered before the end of school.

Because the delivery date is specified by contract, the delay will cost the Publications Union Board nothing; the estimated $500 to $800 expense of mailing the books to each student will have to be borne by the Printing company.

New Co-ed President

She might be a beauty contest winner, but she's really the recently-elected president of the Woman's Association, Miss Jane Ross, sophomore member of Chi Omega.

Miss Ross, who is a native of Charlotte, is a talented violinist and a member of the University Symphony Orchestra and the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

She also belongs to the University Club.

SIGMA DELTA TOPS SCHOLARSHIP LIST OF FRATERNITIES

Local Group Followed by Pi Beta Phi, S. A. E., Chi Omega, Chi Phi, Z. B. T.

S. A. E. WINS CUP AGAIN

Sigma Delta, local fraternity on the campus, made the highest fraternity scholastic average during the winter quarter—2.32—it was reported yesterday by Dr. G. K. G. Henry, assistant registrar.

Pi Beta Phi, sorority, was second with a grade of 2.34. Sandwiched between two sororities, Sigma Alpha Epsilon came third with a rating of 2.39, followed by Chi Omega with 2.41. Next in order of rating were: Chi Phi, Zeta Beta Tau, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Phi Kappa Sigma.

Cup to S. A. E.

Sigma Delta, however, is not eligible for the men's fraternity cup, since it is not a national fraternity. The cup, consequently, goes to S. A. E. again.

The scholastic averages were determined by counting grades on a basis of one point for a grade of "A," two for "B," and so on to six for "F." The fraternity average for the winter quarter was 2.80, with 425 students counted, an improvement over the 3.02 of the fall quarter, with 410 students counted. In the fall quarter, Phi Beta Pi and Chi Omega topped the list.

For the year 1932-33, Sigma Delta led all fraternities with a score of 2.16. In 1933-34, Chi Omega was highest with 2.41.

Smith Junior Pharmacy Head

W. J. Smith of Morganton has been elected president of the junior class of the University pharmacy school. Other officers are: Joe Watson of Rocky Mount, vice-president, and Horace Kee of Gumberry, secretary-treasurer.

GROVES TO SPEAK ON SEX EDUCATION

Sociologist Will Address Sophomore Cabinet on Mental and Sex Hygiene Tomorrow.

Dr. Ernest R. Groves of the University sociology department will deliver the first of two addresses on sex education at the meeting of the sophomore cabinet tomorrow night at 7:15.

The addresses, which Dr. Groves will give on consecutive Mondays, beginning tomorrow, will be on these subjects, "Mental Hygiene" and "Sex Hygiene." These addresses are in line with the prevalent feeling that adequate sex instruction should be given to college students early in their career.

Dr. Groves, whose course on marriage is one of the most popular on the campus, is an eminent sociologist in a department which is rapidly gaining for itself national recognition. Dr. Groves is also one of the editors of "Social Forces," a sociological quarterly published by the University Press.

All students are especially invited to attend these addresses.

Elisha Mitchell Society

Meeting for the last time this year, the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will hold its annual business session Tuesday night at 7:30 in 206 Phillips hall. Speakers for the occasion are Dr. A. E. Ruark of the physics department, whose subject will be "The Wave-Like Properties of Matter," and J. M. Valentine of the zoology department, who will speak on "Sympathetic Evolution."

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, HUDSON; NIGHT, SMITH

LET THERE BE LIGHT

The DAILY TAR HEEL should not be an unpopular publication. If we expect to get anywhere in our efforts to improve our University community, we should work constructively rather than destructively toward that end.

Our policies have been motivated with this in mind. Our files are filled with data which has been collected by students so that a constructive criticism backed by facts can be evolved and presented. Ours has not been the idea to fight any- and everything just because we have the best medium for doing so.

Nevertheless, we have received some adverse criticism. We have been accused of being biased and unfair. We have been scored for editorializing in news columns and picking out personalities.

We ask this question: if we give praise to individuals for their achievements, because we are proud of them as they work for our University, have we not the same right to condemn them when they are shirking their responsibilities, their loyalties and their obligations?

We believe there is no distinguishing between our policies of helping the good and scorching the bad when the common end of University improvement, University progress, is in mind. And our path should not deviate because some of the things we have to say are unpleasant and others pleasant.

We are not trying to be "bold" or "courageous." If you think it is fun to put in a good one-third of your college life at hard work just for the doubtful honor of being "fearless," as you may say, then you are greatly mistaken. If there were no motivating force, which in our case is love for the University and what it stands for, then there would be no progress in our college journalism. And we believe that with every fact we collect, with every improvement we have a part in effecting, we are making progress. And so we shall continue to progress.

If you want a non-policy, middle-of-the-road journal, you are going to be disappointed and perhaps upset. We are no more intelligent than you are, but any efforts which we make, whether right or wrong in our own youthful blundering, must have the effect of unloosing some intelligence on the campus that certain things for our own undergraduate betterment may come about.

It is your paper and you have the right to help shape its policies. But we ask that you give the same consideration to us that we do to you. If we disagree, your point shall be represented. That is, if you will let us know what your point is. Otherwise, we will try to get a cross-section representation just as we have thus far: by gathering together unofficial intelligentsia to help guide us in our stands for University goodness.

GIVE IT TO THE BUSY MAN

The fraternity scholastic averages for the winter quarter showed quite a jump upwards, skipping up on Dr. Henry's scale over a full one-fifth of a point, which is a considerable rise.

Very few houses had a lower rating during the winter quarter than during the fall. What this may show regarding internal efforts we do not know; there are the commonplace reasons which have been applied in past years, considering less outside attractions to divert our minds from our books.

What is interesting is to note that the winter quarter is our shortest. And our grades consistently show an increase for most fraternities. This might put skids under the notions of some faculty members that we are cramming too much into too little space. It looks like Carolina students can "take it."

Now YOU'RE Talking

Because of limited space, the DAILY TAR HEEL in the future will accept no letters for publication which are more than 200 words long.

A WORD TO THE . . .

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I think you are due some scathing criticism for the way you have attacked certain personalities on this campus and in the town of Chapel Hill. Why you have libeled—yes, libeled—a Chapel Hill policeman and have attacked a prominent athlete for an affair about which you do not know the facts is beyond all comprehension. Understand I am holding no brief for either of the above-mentioned parties, but are you yourself sure that you aren't doing all this name-calling and personality "plucking" just to convince your readers (and possibly yourself) that you are "fearless," "independent," "courageous," or some other adjective used for a "relentless attacker and prober"?

May I have your attention a moment longer? Please stop editorializing in your news columns. Outside of this fault and the one mentioned in the above paragraph I think you have improved the DAILY TAR HEEL very much, except for a couple of columns—the silly twaddle of Wolslagel and the still more inane drivel of Page.

Now how about investigating (if you haven't already done so) the Y. M. C. A., the Student Advisory Board, the Inter-fraternity Council, and a few more organizations which may be fulfilling their duties to the best of their abilities but about which the students in general know very little.

Now may I submit a plan of my own (?)? Why not begin classes at 9 o'clock and have chapel period at 8:30? This seems to me to be much the more plausible than holding the first class at 8 or 8:30, especially more so than the former. Think of the extra hour (or half-hour) of sleep in the mornings. Everyone would be fresher and brighter. Some may argue that students would just stay up that much longer at night. For what?

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

What with textile manufacturers protesting against the processing tax, Hoover "A modern Paul Revere, awakening and calling the country back to the constitution," a widespread dubiousness of what President Roosevelt intends to do with his "four billion dollar campaign fund," and industrial strikes apparently as unavoidable as ever, it is becoming more strongly obvious each day that the New Deal is not all that it was once thought to be. Such an opinion, should it become universal, can spell only doom for the already toppling NRA.

The President is finding that some of those around him are no longer willing to play the part of docile yes-men as they have in the past. The rejection of Richberg's two-year NRA continuance plea, and the passage of the Patman bonus bill in face of the promised presidential veto may without any great stretch of imagination, be taken as evidence of a changing attitude in the legislature.

And speaking of the Patman bill, even Republicans are complimenting President Roosevelt on the stand he has taken. In hard times there is a marked tendency to judge everything from a financial point of view. The rejected Vinson bonus bill was made on the grounds that it would further unbalance the budget to the extent of over two billon dollars. The Patman bill neatly refutes this argument by authorizing the treasury to issue two billion dollars in nice new printing press money. That, they say, is dangerous monetary experimentation and the greater of two evils.

The Senate has been accused of indulging in "American politics at its worst" for yielding to the Legion lobby and 100,000 letters reputedly inspired by Father Coughlin, and excusing itself with a rationalization. By passing the Patman bill, senators have satisfied the Legion, avoiding in that way the loss of a large veteran vote. Yet, since it was apparent at the time that President Roosevelt would veto the bill, no real harm could come from passing it despite considerable public objection and what many senators themselves really think of paying the bonus in full some 10 years before it is due.

Despite Virgil Lee, despite the Liberty League—despite everything and everybody, Carolina students show a decided tendency to bear toward the left—at least when walking around the board fences put up on the lower campus recently. They were conservative in one respect, though: they still insist upon maintaining the old custom of walking on the grass.

I received a letter, the other day, enclosing the caption:

Pigs HAVE Wings

By Milton K. Kalb

POOR, MARTYRED FRIEND, Mr. C. A. P. Your state university for the state is being taken over by radicals and foreigners. Poor C. A. P., to have had "your education fostered here for six years" and yet to remain so unenlightened. Poor old C. A. P., with your nineteenth century ideas of insularity. Poor old C. A. P., compare your ideas with those of 60-year young Judge Winston, who says, "The old idea of isolation is strangling the south. It must awaken, embrace new ideas, new people."

THE BIG NAVY SO LONG and arduously fought for by Billie Hearst (he is not yet satisfied, and wants a still bigger one "to protect American shores from foreign invaders") is now maneuvering some thousands of miles away from our shores in the Pacific—perilously close to Japan—so close to Japan that if any foreign fleet similarly approached us our patriots would be hollering for the Marines, National Guard and the D. A. R. to chase the invaders away. Seriously, though, we are tempting fate in giving the gold braid men the chance to play around so far from home. What if one of our battleships, anchored in a Japanese port on a peaceable mission, or for repairs, were to blow up? It would be another "Remember the "Maine" incident. We would be embroiled in a war with a people against whom we have absolutely no quarrel. After all, it is well known that the military boys are just itching to try out some of their newly acquired toys and tricks on targets slightly more alive than are found on the target field. It is impossible not to be pessimistic when one realizes that one man can start a war. One man, placing one bomb, in the boiler-room of one cruiser, anchored in one Japanese port, can precipitate a horrible conflict—what with the Hearst papers and the other jingoistic sheets ready to paint the Japs as devourers of women and children, or in some other equally stupid way, hoodwink the gullible public. Therefore, STUDENTS, keep your eyes open and REMEMBER "Remember the Maine."

"BONUS BACKERS ARM FOR Fight" is headline in Friday's paper. Truly, the bonus BACKERS arming is a darned sight more than many bonus SEEKERS did 20 years ago until they were forced to by the threat of the committee."

OH FOR THE LIFE OF A dance commiteeman. Honest, uncorruptible boys that they are, how it must pain them to have so many students going around the campus saying, "You want a bid? Okay, $3.50. I'll have it for you this afternoon, I'm getting some from ——— on the commitee."

CONGRATULATIONS TO "Now You're Talking" McCain and McNeir for their splendid vindication of Dr. Ericson (to think that he ever needed vindication) and for their fight for free speech on this campus.

PHONE 4351 — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MAY 12, 1935 — "FOR CAROLINA SPORTSMANSHIP"

Carolina Beats Navy 72-54 To Keep Slate Inviolate; Abernethy Sets New Mark

Patterson Is Star; Garners 16 Points

Teams Split Even in Firsts, but Carolina Amasses Sufficient Places to Take Victory.

WILLIAMSON WINS TWO

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Annapolis, Md., May 11.—Carolina's "Flying Tar Heels" made it four and nothing in their dual series with the U. S. Naval Academy here this afternoon, taking the Midshipmen by a 72-54 count on their own track.

The meet was expected to be considerably closer, and there were even some of the opinion that Navy would put a finish to the Tar Heel winning streak. However, with the entire Carolina squad putting on a good exhibition the Middies again succumbed.

Abernethy Breaks Record

Frank Abernethy stole the record-breaking spotlight by creating the day's only new mark—14.7 for the 120-yard high hurdles, .1 second faster than the existing meet record.

Two more wins were chalked up on Harry Williamson's long list as the brilliant Tar Heel performer captured the 880 and mile events. In both races Carolina men followed him across the line, Gardiner in the former and Gabori in the latter.

Navy rooters weren't "tooting their horns" any too much when they praised Patterson as the outstanding Navy performer. This speedy Midshipman was the winner in both the 220-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles, and was runner-up in the 100 and broad jump, giving him high score for the meet with 16 points.

Split Firsts

Both teams split even in first places, but Carolina's ability to amass a goodly amount of place points earned for them the victory. Other first places taken by Navy were the javelin throw by Bakutis of 205 feet, a four-way tie in the high jump, the pole vault by Metcalf, the discus by Decker, and Davis's win over Drake in the 440.

Ed Waldrop and Fab Haywood crossed the finish line in a tie for the two-mile win. Co-Captain Charlie Hubbard returned to action as he led Patterson and Floyd Higby in the 100-yard dash, with the fine time of 10 seconds flat. Higby came back in the broad jump and reversed positions with Hubbard, while Patterson was again second. Tom Evins continued his good work in the shot, taking the event with a heave of 45 feet 5¾ inches.

100-yard dash—Hubbard (C), Patterson (N), Higby (C). Time: 10.

220-yard dash — Patterson (N), Farmer (C), Laster (N). Time: 22.1.

440-yard run—Davis (N), Drake (C), Farmer (C). Time: 50.7.

880-yard run — Williamson (C), Gardiner (C), Gabori (C). Time: 1:57.8.

Mile run—Williamson (C), Gabori (C), Shetenhelm (N). Time: 4:30.3.

Two mile run—Tie for first between Waldrop (C) and Haywood (C); Stuessi (N). Time: 9:58.

220-yard low hurdles — Patterson (N), Abernethy (C), Wrigley (N). Time: 24.7.

120-yard high hurdles—Abernethy (C), Hawthorne (C), Wrigley (N). Time: 14.7 (new meet record).

Shot put—Evins (C), Wrenn (C), Bessen (N). Distance: 45 feet 5¾ inches.

Discus—Decker (N), Barwick (C), Evins (C). Distance: 124 feet 5 inches.

Javelin — Bakutis (N), Armfield (C), Bell (N). Distance: 205 feet.

Miss Lawson Loses

Miss Estelle Lawson lost to Miss Kathryn Hemphill 1 down in 36 holes in the final round yesterday of the women's Carolina golf tournament in Greenville, S. C., over Miss Hemphill's home course.

The morning round of 18 holes resulted in a tie, and the match was not decided until the 36th hole.

Miss Lawson is a member of Chi Omega sorority.

LARGE TOURNEYS TOP SPORTS CARD

Carolina Favored in Both Southern Conference Track and Tennis Meets This Week.

Headed by the Southern Conference tennis tournament here next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and the Conference track meet at Duke Friday and Saturday, the University of North Carolina's sports teams will enter into the most important week of their schedules.

The varsity baseball team will play three games next week—Wake Forest there Monday; Duke here Wednesday, and Duke at Greensboro Saturday night, while the freshman baseball team will play the Duke freshmen there Monday and here Saturday.

Before the Conference tennis tourney the tennis team will meet Virginia here Wednesday.

The Tar Heels have a good chance of coming through with championships in both the track and tennis meets. The netters have lost but one match this season, and that a defeat at the hands of Princeton on the eastern tour. The tracksters will be defending their Conference outdoor title taken last year at Duke.

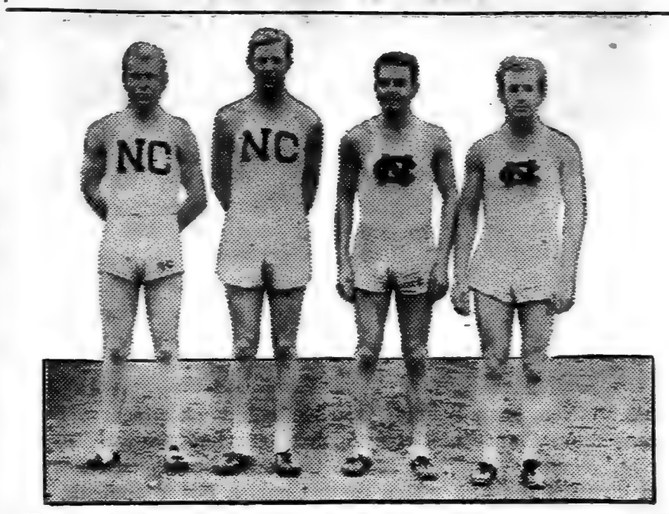
The varsity baseball team will end this year's series with Wake Forest Monday, and complete three of its games with Duke in the Greensboro night game Saturday. While the Tar Heels haven't made such a fine showing this season, they will be out to trim Duke.

Next week's schedule:

Monday: Wake Forest there (varsity baseball); Duke there (freshman baseball).

Wednesday: Duke here (varsity baseball); Virginia here (varsity tennis).

Thursday: Southern Conference tournament here (tennis).



Friday: Southern Conference tournament here (tennis); Southern Conference meet at Duke (track).

Saturday: Conference tournament here (tennis); Conference meet at Duke (track); Duke at Greensboro (varsity baseball); Duke here (freshman baseball).

N. W. Walker Improved

N. W. Walker of the University faculty, who was taken to Watts hospital as a result of a heart attack week before last, has improved in the last few days.

They Sank the Navy!

Tennis Team Ends Northern Trip With Shutout Win Over Dana 9-0

One Set Lost as Harold Schein, Newark Flash, Extends Harris; Tour Comes to Close with Tar Heels Having Record of Five Wins to Sole Defeat by Princeton.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Newark, N. J., May 11.—Under perfect weather conditions and before an enthusiastic crowd of former Tar Heels, the Carolina netters ended their northern tour with a flourish this afternoon, defeating Dana College at Newark, N. J., 9-0.

The only match to go three sets was the opening encounter when Harold Schein, former boys' national indoor champion, captured the second set from Harvey Harris. Harris won the first set 6-1, and then dropped a bitter second one 9-7. However, the Newark lad was unable to stop Harris from that point, and the Carolina star won the last set in love games.

Love Set Victory

Every other match went in rapid order to the touring Tar Heels. Frank Shore was the only player to score in love sets, trampling Kuchinsky 6-0, 6-0.

This match marked the end of the trip which has lasted eight days. The only match dropped was to the powerful Princeton Tigers, Carolina losing 7-2.

Among the victims were Virginia, Army, Yale, Williams, Amherst, and Dana. The match with Rutgers University was rained out.

The tennis team returns today and will begin training for the Southern Conference meet opening at Chapel Hill on Thursday. One match will be contested with Virginia on Wednesday as a warm-up to this all important conference tournament.

The scores follow:

Harris (C) over Schein, 6-1, 7-9, 6-0.

Willis (C) over Tompkins, 6-1, 6-4.

Levitan (C) over Gertwegan, 6-1, 6-1.

De Gray (C) over Rawitz, 6-0, 6-1.

Shore (C) over Kuchinsky, 6-0, 6-0.

Henderson (C) over Trachtenberg, 6-2, 6-1.

De Gray-Levitan (C) over Schein-Gertwegan, 6-1, 6-1.

Shore-Willis (C) over Tompkins-Rawitz, 6-2, 6-3.

Abels-Henderson (C) over Kuchinsky-Trachtenberg, 6-1, 6-2.

WOMEN ATHLETES FACE FULL WEEK

Elsie Lawrence Announces Big List of Sports Activities.

University co-eds have a full week of athletic events before them, according to Elsie Lawrence, former president of the Woman's Association, who released the week's program yesterday.

Monday through Friday afternoons those co-eds who are interested, will meet with Coch Kenfield at 2 o'clock for tennis instruction and play.

Monday and Wednesday co-ed archers will meet at 4 o'clock in Kenan stadium to practice their art.

Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 8:30 the Graham Memorial bowling alleys will be reserved for the use of women students.

There will be an important meeting of the Woman's Athletic Association staff Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the Woman's Association room in Graham Memorial.

CROUCH OUTHURLS WEAFER, DUKE ACE

Weafer Breaks Up Ball Game In Fourth by Doubling With Bases Full.

PLAY AGAIN WEDNESDAY

Carolina opened its three-game series with Duke on the baseball diamond yesterday afternoon, and bowed 7-2 to the strong Blue Devil team. This marked the Tar Heel's final opportunity to make any headway in the state baseball race.

Fred Crouch, Carolina ace, pitched a fine game, allowing one less hit than Hal Weafer, Duke's outstanding hurler. Crouch gave up nine hits while the Tar Heels garnered 10 safeties but failed to convert more than two times. Weafer struck out seven men, however, in his conquest.

Two costly errors gave Duke the opportunity to score early runs that resulted in the ball game.

Tatum Gets Triple

Jim Tatum, Carolina backstop, proved to be the Tar Heel hitting power, connecting for a single and a triple. Tom Irwin also hit twice for Carolina but was unable to push across a tally.

Carolina stepped into an early lead in the third inning when Trip Rand doubled with Groome on base. This score was short-lived as Duke retaliated in the fourth with four runs on three hits. A double by Hal Weafer, Duke hurler, scored three during this wild rally.

Two more hits in the fifth gave Duke two additional runs and a comfortable 6-1 advantage. Carolina finally scored again in the ninth when Montgomery crossed the plate.

This defeat by the Blue Devils has about ended Carolina hopes for the diamond race. However, two more games are on tap with Duke, one Wednesday and one on Saturday. The Tar Heels will be gunning for the series and will probably send Crouch against Duke again on Wednesday.

Frosh Ball Club Faces Duke Again Tomorrow

The yearling nine will be out to gain their third consecutive triumph over the Duke frosh when the second half of their four-game series gets underway tomorrow afternoon in Durham.

With decisive 10-5 and 8-3 wins to their credit in the first two games, the Tar Babies are determined to sweep the series and thus make up for an otherwise mediocre season.

John Humphries, ace Carolina moundsman, who pitched the Babies to their victories over their Durham rivals, will once again toe the mound for the Chapel Hillians. Chubby Dean is his likely opponent.

Survey

what they're for, or believe that they have no other raison d'etre than brotherhood. The following remark, heard at the last National Inter-Fraternity Conference, probably is true of this campus:

"The fraternity today exists on some campuses simply as a social club or as a dining club, or as a political organization to further the interests of certain members. No one blames the college administrators for questioning the utility of such an organization."

The survey also disclosed that only two fraternities have the civilizing influence of house mothers. That many fraternities do not have room or money for them probably explains why a large number protested that house mothers would "cramp their styles."

No fraternity has a masculine Emily Post, but some form of social instruction is said to be given to freshmen pledges at rat courts. Whether such instruction is very effective is open to doubt, especially since rat courts are usually occasions for great levity at the expense of the rats.

The little, informal social functions appear to be neglected; occasional large dances and house parties are generally the only attempts made at entertaining. Faculty members are invited around for dinner, but are usually fraternity brothers. The best plan which the surveyors found for developing the social graces was that of having open houses—or teas if Carolina masculinity can permit the hint of effeminacy—every other Sunday afternoon.

Carolina fraternities play a dominant part in extra-curricular affairs. Freshmen pledges are encouraged and sometimes pressed to participate; yet the primary purpose of such encouragement seems to be that of capturing the higher offices. There seems to be no thought of constructive accomplishment. After those freshmen with political ambitions have been started on their ways, fraternities feel their duty done.

In the Freshman Friendship Council elections large delegations attend from the various fraternities, seek to win all the offices for their own pledge brothers, and—whether successful or not—then forget the Y. M. C. A. for all time to come. This same attitude is held by Greek letter organizations towards other activities: they are extremely anxious to furnish the leaders but shy away from doing the work.

NEWS RELEASES TO END TILL FALL

School Service to Stop After Tomorrow; Personals Continue For Long-Term Schools.

The third release of the DAILY TAR HEEL high school news service, edited by Don McKee and Newton Craig, will be sent out to institutions in and around North Carolina tomorrow.

Featured in the bulletins this week will be briefs on the action of the faculty on the class extension plan, recent trends in dormitory self-government, the victories of Carolina athletic teams, Golden Fleece tapping, and senior week and the junior-senior dances.

In addition to the two regular mimeographed bulletins of general news about the University, 20-odd personal dispatches will be mailed to schools in the state telling recent accomplishments of alumni from these schools who are at Carolina.

The release of the DAILY TAR HEEL news service this week will be the last regular one this spring, due to the fact that the majority of the North Carolina schools operate on an eight-months basis. The news service of the DAILY TAR HEEL will continue, however, to send bulletins to all the schools remaining open until the DAILY TAR HEEL ceases publication.

Next fall the news service will be resumed and plans will be made to set up a conference at Chapel Hill for editors of high school publications.

COLLEGE COURSES WILL BE OFFERED ON WESTERN TOUR

Professor Emory to Accompany Tour as Instructor.

Mexico, Grand Canyon, California, Yellowstone and Washington state are among the attractions offered by the Southern Tours of Chapel Hill in the fifth annual western study tour to be conducted this summer.

Fifty-six days of sightseeing and geographical study in the central and western states will be included, along with courses offered under the direction of the University extension division. The Mexican tour includes a 31-day trip through the southeastern states and Mexico, beginning on June 15.

Along with Emory

S. T. Emory, faculty member of the geology department, will accompany the western tour, beginning on June 11, as an instructor. Courses will be offered in the geography of North America and in physical geography. College credit may be secured on the completion of these courses.

Further information may be secured from Southern Tours, Inc., Chapel Hill.

In New Colbert Picture

Joel McCrea, Joan Bennett, and Helen Vinson appear above in a scene from Claudette Colbert's new starring picture, "Private Worlds," coming tomorrow to the Carolina theatre. Gregory La Cava directed the film which casts Charles Boyer opposite Miss Colbert.

Blue-Clad Seniors End Week Of Being Campus Big Shots

Pool and His Mates Are "It" for Whole Week of Class Meetings, Games, and Dances.

Jack Pool and his blue-clad fellow members of the class of '35 have had a great time during the past week and now (though we don't believe it) they say that they are ready to get back to the grind again.

One thing that impresses us is the regalia that the seniors are sporting. The University has often patted itself on the back for making no distinction between upperclassmen and freshmen. The freshman, so 'tis said, is just as good as any other man on the campus.

No Rat Caps Here

It is for this reason that freshmen aren't made to wear rat caps, as is the custom at other institutions of higher learning. But we have a better system. We distinguish the seniors from the rest of the herd by having them dress up during the last few weeks of their stay with us so that no one can mistake them for something they aren't.

The class that is leaving us is a remarkable one in many ways. They have proved that they can best our faculty at one thing at least, the time-honored game of America, baseball.

The faculty fathers showed that they hadn't lost all their skill, however, and might well have upset the seniors in their classic one and a half-inning contest Monday afternoon had not the rain brought it to an unnatural end. It is rumored that another game will be played tomorrow afternoon, but no one seems to be sure about it.

Damndest Machine

The class had a lot of fun Tuesday night in expressing their inmost thoughts of each other. "Luke" Cromartie stepped into the limelight, being called the damndest machine. Others were labeled the best this or the most that.

Class Testator Charlie Poe and Class Prophet Carl Thompson delved into past and future respectively giving their fellow seniors ample evidence of their vast wisdom.

A feature of the week was the annual tapping of the Golden Fleece in Memorial hall Thursday night. Horace Williams, the grand old man of the organization, left a profound impression, as he always does, with his remarks. It is to be hoped that those men who were tapped by the Fleece will be "adequate men" and give the University something to be proud of in calling them her sons."

New Fleece Members

Something might be said about the new members of the Fleece themselves. Space doesn't permit a sketch of their individual achievements. Each of them is, however, the kind of fellow any of us is proud to know. The campus is grateful to the Fleece for recognizing them and the kind of stuff they are made of.

The week was drawn to a close amid the excitement and house-parties of junior-seniors. Everyone seemed to be happy. The dances proved a success at any rate.

The seniors have had their fling. In a few more weeks they will be leaving the campus with remorse.

White to Attend Spring Meetings of Chemists

Professor Will Speak to Students From 37 Chapters.

Dr. A. McLaren White, head of the department of chemical engineering, will attend the spring meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in Wilmington, Delaware, May 13-15. He will present a paper on "Pressure Drop and Loading Velocities in Pack Towers."

Following this meeting he will attend a conference on chemical engineering education in Wilmington, and on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18, the annual student meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Dr. White will speak to this gathering, which includes men from the 37 student chapters of the institute, on Saturday morning.

The student meeting is under the auspices of the Committee on Student Chapters, of which Professor White is chairman. Seven members of the University of North Carolina student chapter expect to attend the convention.

Tau Betes Install Officers

Tau Beta Pi held its annual installation banquet at the Carolina Inn Friday night. Dr. Archibald Henderson of the mathematics department spoke to the members of the society and their dates. Officers for the coming year are Henry Allison, president; Tom Gordy, vice-president; Angus Davis, recording secretary; Bob Neel, corresponding secretary; Ernest Eutsler, treasurer; and Selby Harney, cataloguer.

NEW COMIC OPERA FEATURES VOICES

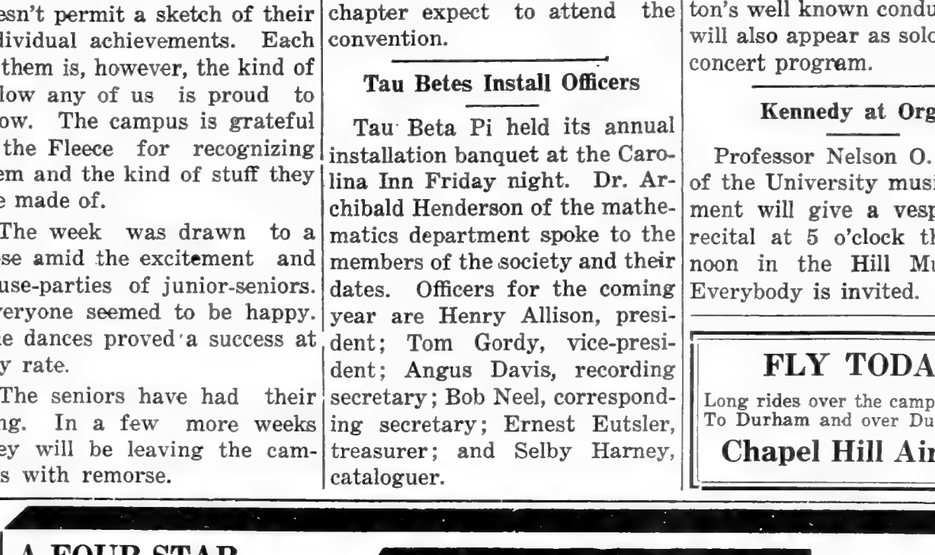
Tuesday Night's Student Entertainment Presentation Will Be Last for Season.

The Student Entertainment Committee offers its last presentation of the year to the campus Tuesday night with the comic opera, "The Secret of Suzanna."

The committee has planned from the beginning of the year to bring an entertainment of this sort to the student body. Original plans would have brought DeWolf Hopper's company in the Gilbert and Sullivan comic operetta, "The Mikado."

The comedy Tuesday night will be presented by the Boston Chamber Opera Company. The cast is composed of Gertrude Ehrhart, Hudson Carmody and Raymond Simonds, all of whom are noted for the quality of their voices.

Willem Frank, the pianist with the group, is one of Boston's well known conductors. He will also appear as soloist in the concert program.



Kennedy at Organ

Professor Nelson O. Kennedy of the University music department will give a vesper organ recital at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Hill Music hall. Everybody is invited.

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII | EDITORIAL PHONE 4351 | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MAY 14, 1935 | BUSINESS PHONE 4356 | NUMBER 169

by the Editor

QUIT CROWDING One thing that is very noticeable in our campus schedule is that every once in a while we have five or six events listed for a single evening and then, like a business cycle, there is a period of little or no activity.

Take tonight, for instance. We'll have Rabbie Israel, Preacher Clark and a Student Entertainment presentation all within a few minutes of each other, or simultaneously. Besides that there are a few other meetings and random cracks at textbooks.

Our system of making engagements on the campus calendar is not very effective and results in much disorder and irritation. Some sort of public scheduling should be effected to avoid depressions and prosperities in our activities cycle.

BECAUSE OF "NOT" We had a wonderful time yesterday afternoon chasing files and wiring Mr. Clark over in Charlotte.

First, we found from the New York Times that our recent crack at Mr. Clark about inserting a "not" in the Winant report was false. So we wired him and apologized.

Not satisfied with the way the report read with the particular "not inserted, we did some more searching and found from the Daily News Record and the New York Herald Tribune that the "not" was not meant to be in the report and that the Times and Mr. Clark's editorial were wrong. Mr. Clark had one issue previous written the report correctly, but had inserted the "not" when he started editorializing the following week.

So we wired Mr. Clark again and told him his error. In the meantime we had written a public correction of our error and this had to be pulled from the linotype. It's a great life.

LATE AGAIN It's too bad that the Yackety Yack will not be out on time again. Last year the Queen City folks swore it would not happen again but now that they're tied up with a strike, it looks like the wrong people swore. It should have been us, and in a different tone.

Usually the printer says that it's the editor's fault when the annual doesn't hit the deadline. This time, at least, no such note can be introduced, as Editor Drane has hit the dates on the head each time.

The strike, so we understand it, came about because the Queen City printers wouldn't accede to the union's demand for a closed shop. Unaccustomed as we are to public spanking and believing that the printers ought to know their trade better than we, who only write bad stuff for them to print, we have naught to say.

Except that when a printer promises to hit a deadline and also promises to look out for his labor, he'd better do both when it takes only one stone to kill both birds, with good-will sauce to boot.

EMINENT SINGERS WILL PLAY ROLES IN OPERA TONIGHT

One Act Comedy, "The Secret of Suzanna," Closes Student Entertainment Season.

PROGRAM BEGINS AT 8:30

The Boston Chamber Opera Company's light opera, "The Secret of Suzanna," will close the current Student Entertainment Series tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The opera, written by Wolf-Ferrari, the composer of "The Jewels of the Madonna," is one of the most popular of the one-act operas played in America. It has been such a favorite with opera audiences that it has long been included in the repertoire of the Chicago, Boston, and Metropolitan Opera Companies.

Eminent Cast

The cast of the opera is composed of several eminent artists. Miss Gertrude Ehrhart, the leading soprano, has acquired quite a reputation in the east, having been prima-donna with the Boston Chamber Opera Company since its organization.

Hudson Carmody, who plays the leading part of the Count, is a bass-baritone of some distinction. He recently returned from two years concentrated study in Europe to be the outstanding soloist in an all-Wagner program presented by Handel and Hayden of Boston.

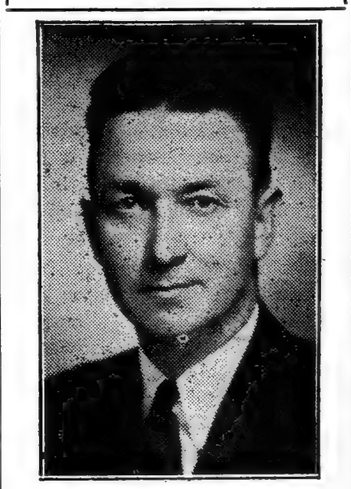
The part of a mute servant gives Raymond Simonds no opportunity to display his fine tenor voice. However, he will be heard in the concert which is supplementing the opera.

The pianist of the group is a well-known Boston conductor, Willem Frank, who will also appear as a soloist on the concert program.

ENGINEERS FACE 3 MAJOR ISSUES

Three major actions are to be taken by the students of the engineering school in their meeting scheduled for tomorrow at 10:30 in 206 Phillips hall.

The first duty confronting the engineers is the election of next year's editor and business manager of the Carolina Engineer. The second function to be carried out is the awarding of keys to the "Engineer's" present staff and editor, Walter King. The third thing to be settled may give rise to some controversy, that is, the consideration of joining in the student entertainment series.



Freshman Smoker

The date for the freshman smoker has been tentatively set for Thursday night of this week. The smoker will be held in Swain hall where freshmen and their dates will consume salad, ice tea, and ice cream, and inhale free cigarettes to the strains of Billy Kanoff's Swain hall band.

It was learned from the committee on the smoker that Dr. C. C. Crittenden is to be asked to speak and that various deans and doctors will be invited.

Historical Commissioner Newsome Is New History Department Head

Historian

Dr. Albert Ray Newsome, secretary of the N. C. Historical Commission and editor of the N. C. Historical Review, who has been appointed successor to Dr. R. D. W. Connor as head of the history department, subject to the approval of the trustees.

Dr. Newsome, formerly an assistant professor of history here, left the University in 1926.

Will Assume Duties Left by Dr. Connor

Secretary of North Carolina Commission Returns to Faculty After Nine Years.

TAKES OFFICE IN JULY

Dr. Albert Ray Newsome, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission and editor of the North Carolina Historical Review, has just been appointed by the University of North Carolina to succeed Dr. R. D. W. Connor as head of the history department, subject to the approval of the trustees, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Connor resigned to become United States archivist. Dr. Newsome will come to the University in July to begin his duties here.

Since leaving the University in 1926 as an assistant professor in history, Dr. Newsome has won high distinction in state and national historical work.

Becoming administrative head of what is regarded as one of the best state historical and archival agencies in the United States, he has done an admirable and distinctive work in collecting and publishing state history. In this position he succeeded Dean Robert B. House.

All A's

Dr. Newsome received his education at the public school in Marshville, and later his A. B. degree from the University in 1915. While here he was president of Phi Beta Kappa with the remarkable record of all A's and a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He held many other campus honors as an undergraduate.

After attending Columbia University in 1920 and 1921 he received his M. A. degree from the University of Michigan in 1922 and his Ph.D. degree in American history there in 1929.

As editor of the North Carolina Historical Review since 1926, and as secretary of the State Literary and Historical Association since 1926, he has been instrumental in a large measure for the establishment of the Mayflower Society Cup, an award for the best book of the year by a North Carolinian.

He was president of the national conference of Historical Societies from 1928-29, chairman of the public archives commission of the American Historical Association from 1932-34.

Handbook Manager

Applications for the position of business manager of the Carolina Freshman Handbook may be made until 10 o'clock tomorrow, it was announced yesterday.

Applications may be turned in at the Y. M. C. A. office, to the president of the "Y," and to the new Handbook editor, Don McKee. All who intend to apply for the business managership are urged to make application at the earliest time possible.

The applicants will be interviewed by the committee at chapel period tomorrow in the office of the Y. M. C. A.

Life Saving Course

The newly formed University Examiners' Club is sponsoring a senior life saving course which will begin at Sparrow's Pool Friday at 4 p. m., it was announced yesterday by Lee Greer.

The club will meet every day at the same hour and will continue for a week.

The course is open to both men and women above 17 years of age; and special rates for the use of the pool have been secured.

The instruction in life saving will be under the direction of John Brabson, Bob Williams, and Vernon Ward, who will be assisted by other members of the local organization.

Textile Bulletin Editor Dave Clark Arrives Tonight For Two Speeches

German Club To Finish Quarter Tomorrow

Dr. Meno Spann will use pictures from Carl Schurz Memorial Foundations to illustrate his talk on "Lessing and His Type" tomorrow at the last meeting of the German Club this quarter.

The talk will be concerning the importance of Lessing in German literature, his contemporaries, and the poet's biographical and cultural background. Dr. Spann announced that election of new officers would be conducted. Charlie Lloyd is now president and Dr. Meno Spann is faculty-adviser.

This is the last meeting of the German Club this quarter, but the club will be continued during the summer at which time Dr. Spann will attempt to introduce the German ball game. "It is a hard and fast game," said Dr. Spann, "not like any of the English games."

ISRAEL TO SPEAK HERE AT 7:30 P.M.

Noted Jewish Theologian and Author Will Speak in Gerrard Under Auspices of "Y."

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, noted Baltimore theologian and author, speaks tonight in Gerrard hall at 7:30 under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Rabbi Israel has chosen as his subject for tonight "The Social Ideals of Hebrew Prophets."

As a profound scholar in economics, sociology, and religion, Rabbi Israel has written several books on social problems, among them "The Western Maryland Railroad Strike" and "The Centralia Tragedy." This eminent Jew is a former summer school lecturer here at the University.

Rabbi Israel is editor of "Bulletin of the Commission on Social Justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis." He is contributing editor of "The World Tomorrow" and a member of the Har Sinai congregation of Baltimore.

Senior Invitations Will Have Novelties

Will Be in Nature of Scrap-Book; Go on Sale Today.

Departing from the usual list of the class and program of commencement exercises, the graduation invitations this year will feature a history of the senior class.

The invitations, which will go on sale today from 2 until 5 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., are on the order of a scrapbook, telling the story of the class of '35 from the time it pensioned Negro Janitor Andrew Johnson to the recent Human Relations Institute.

The booklet contains pictures of the charter members of the University Club, the committee on freshman orientation, Memorial hall, the bell tower, and Graham Memorial, all structures completed during the period in which the class attended the University.

This is the first time that so novel a plan has been carried out in a class commencement program. All the projects which the class initiated, and the changes with which they were intimately concerned, are presented in the program in addition to the usual information.

Comes to Carolina For Liberty League

Charlottonian Asserts That His Attacks Not Leveled Against Whole University.

SPEAKS IN GERRARD HALL

David Clark, called "the enemy of the University" by those professors whom he terms "reds," will arrive in Chapel Hill at 6 o'clock tonight for two talks.

The Textile Bulletin editor will give the principal speech of the evening at 8:30 o'clock in Gerrard under the auspices of the local division of the American Liberty League. He will be introduced by Winthrop Durfee, president of the League here.

Clark will defend himself against the many attacks made upon him recently for his criticism of rampant radicalism at the University.

In a statement Friday, Clark asserted that his attacks upon radicalism had never been leveled at the University as a whole, but only at "that small group of professors and students who give the University a 'red' reputation."

"Not Radical"

Clark's defense will be in line with the first objective of the League here: "To prove to North Carolina and the nation that this University is not a hotbed of radicalism."

The Charlottean is expected to comment on the administration's stand against the textile industry and on the New Deal in general. A great many persons expect him to touch upon the much discussed Burlington dynamiting case, upon which he has spent much time in study.

There will be a 20-minute open forum after the speech in Gerrard, during which questions may be asked. Chairman Durfee requested yesterday, however, that those who ask questions "come to the point" and abstain from filibustering harangues.

Clark will also be present at a member meeting of the League at 7:30 p. m. in 215 Graham Memorial.

League members interested in securing reservations for the dinner with Clark in the Carolina Inn should see W. C. Durfee.

Grail Will Sponsor Last Dance of Year Saturday

Continuing the spring quarter dance series, the Order of the Grail will sponsor its last dance of the year Saturday night in Bynum gymnasium from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Freshmen will be admitted to the Freddy Johnson musicale at the regular $1.00 Grail door price, according to Treasurer of the Grail Simmons Patterson.

The dance will honor the new members of the Grail Order whose names will be announced tomorrow.

Pharmacy Heads

Dean J. G. Beard, Miss Alice Noble, and Professors I. W. Rose, M. L. Jacobs, and H. M. Burlage are attending the Winston-Salem convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association which started yesterday, continuing through tomorrow.

All except Miss Noble are to present papers before the scientific or dispensing section; she will serve as official reporter.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, SMITH; NIGHT, KAHN

OPEN EYES AND EARS

Without going into personalities or any particular issues, we would like to say a few words about local campus radicalism or lack of it, as the case may be.

Believing that a campus daily has no place in the field of politics other than presenting the opinions of youth as they are conceived during the period of educational training, we have purposely eschewed making a policy stand on politics or political thought. If we score some conservative for calling us "reds" or some radical for going too far in the classroom, we are standing for a clear interpretation of liberal procedure and rights, without becoming extreme on either side.

And if we call the leading candidate for governor an old-time hot-air politician, we are making no democrats, socialists, or republicans or communists out of ourselves. We're just giving our opinions as we see them.

For a proper presentation we have provided columns for left and right thoughts. Whereas we stand liable for what appears in the paper, nevertheless we are presenting these views not as our own but as those of the columnists.

We sincerely believe the campus is liberal in giving ear and eye to all sorts of thought of the day. Yet the campus seems to be basically conservative in its activities, resulting either from innate student feeling or from the possible fact that conservatism has made the most attractive presentation.

When Mr. Clark speaks tonight, we believe he will have an intelligent and courteous audience and one that is liberal enough to respect any proof which he has to offer of his charges.

ACTIVITY IN CODE

Among the various opinions which have been expressed concerning the need for a written campus constitution, we have extracted several reflections which may bear heavily in the meeting of the constitutional committee tomorrow night.

In the first place, the question arises: is it better to have an unwritten code which would allow full freedom up to the point of direct administrative bounds or a written constitution which would define student powers? In the second place, are there any cases of administrative "stepping in" which are clearly definable as such?

We have mentioned in these columns incidents like the Buccaneer episode, the Publications Union Board's rotating membership activity, and the recent boxers' ineligibility mess. We have stated that administrative interference has been in evidence in each of these.

However, the question is: just how can a written constitution guarantee complete student governmental freedom, if what we say is true that in the above instances the students did not have full authority? This is a matter which the committee will have to do a little perusing over.

As to the first point, the efficacy of a written code, here is more food for thought. As it is, the Student Council has almost complete powers. It usually knows little about student activities, however. Can a written code help to define the Council's functions and clear up some of the haziness shrouding Council action in matters relating to these activities?

We have been fighting for a written constitution and mean to continue to do so, because our answers to the above questions leave no other course. But we would like to suggest that whatever study the committee makes, it embrace the whole of student activities rather than purely the student-administrative angle.

SPLASHES

By BOB PAGE

Another set of Junior-Seniors has come and gone and we practically went with it. Meaning, of course, that these Blue Mondays are still as bad as ever. But in spite of all the dark circles and spots before our eyes, it was a grand and glorious week-end and one of the best dance sets we have attended here.

The Sweetbriar Queen arrived and reigned (over our dominion at least) for approximately 48 hours while we stayed in more or less of a trance. Charlie Ivey must have been in one too, from the way he wound up at one end of the floor and his partner at the other in the Junior Prom figure Friday night. He found out later they were supposed to be facing each other.

Hal Kemp and his international favorites put on what was considered one of the best dance sets at Junior-Seniors last year but this last one overshadowed Kemp's in quite a few ways, we think. There was just something about this one that made everything click. Barney Rapp and his gang produced some consistently smooth and invigorating dance music. And the torch singer was all Wright.

We must apologize here. We were sort of supposed to circulate around and find out who was there for this column but we found the idea of sticking in one corner and playing page to the Queen much too tempting. If we hear of anybody else who was there, we'll let you know.

We have heard various stories, however, that Miss Rochelle Hudson, she of the silver screen fame, was at the Delta Psi house party on Ike Jeanes' bid. We tried to meet her several times but Parker Morris, Nick Read and Phil Hammer always seemed to have it arranged for her to be in Greensboro talking to her producer.

We are pretty sure that Pinky Tomlin, composer of "The Object of My Affections" and "What's the Reason," showed up at the Delta Tau Delta house on his way through here to Florida and stopped over for the dances. They tried to get him to sing Friday night but his being under contract to M. G. M. prevented it. One of the Delts was going to introduce us but we never could get together.

Prexy Pool finally found a date for the senior figure and solemnly led her around amid a shower of balloons, which was about as far as he got with his cotillion idea. The plan of distributing programs to the girls for the evening dances met with high approval, although we have never heard of Agnew Bohnson, Collum Stokes, or Luther Gromarkie, as the Saturday night program had it.

Several of the Greek lodges picked this past week-end to have house parties. They all seem to have been highly successful, including banquets, lawn parties, etc. The only adverse comment we have heard concerning them was some of the boys kicking about having to take down the pictures in their rooms and put them right back up again.

Wylie Parker and Dick Johnston combined to pull one of the slickest tricks we have heard of at the A. T. O. house party. Both invited girls up for the dances but Dick's girl had to leave here Saturday morning and Wylie's date wasn't scheduled to arrive until Saturday morning. After deciding that they wanted dance dates for both days, they got together and invited a third young maiden, who served as Wylie's date Friday and Dick's date Saturday. It worked like a charm and all three girls had a big time.

We just had a look-in on the special court at the old Pickwick and observed some of the aftermath. You should go down and see Justice wending its weary way sometime.

The Co-ed Ball and the last Grail dance come off Friday and Saturday nights. Better take advantage of them to relax. It's only three weeks until those dreaded exams. We think that we might finally make one of these co-ed dances now that they plan to sell stag bids.

Enough of this inane drivel for now. We'll see you again next week.

Now YOU'RE Talking

DOESN'T LIKE A. L. L.

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

I am not a member of the American League, thank God. And I am not carrying the torch for any political group fundamentally opposed to the tenets of that national organization. But I do condemn most strongly the activity of the group on the campus under Comrade Durfee, Boston's contribution to the conservatives.

The national organization, as I understand its principles, exists solely for the enforcement and maintenance of that obsolete, ponderous document, the Constitution of the United States. But Durfee's little brain child here, nursed along by the 25 or so other status quo-ers, exists ostensibly for strengthening relations between "Our Davy" Clark and the University.

Judging from the articles of the activities of the league here on the campus, the group is a publicity organ to wave in the faces of the good people of the state (like Davy Clark) the fact that the University, founded upon American principles, is not disturbing the amorphous principles by allowing the open-minded discussion of so-called un-American ideas.

STUDENTS AND CHURCH

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In compliance with the present policy of the DAILY TAR HEEL to investigate the mind of the modern University students that the world may know their line of thought, especially as regards the church, we shall begin by applying the motto: "Actions speak louder than words," or if we wish to express it differently: "By their fruits you shall know them."

We are forced to admit from experience that many of our present-day students are prone to neglect their church duties. They often discuss the movies; they are deeply interestd in sports; they plan their week-end parties; they attend in large numbers the Saturday night dances; and they enjoy the activities of the campus. All these pleasures are legitimate and necessary in the life of University students to prepare them for future social functions, provided they be taken in moderation, and not interfere with the more important duties of study and Sunday observance.

That the religious foundation may not be weakened, that sound moral principles may be cultivated for future stability in conduct, that the qualities of real manhood and dignified womanhood may be developed for the faithful and devoted and honorable service of God and country, and that the University student may be a real leader in his chosen profession, I would suggest a back-to-the-church movement for all students of every denomination.

REF. F. J. MORRISSEY, D. D.

HE WANTS TO DUEL

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The letter by Miss McCain and Mr. McNeir (or Lurline and Waldo, as I foldly think of them) in defense of Dr. E. E. Ericson cuts me to the quick. Their false accusation of making a personal attack on Dr. Ericson bothers me not at all, since I mentioned neither his name nor any other, but simply spoke in favor of teachers holding to their subjects. Neither does the more justifiable claim that I am a mental cripple annoy me, for truth "cometh even out of the mouths of fools and children." But it would hardly be fair to call Miss McCain and Cowpuncher McNeir children, since both are graduate students.

But the slanderous charge that I am a prospective member of the state legislature offends my honor and forces me to challenge Bronco McNeir to a duel. Being from the wild and woolly plains of Texas, he will undoubtedly want to mount his faithful pinto and use his trusty lariat, but I think it would be more fair to use brickbats at 100 yards. The duel could be held in Kenan stadium, the proceeds to go, if he wins, to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Socialists, and, if I win, to the Friends of the Hoopskirt in America. It is impossible for me to challenge Miss McCain, since I can think of no duelling-ground on which to meet a lady, except possibly the Arboretum. Furthermore, I am not opposed to evolution; in fact, sometimes as when reading their letter, I think the only trouble with evolution is that it hasn't gone far enough.

R. V. MULLEN.

FOR A FAIR TRIAL

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The six Burlington men accused of dynamiting the Holt Plaid Mills, Inc., will be denied the right of appeal if $300 is not raised by noon today to pay the cost of preparing court briefs. These briefs must be filed today and paid for in cash.

Whether or not these men are guilty is not for us to judge. They are, however, entitled to a trial where their evidence can be presented in an unbiased atmosphere.

It is obvious that there are ample grounds for questioning the evidence on which these men were convicted. Every one of the accused are penniless. It does not seem just or fair that men should be denied the privilege of the courts because of lack of money.

The secretary of one of the defense lawyers in the case donated $150—the total extent of her savings. Surely some of us who can afford May Frolics and Junior-Seniors are able to contribute a bit to see that the six men get a fair chance at appeal.

Or shall the lack of a few dollars mean 57 years in prison for men who may be innocent? Every cent will help. Contributions may be left in Graham Memorial, with Paul Green, or with E. E. Ericson.

Deacons Take Carolina 2-0 In Fast Big Five Contest

Webster Is Victim as Johnson Hurls Shut-out Ball to Get Third Wake Victory.

DUKE HERE TOMORROW

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Wake Forest, May 13.—Playing its fourth and last game of the 1935 season with Wake Forest here today, Carolina went down before the fast pall pitching of Johnson, 2-0. This was the Hearnmen's third loss to the Deacons in four contests, the former having won the first and dropped the next three in order.

Latch Webster was on the hill for the Tar Heels, and as the score indicates, pitched good enough ball to win an ordinary game, but Carolina could not get next to the offerings of the Wake Forest pitcher, getting only three hits. The visiting club went to bat just 30 times and had six men stranded on the sacks.

Doigt Morris Hits

Doigt Morris, Wake leftfielder, swung the big bat for the Deacons, getting four hits for four trips to the plate, scoring one of his team's runs and driving home the other. Mitchell, playing second for the hosts, teed the only extra-base knock of the contest, a double coming in the first frame. Tommy Irwin played his usual steady game at short for the Heels; he handled five chances perfectly in the field and got one for three at the plate.

Carolina threatened strongly in the second when Strayhorn, first up, singled and went to third on two successive passed balls. Tatum popped out to short, then both Voliva and Montgomery whiffed to see the run die on base. Again in the third Carolina failed to count despite walks to Webster and Irwin. The Tar Heel batters were retired in order during the remainder of the game.

With two out in their half of the first, Wake Forest loaded the bases after two were out on Mitchell's double, a single by Wall, a stolen base, and a base on balls. Chappell, however, flew out to short, three left.

Deacons Score

The Deacons counted first in the second on Doigt Morris' hit to center, the ball getting away from Groome for a three-base error. Their next run came in the fifth when, with one down, Patton drew a base on balls, went to second on Chappell's hit, and scored as "Dog" Morris got his third hit of the afternoon. Wall, in center for the Baptists, was close behind Morris in his success with the willow, slapping out three hits in four tries and stealing two bases to do further damage to Carolina's defense.

The Hearnmen will be hosts to the Blue Devils from Duke at Emerson tomorrow at 4:00, with Fred Crouch again scheduled to oppose Ken Weafer on the mound.

TENNIS

Pi Kappa Alpha and D. K. E. captured the only matches played yesterday afternoon in the intramural tennis competition, and both won over Z. B. T. teams.

The Pikas took the measure of the Zebe's No. 3 team by a 2-1 count, as McCall and Holland paired in the doubles to defeat Straus and Simkovitz, 5-3, 5-2, after the singles had been split.

Holland earned the first point for the eventual winners when he disposed of Hecht, 5-2, 5-4, but Simkovitz evened matters with a 5-4, 5-4 win over McCall to send it into the doubles.

Z. B. T. No. 2 team was the victim of the Deke pair of Bill Moore and Simmons "Lanky" Patterson by the same 2-1 margin. Patterson dropped his match to Phil Kind by 5-2, 5-3 scores, but Moore forced the doubles to be played by downing Slavin, 5-2, 3-5, 5-4.

The same players paired for the doubles match, which proved to be a long, hard battle, with the D. K. E. combine emerging the victors by 3-5, 5-3, 5-4 scores.

BASEBALL

Only one baseball game was played yesterday. The scheduled game between A. T. O. and Chi Psi was won by the latter on a forfeit. Ruffin won its contest with Old East by successful rallies in the third and sixth innings.

Ruffin	103 004 x—8

Tar Heel News

Two mimeographed pages and numerous personals made up the third release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service which was mailed to high school and preparatory institutions yesterday.

This is the last regular release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service which will be sent out this spring, due to the fact that the majority of the institutions receiving the bulletins are ending their sessions. The staff will continue to mail personals to those schools remaining open, however, and the regular service will be resumed in the fall.

VARSITY NETMEN AND FROSH TEAM PLAY EACH OTHER

Freshman Stars Will Have Real Test When They Meet Varsity in Matches Today.

WILL START AT 3 O'CLOCK

What can be termed the feature match of the Carolina tennis season takes place this afternoon at 3 o'clock with the mighty varsity taking on the freshman mites.

This encounter has been awaited a long time. There will be no "breathers" for the varsity. The frosh have the strongest yearling gathering in years and actually have expectations of driving the varsity to the very limit.

Fuller and Potts

All eyes will be on the two frosh rivals, Eddy Fuller and Ramsay Potts. Fuller will face Harvey Harris, state singles champion, in the feature match of the day. This match will undoubtedly be a humdinger.

Ramsay Potts will then oppose Ricky Wills and odds are given with neither player. Ramsay, the finest junior player in the south, is given a good chance against Willis, but time will tell.

Captain Walter Levitan of the varsity will trade shots with Johnny Foreman, the hard hitting frosh sensation from Illinois. Walter's consistent style coped with Foreman's erratic bombardment promises to make the clash a thriller.

De Gray-Farrell

Eddy De Gray will next represent the varsity against Frank Farrell. Both boys are from New York and will probably settle the championship of the Knickerbocker City right here on the Carolina courts. De Gray is anew sophomore, having won

RUNNERS COMPETE IN DUKE SATURDAY

Carolina Will Throw Its Strength Into Another Southern Conference Struggle.

This week-end at Durham, the Carolina tracksters will attempt to complete another "grand slam" in Dixie track circles by successfully defending their Southern Conference championship.

The Tar Heel team has won everything in the way of titles to any North Carolina team during the past two years, losing only one dual meeting during that time.

The team has come through a very difficult season and most of the burden has been on a group of boys who have proven themselves real stars, but this weekend it will be different.

By all means the stars will be counted upon to do their part on Friday and Saturday, but the real burden will lie upon those who have not been in the spotlight, but will enter the meet full of confidence and enthusiasm.

When we speak of these men, we refer to the pole vaulters, high jumpers, weight men, and a few of the longer distance runners. Of this last group two or three are particularly deserving of mention.

In the mile Carolina has a new bid for placing in the conference meet. He is Lou Conte. After competing for the past two years over the two-mile distance, Conte was changed to the one-mile, and against Navy he made a most auspicious debut, and dies' best mile performer for third place.

The two-mile event finds Fab Haywood, a boy who has overcome considerable physical disadvantages and is now considered as a peer to Carolina's great Ed Waldrop. The other is Mar-

Durham Wins Class «A» Ball Title By 11-6 Win Over Greensboro

Parrish Pitches Full Game for Victors; Losers Use Three Pitchers in Attempt.

Bombarding three Greensboro pitchers, Durham High won the state class "A" baseball title from Greensboro High by an 11-6 count yesterday on Emerson field.

Greensboro was the first to dent the scoring column when they pushed across three runs on a pair of triples and a balk. Durham came right back to score two in their half, and then jumped on Pitcher McLean and his successor, Curtis, for five runs.

When McLean was removed he had been touched for only two hits and still held a two-run lead. Curtis lasted until the fourth when the Durham lads jumped on his offerings for four hits and three runs.

From the fourth inning on, Durham had the game on ice but picked up two more in the sixth to assure a win.

Amos Shelton, first baseman, succeeded Curtis on the mound for Greensboro and turned in a creditable showing as relief pitcher, allowing but four hits during the remainder of the game. Curtis was credited with the loss.

Layburn Parrish pitched fine ball for the Durham nine, allowing but nine hits and keeping these well-scattered throughout the game. Morris, Durham's second baseman, led the hitting with three hits in five trips to the plate.

Durham, May 13.—Chubby Dean, star Duke first baseman, broke up the ball game in Durham yesterday. With the score 7-6 against Duke in the last half of the ninth, Dean stepped up and clouted one of Daffy Parker's curves for a home run, scoring Wagner ahead of him to win the game from the Tar Babies, 8-7.

John Humphries started on the mound for Carolina, but the weakening effects of his recent illness forced his removal from the game after he had twirled six frames and yielded six runs and seven hits. Smith, who was the victim of the Tar Babies in the second contest of the series, went the route for the victors, giving up eight hits.

Duke scored five runs on five singles and two walks in the second inning to take the lead after Carolina had tallied once in the opening frame.

The Dukesters counted one more in the fourth, but the Babies did not score until the sixth when a series of Duke errors gave them their second run of the game.

With the score 6-2 against them the Tar Babies struck hard in the lucky seventh and tallied five times before they were retired. Consecutive singles by Grubb, Andrews and Parker, walks by Collins and Craver, and a timely single by Bricklemyer put the Babies into the lead, 7-6.

Parker took up the pitching burden from then on and pitched grand ball until Dean got the only hit that he gave, a far flung four-bagger into the outer pastures.

Collins and Parker hit consistently for Carolina while Dean copped all the batting honors for the Dukesters.

MENTAL HYGIENE DISCUSSED AT "Y"

Brooks Calls Advent of Co-eds To Campus a "Blessing."

Stressing fear as the fundamental cause of mental disorders, Dr. Lee M. Brooks of the University sociology department spoke to the joint Sophomore and Junior-Senior Cabinets of the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The speaker, who used as his subject "Mental Hygiene," pointed to the year 1900 as the year in which the study of mental hygiene began. He centered his entire discussion on the book entitled "Introduction to Mental Hygiene," by Groves and Blanchard.

Refuting the popular argument that over-study and overwork are direct causes of suicide, and mental and nervous breakdowns, Dr. Brooks said that there is no basic connection between them.

Pointing to the advent of women on this campus as a blessing, Dr. Brooks ventured the remark that "life on the campus as a whole is more wholesome today that 20 years ago."

LIBRARY DIRECTOR HERE

Mrs. Mary Peacock Douglas, state director of schools and libraries, will visit the school of library science today through Friday, and will speak to the library science school tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock on library work and school libraries in North Carolina.

Glee Club

The Carolina Glee Club will assist the Playmakers in their production of Hamlet on Friday and Saturday, May 24 and 25. A male chorus made up of some eighteen or twenty men will sing a doleful selection off stage to supplement the action in Act III Scene III, that portion in which the King kneels in prayer.

H. Grady Miller, director of the Glee Club, believes that his club's interpretation of the selection will move the audience to tears if the acting does not produce that effect first.

Track Meet

This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock on Emerson field, the freshman track team will engage in a meet with the place winners of the recent state championship meet.

Several of these boys will be coming to Carolina next year, and their performances against the 1938 yearlings will be looked forward to with great interest.

SIX JUNIORS MAKE COMMERCE ORDER

Hatch, Kalb, Ellington, Ivey, Barron, Snyder Initiated.

The local chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma held its annual spring initiation last night when the following members of the junior class in the school of commerce were admitted to membership: S. P. Hatch, Sanford; B. L. Kalb, Cedarhurst, N. Y.; R. A. Ellington, Madison; Charles M. Ivey, Jr., Concord; R. L. Barron, Charlotte, and J. E. Snyder, Bethlehem, Pa.

Undergraduate membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is restricted to the highest tenth of the senior class, scholastically, and the highest fifteenth of the junior class. The organization is the only honorary scholarship fraternity recognized by the American Association of College Schools of Business, of which the local school of commerce is a member of long standing.

Faculty membership in the local chapter was increased by the initiation of Professor M. D. Taylor.

Following the initiation ceremony, Dean D. D. Carroll reported on the action of the executive committee of the national organization which recently met in New York city to consider certain questions of policy.

the freshman tournament in the fall.

Bill Minor, state runner-up to Harris, faces a former Canadian junior champ in opposing Gordon Robinson. The final singles clash finds Frank Shore of the consistent chop against Vic Strasberger, a teammate of Farrell in New York city.

The doubles will follow with the feature probably centering down to the state varsity champions, Levitan and De Gray, meeting those super frosh, Potts and Fuller. It will be remembered that the yearling pair were victorious at an exhibition preceding the Tilden-Vines affair.

That is the lineup for the all-Carolina thriller. Every match has plenty of promise and the entire match shapes up as a natural.

Y. M. C. A. Conference Will Start June 8

The annual intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. conference will be held at Blue Ridge, N. C., June 9-18.

The gathering at Blue Ridge is primarily a training conference for officers and student members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., although it is open to any interested student. The University "Y" has a cottage of its own on the Blue Ridge grounds which will be the headquarters of the Carolina delegation during their stay there.

profit and the economic system which these characterize will be Professor Woodhouse, Jeffersonian Democrat, and Winthrop Durfee, bed-rock Republican.

"I believe private property and private profit make good citizens," Professor Woodhouse said, basing his belief on experience as a real estate lawyer in Virginia and as an active, office-holding Democrat in Massachusetts.

Bearded G. O. P., a Dem.

In the Republican town of Northampton, Mass., he once defeated for mayor Calvin Coolidge's pet candidate: William Cordes, president of Prophylactic corporation. Seeing real news in the fact that a southern Democrat should be mayor in the "Sage of Northampton's" home town, Woodhouse was publicized in New York newspapers.

Substantiating his position as a liberal, this Rage of Northampton was once investigated as a red by a Worcester, Mass., newspaper.

"Within the lifetime of the present generation America will have to accept either socialism or barbarism," prophesies Marxian Disciple Williams, granting that barbarism is not a fact—not "yet." Seeing breadlines 12 times a day going to and from work on an Indianapolis newspaper bred Williams' interest in economic reform.

Since active in the party, Williams soapboxed for Norman Thomas during 1931-32 in Indiana and North Carolina; never felt the heavy hand of capitalistic suppression except occasionally in violations of petty traffic ordinances.

For Americanism at least 99 44-100 per cent pure, New England's Winthrop Durfee represents conservatism in its highest rampart. Reputed born with a silver-plated spoon in his mouth and teethed on a five dollar gold piece, he visited Union Square during the spring holiday debating tour and reports that a hush fell upon that incendiary arena as he passed.

He offers as evidence of his unimpeachable devotion to capitalism the fact that his conservatism has withstood the lures of socialistic bathing beauties pictured in Russian newspapers. Pedigreed from the Mayflower down, he trumpets, "Up with the bloated aristocrats!"

Woodhouse: "Mask"

Describing Woodhouse as representing "the polite mask cloaking capitalism's cruel economic force" and considering Durfee as a more extreme but as yet "unanalyzed" conservative, Revolutionist Wishart anticipates a division of forces in the opposition.

Tendng to socialism from high school, he attributes his radical interests to "a simple desire for rationality in human affairs." He describes himself as a "middle radical veering to the left."

Believing that America will inevitably accept socialism and that violence will occur only when the ousted conservative minority will fight to get back in, he declares, "No radical will contemplate a violent move in America until he feels the majority agrees with his principles."

Of the opposition he says: "Durfee represents extreme conservatism, Woodhouse the New Deal attitude—both repressive capitalism."

University alumni of Granville county will gather in Oxford next Friday night to hear J. M. Saunders, alumni secretary, and Coach Carl G. Snavely speak. A banquet will be held in their honor.

MARINES SOLICIT UNIVERSITY MEN

Training This Summer at Quantico, Va., Open to 20 Juniors And Sophomores.

An allocation to the University of a quota of 10 juniors and 10 sophomores who will be given intensive training at Quantico, Virginia, this summer has been made by the commandant of the marine corps.

President Graham has asked Professor H. R. Totten of the botany department, who holds a chaplain's commission in the field artillery reserve, to take charge of the project here.

This is the first time that the marine corps has ever had an officer's reserve to which admission might be gained by a training program of this sort. The corps states that it is interested in men only of "high ideals and proven qualities of leadership."

Commissions

Upon completion of the training period, beginning about July 10, the juniors would be commissioned; the sophomores would be commissioned only after the second camp in 1936. During training the students will receive a salary of $30 a month, quarters, food, clothes, medical attention, as well as transportation to and from their homes.

The only expenses will be those for laundry, toilet articles, and other personal requirements. Dr. Totten asks that interested sophomores and juniors secure further information and leave their names with Miss Mallett in the office of the dean of students, 205 South building.

Applicants must be at least 18 years old, have parent's consent in writing, and be able to pass certain physical examinations. Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw has been asked by President Graham to assist Professor Totten in making arrangements for those applying.

At the beginning of the year, Carolina had only Evins and Armfield in the weight events, but at present it has several other boys who are on the brink of great performances. All of them—Wrenn, Barwick, Ray, and Van Horn—will be in the conference meet, and if enthusiasm means anything, they will come through.

A great deal of Carolina's success will depend upon its outcome in the pole vault and high jump events. Don Jackson, the defending conference champion in the pole vault, will be back in the fight, and with just a little more zip added to his performance he should repeat. McIver and Baer are also improved, and they will be seriously watched for this weekend.

Jesse Parker and Efland will carry the Blue and White banner in the high jump. Here again the boys have showed improvement, but they will need to be at their best to garner points in this event.

SYMPHONY SERIES ENDS IN CONCERT HERE TOMORROW

Joint University Orchestra Will Appear in Hill Hall; Plays Tonight in Greensboro.

H. H. FUCHS WILL CONDUCT

The combined orchestras of the Greater University here and at Greensboro will present a varied program in Hill Music hall tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. H. H. Fuchs, conductor of the Woman's College symphony, will direct the concert.

The 80 musicians of the two institutions have been in rehearsal for several weeks on the program, which will also be presented in Greensboro at Aycock auditorium this evening. Earl A. Slocum of the University music department will conduct tonight's concert in the Gate City.

Artists

Among the outstanding musicians who will be heard in both concerts are: Leonard Nanzetta, oboist, Chapel Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weatherford, cellists, Chapel Hill; Mrs. Kay Rickert Defenbacher, violinist, Chapel Hill, now concertmaster of the North Carolina Symphony; Gladys Black, violinist, of the Woman's College; Virginia Christie, French horn, Woman's College; Glen Haydon, clarinet, dean of the University school of music. Earl W. Wolslagel, concertmaster of the University Symphony, will serve in that capacity in the combined orchestras.

The program will include works of Beethoven, Tschaikowsky, and Ippolitow-Ivanov. The three movements of the "Caucasian Sketches" by Ippolitow-Ivanov have proved exceptionally popular wherever the composition has been played, and should be the outstanding numbers on the program because of their many beautiful solo passages for woodwind instruments.

MORE PAGING The voluminous senior class commencement invitations have aroused some controversy among the near-departing. It seems that the extreme change in invitation form didn't click with everyone.

It's none of our business, but we'd like to put in a good word for Jack Pool's Gargantuan creation. Forty tiny pages of senior class history, showing progress (and decline, if any) throughout four years, should prove interesting to the receivers and anticipated-gift-givers.

Of course, there is less dignity in receiving a miniature scrapbook than in getting a gilt-edged "you-are-invited" card. But blue sport-jerseys aren't as dignified as trim jackets for regalia, either, and nobody has cared much. We think Pool and his helpers should be congratulated for an obviously difficult handling of a job which takes some work.

SAVE THE SURFACE The imminent application of paint to the interior of some of our dormitories is another move on the part of the administration to better dormitory conditions here.

It is also another of the recommendations of the Student Advisory Committee which the administration has adopted. The pleasing part about this latter item is that serious consideration is being given to every recommendation which this student group drew up, and that is an accomplishment in our student government set-up for which we should be thankful.

The painting efforts are more appreciated when we realize that our buildings department is working under a budget which allows very little for anything except rank necessities. Evidently the administration agreed with the student committee when the latter group said that paint was a necessity.

CLEARING HOUSE Last night's mix-up, when we had about a half-dozen events coming off at the same time, should have some effect in bringing about a co-operative movement in which campus organizations can participate in bringing speakers or programs to the campus.

We mentioned yesterday that there should be a clearing house for campus presentations, where dates for events and programs could be meted out. The co-operative element enters in when various groups get together and bring speakers under the auspices of a collective student group. The dates could be easily arranged if a central clearing house was set up to help in arranging the programs.

The student union, Graham Memorial, should be the medium for dispensing dates. At present, use of the buildings is granted at South building, but there is no sense adding to the duties up there. The Y. M. C. A. has enough to do as it is, so that leaves Graham Memorial, by rights and elimination.

THIRTEEN TAPPED INTO MEMBERSHIP IN ORDER OF GRAIL

Six Juniors and Seven Sophomores Constitute Group of Initiates to Society.

BANQUET, DANCE FOLLOW

Thirteen men active in campus affairs were initiated to membership in the Order of the Grail last night.

The initiates: James Ferguson Finlay, Chattanooga, Tenn.; John Johnston Parker, Jr., Charlotte; Benjamin Sheppard Willis, Winston-Salem; Francis Fries Willingham, Winston-Salem; Eugene Ernest Eutsler, Jr., Goldsboro; John Griffith Johnson, Winston-Salem.

Edward Lemuel Voliva, Belhaven; Lester W. McCarn, Kannapolis; George Cyrus MacFarland, Charlotte; Fred Henry Weaver, Aberdeen; Melvin Nelson, Yonkers, N. Y.; Francis Hilliard Fairley, Monroe; John Oliver Drake, Warrenton.

For the new members the Grail will give a banquet Friday night in Graham Memorial. Further they will be honored at the order's last spring dance Saturday night in Bynum gym, 9 to 12.

Of the tapped students, six are fraternity men, 11 are North Carolinians, six are juniors, seven sophomores.

Freshman Smoker

The freshman smoker is definitely scheduled for 9 o'clock tomorrow night in Swain hall. W. A. Olsen of the English department will be the featured speaker of the evening.

This is the last social undertaking of the Mullis administration and all freshmen, especially frosh co-eds, are urged to come and enjoy the free food, smokes, and Billy Kanoff's sweet music.

ADVISERS REQUEST DORMS BE PAINTED

Buildings Department Considers Advisory Committee Plan.

Painting of the University dormitories, a recommendation of the Student Advisory Committee, is being tentatively considered by the buildings department, according to P. L. Burch, superintendent of buildings.

The department hopes to begin painting the interiors of Old West and Old East within the next few days, and have them finished by commencement. Plans call for the completion of painting in the other dorms before school begins next fall.

Francis Fairley stated that this new project was the result of investigation done recently by the Student Advisory Committee, and is one of the first of many reforms that the committee hopes to accomplish.

Capitalism On Judgment Docket As Williams, Woodhouse Meet

Debate Sponsored By Political Union

Meeting Is Result of Challenge to Liberty Leaguer Durfee by Communist Williams.

AUDIENCE WILL BE JUDGE

While capitalism stands at the dock for judgment, Prosecutors Arnold Williams and James Wishart will deliver the indictment and Counsels for Defense E. J. Woodhouse and Winthrop Durfee will testify good character to the accused at 8:30 tonight in Gerrard hall.

Sponsored by the Carolina Political Union, the challenge debate will detonate around the query: Resolved, that socialism is the only hope for American society. In the heat of the firing will be the twin citadels of private property and private profit, the very bones of capitalism's strength and banes of radical existences.

Love: Revolution

"Falling in love may be gradual, but not getting married," observed Revolutionary Socialist Williams, soapboxer for Norman Thomas in 1931-32, illustrating his belief that while the need for economic reform may develop gradually, the change must be spontaneous—by revolution. Styling himself "17 miles left of Lenin," Williams maintains, "Socialism will come by force or threat of force."

Original instigator of the debate, free-lancing red without party affiliation, "Jeffersonian communist" by his own testimony, Wishart believes socialism will be a fact in America bebefore the capitalistic tycoons know it, that their protest against the new order will be the only occasion for bloodshed.

Student Accounts

The administration of the University wishes to remind all seniors and other candidates for degrees that before they can receive their diplomas it is necessary that they settle all amounts owed to the University, including accounts with the business office, Swain hall, the library, the laundry, the Book Exchange, Spencer hall, the student loan fund, and all laboratory fees.

In addition each candidate for a degree is reminded that he must pay $5 diploma fee and must make arrangements with the Book Exchange for the rental of a cap and gown.

Action On Constitution Will Be Main Objective Of New Pool Committee

The possibility of action on a student constitution will be the main object of Jack Pool's recently appointed committee on activities and improvements at its meeting at 4:30 p. m. today.

This committee, headed by Harper Barnes, ex-president of the student body, and composed of prominent men on the campus, was appointed as a result of Pool's pre-campaign promises and also a vigorous campaign carried on by the DAILY TAR HEEL for a written constitution for Carolina student government.

Pool also stated that the committee will gather material for compiling a manual of extra-curricular activities on the campus. They are not necessarily to draw up and submit a constitution, but to consider its advisability. However, if a constitution of any kind is drawn up, it must be submitted to the student body for approval.

Clark Hits Carolina Radicals

ISRAEL DISCUSSES HEBREW RADICALS

Jewish Rabbi Tells of Social Idealism, Concepts of Old Testament Prophets.

Emphasizing the radical social ideals of the Hebrew prophets, Rabbi Edward L. Israel opened his address last night in Gerrard hall with the statement, "I am surprised that Hamilton Fish has not introduced a bill to prevent the reading of the Bible."

Israel stated that the social idealism of Old Testament prophets was tremendously revolutionary, both socially and religiously. "Yet it is remarkable," said Israel, "that these old fellows have become the cherished possessions of so many people, who yet make outcasts of the leaders of their day who hold the same ideals."

Anti-Religious

The rabbi showed that the Hebrew leaders were anti-religious in that they were opposed to the concepts of their day, and anti-chauvinist in defying tradition to constructively criticize their country.

Another outstanding concept of the ancient religious prophets, according to Israel, was that they stood strongly against religious complacency.

A banquet will be tendered to Dr. Israel tonight by Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity at the Carolina Inn. President Graham, Deans House and Bradshaw, and Y. M. C. A. Secretary Comer will be in attendance.

Rabbi Israel will speak again tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall on the "Social Ideals of Modern Judaism."

PHI BETE TO TAKE 33 NEW MEMBERS NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Number, 25% Smaller Than Last Year, Will Include 19 Juniors and 14 Seniors.

SMITH PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

Elections to Phi Beta Kappa, one of the highest honors of the campus, will become known next Friday night when all neophytes will be initiated and feted at a banquet in Graham Memorial. The speaker of the evening will be Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president emeritus of Washington and Lee University.

The occasion will be the annual spring meeting of Phi Beta Kappa and will begin at 7:30 p. m. Some 33 new members, 19 juniors and 14 seniors will be taken in. The number this year is 25% smaller than that of last year, but the general scholastic average is higher.

92.5 Average Necessary

A scholastic average of 92.5 must be made for eight quarters by students in order to be eligible for membership in the organization. The scholar who maintains the highest scholastic average for the eight quarters automatically becomes president of the group, and the one with the second highest vice-president.

Last year a record number of 45 students, the largest known in the history of the University, was initiated into the society, with Lawrence Thompson and Joe Sugarman president and vice-president, respectively.

Says People Are With Him In Fight To Rid University Of Alleged Subversiveness

Textile Bulletin Editor Warns That University Will Fall Unless It Is Purged of Radical Influences Rampant Among Faculty And Students; Heated Debate Follows Discussion.

Hurling and ducking bombshell after bombshell into and from the amassed ranks of local undergraduates and faculty members, Textile Bulletin Editor David Clark attempted to meet all questions last night as to his attacks on the University and the teaching of "subversive doctrines of atheism, socialism, and communism." A spirited give-and-take marked Clark's first public appearance here.

"The politicians of this state have their ears to the ground," Clark warned. "When they wake up to the fact that the mass of the common people are behind me in condemning radical activities at the University, the University will suffer."

"I do not yield to anyone in my advocacy of legitimate freedom of speech, but I condemn the cowardly attempt of certain professors to crawl under the cover of freedom of speech while trying to instill subversive doctrines into the minds of boys and girls entrusted into their care," the exponent of "the masses of North Carolina common people" told a large audience gathered to hear the American Liberty League sponsored speaker.

Stands for Free Speech

"I stand for freedom of speech for all citizens of North Carolina including college professors," he continued. "I consider it cowardly and contemptible for college professors to use their classrooms to instill their pet ideas of atheism, socialism, and communism into the minds of students who come from the homes of people who do not subscribe to any such subversive doctrines."

Asked a direct question as to whether he is seeking the resignation of Dr. Frank Graham or any professors in the University, Clark replied, "I think no one could be found to fill President Graham's office better than he. . . . There are certain professors at Chapel Hill who . . . seek to instill atheism, socialism, and communism into the minds of the students. I would like to see several resignations among them."

Citing alleged results of radical teachings at the University, Clark declared, "At the present time the communist headquarters in North Carolina are in charge of a former student of the University." He cited this claim as a result of radical teachings in this institution. "If there is a fight between the University and the cotton manufacturing industry, the first blows were struck by persons connected with the University."

Blames Chase

The blame for radical propaganda in the University, Clark laid at the feet of former President Harry Woodburn Chase. His statement was, "It is my firm conviction that Dr. Chase is responsible for the establishment of teaching atheism, socialism, and communism at the University."

At this, and at a few other of Clark's statements, the audience burst out in spontaneous laughter.

Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce from the floor asked point blank, "Do you think the analyzing of the facts of socialism and communism should be permitted in polit-

SYMPHONIC BANDS PLAY THIS EVENING

Orchestral Units of Greensboro And Chapel Hill Will Offer Concert at 8:30 Tonight.

The combined symphony orchestras of the Greater University will present a concert of classical and modern compositions in Hill Music hall this evening at 8:30. The 80-piece orchestra will be under the baton of H. H. Fuchs, head of the orchestral department at the Woman's College of the University at Greensboro.

For several weeks the combined orchestras, consisting of some 30 musicians from Chapel Hill and the University and the 40 or more girls in the Greensboro unit symphony, have rehearsed the program.

First Concert

Last night the combined group presented the first concert of the series in Aycock auditorium in Greensboro where an enthusiastic audience received it with hearty applause. Earl A. Slocum of the University music department was the conductor in last evening's performance.

Several of the outstanding youthful musicians of the state are members of the combined orchestra, including several state high school music contest winners of former years.

The program is as follows: "Egmont Overture," Beethoven; "Symphony No. 8," Beethoven; "Waltz of the Flowers from the Nutcracker Suite," Tschaikowski; and three movements of the "Caucasian Sketches Suite," "In the Village," "In the Mosque," and "Procession of the Sardar," by Ippolitow-Ivanow.

GRUMMAN IN MEBANE

R. M. Grumman, lieutenant-governor of the local Kiwanis division and extension director, left last night for Mebane to speak at the local Kiwanis club. Grumman's district comprises some ten Carolina organizations.

Di Senate

The Di Senate discussed plans last night for increasing campus interest in the organization, many suggestions being made which will be discussed at the meeting next week.

Phi Adjourns

The Phi Assembly fell prey to an extremely early adjournment last night because of the appearance of David Clark at Gerrard hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, GILMORE; NIGHT, JORDAN

OUR FREE GOVERNMENT

On how many campuses throughout the country would students be meeting together this afternoon to consider drawing up a written constitution for student government?

There are very few. The defense of student liberties and academic freedom is one of the major problems of the National Student Federation of America today and our University is conspicuously not among those where students must fight for the privilege of running their own affairs.

This afternoon's session of the committee on activities and improvements will be conducted by an NSFA executive committeeman and ex-president of the student body here, Harper Barnes. It was he who was the main cog in the North Carolina Federation of Students' machinery which in Raleigh a few weeks ago took a definite stand urging that the current NSFA program, which includes active participation in defense of student liberties and academic freedom, be continued under the new federation regime to be inducted in July.

The very fact that we can appoint our committees to investigate student government, that we can inspect University books and make suggestions and recommendations, that we can conduct our own student activities, choose our own educational channels, and speak our own minds—this very fact is in itself this University's greatest contribution to America's undergraduate system.

And that we run our own government, upon our own initiative and with our own delegated powers, gives us an opportunity to use our own intelligence in making our student life more efficient, more profitable, and more pleasant.

Our efforts to have a written constitution drawn up and a complete survey of student activities made have not resulted from dissatisfaction with the students' lot. They have rather emanated from a desire to improve our organizational and governmental set-up. In other words, rather than misuse the freedom which is ours, why should we not harness the independent energies into a more efficient system?

Perhaps only discussion will occupy this afternoon's meeting. For the time being, that should be enough. Action comes later.

STARVED DEPARTMENTS

Many departments on this campus are so cramped financially that their very existence is endangered.

To understand that this situation actually exists one has only to step inside the obsolete, equipment-less gymnasium, or to realize that the infirmary spent during the January flu epidemic more money than was allowed for it the whole year for supplies.

There are two possible solutions for coping with the problem; either the University appropriations must be increased by the state, or student fees must be reallocated so as to help those organizations which are being strangled by lack of funds.

The first solution is by far the most desirable, but as everyone knows, the legislature, faced with the necessity of supporting the grade and secondary schools as well as the higher institutions, is more reluctant to add to the University's appropriations.

The DAILY TAR HEEL is carrying on an investigation of the allocation of student fees, and will submit a plan for reallocation before the end of the quarter. Either this or another reallocation plan must be adopted or these departments of the University are doomed to continue their half-starved efforts.

Now YOU'RE Talking

"... UNDAUNTED SPIRIT ..."

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Having at length a little leisure at my command, I will set out to correct some false and libelous propaganda about one of the truly brilliant men on this campus.

Dr. Ericson is in a world of thought that is not empty; he is in an intellectual domain where old traditions linger and in which new life is surging. He may have lost much sympathy with many of the accretions that have gathered around the old selfish ideals of free enterprise, but the undaunted spirit of truth and beauty goes on forever within him.

When a university, which prides itself of a superior liberalism, excommunicates (he is an associate professor) this same party because he cannot be false to what he holds true, because his spirit is "independent thought," then it is high time to ask, "What is liberalism?"

HENRY GINSBERG.

FRATS ON THE BALL

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In answer to the article in the DAILY TAR HEEL of Sunday, May 12, concerning the failing of the fraternities at Carolina, it must be admitted that the fraternities realize their weak points and, contrary to popular belief, are making a real move to prove their assertion that living in a fraternity house is superior to living in one of the dormitories or in town.

Despite the fact that the "age-old platitude that fraternities exist to unite kindred souls," may be getting worn-out from over-use, it is a fact that any small group living together for nine months as do fraternity men, will be more closely knit than a larger group such as is found in the dormitory.

All the fraternities are considering the means by which they can improve their positions on the campus. One fraternity has outlawed from its house all drinking, and gambling, has made provision for the installation of a house-mother, and has planned a system of tutoring for those freshmen and upperclassmen who are deficient in their work.

This article was written to explain that the fraternities do realize their responsibilities and are really making efforts to improve themselves.

WANTS NEWER MAGS

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

While the DAILY TAR HEEL is pushing its excellent drive for a cleaner, fairer, and more equalized program of University activities, we'd like to suggest that it send one of its reporters down into the lobby of Graham Memorial to try to find there something to read that is more recent than last year's copies of Collier's or the Saturday Evening Post.

It seems to us who are in the humble position of being merely students at this great University that the exalted and splendid purpose for which Graham Memorial was built has of late been forgotten, because lack of suitable and interesting reading matter in the comfortable lobby has made it an almost deserted place instead of making it the student union it is supposed to be.

If you follow our suggestion and send an investigator to check up on the situation, we believe that you will agree with us that there is little of interest in the lobby for the average student. When your investigator tries to find something there to read that is interesting and new, we fear that he will be sadly disappointed, and will doubtless wonder for what purpose the ease and luxury of Graham Memorial was created—and he will probably wonder whether he is in a recreational reading room or a historical archive full of dead matter.

ical or economic courses?"

Complaining that it was a catch question and that he "doubted its sincerity," Clark did not answer directly. Finally, after much discussion, he replied, "to some extent, yes." This admission came only after Ed Lanier was moved to charge Clark from the floor with "cowardly evasion" of Carroll's question.

Referring to the case of the alleged Burlington dynamiters, several of whom spoke in Chapel Hill, Clark said in his speech, "Two of the dynamiters could not come (to Chapel Hill) because one, while out on bail, had been caught robbing a store and another who escaped jail had disappeared. It is reported that his escape was financed at Chapel Hill."

Threatens Libel

At this point Director W. T. Couch of the University Press, mentioned by Clark as one of the objectionable University faculty men, challenged, "Can you say who financed the escape?" and intimated libel.

Clark retaliated with a like charge of libel. "As soon as the Burlington case is cleared, three libel charges will be brought against University professors. You will hear the full details at that time."

Phil Hammer, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, objected to Mr. Clark's being the one to instruct the mass of people of University activities, pointing out instances of Clark's alleged misrepresentations. When asked by Hammer if he would print some "true facts" if the former would send them to him, he answered that he would "if I can believe them."

It was rumored last night after the speech that Mr. Clark had upon request agreed to make an annual appearance at the University.

Infirmary Notice

Those students confined in the infirmary yesterday were: Pete Mullis, L. G. Weaver, F. D. Fitzhugh, N. D. Bitting, Herman Snyder, Marion Diehl, and Henry Bluestone.

Rohmann, Virginia Star, To Open Defense Of Title In Tennis Play Tomorrow

Annual Southern Conference Tennis Championship Opens Tomorrow at 2 O'clock.

SIX SCHOOLS ARE ENTERED

The biggest event of the tennis year opens tomorrow afternoon on the Carolina courts with the playing of the first round of the annual Southern Conference tournament.

Carl Rohmann, Virginia captain, will be back to defend his 1934 singles championship. Rohmann upset the dope last year to emerge the champion but his play this year stamps him as a favorite to repeat.

Last Year

Last year at Charlottesville, Rohmann was a feature in the all-Virginia final. He won on default from his fellow teammate, Don Morrison. His elimination of Barney Welsh was the prize upset of the tourney.

This season Rohmann has already proven his superiority over Harvey Harris, Tar Heel star, who recently captured the North Carolina state title.

The field will be much stronger than it has been in recent years. Six schools will send men to make up the group of 32 that is expected. They are North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Duke, N. C. State, and South Carolina.

Three Day Tourney

The tourney will take three days, the finals in both singles and doubles to be contested on Saturday afternoon. All matches will be two out of three until the semi-final round is reached. At this point three out of five sets will be waged to determine the winners.

The tournament is staged as an individual tournament. However, team recognition is given to the school making the finest showing.

Carolina is a topheavy favorite due to their record of the past year. The doubles team of De Gray and Captain Levitan stand a fine chance of winning the title in that division while the Carolina hopes in the singles will rest on the shoulders of Harvey Harris.

LIBRARY CATALOGUE HAS CARDS FROM 4 COLLEGES

The University library has just added a new section to its great Union Catalogue which occupies the west end of the main reading room.

The new catalogue contains cards for the Library of Congress, the Harvard University library, the library of the University of Chicago, and the Wesleyan University library.

The complete catalogue of the University is now in seven sections, each containing 288 trays—a total of 2,016 trays, each tray holding approximately 1,000 cards.

In addition, the University catalogue contains a catalogue of Duke University, filling one entire section.

Professors and students find the Union Catalogue of great use in locating books in other libraries and for bibliographical purposes.

Mural Program

Because of the varsity baseball game today between Carolina and Duke, there will be no intramural contests in baseball or tennis. The schedule will be continued tomorrow as previously announced.

Coach Fetzer Chosen To Select Track Men For National Games

R. A. Fetzer, athletic director at the University and third district representative for the N. C. A. A. track and rules committee, has been elected to line up the track and field men from colleges in North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, and the District of Columbia, for the national intercollegiate meet to be held at Berkeley, Cal., June 21 and 22.

Any trackster wha has bettered the following marks during the 1935 season will be considered for the meet: 100-yard dash, 9.8; 220—21.3; 440—48.9; 880—1.56; mile—4.22; two miles—9.40; 120 high hurdles—14.9; 220 low hurdles—23.8; high jump—6 feet, 4 inches; broad jump—24 feet; pole vault—13 feet, 6 inches; shot put—48 feet, 6 inches; discus—150 feet; javelin—200 feet; hammer—150 feet.

Coach Fetzer has the task of checking the performances of all the candidates from district three. Those accepted will have their expenses paid to and from Berkeley.

Mural Results

BASEBALL

In the only intramural game contested yesterday, the Zeta Psi outfit nosed out D. K. E., 4-3. After the Dekes had come from behind in the "lucky seventh" to tie the game at three-all, the scrappy Zeta Psi's pushed over a lone tally in the ninth to gain a well-earned victory.

Snow and Folger wielded potent bats for the victors while the hard-hitting of Hart and Patterson kept the losers in the game up to the last frame.

Score by innings:

D. K. E.	000 000 300—3
Zeta Psi	100 020 001—4

ALUMNI EXPECTED TO TURN IN FUNDS

University Books Will Be Given Town Making Most Donations.

Contributions from 2,500 alumni are expected to be turned in by June to Felix Grisette, director of the contest in alumni loyalty and of the loyalty fund.

Follow-up letters on the campaign for alumni contributions, begun about two months ago, were sent out yesterday to University alumni all over the world. Awards to contest winners will consist of a set of 100 volumes of University Press books to the school or public library of that town or city which has the largest percentage of its alumni making gifts.

Grisette states that results so far have been very satisfactory, with gifts already received from individuals in practically every county of the state, every state in the union, and every living alumni class of the University.

A special faculty travel fund will be created from all gifts received from members living in Chapel Hill. The need stated for this fund is that convention travel is vital to professional alertness, and yet there are no state funds available for this purpose.

ON YOUR MARK!

Pictured above are four stalwarts of Carolina's powerful track team. All are entered in the coming Southern Conference title meet at Durham this week-end and are expected to score valuable points. From left to right: Tom Hawthorne, Charlie Hubbard, Don Jackson, and Dick Baer.

Carolina Seeks Third Consecutive Conference Track Title This Week

Duke and Maryland Main Threats to Tar Heels' Third Bid for Outdoor Honors; Event to Be Held at Duke Track Friday And Saturday with Carolina Favored to Repeat.

Having already garnered its 14th successive state track title, the Carolina varsity will attempt to win its third straight Southern Conference title when the annual meet takes place this week-end on the Duke track at Durham.

In 1932 when the old southern circuit was still in operation, Carolina was a pre-meet favorite, but L. S. U. upset the dope in the meet at Atlanta, Georgia to win, and the Tar Heels finished far down in fourth place.

Two Years Ago

The 1933 season saw the Carolina squad coming through to take the first championship meet of the new Southern Conference with 66 points to Duke's 52. Last year the Tar Heels repeated, more than doubling Virginia's score with a 68 1-3-14 count.

Again—as in the state meet and the dual competition with Duke—the defending champions will be exerted to their utmost if they hope to retain their laurels. The greatest threats to the continued Carolina supremacy will be Duke and Maryland.

These teams followed the championship Carolina outfit in the indoor meet with 27 and 24 points, respectively.

The weight events will be important factors in determining the outcome of the meet, although at present it appears that these points may be equally divided among the entrants.

Shot Put

At present Tom Evins looms as the favorite in the shot, but with the two Williams brothers from Duke and Guckeyson of Maryland in top form, he cannot be counted upon too strongly to win.

The discus throw finds Zori of State as the best bet and an almost certain repeater. Again Guckeyson, along with McConnell of Clemson and Currence of V. M. I., should be in the thick of the battle. Should these men take the first four positions, Duke's edge over Carolina in the field events will be greatly diminished.

One of the most uncertain of all events in southern track competition is the pole vault. Don Jackson of Carolina is the defending champion, and if he can get back into 1934 conference form, he may be able to repeat. However, Moore of Duke, along with his teammate, Leidy, Baer of Carolina who tied for the indoor crown, and Cell of Virginia will make it plenty close for the champion.

Floyd Higby looms as a great hope for Carolina in the broad jump event, and should Co-Captain Charlie Hubbard be back in shape the Tar Heels can look toward this event as a real helper. Hubbard hurt his leg again in the Navy meet, but will be in the competition Saturday to defend his title against his diminutive teammate.

Tar Heel Nine Clashes With Duke Today In Second Game Of Series

NETTERS COMBAT CAVALIERS TODAY

Carl Rohmann, Conference Champion, Leads Invaders into Tar Heel Camp Today.

The varsity netters return to their normal routine this afternoon; meeting the Virginia team at 3 o'clock. The Carolina team has just returned from its northern tour, winning five of the six contested matches.

Leading the Virginia netmen will be Carl Rohmann, present Southern Conference singles champion. He is a serious threat in the conference tourney that opens tomorrow on the Carolina courts.

Rohmann Dangerous

On the recently completed tour Virginia bowed to the Tar Heels in an uncompleted 3-1 encounter. Rohmann threw the cog in the Carolina offense by stopping Harvey Harris, 6-0, 6-4. Harris, who was slightly ill yesterday, will be out for revenge if he is able to compete this afternoon.

Stuart Taylor, veteran Cavalier, will play the Carolina second man. The remainder of the team is composed of Sloan, Fine, Barclay, and Williams.

Although Carolina is favored, a thorough battle is expected from the visiting Cavaliers. In the recent encounter both De Gray and Willis had to go three sets to defeat Taylor and Sloan, respectively, while Minor and Levitan were knotted at 3-all in the third set with their individual opponents when their matches were called because of rain.

Rain Halts Net Match

The varsity and freshman tennis teams were prevented from having it out yesterday afternoon by Ole Man Pluvius who brought an end to the proceedings after one match had been completed.

The frosh were leading 1-0 by virtue of Ramsay Potts' decisive win over Frank Shore, 6-0, 6-3. The remaining matches were far from settled when the play was halted for the day.

The match will probably be completed after the Southern Conference tournament this week-end. Coach Kenfield has set the tentative date for the coming Monday.

SEND THE DAILY TAR HEEL HOME

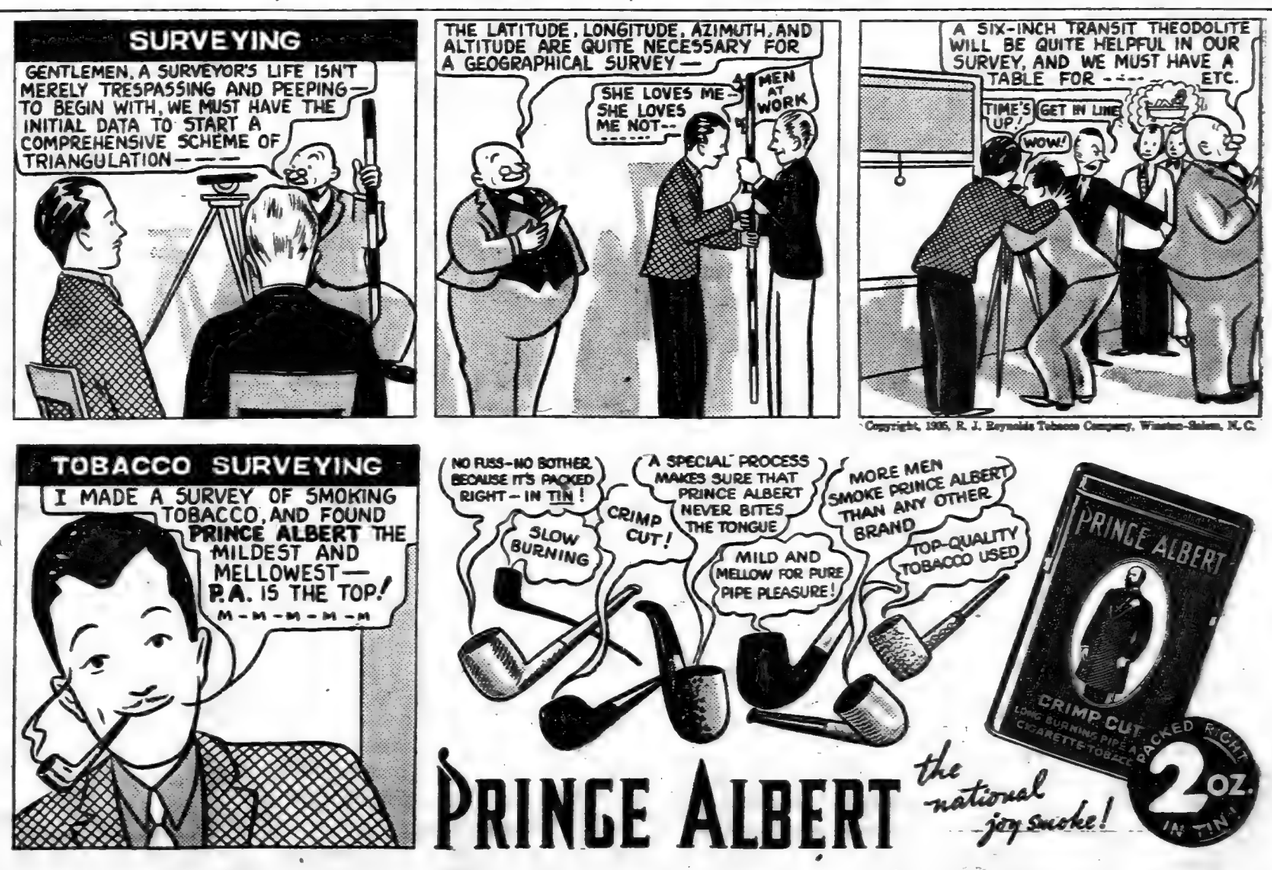
Crouch Again to Oppose Hal Weafer on Mound; Game at Emerson at 4 P. M.

The Blue Devil nine comes to town this afternoon to meet the Tar Heel ball club on Emerson field at 4 o'clock in the second game of a four-game series. Carolina dropped the first contest to the Dukesters by a 7-2 count in a much closer game than the final score seems to indicate.

Upsets have occurred yearly in the series between the two rival nines, and although Duke is favored to win once more Carolina stands an even chance of coming through with a victory to tie the series at one-all.

Crouch to Start

Coach Bunn Hearn will probably give the pitching assignment to the reliable Fred Crouch. Crouch was slightly off form in the opener but he is now well rested and prepared to set the Devils down in order. Hal Weafer, ace Duke moundsman, is scheduled to take the mound once again this afternoon. With these two hurlers tossing them in today a good old fashioned pitching duel is likely to ensue.



Groome, who has caused considerable trouble for Carolina's opposition since he replaced Captain Vick in centerfield, is apt to annoy Duke no little with his sparkling fielding and greatly improved stickwork. Tatum, who showed a return to form against Duke, will open in right field and give the dynamic Strayhorn a chance to take over the catching duties.

CHASE TO ATTEND DRAMA FESTIVAL

Richard Chase, associate director of the Institute of Folk Music, left recently for Chattanooga, where he will attend the National Folk Festival, beginning today.

Two plays by Paul Green, president of the National Festival, will be presented during the Festival, which will last through Friday. They will be "Fixins" and "The Last of the Lowries," the former sponsored by Robert Wunsch, an alumnus of the University and director of Black Mountain College.

National director of the Festival is Gertrude Knott, who used to be at the University as director of community drama. Chase will be representing the University Dogwood Festival.

Three Usherettes Will Demand Tips At Free French Club Horror Play

Spectators entering the Playmakers theatre tomorrow night at 8:30 when the French Club presents "Une Soiree Au Grand-Guignol" will find themselves in the atmosphere of a typical French theatre.

There will be no admission charge but in keeping with French tradition the programs will be sold for a small sum and the usherettes will demand their tips. Usherettes for the program are: Margaret Adams, Vivian Grisette, and Peggy Wood.

The French Club, whose purpose is to aid students in speaking French, attempts each year to recreate some typical French institution. Last year, with the comedy "Topaze," a schoolroom was reproduced. Thursday's performance will give a glimpse into the world's most famous horrow theatre where the Parisian bourgeoise and his lady drop in after dinner to relish spurting blood realistically presented. The management suggests that the spectacle is not to be recommended for children or persons easily nauseated.

The play especially written for this "soiree de gala" is entitled "Le Crime d'un Cerveau Malade" and tells of the fate of a young girl at the hands of her crazed ward-mates in a hospital in the suburbs of Paris. The play was written and directed by W. D. Creech, Jr., formerly adviser of the French Club.

The cast for the play includes: Catherine Hodges, Olive Newell, Lillian Allen, Mary McKee, Ray Reeves, Warren Barrett, Lawrence Cheek, Scott Hunter, and Cecil Ford.

COMMENCEMENT PLANS GIVEN OUT

Dr. James H. Franklin Will Deliver Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday, June 9.

Extensive plans for the 140th commencement were announced yesterday from the alumni office. This year the program will be divided into three days. Sunday, June 9, is to be Baccalaureate Sunday; Monday, Alumni Day, and Tuesday, Class and Graduation Day.

Sunday the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Dr. James H. Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary at Chester, Penn. Dr. Franklin has achieved an eminent position in the religious world, being a member of the International Missionary Council and chairman of the Committee on Relations with the Orient. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa and recipient of the Cross of the Legion of Honor of France.

Alumni Day

Alumni Day will be featured in the morning by a roll call of the reunion classes with Judge Francis D. Winston, class of '79, presiding. Dr. Howard E. Rondthaler, class of '93, president of Salem College, will be toastmaster at an alumni luncheon in Swain hall at 1 p. m. The Honorable Josepuhus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico and University alunmus, will be one of the speakers. Reunion class suppers that evening with an alumni reception and ball closing the day's activities are also planned.

The final graduation exercises will take place in Kenan stadium Tuesday night with Governor Ehringhaus presenting the diplomas.

Included in the program are the following events: Sunday morning, Baccalaureate sermon by Dr. James H. Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Penn., in Memorial hall; Sunday afternoon, concert by the University band; a joint reunion supper at the Carolina Inn; program by Chapel Hill Choral Club at night.

Monday morning, Chapel Hill news reel at the Carolina theatre, a roll call of the reunion classes at Gerrard hall, and a luncheon for alumni at Swain hall; afternoon, lawn concert by the University band; reunion class suppers of classes of '85, '10, '13, '14, '15, '16, '25; bill of plays by Carolina Playmakers in their theatre, and a reception and ball for the alumni in the Tin Can.

On Tuesday the day will get underway with a program in Gerrard hall at 10:30 with Prof. H. H. Williams as the principal speaker. From 11 to 12 o'clock the president and deans will give a reception for the seniors, their parents and guests under the Davie Poplar. At 6:30 p. m. the University band will give a concert in Kenan stadium, followed by the academic procession. At 7 o'clock, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus will present the seniors with their diplomas in Kenan stadium.

CAST FOR HAMLET IS DEFINITELY SET

Professors Koch, Davis, Olsen, McKie Included in Large Group of Actors.

After several days of rehearsal a definite cast has finally been selected for Hamlet, to be given by the Playmakers in the Forest theatre May 24 and 25.

The title role will be played by Professor Koch himself. He will be supported by the following cast: Claudius, king of Denmark, Robert Nachtmann; the Ghost, Professor Harry Davis; Polonius, Philip Parker; Laertes, William Wang.

Grave Diggers

First Grave Digger, Professor Bill Olsen; Second Grave Digger, Kenneth Bartlett; Priest, Professor George McKie; Gertrude, mother of Hamlet, Louise McGuire; Ophelia, Patsy McMullan. The remaining cast, consisting of lords, ladies, dancers, and singing ladies, will be selected by Phoebe Barr who is directing the dances especially composed for the play.

The production of Hamlet is the last Playmaker offering of the year and Professor Samuel Selden, associate director, has made elaborate plans to make it the most gala event in the history of the Playmakers. Professor Selden will be assisted by Harry Davis, who has charge of the stage lighting. Earl Slocum of the University music department will direct the orchestra in music especially arranged for Hamlet, and Ora Mae Davis will design and supervise the execution of the elaborate costumes.

fend America's institutions of private property and private profit from personal conviction. Warmly commended by National President Jewett Shouse of the Liberty League for his stand, he says, "I am not a member of that organization, however."

Waving the argent standard of simon-pure Americanism, Durfee, Connecticut Republican, scored by campus radicals on the count of hyper-reactionarism, says, "Mr. Woodhouse and I agree only on capitalism. . . . I recognize only two parties: Republican and Socialist."

On May Day last, historical date in radical annals, English Instructors Williams and Wishart of the University flung to Organizer Durfee of the campus American Liberty League the challenge to pick a cohort and defend the existing social-economic order. Rallying stoutly to capitalism's aid was Professor Woodhouse of the history and government department.

For capitalism's trial judges will be the audience. Of the volunteer panel of students and citizens the majority is expected to be conservative in sentiment; more highly organized and more ready to heckle and harangue, the incendiary minority.

Following the debate proper (17 minutes per speaker), questions will fly from the floor until the assemblage is dispersed by state troopers or the 8:30 class bell.

FROSH HANDBOOK STAFF APPOINTED BY EDITOR McKEE

Business Manager to Be Named This Morning at 10:30.

The complete editorial staff for the 1935-36 Carolina Freshman Handbook was announced yesterday by Don McKee, newly-appointed editor.

Associate editor of the publication will be Jim M. Daniel, one of the assistant editors of the DAILY TAR HEEL, McKee said.

Copy assistants working for the Handbook are John McNeill Smith, Jr., Drew Martin, William M. Cochrane, Emmet R. Spicer, Bob Garland, Ira Sarasohn, Fletcher Ferguson, and Eddie Kahn.

The appointment of the Handbook staff yesterday followed a brief meeting of the staff at which assignments for the coming edition of the publication were given out and plans for the make-up and forms of the issue were discussed.

The business manager of the Handbook will be appointed this morning by a special committee named for the purpose. Applicants for the position will be interviewed at 10:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A.

The staff of last year's Handbook was: Vermont C. Royster, editor; Ralph Burgin, associate editor; Don McKee, assistant editor; Eli Joyner, business manager, and Jim M. Daniel and James Morris, copy assistants.

NOT IN ERROR Inaccuracy is something newspapers hate as much as newspaper readers. Three instances of inaccuracy by this paper have been mentioned to us.

One, regarding an All-American. We specifically mentioned in this connection that we knew nothing of the news value of the quotation we inserted. We were accurate in transcribing it. And our point was one of universal application. That was not inaccurate.

Another, concerning David Clark's "not" insertion in the Winant report. We quoted the New York Times, recognized as thoroughly quotable. It was in error and our final quotation from a reliably accurate source put David Clark in error. We ended up accurately by quoting America's most fool-proof newspaper.

The last, relating to the student audit system. Mr. Sherrill said that his office was only 25 feet away and there we would find all information on this system and the audit board. In the first place, we knew the entire system before we wrote anything and his explanation did not touch our point. And secondly, we don't believe that the place to find out about the workings of a student audit board is in the office of the auditor hired for the purpose of auditing, not explaining the students' policies.

We hate inaccuracies and intend to be accurate. People should think before they jump to conclusions and that is applicable to ourselves as well as to our readers.

JUST STARTING We have heard it expressed that we should take it easier and quit trying to reform or crusade through our columns.

This has been the prevailing sentiment for some years and it probably makes this edition of the DAILY TAR HEEL look like an awful shine. But we promise you that we have concentrated on only one-seventh of the problems which are imminently facing the campus and need attention. That should make some of us feel better.

If what has been fought for is of no value, then our efforts would have been fruitless. But each of the four policies of the paper are crystallizing.

The class-extension plan went through its first gauntlet and bids well to be adopted. The fraternity and dormitory discussion started immediate activity. The re-allocation of fees agitation is perpetrating quite a commotion behind the scenes and many definite results will be published soon. And the fight for a written constitution materialized in the appointment of an aggressive and well-qualified committee of investigation.

We're not trying to make mountains out of mole-hills, but anyone who knows and cares realizes that affairs in student activities have been much in need of rehabilitation. To effect this should be our duty.

PHI BETE TO TAP 33 HERE TONIGHT; SMITH IS SPEAKER

Juniors Have 19 Eligible; Seniors, 14; Names to Be Made Public After Ceremony.

WILL NOT HAVE BANQUET

Thirty-three new members will be initiated into Phi Beta Kappa tonight, as tapping takes place for one of the highest honors to be attained on this campus. Names are not announced until after the ceremony in Graham Memorial at 7:30.

Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president emeritus of Washington and Lee University, will be the speaker of the occasion. Dr. Smith is a graduate and former president of Davidson College. He was a classmate of Dr. McIntosh of the University law school.

Smaller Group This Year

Of the 33 potential members, 19 are juniors and 14 are seniors. The number this year is 25% smaller than that of last year, but the general scholastic average is higher.

In order to be accepted for membership, a student must hold an average of 92.5% for eight quarters.

Contrary to the announcement made yesterday in the DAILY TAR HEEL, there will be no banquet held at the initiation tonight.

ISRAEL STRESSES USE OF RELIGION FOR SOCIAL ILLS

Jewish Theologian Favors Collective Bargaining by Labor.

Emphasizing the solution of the problems of our present economic and social system by principles of religion and on a basis of human individuality and personality, Rabbi Edward L. Israel concluded his series of lectures in Gerrard hall last night.

Israel, who spoke here under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A., addressed the group on the subject, "Social Ideals of Modern Judaism."

Finer Social Order

Advocating the solutions of our problems along religious lines, Israel said that it would be possible to create a finer social order if we would spend as much time on religion as on worldly efforts in business and laboratory. He predicted that the problems of capital and labor, of inequality in wealth would continue to exist until we built up a society in which every person has his needs satisfied.

Pointing to the exploitation of men by capital, the eminent Jewish theologian said, "We must remind society from a religious point of view that the conglomerate mass of laborers are human beings . . . The principle of collective bargaining is necessary for the continuation of our labor system."

P. U. BOARD OPENS AUDIT SQUABBLE

Inquiry of Non-Fulfillment of Student Audit Board Requirements Started.

The embers of an apparently dead issue were fanned to life yesterday when the Publications Union Board voted to inquire whether the conditions under which the board last year agreed to fuse its funds with the Students Activities Fund have been complied with.

When the P. U. Board yielded to agitation a year ago and consented to have its money merged under the Student Audit Board, it stipulated, among other things, that the auditor be bonded, and that monthly balance statements be rendered.

Non-Compliance

Since then, according to the P. U. Board, the Student Audit Board has failed to fulfill these two agreements; the bonding hasn't taken place and balances are rendered only once or twice a year.

Other ashes were stirred up when the board for the third time refused to grant the freshman class the 10 per cent reduction for its representation in the 1935 Yackety Yack which it would have been given if payment had been made before the final discount date, January 1. The first-year men gave their greenness in general as their excuse for not paying up in time to earn the discount, and as the reason why they should be granted clemency.

OLSEN TO SPEAK AT FROSH SMOKER

The annual freshman smoker will be held tonight at 9 o'clock in Swain hall.

This entertainment will be the last social undertaking of the freshman administration under Mullis, and the installation of the new officers of the class will be a part of the evening's program.

Professor W. A. Olsen will be the feature speaker of the evening. Billy Knauff and his orchestra will furnish music and ice cream, cake, ice tea, and cigarettes will be served absolutely free.

All freshmen are urged to come, and co-eds will be especially welcome.

Phi Assembly

A bill proposing that Davy Clark's policies should be condemned was the chief subject of discussion in the meeting of the Phi Assembly last evening. The bill was passed 27-4.

Election of officers for the fall quarter will be held May 28, and on Wednesday evening, May 29, a social will be held followed by a free show.

U. N. C. Symphony

Under the direction of H. H. Fuchs, head of the orchestral department at the Woman's College in Greensboro, the combined symphony orchestra of the Greater University presented a program of classical and modern compositions to a small but appreciative audience.

The concert last night was the same as that presented in Greensboro on Tuesday before an enthusiastic audience in Aycock auditorium. The combined units have been rehearsing for several weeks.

Audience Shouts; Applauds As Capitalists And Radicals Debate Over Social Order

Feeling Runs High In Challenge Match

Socialists and Conservatives Receive Staunch Support from Student-Faculty Audience.

STORMY FORUM FOLLOWS

Carols of capitalism's virtue rang and dirges of its doom rolled throughout Gerrard hall last night as white and red duets vied to entice the audience to the right and to the left.

Prescribing socialism as a physick for America's sociological and economic ills, Revolutionary Socialists Arnold Williams and James Wishart, both instructor's in the University's English department, contested Old Guard Winthrop Durfee and Reform Democrat E. J. Woodhouse, professor of history and government, on the characteristic issues of private profit and private property.

The Carolina Political Union sponsored the debate, which was instigated by Wishart and Williams in a challenge delivered through the DAILY TAR HEEL. Union President Robert Smithwick presided.

America—

Applause and shouts of approval rang out to Professor Woodhouse's assertion that, faced with a choice of Russia or America today, "With all her ills, I would choose to live in the United States of America."

Tossing aside the arguments of the radicals, on the grounds that he heartily endorsed their diagnois of contemporary America's evils, Professor Woodhouse declared and reiterated that capitalism and its basic institutions are not doomed and that the present system, purged of abuses, will be the salvation of American society.

"The fashion nowadays seems to be to condemn all our institutions," he protested, and declared his faith: "Capitalism has a real capacity for making good citizens."

Staging a carnival sideshow, a vaudeville act and a display of intellectual gymnastics, Prestidigitator Durfee conjured up a scarlet and green handkerchief, waved incendiary and red-headlined newspapers and made fun of the opposition.

Lily-White

Retorting to Williams' proposals for a socialistic government, he demanded, "Who's going to run it? Like the Wall street boys, crooked politicians will manipulate socialism." Sporting a flaming red tie, the lily-white Liberty Leaguer regaled the assemblage with anecdotes eulogizing American aristocracy.

Disclaiming any personal distaste for socialism or communism, Durfee painted advocates of these systems as vandals and dissimulators who "are more interested in making a noise than in facing social problems."

Decency

"A decent society in America," Marx Disciple Williams set up as the aim of workers for socialism. Describing the attempted reforms of the New Deal as "driving the money-changers out of the temple for minor repairs; then letting them in again," he declared that capitalism depends on eternal expan-

Staff Meeting

FRENCH CLUB GIVES GORY SKIT TONIGHT

Playmakers Theatre Will Be Scene of "Grand-Guignol" Horror Play at 8:30.

In keeping with its policy of recreating each year some typical French institution, the French Club will reproduce tonight at 8:30 in the Playmakers theatre, Le Theatre du Grand-Guignol, famous in Paris and the world over for its horror plays.

The theatre will be transformed into a Parisian playhouse for this "Soiree au Grand-Guignol." The program will begin from the moment each spectator encounters the usherette and will feature a horror play called "Le Crime d'un Cerveau Malade," written by Walter D. Creech. The scene of this bloody thriller is an asylum for the feeble-minded.

Duke "Claque"

To make sure that the efforts of the players do not go unapplauded, the French Club of Duke University will come over in a body and act as a "claque" for the production. Their duty will be to furnish enthusiastic applause throughout the program.

The cast for the play is as follows: Marie Couche-toi-la, Lillian Allen; Hecate, vielle femme, Catherine Hodges; La Belle Helene, Olive Newell; Zulu, L'infirmiere, Mary McKee; Le Docteur Mouriquand, Lawrence Cheek; Polypheme, le borgne, Ray Reeves; Jacques Sans-abri, Scott Hunter; Le Docteur Policard, Warren Barrett; Pere Dupanloup, Cecil Ford.

No admission will be charged but programs will be sold for a small sum and the usherettes will demand their tips according to French traditions. Usherettes for the program are: Margaret Adams, Vivian Grisette, Peggy Wood, Louise McGuire, and Dorothy Pittock.

THAT 10% AGAIN

A small but noisy freshman executive committee met at 7 o'clock last night in probably their last session to polish off final plans for the class smoker to be held tonight and to take some action on the debated payment for the class picture in the Yackety Yack.

The first issue was settled when Bob Garland returned from E. Carrington Smith's office with the report that there was to be no free show.

A motion to the effect that the class pay the Yackety Yack $135 instead of $150 was passed by a large majority.

Several of the committeemen and outgoing President Mullis considered paying the interest on $135 since January 1 plus the original cost.

Attacked Professors Ericson, Couch Reply To Clark Charges

W. T. Couch, director of the University of North Carolina Press, and Professor E. E. Ericson of the University English department issued statements yesterday denying they had ever done any propagandizing of "atheism, socialism, and communism" in classrooms at the University.

In his address Tuesday night, in which he charged a small group of professors at the University with being "interested in promoting atheism, socialism, and communism," David Clark singled out Mr. Couch, Mr. Green, and Professor Ericson. Mr. Green said he did not hear the Clark speech and therefore did not care to comment on it.

It was stated today that Mr. Green had not taught in the University for three years and that Mr. Couch is not a member of the faculty. And since Professor Ericson is planning to spend next year in China on an exchange professorship, the campus wondered whom Mr. Clark would find to direct his attack against next year.

Ericson

Professor Ericson in his statement said:

"Here the University stand is that of providing an 'open forum' for all shades of thought that have representatives and are legal. That the authorities would permit a notorious attacker of University policies to make a public appearance is evidence of a real spirit of liberalism on this campus.

"I can say with unqualified positiveness that I have never engaged in propaganda in my classroom. Since our English literature is for the most part firmly rooted in the social background, it is often necessary to explain this background to one's students. Naturally, that suggests comparisons with our own day; for example the social unrest caused by the industrial revolution that produced much of the work of Carlyle, Ruskin, and William Morris are compared with the events of our own time.

"If this be treason, I have committed it, and so have many other teachers greater than I. Any time Mr. Clark wishes to publish a stenographic report of one of my lectures, he is welcome to do so."

Couch

Mr. Couch in his statement said:

"I am not a member of the University faculty nor am I on the instructional staff. I have never given any courses at the University. One of the other men singled out for attack, Paul Green, has been on indefinite leave of absence for several years and has not taught any classes for three years.

"I am not an atheist, or a socialist, or a communist. Neither is Paul Green to my certain knowledge. But I will not make this denial without asserting my right to be any one of these if I so desire. In reply to the question asked in open forum, 'what is socialism?' Mr. Clark replied that he did not know. He does know enough, however, to go around parroting and insinuating things he cannot prove, the nature of which he does not understand.

"What is the object of Mr. Clark's attack? How does Mr. Clark know what goes on in the class rooms here? Has he ever attended any courses? If not, where does he get his evidence, and what is it? I am much interested in knowing what his snoopers (there are always such persons) found me guilty of

WE ARE INDIGNANT

Mr. David Clark came and saw. To the masses of people throughout the state he attributed the right to govern this University and its policy. To himself he dedicated the duty of instructing these people in University activities. To the students on this campus he is supposed to be the savior, who works that we may be freed from the dread fingers of radicalism.

Question: Mr. Clark, will you define socialism?

Mr. Clark: I do not know what it is.

Yes, Mr. Clark came and saw but he did more than that. He exposed. He exposed himself as evidently ignorant of the very doctrines against which he wags his tongue. He exposed his methods, which purport to stir the masses of people through what we believe are misrepresented facts. He exposed his tactics, when he tread water and turned aside honest questions until he could perhaps, in the sanctity of his Charlotte office, pen further stuff which would hide the evasion and further carry on his cause.

Question: Will you print, Mr. Clark, a statement of true facts on a matter which I believe you have misrepresented, if I write it and send it to you?

Answer: Yes . . . if I can believe it.

Mr. Clark did not leave himself unguarded. His shield was always up. How sincere questions could be asked in all fairness and expected answered is not known; the shield of blunt evasion turned aside truth itself.

We are registering natural student indignation at Mr. Clark and at the manner in which he attempted to justify himself here Tuesday night. In his speech there were misrepresentations and in the discussion which followed there were evasions. What we are indignant about is that Mr. Clark is the self-styled University mouthpiece for the state; it is he who tells North Carolinians that this University is a hot-bed of radicalism. If it were true, then we would stand for fairness in justifying the radicalism if it is to be justified. But it is not true and we, as students who live and breathe in this educational center, resent attacks which are so maliciously perpetrated.

Question: Mr. Clark, how are students planning to study and enter government going to understand their own government or what is wrong with it if they do not know what socialism and communism are?

Answer: The question is not sincere.

Therein lies the sincerity of the man who has been carrying on a fight for years against our University. We can only thank God that we have a man at the helm of the University whose greatness can maintain itself in the face of such vicious attacks, whose personality is more powerful than all the Textile Bulletins in the world.

We students who love this University are not going to let this thing die down. We are youths who want fair play and justice and we will factually throw our hat into the ring and prove to this state that we on this campus and not David Clark are the ones who understand and appreciate the motives of this University.

It is not the attack against radicalism that bothers us; Mr. Clark, as all other reactionaries, can shout his head off for all we care. But we do resent his dragging the University before the state as a subversive institution, making our president seem an unprincipled demagogue, and misrepresenting University efforts to educate us in the liberal traditions of a traditionally famous educational system.

We are saying nothing libelous. His misrepresentations we will prove and his efforts to throttle our president and our educational pursuits we will present. We are students indignant.

Now YOU'RE Talking

"SOME OF US DOUBTED . . ."

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The University must blush at the reception Mr. David Clark received from some members of his audience last night.

Worst of the offenders was Student Charles Lloyd. Mr. Lloyd contributed nothing to the forum discussion, asked no question of the speaker, but rose from the floor to "congratulate" Mr. Clark on coming to the University because "some of us doubted if such a person really existed in the modern world."

Others in the audience last night who were discourteous to Mr. Clark have at least the excuse that they were sincerely trying to force Mr. Clark to face questions which he was evading. Mr. Lloyd's mannerless attack was utterly unwarranted.

Mr. Lloyd's recent bitter criticisms of the DAILY TAR HEEL'S unfair editorializing about the Playmakers and his attacks upon the DAILY TAR HEEL'S movie column have been deserved. But does not Mr. Lloyd realize that a college newspaper's unfair criticism of another department of the college is never in such bad taste as a University student's unprovoked insult to a guest speaker of the University?

For the University's and his own sake, will Mr. Lloyd not make a public apology for his sorry exhibition last night?

And Mr. Lloyd, if you talk further, please talk more thoughtfully.

WALTER HARGETT.

THE UNION ANSWERS

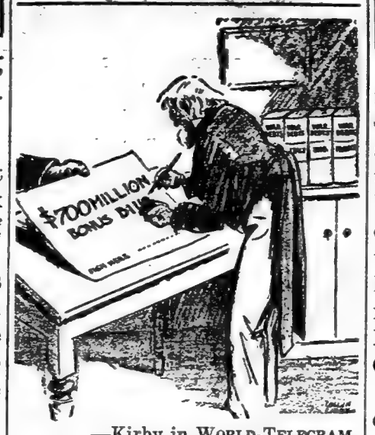
To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In regard to letter appearing in Wednesday's DAILY TAR HEEL deploring the dearth of up-to-date issues of magazines in the lounge of Graham Memorial, my only reply is that the magazines are placed in the lounge upon their arrival, with the exception of three, Fortune, Cosmopolitan, and Esquire, which have disappeared most rapidly in the past. These three are available in the office and must be signed for. I agree heartily with the sentiments expressed by Benton and Bill and would welcome any cooperation which they could give in reminding students that in stealing a magazine from the lounge they are depriving other users of the Union of an opportunity to read it. Thank you.

HARPER BARNES.

A. S. M. E. in Raleigh

The Raleigh section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held a dinner-meeting last night at the Jefferson Roof Restaurant in Greensboro, at which time speeches were made by Eugene W. O'Brien of Atlanta, R. B. Wilson, senior in the engineering school at Carolina, and J. L. Summers, State College senior.



O'Brien, the principal speaker, used as his subject, "Engineering—Ancient Magic in Modern Science." He is editor of the Southern Power Journal and a vice-president of the A. S. M. E.

R. B. Wilson delivered a paper on "A Simple Method of Testing the Discharge Efficiency of an Air-Compressor," a subject which he presented before the student branch of the society recently in Knoxville, Tenn.

Editor, Entertainment Undecided by Engineers

Because of the small attendance, the School of Engineering was unable to elect the editor of next year's Carolina Engineer or to pass on the proposal to join the student entertainment series. Keys were awarded to the staff of the Carolina Engineer.

After some discussion on the proposal to enter with the schools of liberal arts and commerce in the student entertainment series for next year, Dean Miller made a short talk and presented the magazine staff with their charms.

Those students receiving keys were: Walter W. King, editor; J. B. Crutchfield, R. L. Huber, E. A. Gaskill, T. D. Gordy, Robert Van Sleen, E. M. Evans, J. A. Westbrook, and Dr. A. C. Howell, faculty adviser.

SPEIGHT TO INSTRUCT SUMMER ART COURSES

Francis Speight of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, a native Tar Heel who has achieved high distinction, will give courses in art and drawing at the University of North Carolina again during the University Summer School, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Speight's courses here last summer proved especially popular and there was universal demand that he return this year.

Tar Heel Tennis Players Win Easily Over Virginia

Carl Rohmann, Cavalier No. 1 Man, Brilliant in Only Victory Scored by Virginia.

LEVITAN BACK IN FORM

With the exception of Ricky Willis' defeat at the hands of Carl Rohmann, Southern Conference singles champion, the Carolina netters coasted through to an easy 8-1 victory over the Virginia netters yesterday afternoon.

Rohmann, red topped racquet wielder, contented himself with getting in the way of Willis' best offerings and found little trouble in subduing the Tar Heel player by 6-3, 6-1 scores.

Willis replaced Harris at the top position because of Harris' illness. He was unable to make any headway against the Conference champion, who scrambled from corner to corner with his consistent defense that brought the ball back in play again and again.

Captain Walter Levitan evened the match at 1-all by downing Williams in straight sets. This presents good evidence that Levitan may go places in today's championship tourney.

Eddy De Gray, the boy who has yet to hit his peak, unleashed a bit of old form in trouncing Stuart Taylor, diminutive Cavalier veteran.

Frank Shore, Bill Minor, and Archie Henderson were the other Tar Heels to score straight set wins in the singles.

The opening doubles saw the state championship team of Levitan and De Gray falter in the opening set against Taylor and Sloan, but successfully bolster their attack and sweep through the final two sets to victory.

Shore and Willis were pressed by Rohmann and Williams but also eked out a three set victory.

Abels and Henderson closed the match, downing Fishburne and Glassie.

These matches served as warm-ups for today's Southern Conference battles, and a true indication that Rohmann may hang on to his title with his devilish defensive style.

SINGLES

Rohmann (V) over Willis, 6-3, 6-1.
Levitan (C) over Williams, 6-1, 8-6.
De Gray (C) over Taylor, 6-3, 6-2.
Shore (C) over Sloan, 6-4, 6-2.
Minor (C) over Fishburne, 7-5, 6-0.
Henderson (C) over Glassie, 6-1, 6-4.

DOUBLES

De Gray-Levitan (C) over Taylor-Sloan, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.
Shore-Willis (C) over Rohmann-Williams, 6-2, 7-5.
Abels-Henderson (C) over Fishburne-Glassie, 6-2. 7-5.

BLUE DEVILS WILL RESUME DIAMOND SERIES TOMORROW

Ken Weafer, Duke Star Twirler, Slated to Oppose Fred Crouch, Carolina, in Mound Duel.

Carolina and Duke will renew the season's baseball feud with the second game to be played tomorrow afternoon on Emerson field here at 4 o'clock, replacing the tilt cancelled yesterday because of wet grounds.

The Tar Heel-Blue Devil series will offer intense action, since the teams will play here tomorrow, at Greensboro, in Memorial stadium Saturday night at 8:15 o'clock; and here again Monday afternoon in the Tar Heels' last home stand.

Featuring a revised lineup and improved hitting, the Carolina team is expected to offer a tough battle to the fast-stepping Duke team that won the first of this year's four-game series in a contest played at Durham last week.

Crouch to Toe Mound

Fred Crouch will probably be Coach Bunn Hearn's mound choice for this game tomorrow, while Jack Coombs will rely on Hal Weafer to do his chores.

The present outfield, although still feeling the loss of Captain Vick, seems to be shaping up, being composed of Ed Voliva, Cicero Groome, and Jim Tatum. Taking Tatum's place behind the bat, Bill Strayhorn has been turning in some consistent work besides providing some much-needed pep. Both Groome and Voliva are veritable ball-hawks and better than fair hitters.

FROSH PLAY ASHEVILLE

It was announced yesterday that the freshman tennis team will engage the Asheville School in a series of matches to be played Friday and Saturday afternoons. The matches are scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock.

HERE ARE DIXIE'S FLYERS!

Above, ladies and gentlemen, are the fastest sprinters in the Southern Conference. They will show their wares as "speed merchants" in the conference track and field meet which will be run off in Duke stadium, tomorrow and Saturday.

The class of the seven men shown above is Earl Widmyer, Maryland flyer, who has shown his heels to some of the fastest track stars not only in Dixieland but in the east. Sure to afford Widmyer plenty of competition are Harris "V-8" Ford, Clemson; Gus Shehan, Duke; and Harry Woodard, Duke. Finlay and Hubbard, wearing the colors of North Carolina's defending champs, along with Tayloe, V. M. I., round out a brilliant field of dash men, sure to provide the spectators with more than average thrills.

Baer And Braddock To Fight In Garden's Out Door Opener

By LESTER OSTROW

Despite the fact that Max Schmeling kayoed Steve Hamas recently in Germany, Jimmie Braddock has been designated as the leading challenger for the crown that now adorns the head of Playboy Maxie Baer. The bout is scheduled for the Garden Bowl in Long Island, on the night of June 13.

It was taken for granted that Hamas was the logical contender for the title shot, and his defeat by the one-time Champion Schmeling undoubtedly placed the Teuton slugger in the coveted position. But the New York State Athletic Commission solons maintained that Braddock deserved the titular scrap. Madison Square Garden had Baer under contract for his next championship defense and had no other alternative than to offer the bout to Braddock.

Braddock, the man who has been responsible for the recent change in the current heavyweight problem, has just defeated three headline behemoths in the country to qualify for the most important battle of his career. A veteran of some 12 years of ring warfare, and weighing a little more than a light heavyweight, Braddock has proven that the old adage, "they never come back," does not always materialize.

He is known for his powerful right hand, a mitt that six years ago broke the jaw of Welterweight Champion Pete Latzo. Latzo carried on gamely for 15 rounds and finished strongly enough to carry off the popular decision of the referee and ringsiders. This 28-year-old pugilist has come back over a hard trail for the right to meet the champ in June.

This scribe believes the match will be a sad disappointment to those fans that will attend it, not neglecting the disappointment to the gate receipt counters. Unfortunately, the Carnera-Louis bout has aroused more interest than this one. We don't think Braddock will last more than six rounds against the colorful Maxie Baer. The "Broadway Playboy" is entirely too much for Braddock. He

Southern Conference Men Meet At Duke Tomorrow

CONFERENCE NET MATCHES ON TAP THIS AFTERNOON

Conference Tennis Titles Are To Be Decided on Carolina Courts This Week-end.

Carl Rohmann, red-headed Virginia ace, and his Southern Conference singles net title go on the spot this afternoon when the annual tournament begins here at 2 o'clock.

His greatest threat among the entries gathered from six conference schools is Carolina's Harvey Harris. This brilliant Tar Heel is the proud possessor of the state crown and will endeavor to add the much-coveted conference crown to his laurels.

The seeding will be completed with Ricky Willis in third and Walter Levitan in fourth. This will make it an all-Carolina affair with the exception of the defending champion.

The Carolina varsity, with the team trophy again in their possession, will make a real effort to capture the singles title. Last year denied by a surprising all-Virginia final, the Tar Heels are placing their hopes on eight stars in this year's event.

Besides Harris, Willis, and Levitan, Coach Kenfield is entering Eddy De Gray, Frank Shore, Archie Henderson, Byron Abels, and Joe Grier.

Bill Minor Out

Bill Minor will be absent from the competition due to excessive studies. The absence of this big runner-up in the state championship will be sorely missed.

Virginia is entering six players, State and South Carolina four, and Duke and Maryland two each. More late entries are expected to come in before the draw is selected this afternoon.

Doubles play will commence tomorrow with Levitan and De Gray the favorites, due to their recent victory in the state tournament.

First and second round matches will probably be played in the singles competition today. The matches will be the best two out of three.

Carolina, Duke, Maryland Vie For Conference Honors at Duke This Week-end.

When the prognosticators take their seats to figure the outcome of this week-end's Southern Conference track meet at the Duke stadium they will be assured of a tough job.

At present the team battle looms as a three-way affair, with Carolina's defending champions, Duke, and Maryland supplying the main portion of the fireworks.

This year's meet, the 13th annual one for the Southern Conference, but only the third for the new organization, should supply new heights of greatness for individual accomplishments. Eight of the 1934 champions and a like number of runner-ups will be back in the fight.

In the class of champions are four being picked by the experts to do big things. These are Harry Williamson, Carolina's middle distance star; Earl Widmyer, Maryland speedster; Gordon Everett, Virginia's hurdler, and Milan Zori, N. C. State discus thrower.

Perhaps the only safe bet of the four is Zori, Wolfpack man, who is being talked of as a member of the U. S. Olympic team of next year. The other three will all be facing the keenest competition, and it would not be too surprising to see any of them defeated.

Williamson, who has a string of titles reaching from the Atlantic Seaboard to the Mid-West, may find a tartar in Ivan Mothershead of V. P. I. The Virginia Tech star has never been beaten in two years of competition—but it will be his first race against Williamson.

Mothershead will probably face the Tar Heel brilliant over both 880 and mile routes, in which events he holds victories over Frazier of Davidson. Captain Pritchard, coach of the Davidson team, says that "Mothershead doesn't really know how fast he can run. He just goes fast enough to win."

For Widmyer and Everett the repeater's trail is going to be no easy matter. In the sprints the former will have plenty of com-

Handbook

The appointment of the business manager of the Carolina Freshman Handbook will be made this morning at 11 o'clock.

The committee which will make the selection of Handbook manager will meet in the office of Harry F. Comer at 10:30 a. m.

Members of the appointment committee are Professor H. D. Meyer, treasurer of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors; T. P. Yeatman, treasurer of the "Y;" Billy F. Yandell, president of the association; Mr. Comer, general secretary, and Don McKee, Handbook editor.

William Byron Wolfe, William M. Cochrane, and E. L. Peterson are the applicants for the business managership of the publication.

The appointment committee interviewed Wolfe and Cochrane yesterday morning and will hold a conference with Peterson this morning at 10:30 before making a decision.

Hero

Windsor Rowley, University freshman of New Smyrna, Fla., has been awarded a certificate of heroism, by the national honor court of the Boy Scouts of America, for saving a boy from drowning last year.

This announcement came from Henry N. Brown, Carolina alumnus, now Scout executive of the Central Florida council.

Ericson, Couch vs. Clark teaching, especially in view of the fact stated above that I have never taught a course in the University.

Defender of the Industry

"I believe the secret of Mr. Clark is that he regards himself as the defender of the southern textile industry. As editor of the "Southern Textile Bulletin," which is financed by subscriptions and advertising from those interested in the industry, he doubtless feels it necessary to fight every enemy, and if he cannot find any enemy, he will go out and create one. I for one, though attacked numerous times by Mr. Clark, certainly do not consider myself an enemy of the textile industry.

"I believe the members of this group permit themselves to be most seriously misrepresented when they allow Mr. Clark to speak for them. There are intelligent and well-informed men in the industry who are able intelligently to represent the industry to the public. Whatever differences one may have with textile leaders, it is exceedingly regrettable that Mr. Clark is allowed to appear without protest as their spokesman.

"If Mr. Clark had been paid with the proverbial Russian gold, he could not possibly have said or done more to shake the faith in his audience Tuesday night in himself and the interests he claims to represent. His refusal to answer and his obvious failure even to understand many of the questions he was asked condemned him and his cause completely. His refusal to clarify unsupported insinuations, his retreat in his speech into the loopholes 'it is reported' and 'I am wondering' forced the audience to question his honesty as well as his intelligence.

Tragic Error

"It is a tragic error for leaders in the industry to permit such subtle and effective undermining of faith in existing institutions by a man who honestly seems to think he is defending the interests of his subscribers.

"Mr. Clark has made numerous charges against me. I have just one to make against him and those who support him. If there is any general and violent breakdown in democratic institutions in this country, Mr. Clark and his followers will be responsible for it.

"People who are well-fed, who have jobs, and who are allowed to maintain a measure of self-respect will not listen to revolutionary doctrines. Mr. Clark is doing nothing to help correct the social maladjustments now prevailing. On the contrary, he has made it his special concern to snipe at every leader in social thought in North Carolina. The truth is that Mr. Clark, in spite of all his protestations, does not believe in democratic institutions. He does not even know what they are."

As a neat and nifty three-letter synonym for trouble any senator will unhesitatingly recommend NRA. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Track

pany. His main threats appear to be Harris "V-8" Ford, South Carolina state champion from Clemson, and Harry Woodard, the North Carolina state champion from Duke.

Should Gordon Everett again capture the hurdle crowns, he will have to dislodge some firm contentions from the minds of Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne and Frank Abernethy of Carolina. Both boys were "hot on his heels" in the Carolina-Virginia dual meet and the Penn Relays, and will be favored by many to come out ahead this week-end.

Perhaps one of the most versatile entrants in the battle will be William Guckeyson, University of Maryland sophomore. In his first eligible varsity athletic year, he spent a season as punting halfback on the grid team and guard on the basketball team, besides putting the shot and throwing the javelin for the track team.

Conference officials have set a fair price for the affair—50 cents. The Friday afternoon session will commence at 2:30 o'clock, while the finals will be staged one hour earlier on Saturday.

sion. When this expulsion slackens as it is now, he maintained, more intense exploitation of labor results.

"Without work there is no wealth," he said.

Answering in a short rebuttal a tirade of Durfee's questions, Williams fired a staccato stream of facts with sweeping gestures: "Socialism is ownership of machines by workers . . . workers will run it. Capitalism took four centuries and many revolutions to get started—we can do it in one revolution."

Reason

"Capitalism works to the deterioriation of all classes," said Wishart in a reasonable presentation of his case. "Capitalism demands more and more profits . . . can achieve profits only by working men harder and cutting wages lower."

Wishart painted a black picture of social conditions today, void of security and of assurance of rights. "The ills," he maintained, can be cured only by a system of production for human use."

A divided and strongly feeling audience encouraged the sallies of all contestants with rounds of applause, spiced with calls and whistles."

should find it comparatively easy to keep away from Braddock's right. Baer gave evidence of this ability to keep away from a slugger of the Braddock type when he stopped Kingfish Levinsky in Chicago, a few months ago.

The first odds were released recently by Jack Doyle, acknowledged Broadway betting commissioner, who made the defending champion a 5-1 favorite.

This writer advises all those considering the attendance of this bout to first bear in mind the Joe Louis-Primo Carnera setto which is to be run off the same month in New York. By all odds, this should be a keener fight.

HAROLD ("DUTCH") SMITH, Olympic Fancy High-Diving Champion, enjoying a Camel. He has smoked Camels for nine years—smoked Camels even before he took up diving. He says, "I'd walk a mile for a Camel."

Read below what leading sports champions say about Camels

With the preference of star athletes overwhelmingly for one cigarette, that cigarette has to be exceptionally mild! Its name is well known to you—Camel. Here's what an Olympic champion diver, Harold ("Dutch") Smith, says about Camels: "I've found a great deal of pleasure in Camels. They never interfere with my wind." Rip Collins, of the St. Louis Cardinals, says: "Here's the best proof I know that Camels are mild: I can smoke them steadily, and they never get my wind."

Rowland Dufton, of the New York A. C., says: "Squash is a game that requires A1 condition for tournament play. I've found that Camels are so mild I can smoke all I want, and they never upset my nerves or get my wind. That's what I call real mildness!"

Dick Shelton, world-champion steer dogger, says: "I must be sure the cigarettes I smoke are mild. Camels are very mild—don't get my wind." And those two brilliant golfers, Denny Shute and Helen Hicks, have come to the same conclusion —"Camels do not get my wind."

How this mildness is important to you too!

Camel smokers can smoke more—and enjoy smoking more, knowing that sports champions have found Camels so mild that they never jangle their nerves or get their wind.

YOUR OWN PHYSICAL CONDITION is important to you too. So remember this: Camels are so mild you can smoke all you want. Athletes say Camels never get their wind or nerves.

SO MILD! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII | EDITORIAL PHONE 4351 | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1935 | BUSINESS PHONE 4156 | NUMBER 172

STICKING TO ISSUES We're for creating and maintaining the campus personality, as you might know, but when one of the conservative speakers in the big hard-rock vs. radical debate Wednesday night had nothing to offer outside of personal digs, we're agin' allowing personalities to creep into issues too much.

Now if the title of the Wednesday debate had been: Resolved, That Wishart is a better red than Durfee is a hard-rock, then nobody would have cared much about what who thought of whom. But when the debate arose over an issue and presented the first public campus argument on this issue, then we'd rather hear the personalities discuss issues than themselves.

All in all, however, the debate was very pleasing. We're glad somebody got something off their chest at last. The outcome of the argument was, of course, watched with great interest by Jewett Shouse and the U. S. S. R. commissaries.

HIGHWAY TO FAME With the induction of over 30 students into Phi Beta Kappa last night, the annual spring round-up of brains has been completed. The elections took care of the last round-up, which didn't particularly feature brains but it got the wild horses in the corral, at any rate.

Entrance requirements into Phi Bete's corral, however, are not as clear as politics, which, though muddy, covers the ground. We know of one young gentleman who has just completed eight consecutive quarters of 94.5 average and he didn't get invited to wear the little golden key. Somebody forgot to tell him about getting a required Spanish course off. Scholar that he was, he didn't have sense enough to look for any other requisites outside of being a good scholar, which he was.

Next year Phi Bete officials would do well to make it clear to all promising or hoping-to-be Phi Bete material just exactly what the score has to be before the key is handed over.

ANOTHER FUNCTION The Publications Union Board's action in refusing to grant the freshman class its ten per cent Yackety Yack cut, because it did not pay by the stipulated date, brings out another point in favor of organizing student activities.

The freshmen gave their "greenness in general" as an excuse for not getting the money in on time, in order to receive a discount. This surely should be no excuse, as any intelligent freshman, no matter how green, should know enough about his duties to write a little check after a little study.

But it apparently is an excuse under our present set-up. And freshman officers aren't the only ones who don't know what the score is. Chalk up another function for Pool's committe on activities and improvements.

SMITH CRITICIZES LIBERAL LEARNING AS PHI BETES TAP

Washington and Lee President Analyzes Liberal Education; Terms It Disgusting.

CONRAD NEW PRESIDENT

Joining the ranks of the greatest scholarship order in the world, 33 Carolina men last night received recognition for three years of outstanding study when they were formally inducted into the University's Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at the ceremony in Graham Memorial.

Sigma Chi's Barnaby Conrad Keeney, flashing a perfect score of all-A's for his work here, stepped into intellectual shoes of one-B President Joe Sugarman, who has headed the Carolina chapter since the departure of last year's all-A Lawrence Thompson in the fall of 1934.

Keeney's 97.5 was trailed by the Old East Student David H. Scott's 97.04. Scott automatically became the new vice-president.

Dean House introduced Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president emeritus of Washington and Lee University, who spoke on "What's Wrong With Liberal Education in America."

"Disgusting"

"Disgusting" is what Dr. Smith thinks of our ideas of an "American liberal education." He says that "liberal" has come to mean "traditional" and that a liberal education fails in its purpose of providing a well-founded personality.

As an aid in remedying the defects of our "medieval" education he proposed sweeping changes both in the curriculum and aims of a liberal education.

The Phi Beta Kappa fraternity was the first Greek letter fraternity in the United States, being founded by five students at the college of William and Mary in 1776. Their aims in founding the society were the further-

FINAL CO-ED BALL TONIGHT IN BYNUM

Freddy Johnson Will Play for Occasion; Incoming and Outgoing Officers in Figure.

The quarterly Co-ed Ball will hold sway tonight in Bynum gym from 9:30 until 1 o'clock with Freddy Johnson and his musical-minded harmonizers dishing up the haunting melodies.

The feature of this last co-ed dance will be the figure presented by the out-going and newly-elected members of the Woman's Association council and their marshals. The old members are Betty Durham, president; Nancy Gordon, vice-president; Harriet Taylor, secretary; Julia Wood Skinner, treasurer, and Lois Byrd, Spencer house president.

The members of the new council include Jane Ross, president; Margaret Jordan, vice-president; Louise Davis, secretary; Ruth Green, treasurer; Bobbie Moore, Spencer house president; Leurline McCain, Graham house president, and Mary Pride Cruikshank, town representative.

The figure will take place at approximately 11:30 p. m. The names of the escorts could not

Capitalist—With Qualifications

E. J. Woodhouse, dynamic University professor and observer of world affairs, tells the Carolina Political Union: "With all her ills, I would choose to live in the United States of America." He is pictured above defending capitalism in Wednesday's debate, when he maintained that the nation needs only a modification of the present system and not an entirely new one. At the same time, however, he expressed grave fears for "the great middle class" if changes were too long delayed.

"Hamlet" To Have Fanfares, Death Chants, Ghost Music

Music for Elaborate Playmaker Production to Be Played by Symphony Orchestra.

Three dim forms patrol before the shadowy great castle, speaking in low voices, when a whisper of music sounds in the darkness and grows to a shivering sigh.

It is the University Symphony Orchestra out in one wing of the Forest theatre stage preparing for the appearance of the dead king's ghost in the first scene of Hamlet. The same shroud-and-coffin music will herald each subsequent approach of the dead monarch's shade.

As one of the most important features of the elaborate Playmaker production of Hamlet next week-end, music composed by Sir George Henschel for a Haymarket theatre performance in 1892 of the story of the Prince of Denmark will be played at intervals throughout the drama.

Royal Pomp

Fanfares before the entrance of King Claudius, funeral music for tragic, mad Ophelia, and the stirring Danish March will add their pomp to the colorful show.

The wailing Latin syllables of the "Angus Dei," sung by the girls' glee club, will accompany Ophelia's sad journey to her grave; and when Claudius says his royal prayer, Allegri's "Misere" will be chanted by the boys' club in the wings.

The Dumb Show

Music will be played for the dumb show, that dramatic and daring device used by the supposedly mad prince to expose the wicked ruling couple. Mrs. Phoebe Barr's dances will also have orchestral accompaniment.

Earl Slocum will direct the orchestra and Grady Miller the singing.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PLANS BROADCAST

President Warren Names Shaffner Head of Committee to Arrange Program.

The University Club made plans last night to present a Carolina radio broadcast over station WPTF sometime before the end of the quarter.

Louis Shaffner, chairman of the club arrangements committee, was appointed to make preparations for the affair.

President Warren named Joe Grier, Louis Shaffner, Bob Gardner, Henry Lewis, George MacFarland, Miss Lola Reed, and Don McKee as the club executive committee. Grier, who is treasurer of the organization, will be chairman.

Promises Budget

"By the next meeting Grier and I will have a budget made out," declared Warren, as he delegated the executive committee with the responsibility of revising the club constitution.

Arrangements have been made by the club for visiting students here at the tennis conference to obtain free passes to the Grail dance tomorrow evening.

Several members of the organization were appointed to make plans for a club banquet in the near future.

CO-ED BIDS

Bids for the co-ed dance will be on sale from 10:30 to 11 o'clock this morning and from 2 to 5 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Memorial. After dinner tonight they will be sold at Spencer hall.

Grail Dance to Honor Newly Selected Men

Final Dance of Year Will Welcome 13 Neophytes.

Presenting their last dance of the year in honor of the 13 neophytes tapped this week, the members of the Order of the Grail will welcome the new-comers socially tomorrow night in Bynum gym from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Ben Willis, Jim Finlay, John Parker, Frank Willingham, Ernie Eutsler, John Johnston, Ed Voliva, Buck McCarn, George MacFarland, Fred Weaver, Mel Nelson, Francis Fairley, and Red Drake are the new men to be signally honored.

Freshmen will be admitted to this last dance at the regular admission price of $1. Freddy Johnson and his orchestra will furnish the music.

FRESHMEN CHEER OLSEN AT SMOKER

Over 400 Freshmen Hear Olsen And House as Mullis Brings Administration to End.

Four hundred freshmen cheered W. A. Olsen, principal speaker of the evening, when he spoke at their smoker last night, bringing to a close the activities of the Mullis administration.

Other speakers were J. Maryon Saunders who introduced Professor Olsen, and Dean House who delivered the closing talk. At the close of the program, Mullis turned over the chair to incoming President Ramsay Potts.

"Gems of Wisdom"

Professor Olsen mixed humor with "gems of wisdom" in his talk on "Things That Go to Make Up a Liberal Education." The speaker received most applause when, in commenting on the tendency of freshmen to go home on the week-ends, he said, "If it's dames that are drawing you away from Chapel Hill, then we must fight for the expansion of co-education here."

After giving his regular talk Professor Olsen humorously impersonated the treasurer of the Palmleaf Beach Club giving his financial report.

Ramsay Potts, when called upon, rose blushing to his feet and said, "I can't make a speech either." Then thanking outgoing President Mullis he adjourned the assemblage.

HAZEL BEACHAM WINS ADVERTISING CONTEST

Hazel M. Beacham is $5 richer today. It was announced yesterday that she won first prize in a nation-wide contest open to students of advertising in the leading universities. The contest was sponsored by the Boston College of Business Administration.

Josephine Oettinger and Donald Becker received $1 prizes. The three prize winners are members of the advertising and marketing class, Commerce 161, which is taught by Professor Malcolm D. Taylor.

MacNider to Atlantic City

Dr. MacNider of the medical school has gone to Atlantic City to attend a meeting of the National Board of Medical Examiners.

Will Leave Faculty To Accept Position

History Professor Will Finish Quarter Here and Assume Duties on July 1.

HAS TAUGHT HERE 8 YEARS

Dr. C. C. Crittenden, assistant history professor here, will resign from the University faculty at the end of this quarter in order to succeed Dr. A. R. Newsome as secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission.

Dr. Newsome, as was announced recently, is resigning from his state commission post in order to succeed Dr. R. D. W. Connor as head of the University department, Dr. Connor having left the faculty several months ago in order to take charge of the federal archives.

Crittenden's new duties will probably begin sometime around July 1.

Not Unnoticed He . . .

Famed among undergraduates for his pop quizzes and class atmosphere, Crittenden has been a teacher here for the past eight years.

The resigning professor is distinctly a Wake Forest man: his father was a professor there, his granfather was president of the college from 1885 to 1905, his mother is now librarian at Wake Forest, and he himself holds his A.B. and M.A. from that college.

Coincidence

Furthermore, his young son, Charles Critopher Crittenden III (he married Miss Janet Quinlan of Waynesville in 1930), was born on the day of the Wake Forest-Carolina football game, November 11, 1933.

He is author of a pamphlet and several articles on North Carolina history. A volume by him, "The Commerce of North Carolina, 1763-1789," will be brought out soon by the Yale University Press.

FRENCH CLUB PLAY THRILLS AUDIENCE

Blood Runs Freely in Playmakers Theatre as Famous Horror Production Is Presented.

Blood ran freely in the Playmakers theatre last night as the French Club recreated Le Theatre du Grand-Guignol, the world's most famous horror theatre, before a gasping audience.

Spectators entering the building found themselves in the atmosphere of a typical French theatre. Usherettes met them at the entrance and cigarette girls persistently cried out their wares in French. Programs were sold at a small price in accordance with French traditions.

Scene an Asylum

The horror play given at this "Soiree Au Grand-Guignol" was entitled "Le Crime d'un Cerveau Malade" and was written and directed by Walter D. Creech, Jr. The scene of the play was laid in an asylum for the feeble-minded and concerned the fate of a young girl at the hands of her crazed wardmates.

No gory detail was spared the spectators. The high-spot of the play was the realistic operation on one of the patients by

PAGING THE REAL McCOY

Realizing how utterly useless would be our attempts to sit down and try to refute Mr. David Clark, inasmuch as what we would have to say would run the risk of being ill-treated in the Textile Bulletin, this newspaper, definitely and rightfully indignant, will present daily a clipping of Mr. Clark's efforts, which in themselves should give daily evidence of the inanity of what Mr. Clark has to say about the University.

You can't put your hands on Mr. Clark because he's too slippery. Clearing up one of his misrepresentations would be futile as far as he is concerned, simply because Mr. Clark knows how to duck and how to shut up.

Furthermore, the masses in the state whose minds Mr. Clark has distorted with his ridiculous ramblings about the University won't, as a general thing, ever see what this humble journal has to say. That's where Mr. Clark is clever, though he didn't think it up all by himself. It would take only one trip by President Frank Graham through the districts of Clark's domains, however, to set the Textile Bulletin's archdeacon on his back. This Mr. Clark evidently realizes also.

The reason for this latter fact is that Mr. Clark's methods, although effective with the less intelligent, don't stand up under fire. That was plainly evident here Tuesday night. His defense collapsed and he had no other course than to shut up and make a fool out of himself, which he did admirably well. The only flaw was that he didn't shut up quite enough. He should have done that years ago, freedom of speech or not.

We refer you to our daily excerpts. We also refer Mr. Clark to same. May he become enlightened, poor soul.

INTELLECTUAL FREEDOM

We have not tried to throw the fear of God into everyone by investigating student fees. But of the ample material which we have collected within the last two weeks, there seems to be enough evidence that our fees are mal-adjusted to warrant an exhaustive and intensive drive for re-allocation.

Our files are not quite complete as yet; however, almost three-fourths of the organizations receiving compulsory student fees have been studied. From these studies the following questions arise, the answers to which we intend to get:

(1) Are the students getting their money's worth?

(2) Are the specific fees being utilized for the purposes for which they were established?

(3) Should there be a difference in opinion on the part of administrators of the fees as to interpretations of how the fees should be spent, i.e., should there be liberal and conservative opinions on the administration of different fees or should all fees be governed by the same administrative rules?

(4) Are certain organizations or activities getting their share of fees or are unimportant organizations receiving more or as much as the more important ones?

(5) How are fees to be controlled in the future, in regularly scheduled re-allocation studies?

(6) Are the fees resulting in benefits to enough of the student body to warrant their continuance?

These and other questions necessarily arise from such a study. Many are the students who want to know why in thunder we have to add to our worries by investigating perfectly harmless fees. If these persons realized the mal-adjustment in our fee system, they would welcome the opportunity of joining up in the work.

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

May 14, 1931: "The University receives from the taxpayers of North Carolina about $800,000 annually for the purpose of educating young men of the state. Under the influence and guidance of radical professors a portion of the money received is each year diverted from education and used to bring to the University radical speakers."

From a COLLEGE WINDOW

By WILLIS S. HARRISON

According to Mr. David Clark, the national advisory council of the Institute of International Education, which endorses the Anglo-American section of the summer session of the State University at Moscow, and to which President Graham and most of the other leading educators of this country belong, is for the purpose of making skilled communistic propagandists out of the American students who attend the aforesaid summer session.

A paragraph from the New York Post may throw a little light upon this sinister organization:

"In Moscow, the Hearst press has discovered, there is a State University. The State University has a summer session. The summer session has an Anglo-American section. The Anglo-American section has an American advisory organization. The American advisory organization is the Institute of International Education. The Institute of International Education has a national advisory council.

"And these nefarious gentlemen are on that advisory council."

Crimson ideals of modern universities as expressed by Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago: "Freedom of inquiry, freedom of discussion, and freedom of teaching—without these a university cannot exist . . . Without these it becomes a political party or an agency of propaganda . . . The university exists only to find and communicate the truth."

Co-education, along with the passing of the double standard for the sexes, has had, says the Maryland Diamond, these results:

". . . gentlemanly courtesies and gestures of respect which once were wont to characterize the behavior of man to woman have been cast too much into the discard.

"Consequently, femininity has lost its charm.

"Frankness has become confused with vulgarity, and refinement and restraint in a woman are confused with snobbishness.

"Tolerance is confused to mean license, and love has been reduced to the plane of materialism.

"Cynicism is too much the order of the day and imagination has given way too much completely to stark realism.

"Practical-minded men are too much the objects of idolatry, and there are too many who scoff at the abstract thinker.

"Philosophy is derided and economics is over-rated.

"Results are demanded and the means neglected.

"Time is too much at a premium and thought thrown too much into disuse."

Chivalry divided by practicality may give a happy medium.

Notes: Colgate girls carry an average of $3.77 in contrast to $2.69 carried by men students . . . Also 33 per cent of them carry cigarettes while 28 per cent of the men carry pipes . . . At least, the government is sure of a profit from the chain-letter-send-a-dime scheme . . . Esquire started up as a men's fashion publication, has been voted the most popular magazine on many college campuses. Reason, says Editor Gingrick, "we publish no college dribble."

Now YOU'RE Talking

". . . SPLAYMOUTH"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In the first place, I want it to be known that I stand for freedom of speech on any subject at any time, anywhere, so long as the speaker observes the rudiments of decency. But when a person allows himself to become swine-like in his disregard of the rights of others to consideration, he should be branded a public splaymouth.

One of the most flagrant examples of bad manners was the greater portion of the remarks falling from the loosely rattling tongue of Winthrop Durfee in the socialism-capitalism debate Wednesday night. It is to be regretted a man of sincere argument and sound judgment as Mr. Woodhouse should have had the misfortune to have been thrown on the same side of the platform as Durfee.

I consider myself a conservative; I have been associated with Mr. Durfee in some of his organizations; but before I should adopt the type of capitalism which he proposed, I should welcome a one-way passage to Russia. His arguments were inane, personal, ridiculous, and at times filthy. He proved nothing except his own ignorance and inability to think either consistently or objectively.

I believe that capitalism has many strong arguments in its favor, but campus conservatives can only lose favor by intrusting their cause to Winthrop Durfee.

TOOK A CHANCE

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

This is perhaps trivial but yet interesting. At present I am in a quandry as to a statement by Earl W. Wolslagel in his entertaining column, "Sweet and Sour" of Friday past. His claim is that his nag cost him a pretty penny in the Kentucky Derby and then certifies that Chance Sun is the horse that deserted him in the stretch.

Per Chance, if he had followed the papers, he would have selected another horse to mourn over. Chance Sun was not within a hundred miles of Churchill Downs on Derby Day. Scratched three days before, Earl's supposed choice was resting comfortably in his own backyard at the time of the familiar "They're Off."

It may be interesting to write about the Derby but please don't prepare articles weeks in advance. Take another Chance, Son!

COLLEGE PRESS

Benevolent Indifference

College students who have taken to the expression of ideas which differ from the fundamental principles of our present world with which, until they enter college, they have been thoroughly inundated, are likely to encounter from their elders an attitude of benevolent indifference. The expression of this attitude, if, indeed, the bother is taken to express it, runs something like this: "All college students have such silly ideas; they will outgrow them in time."

Of course, the first assumption is obviously a misstatement; the great mass of American college students are sadly apathetic about modern problems. But the grave danger in such an attitude is that it is conducive to a state of smugness which precludes the possibility of youth's having intelligent ideas.

No attempt is made to deny that some students have unsound ideas, but this surely cannot constitute the basis for the careless unintellectual dismissal of all their ideas.

The desirability of alternating the present status of things somehow seems repugnant to this modern adult, although remarkable scientific and other advances have given him profound faith in the idea of progress, and yet, by his aforesaid attitude, he is prone to consider the present "good enough for me."

By virtue of its inexperience, youth has at once an advantage and a disadvantage over its elders. With life before it, youth is inclined to be idealistic; with few prejudices, it is likely to be more receptive to new ideas; but it often lacks the ability to judge those ideas with the wisdom and sagacity that years of practical experience with the world of men can give it. Senility, on the other hand, already settled in life, is disposed to be

Southern Conference Tennis And Track Meets Begin Today

CONFERENCE MEN PERFORM TODAY IN DUKE STADIUM

Annual Southern Conference Track and Field Meet Begins At 2:30 This Afternoon.

FINALS TO BE TOMORROW

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

Today's the day, and 2:30 o'clock is the starting time for what Ted Mann, Duke sports publicity ace, calls the "cinder path extravaganza of Dixie"—the annual Southern Conference track and field meet at Duke stadium.

The affair will last two days with the trials in all events taking place this afternoon, and the finals at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Despite the rain of the past few days the track is in excellent shape for the meet.

Third Conference Title

After going through an undefeated season in which it annexed its fourteenth state championship, the "Flying Tar Heels" of Carolina will attempt to repulse the onslaughts of Duke and Maryland to add a third straight Conference title to its honors.

Though the team title should be a close three-way battle, it would not be surprising to see every one of the 10 schools taking an individual title, as each has at least one outstanding star.

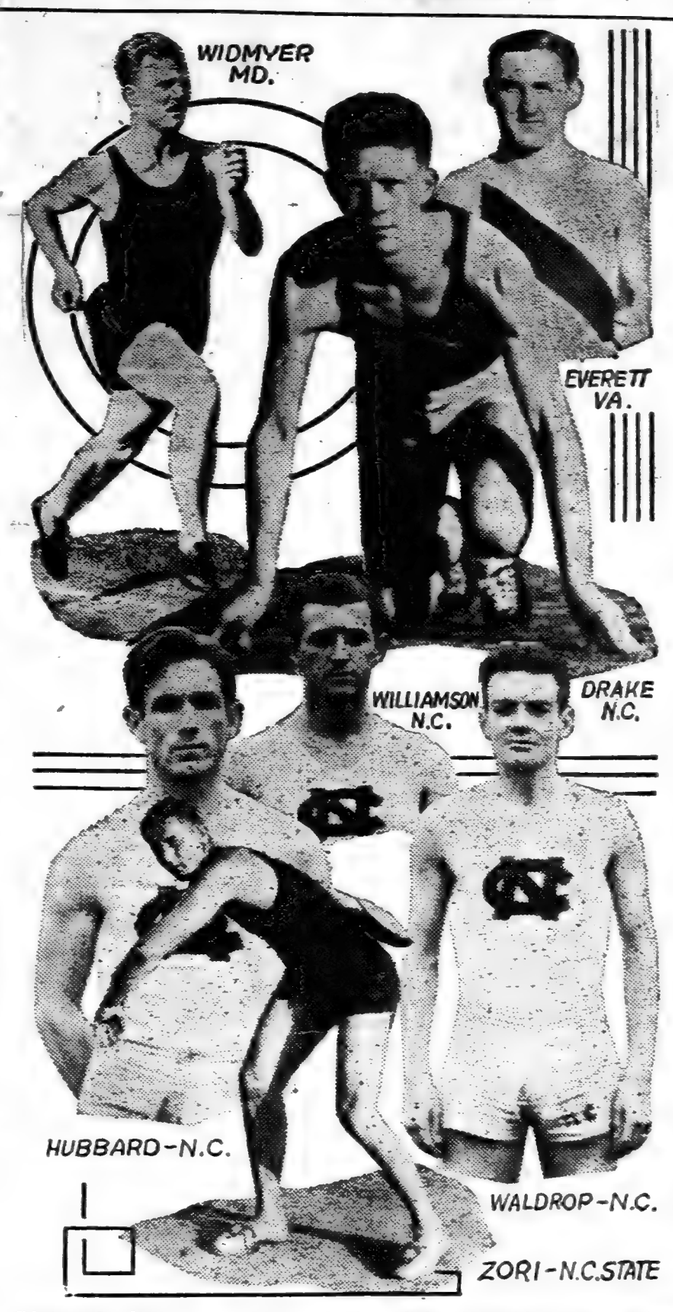
Records to Be Tested

Of the 14 existing records at least two should be cracked in this week-end's competition—120-yard high hurdles and the discus. In addition, the shot put and javelin throw marks may also be exceeded, while the remainder of the records seem to appear as certain fixtures for some time to come.

At present the 120-yard high hurdle mark is 14.9 seconds, but with Frank Abernethy of Carolina and Gordon Everett of Virginia in form it should not remain on the books much longer.

Last week the Tar Heel star negotiated the distance in 14.7 at Navy, and with a continuance of this flash he should smash the record as well as break Everett's dominance in the southern hurdle dominion.

Zori Defends Record



Zori of N. C. State holds the discus throw mark at 151 feet, 7 inches, which he established last year. With the high calibre of competition slated for the meet, he may be forced to smash that mark.

The shot put and javelin records also stand possibilities of being broken, although LeGore's mark in the latter may seem to be a bit more than can be expected of this year's crop to accomplish. Nevertheless, with West of Duke and Guckeyson of Maryland both tossing the javelin 205 feet in previous meets, it is not at all impossible for them to approach LeGore's mark.

In the shot put Tom Evins of Carolina appears as a possible record-breaker. Evins has developed remarkably this year and has shown considerable improvement in each meet, scoring unexpected triumphs over Duke's Williams brothers on two occasions.

The time schedule for this afternoon follows: Track trials—3:00—120-yard high hurdles; 3:15—100-yard dash; 3:30—440-yard run; 3:45—220-yard low hurdles; 4:00—220-yard run; 4:30—880-yard run. Field trials—2:30—Shot put and javelin; 3:45—discus; 4:30—broad jump. Admission is 50 cents.

DEFENDING CHAMPIONS!

Pictured above are seven of the eight individual champions from the 1934 Southern Conference track meet who will return to defend their titles today and tomorrow at the Duke stadium. The only one not shown above is Don Jackson, defending pole vault title holder from Carolina.

Gavin Heads Club

Harold Gavin was elected president of the University Glee Club at the regular meeting held Tuesday in Hill Music hall. He succeeded John Barney, retiring president.

Other officers elected were: Thomas Hicks, vice-president; Clarence Courtney, secretary; John Barney, business manager; Willard Miller, assistant business manager; J. Bruce Culbreth, librarian, was re-elected.

Other retiring officers were: E. E. Griffin, vice-president; Harold Gavin, secretary; John Walker, business manager; Sam Lane, assistant business manager.

MEDICAL SCHOOL ADMITS THIRTY-EIGHT STUDENTS

Thirty-eight students have so far been admitted to the first year of the University medical school, for the year 1935-1936.

All but five of the students admitted are from North Carolina.

Of the five out-of-state students, one is from New York, one from Tennessee, one from New Jersey, one from West Virginia, and one from South Carolina.

Twenty-one of these men have already received either the B. S. or the A. B. degree. All the others have had three years of college training and all except one of these three year men are candidates for the B.S. degree in medicine.

The average grade of the group on all pre-medical subjects is a fraction under 89.

ACE RACQUETEERS BATTLE FOR TITLE IN TOURNEY TODAY

Rohmann, Virginia Star and Defending Champion, Draws Bye in Opening Round.

MINOR WILL PARTICIPATE

Postponed yesterday because of the continuous rainfall, the Southern Conference tennis championship will get underway this morning, weather permitting, at 9:30 o'clock.

The entry list has swelled to 28, with the most notable addition being the entrance of Bill Minor, state runner-up, to the ranks of the aspirants in quest of the title, now held by Virginia's Carl Rohmann.

The defending champion has drawn a bye in the opening round and is conceded a good chance of repeating last year's victory.

Another seeding also released early yesterday afternoon places Schwartzman directly behind Rohmann. The Maryland ace has already defeated Rohmann in intercollegiate competition.

Harris and Minor Seeded

Harvey Harris, Carolina state title-holder, and Bill Minor round out the first four. They are followed by Ricky Willis, Captain Walter Levitan, Frank Shore and Krulewitz. All except the last named are from Carolina, Krulewitz carrying Maryland's colors into the fracas.

It is possible that Harris will not play in the tourney. The Tar Heel ace has been ill the past week, and had the title play opened yesterday as scheduled, he would have been forced to default.

The Carolina theatre played host to all the visiting and local conference players last evening with a free show. The five outside schools that have sent players are South Carolina, Maryland, State, Duke, and Virginia.

Faculty Smoker Postponed

Coach Carl A. Snavely's lecture, "Teaching Football by Means of Moving Pictures," will be given Wednesday, May 22, at the faculty smoker, instead of today.

Coach Snavely has made a practice of taking pictures of the large football games, which he uses to instruct the team. In his lecture to the faculty he plans to show them what the team has done.

Tar Heel Nine Opposes Duke; Today's Game Second Of Series

NO MURALS TODAY

Because of the baseball and track events slated for today, the intramural department has canceled today's schedule.

Frosh Ball Club Plays Tomorrow Afternoon

Meets Blue Imps on Emerson Field at 4 O'clock.

The weather which has been washing out the baseball schedule throughout the season has forced the Tar Baby-Blue Imp contest to be played tomorrow. The game will be played on Emerson field at 4 o'clock instead of today as previously arranged.

The game was postponed an extra day because the varsity nines are to play this afternoon, weather permitting, in a game which was supposed to be played on Wednesday.

Tomorrow's battle, the last of the four game series, will see Dean pitching against Humphries when the curtain rings up on the initial frame. Humphries, Carolina's ace, has already hurled three games against the Imps, winning the first two, 10-5 and 8-3, and dropping the third, 8-7.

Dean hurled the opener for the Dukesters, and although he struck out 16 of the Tar Babies, he lost the game due to the poor support he received from his team mates. The rejuvenated Duke outfit which defeated the Tar Babies on Monday was a vastly improved defensive nine, and is more than likely to cause trouble for Humphries.

Carolina must take the game tomorrow to win the series, while Duke will need the victory to earn an even split.

DR. MANNING TO LEAVE FOR ENGLAND TOMORROW

Dr. Isaac H. Manning, former dean of the University medical school, will leave New York for England Saturday aboard the French liner, Ile de France, to make a study of the group payment plan for hospital care.

The project is under the auspices of the Duke Endowment Fund which has supported the attempt to introduce the hospitalization fund in North Carolina.

The plan has met with great success in England but has not gained much headway in the United States.

Dr. Manning is not expected to return before July 15.

Postponed Tilt to Be Played on Emerson at 4 O'clock; Revised Outfield to Start.

CROUCH AGAINST WEAFER

The second Big Five baseball encounter between Carolina and Duke will be played this afternoon at 4 o'clock on Emerson field if the weather permits. This contest was to be played on Wednesday but a sudden cloudburst forced its postponement.

The rains which have swept the Carolinas for the past few days are likely to cause another postponement this afternoon, but if the weather changes the game will positively be played. Although the field is not in playing condition at present, gasoline will be burned on its surface to get it in shape if the rain lets up.

Double-Header at Greensboro

If the adverse weather continues, a double-header will be played on Saturday afternoon and night in Greensboro. A lone night contest was previously scheduled to be played there tomorrow, but a double bill will be necessary if today's game is called off.

Despite the absence of Captain Vick, who recently left the University, the present outfield composed of Ed Voliva in left, Cicero Groome in center, and Jim Tatum in right, is undoubtedly the best unit to patrol the outer pastures this season.

Strayhorn to Catch

The peppery Bill Strayhorn, who is taking Tatum's place behind the bat, will probably prove himself to be a valuable addition to the nine in these last few games of the year.

Fred Crouch, who will toss them in for Carolina today, is well rested and in tip-top shape. The reliable Tar Heel moundsman is primed to give his outstanding hurling performance of the season, and if Hal Weafer, Duke pitcher, is in his usual form, Fred will have to do some mighty good twirling to win.

ance of literature, science, philosophy, and "friendly intercourse among scholars."

The Alpha chapter of the fraternity here at the University was established in 1904. It was the outgrowth of a local honorary fraternity, Alpha Theta Phi, which had been founded in 1894. The local group, feeling the necessity for national contact, applied for a charter from Phi Beta Kappa. After exactly 10 years of life the old group became a chapter of the national fraternity.

The new men elected last night are John Erwin Barney, Greensboro; Raymond Lindsay Barren, Charlotte; Robert Alvin Berman, Jamaica, L. I., N. Y.; Percy Brown, Jr., Charlottesville, Va.; Joseph Claybourne Cordle, Greensboro.

Branch Craige, Jr., El Paso, Texas; Tom Lee Crowell, Charlotte; Thomas Worth Crowell, Newton; Newton Hanson DeBardeleben, Birmingham, Ala.; Samuel Eltinge Elmore, Spindale; Henry McQueen Emerson, Wilmington; Eugene Ernest Eutsler, Goldsboro.

Thomas Moore Evins, Oxford; Francis Hilliard Fairley, Monroe; Hector Orestes Gialanella, Newark, N. J.; Mary Vivian Grisette, Valdese; Jane Clayton Forgrave, Chapel Hill; Polly Lea Jacobson, Winston-Salem.

Benjamin Leon Kalb, Cedarhurst, L. I., N. Y.; Alvin Saul Kaplan, Raleigh; Barnaby Conrad Keeney, Hartford, Conn.; Jack Earl Kendrick, Columbia, Ga.; Charles Edward Lloyd, Asheville; John Gilmer Mebane, Chapel Hill; James William Mehaffy, Little Rock, Ark.

Robert Monroe Neel, Charlotte; David Hamilton Scott, Wilmington; Julia Wood Skinner, Elizabeth City; Irving David Suss, Newark, N. J.; William Watson, Wilson; John Bowers Wiggins, Edenton; Ben Sheppard Willis, Winston-Salem; Samuel Paul Wilson, New Haven, Conn.

Well deserving recognition, these men have maintained a standard of at least 92.5 for a period of eight quarters, with one of the group making a record of straight A's.

University Librarian Honored

Miss Nancy McDaniel of Soochow, China, a 1933 graduate of the University, has been appointed general-assistant librarian for the summer in a branch of the New York public library.

MARRIAGE GROUP WILL MEET HERE

Welfare Institute to Be Held Together with Groves' Conference on Marriage.

The 16th annual Public Welfare Institute will be held here July 8-12 in conjunction with a conference on the teaching of marriage and the family.

Dr. Wiley B. Sanders will direct the institute, and the conference will be under the direction of Dr. E. R. Groves.

The conference in marriage will feature discussions of the problems of teaching marriage, and it will also include other topics relating to the conservation of marriage and the family. Addresses by many prominent specialists in the field of marriage and round-table meetings are designed to offer opportunity for a comprehensive study of marriage and its problems.

Everybody Invited

To the session this year are invited teachers in colleges, high school and adult education, ministers, physicians, lawyers, husbands, wives and parents. It is realized that those who deal directly with the marriage problems make the most valuable contribution to the conference, and this has been recognized in the making of this year's program.

The public welfare institute will discuss contemporary social problems from the point of view of the welfare worker. Authorities in public welfare will discuss all phases of public welfare problems. County superintendents of welfare, probation officers, and relief administrators will come to Chapel Hill in the early part of July to compose this institute.

GREEK COUNCILMEN PICK NEW OFFICERS

Bruce Is President-Elect as New Constitution Is Effective.

The new constitution of the Inter-fraternity Council went into effect last night when the presidents of the various campus chapters met for the first time to represent their fraternities.

The old council members were present and discussed several means of improving the present fraternity system until after the election of officers.

L. C. Bruce, Phi Gamma Delta, was elected president to succeed Harold Bennett; Frank Willingham, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, secretary, to succeed Bruce; and Wilburn Davis, Alpha Tau Omega, treasurer, to replace Frank Rogers.

Bennett and Rogers will work with the new council until the end of the present year.

According to the new constitution the council will meet henceforth at 7:30 every Tuesday night instead of Thursday night in the University Club room.

SYNOD LEADER MORGAN SPEAKS IN SWAIN HALL

Dr. J. L. Morgan, president of the Lutheran Synod of North Carolina, will make an address here tonight at a banquet given in Swain hall at 7:30 o'clock by the Lutheran Student Group of the University.

All Lutherans of the University and town are urged to be present. Other speakers engaged by Lutheran student pastor Roscoe Fisher are: Professor H. A. Fisher, head of the department of mathematics at State College, and Miss Margaret McCauley and Dennis Fox, students here. H. A. Schroeder and Rev. C. R. Norman, pastors of churches in Durham and Raleigh, respectively, will also be present.

All personalities shown here helped make "Black Fury" what it is—a great picture, now playing at the Carolina theatre.

Metzenthin's German Class Makes Valuable Historical Contributions

Rallying to the cause of the DAILY TAR HEEL, Dr. E. C. Metzenthin's German student group in a recent meeting almost unanimously supported the class extension plan, on the face of results obtained from a questionnaire circulated among the members.

Other results of the query shed some interesting light on student opinion concerning issues now at stake. All present declared themselves in favor of the quarter system, and nearly all voted for the continuation of 8:30 classes.

The intrepid Herr Doktor, however, did not limit his questionnaire merely to local affairs. Who would be their choice for next president of the United States? All but two desired Roosevelt's re-election; these two were split between Hoover and a member of the faculty.

Disdainful of the possible protests of anti-vivisectionists, Dr. Metzenthin took his scapel in hand and delved even deeper into the recesses of the undergraduate mind. Here he found an amazing reservoir of information hitherto untapped. This probe resulted in some surprising contributions to our knowledge of the life and achievements of Germany's former emperor. Below is given a short biographical notice of Wilhelm II, as compiled on the basis of these newly discovered facts:

Kaiser Wilhelm II (or Wilheim II, as opinion seems to have been divided among the questioned scholars as to the spelling) was born in Germany somewhere between 40 and 90 years ago. The discrepancy in the birth date was no doubt due to the various schools of thought of those present. One person, whose statement may doubtless be considered authoritative, said the former Kaiser was born in 1888, from which it must follow that he began to reign immediately after birth, dismissed Bismark while still a very small child, and had grand-children when only 27 years of age. Wilhelm wanted a place "under" the sun for his country. Not only did he have a deformed arm, but he was also ambitious, and rose to a great height, from which he was thrown by the advent of Reichfuehrer Hitler.

The ex-kaiser is now living in royal exile in Belgium, where he spends his time with other members of his family chopping wood on the former estate of his grandmother. Wilhelm is related by marriage to King George V of England, and, according to evidence presented by these recent disclosures, he had some slight connection with the house of Hohenzollern.

cynical; with more contact with the world, it is likely to find difficulty in accepting ideas which do not jibe exactly with its hardened prejudices.

Obviously, what is needed is a synthesis of the better qualities of both. There is a necessity for men with sufficient vision and clear-sightedness to see and plan the necessary changes and at the same time enough hard-boiled pragmatism to bring them to realization. Youth has much to learn from age; age has much to learn from youth. Of the two, youth is much the more willing to learn, if only age will give it credit for what intelligence it has, and take the trouble to point out what is to be learned from the great lesson of experience.—The Tech.

Fountains Installed In Steele, Old East

Old West to Get One Within Next Few Days.

Installation of drinking fountains in dormitories—now without them—is another improvement being carried out by the buildings department under the direction of P. L. Burch. Aside from being on the regular list of the buildings department concerning University improvements, it was also recommended by the Student Advisory Committee.

Drinking fountains have already been installed in Steele and Old East, and Old West will receive one within the next few days. One fountain is installed on the first floor of each of the three sections of the dormitory.

It is uncertain whether fountains will be given to Battle, Vance and Pettigrew, since plans are still in the air concerning the transfer of co-eds to the dormitories.

BAND IN FESTIVAL

State College's Riddick field in Raleigh will reverberate with music Sunday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock when the University band joins with other bands of the state "Big Five" colleges in a mammoth music festival.

The massed bands will play several concert numbers as well as accompanying a chorus of 7,000 voices. The singers, gathered from all parts of the state, have been rehearsing in small groups for several months.

LEAGUE PROPOSES TO EXPAND SERVICE

Foreign Policy Group Plans Four Phase Activity for Year.

Expansion of the Foreign Policy League from a study to a service group was the keynote of the program which Joe Barnett outlined for next year at last night's meeting. Although details were omitted, the four general subdivisions of the plan were: programs, radio talks, publications (including library service), and public forums throughout the state.

"Is the student peace movement a lot of hooey?" was the question which Phil Russell presented with an intense effort to prove that they are not. He began with the statement that college students are not mere babies, but adults, and that they are not too young to make an effort to influence the policy of our government. Although claiming not to appeal to the horror of war, Phil dug up several issues of the Carolina Magazine from the war period and endeavored to show that what the students thought they were fighting for then has not been accomplished.

Army Scion for Navy

Then came the deluge. John Schulz, the son of an army officer, rushed to the aid of the navy by asking if the abovementioned naval officer's theory as to the inevitability of war necessarily meant that he was hoping for a fight.

Dr. E. E. Ericson than asked whether Phil did not agree that war psychology was not similar to the school spirit which makes us yell like wild men when Duke is being trampled under foot.

Barnett Embarrassed

George McFarland caused an outburst of applause by telling the group that certain unnamed persons on the campus were going to do their best to keep boys from taking up the handsome offer which the U. S. Marine Corps is making in the way of summer training with an officer's commission at the end of it. This caused some embarrassment to President Barnett, who is seriously considering the proposition himself and who is alleged to consider it a moral question as to whether or not one who desires peace should train himself for war.

The discussion was at its most fiery point when the minute for adjournment came but needless to say no one adjourned—save two co-eds who doubtless had more important matters to attend to than the next world conflagration.

HANDBOOK MANAGER

The special committee for selecting the business manager of the Freshman Handbook was unable to announce its decision yesterday due to the sickness of one of the applicants.

The appointment will be announced as soon as all of the applicants can be interviewed by the committee.

GRAHAM LECTURES TO FARMERS GROUP FOR CO-OPERATION

President Is N. C. Cotton Growers Principal Speaker.

Five hundred farmers assembled in Raleigh last Tuesday morning to hear President Frank Graham speak in favor of co-operative organization for the cotton growers.

The farmers endorsed the policy of the administration in Washington with respect to the program of the AAA in general, and approved the Bankhead act and processing tax on cotton. The occasion was the 13th annual membership meeting of the N. C. Cotton Growers Co-operative Association.

A copy of the resolution was wired to the North Carolina delegation of farmers in Washington and also to Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace.

Graham, the principal speaker, stressed the importance of co-operation, saying "co-operation means more income for the farmer and a better chance for his wife and children." Dr. Frank went on to state: "We live in world of organization, and in this world there stands often alone, unorganized, the farmer, and I for one, would like to see the idea of co-operation go further than that of selling and buying and include churches, schools and colleges and farm homes."

"TO CREATE A CAMPUS PERSONALITY"

The Daily Tar Heel

A JOURNAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF CAROLINIANS

VOLUME XLIII | EDITORIAL PHONE 4151 | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MAY 18, 1935 | BUSINESS PHONE 4156 | NUMBER 173

by the Editor

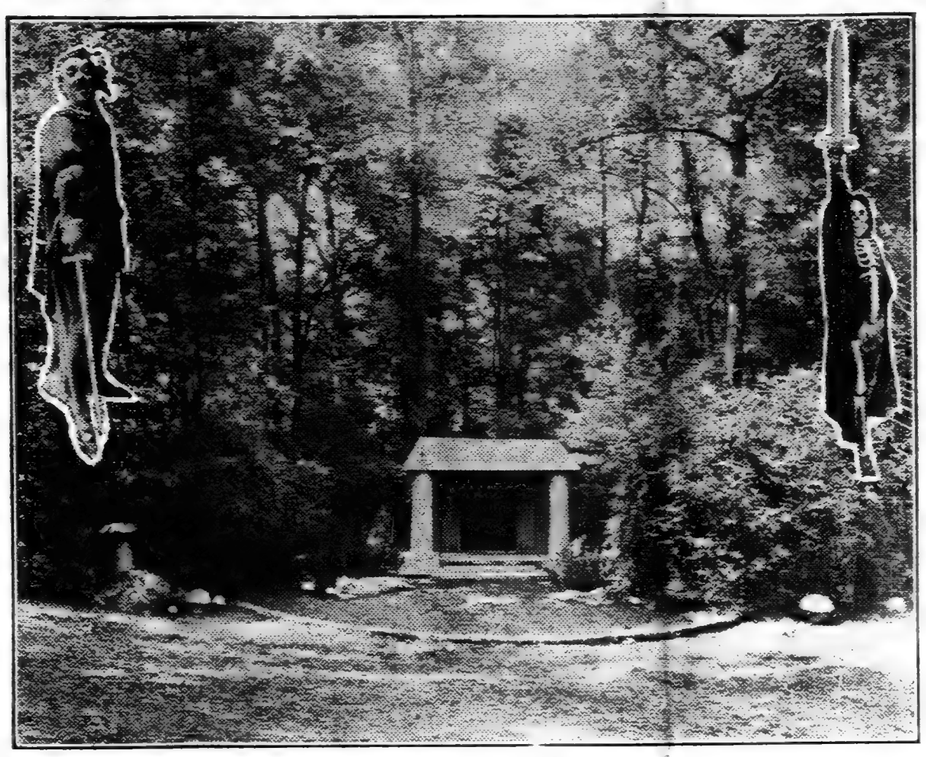
LAW AND SPIRITS The May 9 issue of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, in an editorial entitled "Let the Colleges and Universities Join in Law Enforcement," had this paragraph:

"Our plan is for the administrations at Duke, Carolina, Davidson, Wake Forest, and State to get together and agree that misbehavior, as a result of drink, must stop. Publish the decision to the world, and then at the first games of the season make good the declaration and we will not hear so much about drunkenness at football games in North Carolina."

When the administrations of these schools, which include a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Baptist, and two non-sectarians, get together, we can't offer much hope for definite accomplishments. In the first place, the situation never has become acute, to our mind, and in the second place, how drinking at a public gathering is to be curbed is a problem which administrative action would have a tough time coping with.

Comparatively speaking, drinking at Carolina games offers no great problem. Maybe we are too far separated from the scene of the "crime"; anyway, we see nothing to get excited about.

BROKEN GLASS The challenge which the Burlington dynamiting case offers to North Carolina's youth should not be dimmed by clouding details thrown up since the event last September.



We are not convinced of the innocence of the six E. M. Holt Plaid millers, nor of their guilt. What is paramount to us now, just as at the time we listened to the workers themselves in Gerrard hall, is that if what is transpiring in Burlington is justice in the full meaning of the term, then someone should figure up a new kind of jurisprudence—and it's liable to be ourselves who will face the problem of revision or rehabilitation in our judicial procedure.

"Whether the men were "framed" or not, we do not know. But when workers repeatedly testify to the vicious methods used in their apprehension, when they disclose the horrors of their imprisonment when they get 57 years in jail for, as Mr. Clark belligerently put it, "$200 worth of broken windows," then we cannot be expected to sit back smugly and say that law is taking its course as it always has, so let it continue.

WE ARE LUCKY Frank Smehurst over in Raleigh seems to think that we're rather fortunate in having David Clark and not some rational intellect as an attacker of the University.

Not that anyone intellectual couldn't be able to find something to talk about. But the point is that by being intellectual he wouldn't make a fool of himself by trying to talk about things without facts, figures or knowledge to back him up.

FOREST THEATRE, MERCUTIO, THANATOS

The Forest theatre, where Proff Koch, also pictured above as Mercutio in "Romeo and Juliet" and Thanatos or Death in Euripides' "Alcestis," will rave and sorrow, soliloquize and die in the role of Hamlet next week-end.

GRAIL MEN SELECT GRIDIRON CAPTAIN NEXT YEAR'S HEAD

Montgomery, Yandell, Rand, Voliva Chosen 1935-36 Officers At Banquet Last Night.

DANCE IN GYM TONIGHT

Harry H. Montgomery of Tarentum, Pa., was elected last night to head the Order of the Grail for the coming year. He succeeds Frank P. Abernethy of Greensboro.

Billy Yandell of Charlotte was chosen as secretary, succeeding George Moore of Wheeling, W. Va. Trip Rand of Garner, acting as assistant treasurer this year, automatically took over out-going Treasurer Simmons Patterson's duties; and Ed Voliva was chosen to take Rand's place as assistant.

Last night the 13 initiates chosen last week were feted at the annual Grail banquet. Besides the elections there were other features of the evening, including addresses by Rev. Donald Stewart of the local Presbyterian church and Prof. William S. Bernard, one of the founders and faculty members of the Grail.

Out-going President Abernethy reviewed the year's work of the order, commending his associate officers on the performance of their duties.

Members

The new members for whom the banquet was held are: J. O. "Red" Drake, Ernest Eutsler, Francis Fairley, James Finlay, John Johnson, George MacFarland, Lester "Buck" McCarn, Melvin Nelson, John Parker, Edward Voliva, Fred Weaver, Frank Willingham, and Ben Willis.

Other active members of the Grail are: Frank Abernethy, Mayne Albright, James Austin, Sherwood Barefoot, Albert Ellis, Tom Evins, Dennis Fox, Ralph Gardner, Lee Greer, John Gunter, Phil Hammer, Tom Hawthorne, Charles Hubbard, Tommy Irwin, Frank Kenan, Ed Lanier, Jim McCachren, Leo Manley, Bill Minor, Harry Montgomery, George Moore, Simmons Patterson, Norment Quarles, Trip Rand, Charles

In The Forest

"Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air;
And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve . . ."

These words from "The Tempest" were spoken in 1923 by Proff Koch as a part of ceremonies marking the second production in the Forest theatre of "The Taming of the Shrew," which the Playmakers had put on in 1918 as the initial performance on their sylvan stage.

Tree-Planting

During the ceremonies the actors, dressed in the Elizabethan costumes of the play they had just presented, planted a tiny willow oak which now stands, 35 feet tall, bearing lightly the two-fold responsibility of commemorating the occasion and replacing the giant tulip tree which died when the stage was regraded.

The 17 years of the theatre's history have been filled with such colorful incidents, to which the brilliant and extravagant Hamlet performance of next Friday and Saturday will be in the nature of a climax.

Productions in the forest go back to the very beginning of the Carolina Playmakers. Since that first rollicking presentation of the Shrew, 15 plays, eight of them by the Great Playwright himself, have been performed: "Twelfth Night" (1920); "Much Ado About Nothing" (1921); "As You Like It" (1922); "The Comedy of Errors" (1923); "The Taming of the Shrew" again (1923); "Prunella" (1924); "The Rivals" (1925); "The Poor Little Rich Girl" (1925); "The Romancers" (1926); "A Thousand Years Ago" (1926); "The Tempest" (1928); Rip Van Winkle" (1929); "Romeo and Juliet" (1930); and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (1933).

Reclamation from the Wilds

The Forest theatre literally had to be reclaimed from the wilds. Preparing for its use included such major engineering projects as diverting the course of Battle Creek, cutting down several big poplars and oaks, sloping the land so it would dry, and, hardest of all perhaps, making grass grow on the stage.

When the Playmakers first started giving shows in their outdoor playhouse, performances were put on during the afternoon. Not until somebody was brave enough to suggest the installation of a wiring system and lights to be controlled by operators perched in the big oaks on the hillside did Proff Koch and his troupe begin to present plays at night.

By taking skilful advantage of the darkness, stage managers are now able to run the plays off without changing scenes, merely having the lights focussed from place to place about the stage.

The Forest theatre was not used last year because the projected performance of "Hamlet" was dropped so the Playmakers could attend the first National Folk Festival in St. Louis.

Ahhhh!

Last night a hysterical young woman, nearly overcome with happiness and surprise, received $45 and three cartons of Lucky Strike cigarettes in the Carolina theatre's lucky number prize contest.

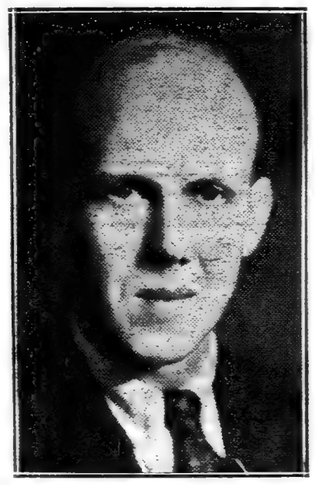
The lucky girl was Miss Jessie Alverson. Miss Alverson was sitting on a front seat in the theatre when the number was announced. She was so excited that a breathing spell was required before she was in a condition to receive the cash.

Such was her state of nervous unrest after being presented with the award which had accumulated for three weeks, that she had to leave the theatre and go home.

Mardi Gras?

The girls' Hi-Y is giving a carnival tonight in the high school Tin Can, beginning at 7:30. General admission will be 10 cents, and the side-shows may be seen for two cents.

WOLFE AND EVANS TO HEAD BUSINESS OF FROSH MANUAL



Two Students Selected by Special Committee of Y. M. C. A.

William Byron Wolfe of Elkin and Joseph Carlton Evans of Maxton were appointed joint business managers of the Carolina Freshman Handbook, according to an announcement by Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The appointment, which was made by a special Handbook committee, came after each of the candidates had been interviewed by the group. Others applying were W. M. Cochrane and E. L. Peterson.

Wolfe and Evans are both seniors in the University and members of the faithful five who do the technical work connected with getting out the DAILY TAR HEEL every morning. Wolfe reads proof, and Evans sets up headlines and makes up the second and third pages.

PLEASURE REIGNS AT LAST CO-ED HOP

Freddy Johnson Supplies Soothing, Stirring Melodies for Light-Footed Throng.

In Bynum gym, decorated in Carolina's colors, blue and white, dancers swayed and dipped, stepped and shagged to the varying tunes of Freddy Johnson's throbbing band in the final quarterly co-ed ball last night.

The cool night and the lively music, the colorful decorative display, not to mention the co-eds, all combined to make the atmosphere one of gaiety.

The Figure

The climax was reached when the out-going and newly-elected members of the Woman's Association council and their marshals paraded in their figure.

The clock in the Morehead-Patterson spire was striking one and the pale moon was sinking low over Carrboro when the happy dancers ceased their rhythmic calesthenics.

SENIOR INVITATIONS

For the convenience of those seniors who have not yet placed orders for their invitations they will be on sale from 9:15 to 12:15 and from 1:30 to 3:30 today. In order for the invitations to be ready in time to send them out before graduation it is necessary that all orders be placed at once.

RING COMMITTEE APPROVES OFFER OF HERFF-JONES

Action of Group Must Be Formally Passed Upon by Bradshaw and Presidents.

CONTRACT FOR FIVE YEARS

After weeks of statistical surveys, perusals of jewelry contracts, heckling, harrassing, and haranguing by high-pressure salesmen, the senior ring committee, headed by "Honest John" Gunter, weary, hollow-eyed, announced the award of the official ring contract for the next five years to the Herff-Jones Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Climaxing a hectic three weeks, the committe drew up the final contract late Thursday night and submitted the document to the dean of students and the respective presidents for their signatures.

Economy Rules

The new contract has been drawn with a view of high quality at the lowest possible price in accordance with the requests of the members of the student body.

The new ring will be furnished in 8, 10, or 12 pennyweight 10-k gold with the choice of either a garnet or a reconstructed ruby 10x12 mm., in the setting. The present ring, furnished by Charles H. Elliott, is a 12 pennyweight with garnet setting. The student can have either a buff or faceted top stone.

Guaranteed!

There will be no charge for refinishing and the ring is unconditionally guaranteed against defective workmanship. Each ring will be hand touched before leaving the factory.

The prices on the rings for the classes of 1936-40 inclusive, are as follows: Ruby, 8 dwt., $15.00; 10 dwt., $16.60; 12 dwt., $17.75; garnet, 8 dwt., $16.95; 10 dwt., $18.25; 12 dwt., $19.75. There will be no change in design and the students' class numerals and degree will be engraved on either side of the stone. The wearer's name will be engraved on the inside of the ring at no extra charge.

New Distribution

The rings will not be distributed through the Book Exchange as was formerly done, but the personal representative of the Herff-Jones Co. will take measurements. He will be in Chapel Hill at least twice each school year and his coming will be announced a week previously. This will considerably reduce the cost of the rings as it will eliminate the jobber's profit.

In an exclusive interview with the DAILY TAR HEEL last night, the members of the ring committee were satisfied that they had done a good job. Committeemen Morris Rhodes and Charlie Ivey were well-pleased but non-committal. Trackman Charlie Hubbard moaned, "Before these meetings I only had two sore legs; now I've got two sore legs and a bad headache."

Chairman of the Committee "Honest John" Gunter was heard to say, "Whatta ring! Whatta committee! Whatta meeting! Whatta life!"

House Away

Dean R. B. House left last night for Lemon Springs to deliver the commencement address at the Greenwood high school.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, GILMORE; NIGHT, HUDSON

TO COMMUNICATE TRUTH

Carolina is not the only university in the country continually accused of being a "hotbed of radicalism."

Nearly every university of any importance has its own, individual, misinformed, rabid, vitriolic Davey Clark.

Charles Walgreen, drug store magnate of Chicago, withdrew his niece from the University of Chicago, alleging that she was exposed to communistic teachings in the classrooms. The niece herself denied the validity of these ridiculous charges when she said "I can find no undercurrent of propaganda in the lectures in economics or political subjects."

In Sacramento, Assemblyman Frank G. Martin sharply criticized the attitude of 18 university professors in the University of California who protested the passing of "anti-red" legislation. This action he immediately termed "violent red radicalism."

John B. Chapple, Wisconsin's rampant rabble-rouser, has threatened that he will run for governor and that his first official act will be to oust Dr. Glenn Frank from the presidency of the University of Wisconsin. To him it matters little that Frank is among the very foremost educators in America, and that he is so highly regarded that he is being seriously mentioned as the next Republican candidate for president of the United States.

These specific examples are only straws that betray the flurry of red baiting that is sweeping the country, a flurry typified and nourished by the Hearst syndicate. So that you may understand how prone the Hearst press is to jump at illogical conclusions, to misrepresent facts, and to influence the American public with statements easily misconstrued, take a look at this.

In Moscow, the Hearst press has discovered there is a state university. The state university has a summer school. The summer section has an Anglo-American section. The Anglo-American section has an American advisory organization. The American advisory organization is the Institute of International Education. The Institute of International Education has a national advisory council, of which our own Frank Graham is a member.

The gentlemen on this last council the Hearst press has branded as bolsheviks, communists, red agitators, and Heaven knows what else. It claims these nefarious gentlemen are enticing unsuspecting American students to Moscow "Obviously," as the New York American exclaimed all over the front page, "for the purpose of making adept communists propagandists out of them."

So you see it all gets around to the same thing. Davey Clark keeps up his constant stream of obnoxious propaganda against us, Chicago loses a multi-millionaire's niece because Walgreen swears she's being made over into a communist, California professors get their heads snapped off for standing up for free speech, and that "dean of American journalists," William Randolph Hearst, specializes in generalities against every liberal school in the United States, and refuses to produce proofs for his assertions.

It is not peculiar that such problems are universal throughout American campuses. In all our local undertakings we are being paralleled in other sections of the nation—in our fraternity and dormitory problems, our fight for intellectual liberty, our attempts for broader education, our challenge to learning.

"Freedom of inquiry, freedom of discussion, and freedom of teaching—without these a university cannot exist. . . . Without these it becomes a political party or an agency of propaganda. . . . The university exists only to find and communicate truth. . . ."

How true are those words of Chicago's young president Robert Hutchins. Let us not be satisfied until we have expended all our efforts to make our university exist for and by those ideals.

Now YOU'RE Talking

OF SOUND MIND

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Dangerous though I be, Mr. L. S., I am still in Chapel Hill. Even your open forum letter did not hold enough sugary commendations to arouse the health authorities and the gallant Chapel Hill police to confine me to the penitentiary, Keeley's Institute, or Dix Hill. Since the arguments (if any) of a "public splaymouth" were swallowed with proper seriousness by yourself. I beseech you to accept the position as manager of a short debate at the meeting of the American Liberty League next Wednesday. I challenge anybody to uphold the query: Resolved, that the Constitution of the United States be scrapped. Limiting my opponents to 10, no colleague will assist as no character should be besmirched by such a barbaric, ignorant, and depraved individual as myself. In this trial to prove that I am of compos mentis and not the "missing link," my dearest Mr. L. S. is asked to consult Plato, Francis Bacon, Dorothy Dix to assist me in not becoming "inane, personal, etc.," and in not becoming embroiled in fits of simple-mindedness, collegiate fanaticism, and insanity.

Awaiting your acceptance of this honor and the acceptance of opponents for the debate, I am,
Splaymouthfully yours,
Winthrop Carver Durfee.

FROM THE MIDDLE

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Mr. Henry Ginsberg, the crusader, took it upon his mighty shoulders a day or so ago through your daily "to correct some false and libelous propaganda" about Dr. Ericson of the English department. Having enjoyed the professor's intimate friendship and counsel, Mr. Ginsberg was undoubtedly the ideal man to defend the educator who well can defend himself.

After reading the crusader's tommyrot about "the undaunted spirit of truth and beauty," one wonders why we should continually be permitted to flounder about in a political fog unmindful of the facts of the case.

The prevalent rumor as I understand it is this: there are certain individuals in the administration who can see their way clear to sacrifice Dr. Ericson's brilliance for the dominance and maintenance of their own political views. They are, therefore, shunting him off to China next year as an exchange professor.

To perennial-defender-of-liberalism-and-Soviet Russia-Ginsberg, who asks what is liberalism, we say it is merely the ability to look both to the left and the right and not merely to the left as he does. Furthermore, to the immaculate crusader, we say, "into the finger nails of constant back scratchers lodge sometimes other people's bugs."

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

By EARL W. WOLSLAGEL

It's too bad when such excellent musical entertainment as was offered last Wednesday evening in Hill Music hall by the combined symphonies of the Greater University has to forego a great audience by sharing honors the same evening with a debate on socialism. It's true that the symphony orchestra drew a large crowd, but there were plenty of empty seats scattered here and there which could have been filled.

The young ladies who journeyed 50 miles from Greensboro to help put on the entertainment were lovely in their pastel evening gowns, and the men from this branch of the University were resplendent in tuxedos and "non-skid shirts . . . H. H. Fuchs, conductor of the orchestra at W. C. U. N. C., directed the orchestra through a delightful program of old classics and more modern works.

Responsibility for the excellent manner in which the affair was run off is laid at the feet of Earl A. Slocum of the University Music department . . . It is hoped that such an exchange of concerts with the Woman's College can be made an annual affair.

It so happened that the concert in Greensboro Tuesday evening, with a CBS (WBIG) wire awaiting the start, was delayed. The Carolina librarian carried to Greensboro the music for this coming Sunday's band concert, and it was only through frantic long-distance calls and a couple of wires that the right music ever did arrive . . . However, the concert got under way at 8:50, twenty minutes late, and the orchestra gave a good performance under Mr. Slocum's baton.

One of the young ladies in the Greensboro unit made a lovely faux pas here before the concert started Wednesday evening . . . she asked the young gentleman who sat directly in front of her the evening before why he hadn't come over to Greensboro for the concert! Realizing her error in a moment, she turned all colors of the rainbow and made a very hasty exit . . . (Names of the principals withheld on request) . . .

The somewhat gory French play presented at the Playmakers theatre Thursday evening created quite a sensation, we hear . . . And the players certainly gave a lot of credit to the French department . . .

We are anxious to see Dr. Meno Spann's demonstration of the German ball game . . . he explains that it is not unlike our American game, but is much more strenuous and requires a great deal more actual running ability and sheer skill . . .

Moving pictures in Chapel Hill this week are far above the average . . . George Arliss' portrayal of "Cardinal Richelieu" was exceptional. The picture gave a rather rough survey of the reign of Louis XIII of France, with the famous Cardinal doing most of the reigning. The acting on the whole was excellent, photography and settings typical of the recent 20th Century productions . . . "Our Little Girl" with Shirley Temple in the feature role holds the attention over the week-end. It is Shirley's first picture since she was awarded a special prize by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences . . . Promises to be a swell show . . . (Today and tomorrow) . . . 'Twill be Mae Day here Monday and Tuesday with la West in a new and different atmosphere . . . Her seven leading men in "Goin' To Town" were chosen personally by her as ideals . . . Mae says that looks don't count so much in an actor . . . believes that it's that "certain something underneath which brings out the true leading man; the camera catches it once in a while, but on the surface it is not recognizable" . . .

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

May 28, 1931, (supposedly a correction of yesterday's excerpt on Human Relations Institute): "We are informed that the senior class furnished $500 and $500 came from the Phelps-Stokes funds for the study of inter-racial problems and which has been accused of seeking to promote social equality between whites and Negroes."

EARTH-QUAKES

By JOHN SCHULZ

PILSUDSKI JOINS HINDENBURG

Less than a year after the death of Marshal von Hindenburg, Germany's grand old man, another World War hero, Marshal Pilsudski of Poland has passed on to Valhalla. The two were at opposite ends as far as the liberation of Poland was concerned, yet they had many striking points in common. Both were of the aristocracy, they were not unsimilar in appearance, both were soldiers who commanded their nations' armies in the World War, both rose to controlling positions in the government afterwards, and both came to symbolize their fatherlands to the outside world.

The Pole's career was perhaps the more colorful. Fighting for a free Poland from his youth, he suffered exile in Siberia and imprisonment under the Czar before his chance came to lead his Polish legions against Russia during the World War. No sooner, however, was Russia out of the running, than he began to make terms with the Allies for the purpose of freeing that part of ancient Poland which was then under the heel of Germany. This led to imprisonment under the Kaiser. Hardly had the new nation been formed, when Pilsudski was called upon to lead its forces against an invading Soviet army from the east. There are those who say that, by crushing the Bolsheviks, he saved Europe from another general war—an act similar to that of the Polish prince who saved Austria and Europe from the Turks centuries ago. Then came his coup of 1926 which made him dictator, a dictator, incidentally, who cared little for titles. The recent rapproachment with Germany seems to have been mainly his idea. As a result, his death leaves Europe tense with anticipation. What course will Poland take now that her leader is gone?

AND LAWRENCE OF ARABIA

Lying at death's bed is Lawrence of Arabia, the former aircraftsman T. E. Shaw, who was seriously injured when he swerved his speeding motorcycle to the side of the road in an effort to save a child. The child was saved, but Col. Lawrence may die as gallantly as he has lived. The tragedy is heightened by the fact that the author of "Revolt in the Desert" was about to break a 15-year retirement which had deprived the world of the services of one of its most brilliant men.

MORE ON ETHIOPIA

The British and French got together the other day and asked their dear friend Mussolini to please leave little Abyssinia alone. No, it's not that our former allies have gone soft and sentimental over their poor black brothers of northeast Africa. As usual, we can blame it all on Hitler. London and Paris would have us believe that the minute Italy gets itself tied up in Africa, Handsome Adolf will become so lonesome for the land of his birth that he will unite Austria to Germany in one big emotional hug. Mussolini, however, believes Italy's strength in Europe depends upon her security in Africa; so, mumbling something about "when in Rome do as the Romans do," he is doing as the Romans did—sending legion after legion off to the African bush.

Duke Leads Qualifiers In Conference Trials

STARS GATHER AT DUKE FOR FINALS IN SOUTHERN MEET

Carolina, Defending Champions of Southern Conference Track, Second in Trial Placements.

EVINS SETS U. N. C. MARK

Duke Stadium, Durham, May 17.—Duke's track squad got off to a flying start in the qualifying trials of the 13th annual Southern Conference track and field meet here this afternoon.

The Blue Devils earned 18 places in tomorrow's finals to 11 for the defending champions of Carolina and 10 for Maryland. In the nine qualifying events, each of the three teams placed men in all but one. Sizemore of the Dukesters was a standout, qualifying in three events.

Evins Heaves

Though the Blue Devils gained a premature lead; it remained for the Tar Heels to produce the brightest happenings of the afternoon—Tom Evins' heave of 47 feet, 1-2-inch in the shot put. This toss placed him almost four feet ahead of Farley of V. M. I. and created a new North Carolina University record, breaking by 4½ inches Mullis's record established in 1932. The feat followed four tries with an under-weight shot, which he had thrown but 45 feet.

Only two upsets occurred—the failures of Harris "V-8" Ford of Clemson and Slye of Maryland to earn places in the finals of the 220-yard dash and 220-low hurdles, respectively. Both, however, gained posts in their short events.

U. N. C. Hurdlers Good

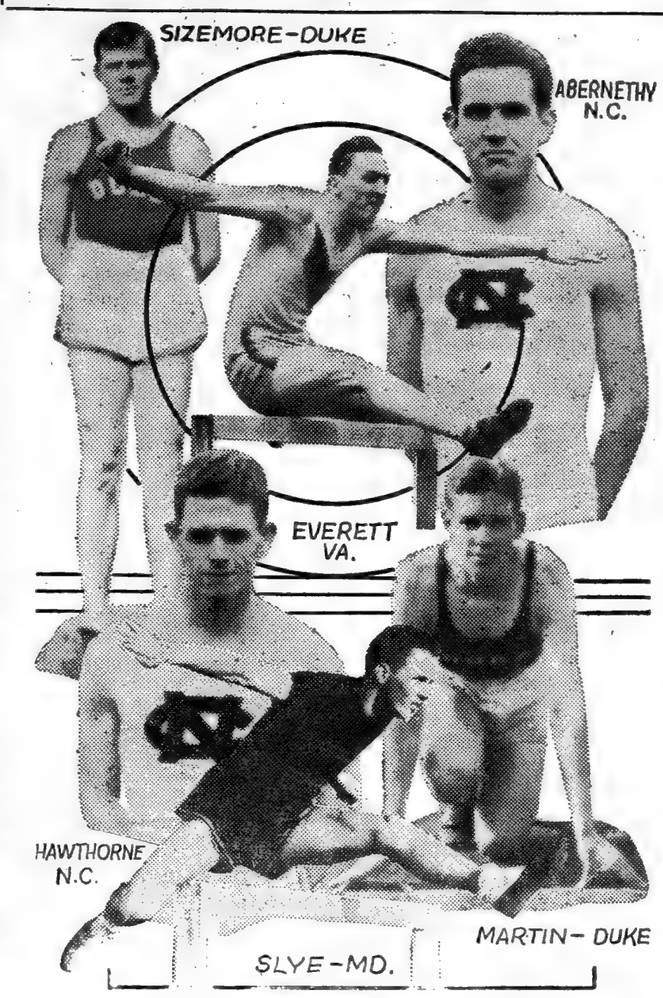
Whether the results of today will have any definite bearing on the final standings, Tar Heel followers were greatly pleased with the performances of Frank Abernethy and Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne in both hurdle events.

Abernethy won both his heats, defeating Gordon Everett of Virginia in the 220-yard lows, and capturing the 120 yard highs with five feet to spare over Martin of Duke. Hawthorne also looked good, finishing almost even with Everett in the highs and easily placing in the lows.

We Lose Dashes

Widmyer of Maryland, the defending title-holder, and Woodard of Duke looked the crop of the dash men, both winning their heats of the 100 and 220 in good time. In the century Widmyer had to step mightily to edge out Higby of Carolina in 10 seconds flat. In the opening heat Jim Finlay again yanked a muscle and caused his withdrawal.

If any orchids are handed out for gameness, there wouldn't have to be much deliberation as to who the recipient should be. Without a doubt they would go to Co-Captain Charlie Hubbard of the Tar Heels, who with both thighs wrapped with tape, earned third place in the qualifying trials in the broad jump.



After failing to negotiate much over 20 feet, Hubbard took one last try and made 22 feet, 9½ inches, enough to hold the second place until Floyd Higby's last jump carried him 4½ inches farther. Beers of Maryland holds the lead, but 2½ inches ahead of Higby.

The 440-yard run produced no exceptional thrills, three heats being run off, with slow times recorded. The fastest was the first in which Archer of Maryland headed "Red" Drake of Carolina in 51 seconds flat. In the discus Zori of N. C. State seems to have things pretty much his own way, being far out in front with a toss of 145 feet, 5¼ inches.

In the javelin throw, West of Duke headed the field with 199

HEARNMEN LOSE 4-0 TO DUKE TEAM IN BASEBALL TILT

George Barley Calms Tar Heel Bats as Mates Hit Timely To Win Fast Contest.

TO PLAY AGAIN TONIGHT

After a forced three-day layoff from practice, the Carolina baseball team yesterday dropped a hard game to the boys from Duke despite the seven-hit pitching of Fred Crouch, top Tar Heel twirler. The game, played in the fastest time seen in Dixie baseball this season, was a corker throughout, featuring clean base-knocks and sharp fielding.

In the sixth inning, Duke had a man on first with none out and Ty Wagner, clean-up man, at bat. Ty caught one of Crouch's pitches squarely and sent it soaring toward the deep left-field fence for what appeared would be a homer, but Ed Voliva, who was playing not too far from the track in left, turned his back to the ball and ran about 40 yards to take it over his left shoulder. As he fielded the ball, the man who had been on first was half way to third, but had time to scramble back before the ball could be relayed in. It was one of the nicest catches ever witnessed on Emerson field.

Duke Counts

The Blue Devils scored once in the first frame on a single by Ambler, a base on balls, a fielder's choice, and a hit by Clarence Parker. Another run was scored as Taylor singled and Mitchell tripled in the third. Their last two markers came in the seventh when Huiskamp and Michael got consecutive triples, and Barley, the pitcher, singled over short.

As the score indicates, Duke's seven hits were well bunched; Crouch held the visiting team hitless in six of the nine innings, although six Dukesters were left on the bases.

The home team strongly threatened to score only once in the game, that rally coming in the sixth round when, with one man down, Rand got a bingle, Irwin doubled, and Tatum was hit by a pitched ball to fill the sacks. In the meantime, however, McCarn had whiffed to make it two out. Voliva, who followed Tatum at the plate, could not produce against the puzzling slants of Barley and he popped out to Michael at first, retiring the side.

No man on either team hit safely more than once. Of the 12 hits made in the game, four went for extra bases, Duke getting three triples, while Tommy Irwin got a double for Carolina.

Coach Hearn announced yesterday while taking a shower that he would start either Wright or Webster on the mound against Duke in Greensboro tonight at 8:15 in the third of a four-game series.

FRESHMEN GAIN 7-0 NET VICTORY

Win over Asheville High Squad And Drop Only One Set.

In the first of a double-header with Asheville School for Boys, the frosh netters trampled their opponents 7-0 yesterday afternoon on the lower varsity courts.

All the victories were gained with ease, only one set being dropped in the course of events. Eddy Fuller, however, was pressed to a deuce set by Gilken, Asheville ace. Vic Strasberger, playing in place of Robinson, dropped a set to Hopkins but stuck to his guns and won a long drawn out three setter.

There will be another match today at 10 o'clock in the morning with the Tar Babies again favored to a score a shutout. Gordon Robinson will probably play for Carolina in today's encounter.

Infirmary

Students confined in the infirmary yesterday were: J. W. Humphries, W. P. Fitzhugh, N. D. Bitting, J. C. Wiggins, Hazel Beacham, Mary Armbruster, T. F. Gregory, Brogden Spence, P. F. Ballinger.

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

The Carolina - Duke freshman baseball game scheduled for this afternoon has been definitely cancelled and will not be played this season.

Coach James wishes all members of the team to turn in their uniforms immediately.

Levitan Upsets Rohmann; De Gray Stars In Net Play

Henderson and Shore Also Enter Semi-Final

De Gray and Levitan Also Pace Field into Semi-Finals of Doubles Tourney.

HARRIS UNABLE TO PLAY

With Walter Levitan, Carolina captain, blandly crushing Carl Rohmann, the defending champion, in the third round, and Eddy De Gray, Tar Heel sophomore, routing three highly rated players, the Southern Conference tennis champions yesterday moved into an all-Carolina semi-final in the singles.

Levitan and De Gray then teamed to ride through to the semi-finals in the doubles. They crushed the crack Maryland team of Schwartzman and Krulewitz in the first round and then eliminated a Carolina combination in the quarter-final. Taylor and Fishburne of Virginia also advanced to the semi-final and will engage the state champions in battle.

Three sophomores are among the quartet of single semi-finalists, and not one is a seeded player. Levitan will face the wicked chop of Frank Shore, who upset Bill Minor, and De Gray will meet with the new sensation, Archie Henderson.

11 Straight Games

Upset after upset was recorded during yesterday's play but the popular Levitan conquest of the former champ exceeded them all in thrills. Losing the first set 6-3, Levitan went to work and took 11 straight games from the dazed Rohmann, who although gamely hitting the ball back, was unable to cope with Walter's heady playing.

Levitan mingled a marvelous drop shot with a consistent long ball to Rohmann's backhand and fought his way to a stirring 3-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory. The Carolina captain seems to have finally returned to the form he once was noted for, and the Virginia star was the unwilling victim.

Iron-Man De Gray

On equal terms with Levitan stood his brilliant doubles partner Eddy De Gray. Performing the "iron-man" stunt by competing in five strenuous matches, Eddy also pulled a major upset in the second round by decisively whipping the second seeded player, Maurice Schwartzman, the highly touted Maryland star, 6-0, 6-1.

He also eliminated Williams of Virginia, and in a second upset he worked his terrific offense to a still higher pitch to sweep aside Ricky Willis, the fifth seeded player, 8-6, 6-1. This match sent De Gray into the semi-final.

Harris Defaults

Harvey Harris, state champion, was unable to compete because of illness and so forced a gap in the draw. This enabled Archie Henderson to batter his Pharmacy Dean Enters Upon 24th Term of Service.

Doctors J. G. Beard, H. M. Burlage, M. L. Jacobs, I. W. Rose, and Miss Alice Noble returned Thursday from the annual meeting of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association in Winston-Salem.

Dean Beard, head of the school of pharmacy, served as secretary-treasurer of the association for the 23rd consecutive year and was installed into the same office for the 24th year.

Dr. M. L. Jacobs, as chairman, presented a report of the committee on "Practical Pharmacy and Dispensing." Doctors Burlage, Rose, and Beard, respectively, presented papers on "Suggested Improvements in the Preparation of Certain U. S. P. and N. F. Galenicals," "Some Dispensing Problems," and "Are We Content with Our Present Methods of Practice?"

President E. F. Rimmer, an alumnus of the University, recommended that the institute of pharmacy be held annually at Chapel Hill. The convention unanimously adopted this recommendation. The delegates also unanimously felt that an improved dispensing laboratory should be provided the school of pharmacy by means of help from the association if the University fails to provide this necessary training laboratory.

MEYER GOES TO FLORIDA

Professor Harold D. Meyer, University sociology professor, will teach this summer in the University of Florida, offering courses in social problems and social pathology. Professor Meyer will occupy the home of Dean Walter Matherly, formerly professor in the school of commerce here.

Dr. Guy Johnson Dates First North American

Man First Lived on This Continent over 10,000 Years Ago.

Sketching the history of man in North America, Dr. Guy B. Johnson of the Institute for Research in Social Science and an authority on archaeology, said that most authorities believe man has been in America between 10,000 and 20,000 years, in an address before the Chapel Hill Rotary Club at the Carolina Inn Wednesday night.

"This is hard on those who would like to think that America was the cradle of the human race, but it is probably the truth," Dr. Johnson said.

Explaining that glacial evidence throws light on the question of man's existence on this continent, he said that authentic human remains have been found in glacial deposits.

"The Minnesota man, found a few years ago, is thought to have been in glacial stratum and several instances of human and extinct animals together have been found in Florida and in the southwest," he said.

Dr. Johnson traced the time of the peopling of America from the glacial period up to the spread of culture.

Helmet-Eating Rats Dine In Bynum Gym, Playmaker Archives

Rodents Devour Papier-Mache Property Effects Stored in Playmaker "Prop Room."

"Rats!" said Mrs. Harry Davis, Playmaker costume designer, and all because those rodents have an unconquerable appetite for flour and glue.

Last year Mrs. Davis laboriously constructed two dozen helmets out of papier-mache, nothing more or less than flour and glue, for the operetta "Princess Ida." The helmets were elaborate affairs representing much work and $75; but the rats didn't know that.

After the helmets had been used to glorify the operetta's chorus girls, they were stored away, in accordance with the Playmaker custom, for future reference. Several days ago, with an eye to using these pieces of costumery in the forthcoming Hamlet production, Mrs. Davis went to the Playmaker archives situated in the basement of the gymnasium.

She found no helmets, only sticky flour dust. The Bynum rats had taken their toll.

"We might get a cat to protect our interests," Mrs. Davis said. "However, I'm afraid even a cat would be of little defense against rats that aren't stopped by helmets."

way through to the quarter-final.

Frank Shore's surprising win over Bill Minor, state runner-up, was another feature of the day's matches. Shore simply chopped Minor to death.

Play begins today at 2 o'clock and the finals in both the singles and doubles will be played. Two quarter-final doubles matches will be played today at 9:30 in the morning and the two semi-finals at 11 o'clock.

The results follow:

FIRST ROUND SINGLES

Rohmann (V) received bye; Grier (C) won by default; Levitan (C) over Gooding (SC) 6-1, 7-5; McCutcheon (SC) over Nading (St) 6-0, 6-1; Minor (C) received bye; Kellemeyer (D) over Harris (C) by default; Shore (C) over Peck (St) 6-4, 6-1; Taylor (V) over Moore (SC); Schwartzman (Md) received bye; De Gray (C) over Williams (V) 6-4, 6-3; Willis (C) over Brown (St) 6-1, 6-3; Sloan (V) over Glassie (V) 6-2, 3-6, 6-2; Abels received bye; Caton (D) over Fishburne (V) 6-4, 6-4; Renn (St) over Krulewitz (Md) 6-2, 1-6 6-3; Henderson (C) over Daniel (SC) 6-2, 9-7.

State Senator John Sprunt Hill, who introduced the liquor control bill in the recent Legislature, is a strict teetotaler and never touches a drop. Yet this quotation is typical of the letters he received while his measure was under consideration: "You are evidently a very immoral man. I do not know you personally but I am convinced that only a drunkard and a degenerate would sponsor such a piece of legislation."

feet, 5½ inches, 10 feet ahead of Gukeyson. Armfield of the Tar Heels was fourth. Barwick gained a fifth for Carolina's only qualifier in the discus.

From today's results it appears that Carolina will have to do more than well in the longer distance runs tomorrow in order to retain its title, as Duke, especially, and Maryland appear as big threats to win. The complete final program begins at 1:30 o'clock. Carolina students will be admitted for 25 cents with passbooks.

Summary of qualifying heats:

100-yard dash: First heat — Widmyer (Md), Higby (NC), Shehan (D). Time: 10 seconds. Second heat—Woodard (D), Ford (Clem), Sizemore (D). Time: 10.3.

Playmaker By-Product Gains National Scope As Dramatic Festival

Miss Sarah Knott got big ideas from her experience in handling the state tournaments and dramatic festivals of the Carolina Dramatic Association, one of the by-products of the Carolina Playmakers.

These big ideas were realized last year in St. Louis when the first National Folk Festival was held, under the direction of Miss Knott.

Another triumph for the Carolina Playmakers! And they were there, too, 12 strong, the only troupe invited to play more than one day.

The second National Folk Festival, in session this week in Chattanooga, also has a good Playmaker representation in two Paul Green plays, although rehearsal for the impending production of Hamlet has prevented the Playmakers from accepting an invitation to appear on the festival stage again this year.

The two Green plays are "Fixins," staged Tuesday by the Black Mountain College group, under the direction of Bobby Wunsch, a former Playmaker, and "The Last of the Lowries," to be played today by the Lenior-Rhyne College Playmakers, directed by former Playmakeress Pearl Setzer.

YOUTH WILL BE SERVED

Dean Bradshaw is convening in Washington with other University representatives who are gathered to discuss the proposed Division of Youth Service which U. S. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker is vigorously pushing.

The guidance-work-education-recreation program, purported to aid at least 2,000,000 unemployed young people, is fast crystallizing as Dr. Studebaker is making a strong bid for part of the more than four billion dollar Federal relief sum.

The program has been carefully worked out to insure these idle young people $20 monthly and 42 hours of activity per week. The funds are Federal and the responsibility that of the community. It is one of the greatest youth projects ever planned.

"Unemployment among youth may be relieved by a program which is basically educational and only in part remunerative," said Dr. Studebaker. To that portion of our population among which unemployment is greatest—young people from 18 to 24 years of age—this great national scheme will try to make life a more enjoyable and optimistic venture.

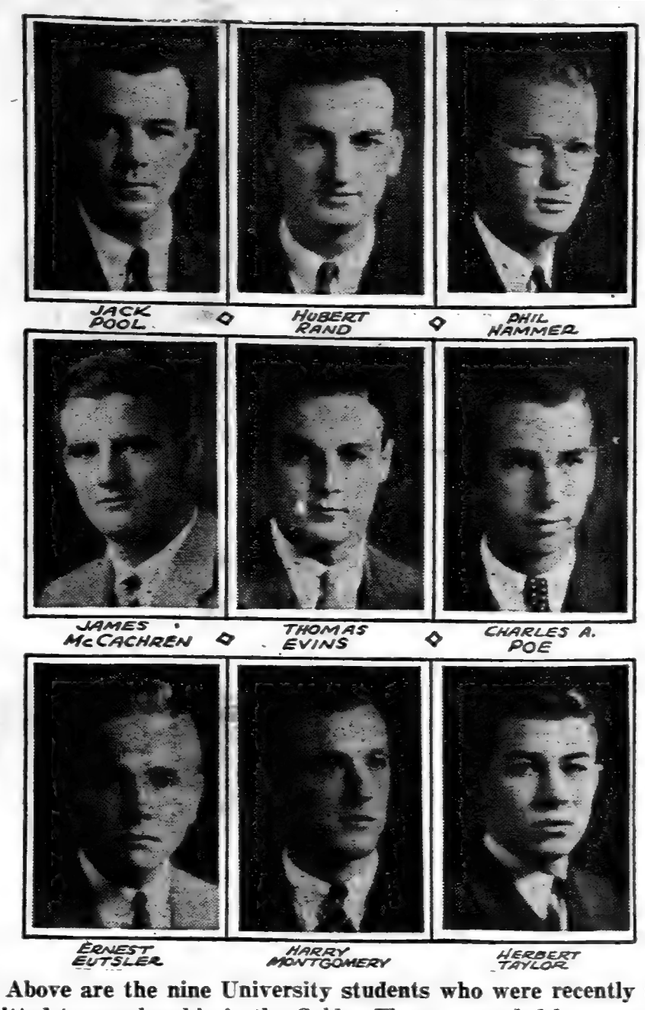
FURNACE FEEDING

Everybody tells us to cut out all mention of one David Clark. Our talking, they tell us, is just what Mr. Clark wants. It is meat for him. If we forget him, he'll run out of things to say and then things will be quiet again.

Maybe these people are right. But the University has kept comparatively quiet about it all for years and David Clark is still not without lots to say. Then again, if we try to argue with him, we'll get put out at first every time, simply because slippery things are hard to catch even in a ditch and we haven't got a ditch, anyway.

The campus, of course, has its opinion of Mr. Clark and perhaps we are barking up the wrong tree in telling them anything about it all. All right, we'll take it easy for awhile, but we'll give you "Davey Clark Says . . ." for a few days just for fun.

WORK TO BUSY MEN



FERA students at Southern California show a considerably higher average than non-working students.

At this University, our reports show that for a similar period FERA students had about the same scholastic average as the entire student body average, which was slightly less than C.

President Touton attributes the showing of the FERA students there to a "greater earnestness of purpose which prevails in the group and the very nature of the FERA work itself."

Although our local FERA figures are not as auspicious as those of Southern California, still the same conclusion can be drawn: FERA students work harder because they have more to do.

Koch To Realize Boyhood Dream When He Plays Roll Of Hamlet

Playmaker Chieftain Tells How He Saw Vision of His Playing Title Part in Shakespearean Drama When He Witnessed Play in Peoria During Boyhood; Began Studying Shakespeare.

Although he has been connected with the theatre for more than 30 years, as amateur, professional, and then as amateur again, Professor Frederick H. Koch expects to get the big thrill of his life next week.

It is not because he happens to be playing the title role in just another Shakespearean production; it is because he is playing in "Hamlet." And thereby hangs a tale. For, as a high school boy of 16, "Hamlet" was the first play Professor Koch ever attended.

Something Happened

"That night as I sat up there in the balcony of that theatre in Peoria, Ill., something happened to me," the Playmaker director said in relating how he got started.

"You left for the 'big town' and walked the streets, living on hopes and grape juice, like the aspiring youngsters still do in New York?"

"No," he laughed heartily. "I began to read and memorize Shakespearean plays almost incessantly and by the time I was a sophomore in Ohio Wesleyan University I was doing the "Taming of the Shrew."

It was a one-man show, for he acted all the parts, Proff said. Playing in the country schoolhouses and small towns and rural communities in the college vicinity, charging from 10 to 15 cents admission, he relates that he made enough to buy his first full-dress suit and to provide his spending money through college.

He cherishes a vivid recollection of his first public performance of the Shakespearean play. It was in the little town of Waldo, Ohio. Its population numbered only 200, but it was said to have more murderers per capita than any other town in the state. He felt a bit relieved when the performance had ended, he recalls.

Bred in Ole Kaintuck'

Young Koch had seen his first play and began his theatrical career over the mild protests of his straight-laced, honest-to-God Kentucky-bred parents. They had planned for him to be an engineer and had directed his education along that line, but instead of becoming a "respectable" member of society Fred Koch lit out for New York and Boston and for the next two years led the career of a vagabond actor.

He continued to stick to his Shakespearean roles, however, despite the temptation to do the more popular stuff. He added to his "Shrew" repertoire "Romeo and Juliet," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Hamlet," and he acted out all the parts.

He did not confine his performances to theatres; he gave them in hotels and at summer resorts, in all sorts of towns, large and small, throughout the New England states and Canada. At some of the hotels he would have the bellboys pass the hat while he entertained the guests.

His work gained the attention of Jared W. Pratt of Boston, and he booked Koch for a long tour. It was while he was playing in New Hampshire that John

LUTHERANS HEAR METZENTHIN TALK

Popular German Professor Contrasts European and American Religions at Banquet.

Dr. Ernst C. Metzenthin, popular University German professor, discussed the differences between the religious attitudes of America and Europe in an impromptu speech at the Lutheran student banquet held Friday night.

Thomas Henson, University student and incoming president of the Lutheran group, presided over the meeting. The students were represented by Miss Margaret McCauley and Dennis Fox, who spoke in their behalf. The presentation of next year's officers was made by Rev. Roscoe Fisher, student pastor here.

President Pleased

Also addressing the students was Dr. J. L. Morgan, president of the Lutheran Synod of North Carolina, who expressed himself as being immensely pleased with the work done here by the organization through Rev. Fisher. Rev. W. H. Hiller of Durham, spoke to the group on the value of an open mind.

Representing the faculty, Dr. Metzenthin characterized religion on the two continents in this manner: "The former (American) may be characterized as predominantly 'extensive,' the latter (European) as 'intensive,' revealing a greater depth of religious intuition and feeling." The best plan, as suggested by the German professor, would be to strike a happy medium in effecting a combination of the two qualities.

Maryland Places Second As Tar Heel Squad Takes Third Consecutive Crown

Four Records Fall in Thrilling Three-Cornered Fight for Title; Abernethy Sets New Time in 120-Yard High Hurdles; Williamson Defeated by Mothershead in Thrilling Mile.

Duke Stadium, May 18.—Carolina's "Flying Tar Heels" ended one of their most brilliant seasons on the cinder path here this afternoon, successfully defending their Southern Conference title for the second successive year by tallying 58 points to win a three-way battle from Maryland and Duke.

These three teams battled on even terms throughout the entire meet, until Carolina tallied seven points in both the two-mile and 220-yard low hurdles to capture its third straight championship.

Maryland Second

Maryland pulled a mild surprise in nosing out Duke for second by a 49¾ to 47½ margin. Clemson, the South Carolina state champs, showed up well in taking fourth with 20¼, nosing out the fifth place Virginia team by a single point.

Washington and Lee followed with 10, while V. M. I. with 8, V. P. I. with 6¾, N. C. State with 5, and South Carolina with ½ completed the scoring.

Four new records were established in what was considered the finest affair ever held by the new conference organization. Maryland headed the field in wins, taking five and tying for another, while Carolina captured three, and Duke one.

The prediction that Frank Abernethy "might" win the 120-yard high hurdles was not ill-grounded, for that was exactly what happened. The Tar Heels got off to a marvelous start, heading the field all the way, and broke the tape in 14.8 seconds for a new conference record. Tom Hawthorne took third for the winners.

Williamson Loses

A second prediction stated that Harry Williamson might meet a tartar in Ivan Mothershead of V. P. I. Again the assumption was right, for after the two battled a hectic race the entire distance, the Virginia Tech star stepped out and won by a single stride. The time of 4:18.4 was exceptionally good, and kept Mothershead's long string of victories intact.

Williamson, however, is a hard man to keep down, and following a short rest went out

UNIVERSITY WINS KENAN FUND SUIT

Florida Railway Official Fails to Get University's Money; Battle Defends Case.

The Kenan Memorial fund, which pays to a select group of the faculty $75,000 annually, emerged from a court litigation Friday still in the possession of the University. The fund has been attached by Scott M. Loftin, receiver of the Florida East Coast Railway Company on the grounds that the Flagler estate should be used to apply to the debts of the railroad.

Willed by Mrs. Bingham

The fund was willed to the University by Mrs. Lily Kenan Flagler Bingham in memory of members of the Kenan family. The memorial is used to pay the salaries of a group of faculty members known as Kenan professors.

George Gordon Battle, prominent New York attorney and alumnus of the University, represented the state in the litigation.

Graduation Exercises Of '35 To Form Link In Evolving Chain

Many Influences Have Played Part in Growth and Elaboration of Graduation Ceremonies from First University Commencement in 1795 to This Year's Extensive Exercises.

Seniors graduating this June will be taking part in the 140th commencement, dating from the year 1795. It was then that the first official exercises were held, although the University had no graduates to offer.

In 1798, seven proud seniors headed the procession of graduates in mid-summer, during the first Carolina commencement at which diplomas were granted. Speaking of the long series of graduation exercises then begun, Kemp Battle says it has "produced more eloquence, brought together more distinguished men and beautiful women, and married off more congenial couples than any other similar occasion in the land."

First Exercise

No diplomas were awarded during the first three years, but public examinations were conducted and the trustees of the University made thorough investigations of the class rooms. The ceremony of 1798 was held on the hot Fourth of July, and among the seniors was Hinton James, first student of the institution.

These affairs continued to grow in size and festivity and in 1842 the custom was inaugurated of giving a Bible to each student with his diploma. These gifts have been continued up to the present day, with the class of '35 expecting their's this June.

Elaboration Begins

Further elaboration of commencement was brought about when 31 old graduates met at the commencement of 1843 and organized the alumni association. A very active and efficient organization has developed from this original meeting, and we now have Spike Saunders and Felix Grisette heading the local and national bodies.

Martial pomp characterized the exercises of 1846-60, with the marshals holding the most important positions of the day. Long processions of a military nature were led by the head marshal with his gold-headed cane. But this type of ceremony was abandoned after the Civil War, with the people sick of war and all its imitations.

The University during the commencement of 1846 had President James Knox Polk, a graduate of 1818, return to visit. At this time he was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. President James Buchanan also visited Carolina during the exercises of 1859.

Marathon speaking was the key-note of these occasions. At first, all seniors delivered ora-

GROVES LECTURES TO JOINT "Y" BODY

Sociologist to Continue Current Series with "Sex Hygiene."

Speaking on "Sex Hygiene," Dr. Ernest H. Groves of the University sociology department will continue the series of lectures on sex education before the joint Sophomore and Junior-Senior cabinets tomorrow night at 7:15.

The series was begun last Monday with a lecture on "Mental Hygiene," by Dr. Lee M. Brooks, also of the sociology department.

Efforts will be made to enliven the program by James Dees, University quartetist and song leader, who will lead the assembled group in a bit of harmony.

Further work on committee divisions and appointments will probably be made by President Billy Yandell of the Y. M. C. A., along with announcements about the intercollegiate Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. conference to be held at Blue Ridge.

DIVISION OF LABOR

One thing is certain: just because fraternities are eminently well-fitted to look after their members is no reason for their assuming the entire burden of tutoring the college freshmen.

That function, of course, is essentially the college's. But where the fraternity comes in is through co-operation in making the college's policies more effective and in this work the fraternities can use their natural facilities to advantage.

In other words, colleges should assume the responsibility of scholarship and not depend on the fraternities to tutor its freshmen, except as a general policy can allow Greek co-operation.

At a recent meeting of the National Interfraternity Conference, the college function was set down as follows: "Through mental, moral, and social training to equip the student to enjoy life more fully, to use his capacities more effectively for the good of himself and the community in which he is to live."

And the fraternity function: "To create such an atmosphere in the group that virile and wholesome men may thrive; that they may be stimulated to greater personal development than they would otherwise achieve independently; and that they may become aware of and more receptive to opportunities that the college offers them."

Here the division of labor is clearly made. A recent survey on this campus revealed that most fraternities find it hard to make this categorization with any degree of certainty, but it was obvious in almost every answer that this was the underlying theme: to provide a more conducive and more attractive environment for carrying on the collegiate functions.

Now that our administration is helping in working out plans for tutors, now that it is making definite strides toward a betterment of student conditions, it is the ripe time for fraternities to make their moves and all indications point toward such action by the Greeks in the near future.

THE TROUBLE WITH STRIKES

Thursday night the members of the Foreign Policy League discussed the question, "Are Student Movements Against War the Bunk." The general consensus of that group, however representative it may be, was emphatically no.

On that same day the Daily Princetonian printed an interview with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia in which he said, ". . . a strike itself is a form of war. . . . Mere emotional outbursts and declarations against war are quite futile. . . . Outsiders cannot possibly be affected by such foolish measures."

This attitude seems prevalent throughout the country. A consensus of twelve newspapers representing schools from all parts of the country seems to agree with Dr. Butler. Six were against strikes against war, three for them, and three took a passive attitude.

The trouble with strikes lies in the failure to recognize certain conditions. In the first place, many of them opposed not only war, but the New Deal, or favored the Child Labor movement, and thus lost the support of many interested primarily in opposing war. Direct association of the strikes with communistic organizations causes some to believe that the strike will be utilized for ulterior motives. Strikes tend to appeal too much to the emotions and not enough to intelligent action.

When these obstacles are removed, student movements will carry a great deal more weight. The essential fact remains that we have as much right to dramatize peace as war has been dramatized in the past.

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

While the platform of the local chapter of the American Liberty League reveals that group to be the result of an attempt to organize conservative opinion against all radical tendencies on the campus, President Winthrop Durfee's efforts to make the League chapter a dynamic part of the campus activities and his participation in other anti-radical functions have evidently led to a general misconception of what the American Liberty League—as a national organization — really stands for. And, too, the prominence of Yankee Republicans in the chapter has led to the mistaken belief that the organization is not so much tolerantly conservative as hide-bound Republican.

A statement of the principles and purposes of the League opens with the promise: "It shall be a non-partisan organization." This statement was made, probably, to discourage the opinion that the League is essentially Republican and was established as a constant and unalterable enemy of Roosevelt and all things Rooseveltian.

President Jouett Shouse, in his address, "The Legislative Situation," gave a broad explanation of the attitude maintained by the League: "Assurance was given that . . . it would analyze from a factual standpoint existing problems and base its recommendations without prejudice upon the merits of the proposals under consideration . . . It is neither for nor against the present administration. It is neither for nor against any political party. It is neither for nor against any individual official in public life."

Surely no further illustration need be offered to prove that the Liberty League is neither rock-ribbed Republican nor purely-anti-Roosevelt in its attitude toward the pending problems today.

It seems to me that those who oppose capitalism have, by some perversion of thought, come to regard American Democracy as synonymous with a system which has, admittedly, grown up under it.

I've not the intention of offering a challenge, but it would be interesting to hear a sincere Socialist justify his tendency to consider capitalism and democracy as one and the same thing, and to make clear just why we should discard the bill of rights for the very poor reason that it and capitalism have fallen into juxtaposition.

The last time Italy sent an army into Africa, something like 1,000 Italian soldiers were devoured by cannibals—so the newspapers recall. Now that Italy has invaded the dark continent again, Uncle Ned has blandly remarked, the natives are preparing for the innovation of a Thanksgiving Day. So long as Il Duce sends soldiers to Africa, the native commissary has little to worry about.

tions, but as the classes grew too large, only certain picked speeches were given. Visitors attending were compelled to stay for many days, because of difficulties in travel, resulting in more festive activities.

Out of this came the practice of final balls, which grew up in the years between 1840-50. These cotillions and waltzes lasted 'til three int he morning, while in 1907, it was the custom to keep dancing all night.

Professorial Predicament

In a recent editorial in this column John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, was quoted as follows: "Academic freedom should be the freedom of the learner to learn and not the freedom of the professor to profess." This raises the question: What can a professor profess?

There are three possible answers. He may refrain from saying anything that he believes, in which case he is worthless. He may honestly and frankly state his conclusions on the problems he has studied, and win the disapproval of the pseudo-patriots. Thirdly he may state only part of his conclusions (those which will offend none of the controlling interests in society) which is misrepresentation and dishonesty.

This places the poor professor in a terrible predicament. The first alternative is not only unworthy but impossible; even when an instructor selects a textbook he is stating his belief that the book is worth reading and he must give his opinion of it. The second position is the most desirable but apparently the least practical. The only thing left for him is to present tactfully only part of his views.

Students especially should be aware of this and co-operate with their instructors. It seems pitiful that after a man has studied a problem for many years he should not be allowed to state his conclusions openly and honestly. When a professor does have the courage to do this we should be careful not to misinterpret or misquote him. We need also to determine which of the three positions the instructor is taking and evaluate his teachings accordingly—Daily Californian.

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

April 23, 1931: "Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce of the University of North Carolina said in a recent address at Greensboro, N. C.:

" 'The term 'populistic,' 'socialistic,' and 'bolshevistic' have successfully been employed to cause public opprobrium and have often been the means of condemning issues which have many good points.'

"It is not surprising to hear this statement from a professor of the University of North Carolina, an institution which numbers among its professors many high-class men but also harbors some whose hearts are bolshevistic and who are allied with subversive movements.

"When Miss Nell Battle Lewis raised money to aid the communists at Gastonia, the president of the University sent her a letter of congratulation.

"If it were not for the terms 'populistic,' 'socialistic,' and 'bolshevistic' and the opprobrium which goes with them, those who have an urge to aid Soviet Russia in undermining our government would ply their trade with greater success."

Geologists Afield

Professor J. W. Huddle of the geology department has gone with a party of geology students into the coastal plain of southeastern North Carolina to make a study of the formations of that area.

The party hopes to collect fossils from the Cretaceous, the Eocene, and the Miocene. The larger ones will be placed in the geological museum and the microscopic ones will be used for research work. The party will also visit the Natural Wells at Magnolia.

ERICSON REQUESTS

To the Editor,
Daily Tar Heel:

It is hardly necessary for me or anyone else to deny the statement in Saturday's Daily Tar Heel (over the name of Mr. Leo Greengold) to the effect that "certain individuals in the administration" are "shunting him off to China next year as an exchange professor."

But does it not suggest that the Editor of the Daily Tar Heel request his readers to leave off all further correspondence on the subject?

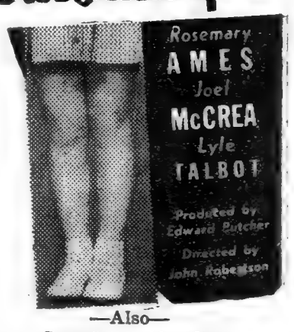
Craig, owner and leading actor of the famous Old Castle Square Stock Company, saw Fred Koch and offered him a job as a second comedy man. Actor Koch was then playing the role of "Betruchio" in "The Taming of the Shrew."



After those years on the road, the young graduate from Ohio Wesleyan decided that he needed further schooling in drama and he went to Harvard for a graduate course. He had been at Harvard only a year when he was called to the University of North Dakota, where he founded the Dakota Playmakers and whence he was to come in 1918 to the University of North Carolina.

Professor Koch's interest in Shakespeare has never waned for a moment from that first night he saw "Hamlet" at the Grand Opera House in Peoria, Ill. He gives a course here in Shakespeare. He has taken a role in only four plays since coming to the University 17 years ago, and three of them have been Shakespearean productions.

Levitan And De Gray Win Conference Net Doubles; Both Reach Singles Final

Henderson and Minor Bow in Long Thriller

Frank Shore Collapses in Singles Semi-Final; Eddy De Gray Swamps Henderson.

SINGLES FINAL TUESDAY

Crashing through the finals in the singles and then pairing to capture the doubles title with a thrilling rally, Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray, Carolina aces, made history on the tennis court yesterday in the course of the Southern Conference tournament.

Coming from behind against Bill Minor and Archie Henderson, Levitan and De Gray annexed the conference doubles crown and will fight it out for the singles title Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A wildly cheering crowd thrilled to the brilliant play and the spectacular rally of the winners as they emerged victorious, 3-6, 6-2, 3-6, 11-9, 6-2.

Singles Semi-Finals

Earlier in the day both De Gray and Levitan rode through to the singles final. De Gray routed Archie Henderson with a vivid attack which opened up Archie's defense. De Gray has been playing superb ball in the past few days and his speed and precision swept Henderson out of the tourney in three straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Drama was enacted in the other semi-final with Frank Shore collapsing in the fifth set against Walter Levitan. Playing Levitan on even terms for four sets, Shore tired considerably in the final set, and trailing 1-4 in games and 0-40 in points, he suddenly toppled upon his face in midcourt.

Shore Recovers

He was rushed unconscious to the infirmary but is now reported resting comfortably. Levitan therefore went into the final upon a default but he was well on his way to victory nevertheless, and had Shore finished play, Levitan was almost a certain winner. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6, 4-1, default.

The doubles final was one of the best matches played here in years. The entire encounter was packed with brilliant shots from the racquets of the four Carolina stars.

The opening set went to Minor and Henderson, 6-3. A break of De Gray's service brought the set to a close. This set was packed with high lobs and thudding putaways. The four players alternated in long lobs, powerful drives, and miraculous returns.

Levitan and De Gray took the second set with ease but again dropped the following set. Both Minor and Henderson were playing hard tennis and it looked like curtains for the state champions.

Minor and Henderson increased their tempo and leaped into a 5-3 lead. It was here that Levitan and De Gray brought forth the calibre that made them champions. Five times Minor and Henderson were but two points from victory, but each time were thwarted by a splendid shot from their opponents.

Levitan and De Gray brought it to five-all as De Gray held his service in a thrilling game. From that point, games alternated with rapidity as each player held his service with ease. It was on Henderson's service, games standing nine-all, that De

FROSH NET TEAM STOPS ASHEVILLE

Yearlings Close Undefeated Season with Easy 6-1 Repetition of Friday's Victory.

Repeating with another victory over Asheville School for Boys by a 6-1 score the Carolina frosh netters wrote finis on an undefeated season yesterday afternoon.

Both Ramsay Potts and Eddy Fuller won in straight sets, so completing an undefeated year for both these freshman sensations.

Gilken Extends Potts

Potts, as was Fuller on Friday, was forced to an extra-game match against Gilken in a hard-fought battle. Potts won at 10-8, 6-1.

Fuller trounced Pettit, limiting his opponent to one game in both sets. Johnny Foreman and Frank Farrell scored the other two points in the singles.

Seelbach scored the lone tally for Asheville, nosing out Vic Strasberger in three hard-fought sets. Vic won the second set at love but was unable to keep up the pace.

The results follow:

Potts (C) over Gilken 10-8, 6-1.
Fuller (C) over Pettit 6-0, 6-1.
Seelbach (A) over Strasberger 7-5, 0-6, 6-4.
Foreman (C) over Holden 6-0, 6-4.
Farrell (C) over Hopkins 6-0, 6-1.
Foreman-Strasberger (C) over Hopkins-Seelbach 6-1, 6-3.
Farrell-Bloom (C) over Pettit-Holden 7-5, 6-1.

BILL TILDEN HERE AGAIN TOMORROW

Big Bill Is Accompanied by Barnes, Plaa, and Ramillon.

Big Bill Tilden returns to Chapel Hill tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock with a new assortment of professional talent.

Accompanying the master this time will be Bruce Barnes, one time collegian star, Martin Plaa and Ramillon. The last two are the French professional doubles champions.

The matches this time will be played outdoors with an admission price of 50c. This is Tilden's second appearance here this quarter.

The match will be considered a U. S.-France affair. Tilden and Barnes will face the Plaa-Ramillon combination in singles and doubles.

CONFERENCE THRILLS

Shown above are three of yesterday's conference thrills. The picture above, left, shows Williamson just after breaking the tape in the 880, after overtaking Headly of Maryland to win in 1:55.9. Bob Gardiner, Carolina runner who finished third, is seen in the center of the photo.

The other shot above caught Mothershead of V. P. I. as he hit the tape in the great mile race between him and Williamson. The Tech man won by a single stride after a thrilling sprint down the last stretch.

The bottom photo shows the last row of the 120-yard high hurdles in which Frank Abernethy (extreme left) established a new conference record. The others in the picture are (left to right) Everett of Virginia, just after taking the last jump; Sly of Maryland, on hands and knees after falling; and Martin of Duke and Hawthorne of Carolina.

Abernethy, Williamson, Evins Win Events In Conference Track to successfully defend his 880-yard title against the last lap spurt of Headley of Maryland.

The Old Liner star led most of the way, but on the final stretch could not match Williamson's powerful challenge and the Tar Heel broke the tape in 1:55.9, only .1 second short of the conference record.

Everett Takes Hurdles

Like Williamson, Everett, the Cavalier captain, came back to defend his title in the 220-yard low hurdles, winning handily and setting a new mark of 23.6.

Hawthorne and Abernethy added seven points for the Tar Heels, but things might have been different if Schule of W. & L. had not tripped over the last hurdle.

Carolina's third win came in the shot put, Tom Evins' heave of 47 feet, ½-inch on Friday being sufficient to win. Ed Waldrop, Carolina's defending titleholder, and Fab Haywood, his teammate, put on a fine exhibition in the two-mile run, but could not match the powerful finish of Dunaj of W. & L., who won in 9:55.3.

Maryland Cops Relay

Perhaps the most exciting event of the day was the one-mile relay, in which Maryland was the victor. Right from the start the Old Liner's quartet took the lead and was never overtaken, but the second place battle between Carolina and Duke proved to be a real thriller.

Duke had gained an apparently safe advantage after the first exchange, but Gardiner pulled up a bit. "Red" Drake ran one of the best races of his career to close the gap on the Duke lead from 15 to about eight yards. Running anchor-man, Williamson stepped out and passed Shehan of Duke on the home stretch to give the Tar Heels a second.

Earl Widmyer of Maryland proved that he was the "king of conference sprint men" by successfully defending both dash crowns. In the century he tied the record of 9.8 by decisively beating Woodard of Duke. The 220 was likewise another easy triumph for the Maryland speedster, with Woodard again the runner-up. In the 100 Floyd Higby placed fourth after previously taking second in the broad jump.

Archer Wins 440

When Bob Archer of Maryland came from behind to win his qualifying heat yesterday in the 440-yard run, the consensus of opinion was that he had "run his race." However, the Old Liner boy spurted in the final and broke the tape the winner

Hal Weafer Hurls Four-Hit Game as Blue Devil Team Goes on Hitting Rampage.

GROOME STARS IN FIELD

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Greensboro, May 18.—In a night game played here this evening the Duke Blue Devils displayed a powerful hitting offensive to smother the Carolina Tar Heels, 14-1.

While Hal Weafer, ace Duke moundsman, kept Carolina away from the home plate, his teammates pounded away at the pitching of Wright and Webster for 14 runs on 11 hits.

Carolina's five errors proved costly as the Dukesters took advantage of the breaks and hit well in the pinches. The Tar Heels were only able to get four hits off Weafer and half of them were by Tommy Irwin, star shortstop.

Wright blanked the Blue Devils for the first three innings

Class Rings—Orders for the official 1936 senior class rings will be taken in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. from 10-12 a. m. and from 2-5 p. m. tomorrow. All interested juniors may see the samples of the rings at that time.

RALEIGH IS SCENE OF SONG FESTIVAL

Five College Bands and 5,000 Voices to Take Part.

Twenty-four towns and 30 schools will send choral units to the mammoth song festival to be held in Raleigh this afternoon. Five bands, representing the "Big Five" colleges of the state will accompany them.

Mrs. J. S. Correl, head of the North Carolina Music Festival Association, is expecting at least 5,000 voices to participate, representing choral groups from the eastern part of the state. Six trained song leaders will direct the chorus and five pianos will augment the bands' accompaniments. Governor Ehringhaus will act as master of ceremonies.

Many Students Enjoy Final Grail Dance

A large and enthusiastic crowd stepped to the tunes of Freddy Johnson's orchestra in the final Grail dance of the year held in Bynum gym last night.

A bevy of beautiful girls, lively and rhythmic music, and ideal dancing weather all combined to make this dance once of the gayest and most successful of the season.

The highlight of the occasion was the special no-break in which the new members, in whose honor the dance was given, and their dates participated.

MISS BUCKLES WILL PLAY

Miss Virginia Buckles will present her graduating piano recital tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall.

Miss Buckles' program will be as follows: Sonata Op. 31, No. 3—Beethoven; Allegro, Allegretto vivace, Menuetto, Presto con fuoco; Chorale from Church Cantata No. 147—J. S. Bach; Gavotte from "Iphigenia in Aulis"—Gluck; Were I a Bird—Henselt; May Night—Palmgren; Etude Op. 25, No. 7—Chopin; Scherzo in C sharp minor Op. 39—Chopin.

The public is cordially invited.

Class Jewelry

The new 1936 co-ed miniature class rings, pins and guards, and the new necklace charms will be exhibited tomorrow afternoon at Spencer from 5-6 o'clock by O. E. Bass, representative of Herff-Jones Co.

Prices and samples of the novelties will be shown and orders taken for delivery next fall.

WALKER TO TALK

Coleman Walker, investment officer of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Winston-Salem, will discuss Trust Investments with the class in Trust on Tuesday afternoon, May 21, in the law school. The talk will take place at 2 o'clock in the senior classroom.

Track

in 49.6 seconds. Evans of Maryland, the indoor champ, was second, while "Red" Drake, the defending champ, hit a box from which he was unable to break loose, and failed to place.

Duke's only victories came in the form of two first-place ties, Leidy and Moore finishing even with Call of Virginia in the pole vault, and Myers ending even with Boucher and McMahon of Clemson in the high jump. Don Jackson, defending pole vault champ, and his teammate, Dick Baer, were two of four tying for fourth in that event.

A shake-up was experienced in several of the field events following the results of yesterday's qualifications. The javelin throw saw Guckeyson of Maryland return to form and capture the event with a throw of 204 feet, five inches, thus changing places with West of Duke. Armfield of Carolina also advanced, taking third place and forcing Blackwell of Clemson to fourth.

Beers' jump of 23 feet, 2¼ inches yesterday was also sufficient to win today. Higby, Hubbard, Everett, and Pickard of Duke finished in the same order after all but Hubbard had made attempts to better their qualifying jumps.

Another foot was added to the discus throw, but was done by Zori of State, who had held the lead at 145 feet following the qualifying trials. Currance of V. M. I. was again second, but Brasher of W. & L. took third, forcing Guckeyson to fourth. McConnell of Clemson, who finished sixth yesterday, advanced to fifth dropping Barwick of Carolina from the scoring.

Everett took high scoring honors with 11 points, while Widmyer and Williamson were deadlocked for second with 10 each, and Evans third with eight and one-quarter. Abernethy and Woodard followed with eight, while Guckeyson and Hawthorne tallied seven apiece.

The meet was witnessed by 2,500 spectators. This victory by Carolina marks its fifth conference track win in the space of three years. The Tar Heels first started their reign by copping the outdoor conference honors in 1933, and continued to win it in 1934 and 1935. Carolina also holds the Southern Conference indoor track title having won it in 1934 and 1935.

News Release Tomorrow

The fourth release of the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service, under the direction of Don McKee, for high and preparatory schools will be mailed out tomorrow afternoon.

Fifty-two institutions will receive the mimeographed bulletins and personals this week, due to the fact that the majority of the North Carolina high schools publishing newspapers have closed. Prior to this week 80 schools have been on the DAILY TAR HEEL News Service.

The last release of the DAILY TAR HEEL bulletins this spring will be sent out May 27. The service will be resumed in the fall.

Gray drove through the pair and then Levitan lobbed prettily to the corner for the game, making it 10-9.

Levitan held service and the set went to the eventual winners, 11-9. The final set was a a run-away for Levitan and De Gray. Levitan's brilliant volleying and De Gray's continued smashing brought victory to the new champions.

This gives Levitan and De Gray their second title in a month. Not very long ago the state title passed into their hands. They will settle the singles title Tuesday, and this match, with De Gray in his present form, promises to be another fine battle. It will be played Tuesday afternoon.

SINGLES SEMI-FINALS

DEAN BRADSHAW ADVISES HOPKINS

Education Commissioner Studebaker Petitions for Federal Youth Service Institution.

Dean of Students Francis Bradshaw went before Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, who delivered the commencement address at Carolina last year, for a committee hearing in Washington on the recently proposed Federal Youth Service.

Bradshaw is representing President Graham on a committee appointed by John A. Lang, national president of the National Student Federation of America and a 1930 graduate of Carolina, to present the proposal.

Roosevelt Petitioned

U. S. Commissioner of Education Studebaker is now asking Roosevelt to recommend to Congress that the service be established, and a group composed of Harry Hopkins, Harold Ickes, Roosevelt and Studebaker are now considering the proposal.

"The nature of the Youth Division's activity," states Lang, "would be to discover the ramification of youth's problems and to suggest and carry out solutions in the field of education, vocational guidance, unemployment and leisure time. Experimental councils would be set up in key communities to deal with local youth problems."

After graduating from Carolina in 1930, Lang became president of the N. S. F. A. While on the campus he was vice-president of the "Y," an outstanding debater and president of the Phi Assembly.

but after that the Duke nine scored in every frame. The Devils scored 11 of their runs in two innings, tallying eight in a wild sixth inning rally and three more in their last turn at bat.

The Carolina team went to pieces in the sixth and were unable to get their opponents out. Wright was removed from the game in the midst of the Duke rally and replaced by Webster who finally managed to retire the side.

Groome starred in centerfield for the Tar Heels, making a number of sensational catches to break up Duke rallies. Irwin hit hard for Carolina while Parker led the Dukesters at the plate with a triple and a double to his credit.

Plans Underway For "Y" Pow-Wow At Ridge Resort

500 Students from Ten States Will Participate.

The annual intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. conference with delegates from universities and colleges of 10 southeastern states will convene at Blue Ridge, N. C., on June 11, lasting through the 20th.

Approximately 500 students and campus leaders will gather on the expansive 1,400-acre resort assembly grounds that comprise Blue Ridge.

Beautiful Site

Located in the scenic mountains of North Carolina, Blue Ridge is one of the most beautiful sites in the state. Approximately $1,000,000 has been spent in developing these grounds which are the scene of nearly a dozen different conventions and conferences during the summer months.

The conference delegates include both Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. workers, the separate conferences having been merged last year. It has been an annual affair since 1892, when the meeting was held at Knoxville, Tenn.

The program, which is competently led, includes platform addresses, fellowship hours, study, seminars, and recreation.

In an hour called Association Hour, recent trends in the Student Movement over the South, and other regions are discussed. Campus codes and customs, worship, finance, community relations, economics, church co-operation, freshmen, deputations, race, industry and other topics are among the interests considered.

Plenty of Play

A large part of the program is given over to recreation. Tennis courts, a baseball field, a lake for swimming and boating, miles of riding trails and more miles for hiking leave little to be desired in facilities for enjoyment of leisure time.

The total cost to Carolina delegates will be a registration fee of $6.00 and meals which will be approximately $10.80. The Carolina delegation will be housed in a cottage which is owned by the local Y. M. C. A.

Infirmary Roster

Those students confined in the infirmary yesterday were: J. W. Humphries, T. A. Gregory, Spence Brogden, J. W. Copeland, Frank Shore.

PREACH IT, ALSO

Everybody was talking over the week-end about the little altercation between the Duke and Carolina track mentors at the conference games Friday afternoon.

The consensus was that "it was the deuce of a way to effect friendly co-operation between Duke and Carolina." Students seemed to think that all Duke-Carolina hostility had not died down at all, as has been commonly assumed, and that for time immemorial Blue Devil will scratch at Tar Heel and vice versa.

We think these students are making mountains out of molehills. It is no sign that we can't and don't have a friendly rivalry just because one or two members of our body can't agree with one or two of the Dukesters.

On the other hand, despite the fact that probably both of the disagreers were wrong Friday, the action on the part of the Duke coach in getting so nasty reflects on that school just as it would on us if our man had started the unpleasantness. The Duke students as a whole appear to be good sports but some of them, like some of us, can't "take it" when the home team is left in the lurch. Moral: try to spread good sportsmanship as well as practise it.

DODGING INERTIA

Dean House said that this matter of class-extension can not be hurried and he is undoubtedly right.

However, we would like to see the recently-mentioned members of the student-faculty committee on class-extension swing into action before exams creep up on them. Attending too much speed are carelessness and inefficiency; attending too little is the accumulation of inertia which can choke little trees like our carefully nurtured class-extension bush.

In the meantime, we hope faculty and student interest in the idea doesn't die down. What these people think will probably have a lot to do with what finally happens to the plan.

HARD BOILED

There seem to be no loopholes in the offer which the government is making to candidates for Marine Corps Reserve Officers' training camps.

Yes, we have been looking for loopholes, just as have many others. We are opposed to war, but believe such opposition must look for its effect in our political attachments in Washington.

And to be on the safe side just in case our opposition (and that of a million other youths in the nation) doesn't make any impression, we think a pleasant vacation at the marine barracks at no cost will be enlightening, entertaining and effective.

To say so is not to hedge about the question of war. It is simply to become hard-boiled about something which needs more hard-boiling and less coddling.

STATE INSTITUTE OF GOVERNMENT WILL MEET HERE

Senator Bailey and Representative Doughton Will Address State Local Officials.

DATE SET FOR JUNE 10-11

Continuing the custom inaugurated with signal success after the 1933 general assembly, North Carolina's city and county officials will gather here Monday and Tuesday, June 10 and 11, to hear their state and national legislators interpret the laws as they affect each county, city and town.

The meeting, which will be held under the auspices of the legislator's division of the institute of government, will bring together local officials from every section of the state. Seven of North Carolina's congressional delegation came down for the 1933 sessions, participated in by more than 1,000 officials, representing 98 of the state's 100 counties and a majority of its cities and towns.

Keynoters

North Carolina's senior senator, Josiah W. Bailey, and the dean of the state's delegation, Representative Robert L. Doughton, have accepted invitations to serve as the keynoters for the Tar Heel officials. William B. Umstead, who represents the home district, will preside.

Some of the vital questions that Senator Bailey and Representative Doughton will discuss are: How will the four billion dollars appropriated by the federal government for public works and relief be allotted and administered in this state and its counties, cities, and towns? How will the program be financed? And what will be the cost and the benefits to North Carolina?

The program in interpretation of new state laws will be in

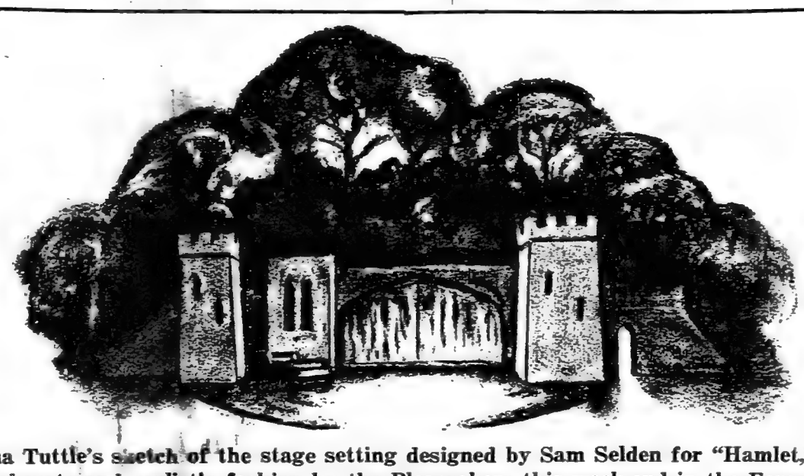
MARINE EXPLAINS RESERVE CORPS

New Plans Presented by Government for Summer Camp.

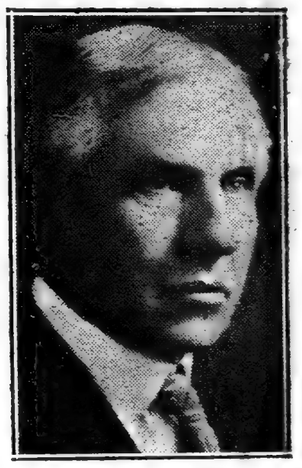


United States Marine Corps Major Fagan met in Gerrard hall last night with a large group of students who were interested in entering the newly organized Marine Corps Reserve Camp in Quantico, Va., this summer.

This organization was recently formed by the government in order to pick army officers from among college graduates. Training camps have been established in Quantico and San Diego, Cal., in order to train college undergraduates. Students who are now sophomores or more advanced and are from 18 to 20 years of age will be eligible for entrance.

If the student is a junior this year he may be given the commission of 2nd lieutenant upon graduation after the completion of one session in camp. Hereafter two years' attendance at the training camp will be required.

Several students decided to apply for entrance to the training camp last night and will be given physical examinations by a marine medical officer who will visit the University in the near future. A total of 20 applicants will be admitted from Carolina. Those accepted will report to Quantico on or about July 10.



HAMLET'S HAUNTED HOUSE

Miss Lena Tuttle's sketch of the stage setting designed by Sam Selden for "Hamlet," to be produced in elaborate and realistic fashion by the Playmakers this week-end in the Forest theatre.

Four amateur carpenters, Harry Davis, Wilbur Dorsett, Clyde Shaw, and Billy Robertson, and two painters, also amateurs, Alton Williams and Director Selden, are working rain or shine this week getting the huge set assembled.

Absentee

Dr. Isaac H. Manning of the University medical school who sailed from New York for England to make a study of the group payment plan for hospital care.

JACK POOL TALKS ON HONOR SYSTEM

Tells Freshmen of Plans for Secretary, Committee Next Year To Improve Government.

A small portion of the freshman class gathered in Memorial hall yesterday morning in the next to last assembly of the year to hear Jack Pool give a rather disjointed talk on the honor system, the student government, and the helping of new students in orientation week.

Mr. Comer, who had charge of the assembly, before turning over the floor to Pool, asked freshmen to leave nickles and dimes on their seats to go toward the fund for Mymie Tuck, aged Negro.

Commends Class

Pool, speaking to the freshmen "not as president of the student body, but as a student," commended the class on their projects designed for strengthening the honor system, and urged them to think about the system, what it means to them, and what it will mean to new students.

The co-operation of the class during orientation week next fall was asked by Pool, who then went on to explain the objects and aims of the committee on student government.

Pool concluded with these words: "I believe student government should be more active and progressive. Next year we are going to keep a secretary in the student government room every afternoon for three hours to give advice and help to all who may seek it, and to receive suggestions for student government improvement."

Elsinore

Professor Sam Selden spends most of his time in and around the Playmakers theatre fooling with people who have or think they have histrionic talent; but early this month he took a day or two off to delve into Scandinavian travel books, a big, old-fashioned volume filled with pictures of English castles, and two or three histories of architecture.

All because he was going to direct "Hamlet" May 24 and 25 and wanted to get a realistic medieval effect with his scenery and costumes instead of putting on the show in the conventional Elizabethan manner.

Choosing the Design

Having made the two discoveries that English and Danish feudal lords had very similar ideas about what was the best style in strongholds and that Gothic form in architecture had penetrated to Denmark by medieval times, Director Selden picked out a simple English castle and used it as a model for his design of Elsinore, the royal abode of Claudius, King of Denmark and chief villain in Shakespeare's tragedy about the Danish prince.

The various pieces of tower and battlement and wall which were to compose the castle were so big that most of them had to be made outside the scene shop, either on the Playmaker stage or in the Forest theatre. And, with the castle over half-finished and put together yesterday morning, Chief Carpenters Davis and Dorsett were glad that water-proof paint had been used by Chief Painters Williams and Selden.

The setting is arranged so that both the inside and the outside of the castle may be seen. The ghost scenes and the Osric scene will take place at the foot of the tower on the right; the indoor court scenes in the center of the stage, which represents the interior of the castle; and Ophelia's grave will be in the left foreground off-stage.

The Thrones

Massy chairs with arms in the shape of dog's heads will be thrones for Claudius and Gertrude, and a colorful tapestry designed by Alton Williams will be hung behind the thrones.

The most colorful article of scenery, however, will be Wilbur Dorsett's curtain in the center background, drawn and painted on green cloth in warm, bright tints, and depicting, like many a medieval tapestry, warriors afoot and on horseback slaying each other in awkward poses.

As in all Forest theatre productions, the action will be continuous, change of scene being accomplished by a shift of the lights.

Players' Experimentals Planned for May 28

Public try-outs will be held in the Playmakers theatre this afternoon at 5 o'clock for parts in the last group of experimental plays this year, to be produced May 28.

The dramas, written in the playwriting course, will be directed by members of the class in directing.

The plays are: Ellen Deppe's "Penny Wise," a character study of an adolescent girl, directed by Eloise Sheppard; Virgil Lee's "Dark Journey," a tragedy of a disintegrated family, directed by the author; Ella Mae Daniel's "Old Maid," a comedy of arrested courtship, directed by Sammie Ruth Bell.

Jean Ashe's "Debtor's Hell," a colonial episode, directed by the author; Wilbur Dorsett's "Queer New World," a Negro fantasy, directed by Carl Thompson; Ralph Lyerly's "Thou Thief," a dramatic sketch of small town people, directed by Margaret Wallace; and Mildred Moore's "Barn Trash," a mountain mystery-comedy, directed by Kenneth Bartlett.

N. Y. Educator Member Of Summer Faculty

Dr. Frank Misner, director of research in the public schools of Bronxville, N. Y., will be a member of the teaching staff of the summer session in Chapel Hill this year. Dr. Misner will give courses in the construction and organization of the curricula of secondary schools.

He comes to the University with high recommendations, having served as superintendent of schools, secondary school principal, supervising principal, and headmaster of a private school.

Dr. Misner is a graduate of Washington State College, has studied in New York University and Columbia University, and holds the degree of doctor of philosophy from Columbia.

Invitations Deadline

Today and tomorrow are the last days on which orders for senior invitations may be placed. All seniors who are planning to get invitations are urged to place their orders either today or tomorrow in the "Y" lobby from 2-5 o'clock.

RACIAL RELATIONS, EDUCATION TOPICS FOR CONFERENCES

Graham, Few, Odum, Newbold, Erwin Among Prominent Men Who Will Speak.

NEGRO EDUCATORS ATTEND

Joint conferences of the division of co-operation in education and race relations under the auspices of the state department of public instruction, the University of North Carolina, and Duke University, starting yesterday, are being continued today at Chapel Hill and at Duke.

The entire conference is directed by N. C. Newbold of the state department of public instruction. The first session was held in the Alumni building here yesterday morning. As presiding officer, Dr. Howard W. Odum, director of the institute for research in social science, gave a sociological background for the conference. University Librarian R. B. Downs reported on the books, papers, and periodicals available in the library in relation to racial matters.

Education

Present at the morning session were about 15 prominent Negro educators, most of them presidents of institutions. "The Negro Ministry" and "Negroes and the Law" were discussed.

After lunch the group went to Duke University, where Dr. Howard E. Jensen, of the Duke sociology department and a member of the faculty of the Duke school of religion, presided at a meeting in York Chapel.

Dr. William K. Boyd of the Duke history department, reported on the Duke library. "Negroes, Health and the Practice of Medicine" were discuss-

'Y' CABINET HEARS GROVES LECTURE

Eminent Sociologist Discusses "Sex Hygiene" Before Joint Cabinet Meeting.

"The problem of sex should be unified with your life purpose," Dr. Ernest R. Groves, nationally known sociologist of the University, told the joint sophomore and junior-senior cabinets last night.

Speaking unaffectedly before a large and intent audience, Dr. Groves used as his subject "Sex Hygiene." His lecture was the second in a series on general sex education which have been given before the "Y" group.

Dr. Groves advised the cabinet members to seek the advice of older persons on sex problems rather than those of one's own age. "The only way to solve the sex problem is to lift it out of the immediate and think of it as a life problem," the speaker stated as a solution for the pressure which is being brought to bear upon youth both from the inside and the outside.

Advocating wholesome association between young men and young women, Dr. Groves said, "Nothing hurts a person more than isolation."

When questioned upon the harm of bull-sessions, the speaker observed, "Bull-sessions can be stimulating and educating; they can be disgusting and maturing."

FREE TALK

Without going into many specific details, we can truthfully say that an investigation of our fee set-up will reveal to anyone one fact, if no other: that some departments are greatly handicapped and undernourished and others are more prosperously nurtured and fed along.

It seems that without exception those departments which are fundamentally the more basic and essential are the least well supported. Such truly important divisions as the infirmary, the gymnasium, the library—all are struggling along with meager budgets, while many student activities, essential, perhaps, but of a more secondary importance, if things essential can be classed by degree, are thriving and continuing in good shape.

For instance, the gymnasium is poking along under a budget of around $3,500 per year, which must take care of four salaried men, maintenance, replacements, etc. Gymnasium training is required for our membership in the Association of American Universities and would undoubtedly be extremely popular, as well as beneficial, if it could be maintained more thoroughly. As it is, the staff does well under the conditions, but the conditions are poor.

The infirmary operates on a budget of around $16,000, which is particularly cramping. Only a small part of this comes from student fees, however, and re-allocation perhaps would have little effect, insofar as the portion which the infirmary gets from the registration fee of $9.75 per student each quarter cannot increase greatly because the library, the gymnasium, and registration expense also must come out of that sum.

The same holds for the library, which can make few forward strides without more money.

The problem amounts to this: for the most part these departments are supported by appropriations from the general fund and only in part by student fees. We all know the financial condition of the University and how it can barely operate on what it gets.

However, we see on the other hand student fees paid freely for various activities, such as publications, debating, athletics, intramurals. The question naturally pops into mind: is it right that our fundamental departments must suffer while less important activities are not affected?

Of course, this may only be a period of financial depression and in prosperity when appropriations jump back to normal, everything will turn out all right. But that is no reason for us to consider that the student fees are well levied.

For instance, we pay gymnasium fees and use the gym during our first months only. We would use it more but it's too dingy and too ill-equipped. We pay debating fees and only fifty of our number attend the debates. We pay fees for intramurals which amass to a total of over $7,000 and get in return a program which, although it is well participated in, does not involve the very persons who needs it most, simply because there is no full-time director to give undivided attention to such participation and to such a program.

We know that fees can't be shifted in a minute from certain ends to regular departments which are only in part supported by fees. But the main principle which our investigation has impressed upon us is that those activities which are supported by fees must give full money's worth.

We can't do much about the departmental budgets which the legislature makes up, but our Student Advisory Committee can look into student fees and is doing so. More power to it.

Fascistic Threats?

Within the past six months, educators, students, and legislators have been frightened by the "red scare"—frightened badly enough to threaten by force and by law the constitutional rights of free speech granted American citizens. Two more cases of terrorism and suppression were reported Friday.

A peace council at which a theology student was to speak was blocked at Hunter College by Dr. Eugene A. Colligan, college president, on the grounds that such a meeting would constitute "organized disorder!"

At the University of Wisconsin, 150 students invaded a meeting of the student league for industrial democracy, Socialist organization, seized the four speakers, and threw them into the lake. These actions resemble closely the technique used by Fascist advocates abroad to kill dissenting opinions.

Disguised under the name of "wholehearted and patriotic Americanism," students and administrations at the City College of New York, University of California at Los Angeles, Columbia, Louisiana State—to mention only a few—have threatened freedom of thought and expression.

Repressive tactics of college administrations, vicious physical force used by some college students, speech-depriving laws of state legislatures—all are reminiscent of Fascism, a type of government which strangles civil liberties and makes true education impossible.

The right of a minority to air opinions is a necessary corollary to any definition of democracy. Free speech and popular government go hand in hand; to hurt one is to injure the other.

"Patriotic Americans" are defeating their own ends when they refuse to realize that only by free trade in ideas will the ultimate good for society be reached.—Syracuse Daily Orange.

By SPARTACUS

Mr. Snowden wonders why the radicals confuse our system of government, democracy (capitalist democracy is the complete description) with our economic system. Well, I wonder. Who, Mr. Snowden, did the confusing? How does it happen that the loudest defenders of our constitution, our supreme court, our paraphanelia of government are always the chief favorites of our economic system?

The American Liberty League, for instance, seems to be quite as much concerned in preserving profits as the constitution. Perhaps there is no confusion at all. Radicals commonly charge that our system of government is merely a tool for the ruling classes. The supreme court, for instance, performs its function by declaring unconstitutional such things as child labor amendments, minimum wage laws, and now pension acts. The executive arranges foreign policies so that profits can be made in Cuba, Mexico, China, or wherever. The courts furnish a means whereby an exploiter with plenty of money but no case can beat a worker with no money and a good case. The legislatures pass laws that always turn out to be of benefit to property interests. The police and the militia furnish tools for strike breaking, though they are usually conveniently absent when the rights of labor are being violated by vigilantes.

Back of the whole government stands the constitution which was written principally to protect the rights of property. Maybe, Mr. Snowden, the confusion is on the side of those who do not see that the government is merely the tool of the ruling class.

Sometime in the next few days the Burlington case will come up for review before the supreme court of the state. No one who has heard the men jailed for an alleged "dynamite plot" or has read the reports of the trial can deny that there are many doubts of their guilt. Yet it has been tremendously difficult to get a review. Court officials have piled one expense on another, until it has almost seemed that there was a conspiracy to keep the case out of court.

Mill workers obviously lack the resources to carry on protracted litigation. The expenses must be borne by those who are outraged at the conduct of the first trial and determined that no innocent man shall be punished. The defense is heavily in the red. It needs additional funds to meet all necessary expenses. Send contributions to Mrs. Paul Green.

Religion

President William P. Few of Duke presided over a joint conference of the advisory committee and representatives of schools of religion last night in York Chapel. President Frank P. Graham of the University was scheduled to make an address at this meeting, as was State Superintendent of Schools Clyde A. Erwin.

Representatives of schools of religion will convene this morning in York Chapel with Dean Elbert Russell presiding. The discussion will be continued at 2:30 this afternoon and the committee will adjourn at 5 o'clock.

Committees

Committees from various institutions co-operating in the conference are: University of North Carolina, H. W. Odum, chairman; N. W. Walker, A. W. Hobbs, R. B. Downs, and Guy B. Johnson,; Duke University, H. E. Jensen, chairman, W. K. Boyd, David T. Smith, A. M. Proctor, and Malcolm McDermott; state department of public instruction, J. H. Highsmith, chairman; James E. Hillman, T. E. Browne, G. H. Ferguson, W. F. Credle, and C. D. Douglass.

The four objectives of the division of co-operation in education and race relations are to make studies of: Negroes before the law, Negroes and medicine, training of young Negro ministers, and Negroes and education.

Library Aim

Another aim of the division is to try to build up a large collection of written material on Negro questions in the libraries of the University of North Carolina and Duke University.

Studies of the education of young Negro ministers will be taken up by the Duke School of Religion, and the question of the Negro before the law will probably be taken up by the law school here.

Plans are being formulated whereby graduate students may make studies in the problems of the Negro.

Probably the first liquor law on the American continent was passed in 1745 for the village of Brunswick, which was located about 14 miles south of what is now Wilmington. A 10 shillings fine was decreed for Sabbath drunkenness.

PRESS RELEASES SOCIOLOGY REVIEW

May Issue Features Articles on Social Reconstruction.

The May issue of Social Forces, organ of the University sociology department, has just been released through the University Press. It is edited by Howard W. Odum, head of the sociology department and director of the institute for research in social science.

This issue, featuring research in relation to social reconstruction, carries a series of articles on the FERA research program by Howard B. Meyers, Dwight Sanderson, Frederick F. Stephen, E. D. Tetreau.

Varied Content

M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, writes on decentralization of industry under the New Deal. Harold Hoffsomer, professor in the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, discusses the AAA and the share cropper. A review, by W. E. Cole of the University of Tennessee, concerning research in the Tennessee Valley, lists a number of studies of the TVA and the CWA. This article was made possible by the co-operative efforts of University professors: T. J. Woofter, Rupert B. Vance, Harriet L. Herring, Roy M. Brown, and Harold D. Meyer.

HIGH SCHOOL WILL GIVE "DULCY" THURSDAY NIGHT

Elizabeth Correll plays the title role in the Chapel Hill High School play, "Dulcy", which will be given Thursday night in the high school auditorium by the senior class. This is one of the best known plays written by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, having run on Broadway with much success.

Dr. P. C. Farrar, head of the English department of the High School will direct it.

The supporting cast is as follows: Mr. Smith—Hubert Privette; Van Dyke—David Hoeffer; Mr. Sterrett—Luther Canada; Bill Parker—Ned Hamilton; Mr. Leach—Maxton Boon; Butler—Andrew Canady; Mrs. Forbes—Maurace Partin; Angela Forbes—Lettie Osborn; Mr. Patterson—Conrad Robbins; Mr. Forbes—Milton Hogan.

An admission of twenty-five cents will be charged.

Levitan And De Gray Encounter Expected To Be Thriller Today

Conference Champ To Be Decided Today

Captain Levitan Will Attempt to Close Successful Career by Beating Soph Mate.

SEASON ENDS WITH MATCH

Weather permitting, Eddy De Gray and Walter Levitan will play the final match to decide the Southern Conference tennis singles championship this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

These two Carolina stars have already captured the doubles crown, defeating "Wild Bill" Minor and Archie Henderson in a thrilling five-set match on Saturday afternoon.

De Gray routed Archie Henderson in straight sets to reach the semi-final, while Levitan won by default from Frank Shore.

Levitan's Last

The match between Levitan and De Gray promises to be an epic. Both boys have everything to gain. Levitan is captain of the successful Carolina squad and is now completing his last year of varsity play. Always a dependable go-getter on the courts, he will be out there today to end his Tar Heel career in a blaze of glory.

On the other hand, De Gray is only a sophomore and is experiencing his first year on the varsity. This flashy, hard-hitting youth has an enviable record and should prove a good match for Levitan.

Close friends, these two players will face each other as mutual adversaries today. It is a question of whether or not De Gray with his erratic offense can wear down the consistency of Levitan's returns.

Match a Toss-up

If De Gray "has his day," he is a good choice to win for he is almost unstoppable when in proper stride. However, Levitan will capitalize on the slightest inconsistency and is also a good selection for the 1935 Southern Conference champion.

In their advance to the finals, some of the finest players fell before their onslaughts. De Gray pulled the curtains first on Al Williams, Virginia's second best bet. He stepped out in the second round and eliminated Maurice Schwartzman, seeded second and rated as the finest player Maryland University has had in recent years.

That same day, De Gray ousted Ricky Willis in straight sets. On Saturday, as a result of his victory over Henderson 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, De Gray may boast the record of not losing a set in the entire tourney to date.

Levitan opened with two victories over South Carolina opponents, Daniel and McCutheon, and then pulled the major upset by trouncing the defending champion, Carl Rohmann, of Virginia.

Levitan went into the final by Shore's default in their dramatic clash. Now it remains to be seen whether or not Captain Levitan or Eddy De Gray will don the crown of the south.

JUNIORS GET CCC JOBS

Three engineering juniors, T. H. Hill, J. G. Jameson, and D. B. Fields have been appointed junior engineers for the local division of the Civilian Conservation Corps during the summer.

They will assist in surveying and mapping out projects for the corps. The three men from this school are among five selected from the southeastern district, Dean Miller said.

TRACK TEAM HAS ANNUAL BANQUET

Rev. Lawrence Host to Track Men Tonight; Pictures to Be Taken Before Banquet.

The entire track squad will be tendered a banquet by Rev. A. S. Lawrence and Coach R. A. Fetzer at 6:30 tonight at the Episcopal parish house.

The banquet is an annual affair dating back many years. Rev. Lawrence stated last night that this will be the fifteenth annual track banquet which he attended.

In addition to the athletes attending, the members of the athletic staff will be present, and will probably be called on to say a few words.

At tonight's banquet the team will elect the man who will captain next year's team.

Before going to the annual banquet, the varsity squad will take a group picture at Emerson field. At the same time, the freshman squad will assemble for the same purpose. In addition to a group picture, the outstanding stars will have individual pictures taken.

Athletic Equipment

"Sarge" Kellar requests that all athletic equipment be turned in immediately.

TILDEN'S TROUPE CANCELS MATCHES

Rain Keeps Away Spectators; Big Bill to Appear in Columbia, S. C., Tonight.

The exhibition, scheduled for yesterday afternoon by Bill Tilden and his troupe, was cancelled due to a noticeable scarcity of spectators.

The rain caused a change from the outdoor courts to the Tin Can, bringing a decline in interest. Tilden was to appear with Bruce Barnes, Martin Plaa and Ramillon.

The troupe moved on and will appear tonight in Columbia, S. C. The three players that appeared with Tilden in their recent exhibition are engaged in other activities and have left the tour.

Elly Vines is on the coast playing, George Lott is in Boston, and Hans Nusslein is preparing to leave with the U. S. Davis cup team for Europe, where he will coach the respective players.

Spann Will Introduce German Game Here Resembling Baseball

Dashing, dodging, a runner flies down the field toward the goal. "Man out!" The runner, hit with a ball thrown by a fielder, retires from the field.

It is Schlagball, the German national baseball, which Dr. Meno Spann of the German department is going to introduce on the campus this summer.

Radically Different

More like baseball than any other American sport, Schlagball is still radically different from the American national pastime. Though they resemble in that both have fielders and batters, there all likeness ends.

In the German game, there may be any number of players,

Carolina Ball Players Shine On Major League Diamonds

By LEE TURK

Baseball records of the major leagues reveal the quantity and quality of stars now playing in the major circuits who learned the "ins and outs" of baseball on the diamonds of North Carolina.

Carolina ranks high among the other states in the number of players she sends to the big leagues yearly, and more than half of those sent up have proved themselves invaluable to the teams they signed contracts with.

Perhaps the most prominent duo of the group are the Ferrell brothers, Wes and Rick, now doing more than their share to help the Boston Red Sox in their conquest for the American League pennant.

Wes, the pitching end of the family, and, incidentally a hard hitter in the bargain, has won three games for the Boston club and dropped two. He also fills the role of pinch-hitter capably when called upon for that duty. At present, Wes is batting .471, having hit safely eight times in the 17 trips he has made to the plate.

Rick, who is usually on the receiving end of his brother's slants, has been smacking the pill at a fast clip and is now well up among the leaders with a .303 average. The experts and fans all agree that a great majority of the Boston hurlers would not be enjoying their present success if it were not for Rick's rare ability to steady them in the pinches.

A Southern Yankee is the position in which Carolina's contribution to New York, Johnny Allen, finds himself. But the fact that Johnny is perfectly at home with the Yankees is proven by the records, which clearly point out that the Carolinian has two victories on the credit side of the ledger and a neat nought on the debit side. Johnny has become quite a strike-out king, having set down 11 Clevelanders via the strike-out route recently. At present, he is leading the American League pitchers and if his manager, Joe MacCarthy, knows what he is talking about, and this scribe believes he does, then Johnny is going to stay right up there on top throughout the season.

Other American League stars who hail from the North State are: "Dusty" Cooke, whose fast outfielding for the Boston Red Sox has converted many a ball ticketed for a double into an out; Luke Appling of the White Sox, who still wields a potent war club and fields with the best of them; Alvin Crowder and Vic Sorrell, old timers, doing some fine hurling for the Tigers, and lastly, a pair of youngsters on their way up, Ray Hayworth, pitching for Detroit, and Monte Weaver, doing the same for Washington.

A glance at the National League batting averages reveals the name of Burgess Whitehead well up near the head of the list. This stellar Cardinal player used to cavort around second base for the University of North Carolina not so many years back, and now is going "great guns" with the team favored to cop the National League bunting this year.

Bill Delancy and Lew Riggs are team-mates of Burgess and the three of them have done more than their share to increase Carolina's prestige on the ball field. The Dean boys have nothing on this trio when it comes to winning ball games. Whitehead is leading the Cards at the plate with a .350 average, while Riggs makes up for his lack of hitting with some classy fielding. Delancy increases his catching reputation with every St. Louis victory.

Last, but not least of the Tar Heels in the senior circuit, is the Boston Braves first sacker, Baxter Jordon. Jordon swings a long bat and aims for the far reaches of the outer pastures. "Beantown" likes Baxter's hard slugging and snappy fielding, and consequently Manager McKechnie gives the North State youngster steady duty.

Carolina Nine Meets Four Foes On Forthcoming Northern Trip

Good Luck!

Above is Bunn Hearn, baseball coach, who will leave with his squad today on a northern tour.

Team Leaves Today; Richmond First Foe

Large Squad Leaves from Emerson Stadium; Crouch Will Likely Pitch Opener.

LAST GAME ON SATURDAY

The Tar Heel nine will make its last attempt to get back in the win column this week when it meets the University of Richmond, Randolph-Macon College, the University of Maryland, and the United States Naval Academy teams on successive days.

These games will all be played in the order mentioned, with the opening contest scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The team will leave this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from Emerson stadium.

Crouch to Hurl

On Wednesday, the Carolina team meets the strong Richmond nine. The Virginians are undefeated and should offer the Tar Heels a stiff battle. Fred Crouch will more than likely toe the mound in this game.

Thursday the team will journey to Ashland, Va., where they will take on Randolph-Macon.

The Tar Heels' next foe will be the University of Maryland team. The Old Liners have been going at top speed the whole season, and will be favored.

Navy Saturday

The Naval Academy will be met on Saturday to complete the team's schedule. The Middies can always be counted upon to offer plenty of competition in any sport and should prove a formidable foe.

The men leaving from Emerson stadium today are: Tatum, Strayhorn, Daniels, Crouch, Wright, Manley, Webster, Jeanes, Jenrette, McCarn, Rand, Voliva, Irwin, Montgomery, Bullard, McIver, Groome, and Shapiro.

Federal State Agents

The state heads of the various federal agencies also will be brought in to explain the purpose, policies, and work of their divisions, and to outline the procedure for local units and groups to follow under the new set-up in Washington for administering the four-billion-dollar program.

Arrangements are being made to provide accommodations in University dormitories and to extend a number of other courtesies to the officials. The meeting will open Monday night, June 10, and conclude Tuesday afternoon, permitting those who wish to attend the University's graduation exercises that night.

WHITE TAKES ACTIVE PART IN A. I. Ch. E. CONFERENCES

Dr. A. M. White returned Sunday from the semi-annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in Wilmington, Delaware.

The symposium on chemical engineering education took place May 13-15. Dr. White presented at this meeting a paper on "Pressure Drop and Loading Velocities in Packed Towers."

May 17-18 the Student Program was held at Drexel Institute, Philadelphia. Dr. White was vice-chairman of the program and addressed the group.

Students eligible to be present were members of the 38 chapters of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Those from the University were: J. B. Crutchfield, W. B. Rose, W. R. Bateman, E. A. Gaskill, R. L. Huber, E. L. Laxton, and William Priestley.

Batter Pitches

Each batter throws the ball himself and tries to see how far he can knock it. If the hit is a good one, he speeds toward one of two goal posts about 80 yards from the baseline.

Freezing in his tracks as soon as he catches the ball, the fielder tries to hit the runner. If he is too far away, he throws the ball to a teammate who in turn tries to hit the runner. If the runner is hit, sides change and the fielders bat; otherwise a goal is scored.

The requisites for the game are speed, endurance, and stamina rather than skill. It is an excellent sport and may prove quite popular on the campus next year.

Meyer Speaks

Dr. Harold D. Meyer, University sociology professor, made the commencement address for the high school at Irvine last night. He will speak to the graduates at Gibson Thursday and at Weldon Friday.

Check-Up Indicates Many Graduates Deserve Master-Of-Jazz Degree Here

A Master of Jazz degree is something that no university has granted as yet, but a check-up on the number of former sons of the University now playing in big-time band circles reveals that the addition of an M. J. degree might be in order at this institution.

Including in her alumni such well-known baton-wavers as Hal Kemp, Kay Kyser, and, possibly, Jan Garber, it would seem fitting that the University find some way of giving recognition to these boys who have left the campus as graduates in jazzology.

Never Fear

No fear need be manifested, however, by those who hold a conservative view as to what a university should teach; for it is not likely that the University will ever add jazz-making to its curriculum. It is a fact, though, that the University has achieved quite a reputation as the cradle for the development of Broadway maestros.

A standout among these fellows who, instead of working their way through college, have played their way out is Hal Hemp, a native of Charlotte and brother of Columnist Critic T. D. Kemp, Jr. Before Hal was 21, his orchestra, returning from Europe aboard the S. S. Berengaria, played a concert for the Prince of Wales, and Hal became well acquainted with His Royal Highness.

At 23 the Charlotte boy enjoyed the distinction of being the youngest conductor ever to make Broadway. Photographs were made in 1928 showing Vincet Lopez and B. A. Rolfe, conductors, presenting young Kemp with the baton of welcome as a full-fledged conductor and the youngest Broadway favorite.

Professor Kyser

Another Carolina gentleman who has made good at swinging the baton is Kay Kyser, goggle-eyed, professorish-looking native of Rocky Mount, one of the best cheer leaders the University ever had. During his student days, Kyser was known throughout the south as organizer of the "Cheerios," that never-to-be-forgotten student cheering organization.

Together with Sully Mason of Durham, Kyser had an orchestra on the campus in 1925-26, known as the Tarheelians. When this outfit disbanded later, Kay called together several student musicians and within six month's time had an orchestra popular in three or four states. Sully Mason remained as a vocalist, and most of the other members are Tar Heels who have been with Kyser since he started out.

"Idol" Garber

Popularly known as the "Idol of the Airlanes," Jane Garber has long enjoyed reputation as a Carolina alumnus. However, press agents have unknowingly erred in publicizing Jan as a graduate of the University. "I never went to school in Chapel Hill," the maestro wrote in a recent letter. "I played all over the state and around that part of the country for years; I really consider that (Chapel Hill) my starting point."

Jan has played for many dances in North Carolina in recent years. Before coming to the University to play for the commencement dances last year, he played for thousands of dancers in a warehouse in Farmville. He has played at the Sedgefield resort, and was made an honorary member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity while in Chapel Hill in 1925. Many Chapel Hill folk remember Garber as having been here, and Jan himself likes to boast that he received his fraternity pin and southern accent at the University of North Carolina.

Meyer's Summer Work

ALBEMARLE HIGH WINS MATH PRIZE

Maurice East Gets First Place in Contest Entered by 308 Students from 34 Schools.

Albemarle high school took first place in the state-wide math contest, it was announced yesterday by the University committee on awards.

The committee, composed of Dr. Archibald Henderson, famous expounder of the Einstein theory; Dr. J. W. Lasley, and Dr. E. T. Browne, awarded the first prize to Maurice East. Honorable mention was given to Carroll Haywood of Concord and Bill Pratt of Durham, runners-up for the winning paper.

Thirty-four different high schools took part in the contest, which began last April 19. A total of 308 students of the upper three classes represented the schools in the contest. The best paper was sent from each school to the University committee, after tests prepared by University professors had been given.

This year was the first time that Albemarle has won the contest in mathematics, although she has stood well in Spanish in the past. Previous schools winning the contest have been: Ayden, Charlotte, Ahoskie, Rocky Mount, Greensboro, Durham and Broughton.

R. R. Rankin, director of the high school relations of the extension department, had charge of the contest.

SHOOTING THE BULL

"Bull-sessions can be stimulating and educating; they can be disgusting and maturing." So said Dr. Groves in a lecture the other night.

There is no doubt that Dr. Groves is absolutely correct. But to try to "clean up bull-sessions," in order to rid us of the latter type of midnight convention, is about like trying to clean out the Augean stables.

The way to effect stimulating and educating influences in the bull-sessions is, as Dr. Groves intimates, to give the bull-sessioners something worthwhile and interesting to talk about. The idea is not only to give them that something, but to show them, in the process, that it's just as much fun to talk about the more important as the less.

Which also looks rather impossible. Probably the best bull-session attitude is to pray that the bad ones aren't too bad and that the good ones do somebody some good. Most bull-sessions are beneficial to someone.

RADICAL REACTION

The State College Technician, one of the best collegiate newspapers we know of, had a well-taken editorial entitled "So Much Smoke," referring to Mr. David Clark's recent visit to Chapel Hill.

One point in the editorial treatment, however, was slightly in error, although it was an obvious conclusion. It ran:

". . . From the feeling of Mr. Clark's audience, reported as bitter at times, their (the radicals') leadership in activities and meetings in University buildings must have had some effect on a part of the students there. Nevertheless, the attitude of this group should not be taken as representative of the entire student body. It is regrettable that the actions of a few may cause the sincerity of the University to be questioned."

The radical "leadership," we are positive, had no effect on any of the audience. Mr. Clark himself, through his own words and action, created or crystallized more radicalism on this campus than the radicals themselves have been able to stir up in years. The conservative picture was poorly painted.

CASUAL COMMENT

We mentioned last Wednesday that Jack Pool and his helpers were to be congratulated on their efforts on the big senior invitations. We also mentioned that it was none of our business. Both still hold.

There has been considerable agitation among the seniors since about the size of the invitations and the cost. Persons planning to send out several dozen of the booklets have found it tough to gather together 30, 50, or 60 cents for each. Our guess is that the Orange Printshop is going to do a rushing business in making up card invitations at $6.25 per 100. Which goes to show that no matter how hard you try, you can't fit tastes, pocketbooks, and fancies of all.

CO-EDS APPROVED AS PHI-MEN RAGE IN TORRID SESSION

Seawell Claims Women Students "Greatest Assets"; Fairley Demands 60-40 Proportion.

FISTICUFFS CLOSE MEETING

In a rowdy and raucous session that threatened several times to end in fisticuffs and finally did, the Phi Assembly last night laughed itself into defeating by a vote of 19-6 a bill to exclude women students from the University.

Clearly the feature of the meeting was a feud between ex-Speaker Robert Smithwick and Sergeant-at-Arms Harry McMullan. The latter accused Smithwick of spitting on the floor and imposed a five-cent fine upon him for the same. Amid a wild scene of chaos and confusion the burly ex-speaker rose in resentment to appeal the fine.

The assembly, however, refused to believe that Smithwick had not cast spittle to the floor and upheld McMullan's fine almost unanimously. The altercation occurred when, immediately after Speaker Ellis declared the meeting adjourned, Smithwick, together with Watts Ashley, a converted henchman, attacked McMullan.

Retreats

The force of their combined impact forced McMullan to fall back heavily upon a row of seats. As the sergeant-at-arms rose for the assumed purpose of retaliation, the combatants were smothered by a constricting ring of Phi members.

Tom Hines and Frank McGlinn also felt the hand of order when they were fined 10 cents each for offenses ranging from disorderliness to attempting to speak without addressing the chair.

LIFE SAVING CLASS WILL BEGIN TODAY

Red Cross Sponsored Instruction To Last Through Week with Examinations Monday.

Classes in life saving conducted by University students will begin today at Sparrow's Pool and last through Saturday. With Lee Greer as chairman of the local life saving chapter, Vernon Ward, Bob Williams and John Brabson are conducting the classes and the exams.

The examinations for senior life saving will be held next Monday, when about 12 students, who have been in the class previously, will take their tests. All interested students are welcome to take part, however.

Special Rates

Class meetings will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock, and special rates are being offered by the pool management for use in this Red Cross work. Students must be at least 17 to qualify for the course.

The examiner's corps, recently established at Carolina through the efforts of Lee Greer and R. M. Grumman, recently conducted classes in artificial respiration for the local firemen, under the direction of Ellis Fysal. Fysal will also initiate a demonstration in bandaging before the same group.

SENATORS DECIDE NOTHING BUT FINE PAIR OF MEMBERS

Committee Condemns Russell For Strike Activity.

The Di Senate met last night in a stormy session which allowed President Rawls to withdraw the privilege to vote from Ways and Means Committeemen Williams and Weaver for holding a meeting and drawing up a bill condemning Senator Russell for his activity on the Burlington strike case.

The senate upheld the president in his ruling and Senators Williams and Weaver were fined. Acting Critic Eagles ruled that the president had the right to override Roberts' rules of order.

Senator Coefield was reinstated after being presented by Senator Russell. He rallied to the defense of Senator Russell when the latter was placed under fire by the ways and means committee.

Several bills were then taken up during the session and the calendar was cleared for the coming year.

Suggestions for the Di program for next year were discussed and recorded for future reference.

Phoebe Barr Dancers Will Perform During Playmakers' Hamlet

Revellers Will Burst Upon Stage In Wild Dance Immediately Following Ghost Scene.

Denmark's king is scarce dead; but on with the dance, long live the new king.

The mood of this contrast between what should be and what is will be conveyed to the "Hamlet" audiences Friday and Saturday nights by eight of Mrs. Phoebe Barr's dancers, costumed as members of the decadent court of Claudius. Their drunken, confused brawl scene will offer all the more of contrast because it follows the somber opening ghost scene, the sound of their revelry being heard immediately upon the exit of the dead unhappy shade.

Elsinore's Atmosphere

Mrs. Barr has arranged the courtiers' dance, not with the idea of presenting an authentic 11th century Danish folk dance, but rather as a means of setting forth the wanton tone of life in Elsinore.

One of Director Sam Selden's pet ideas is to portray the members of Claudius' court as being just as wicked and just as much to blame for the shameful state of affairs as Claudius and Queen Gertrude themselves.

The "Hamlet" dancers will be: Juanita Greene, Christine Maynard, Mrs. Ora Mae Davis, Catherine Threlkeld, Harry Coble, William W. Miller, Bob Lewis, and Dwight Brown. The music will be played by the University Symphony Orchestra.

New York Library Gives Books to University

The University Library has just received a gift of 750 volumes from the New York Public Library, announced R. B. Downs, librarian, yesterday.

Most of the books are public documents pertaining to the early years of state and federal government, and will be used to fill in gaps in the present collection of similar works.

FRATERNITY MEN GIVEN LOAN FUND BY GREEK COUNCIL

Inter-Fraternity Group to Contribute Yearly Half of Surplus to Special Fund.

WILLIAMS HEADS PROJECT

Filling a long-felt need on the University campus, a loan fund, available to fraternity men is being established by the Inter-fraternity Council. Starting this year the council will take one-half of the money remaining in its treasury at the end of each school year and apply it to this fund.

The first contribution, coming out of the present Inter-fraternity Council's treasury, will amount to approximately $125. The organization hopes to supplement the original contribution with a donation from the surplus of the German Club this year and also by getting the Grail to sponsor a dance for the benefit of the fund next fall. The fund will be administered by J. A. Williams, present head of the University's Student Loan Fund, which is not open to fraternity men.

Investigators

The committee appointed by President L. C. Bruce last night at the weekly Inter-fraternity Council meeting to investigate ways and means of adding to this fraternity loan fund consists of Ike Jeanes, chairman; Charlie Edwards, Ernie Eutsler, Walter Buffy and Ben Willis. Wilbur Davis, treasurer, will serve as an ex-officio member of the committee.

The new council, composed of the various fraternity presidents, held a rather lengthy session for their last meeting of the year but managed to dispose of all the outstanding business.

On his executive committee Bruce appointed Ben Willis, chairman; Bob Page, Jack Clare, Trip Rand, Henry Valk and Charlie Edwards.

FACULTY WILL SEE FILMS AT SMOKER

Snavely to Explain How He Uses Pictures in Coaching.

Moving pictures, taken by Coach Carl G. Snavely, will be the feature event of the general faculty smoker to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Murphey hall.

The pictures, according to W. E. Caldwell of the history department, who has been in charge of the arrangements, will include many football films of games seen by Snavely during the past year. The Rose Bowl game may be among those shown.

Snavely will also give a short talk, explaining how he uses these films in coaching his teams. All faculty members are invited.

Invitations Deadline

Today is absolutely the last day orders may be placed for graduation invitations. Orders may be placed in the "Y" lobby from 1:30 to 5:30 p. m.

KOONTZ ADDRESSES GROUP INTERESTED IN HOPE MILL CASE

Stresses Necessity for Public Attention Towards Strikers.

"It is absolutely necessary to get public attention to this case," said Edward Koontz of the International Labor Defense in Gerrard hall last night as he spoke before a group studying the Burlington strike case.

The trial now before the North Carolina Supreme Court has been successfully postponed until October due to the lack of time the lawyers have had in preparing the case and the desire to arouse more interest.

Walt Pickard, former worker in the Hope Mills where the strike occurred, told the audience of his difficulties in helping his fellow workers alleviate their conditions there.

Paul Green spoke of the financial situation of the Chapel Hill group, asserting that some $900 had been raised for the defense of the workers.

Because Professor Ericson, who has led the group, is leaving for China this summer, J. D. Bailey of the English department has been elected chairman to continue the work.

Appreciation was expressed by the audience for the excellent work and fine spirit shown by Professor Ericson since interest was first aroused in the case.

Musician Allsbrook Plans Own Cabaret At Virginia Resort

Opening his own club, Bill Allsbrook, well-known jazz-making alumnus of the University, will play at Virginia Beach this summer at the Crystal Club.

Located in the old Masonry mansion on Crystal Lake, the orchestra will make its first appearance with a gala premiere on June 7. There will be a complete change of floor show every week throughout the summer.

Larger Band

Allsbrook's orchestra, which has been playing at the O. Henry Hotel in Greensboro this spring, will be enlarged to a total of 15 members and two singers for the season.

Last summer the orchestra played at the Embassy Club at Virginia Beach and in the winter at Tintilla Gardens in Richmond. Recently, however, it has been playing in Greensboro and broadcasting over station WBIG of that city.

Kemp Lewis May Speak At League Tonight

Kemp Lewis, president of Erwin Cotton Mills, one of the largest chains of textile plants in the south, may speak to the American Liberty League at its meeting in Graham Memorial at 8 o'clock tonight, Chapter President Winthrop Durfee announced yesterday.

In a letter received by Durfee yesterday from Lewis' office, it was stated that the local league's invitation would be tendered as soon as the textile manufacturer returned from Washington. It was intimated that an acceptance was likely.

No French This Summer

The proposed plans for the summer school in French have been abandoned for this year, according to R. M. Grumman of the extension division.

TAR HEEL MAY BE WEEKLY FEATURE DURING SUMMER

Administration Must Sanction Proposed Plan Providing for Summer Publication.

PAGE TO ACT AS EDITOR

The DAILY TAR HEEL will be continued as a weekly during the coming two sessions of summer school if present plans receive the approval of the University administration.

After Dr. Edgar W. Knight, director of the 1935 summer school, and several administration heads had expressed views that some sort of summer publication is needed, estimates were compiled as to the costs of publishing six issues of the DAILY TAR HEEL during each summer school session and will be submitted to Dean R. B. House today for approval.

Slight Fee

The publication will be supported by a slight fee to be placed on each student at registration and by advertising, according to the tentative arrangements.

First plans called for Phil Hammer and Bob Page to publish the summer paper but since Hammer will be unable to remain here for the summer sessions, Page will edit the paper, and will be assisted by Don McKee.

Entire Staff

These two men will handle the entire job, including the editorial, technical, and business ends.

The plans call for the issuance of the paper one morning each week, probably Thursday, in its present size. Six issues will be published each session, making 12 in all during the summer.

HOUSE TO APPOINT CLASS EXTENSION COMMITTEE SOON

Hammer Recommends Students For Advisory Board Which Meets This Spring.

FACULTY VOTES IN FALL

Definite steps in the class extension plan are awaiting the action of Dean R. B. Housee, in appointing a faculty and student committee to draw up complete data on the idea.

Recommendations, upon request, have been received by House from Phil Hammer, concerning student members for the committee. Those appointed are expected to develop their plans this spring to be presented at the first faculty meeting called next fall.

Two Weeks Today

This joint committee has awaited appointment for two weeks today, at which time the faculty passed a resolution to appoint a joint student-faculty committee for the purpose of presenting recommendations.

The class extension idea, as put forward by the DAILY TAR HEEL and Professor W. L. Wiley, provided that "every week professors and instructors submit to the department heads a list of lectures which they will give during the week," and "every day a bulletin would be run in the DAILY TAR HEEL announcing the various lectures to be delivered that day.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, JORDAN; NIGHT, GILMORE

WIN OR LOSE

Carolina has just completed one of the most successful years in its sport history.

Nearly every sport enjoyed a successful year. The greatest football team since 1929 was nosed out of a Southern Conference championship by an unfortunate tie with State. The basketball term spreadeagled the Conference, and Carolina produced the most outstanding track team in its history. The tennis team duplicated its record of last year, losing only to Princeton and taking the Southern Conference title.

To those who have participated and won, we offer our congratulations; to those who have tried and lost, we say that Carolina respects effort and true sportsmanship even more than actual victories in the field.

Next year the new track stadium will be dedicated. There are those who denounce the expenditure of this money for this purpose. They fail to realize that stadia such as these, athletic teams that gain nation-wide recognition, are magnets to prospective studentts all over the country. They fail to realize that athletics are an essential part of any college or university curricula, and that without a decent quality of athletics no university is likely to find popular recognition. These are the people who continually hound the university with accusations of subsidization.

Yet in lean years there is an equal, if not greater, cry from alumni for winners, with or without subsidization.

So it looks like the only thing to do is to let matters rock along the best way possible. Prospects for next year look good in nearly every sport, so it will probably be another big year for those who like to yell about subsidization.

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

More than 10% of the students of the classes '29 through '33 are unemployed. This estimate was reached from a survey of the classes, indicative of the condition among the total number.

Much of the fault is laid at the door of the Depression, now so overcrowded with the odds and ends of a deteriorating society. How much is due, in reality, to this bugaboo is hard to say. It is obvious, however, that a portion, at least, of the condition could be relieved by adequate training in college.

The University is not alone in its laggard attitude as regards adequate occupational guidance and training. In the bright days of "Silent Cal" Coolidge, an A. B. degree led directly to the broker's office, $50 a week and commission. Today, the bachelor's degree leads either to a graduate school, if funds are at hand, or to the employment agency.

Few college graduates know what they want to do; and fewer know how to do it. Some well-thought-out plan, to go into effect the first day of Freshman Week and to conclude with Commencement four years later, is necessary.

Psychological tests exist for the determination of a man's occupational tendencies: the University makes no use of them. Information on all the varied vocations is gathering dust in the Dean of Students' office: students make no use of it.

A freshman orientation committee functioned for the first time last year: not one word of vocational comment was evident in their work. There are men on the faculty and upperclassmen who are familiar with all fields of endeavor: they are never consulted.

We ask for an efficient plan to determine the student's capabilities, to make known the opportunities and pit-falls in the various vocational fields, and to give adequate training for those fields during the four "best years."

Now YOU'RE Talking

To the Editor,
The DAILY TAR HEEL:

Yesterday, in your "Campus Keyboard" column, you recommended a vacation in the Marine Corps Training Camp at Quantico as "enlightening, entertaining, and effective." You recommended it, because you thought that training for war needed "more hard-boiling and less coddling." Right?

Now then: I know only too well how hard-boiled we've got to be about war, and—you'll notice I'm putting aside any abstract consideration of war—I'm sure you hit the nail smack on the head when you said there couldn't be any coddling in our training for it. So you see, we agree pretty well thus far; but here's where our agreement stops, and stops with a jolt.

For I maintain that the boys who go to Quantico will be coddled. That sounds surprising and foolish, doesn't it? You know, I suppose, when the boys get up, and how long drills last, and what its nature is, and all that, and you're sure they get pretty toughening treatment. But here's a disheartening truth: whatever drills and other duties are imposed on the boys, they won't get a tenth the preparation they need. There are plenty of proofs of this, too, but I'll have to make two do.

First, then: I'll bet my bottom dollar that the supporters of these camps pacify the pacifists by telling them that no target made to resemble a man is used on the practice drill range. All right, who isn't it? Aren't the boys being trained to shoot other boys? Why shouldn't the targets be in boys' images? Why shouldn't they be accurate representations of the enemy—accurate enough to spurt blood and scream when hit? Isn't that what the boys will have to expect in war? What are they trying to do at Quantico, anyway, coddle the boys?

Now point two: take a look at the Marine Drill Manual and see how much is in it about gas. Then read any military expert's estimate of the role poison gas will play in the next war. The discrepancy, I know, will convince you that the future Marines aren't being prepared for war as they should be—they are being coddled. Find out, too, if the boys spend a day with a gas mask on. Twenty-four or 38 hours will be a short time to wear a mask in the gas attacks of the next war; and did you ever try to eat with a gas mask on? I could go on like this for a long time, asking you for instance whether the officers tell the recruits they haven't got the chance of a snowball in hell against Lewisite, the gas that will go through any mask; or whether they show the boys photographs of dismembered and dis-gutted men after each target practice—a sight we'll have to get used to, if we're to be trained for the next war, you know—but I won't, because I think you get my point already.

I think you see that while a summer at Quantico may be entertaining and enlightening—on the subject of national defense preparations — it certainly would not be called effective. The trouble is that our military men are too much romanticists to come down to earth and give us the sort of training for the next war. Or is that another way of saying they're too humane to?

SPLASHES

By BOB PAGE

The so-called social activities for another spring quarter are all over now. Two more weekends and we'll be starting into that grinding four-day stretch of final exams. It hardly seems possible that this quarter is rapidly nearing its end. Junior-Seniors, two Grail dances, May Frolics, and the Co-ed Ball have all fairly slipped by.

The Co-ed Ball last Friday night came off as scheduled and in our opinion proved to be their best this year. Maybe it was the extra attraction of the figure presented by the old and new councils or perhaps it was that, after beating around the Bushes most of this quarter, we finally succeeded in meeting them. And we learned the secret of telling them apart.

We missed the last Grail but heard that it was also an enjoyable affair.

The only social function we have left to talk about now is the German Club Finals. The organization recently voted to start them on Thursday night, right after the last exam. They haven't picked an orchestra to play for that night as yet but all indications point to Benny Goodman. We were hoping they might get the old maestro, Ted Weems, who we hear is booked to play for the Friday dances at State.

Regardless of whom they get, though, it's bound to be a swell affair with Hal Kemp signed for the Friday dances and Ozzie Nelson for the Saturday dances.

Speaking of orchestras reminds us that we recently received a letter from our prominent alumnus, Kay Kyser, informing us that he and his boys are now recording for Brunswick and that the first records will be on sale within the next two weeks. To start with they have made their theme song, "Thinking of You;" a peach of a novelty, "Take Your Girlie to the Movies," featuring Sully Mason; "Isch Kabibble," their most popular feature with Mervin Bogue doing the vocal; and "If My Love Could Talk." We'll personally vouch for any of those numbers.

Kay and his band have just left the Blackhawk to start on their summer tour. We hope they include the good old southland in their itinerary.

Another of the orchestras which started here at the University is now going places. Bill Allsbrook and his Carolina Club orchestra, now playing and broadcasting from the O. Henry hotel in Greensboro, will open up their own night club at Virginia Beach and will entertain there during the summer.

Nelson Lansdale, editor of the revived Buccaneer, just wandered in looking for that mythical instrument of the journalistic world, the type-squeezer. He became a little too ambitious with his first issue and tried to publish more than the magazine would hold. Consequently, the printers in trying to solve the problem chopped up several of his columns and scattered them throughout the publication. We know of several readers of this column who heartily wish that the DAILY TAR HEEL would adopt a permanent policy like that.

One of the University's immortal politicians dropped in yesterday morning for a brief "Hello." 'Twas none other than Bill Eddleman, who is now working in Washington. We tried to make him stay awhile but couldn't pry him away from Sarah Seawell before he had to return last night.

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

August 20, 1931: "The North Carolina Educational Association has appointed a committee on public relations, or, in other words, a lobby committee.

"There is no other way of interpreting this move than as an organization for the purpose of seeking to force the taxpayers of North Carolina to continue to bear the burden of extravagance in education which has been placed on their shoulders.

"The professors have organized and Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, is a member of their campaign committee.

"It is time for the taxpayers to organize for the purpose of shaking off unnecessary burdens.

"Let their motto be: 'Millions for legitimate education, but not one cent for frills and extravagance.'"

Levitan Wins Conference Crown By Taking De Gray Into Camp

Captain Ends Career In Blaze of Glory

Eddy De Gray Goes Down in Defeat as Victor Gives Flawless Tennis Exhibition.

WEATHER CONDITIONS BAD

Captain Walter Levitan achieved his greatest triumph yesterday afternoon by trouncing Eddy De Gray in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1, to capture the Southern Conference singles championship.

With a drab background of threatening clouds, and bleachers only dotted with spectators, the final of the 1935 championship seemed to lack the color and fire that was dominant in the early rounds.

Levitan played errorless tennis, whereas De Gray was completely off form. The fire of the youthful De Gray was gone, and his shots lacked the briskness and accuracy of his play on Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Levitan Shines

On the other hand, Levitan played heady ball and was the master throughout the match. Only taking 40 minutes to brush aside his sophomore rival, Levitan closed his varsity career in a brilliant fashion. He volleyed splendidly and outwitted De Gray on almost every play.

For the first few games of the opening set De Gray looked formidable. He snapped Levitan's service to open the contest and then ran into a 40-0 lead on his own. He held on until three all and then went to pieces as Levitan smashed through the following games.

The second set was knotted at 2-all, but again Levitan ran out the remaining games. In the final setto Levitan scored almost at will. A disappointed but smiling De Gray ran over to shake hands as Levitan slapped the final point into the corner.

DRAKE AND EVINS ELECTED TO HEAD 1936 TRACK TEAM

Choice Is Made at Annual Banquet Held in Episcopal Parish House Last Night.

At the annual banquet tendered the varsity track team by Rev. A. S. Lawrence and Coach R. A. Fetzer, held in the Episcopal parish house last night, J. O. Drake of Oxford and Thomas Evins of Warrenton were elected to co-captain the track team next year.

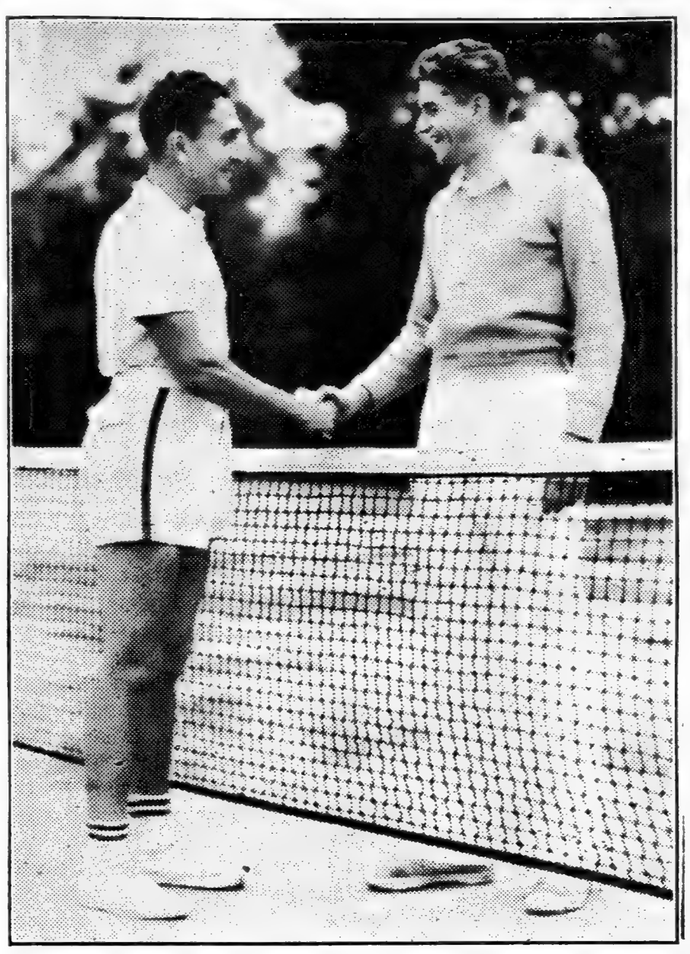
"Red" Drake is remembered as the unknown Carolina man who finished first last year in the Southern Conference meet. Tom Evins was recently tapped by the Golden Fleece, and took first place in the shot put event in the recent Southern Conference meet.

Members of the faculty who gave talks at the banquet last night were Drs. Lawson, Harland, and Caldwell. In addition to the members of the faculty who addressed the boys almost all of the men connected with the track team were called on for a few words.

The banquet is an annual affair dating back many years. It is sponsored by Rev. A. S. Lawrence of the Episcopal church and Coach R. A. Fetzer.

Before attending the banquet, a group picture was taken of the entire squad in the afternoon. All the outstanding stars of the year took individual pictures at the same time.

State Champ



Wilson Coffin, recently crowned state intercollegiate golf champion by virtue of his beating Perry, Duke ace, in a nine-hole play-off in the state meet.

A half-million dollars is the estimated cost to all parties concerned of the latest session of North Carolina's general assembly, according to Carl Goerch, editor of the State. Including a grand total of $31,000 for liquid refreshments, his calculations run thus: $170,000 for salaries, printing and other incidental costs to the state; $100,000 for food and lodging; $5,000 for entertaining, and 75c for letters to wives back home. These costs total $306,000.75, something like $193,999.25 less than Mr. Goerch's estimate. But even without padding the estimate, was it worth it?

Both Men Selected as Co-Captains for Next Year's Team Are Sophomores.

At a meeting of the varsity tennis team yesterday afternoon, Eddy De Gray and Frank Shore were elected co-captains of next year's net team.

It was a popular vote, and the two sophomores were elected almost unanimously. There was no senior eligible for the post as all the upperclassmen on the squad are graduating this year.

Hails from Brooklyn

De Gray comes from Brooklyn, N. Y., and made a name in the tennis world with his splendid play with the New Utrecht high school tennis team. He is in his first quarter of his sophomore year.

Shore is a resident of Washington, D. C., and is also a second-year student. He won the freshman championship in the fall of 1933.

These two players will form the nucleus for next year's varsity team. The loss of Walter Levitan, this year's captain, Harvey Harris, and Ricky Willis will be felt keenly.

Postponed

The last varsity game with Duke, scheduled for last Monday but postponed on account of rain, will probably remain unplayed this season as Duke will be in the midst of examinations before the Tar Heel nine returns from its present trip.

Athletic Equipment

"Sarge" Kellar requests that anyone possessing athletic equipment from any sport turn it in immediately to the office at Emerson stadium.

Ted Lewis, the father of modern jazz, commenting upon the great number of popular songs about "Carolina," said recently, "Give your song writer a piece of paper and a pencil; whisper the words 'Carolina' and 'moonlight' into his ear—and you'll find him all set to go places and do things."

Coach and Players Depart Confidently

Game Today with Strong Richmond Nine Is Looked Upon As Hardest of Trip.

CROUCH TO HURL OPENER

Coach Bunn Hearn and a squad of 18 players left for Richmond yesterday where they will engage the University of Richmond nine today in their opening game of their trip.

The squad is in tip-top shape and still smarting from the 14-1 trouncing they received at the hands of the Duke Blue Devils. Therefore, Richmond may well count on a stiff battle.

Today's game will conclude a most successful season for Richmond. To date they have won 16, lost two, and tied one. This past Saturday, the Spiders made it two state championships in a row when they swamped Virginia Military Academy 24-5.

Crouch to Twirl

Freddie Crouch, ace hurler of the Tar Heel staff, will probably oppose Tom Morris. Morris will undoubtedly experience more difficulty with Irwin, McCarn, Tatum, and Voliva, than he did with the Cadet battsmen.

Crouch, on the other hand, will have to face such sluggers as Lacy, the Spiders' backstop, Hash, who patrols right field, and Umansky, the flashy second-sacker. All have turned in fair batting performances this season, but with a five days rest Crouch should find no trouble in setting back the Virginians.

Carolina's defense has been showing up better as the season progresses, and if they reach their best batting form they should be well-nigh unbeatable.

The Tar Heels' tentative lineup is as follows: Rand, 2b; Montgomery, 3b; Irwin, ss; Tatum, rf; Strayhorn, c; McCarn, 1b; Voliva, lf; Groome, cf; Crouch, p.

NEW BOTANY BOOK

Drs. W. C. Coker and H. R. Totten are writing a new book, "Shrubs of the Southeastern States," for which Mrs. W. L. Wilson, Mrs. Cecil Johnson, and Mrs. H. M. Burlage have completed over 200 drawings and paintings.

The first edition of "Trees of the Southeastern States" is nearly sold out and Drs. Coker and Totten are preparing a second which will include Tennessee as well as Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, and northern Florida.

Before this state had a fixed capital, the Legislature met by invitation in the homes of the various planters. The governor lived where he pleased and was allowed the sole trade in furs as his compensation.

Yackety Yacks

Continued trouble at the Queen City Printing Company has definitely delayed the Yackety Yack in coming out until some time this summer. All persons desiring that their copy be mailed to them are asked to mail their summer address on a postcard to the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial immediately.

A fee of $1.35 for each quarter's absence will be charged those wishing a book but out of school part of the year.

MEDICAL SOCIETY WILL SHOW MOVIE

Public Invited Free to Showing of "Malaria," May 30.

The motion picture, "Malaria," is to be sponsored here free of charge May 30 at 8 o'clock in Venable hall by the Whitehead Medical Society of the University medical school.

The picture will be secured through the courtesy of the motion picture division of the Winthrop Chemical Co., Inc. by the efforts of Dr. D. A. MacPherson, professor of bacteriology. The public is invited to attend the showing.

"Malaria" should be of unusual interest to students and teachers in this part of the country because of the prevalence of malaria in this territory.

"Valuable Contribution"

This picture has been styled a "valuable contribution to the study of cause and treatment of malaria, and methods for its control."

The opening scene depicts the geographic distribution of malaria in the United States. Subsequent scenes show the life cycle of the mosquito, the life cycle of the malarial parasite, the transmission of disease, clinical signs, individual treatment, public health measures, mass drug control, and geologic characteristics of highly malarious areas.

Tar Heel Issues Cease For Year on June 2

The DAILY TAR HEEL will cease publication for this quarter with the issue of Sunday, June 2.

The last issue will consist of eight pages and will contain a review of the current school year. Activities of the various campus organizations, records of various athletic teams, administration and faculty activities, events such as the Human Relations Institute and Student-Faculty Day, and anything else that has happened during the year will be reviewed.

The DAILY TAR HEEL will probably be continued during the summer by Bob Page and Don McKee but will appear only once a week.

The next regular issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL, edited by Phil Hammer, will appear on the first day of school next fall, which will probably be about September 21.

CATALOGUE RELEASED

The latest issue of the University catalogue, containing announcements for the school session of 1935-36, has just come off the press, it was announced yesterday.

They may be obtained at the offices of the various deans of the University schools.

Business Good

If the condition of North Carolina's banking institutions is any criterion, business in this state has been mighty good during the past year. Commissioner of Banks Gurney Hood recently asserted that the resources of state banks and trust companies had increased over $61,000,000 in the period from March 4, 1934 to the same date this year.

Trees

When the Federal government shall have completed its program for reforestation, at least one-fifth of the acreage of North Carolina will be in the form of Federal forest preserves.

Since 1921, when this state began its highway program, $196,639,915 has been spent on roads and bridges—$62 per capita.

Inter-fraternity Council

University trustees will be composed of Bob Page, chairman; Henry Valk, Lewis Peeler, Roger Holman, and Buddy Upchurch. The first meeting of this committee to meet with Bruce and the old officers of the council has been called for 5:30 this afternoon at the Phi Gamma Delta house.

A. E. Pleads Case

Phil Gordon and Sidney Weinstein, members of Alpha Epsilon, new local fraternity, appeared before the council and asked that the new council recommend that they become a chapter of the national fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi, before rushing season next fall.

After discussing the case at length, the new council decided that, in view of the fact that there were now three Jewish fraternities rushing a relatively small number of men each year, it would uphold the decision of the old council to let the group compete as a local in rushing with the three national fraternities. Their case will be reconsidered again next fall immediately after rushing season.

The matter of keys for council members was discussed and the group decided to wait until next fall and perhaps buy the uniform key adopted by the National Inter-fraternity Council.

Rushing rules were discussed and overhauled for next fall. The season will last 12 days next year by vote of the council. The executive committee, headed by Willis, will draw up the rules and make the changes suggested by the council.

The council voted to bear the expense of publishing a list of the new men coming to the University in the winter and spring quarters for the benefit of the fraternities in rushing.

The Inter-fraternity Council Scholarship, awarded each year to the most deserving non-fraternity rising sophomore, will be awarded sometime during the last few days of school. The scholarship, amounting to $90, will be awarded by the Faculty Committee on Fraternities.

quarter final game today as a result of their brilliant 10-0 victory over the Alpha Epsilon team.

Holman in limiting the losers to four hits, earned a shut-out over them. Levine starred for the losers when he garnered two of his team's four hits. Feldman and Katz were the only other Alpha Epsilons who earned safe hits.

Foreman and Hagey shined on the winning nine by virtue of their heavy hitting. Pitcher Holman also helped in sending some of his team's 10 runs across the plate by gaining two safe bingles in four trips to the plate.

Aycock and Lewis were the other pair to play to a tie. Kasen sent the latter into a lead with a 5-2, 5-2 win over Fiore, but Smith dropped a three-set encounter to Onasch to even matters.

SENIOR VIOLIN RECITAL

Miss Isabelle Buckles will play her graduating recital this evening in Hill Music hall.

The program is as follows: Sonata, in F Major, No. seven, Beethoven, first movement. Rondino, Beethoven-Kreisler. Chant Negre, Kramer. Frasquita, Friml-Kreisler. Prize Song, from the mastersingers, Wagner. Concerto in A Minor, deBeriot, first movement.

The public is invited to attend.

Down But Not Out

Those confined in the infirmary yesterday were: J. W. Humphries, Henry Lee, W. T. Davis, M. T. Winslow, L. C. Watts, W. A. Cowper, F. R. Van Sant, W. B. Carter, Margaret Siceloff.

CO-EDS WILL HOLD NET TOURNAMENT

Margaret Jordan, Ruth Covington Head Seeded Positions.

Twenty contestants will vie for the campus championship this week when the women's ladder tennis tournament gets under way.

The co-eds have been practicing for the past two weeks under the guidance of Coach Kenfield.

The ladder has been posted in Spencer hall and all players are advised to run off their matches as soon as possible. At least two matches per week should be played.

Any player may challenge the one either one or two steps above her position on the ladder.

The best two out of three sets will decide the winner of every match.

The players in order of their seeding are as follows: Margaret Jordan, Ruth Covington, Margaret McCauley, Elsie Lawrence, Evelyn Barker, Mildred Moore, Kay Quigley, Nancy Lawlor, Martha L. Croom, Jo Oettinger, Frances Caffey, Mary P. Cruikshank, Erika Zimmermann, Elizabeth Ayscue, Ann Baker, Jane Ross, Nancy Gordon, K. Way, Margaret Wallace.

Anyone desiring to be added to the list should get in touch with Kay Quigley in 201 Spencer.

Co-ed Open Forum

All co-eds are asked to come to an open forum meeting of the Woman's Association at Spencer hall Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The purpose of this meeting is to promote interest in campus activities.

The council will outline a general program for next year and is anxious for suggestions concerning matters of interest. President Ross says to "come and speak your mind."

Fraternity Pledges

New fraternity pledges, announced yesterday from the office of the dean of students, are: Edward Voliva of Chi Phi, and W. H. Mills of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

CAROLINA CINEMA

They tell us that it's pretty definitely assured that the movie men out in California are going to move a few studios into North Carolina. Here's what Variety has to say about it, in "Lay It On The Line":

"That state (North Carolina) has been pretty thoroughly scoured by the picture bunch which has learned that the average temperature there is around 55, tobacco and leather are reasonably content, exterior locations are attractive, and it's only a few hours by air and over night by train from New York. In other words, close but not too close to the financial end."

There was considerable agitation last spring about Hollywood-in-the-Old-North-State. The state folks think it might be a good idea, with all the publicity and pulchritude and pennies which the silver screen business would bring in. The Chamber of Commerce secretaries from all over the state talked it over last fall and with characteristic vigor started dickering.

We expect some Tar Heel diehards to condemn local cinema-production soon on moral grounds. This should be as much fun as the cinema itself.

ACTIVE STUDENT

We've been working in preparation of a review issue for June 2 and have been thoroughly impressed with the extreme activity that seems to have marked the year's progress.

New organizations for student participation, new features emphasizing an increased student interest, new ideas in curriculum and extra-curricular work—all have popped into a busy schedule which was 1934-35.

It reminds us of a point which was made obvious recently in nation-wide studies of the present-day collegian, which said that the student body of today is more alert, more vigorous, and more serious than the student in the 'twenties. The record of our past year bears out that at least our collegian has made what is generally conceded to be better use of his four-years in school.

COMFORT BELOW

With the production of "Hamlet" coming up, we begin to wonder what happened to the Chapel Hillians' drive, which started last spring, to bedeck the Forest Theatre with flagstone seats.

Efforts were made at that time to get some of the PWA money and insert stone slabs, as much to keep erosion down as to provide beauty to the theatre and ease to the audience. We know how things like trying to get PWA money are, but hope that any failure in that direction didn't preclude further efforts toward arraying the Forest spot.

Even without flagstone seats Proff Koch's vernal wood is quite a sight and will be even more inspiring when fully decked out for the coming event.

COMMITTEE ASKS RELATIONS MEET BE HELD BY 1937

Comer Tells Group That Fast-Moving World Events Warrant Institute Within Two Years.

1935 INSTITUTE DISSOLVED

Moving to recommend that the next Institute on Human Relations be held two years hence, the outgoing Human Relations committee met last night and concluded the year's work.

Harry Comer, executive secretary of the committee, stated that the group "felt that world events are now moving too fast; that it would be a fatal mistake to wait four years for the next Institute, since too much can happen in that time."

The recommendation will be passed on to the next committee which will be appointed in the spring of 1936. The procedure followed is for the senior "Y" cabinet to appoint the chairman, who then collaborates with the cabinet in choosing the committee.

Institute Gives Books

With Charles Poe presiding, the group also heard a report to the effect that the Institute has contributed 75 volumes to the University library.

It was also voted to bank the entire cash balance of the present budget to be saved for use with the next Institute. With the adjournment of this meeting, the entire group is dissolved.

The senior "Y" cabinet will serve as the sole connection between this and the next Institute.

Those members present were Charles Poe, chairman; Harry Comer, executive secretary; Paul Mickie, Agnew Bahnson, Eben Alexander, Billy Harrison, Jack Pool, and for the faculty, K. C. Frazer, E. J. Woodhouse, Francis Bradshaw, H. D. Myer, and E. L. Mackey.

Hillside Meeting to End Year of "Y" Events

President Graham and Dean Bradshaw Will Give Talks.

The Y. M. C. A. will bring its activities to a close Sunday afternoon with the annual Hillside meeting which is to be held at the Forest theatre.

At this meeting all men who have been members of the three "Y" cabinets during the past year and the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. are expected to attend.

This last official meeting, which has become a tradition in the "Y," will feature a resume of this year's activities by Ex-President J. D. Winslow and an expression of next year's aims by President Billy Yandell. Inspirational talks will be made by President Graham and Dean F. F. Bradshaw.

This custom of holding the last assembly out-of-doors is a traditional one in the "Y," the meeting having been held for many years on the bluff below Cobb Terrace, thus gaining the

ENGINEERS TO BUY SERIES PASSBOOKS

Add $1 to Fee for Student Entertainment Support; Gordon, Atkinson Head Publication.

Alleviating the drabness of mathematics and mechanics, the students of the engineering school yesterday voted to enter the ranks with the commerce and liberal arts students in sponsoring the student entertainment series.

The engineers voted to add the same assessment as that of the other students to their fees. Professor J. P. Harland of the student entertainment committee said last night that the additional amount added to the fund would be too small to change the amount of the fee for the other schools.

Engineer Staff

Elections for the positions on the staff of the Carolina Engineer, the journal of the engineering school, were held at the meeting. Tom Gordy, a rising senior and vice-president of Tau Beta Pi, was selected to fill the shoes of Walter W. King, present editor. Calder Atkinson was elected to replace Monroe E. Evans as business manager.

Originally just a mimeographed pamphlet put out by students in Dr. A. C. Howell's course in engineering English, it has grown to be the professional journal of the school of engineering. It has also achieved a wide reputation, being placed on an equal footing with the journals of universities throughout the country.

MANGUM MAKES MERRY; HAS SMOKER, FREE SHOW

"I hope," said the incoming president of Mangum, Allan Knott, at the dormitory smoker last night, "you boys next year will consider the position I'm in and co-operate with me." The plea followed a short talk by Dean D. D. Carroll, in which the economist stressed the necessity of good neighborliness in dormitory life.

A Negro comedian, ice cream, free use of the game room, and a midnight show as guests of E. Carrington Smith climaxed the evening for the Mangumites.

Mattress Ticking, Kitchenware, Turned Into Hamlet Costumes

In Making Medieval Costumes Playmakers Use Everything from Mattress Ticking to Muffin Pans; Actors to Be Clad in Many And Brilliant Colors for Forest Theatre Production.

Bedspreads, upholstery, burlap, tobacco cloth, mattress ticking, cow chains, bathtub stopper chains, silk remnants, buckram, roofing cleats, muffin pans—all these Mrs. Ora Mae Davis is using this week to make the elaborate and dazzling costumes for the Playmakers' production of "Hamlet" tomorrow and Saturday nights.

"Medieval" was Director Sam Selden's direction for the design of the costumes; but Mrs. Davis and her assistants, Mrs. Phoebe Barr and Mrs. Scott Barr, Sr., roamed the centuries in getting their materials, remodeling into 11th century Danish styles clothing used in productions of "Princess Ida," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Alcestis," and "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The only things they couldn't make themselves were the wigs and the men's tights.

On the king's and queen's crowns of gilded buckram are sewed side by side jewelry from the ten-cent store and old family heirlooms. The "gold" medallions almost everybody will wear are of wood and will hang from the cow chains around the courtiers' necks.

The muffin pans, painted gold and silver, play an important part in the decoration of belts and baldrics; and the soldiers' helmets represent noble sacrifice—of aluminum boilers.

One of the chief diversions of idle Playmakers this week has been to wander into the scene shop and help paint swords and spears and daggers. With deathly serious faces they have stood around, clad in their best clothes, and dabbled with water-color brushes at the hilts of daggers—or just stood around.

House Designates Joint Group To Study Class Extension Plan After Unanimous Faculty Move

The Last Round-up

The American Liberty League, which Arnold Williams calls the "last stronghold of organized conservatism," resembled the last round-up last night when Winthrop Durfee, perpetrator of the league on this campus, was the only member present for its scheduled meeting.

The Old Guard was conspicuous by its absence with only Dean D. D. Carroll, who was scheduled to speak, and Dr. E. E. Ericson on hand for the meeting.

When not a single Liberty Leaguer put in an appearance after half an hour of waiting, President Durfee declared the meeting adjourned.

BAITY TO REMAIN STATE PWA HEAD

Engineering Professor Corrects Report That Offices Will Be Removed; To Stay Here.

Professor H. G. Baity of the engineering department, will continue to head the PWA in North Carolina when the new setup in the administration is effected, it was announced yesterday.

Contrary to the report in the Raleigh News and Observer, the state offices will not be moved from Chapel Hill to the state capital, Professor Baity said yesterday.

New Setup Decentralized

The new setup is one of the moves of the government to decentralize the organization from the Washington headquarters to state offices.

Several additional experts will be sent down from Washington to aid in the legal, natural, and engineering work.

At present it is expected that the legal division, which will be for both North and South Carolina, will be headed by Charles N. Malone of Asheville, assisted by H. Emmett Powell of Sampson county and Fulton Holmes of Pitt county.

FRESHMAN HONOR GROUP TO AID 1936 YEARLINGS FORM SIMILAR COUNCIL

The Freshman Honor Council voted unanimously last night to aid in the formation of a similar body in next year's first year class and appointed a committee to advise with the executive group of the incoming freshmen on this subject.

The committee, to be headed by Clyde Mullis, chairman of this year's council, is composed of Warren Haddaway, first vice-chairman; Joe Patterson, second vice-chairman; Bill Hudson, third vice-chairman; Henry Dillon, and Randall Berg.

Wiley, Plan's Proposer, Will Head Committee

Student Members Are Lansdale, Suss, Poe; Carroll, Taylor Faculty Members.

MAY REPORT BEFORE JUNE

Carrying out the unanimous resolution of the faculty, Dean R. B. House yesterday appointed a joint committee of faculty and students to investigate the proposed class extension plan.

Under the chairmanship of Leon Wiley, originator of the idea, the following students were chosen: Irving Suss, prominent publications man; Charles Poe, of Human Relations Institute fame; and Nelson Lansdale, the saviour of the Buccaneer.

Faculty

Faculty membership on the committee will include Wiley, D. D. Carroll and G. C. Taylor. House collaborated with Bradshaw in choosing these men, and received suggestions from Phil Hammer.

The group has been asked by House to report with recommendations to the faculty at its convenience, preferably at a faculty meeting before the spring quarter closes. This action has been taken precisely two weeks following the faculty decision to investigate the plan.

Lively concern characterized the faculty meeting at which the motion for investigation was passed. It was only after many and diverse motions had been unified and subdued, that the present recommendation finally went through undefeated.

For several weeks preceding the faculty action, comment had appeared in the DAILY TAR HEEL concerning the plan. It is understood that the original suggestion came from Professor Leon Wiley, the desire being to make use of the men of Ruman Relation standing who are on our own campus, and to give students an opportunity to develop interest along broader educational lines.

The Plan

As it has appeared in the columns of the DAILY TAR HEEL, the suggested plan stands as follows: The heads of each department, being informed of the outstanding lectures to take place in their divisions each week, will turn in these facts to the DAILY TAR HEEL. As a result, a program would appear every day in the paper, listing the interesting class lectures of the day.

Students would not be expected to cut classes to attend any announced lectures, and any such practice would be regarded as cutting, pure and simple. However, the plan as now put forth, is open to any change, and according to House, it may be necessary to have it completely revamped, that it may function successfully.

Awards Night

Awards night is scheduled for a week from today, it was announced last night by Agnew Bahnson who has charge of the program this year.

All those who did not participate in the 1933 Awards Night program but wish to give awards this year are asked to communicate with Bahnson immediately.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, KAHN; NIGHT, RABB

INTERFRATERNITY ACTION

The Interfraternity Council, notorious for its inactivity in the past, has gained momentum under new membership.

The first meeting of the new Council, which is composed of the presidents of the various chapters, initiated action on two points which are extremely important at the present.

In the first place, President Bruce appointed a housing committee to present reports on conditions and improvements in fraternity houses and arguments against forcing freshmen to room in dormitories.

This committee must be successful. Whether or not freshmen will be allowed to move into fraternities is of vital importance to many of the Greek societies on this campus. It is time that the fraternities have realized that the only way to combat this plan successfully is to muster convincing arguments with which to oppose the mass of facts assembled by the proponents of the plan.

The second major objective of the new council is the creation of a loan fund available to fraternity men. This fund will consist of one-half of the Council's surplus at the end of each year, and will probably be supplemented by donations from the German Club's surplus and other sources.

The creation of this fund will solve a problem long a source of irritation to fraternities, namely, the ineligibility for fraternity membership of those men receiving financial aid through the University. This fund, applying to fraternity men only, will help solve this difficulty and also enable some men to retain their membership in fraternities when they otherwise might not be able to do so.

If the new Council succeeds in either or both of these projects, it will have accomplished more than has any other Council in many years.

DIRECTED SELF-APPRAISAL

The average college student has passed the stage of worrying about his work after graduation: he is now possessed of a resignation which leads him to attempt to enter some field of endeavor whether or not he is really interested in it. This lack of reflection is the cause of much of the post-collegiate indeterminate activity.

The college is responsible. There must be some system of directed self-appraisal designed to give the student some inkling, at least, of the type of work for which he is suited by temperament and intellect.

There is adequate material on any number of vocations in various types of publications. The student has access to this. But even when he has his hands on it, the modern edition of college man doesn't know what to do with it.

A sensible guiding influence is necessary in directing the use to which the material is to be put, and, more than that, in making the student see what he is interested in and qualified for.

Any move to establish a guidance bureau is faced by one very real barrier: lack of adequate funds. The expediency of having members of the faculty undertake the work would put an additional burden on them to the detriment of their other activities.

It is true, however, that vocational counselling would lessen the strain somewhat on the professors since the student taking a course as a means toward an ultimate goal would be in a more receptive frame of mind than the student who is taking a subject to fill out a schedule.

We must make provision for the student to examine himself as a potential candidate for a place in a productive society.

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

By EARL W. WOLSLAGEL

Mr. Harland of the Greek department, who is chairman of the committee selecting student entertainments, let us in on an item of importance concerning Miss Nini Theilade, the gorgeous young danseuse and ballet mistress who appeared here in March on the S. E. series.

While working on the new Warner Brothers pic "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Miss Theilade had a narrow escape from death. In one scene she is supposed to be shown "flying" over a lake. She is supported on an invisible wire, and the prop man who was holding her up received such a jerk when she left her take-off platform that he let go and the pretty miss was precipitated into the cold water. Miss Theilade's flmlsy fair costume was soaked, and when she finally got back to shore it is reported she looked much more like a mermaid than a fairy . . .

The picture will be released late this month, starring Jimmy Cagney and Joe E. Brown.

In case you have been wondering, we may be able to give you a little news about that parrot who has been heard squawking on the Rudy Vallee hour of late. The Current issue of "Stage" gives the following note on the bird:

"He sounds marvelous in the studio, but terrible on the air. He doesn't like talking to strangers, but he has long conversations with his owner, Francis Abella, an exceedingly polite and smiling Filipino. Thru him, the parrot revealed that his name is John, that he is crazy about New York women, and likes making 'whoopee' . . . "

John is 10 years old . . . he was born in West Africa, but has spent most of his life in the wilds of Brooklyn. He is the winner of the parrot contest at the 1933 World's Fair in Chicago, being the only parrot there who could answer questions. Worse still, he sings "In A Little Spanish Town" in an Irish brogue, and at the lift of a finger will do the native cries of Crosby, Eddie Cantor, or Durante!! They say that John is like an elephant . . . once he learns a word, he never forgets.

We have been told that one George Whyte, program director for the General Motors Concert Hour, has a habit of stop-watching different conductors as they play the great symphonies over the air. So far he has kept records on all the great conductors in many different works, and finds that Stowkowski plays everything a bit faster than Toscanini, and Bruno Walter a trifle slower. Toscanini's tempo on the favorite Ravel "Bolero," however, is usually from 25 to 48 seconds longer than either of the other baton-wavers. Mr. Whyte timed Ossip Gabrilowitsch at 48 minutes, 20 seconds doing the Brahms. First Symphony, while Koussevitsky and his ork do the same composition seven minutes and five seconds faster . . . Everyone Mr. Whyte clocks does Wagnerian music pretty much the same. Bruno Walter plays the Overture to Tannhauser 10 seconds faster than Toscanini, who plays the Liebestod one minute faster than Walter. Walter on the other hand swings through the lilting melodies of the prelude to Tristan and Isolde two minutes and five seconds faster than the Italian maestro . . . Heaven help Mr. Whyte should he come down to Carolina and try to time the eminent Stringfield in "Cripple Creek" or "Legend of John Henry!" As far as we know Stringfield has never played either of them twice in the same tempo . . . Well, it doesn't make much difference, but Mr. Whyte has a grand time . . .

Now YOU'RE Talking

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

"Thou art not so unkind as man's ingratitude," said Shakespeare of some kind of wind which was more than a spring zephyr. Surely one would have to search a long time for a more obvious example of ingratitude than is found on this campus among a certain group of instructors and fellows.

This group has received its four years training at this University—a large proportion of the expense which was borne by the state—and are now on the payroll. Yet they spread their "down with everything" attitude in and out of the classroom and are not reluctant at any time to condemn the political and educational system which has made their education possible.

Nowhere, save in America, would such a situation exist. In the first place, other countries are not so anxious to educate the impecunious proletarian. In the second place, the person would be quickly and forcibly "hushed up" who attempted to condemn the existing institutions.

This is the group—professors are more grateful—which is giving the University a black eye in the light of the taxpayers.

Richmond Twirler Superb As Spiders Score 7-0 Win

Only Thirty Batters Face Ace Slab Artist

Hurler Allows But Two Hits as Mates Garner Six from Veteran Freddy Crouch.

IRWIN PLAYS BRILLIANTLY

Richmond, Va., May 22.—Allowing only two hits and striking out 10 batters, Wash, University of Richmond slab artist, shut out the Tar Heels today by a 7-0 score.

Bunching four of their six hits, the Richmond Spiders pushed across six runs in the fourth inning, the only bad inning of the game for Crouch.

They tallied the seventh and final run of the contest in the eighth, when with a thundershower threatening, Voliva lost Lacy's hit because of the dark clouds and let it go for a double.

The majority of the hits were either Texas leaguers which fell safe, or short infield hits down the base lines.

Irwin Brilliant

It remained for Tommy Irwin to provide the fielding gem of the afternoon. With Morris on first by virtue of his second hit of the day, the flashy Carolina shortstop made a falling stab at Campbell's hot liner, and on a quick throw to McCarn he doubled the Spiders' rightfielder off first.

Only 30 men faced Pitcher Wash in this fast game. The Richmond infield played errorless ball, and only two Carolina batters reached first on passes.

Morris Stars

Morris collected a double and a single in three trips to the plate to annex the batting honors for the afternoon. Groome and Crouch were the only Tar Heels to dent the offerings of Wash, with the latter collecting a double.

Tomorrow the Carolina club journeys to Ashland where they will meet the Randolph-Macon College nine in the second of their four-game tour.

But if the DAILY TAR HEEL hadn't told you all this, you would never have known it by seeing the play this week-end, because wonderfully realistic effects have been secured by these makeshift methods, which, after all, are the methods of theatre people everywhere.

Much Color

The costumes are rich and warm in color, even the gravediggers wearing cloths of bright reds and yellows wound around their legs.

Hamlet will be clad in black velvet with a brilliant scarlet-lined cloak, and the regal robes of Claudius and Gertrude will be elaborate and colorful.

Almost the only somberly-dressed figure will be the ghost, who will wear grey sateen, and the black-cassocked priest.

The Playmakers whose costumes are to be made of upholstery are praying for cool weather for the nights of the performance, while the lightly-clad maidens in Ophelia's funeral train hope for a mid-summer night.

to whom the Monogram Club may send felicitations and greetings to attend the University next year. This is the first time this has been attempted, and from all appearances will be successful.

All Monogram Club members, freshman numeral men, participants in spring sports, managers, and the entire coaching staff are invited. Other guests will include Fletcher Ferguson, 1936 Yackety Yack sports editor, James Morris, ex-sports editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and Ira Sarasohn and Lester Ostrow, new sports co-editors of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Other retiring officers of the club include Don Fletcher Jackson, vice-president; Charles Hubbard, secretary; Ben Blood, treasurer; Frank Abernethy, athletic association councilman, and Charles Shaffer, chairman of the executive committee.

YACKETY YACK PICTURES

Pictures for next year's Yackety Yack will be taken this afternoon for the following teams. All men must be in uniform and on time.

3:45, varsity tennis (individual pictures) at cement courts; 4:15, varsity tennis, freshman baseball, freshman golf, freshman tennis (team pictures) at Emerson field.

Last Notice

The Yackety Yack is announcing for the last time that all students who want their copies of the yearbook mailed to them must mail their summer address on a postcard to the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial immediately.

The continued trouble at the Queen City Printing Company has prevented the annual from coming out until some time during the summer.

A fee of $1.35 for each quarter's absence will be charged all students wanting a book who have been out of school part of the year.

Intramural Leaders Advance in Net Play

Kappa Alpha, Z. B. T. No. 1, and Alpha Epsilon No. 2 teams all advanced in yesterday's intramural tennis competition, each winning by 2-0 scores.

Lewis completed its unfinished match with Old West, adding another win to its undefeated list by a 2-1 count. The Betas forfeited to Sigma Nu, and the Law School eliminated itself from the unbeaten ranks when it failed to show up for its match with Ruffin.

The Zebes experienced plenty of opposition in their two matches, the No. 1 team winning by a 2-0 count over Sigma Chi, and dropping the No. 3's match to Alpha Epsilon No. 2 by a like count.

Kalmanoff's win over Barney, and Stein's drawn out match with Neal resulted in the Z. B. T. triumph, while Sims went down before Mort Singer, and Strauss lost a hard match to Gordon for the A. E. win.

Bluestone and L. Weisbrod of T. E. P. were no match for the strong undefeated pair of Lovell and Everett of Kappa Alpha and were beaten in straight sets.

Since the final examinations get underway at Duke next week the Duke-Carolina baseball game has been definitely cancelled. The game was not played last week due to inclement weather conditions.

Successful Mentor

With the unparalleled record of winning 112 tennis matches while tying one, and losing only four, John F. Kenfield, above, North Carolina tennis coach, finishes his eighth season of work with Tar Heel teams. Coach Kenfield this week will enter his 16th summer as pro at the exclusive Lake Shore Club at Glencoe, Ill.

Over a four-year period ending in 1934, Coach Kenfield's teams won 74 straight matches. For three consecutive years, 1931-1934, they established best claims to the mythical national team tennis championship. This year his team has won both singles and doubles in both state and Southern Conference tournaments.

S. A. E. and Zeta Psi Also Score Wins in Mural Baseball to Remain Undefeated.

After the Delta Tau Delta's had held a lead for the first four innings, the Zeta Psi's put on a four-run rally in the fifth inning to win the first contest yesterday, 4-1.

With the bases loaded Satterfield knocked a home run for the winners in the fifth inning to score the four winning runs. He also collected a single to lead his team at the bat. Currie led the losers with his excellent pitching by striking out four men and allowing but three hits.

The Phi Delta Theta's bunched their hits and put on rallies in the first, third, and fourth innings to defeat the Chi Phi's, 12-2.

Wolslagel collected a triple and two singles to gain batting honors for the winners. Miller also stood out at the bat for the winners with a double and a single. Mosier held the losers to three hits and struck out four men.

The S. A. E.'s heavy artillery bunched their hits and put on rallies in the initial, third, and fourth innings to defeat the T. E. P.'s, 13-3.

Cope and Freeman led the winners at the bat with two hits

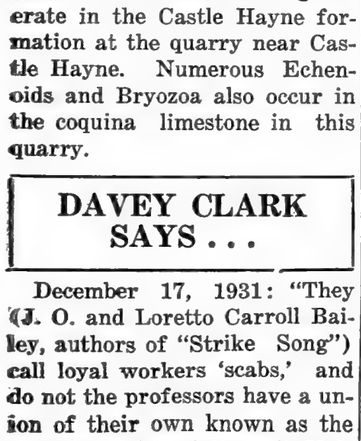
GEOLOGISTS FIND DEPTH OF "BOTTOMLESS WELLS"

The "Bottomless" Natural Wells of Magnolia have a depth of about 30 feet, reports a party of geologists recently returned from a trip to the North Carolina Coastal Plain.

The depth of these natural wells, which were previously considered bottomless, was determined by letting down a geological hammer on a cord in a number of the deeper parts of the well.



Extensive fossil collections were made from the Miocene at Magnolia, from the Eocene at Castle Hayne, and from the Upper Cretacecus along the Cape Fear river.

Shark's teeth were found in great abundance in a conglomerate in the Castle Hayne formation at the quarry near Castle Hayne. Numerous Echenoids and Bryozoa also occur in the coquina limestone in this quarry.

Student Accounts

The administration of the University wishes to remind all seniors and other candidates for degrees that before they can receive their diplomas it is necessary that they settle all amounts owed to the University, including accounts with the business office, Swain hall, the library, the laundry, the Book Exchange, Spencer hall, the student loan fund, and all laboratory fees.

In addition each candidate for a degree is reminded that he must pay $5 diploma fee and must make arrangements with the Book Exchange for the rental of a cap and gown.

Winston-Salem is North Carolina's youngest city. It is just 22 years old, but it was formed by a combination of two of the earliest settlements in the state.

CO-ED MEETING

Jane Ross, president of the Woman's Association, requests all girls to come to an open forum meeting of the Woman's Association at Spencer hall this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The purpose of the meeting is to promote interest in campus activities and co-operation with the women students. The council will outline a general program for next year, and is anxious for suggestions about matters of interest to all women students.

Insurance Men to Visit University Campus

Jefferson Standard Group Will Lunch Here Tomorrow.

A party of 150 agents and officials of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company will visit Chapel Hill for a luncheon and a sight-seeing tour about the campus tomorrow.

This group will be part of the annual agency convention of the insurance company being held today, tomorrow and Saturday in Greensboro, bringing together some 600 agents, managers and cashiers from 25 states and Porto Rico.

The sight-seeing party that will visit Chapel Hill will be guests of Duke University on a sight-seeing trip there in the morning and will come to Chapel Hill for luncheon at the Carolina Inn at 1:30. Following the luncheon the group will be shown about the campus.

Toastmaster at the luncheon in Chapel Hill will be C. E. Leak of Greensboro, vice-president of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company.

Luther T. Bass of Greensboro, is chairman of the sight-seeing committee for the home office of Jefferson Standard, and made the arrangements for the visit to Chapel Hill.

Summer French Courses

Contrary to the impression created in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL there will be French courses offered in the summer session of the University. The course not being offered is a correspondence course.

The French courses to be offered are as follows: in the first session, French 1, 3, and 21; in the second session, 2, 4 and possibly 22 if there is enough demand for it.

Besides these courses will be those announced for graduates and undergraduates. Spanish as previously announced, will also be offered.

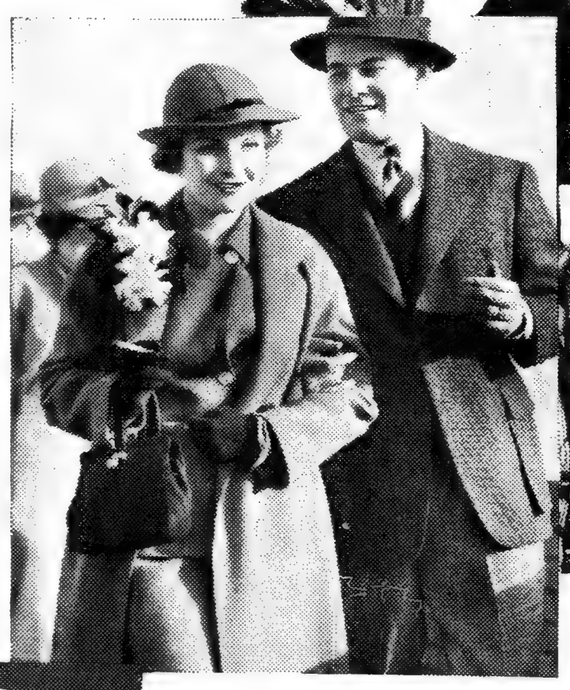
"THEY DON'T GET YOUR WIND" ATHLETES SAY

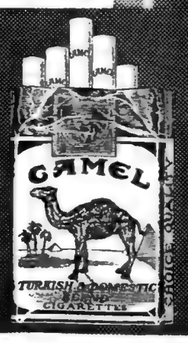
LOU GEHRIG has played in more than 1500 consecutive big league games. Such an athletic achievement takes "wind"—healthy nerves—"condition." Lou says: "For steady smoking I pick Camels. They're so mild they never get my 'wind' or my nerves."



So mild, athletes smoke as many as they please—and that's real mildness!

Of course you want mildness in a cigarette. And the athletes—to whom "wind," healthy nerves, "condition" are vitally important—insist on mildness.

Lou Gehrig, baseball's "Iron Man," says: "Camels are so mild they never get my 'wind.'" George Barker, intercollegiate cross-country champion, says: "Camels are so mild, they don't cut my 'wind' in any way." Bobby Walthour, Jr., star of the six-day bike grinds, says: "I've got to have 'wind' in bike racing. For my cigarette I long ago chose Camels."



Tommy Armour, speaking for the golf stars, Bruce Barnes for tennis, and Betty Bailey for the aquatic sports—all agree: "Camels don't get your 'wind.'"

What this mildness means to you! . . . It means you can smoke as many Camels as you please. Athletes say Camel's costlier tobaccos never disturb your nerves—never tire your taste—never get your "wind."

GOOD NEWS! It's good news to hear that Camel's costlier tobaccos are so mild you can smoke all you please. Athletes say Camels never get your "wind."

by the Editor

MAKING EVENTS Dorothy Dunbar Bromley of the New York World-Telegram says that, in her mind, the college boys and girls "aren't getting a fair break".

"For years," she writes, "we've been accusing them of wasting their time and their parents' money, rah-rahing and petting. Now that large groups of them are beginning to think and talk seriously about such momentous subjects as war and peace, they are either slapped on the wrist by some college administrations or accused by some publicists of indulging in "emotional sprees".

We agree with Miss Bromley. But she doesn't go far enough. It has not only been our elders who have tried to hush us up when we try sincerely to express ourselves, but also many among us, who hold that every thing a collegian says is shrouded with juvenilism and immaturity.

This newspaper, for instance, has been severely criticized for taking issue in any form. "It should be just a news sheet," say the hard-rocks. Our answer, and that of an awakening American youth, is that every time we take issue we ARE making news. Put that in your antiquated boiler and smoke it while you rest.

SHOULDER ARMS Another instance where collegians are bearing the brunt of administrative negativeness is in the business of anti-war strikes.

The United States Supreme Court, in ruling adversely to the two California students who objected to R. O. T. C. training, conceded that the Constitution gives individuals "the right to entertain beliefs, to teach doctrines and to adhere to principles opposed to the theory of military training."

And college authorities are "cracking down" on the anti-war strikers, calling them sentimental and ignorant and putting it on the basis that such sentimentality and ignorance are "poor weapons" with which to fight Mars.

ESTHETIC CAROLINA The current issue of the Literary Digest, giving us "Varied Glimpses of the Collegiate Mind," mentions how the "social trend of student thought" has crashed through at "esthetic Carolina." Conservative Harvard, pessimistic Columbia, and quiet Stanford are also featured.

R. W. Madry, University News Bureaucrat, sent in much of the information upon which the view of Carolina was based. He showed the trend in bull-sessions.

"Bull sessions," wrote Mr. Madry, "used to go in this order —1, sports; 2, sex; 3, religion; now they go—1, politics; 2, sports; 3, sex.

We hesitantly disagree with the latter. Sex still beats sports, for all our intellectual gains, and politics should be "social organization." Sports will be among the first three forever.

Playmakers, Faculty, Symphony Orchestra Co-Operate; Produce Hamlet, Forest Theatre Tonight

Glee Clubs, Dancers Among Performers

Realistic Background Planned; Admission: Students, 50 Cents, Others, $1.

PLAY WILL START AT 8:30

The Playmakers will stage the first of two elaborate productions of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy "Hamlet" tonight at 8:30 in the Forest theatre.

The performance will be the most finished and detailed ever to be given by the Playmakers in Chapel Hill, with scenery, lighting, costuming, music, and dancing all being put to the utmost theatrical exploitation to provide realism and a perfect background for the actors.

Professor Koch will play Hamlet, and his supporting cast include almost all of this year's star performers, as well as three other faculty members, Professors Harry Davis, William Olsen, and George McKie.

Other Features

Sir George Henschel's music for "Hamlet" will be played by the University Symphony Orchestra, and the boys' and girls' glee clubs will sing Allegri's "Misere" and the "Agnus Dei" respectively.

The stage setting has been designed by Professor Sam Selden, who is directing the play. Mrs. Phoebe Barr has arranged a dance for eight courtiers, to come in the second scene. The richly colored costumes have been designed by Mrs. Ora Mae

"Hamlet"

Although he has directed hundreds of plays at the University, Frederick H. Koch will appear in a part himself for the fourth time in 17 years when he plays the title role in "Hamlet" tonight and tomorrow night in the Forest theatre at 8:30 o'clock, barring rain.

UNIVERSITY CLUB FRESHMAN WEEK SMOKER PLANNED

Co-eds Will Help Julien Warren Outfit Sponsor Annual Affair for Men of '39.

WILL PROBABLY COST $175

Climaxing the University Club's program next fall to aid in the orientation of green freshmen into the true Carolina spirit will be a prodigious smoker for the first-year class tentatively scheduled for the last day of Freshman Week.

Extensive plans for the affair were made by the University Club at its regular session last night.

A report by Secretary George MacFarland setting forth the part the club will take in the orientation activities next September prompted President of the Woman's Association Jane Ross to declare, "The Woman's Council is planning to come down early and will be glad to co-operate with orientation."

Annual Affair

With the backing of the co-eds assured, the club considered the proposal of President Julien Warren that "it's an annual affair for the University Club to put on a smoker for the freshmen."

The detailed program for the freshman smoker staged by the University Club this fall was presented and comments were made on financing the affair.

President Warren's statement that "the financial part is pretty hard to arrange," caused an outburst from Treasurer of

Professor Ericson Will Instruct At Chinese University Next Year

Subject of Lectures Will Be American Life

Ericson Will Teach at Summer School Session of the University of Texas.

DR. CHANG TO TEACH HERE

Dr. Eston Everett Ericson, associate professor of English at the University, has accepted an appointment as exchange professor in the National Central University of Nanking, China, for the next scholastic year, according to an announcement yesterday.

In China Dr. Ericson will teach courses in English composition and literature and deliver a series of lectures on American education, social life, art and literature.

Yuan Zang Chang

Dr. Yuan Zang Chang, assistant professor of English in the Chinese university, will fill Dr. Ericson's place here at the University, teaching regular classes in English and giving lectures on Chinese-American relations and other topics similar to those Dr. Ericson will discuss in China. Both appointments are subject to ratification by the Board of Trustees of the University.

Liberty League Head Belays Daily Tar Heel

Durfee Accuses Paper of Undermining Influence of League.

In a tempestous interview yesterday, President Winthrop Durfee of the American Liberty League, accused the DAILY TAR HEEL of misrepresenting facts and being a "Collegiate tabloid."

Speaking of the story in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL on the attendance of the League's meeting, he stated that it was a "coup d'etat by radicals to undermine the influence of the Liberty League."

Liberty Leaguer Durfee explained away Wednesday night's fiasco by saying that Kemp Lewis, president of the Erwin Cotton Mills, and well known alumnus, had decided to accept the invitation to speak here next fall instead of Wednesday night.

To explain the fact that Dean D. D. Carroll and Socialist Professor E. E. Ericson composed the entire audience, Durfee said, "It was a faculty meeting."

Three Sick

Those confined in the infirmary yesterday were: Simmons Patterson, Mrs. Loveline McCain, W. B. Carter.

Iowa Professor to Teach In Ericson's Place

Professor Henning Larsen Comes Here for Summer Session.

Professor Henning Larsen of the University of Iowa, one of the leading men in the knowledge of old English in the United States, according to Dr. G. R. Coffman, head of the English department, will teach this summer the courses which Dr. E. E. Ericson had been scheduled to give. Dr. Ericson goes to the University of Texas for the summer.

Dr. Larsen has taught at the University of Chicago and at Stanford University. He received his A. B. degree from Luther College, Iowa, his M. A. degree from the University of Iowa, and his Ph.D from Princeton University. He was a fellow of the American Scandinavian Foundation and has studied a year in Norway. He has also traveled and studied in Germany and England.

Professor Larsen has served several times as president for the Society of the Advancement of Scandinavian Studies. He has published articles in the field of old Norse, old English and folklore.

P. U. BOARD SAYS IT CAN'T FINANCE NEW PUBLICATION

Freshmen Win Fight Not to Pay Penalty for Late Payment of Yackety Yack Fee.

PRINTSHOP BOYS GET KEYS

Last hopes that the P. U. Board would take over the financial management of the proposed Foreign Policy League publication without a student vote fitfully glimmered and died when the board yesterday opined that it was not empowered to take such action.

The freshman class also won its fight for the ten per cent reduction in its Yackety Yack payment because the star witness for the board in its contention that the class was adequately apprised of the reduction deadline, was discovered to have been in error.

Invulnerable Case

As a result of the disintegration of its previously invulnerable case, the Publications Union boys decided that they would accept 90 per cent of the original figure, $135, plus 6 per cent interest from the date of the last deadline to the time of final payment.

Auditor Sherrill appeared and explained that his bonding and the monthly statements which the board had requested would both become realities next year.

Evans and Moore

Bill Evans and Bob Moore of the Orange Printshop were both voted a publications key for their excellent work on the DAILY TAR HEEL in excess of the labor which they are required to perform.

The proposed publication of the Policy League is being pushed by John Shultz and Joe Barnett, new president of the group.

Petition

If as many as 25 students desire, they may petition the president of the P. U. Board to call a meeting of the Publications Union (all students who receive the four campus publications) for the purpose of considering the establishment of the new magazine.

If two-thirds of those present agree, the question of the new publication will be put to a student vote. If passed there, the publication will be taken over entirely by the P. U. Board.

EHRINGHAUS WILL DELIVER DIPLOMAS

Josephus Daniels, University Alumnus and Ambassador to Mexico, Also to Be Here.

SENIORS TO HEAR GRAHAM

Chapel Hill, seat of liberalism in the South, will welcome one of the nation's foremost liberals when Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, first lady of the land, arrives to speak at commencement exercises this June.

Mrs. Roosevelt expects to arrive on Tuesday, June 11, and will deliver the commencement address that night in Kenan stadium. It is hoped that she will visit a session of the Institute of Government, which will be held here at that time.

Trio

Strong friendships will be renewed when Mrs. Roosevelt, President Graham and Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, meet during commencement week. Mrs. Roosevelt's acceptance was largely secured through the efforts of Graham and Daniels, both of whom have worked often with her in national affairs.

Another relationship may be found in the fact that President Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson's administration, while Josephus Daniels was his chief. This is the first time in the history of the University that a woman has been asked to make the commencement address.

Daniels, an alumnus of Carolina and a member of the board of trustees, will also be visiting the campus during commencement week, after making the commencement speech at Wake Forest College.

The program of commencement day, Tuesday, will begin at 6:30 p. m. in the stadium with a concert by the University band. This will be followed by the

HUBBARD TO HEAD LETTER MEN CLUB

Dr. Henderson Speaks Before Monogram Club at Final Meeting for Year.

At its final meeting for the year, the Monogram Club heard an address by Dr. Archibald Henderson, noted faculty member, and elected Charlie Hubbard president of the club for the coming year.

The club had as its guests all freshman numeral men, spring sports participants, and the various members of the athletic coaching staff.

Elected to hold office next year were: Hubbard, president; James McCachren, vice-president; Ernest Eutsler, secretary; Thomas Evins, treasurer, and Harry Montgomery, councilman.

Dr. Henderson, in opening his talk, stated that University athletics had entered a new era and marked the beginning as the fall of 1934. He said that the ideals of the Monogram Club had done much to further this era of winning teams.

INTELLECTUAL OPPORTUNITY

"A great university in the South is the insistent need in American scholarship today."

So speaks Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, who has just made an appraisal of American colleges and universities which will appear soon in the Atlantic Monthly.

"The South is still producing about as many of the nation's leaders as any other region. But the lack of business opportunity has driven most of the industrially ambitious to careers in the North, and the lack of intellectual opportunity has driven the best brains to universities in the East and West for their advanced careers. Even one university of first rank would rally the intellectual forces of the region, would provide a center at which Southern scholars could make their careers and to which a fair share of the best minds of other sections could be drawn. And it might be expected to have immediate influence on neighboring institutions, just as Chicago has raised the scholarly tone of the whole group of Midwestern universities."

However jolting these reflections are, however deeply they cut us, we must admit them as being all-too-true. And the truth rests in the need for funds. For it is obvious that if any great Southern intellectual center is to make its appearance—granting that Chapel Hill is not that center on the same basis as Chicago and Harvard—money from outside the South will be required.

To Duke University may fall the burden of maintaining and developing the South's intellect, because of its location, its finances, its outlay and facilities. The University of North Carolina is laboring under tremendous financial difficulties. Its brilliant faculty has been partly dismembered, its leadership jeopardized, because the state cannot afford its superiority.

The most logical and the most probable development of scholarly advancement in the South, we believe, will not rest with Duke or any one university alone, but with a co-operative development, a cumulative advance. And in this must result a Duke-Carolina enterprise, growing out of the basic steps which have been already set in the newly-formed co-operative graduate project between these two institutions.

The University of North Carolina cannot be overlooked. For years it has been the center of Southern intellectual endeavor. Of 206 university departments throughout the country rated as distinguished, only one is in a southern institution. That one is our own brilliant Institute for Research in Social Science.

So it must be a joint affair. We are poor and Duke is rich. In the common end of Southern advancement, in the common belief in Southern intellect, Duke and Carolina must join hands and fill this "insistent need for American scholarship."

Perhaps there is a definite correlation between our educational backwardness and the economic and social ills of the South. Nowhere in the nation is so much light needed as in the South, nowhere in the nation must intellectual research and guidance come to the rescue of the community as in our region. And nowhere in the nation is education, higher learning, so neglected by the people. For a region representing nearly a third of the area and more than a quarter of the population of the entire nation, there is only ONE eminent department out of 206 in the country! And our hands seem to be tied. We need money.

We believe the University of North Carolina to be the most inspired institution in this country, but its under-nourishment is choking it, curbing its inspiration. "Lux Libertas" means nothing to us if we have no freedom to do the great task which the South is begging us to do. We must take Duke's hand and put our collective shoulder to the wheel that is Southern need.

From a COLLEGE WINDOW
By WILLIS S. HARRISON

Not meaning to go off the deep end we nevertheless call attention to an editorial appearing in the Daily Illinois complimenting Senator Bailey of this state for his denunciation of Father Coughlin's political activities. The editorial goes on to say that "Father Coughlin should confine his labors to spiritual matters. There is nothing spiritual about American politics."

Just another echo of an age-old controversy concerning the status of the church. He would point out that even if there is nothing spiritual about American politics—and that is not hard to believe—the functions of the church as a social institution include ethical and social as well as spiritual matters.

The question is one which concerns us. The church is an organization with great potentialities for either progress or reaction. Sooner or later we will have to form an opinion as to whether the church shall content itself with teaching Jewish history or shall act as the safety valve on our social engine.

Senator Bailey, if we remember correctly, also led the opposition to the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill — southern honor must be upheld.

And amid all the struggles of this day most of us travel unconcerned along a collegiate road which we hope leads to culture and pay. If we have any doubts —well, we have have had our years of ignorance and bliss anyhow.

The Collegian classifies 'em in a squib, "College Life Is All Pie":

A freshman is like a pie before baking.
A sophomore is like a pie that is half baked.
A junior is like a pie that has too much crust.
A senior is like a pie that has soaked too long.

We don't know whether the pie is stale or not but we pass it along.

Voltaire once made a statement something like this: "I claim the right to disagree and defend until the death your right to do the same." We agree and, while we don't know yet whether we're conservative, liberal, or mugwump, we take pleasure in passing on another collegiate clarion call for liberalism:

"To hound and crush radicalism into the earth does not kill or even cure the disease. Such practices are conducive to revolution . . . If we know the ills of our system, we can better learn to cure it. If we know the different methods of cure, we have taken still another step. Therefore, in this college and in every college let us have liberalism in teaching. It is the intelligent way we have of solving our problems."

So says the Colgate Maroon and we utter a fervent "Selah."

Froth: Penn students use peachstone rings and special pencils for good luck tokens on exams . . . University of California co-eds don't object to girls swearing on occasion but they put words like "lousy" and "guts" on the genteel female's blacklist . . . Evidence of the masticatory tendencies of University of Florida students was obtained when 2,000 wads of chewing gum were removed from under library tables there . . . A course in cinematology, including costuming and make-up, is being offered by the University of California. Two embalmers are taking the course . . . And is it true that state is offering a correspondence course in plumbing? Horsey sounding: Only 29 girls attending Butler University have perfect sets of teeth.

"UP WITH EVERYTHING"

To the Editor,
The Daily Tar Heel:

Someone who calls himself "A Student" wrote yesterday complaining about the "down with everything" attitude that some of the University's teaching staff seem to have. When "A Student" assumes a position so stupid as the one he displays here, it is doubtful if his intelligence is of a calibre that can make the distinction between a "down with everything" attitude and constructive criticism.

The basis of his argument, very cozily re-enforced by a quotation from Shakespeare, is that these teachers are very ungrateful to the system which has given them an education. This ingratitude, he says, takes the form of condemning the political and educational system which made their education possible. Some of us, on the other hand, are rather inclined to think that, if gratitude is due a system, that gratitude can be in no way more lacking than is an attitude of complete acceptance of that system. Wouldn't it be a little more grateful to criticize that system in an effort to improve it? A system hardly educates that does not educate toward a criticism of that system. A modern gangster, "A Student" probably holds, is showing the basest form of ingratitude, if he criticises crime or says that it is anything but the most lovely of the lovely. Doesn't he owe to it, crime, his education and livelihood? It is a most ungrateful rogue that proceeds to clean up a tenement district that has suckled him and brought him to manhood.

COLLEGE PRESS

Hearst vs. The Colleges

Eastern college papers have again set about to make things as uncomfortable as possible for poor Uncle Willie.

The latest movement going the rounds is one to marshal public sentiment against the showing of Hearst Movietone News in the theatres near the campuses.

The Williams Record started things off by campaigning on the Williams campus to persuade a local theatre to break its contract with the Hearst newsreel on the grounds that the pictures were "crammed full of Hearst propaganda" and that they contained "scenes tending to uphold Hearst's subversive and destructive arguments (in favor of militarism)."

One night when the crusade was in full swing, the twenty people who attended the theater in spite of the boycott were informed that in spite of the contract the theater had with the Metrotone News the reel would no longer be shown.

The editor of the Record, in asking other colleges to join the movement, issued the following objections to the Hearst newsreel:

"1. It reports as the truth, incidents and scenes which are twisted into half-truths of skillful propaganda.

"2. It is one of the most powerful methods of controlling public opinion by misrepresentation of facts.

"3. Commentators in the Hearst Metrotone News interpret all scenes in a manner to support the policies of the Hearst Press.

"We prefer a news-reel which presents facts on both sides of a question and allows the audi-

"One of the close friends of President Graham of the University of North Carolina says that he allowed his name to be used (on the advisory board of the Moscow summer school) because he was interested in promoting fellowship and understanding with other nations.

"It is significant, to us, that no summer schools for the promotion of friendship are being established in England, France, Germany, or any other country except Russia. We are not on the best of terms with England, France, and some other countries, but it is not on record that President Graham or any of his friends are particularly interested in sending students to such countries."

Varsity Game Rained Out; Play Maryland Nine Today

Old Liners Have Edge In Tilt With Carolina

Heavy Downpour Forces Cancellation of Game Scheduled With Randolph-Macon.

CROUCH MAY PITCH AGAIN

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

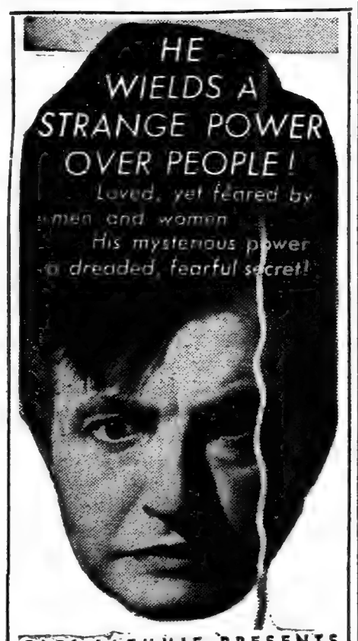
Ashland, Va., May 23.—Due to a heavy downpour of rain, the Carolina-Randolph-Macon contest was called off this afternoon. The game today was to be the second on the four-game road trip.

Coach Bunn Hearn and the squad left immediately for College Park, Maryland, where they meet the strong University of Maryland nine tomorrow.

Old Liners Strong

The Old Liners will present one of the strongest teams which the Tar Heels have had to face this season. Numbered among their victims are the powerful Duke Blue Devils, who have taken the measure of the Hearn-coached nine three times this season.



The Carolina nine is still smarting from the crushing 7-0 defeat which they suffered at the hands of the Richmond Spiders yesterday, and will be expected to give the Marylanders a stiff battle.

It is probable that with this extra day of rest Freddie Crouch will hurl for Carolina when they face Maryland tomorrow. However, Webster and Wright who have both seen considerable action this season may also be called upon to turn back the Old Liners.

It could hardly be supposed that "A Student," in assuming the attitude of the disgruntled aristocrat, is hurling a taunt at American democracy, the system to which he owes so much, that he is condemning or being ungrateful. Derby At Baltimore Won By British Entry

New Record Is Established by Foreign Entry in Fifth Annual Running of Derby.

During this week, believe it or not, a Derby which drew entrants from far off England was held in not so far away Baltimore. 'Alf and 'Alf, an entry from London, established a new record when it crossed the finish line in 37 4-5 seconds as compared to the old record of 38 seconds.

This was the fifth annual running of one of the most picturesque racing events staged in this country. Pomp and ceremony is predominant in the running of this race. All starting officials, judges, and others connected with the affair are dressed in brilliantly colored riding habits or official dress.

Sponsor

The derby is sponsored by the Johns Hopkins Hospital and is run off on one of the tennis courts. There are no restrictions as to age such as required in the Kentucky Derby. An entrant must be a thoroughbred turtle of the snapper variety and must be entered by somebody connected with the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Three heats are run on the course, which is a circle with a radius of 35 feet. A small circular wire screen is placed in the center of the circle with 16-odd turtles ready to dash to the outside edge. The final race for the grand prize is contested by all the entrants who take a first or second place in the heats.

Stakes

The grand prize so eagerly contested for is a large loving cup which is filled with fifty dollars worth of nickles. Each of the 50 or so entrants pay $5 entrance fee. Besides the grand prize, the winner of each heat gets $10 while the one who comes in second collects $5.

The internes bet heavily on their respective entrants, and at the time of the final event excitement runs high. And if you have any ideas that the race is slow, you are thoroughly mistaken. When a turtle travels almost a foot a second you can be assured that even the proverbial race between the hare and the tortoise would be a thriller.

This year's winner was brought over by Dr. A. S. Lawrence, formerly connected with the hospital, but now practicing in London. When questioned as to what he attributed the success of his entrant, Dr. Lawrence's two-word answer was, "Clean Living."

called for more training in the scientific method of play, citing Coach Snavely's motion picture method of coaching as an example.

The eminent mathematician pointed out the record of the athletic teams this year stating that the University had won more titles than all the other conference teams put together.

Expressing the hope and belief that intersectional games will be played in the future, Dr. Henderson explained that the teams of Coach Snavely would warrant the best opponents in the country.

the club, Joe Grier, who sang out in his customary manner, "I'd like to ask all members to pay they dues—they are the only sure finances we have."

Cost $175

Considering that the smoker would cost approximately $175, the presiding official seconded Grier's plea with, "The big job we have to do next year is to get some steady income."

Louis Shaffner, appointed last week to look into the possibilities of arranging a University Club radio program, reported that due to conflicts the broadcast could not be presented this spring.

The club also heard suggestions from the members on organizing the freshmen into a cheering squad next fall.

LIBRARY GETS 3,000 BOOKS FROM LAST LEGISLATURE

The past legislature enacted a bill turning over to the University library 3,000 volumes containing reports of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

These books are to be used in exchange transactions with other states and will consequently bring to the files of the University library reports of all the other states. Particularly important to the University, these books will be used in building up the law school library.

HEAVY RAIN HALTS MURAL NET CARD

Zeta Psi Team Scores 2-0 Win Over Chi Phi in Only Match.

Yesterday's intramural tennis program was progressing nicely until its traditional foe—old Jupiter Pluvius—arrived upon the scene and forced a prompt stop.

However, one match did finish before the downpour. The Zeta Psi's had an early combat with Chi Phi, winning 2-0 and keeping its slate inviolate.

Billy Harrison took the first singles match over Davis by 5-1, 5-0 scores, and Stokes assured the Zetas of victory when he beat Sink by a like count.

The intramural department wishes all unfinished matches of yesterday to be played early this afternoon, especially those in which undefeated teams are competing.

The intramural department will send those teams that remain undefeated after today's matches into an elimination tournament next week.

Sports Scribe Relates Chatter Heard Around Tennis Courts

By LEN RUBIN

Here are some bits of roving tennis jottings, which when unscrambled provide some interesting gossip . . . or let us hope so . . .

Hats off to Kenfield and the boys . . . again the varsity nods in recognition of a wonderful season, winning 18 and losing only a solitary clash to Princeton, 7-2 . . . if the Tigers had but lost their bite and not only two teeth . . .

"Bitsy, 'Our Bitsy' Grant will not cross the sea with the Davis squad" . . . we refuse to debate the issue but refer you to one Bill Tilden, who is responsible for the above statement . . .

In town the other day, Bill confided that Grant should have been sent to the French championship, which is already underway, as Bitsy is superb on dirt courts, but that he would not reach first base on grass . . . Davis Cup play is on grass . . . we strenuously hope that Bill does not know his tennis.

Hines

Wilmer Hines, our other net light, was just eliminated in the third round of the French doubles play . . . he bowed with Charles Culley to Boussus and Bernard in four sets . . .

How many of you tennis fanatics are aware that during the spring vacation in March, Walter Levitan and Eddy Fuller captured the Southern Atlantic doubles championship in Augusta, Georgia? . . . by the flip of a coin, mind you . . .

Tied at two sets all with Gilbert Hall and Billy Reese, and with darkness drawing too close in an evident attempt to watch the stirring duel, Levitan called it correctly and has a silver plaque to sustain his tale . . .

Wonder if they, Walter and Eddy, make use of their thumbs in gripping their racquets? . . . they most certainly used them before ever getting to the scene of the battle . . .

Statistics

And now some news more close to home with statistics to boot . . . the varsity won 136 individual matches while losing 20 this season . . . the frosh improved on that with 107 wins and only seven losses in their 15 straight victories . . .

Frank Shore and Ricky Willis both competed in 18 of the 19 varsity encounters . . . Frankie was victorious in 17, meeting defeat at the hands of Tilden's kin in Princeton . . .

When Eddy De Gray loses, he does it in a decidedly original fashion . . . his season team record is 14 wins out of 15 tries, but his tourney record is referred to . . . In the state quarter-final he scored but one game in two sets from Harvey Harris, and then tallied the grand total of six games during the conference final against Levitan . . .

Wild Bill Minor

Bill Minor and Archie Henderson were the only two Tar Heels to finish the year undefeated . . . Wild Bill won 11 straight, and that includes a straight set victory at Princeton . . . he was the solitary player to escape the claw . . . Archie took eight straight, winning more than half on the northern tour . . .

Minor, in his first seven victories, limited his opponents to 17 games . . . just about the loss of a game a set . . . it is certainly more than a minor achievement . . .

The Beta Theta Pi's bunched their hits in the second inning to score seven runs for an early lead and defeat the Sigma Nu's 17-1.

With two men on bases in the seventh inning, Reid knocked a home run and scored the last three runs for the winners. He also collected a single in the second to drive in one run. Garrett, N. Tennille, Blythe, and B. Coan collected two hits each. Graves allowed the losers only two hits.

The Ringers bunched their hits and put on rallies in the first, second, third, and fifth innings to defeat Everett 13-3 in a game that was called in the sixth inning on account of rain.

Jackson, pitching for the Ringers, gave the losers only two hits. Ressler collected one of the hits in the first to drive in two of the runs. Bershak gained batting honors for the winners with two doubles. Joyce and Dillon each collected two singles.

The wife of the President stands in America today as a famous personage on her own reputation. Throughout her career she has been tremendously active in educational, sociological and political affairs.

Married

Born in New York City in 1884, she married Franklin Roosevelt in 1905, and at present is the mother of four well-known children. Her connections with women's movements is well exemplified in her vice-presidency of the New York State League of Women Voters.

In spite of the added duties accumulated with the election of her husband to the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt has consistently held the position of vice-principal of the Todhunter School in New York City.

Fifteenth Poppy Day Drive For Veterans Will Begin Tomorrow

American Legion Will Use Proceeds of Sale for Relief of Disabled Veterans.

Tomorrow is Poppy Day!

All over Chapel Hill tomorrow red poppies will be blooming on coats. The American Legion is putting on its fifteenth Poppy Day drive. The proceeds from the sale in Chapel Hill will be used for the relief of local disabled and needy veterans.

Marking the fifteenth anniversary of the program begun by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, the Poppy Day movement has been steadily gaining momentum.

The poppy was adopted as the official Memorial flower of the Legion in 1920. A remembrance to the men who died on the fields of Flanders, it is also the Memorial flower of the French, British, and Canadian veterans' organizations.

The movement has been gaining in popularity ever since its birth just after the World War. Under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary, a national, veteran-made poppy program was initiated. Disabled veterans in hospitals all over the country made the crepe paper poppies, which were sold throughout the nation. Every penny of the proceeds from these sales went to the relief of veterans and their families.

DORMITORY HEADS INDUCTED MONDAY

House and Bradshaw to Speak; Grail Plaque to Be Given to Most Athletic Dormitory.

Newly elected dormitory officers for next year will be installed next Monday night in Graham Memorial at 8 o'clock. Dean R. B. House and Francis Bradshaw will be the principal speakers.

Bradshaw plans to speak on the general topic of experimentation in dormitory planned supervision. Such experiments are being performed over the entire country in various colleges and universities.

Discussion

Albert Ellis, ex-president of the Inter-Dormitory Council and president-elect for next year, will lead a discussion of the general program to be followed during his new term.

To the dormitory with the highest standing in intra-mural athletics and with the best record in orderliness and co-operation will go the Grail plaque, annually presented. All dormitory officers who have not yet received their keys will be able to obtain them Monday night.

In connection with dormitory orderliness, L. B. Rogerson, assistant comptroller, commended "the excellent co-operation that has been shown by residents of those buildings that are now being painted by the buildings department."

Ericson

Dr. Ericson, who combines interest in linguistics with studies in national life and culture, will teach the history of the English language at the first term of summer school at the University of Texas before departing for China.

Contributor

Dr. Ericson has contributed scholarly articles to a number of publications, including "Studies in Philology," "Review of English Studies," "American Speech," "Journal of English and Germanic Philology," "English Studies," "The Nation," and "The New Republic." He has served as assistant editor of the "Middlewest School Review."

Dr. Ericson's books include "Modern Russia" (with Ervid E. Ericson) and "The Use of 'Swa' in Old English." At present he is engaged on "A Bibliography of Old English Literature," "A History of the English Language," and "Ghandi's India" (with Ervid E. Ericson). In 1934 Dr. Ericson was awarded a fellowship by the General Education Board for his studies in dialects. He is on the southern committee of the linguistic Atlas of America.

Degrees

He was graduated from State Teachers College, Peru, Neb., and received his A. B. degree at the University of Montana; M. A. degree at the University of Maryland, and Ph.D. at Johns Hopkins University. He was a member of the faculties at Montana, Maryland, Pittsburgh, and Johns Hopkins, before coming to the University.

Dr. Chang was graduated from Fuh Tan University, Shanghai, and received his M. A. and Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins. His graduate work at Johns Hopkins was under the direction of the late Dr. Edwin Greenlaw, former dean of the graduate school here. Dr. Chang, who is also regarded as an able student in philosophy and sociology, is said to be an excellent public speaker. He is literary editor of the "China Daily News." He will arrive in America about September 1.

Large Power And Cigarette Interests Fail To Surpass Beauty Of U. N. C. Campus

A. C. Howell Proud Possessor of Drawings of Old West and "James Duke's Million Dollar Ticket to Heaven" by Artist Ireland.

It seems that the residents of Chapel Hill are not by themselves in thinking that the campus of the University is more beautiful than that of our nearby sister institution.

Professor A. C. Howell of the math department, has a highly prized drawing in his office. Tacked up to the wall where it can easily be seen is a series of cartoons. Two of them are very carefully surrounded by arrows and lines. They are a picture of what is presumably Old West dormitory, with a drawing of the Duke University chapel beside it.

More Interesting

Above them is the artist's comment: "We made our first contribution to the Duke fortune at the age of nine—'Duke's Cameos' they were called—and we've maintained the Dukes handsomely ever since in everything but snuff—so, in a way, we were prepared for the elegance of Duke University at Durham, North Carolina." And then he goes on to say, "We found the charming old buildings of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, 12 miles away, more interesting."

The cartoon, which appeared in last week's Columbus Dispatch, is all the more interesting because the author of it was a northerner. Artist Ireland, as he calls himself, had evidently made a trip down through the south, and had visited both the campuses of North Carolina and Duke. What greater tribute to the oldest state university in the country than this by a man who sees our campus with the eye of a stranger. Many thanks, Artist Ireland!

Degrees Candidates

Students who are getting degrees June 11 may learn their grades as soon as instructors report them from a list that will be available in Miss Pritchard's office.

Degree candidates may refer to the list in No. 8 South building at any time between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. It is suggested that each degree candidate come to the office at his earliest convenience and see just what courses the office has for him to clear before his degree can be awarded.

Some of the Incompletes, E's, and Absents appearing on the records may have been cleared and reports for them not turned in. The office states that it would like to get all back grades cleared before this quarter's examinations begin.

CLARK INVITES LIBERTY LEAGUE TO HEAR SHOUSE

David Clark, University critic, has issued an invitation to certain selected members of the local unit of the American Liberty League to be his guests at a dinner for Jouett Shouse, president of the national organization, Tuesday night, in Charlotte.

Winthrop Durfee, president of the Chapel Hill organization, stated that he had received a letter from Mr. Clark inviting the members of the league to be his guests Tuesday night at the Charlotte Country Club to hear Mr. Shouse, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. The DAILY TAR HEEL expects that he will speak on "The Futility of Radicalism," or some other closely allied topic.

Art Exhibit

A series of 46 pictures, consisting of etchings and paintings, entitled "Art Commentary on Lynching," are to be exhibited here next week in the Hill Music hall under the auspices of the Southern Art Projects. The exhibit was lent by the College Art Association.

The exhibit will be opened tomorrow and will remain open all next week.

The pictures depict the artists' conception of lynching in the South. They represent the work of well known artists as well as amateurs.

Included in the collection are the following: "Attorney General Thomas E. Knight and Judge E. W. Callahan," by Peggy Bacon; "The Law Is Too Slow," by George Bellows; "Prisoner" and "Lynching," by Julius Bloch; "Maryland, My Maryland," and "California Points With Pride" (Pulitzer prize cartoon of 1933), by Edmund Duffy; "This Is Her First Lynching," Reginald March; "Southern Holiday," by Harry Sternberg; "Giddap," by Hale Woodruff, and others.

Quinine, Atabrine for 'em

"Malaria," a motion picture film, was shown last night in Venable hall before a large audience. The film, which was supplied by the Winthrop Chemical Co., depicted the disastrous effects that the mosquito has on the South.

Atabrine, a new drug, has been introduced in the fight against malaria. This drug is a substitute for quinine and it has done much toward reducing the percentage of those affected.

A large group of medical students attended the picture and a few words of explanation were supplied by one of the medical professors.

BRADSHAW'S VISIT POSSIBLE SUCCESS

Interview with Hopkins, Studebaker Favorable for Youth Educational Plan.

"Very favorable prospects for the Federal Youth Service," was the comment of Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, on returning recently from a committee hearing before Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, and Studebaker, U. S. commissioner of education.

John A. Lang, retiring president of the National Student Federation of America, accompanied Bradshaw along with several other national representatives of youth and education.

Set Aside Funds

The group is requesting the administration to send a part of the recent five-billion-dollar allotment for public works into channels of youth service. Hopkins and Studebaker were interviewed because of the wish to set up the service in the office of the commissioner of education.

The proposed organization, as set forth by the N. S. F. A. under Lang, who has been very prominent in pushing the project, would be "to discover the ramifications of youth's problems and to suggest and carry out solutions in the field of education, vocational guidance, unemployment and leisure time.

"Experimental councils would be set up in key communities to deal with local youth problems." The service would function for the two million young men and women in the United States between the ages of 16 and 25.

At the conclusion of the interview Hopkins stated that the possibilities for establishment of such a project seemed very favorable. Definite decision, he indicated, would be taken on the matter any time between one and six weeks.

Studebaker has already come out as strongly favoring the plan.

Lang, who is a 1930 graduate of Carolina, became president of the N. S. F. A. almost immediately after securing his master's degree at the University. While on the campus, he was prominent in activities, being vice-president of the "Y," an outstanding debater and speaker of the Phi Assembly in its former days.

CONNECTICUT STUDENTS ORGANIZE TAR HEEL CLUB

Last night at a meeting of about 15 Connecticut students in Manly dormitory a University of North Carolina Connecticut Club was formed. This organization was brought about chiefly through the efforts of Thomas O'Flaherty, Fletcher Ferguson, and Herbert Alderman.

Besides laying plans for the organization, it was decided to hold a dance shortly after the close of school at the New Haven night club of Barney Rapp, whose orchestra furnished the music for the recent Junior-Senior dances. It is hoped that from this club a definite alumni and undergraduate association will be formed soon in Connecticut.

Old Co-eds May Return To Be "Orientators"

Woman's Association Considers Several Proposals.

The Woman's Association, for the purpose of promoting interest in campus activities and co-operation with the women students, met yesterday at Spencer hall with approximately 45 members present.

Among the suggestions offered to Jane Ross, president of the association, were the revision of the Handbook and improvement of the association room.

It was proposed that prominent old girls come back in the fall and help orient the co-eds coming to Carolina next year, and also that the Woman's Association have more frequent meetings at which vocational talks be given by prominent leaders.

Working out plans with the Alumni Association for a May Day was considered.

CURRENT ENIGMA The New Deal makes the dumber of us wonder considerably, so that we scratch our head and try to figure out just what these things called "government" and "statesmanship" really are.

Mr. Roosevelt's administration will, in three years, have spent almost as much as the combined presidential administrations from President Washington through President Taft. But that's not the significant point.

Mr. Roosevelt in his campaign speeches emphasized above all economy in governmental administration. Furthermore, he solemnly stated that what men do rather than what men think is the vital criterion of their sincerity.

What we poor blundering youth can't put together is how this dynamic personality let his government get out of hand to such an extent that his own promises are broken. Maybe that's the part of government we won't ever be able to understand.

LIBERAL LEADER As much as we like the idea of exchange professorships which will bring us foreign ideas and thoughts, we regret to note that Dr. E. E. Ericson will not be on the campus next year.

We do not have to agree with Dr. Ericson's views in order to admire him for his consistent work, which we do. Especially in this undergraduate era is student interest aroused in political, social, and economic theory and fact and in presenting his views, however radical, Dr. Ericson has been a powerful element in our educational contact with current affairs and ideas.

Dr. Ericson, of course, has been the cause for much clamor, but his sincerity has won for him the respect of those who get angry at his teachings.

SYSTEM CHANGE In our open forum columns has appeared a mild attack against graduate instructors who have been advocating change in our political and social and economic systems.

An interesting note is struck when some of these very "radicals", as they have been termed, clamor so vociferously against moving out of Smith building next year to accomodate women students, the idea being a better arrangement for the campus as a whole, according to the administration.

Change in systems, of course, would also mean sacrifice for many. We don't doubt that the Smith building left-wingers have a good case against their moving out, but their stubborn stand makes us kind of snicker up our sleeves.

"Down with capitalism," of course, is not analagous to "Out of Smith Building." But we still think it's humorous. "For the good of the masses", folks, looks better in practice than on paper or platform.

STUDENTS TO GET CHANCE TO STUDY NEW DEAL DOINGS

National Institution of Public Affairs Will Furnish Internships for College Men.

TWO MONTHS' TRAINING

College students, both graduates and under-graduates, will have an opportunity to learn the actual problems and operations of government this summer as internes in the National Institution of Public Affairs.

This organization, founded during the past year, held its first session in Washington last February, with 42 students from over the entire nation in attendance. The institute was held in co-operation with 35 units of the federal government.

Purpose

As stated by its organizers, "the institution is a non-partisan, non-profit, and non-political organization, receiving the co-operation of the federal government in its training program, which was established to provide to selected young people a first hand study and practical training in the actual operations of the federal government."

A joint program carried on by the American University and the National Institution will include: (1) studying the functions of a bureau or department from the inside; (2) assisting an administrative official; (3) cross section studying of several government agencies; (4) studying of some aspect of Congress or congressional action, and (5) independent research projects.

The period of training will be from June 10 to September 7, and those students taking part

GREER TO DIRECT CAMP WACCAMAW

Several University Students on Staff; Swimming Instruction Is Camp's Specialty.

Lee Greer, well known third-year law student, will direct his newly organized Camp Waccamaw this summer on the shores of Lack Waccamaw in Columbus county.

His camp was first set up last summer, the site having been taken over from a Boy Scout camp with which he was connected. According to some observers, it has one of the most beautiful natural locations in this section of the United States.

Carolina Men on Staff

The camp staff for this summer contains several Carolina students, all of whom have had experience in camp positions and have obtained the rank of Eagle Scout. Greer himself holds appointments as examiner in Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. swimming and life saving, and has served on four different camp staffs in the capacities of waterfront director, athletic director, assistant director, and camp director.

The following Carolina men plan to serve on the staff: Don Seawell, Paul Dickson, Courtney O'Connell, E. C. Willis, Marvin Allen, and Cranmer Henderson. Joe Fisher, president of the junior class, worked with the group last summer.

Greer's program will include physical development, religious

RANKIN APPOINTS SECTION EDITORS TO ANNUAL STAFF

Henry Lewis Is Managing Editor; Heads Opening Section.

Beginning his Yackety Yack organization for next year, Editor Claude Rankin last night announced his 1936 staff to be headed by Henry Lewis as managing editor.

Lewis will also have charge of the opening section of next year's annual. Rankin chose as editor of the senior class section, Fred Weaver, and then picked Roy Crooks to compile the lower class sections.

Fraternities will be responsible to Drew Martin, who is in charge of that part of the annual. Dave Thorpe was elected to head the activities group, and Ramsay Potts picked for organizations. Claude Brown will be responsible for the professional section.

The athletics for next year will be portrayed in the annual by Fletcher Ferguson, and the dances will be under the editorship of Joe Patterson. Bob Garland will act as staff typist while John Chapman and George Allen will act as photographers.

Achorn Doubts Europe To Have Conflict Soon

Historian Stops in Chapel Hill On Way to Maine.

"I don't think we will have a war in Europe at present because I don't see whom Germany will have on her side," said Dr. Erik Achorn of Brunswick, Maine, author of "European Civilization and Politics Since 1815," a textbook used by the history department of this University. On his way from Florida, Dr. Achorn stopped in Chapel Hill to consult with Dr. L. C. MacKinney as to the workings of the history department.

He is an authority on contemporary affairs, Dr. MacKinney explained. A graduate of Bowdoin College and Harvard University, he has spent two years in France, studying at the University of France and working in the archives. Among his publications are articles in the American Historical Review, the Revolution Francaise and other magazines.

Dr. Achorn has taught at Harvard University, the University of Miami, and the University of South Carolina, and Princeton University.

GROVES TO TEACH GRADUATE NURSES IN SUMMER CLASS

Short Summer Course in Nursing Education to Be Given Here.

A short course in nursing education for graduate nurses will be held in Chapel Hill this summer, beginning on July 29 and running through August 8, according to announcement from the extension division.

The course is being offered by the University extension division in co-operation with the N. C. State Nursing Association, and will be open to any graduate registered nurse. Miss Leila Giben, from the Keller Hospital School of Nursing of Rochester, Minn., will direct the course.

Dr. E. R. Groves is expected to give at least five lectures on "Educational Sociology." A University hour will be held from 12 to 1 p. m., at which time professors will conduct lectures.

Miss Giben will offer courses on teaching and supervision in schools of nursing, and principles and practices of nursing. Miss Bessie Baker, dean of the school of nursing at Duke, will lecture on the "Ethics and History of Nursing."

Smoking Jag Nets $50 To Kappa Sigs

Fraternity Men Win Cigarette Contest; Phi Gams Second.

There's not a cough in the Kappa Sigma house. The reason for their abstinance from whooping cough, croup, or even mild hiccups is owing to their propensity for smoking Old Gold cigarettes. The Kappa Sigs won the prize of $50 offered by Lorillard and Co., to the fraternity in the University smoking the most Old Gold cigarettes.

Ending Thursday, through a period of six weeks, when the points had been added, it was found that the Cameron avenue Greeks were the winners, and their neighbors, the Phi Gamma Deltas, took second place. The Kappa Sigs garnered 1,176 points, and the Phi Gams 761.

The Phi Gam Fijis, securing second place in the contest, win honorable mention but no pecuniary recompense. All of them, however, are happy in the realization that the Fiji domicile is immune to coughs.

Robert Perkins, with 74 points, won in the contest among non-fraternity students. He receives $7.50 from Lorillard and

Publicity Notices Herald Hal Kemp As Mystic Leader Who Entrances

It is the custom of organized entertainers to flood local newspapers with reams and reams of publicity notices before appearing in the town. This operation is known as a "build up" in order to insure large audiences.

When Hal Kemp and his orchestra was signed for the German Club finals, the DAILY TAR HEEL suddenly reached the newspaper stage as the press notices from the Press Relations Department began to pour into the office. Hal Kemp, according to the notices, is a bit of a mystic—a "necromancer," if you please; and, furthermore, he "calls forth sleight-of-music tricks from the mouths of brass and woodwind instruments." Very clever.

Now as the purpose of all these press notices is to be published for the entertainment and enlightenment of the vast newspaper reading audience, we wish to follow suit. However, as the excellence of the press agent's writing ability might make the DAILY TAR HEEL seem crude and amateurish, we hesitated, at first, to do so. But on the other hand, the DAILY TAR HEEL wishes to present to its readers at every possible time any example of classical writing. Therefore, from the Press Relations Department:

"Dancers of the post-jazz era were waltzing in a dream of moon songs while sentimentally muted trumpets almost put the people to sleep right on the dance floor. Sirupy saxaphones poured cloying treacle into dulled ears and . . . dancers thought

EXERCISES TO END NEGRO HOME WORK

Twenty-Six Negroes Will Get Certificates from Orange Night School.

The Orange Night School, directed by Harry E. Riggs, chairman of the Interracial Committee of the Y. M. C. A., will bring its activities to a close Tuesday night when certificates will be presented to 26 adult Negroes.

The night school, founded jointly by the Y. M. C. A. and the University sociology department, has been in progress since October 1, classes having been held four hours a week since that time. There has been a total enrollment of approximately 50 Negroes.

F. E. R. A. Students Teach

The Negroes have been taught by students on the FERA payroll. They have received instruction in such subjects as English, algebra, history, civics, arithmetic, accounting, rural social economics, in addition to occasional practical lectures on topics of immediate concern to the Negroes. The teaching staff of the school has been composed of Harry E. Riggs, E. D. Hancock, E. M. Broadhurst, P. J. Steele, and W. A. Brown.

The plan of the interracial committee, which also sponsored the Negro charity football game and brought to the campus the Hampton Institute Dancers, the Sedalia Singers, and two prominent Negro speakers, is to expand next year and sponsor schools for both white and colored.

POE TO CIRCULATE MAGAZINE JUNE 1

First Issue Under New Regime To Appear with Blue Cover; More Fiction Stories.

Charlie Poe's Carolina Magazine will appear here and on state newsstands June 1 dressed up in a blue cover. Editor Poe's first effort will be marked by several changes over the Sugarman regime, notably the increase in fiction and the addition of sub-titles to stories. The format is substantially the same.

Featuring this issue will be a story of life in a cotton mill town, by Alexander George (pseudonym). Inimitable Pete Ivey bursts forth with a short story of the world's greatest sales register. Of interest to the campus will be an article on the psychology back of magazines such as Sexy Stories. The author, incidentally, is an ex-contributor to them.

Best Seller

Jim Daniels tells about the book, "In His Steps," that is next to the Bible in sales, yet nobody seems to know anything about it. "We Should Burn Our Books," by Milton Kalb, will be a satirical shot at the "right wingers." An article in defense of Hell Week by a freshman exneophyte, will appear. Several other short stories, features, and poems will make up the remainder of the issue.

Wet Weather?

Those in the infirmary yesterday were: R. E. Maynard, T. S. Bennet, Mrs. Lovline McCain, Juanita Greene, W. B. Carter.

'Dress' Rehearsal Done In Slickers, Overshoes

Koch Announces Everything in Fine Shape Except Weather; Performance at 8:30.

RAIN MEANS NO SHOW

The Playmakers, undaunted by the rain which resulted in the postponement of the first performance of "Hamlet" last night and which prevented their making up in Thursday's dress rehearsal, will put on their much-heralded show in the Forest theatre tonight and Monday night, the weather permitting.

Proff Koch and his players profited by yesterday's rain to get in another rehearsal, although Proff, who will play the title role in the production, reported the one Thursday night was very good.

Singing in the Rain

Because of the rain, the actors wore very un-Danish costumes in what was supposed to be the dress rehearsal. The player queen was clad in, among other things, green riding pants, golf socks, and her crown and veil. Hamlet reluctantly had to put aside his scarlet-lined black cape and assume a slicker and a straw hat.

Heroic measures were necessary to save the tapestries upon which Wilbur Dorsett and Alton Williams had lavished so much artistic talent. Twice they were put up and twice, as rain began to fall, hastily taken down.

Rain, Rain; Go Away

As the downpour increased, the University Symphony Orchestra decreased, until only Director Slocum was left.

Proff announced yesterday, however, that everybody and everything are perfect except the weather, and that if it is right this evening the show will go on.

WHITE ADDRESSES SENIOR ENGINEERS IN FINAL MEETING

Says They Know "Dern Sight More" Than They Think.

In a pep talk to parting seniors, Dr. A. M. White, of the chemical engineering department, ended this year's activities for the local chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers at its meeting Thursday night.

Richard Huber, out-going president, conducted elections for next year's officers. Those appointed were: Henry J. Allison, president; Billy Binder, vice-president; Hugh Davis, secretary; H. D. Bear, treasurer.

Dr. White in his talk stressed the value of reading after leaving school. He said, "The engineer of the future will be the man interested in current affairs." Magazines were suggested as an admirable means by which to keep up with them.

Concerning the necessity of self-confidence the engineering professor said, "All this chemistry we have been drilling into you can't have gone in one ear and out the other. You know a dern sight more than you think."

Following Dr. White's speech a delegate to the convention of the Institute of Chemical Engineers at Wilmington, Del., and Philadelphia recounted his experiences there. Henry Allison adjourned the meeting.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, HUDSON; NIGHT, GILMORE

THE NEW EDUCATION

The impractical, purely "cultural" collegiate academic schedule is taking its place in history along with Bryan oratory and miniature golf. Coming to the fore is the dynamic interest in practical social affairs that is more and more coloring the training of the educated man.

The movement is evident in the new University curriculum, the curricula of hundreds of other colleges and universities all over the country, the increased interest in discussion groups, socio-political literature, and newly-organized study groups.

The reaction is a wholesome and necessary one. It follows a stimulus—an economic crisis—the effect of which was so widespread as to touch every mature individual in organized, civilized society.

In this issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL appears an article on the National Institution of Public Affairs. The aims and organization of this group is indicative of the new spirit and trend of educational thought. The Institution will present a comprehensive study of governmental functions, with opportunity to study at first hand the organization, function and personnel of government bureaus.

The exacting demands that after-college life places on the graduate today are the raisôn d'être of the plan. The breakdown of so many of the institutions and principles which heretofore were thought impregnable necessitates a re-building process.

The college student is striding forward to fill in the cracks of the decaying social order. By study, by discussion, and by investigation, the new youth will strengthen the foundations and re-establish the rhythm of the "lost generation."

YOUTH RELIEF

Another plan to cut a swath in the unemployment total in America is the ambitious guidance-work-education-recreation program of the Division of Youth Service advocated by Dr. John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education.

The program proposes to aid at least 2,000,000 unemployed young people. The heart of the community is to be a guidance and adjustment center to which the young people desiring financial help will come. There they will be assigned some work such as assistant to a public official, teaching, or quasi-public work, and will be enrolled for such recreation and education programs as seems most advantageous for each. Each youth will receive only as much as needed up to a maximum of $20 per month while participating in the program.

To finance this plan, Dr. Studebaker is making a strong bid for a large share of the five billion dollar Federal relief appropriation. A committee appointed by NSFA President John Lang, of which Dean Bradshaw is a member, recently appeared before Harry Hopkins to push the plan, and reported a favorable reception.

The fact that a large number of those unemployed in the United States today are between the ages of 18 and 24 makes the program one of prime importance. The indirect effect of the position of the young people in our society is likely to be greater than the actual maladjustment they are in today. To pull out of a major depression requires not only economic rehabilitation but also a condition of optimism as regards the future. The inherent optimism of this group has been destroyed by circumstance.

This program is basically educational and only in part remunerative. Since we have to accept the fact that Congress has delegated to the president the power to spend five billions, then at least it should be spent on something like this plan to revive the youth of America.

EARTH-QUAKES

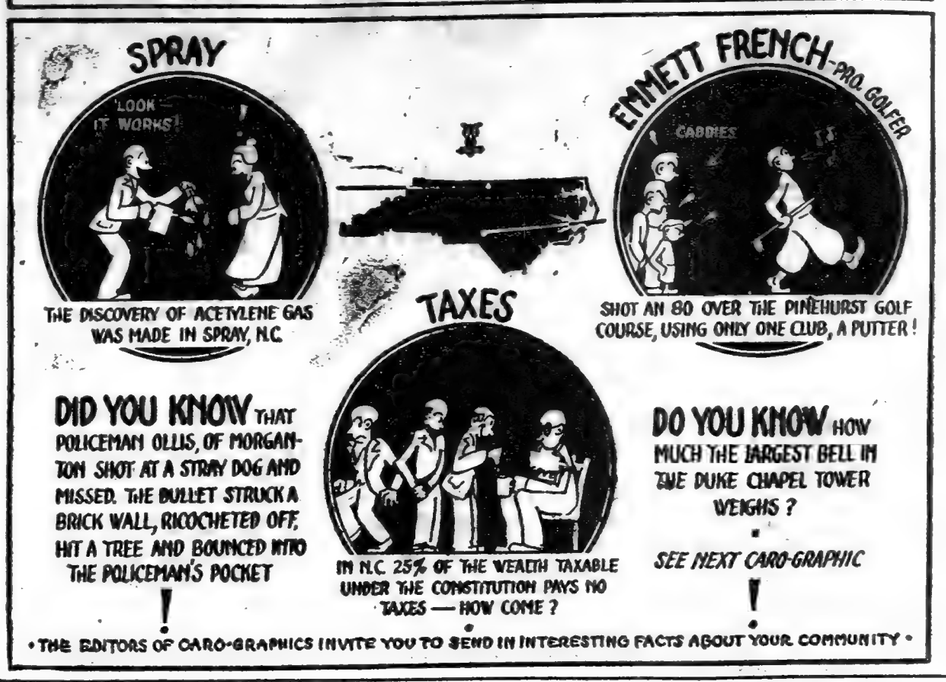
By JOHN SCHULZ

THREE PLANES FOR ONE

Several thousand Moscowvites bent their necks to watch the Maxim Gorky, the world's largest land plane, carry a party of workers on a joy-ride above the Soviet capital. The pilot of a small plane was stunting nearby when a gust of wind blew him toward the Maxim Gorky. The two planes locked together and the joy-ride became a death-ride for 49 men, women and children, among them the cream of Russian aviation experts. The thousands of Moscowvites became stricken with grief, all the more so because the giant craft had been built by public subscription and was considered peculiarly the peoples' own. The disciples of Lenin are not taking their loss sitting down. Already the roubles of another public subscription are pouring in. Three new planes of the Gorky type are to be built, one of them to be called the Maxim Gorky and the other two to be named after Lenin and Stalin.

HE SHOULD BE A GOOD KING

The Infanta Beatrice of Spain and Queen Marie, formerly of Roumania, were chatting about the Spanish revolution which left King Alfonso without a kingdom. "What?" asked 12-year-old King Peter of Yugoslavia, "is a revolution?" Great-aunt Beatrice replied that King Alfonso had been driven out of Spain because a sort of madness had seized the people. Answered the child-king, "I think that if people drive away a king he must have done something he should not have done."



HITLER'S WORD

Handsome Adolf crashed through again, this time before a brown-shirted Reichstag. In a long, carefully-prepared speech he shouted out 13 points which should set somewhat of a standard for Germany's future toward the world. The most important of these was that he is through messing with the Versailles Treaty, pledging his respect for the national borders set up there 16 years ago. He agreed to back collective peace but barred all mutual aid treaties. In an effort to gain British support he claimed his goal to be a navy only 35% that of the mistress of the seas. How seriously the British are taking his declaration is shown by the fact that they are starting a recruiting drive for the Royal Air Force, boasting that they will be second to none in the air.

TREMORS

In a recent high-sounding paper decree, Emperor Haile Selassie of the nation which is thumbing its nose at Mussolini, abolished serfdom and equalized land taxation, "Advancing the nation 1,000 years" . . . In an evident attempt to please Hitler, Lithunia's president has commuted the death sentences of four Nazis who were convicted of plotting Memel's return to the Reich. But the Germans are not satisfied . . . It seems that only death can lift the veil of secrecy which surrounds our naval maneuvers in the Pacific. The loss of life in this toy-war now totals eight due to the loss of a big bomber which plunged into the sea with six persons some 50 miles south of Midway Island . . . Yale's baseball team will soon be off to the Orient as guests of Tokyo's Six-University Baseball League. The Elis are far from the top of the Eastern Intercollegiate League, but we'll bet they can show the Nipponese a thing or two about singing "Boola Boola."

COLLEGE PRESS

A College Education

Each year at this time, thousands of young men and women in colleges all over the country prepare to thrust themselves out into the harsh and, in many cases, disillusioning scramble for worldly success.

In these days of depression the question arises as to what benefits are derived from a college education. Persons are heard to ask, "Does it really pay to spend four years in a University?" There are many who scoff at the values of higher education and claim that it is not a necessary training for success in the after-college world.

However, despite the cries of the cynics and the envious, statistics show that the man or woman with university training is the more apt to succeed, if one chooses to measure success on a dollar and cent basis. According to studies made by leading sociologists, the college man has five times the opportunity of the individual without higher education.

In addition to the purely mercenary benefits of university training, the man with a college education gets more joy out of life and has a fuller understanding of his surroundings than a person without such enlightenment. The real purpose of academic study is not so much to insure the person indulging in it with the capabilities for acquiring untold wealth but to train him in the ability to think and to understand what is constantly taking place about him.

College training enables a person to enjoy the finer and aesthetic elements of life. In most universities a student receives the intellectual foundation on which after graduation he may build a vast cultural structure. A world of beauty and interest, not as readily apparent to the person without the benefits of higher education, is opened to the college graduate.

Although the skeptics would have the world believe that intellectualism is dead and that college students were nothing but light-headed inebriates, there are those whose records would contradict any such charges. If culture is to remain and cast its light into the growing darkness of ignorance it is up to the university student and graduate to bear the torch.—Maryland Diamondback.

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

April 18, 1935: "It is to that Russia where there is no freedom of speech and where starvation and death stalk, that President Frank Graham and Professor Howard Odum of the University of North Carolina are seeking to influence young men of America to go and attend a summer school.

"They know, as Ripley says, that while in Russia the students will be taught communistic doctrines and will be shown only those things which the Soviet government wishes them to see.

"The address of Robert Ripley has been reprinted in one Georgia newspaper but will appear in few if any North Carolina papers because most of the editors are alumni of the University, and to publish the facts given by the author of 'Believe it or Not,' would reflect to some extent, at least, upon the persons who have painted a somewhat different picture of Russia."

Maryland Nine Takes Advantage Of Third Inning Rally To Win, 7-5

Old Liners Score Four Runs in Third as Result of Three Hits and Two Errors.

TWO TRIPLES FOR BULLARD

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

College Park, Md., May 24.—A four-run rally in the third frame featured by three hits and two Carolina errors enabled the University of Maryland to defeat the University of North Carolina here today in Byrd stadium by a 7-5 score.

Bullard Returns

Coach Bunn Hearn, using a revised lineup, threw a scare into the Old Liners camp.

Bullard, making his first start in a number of weeks, showed up very well at bat and in the field. The third baseman batted out two healthy triples in five times at bat and played errorless ball.

McIver resumed his old position in left field and managed to collect a bingle for his afternoon's work.

Webster Pitches Well

Aside from a bad third inning, Webster pitched rather steady ball against the highly-touted Terps, as he kept 11 hits fairly well scattered.

BASEBALL MURALS NEAR TITLE PLAY

Remaining Nines Will Meet for Fraternity and Dormitory Crowns Next Week.

Rain once again delayed the intramural baseball games scheduled for yesterday afternoon. As a result, the fraternity semi-finals between Zeta Psi and S. A. E., and Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta will be played Monday.

The last semi-final game of the dormitory teams between Ruffin and Swain Hall was also rained out and will probably be played today.

The Ringers advanced to the dormitory finals Thursday with a win over Everett dormitory. They will meet the winners of the Ruffin-Swain Hall game Tuesday for the dormitory championship.

S. A. E.'s Favored

The S. A. E.'s, who were favored to win the fraternity championship, will be pushed when they meet the strong Zeta Psi team, who boasts of such stars as Snow, Satterfield, and Folger. The S. A. E.'s also have a bunch of heavy hitters in Cope, Freeman and Scott, their star pitcher.

The Phi Delta Theta's were seeded second in the fraternity race but will have plenty of opposition when they meet the Beta's. The Phi Delt's have a bunch of heavy hitters, including Wolslagel and Miller, while the heavy artillery for the Beta's are Reid, H. Tennille, Garrett, B. Coan, and Blythe.

Ace Welterweights Meet For Title At Polo Grounds Tuesday Night

Champion and Challenger Are Both Pronounced Physically Fit; Ross Is Installed as 8-5 Favorite to Regain Crown.

By LESTER OSTROW

When Jimmie McLarnin and Barney Ross crawl through the ropes at the Polo Grounds for their third bout on the night of Tuesday, May 28, Gotham fight fans will be getting a glimpse of two of the best welterweights in the ring. The bout will be the curtain raiser on Manhattan's outdoor season and is scheduled for 15 rounds or less.

The scrap is being promoted by the newly-organized Twentieth Century Sporting Club with Mike Jacobs in the promotorial role. The match was snared by the persistent Jacobs who has already been mentioned as a successor to the late Tex Rickard.

Important for Champ

This rubber match of the two welters is looked upon as the deciding factor in the lengthy career of the veteran McLarnin. Jimmie's rise has led him to the welterweight championship and since he is well-fixed financially a sound trouncing or kayo would more than likely cause him to hang up his gloves.

The Irishman has been brought along the fistic path by "Pop" Foster who takes more than a managerial interest in his proteges. He is an ideal manager who always considers his boy when a match is being planned for him.

In their first meeting, Ross, then the lightweight champion, captured a close verdict over McLarnin to annex the welterweight title to his collection. The demand for a return "go" was unanimous, and the pair were rematched.

Lay-offs Hurt

The second scrap was not so successful for Ross. We believe the two postponements were responsible for Ross' failure to repeat his victory, but they pay off on results and since Jimmie had his hand raised as a token of victory after a savage battle, he was again declared champion.

Due to the fact that he found it hard to make the lightweight limit, Ross relinquished the 135-pound crown. At present, Tony Canzoneri is rapidly forging his way back to the top notch position in this class.

At a recent physical examination by the New York State Athletic Commission physician, both men were found to be in excellent shape.

Challenger Favored

This scribe believes Ross will regain the laurels he lost in his last meeting with the champion. The challenger has youth and stamina in his favor, and a long ring career in front of him. On the other hand, Jimmie is about through and his legs aren't what they used to be.

We are inclined to string along with the Broadway "wiseguys" who have installed Ross

DIRECTOR FETZER DROPS PROPOSED A.A.U. TRACK MEET

Examinations at Many Schools Result in Small Number of Entries.

WAS TO BE HELD ON JUNE 1

During the past week, at the suggestion of the officials of the Carolina Association of the A. A. U., the Athletic Association of the University sent letters to colleges, schools, and clubs inquiring whether they would be interested in participating in a track and field meet for this district.

It was suggested that the aforementioned meet would be held at Emerson field on June 1, providing a sufficient number of entries were made to justify the holding of it. All athletes registered in the A. A. U. would be eligible to compete. It was proposed that only individual championships would be determined.

Due to the fact that many of the schools are now holding examinations or will be holding them at the suggested time of the meet, a comparatively small number of entries were made. R. A. Fetzer, who is chairman of the track committee of the A. A. U., announced yesterday that the meet would not be held this school year.

The Liberty league, as well as we can understand its statement, is not against President Roosevelt but simply can't stand him or anything he is trying to do.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

EUTSLER, NEW CHAIRMAN OF A.I.E.E., INAUGURATED

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers met last night at 7:30 in Phillips hall and installed Ernest Eutsler chairman for the coming year.

Other officers inaugurated were: T. D. Gordy, vice chairman; D. B. Fields, treasurer; R. L. Henon, secretary. Dr. W. J. Miller was named faculty adviser for the coming year.

After the meeting had been turned over to the new officers by R. M. Query, retiring chairman, talks were made by B. B. Parker, Ernest Eutsler, and L. R. Hagood. Refreshments were served during the evening.

WILLIAMS ELECTED HEAD SECOND YEAR LAW CLASS

The election of John Williams of Concord yesterday morning as president of next years second year class in law school climaxed what is probably one of the most heated elections in the history of the school. The two leading candidates for president almost came to blows as the interest grew.

The other officers who won offices in a close fight are: vice-president, Harold Bennett of Asheville; secretary, Brewster Grant of Mocksville; treasurer, Sidney J. Stern of Greensboro.

as an 8-5 favorite. They are betting 4-1 against either man scoring a kayo. The way it looks to us, neither man is likely to score a kayo. Ross is clever enough to stay away from McLarnin's right hook, and Jimmie will probably be able to stave off the savage atacks of his youthful opponent. Rumor has it that there are plenty of McLarnin takers and it wouldn't surprise us at all if Ross went into the ring at a little better than even money.

Durfee Gives Out Plans For Liberty League

Ambitious Program Is Planned For Coming Year.

The plans of the local chapter of the American Liberty League for the remainder of the year, as announced by Winthrop Durfee, president of the University chapter of the league, include only attendance at the address of Jouett Shouse, national president of the league, when he speaks before the Charlotte chapter on May 28.

Next year, if present plans materialize, several national congressmen will be brought to the campus by the league, along with other prominent speakers.

According to Durfee, the league will go on deputation trips to Rotary, Kiwanis, and other luncheon clubs in this vicinity. A series of radio programs will be inaugurated. The league plans to discuss the plans of Huey Long and Father Coughlin along with other national problems to be decided upon later.

Baseball

backstop, returned to his midseason batting form by collecting two timely bingles in four trips to the plate.

Rally Cut Short

But for a bad break in the ninth the score might have been different. After one run had been scored, Ed Bullard hit his second triple of the afternoon, but was caught at the plate as he tried to stretch the hit into a home run. This proved costly to Carolina's rally.

Bartoo, Terp secondsacker, and Nelson, shortstop, carried off the batting honors for the Old Liners. The former collected three singles, and the latter batted out a triple and three singles for a perfect day with the willow.

Navy Next

The boys from the Old North State will trek over to Annapolis tomorrow where they will meet the powerful Navy contingent.

The Middies feature an attack built around Buzz Borries who patrols the outer garden, and is well-known in football and basketball circles.

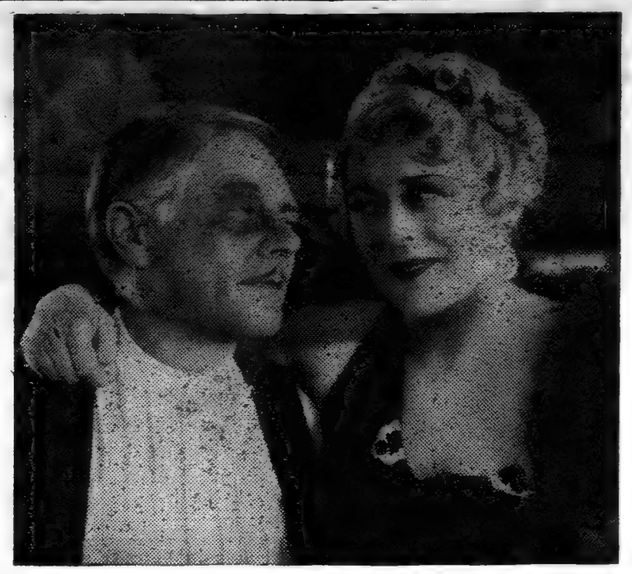
The game tomorrow will be the final on the season's card for the Tar Heel club.

FRENCH CORRECTION

The French course announcements which have caused so much misunderstanding are announced correctly as follows:

French courses will be given at the University summer session as follows: in the first session, courses 1, 3, and 21; in the second session, 2, 4, and possibly 22.

French courses will be offered by correspondence as follows: courses 3, 4, 21, and 22.



The French courses announced Wednesday which would not be given this summer were a special project of the extension division and were not embraced in summer school or correspondence lists.

GRADUATE GETS POSITION

From the office of the school of library science comes the announcement that Milton C. Russell, from Smithfield, who graduated with the class of 1935 in the school of library science, has accepted a position during the summer in the reference department of the New York public library.

We are anxious to see how the Florida papers played up that story about the man who is turning into an ape in California.—Exchange.

JUST CAN'T STAY MAD

No matter how heated and acrimonious the word battles may be between Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland, they find it impossible to be mad with each other. The famous domestic team is co-starred for the ninth time in Paramount's "People Will Talk," which comes today to the Carolina theatre. Leila Hyams and Dean Jagger appear in the supporting cast.

Hal Kemp

they liked this music. But along came a young man named Hal Kemp. His smart eye-opening rhythms entranced you by their cleverness even while you marvelled at the wonderfully achieved complexities. And people began saying, 'Who is this Hal Kemp?'" Pretty good, isn't it?

Handsome Are They

Then we learn via the advance notices that "his boys are all fine looking and every man is versatile. They possess the qualities that young America expects in their idol dance organizations. It has often been said that Hal Kemp's group of musicians compare along the lines with the romantic and good-looking organization that Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians consist of." Except that the sentence ends with a preposition, it seems rather good.

But Kemp "works spells on his audiences; he amuses and amazes them; commands them at the tips of his sensitive fingers with his wizardy in jazz. Giving them a fox-trot arrangement of Ravel's 'Bolero,' he watches its emotional reaction upon them; his eyes gleam as they respond to the pulsing rhythm, whirl and whirl as the tempo gets into their blood, climaxing in a furious exhilaration." What a man!

Well, that's what the press notices say about Hal Kemp who will play for the Friday dances of the German Club finals. But despite the reams and reams of advance copy, the campus, which knows Kemp as an "old grad" and a great orchestra leader, still contends that he has a great band, plays great music, and will contribute greatly to the success of the finals.

THREE U.N.C. GRADUATES GET CORNELL AWARDS

Three graduates of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., who received their A.M. degrees from the University of North Carolina, have just been awarded valuable scholarships, it is announced by Dr. Floyd K. Richtmyer, dean of the Cornell graduate school.

They are Eugene Edwin Pfaff of Pfafftown, N. C., who received his A.M. here in 1934, and Milton Williams of Chapel Hill and Robin Hood of Commerce, Ga., who received their degrees in 1932.

Pfaff was awarded the President White scholarship in modern history valued at $500 a year and tuition; Williams received the Susan Linn Sage fellowship in philosophy amounting to $400 and tuition; and Hood was awarded a fellowship in political economy worth $400 and tuition.

New Deal Doings

in the University's program will make an objective study of "The New Deal: After Two Years." Arrangements may be made in this connection for academic credit.

Seminar groups under the direction of outstanding professors in the field of the social sciences will analyze the New Deal in the fields of economics, administration, legislation, public opinion, international relations, and national planning.

Round table discussions will be conducted in the evening, and students participating in these will have the opportunity of questioning New Deal friends and critics connected with government.

Information concerning the summer interneship program, appointments, scholarships, and living expenses may be obtained by addressing the National Institution of Public Affairs, 1001 15th street, Washington, D. C.

GROVES ADDRESSES T. B. P.

Dr. E. R. Groves, professor of sociology, spoke last night to the members of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering society, at 6:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Tom Allison presided over the first supper meeting in his term as president of the honorary fraternity.

Dr. Groves, as the principal speaker of the evening, talked on the "Opposing Forces of Social Sciences."

RHO CHI ELECTIONS

Loamie Gilbert, Jr., was elected president of Rho Chi, the honorary pharmaceutical society, yesterday morning. Hal Reaves was elected vice-president. The secretary-treasurer, usually a faculty member, was not chosen.

The elections of president and vice-president are made on the basis of scholastic averages.

There will be another meeting Monday to complete the business for the year.

University Band to Bask In Hot Sun for Music

The University band, directed by Earl Slocum, will give its second open air concert tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock near the Davie Poplar.

The concert will feature C. C. Martin, solo trumpeter, who will play "In Flamatus," from Rossini's "Stabet Mater." In case of bad weather the following program will be played in Hill Music hall:

Dunlap Commandery March, Hall; Concert March, Chr. Bach; In Flamatus from "Stabat Mater," Rossini—Cornet Solo, C. C. Martin; American Rhapsody "Cabins," Gillette; Albanian March, Hall; Sunday Morning at Glion, Bendel; Atlantis Suite, Safranek—(a) Nocturn and Morning Hymn of Praise, (b) A Court Function, (c) The Prince and Aana, (d) The Destruction of Atlantis; Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa; Hark the Sound.

CLOSED SHOPS Newspaper reports of phases of the Queen City Printing Company strike seem to indicate that the affair was perpetrated, not because of long hours and low wages as first was reported, but because the union men demanded a closed shop and for no other reason.

We notice an item telling how four union strikers were convicted by the court, after a trial, for breaking in and beating the tar out of two non-union men, who had refused to walk out. This shouldn't be labor's idea how to obtain best working conditions, but it apparently is.

We're not competent to judge the merits of a closed shop or a union, as such, but it is only too apparent that a closed shop in such a business as annual printing is liable to result in serious complications. And even without a closed shop, when the union is as strong as the Typographical, Bookbinders and Pressmen's union, a strike throws monkey-wrenches all over the place.

Workers have the right to get fair treatment, but when they tie up valuable contracts for no other reason than to effect a closed shop with no apparent advantages in this case, then, uninformed as we are, we wonder as to the fairness of labor.

LIBRARY BUDGET A study of the comparative book expenditures of college libraries throughout the country shows that North Carolina stands at the bottom of the list of 31 ranking institutions.

Our library, termed one of the South's best, is doing a magnificent work with cramped budget, just as other University departments are. For instance, some $10,000 has been saved on some periodicals through an exchange plan with other libraries. And in other fields, too, the library is doing a great job of getting the most out of its funds and personnel.

There's no sense in crying about not having enough money to keep the beautiful library up to its best. The alumni can help some, but for the rest, we'll have to make the best of what we have, which is adequate if not record-breaking.

WE WANT IT CLEAN We were serious when we mentioned a boycott of boarding houses which fail to maintain a certain health standard. First, of course, we have to set a health standard.

We can't take the state standard, because local houses already are up to that and the results aren't at all satisfactory. If you want to find out, just go behind the dirty swinging doors of some eating places and you'll get an eye and nose full.

The Student Advisory Committee is setting out to do something about it. We'd recommend another group to help in the work. We may be paying little for our board, but, by gosh, we want sanitary precautions if quality can't be maintained.

PLAYMAKERS GIVE DELAYED HAMLET ON FOREST STAGE

Dramatists Will Perform Again Tomorrow Night; Baily to Review Play for Paper.

PILLOW-HAWKERS ACTIVE

With Proff Koch playing Hamlet, the Playmakers put on last night the most elaborate production ever to be staged in the Forest theatre, music, dancing, costumes, singing, lights, and scenery combining to produce a colorful setting for the performance of what many critics believe to be Shakespeare's greatest drama.

Because rain forced the postponement of the Friday show, the actors will play again tomorrow night at 8:30. Pillows, which contributed considerably to the comfort of spectators last night, will again be sold at the entrances.

Review by Bailey

Last night's performance will be reviewed in the Tuesday issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL by Dr. J. O. Bailey, instructor in the English department, who has done considerable work in the drama, including writing several plays himself.

Tickets will be on sale at Alfred Williams and the Playmakers theatre all day tomorrow and at the box office tomorrow night. Students may secure them for 50 cents apiece and non-students for $1. Season pass holders will be admitted without tickets.

GRAHAM TO SPEAK TO MEMBERS OF 'Y'

Annual Hillside Meeting Will Be Held in Forest Theatre Today at 4 O'clock.

President Frank Graham will speak at the annual Hillside meeting of the Y. M. C. A., which will be held in the Forest theatre this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

All men who have been members of the three "Y" cabinets at any time during the past year and the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. are expected to attend this last official meeting of the year.

Ex-President J. D. Winslow will review the accomplishments of the "Y" during the past year, and the newly elected president, Billy Yandell, will give an account of the aims of the organization for the coming year.

Jack Pool will conduct the devotionals which will be followed by a prayer by L. H. Fountain.

Dr. O. T. Binkley, pastor of the Baptist church, and Soloist Jesse Parker also appear on the traditional closing exercises of the Y. M. C. A.

MRS. WOOTTEN WILL SHOW COLOR SLIDES AT LECTURE

Examples of the new process in colored photography will be used in an illustrated lecture, "Gardens of the Low Country," to be given by Mrs. Bayard Wootten next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Pictures shown will be Wormsloe Gardens, Savannah, Ga., with their exquisite bronze statuettes; the Sprunt Gardens, Wilmington; the Middletown and Magnolia Gardens of Charleston, S. C.; and Belle Isle at Georgetown, S. C.

Art Instructor

Francis Speight of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, a native Tar Heel who has achieved high distinction, is to give courses in art and drawing at the University during summer school.

BAND SERENADES IN OPEN AIR TODAY

Program to Be Presented at 5 O'clock Near Davie Poplar.

Director Earl Slocum will lead the University band through its second open air concert this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the shadow of famous Davie Poplar.

The program will feature the solo trumpet of C. C. Martin, who will play "In Flamatus," from "Stabalt Mater," by Rossini. Other numbers to be offered by the band are: Dunlap Commandery March, Hall; American Rhapsody "Cabins," Gillette; Albanian March, Hall; "Sunday Morning at Glion," Bendel; "Atlantis Suite," Safrenek; "Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa; "Hark the Sound."

In case of inclement weather the program will be given in Hill Music hall.

Ericson Will Fulfil Fanciful Bargain By Teaching In China

Agreement Made in Jest to Be Carried Out When E. E. Ericson and Chinese Scholar Exchange Positions for One Year; Chang Will Lecture Here on Chinese Life and Culture.

"When I go to China in August to teach there for a year, I shall be fulfilling a bargain that I made half in jest with a Chinese friend back in 1926," said Dr. E. E. Ericson yesterday to an interviewer of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Dr. Ericson pointed out by way of explanation that the man with whom he made this bargain was Dr. Yuang Zang Chang, the Chinese scholar who will teach in the University while Dr. Ericson is in the Orient.

Friendly Exchange

It was at Johns Hopkins University, where they were studying for their Ph.D.'s, that Ericson and Chang met and became friends. Each man was interested in the culture of the other's country, and out of this interest grew the then apparently fanciful agreement to exchange jobs if the opportunity ever came, so that each might have a better chance to study the other's problems.

"The opportunity came last year," explained Dr. Ericson, "and I took it eagerly, for I am anxious to see China first-hand and to compare their way of life with our own. In general I feel that such exchanges make for mutual understanding between nations."

"Foreign Language"

Here Dr. Ericson teaches English and naturally is a member of the English department. In China he will continue to teach English. However, in North Central University (a Chinese "state university"), he will be a member of the foreign language department. Except for this paradoxical shift in departments, he will have much the same professorial status there as here, teaching practically the same courses as he does at present. All instruction will be in English, since the Chinese enrolled will have had six years of English in the middle schools.

Outside of class Dr. Ericson will deliver a series of lectures on American life. Here, Dr. Chang will speak to various groups on topics such as Chinese-American relations and Chinese social and cultural life.

According to Dr. Ericson, Dr. Chang, like many Orientals, is a man of deep philosophic mind and keen social insight. At Hopkins he specialized in eighteenth century literature. He is the author of two studies: "The Jew in English Literature" and "Oriental Influence on English Literature."

Seniors To Become Alumni Prior To Actual Graduation

Seniors at this commencement will become alumni before they actually graduate when they are officially installed as members of the Alumni Association at the alumni luncheon on Monday noon, June 10.

This was announced from the alumni office yesterday by Spike Saunders, who explained that, since alumni are visiting the campus this June in reunion groups of college generations, it is desirable to have this senior class be installed to complete the generation of graduates running from '32 through '35.

Traditional Regalia

The class of '35 will wear the traditional caps and gowns during three occasions, but in all probability the great majority of seniors will be donning their regalia without the faintest knowledge of its origin.

During the medieval age caps, gowns, and hoods were worn merely as forms of every day clothing by clerics in the universities. Caps were invented simply as a protection against cold church interiors, while hooded capes were also needed for warmth. These forms of college clothing have simply been held over from the middle ages to signify academic standing.

Colorful Professors

Professors will blossom forth in many various colors of cloth in the hoods hanging over their backs. The color of the hood's trimming indicates the degree of the wearer, while the color of the lining shows the university at which the degree was conferred. Arts and letters are designated by white, laws by purple, and philosophy by blue.

Some unfortunate colleges in the United States still conform to the custom of requiring that professors and students wear

Authorities May Remove Pay-Phones From Campus

New Dorms

It was announced from the office of the University cashier yesterday that the Battle-Vance-Pettigrew group of dormitories will be open to men students next year. The business office will hold these dormitories open for reservation to those now residing there through tomorrow, after which time they will be thrown open to any applicants. The dormitories will also be open to men students for the summer session.

Cite Continued Robbery, Wanton Destruction Of Money Boxes

Bennett Says Telephones Will Be Taken Out Immediately If Condition Continues.

THIEVES GET MUCH LOOT

Unless the theft and destruction of the iron pay boxes on telephones in the dormitories, fraternities, and other public buildings is stopped the Chapel Hill Telephone Company threatens to deprive the University of public telephone service.

This ultimatum came after the important pay telephone in the Y. M. C. A. and Graham Memorial were stolen several days ago. Approximately 10 of these pay boxes have been destroyed during the past year, causing great damage to the telephone in most cases.

Five in Month

Five of these thefts have occurred during last month, the authorities stated. This represents a great loss as each of the boxes costs about $15 and has contained from $15 to $20 in telephone charges when they were pilfered.

The affair has been turned over to the police but no arrests had been made up until last night. The authorities suspect several boys who are not in school at this time but who live in town and have an intimate knowledge of the more lucrative pay boxes.

Carefully Planned

In each instance, the boxes have been taken the day before the scheduled time for the collection of the charges by the telephone officials, indicating that the thefts are carefully planned and executed by persons familiar with the University.

"The desire of the telephone company is to increase the service, but if the present situation continues to exist, the public telephones will have to be taken out," J. S. Bennett of the Consolidated Service Plants, said yesterday in an appeal to students to look after the telephones

FAMILY OF MILLIS GIVES MEMORIAL FUND TO McCALLIE

Billy Millis Scholarship Will Consist of $25,000 Trust Fund.

The parents of Bill Millis, University freshman who was killed May 5 in an automobile accident in nearby Graham, have established a scholarship in memory of their son at McCallie School in Chattanooga.

The endowment will be known as the Billy Millis Scholarship and will cover complete expenses. It will be backed by a $25,000 trust fund.

Millis was graduated from McCallie in 1934. While there he was one of the most popular members of his class, quartermaster-lieutenant in the McCallie battalion, and manager of the football team.

Average scholarship, good character, and financial need are the requirements for the scholarship which Mr. and Mrs. Millis of High Point, have established. The award will be made each year to a student who has completed all but the final two years of his preparatory school work.

Social Scientists Begin Meet Here Tomorrow

J. E. Hillman Will Preside at Three-Day Session.

Four state committees on social science will convene in Chapel Hill tomorrow for a conference which will last through Wednesday.

The conference will draw school teachers and college professors from all over the state, and it is being set up with the co-operation of the University class extension division.

J. E. Hillman, director of the state department of public instruction, will be in charge of the conference. Some 20 people are expected to arrive, representing the following state's social science committees: committee on social studies in secondary schools, committee on geography in secondary schools, committee on citizenship in elementary and secondary schools, and the committee on history in elementary schools.

SUMMER ADDRESSES

As was announced recently in the DAILY TAR HEEL, the 1935 Yackety Yack, due to a strike in the publishing company's plant, will not be out before school closes for this quarter. All those desiring their Yackety Yacks mailed to them must send in their names and summer addresses to the Yackety Yack office in 207 Graham Memorial before next Tuesday.

NEW DORM HEADS TO BE INSTALLED

Officials for Coming Year Will Be Inducted Into Office Tomorrow Night.

Installation of all newly elected dormitory officers for the year 1935-36 will take place tomorrow evening in Graham Memorial at 8 o'clock with Deans House and Bradshaw as the principal speakers.

Recently chosen president of next year's inter-dormitory council, Albert Ellis will present his plans and lead a discussion on the general program to be followed next year.

It is expected that Bradshaw will deal with the topic of dormitory-planned supervision, an experiment which is being tested over the entire United States.

The Grail plaque, awarded annually to the dormitory with the best intramural standing and the highest record in orderliness and co-operation, will be presented at this meeting. Keys will also be awarded to all dormitory officers who have not yet received theirs.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, JORDAN; NIGHT, RABB

MISAPPLIED TITLE

Looking into student government and activities recently, we ran across the title "president of the Athletic Association", for which we elect a man each spring on a political ticket.

We tried to find out what the Athletic Association was, but no one, including the athletes, knew anything about it. We finally found out that the president of the Athletic Association isn't really a president at all, but, as we already knew, nothing more than a student representative on the Athletic Council.

Insofar as the president of the Athletic Association fulfils his duties on the Council, he is probably doing the duties of the office for which he is elected. But why enshroud the gentleman, and his fellow-compatriot, the vice-president, with a false title? Why not elect him as "student representative to the Athletic Council" and let it go at that?

Of course, a political plum would fall in the mud, but there're plenty more. Furthermore, we believe it would ease a man's conscience to know that he was filling his office fully as Council member rather than half-competently as president of the Athletic Association by going to Council meetings.

The president of the Athletic Association has, in several instances, led student meetings when matters of athletic policy have been put to the student body. But is not this the duty of the president of the student body? And, to boot, is not the president of the student body also on the Athletic Council? The answer to both questions is: yes.

Furthermore, should not the Athletic Council, dispensing student fees, be under jurisdiction of the Student Council to the same extent as it is under the administration of the University? The Monogram Club, through its newly-created executive committee, is exercising some student control, but it cannot well be said that the three student members of the Council represent fairly the student body or the Student Council in athletic control.

These and other questions are before the committee on activities and improvements and it looks like something definite will come of its work by next fall. In the meantime, let's set about changing the president of the Athletic Association to representative on the Athletic Council. It's truer and more satisfying.

THERE IS A POINT

John Lang, erstwhile Tar Heel campus leader and now president of the National Student Federation of America, writes the following paragraph on that organization's efforts:

"NSFA has quickened its energies in every sector to rise to the occasion—proving of whatever worth possible to the country's youth. Looking upon the campus as a laboratory for training in public welfare, the Federation has sought to help students perfect their campus institutions, publications, student government, athletic relationships and societies. Greater student interest in curriculum formation has been encouraged with the result that in many instances undergraduates are being asked to serve on committees studying the values of particular courses. . . ."

We, too, have maintained right along that in the perfection of our campus institutions we are effecting an eventual perfection in our community. And our students have set about toward this campus perfection.

We have said our word about curricula, about class-extension, about activities re-organization, about student government, about student welfare. But there are still many students among us who say we should not "crusade" but should let things lie.

Is it that they don't see the point that we and the NSFA are making, or is it that they don't want to?

SPEAKING FROM THE RIGHT

Repeated Query by a One-Track Mind

Of course it is nothing more than a matter of personal opinion and something that I can hardly be held accountable for, but I have always had the idea that a successful nation cannot exist without government, and that a government cannot function with any degree of efficiency without a noncomitant ruling class—or let us say, rather, "controlling class," as there is no real difference in the two terms and the connotation of the latter is more in keeping with the tenets of democracy.

Radical theory is obviously economically deterministic. In one respect this point of view, when applied to America, is not invalid, for the controlling class here is admittedly founded upon wealth. No one will deny that the wealthy have abused their privileges in a great many instances, but certainly such an admission is not justification enough for demanding the sweeping revolutionary changes advocated by socialists and communists.

What extreme radicals cannot, or will not, understand, is that man is motivated by principles other than those purely economic. They wish to establish an order under which every man becomes a laborer, thinking that by making a laborer contented they can make all men contented. The patent implausibility of this induction is that all men are not laborers and are not willing to become such.

Try as they may, radicals cannot torture what might be called the major premise of the Declaration of Independence into implying anything more than that all men are created with freedom and equality in making the most of legitimate opportunities to find the degree of happiness that their inherent capabilities place within reach. All men are not born equally capable; if democracy was not aware of that fact in 1776, it is aware of it now. Radical theory is not—or if it is, is not willing to admit something that cannot be denied.

Should a man desire to amass a fortune, who is there to refuse him freedom to do so as long as he does not abuse the rights of others in realizing his ambition? If radicals seek only to prevent him from oppressing and exploiting others in satisfying his own aims, then every fair-minded American is a radical. But if radicals deem it necessary to deny an entire nation the privileges set forth in the Declaration of Independence and granted by the constitution solely in order to restrain unjustifiable ambition, then I, for one, am the staunchest of conservatives.

Whether or not our capitalistic system is rotten in many respects cannot be made a subject for debate. None but the blindest reactionary will deny that a majority of the huge American fortunes were accumulated at an unfair expense to others, or that the efforts of the wealthy to perpetuate the status quo arise from purely selfish interests. Still, what can be the grounds for demanding the abolition of an entire system simply because a minority under it have abused its generous attitude of laissez-faire?

The leather medal for the best remark this week goes to one Paul Whitney: "When I get out of this place, I'm going on federal relief and raise a family. That's what everyone else seems to be doing these days."

"TEMPORARY LAPSE"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

May I protest that Editor Hammer's logic in commenting on the Smith building situation yesterday had an ancient, Clark-like smell about it. He assumes that the policy of the Graduate Club is the policy of its two lorn radicals, Mr. Williams and myself. Although we accept gratefully the implied compliment to our argumentive powers, we hasten to assure him that the revolutionary movement is not in control of Smith building. The 40 respectable inhabitants of this dormitory have minds of their own, and we refuse to accept personal responsibility for everything they do or say. If they wish to clamor for what they consider decent living conditions we cannot stop them by references to Karl Marx or the dean of administration.

Editor Hammer questions by implication the sincerity of our demand for a rational society. Does he realize, as we do, that in publicly upholding radical thought we are virtually blacklisting ourselves in the profession for which we have undergone some years of training?

May it be hoped that yesterday's editorial comment marked only a temporary lapse from the intelligent liberalism of the DAILY TAR HEEL'S recent policy.

JAMES WISHART.

"HOMINIS CONFUSIO"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

Your observations in the CAMPUS KEYBOARD under the heading, "System Change," interest me, for I think that you, perhaps unwittingly, have misrepresented the attitude of practically the entire membership of the Graduate Club in reference to the rumor that women students are to be housed in Smith building next year.

As I understand the article, you seem to infer that merely some of the "radicals" clamor against moving out of Smith

DAVEY CLARK SAYS . . .

September, 1931: "A very cursory examination of the budget of the University of North Carolina shows that the president's and administrative office cost $54,000 per year.

"Although their work is supposed to be with young men at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, the telegraph and telephone bill of the University of North Carolina is in excess of $5,600 per year.

"They are spending $110,000 per year on what they call 'extension work,' which means that it has nothing to do with the education of the young men who go to Chapel Hill."

Strayhorn Stars As Carolina Beats Navy 11-8 In Last Game

MIDDIE PITCHERS FORCED TO YIELD WINNERS 14 HITS

Strayhorn, Tatum, McIver, and Rand All Account for More Than One Hit Apiece.

IRWIN CAPTAIN FOR 1936

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Annapolis, Md., May 25.—Led by Strayhorn's four hits, which included a home run and double, the Carolina baseball team ended its season by beating the Navy nine, 11-8.

STRAYHORN

Once again Coach Bunn Hearn changed the lineup, and the latest change seemed to be the most effective of all. In the new batting order the Tar Heels got 14 hits in 41 trips to the plate.

Bullard Hits Hard

For the second time on the trip Bullard showed up very well. In the fourth inning, Bullard slammed in a triple when two men were on the bases.

BULLARD

Jim Tatum also hit hard in the game. Big Jim accounted for three hits in four trips to the plate. McIver, back again in left field, tallied two hits in four tries. Rand was the other big gun of the Tar Heel attack, accounting for two hits in five times at the plate.

Navy Rallies

The Middies' third and fourth batsmen each accounted for three hits off Crouch but were unable to blast him from the box. A rally by Navy in the ninth was cut short when McIver threw out Buzz Borries at third and Crouch fanned Robert Shaw.

CROUCH

Immediately after the game Tommy Irwin was unanimously elected to captain the team for the 1936 season.

Breaks Three Records

(Special Radio Bulletin)

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 25.—Jesse Owens, Negro sophomore at Ohio State, broke three world's records today in the Big Ten track meet staged here under the auspices of the University of Michigan.

Owens cut three-tenths of a second off the records in the 220-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles. In the straightaways Owens breasted the tape in 20.3 while in the low timbers he was clocked at 22.6. The final record broken by Owens came in the broad jump, when he made a leap of 26 feet 8¼ inches; the record was 26 feet 1½ inches.

Mural Results

With timely hits in the first, fourth, and sixth innings, Ruffin's heavy hitting team blanked Swain Hall 6-0 in the only mural game played yesterday. The win advanced them to the finals, where they will play the Ringers on Tuesday.

Allowing only one hit and giving up only one base on balls, Petrea led his team to an easy win even though his teammates made six errors. Thompson, playing for Ruffin, took batting honors when he connected for a triple and three singles in four trips to the bat.

Score by innings:				R.	H.	E.
Ruffin	300	102	0—	6	9	6
Swain Hall	000	000	0—	0	1	6

Captains Are Elected To Lead Co-ed Archers

Miss Mary Henry has been selected as captain of the Dianas, co-ed archery team. The team is composed of Nell Booker, Natalie Baroff, Bette Stover, Margaret Howard, Eliza Rose, and Margaret Munch.

Miss Mary McKee heads the other team, the Flaming Arrows, which is made up of Evelyn Barker, Elizabeth Williams, Jean Bush, June Bush, Sue Southerland, and Nancy Flanders.

The two teams will meet on Monday and Wednesday at 5 o'clock.

Penn Crew Beats Navy With Thrilling Finish

President and First Lady Are Among Spectators of Boat Race at Annapolis.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Annapolis, Md., May 25.—Frank Merriwell wasn't rowing for the Pennsylvania crew today, but for the amount of thrills that happened in the race for the Francis F. Adams trophy here today, one would think that a whole crew of Merriwells were responsible for the fiction-like running of the race.

Competing for the trophy sponsored by former Secretary of the Navy Adams were the shell crews of Pennsylvania, Harvard, and Navy. In winning the race with probably the most exciting finish ever witnessed by the President and First Lady, the Penn crew fell two seconds short of breaking the 8:56 record of the 1¾-mile course.

Navy Leads

At the start of this race, the Navy crew took the lead and held it as far as the 1 5-16 distance mark. At this point the Penn crew forged ahead of the leaders for a short time, but the Middies then retook their lead and remained 10 feet ahead of the Pennsylvania team. With 200 yards to go, the winning crew, rowing at the rate of 43 strokes a minute, once again forged ahead to win the race two feet in front of the Middies, who in turn were two lengths ahead of the Harvard eight.

Besides the varsity event, there were also junior varsity and freshman races. In second position for the junior varsity crew of Harvard was the President's son.

Rosemont Shows Omaha Way Home

Omaha, Derby and Preakness Winner, Length and Half Behind at Finish Line.

(Special Radio Bulletin)

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 25.—William DuPont's Rosemont, with Wayne Wright up, today won the 60th running of the Withers Mile, great turf classic for three-year-olds. Behind Rosemont was Omaha, Derby and Preakness winner, by a length and a half at the finish.

Rosemont was clocked at 1:36 3-5 minutes for the course, two seconds better than the time of King Saxon in the recent muddy Metropolitan Handicap.

$13,000 Purse

Jockey Wright pushed Rosemont to the pole and although seriously threatened down the home stretch by Omaha, Plat Eye, and Psychic Bid, who finished in this order, the DuPont colors were booted home to a handsome $13,000 purse.

Omaha, the stretch-running son of Gallant Fox, was not his best over this shorter distance, but went to the pole favored by the book makers at 7-to-10 odds to add a third prize to the William Woodward stables.

This victory for Rosemont will make him a high favorite along with Omaha for the fast Memorial Day Futurity which will be run off here on this same track, Thursday, May 30.

He said that the students should take the responsibility for the safety of the telephone pay boxes because they would be the ones who would be deprived of the convenience if the thievery continued.

Babe Hits Three

(Special Radio Bulletin)

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 25.—The King of Swat, the mighty Babe himself, seemed to emerge from his worst batting slump of his career here today when he knocked the "old apple" out of the park three different times in one game.

In spite of the Babe's three homers, the Boston team lost to Pittsburgh 11-7. Apparently it takes more than George Herman Ruth and his big bat to win ball games.

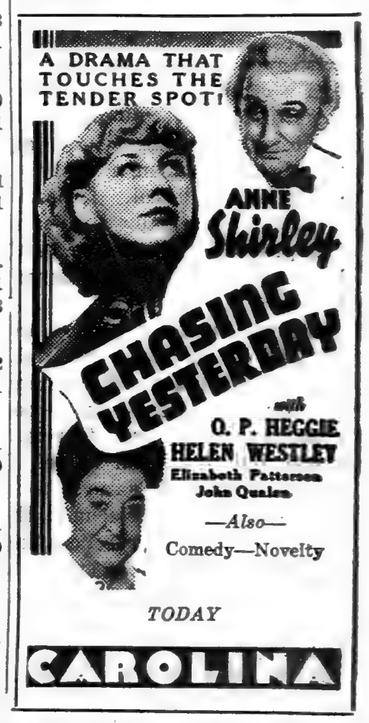
AYCOCK NETTERS BEAT LEWIS TEAM

Aycock "A" Tennis Team Will Meet Fraternity Winner for Campus Title Thursday.

Aycock "A" tennis team assured itself of a place in the campus championship match on Thursday when it won the dormitory crown from Lewis by a 2-1 count yesterday afternoon.



The singles were played on Tuesday, but the doubles were not ended until yesterday afternoon when Fiore and Onasch took the verdict over Kasen and Smith by 5-1, 4-5, 5-2 counts.

Kasen had given the Lewis pair a short-lived lead by defeating Fiore 5-2, 5-2, but Onasch's 4-5, 5-3, 5-1 win over Smith sent the match into the doubles. These two teams were the only undefeated ones in the dormitory league.

Because of the numerous rainouts, the situation in the fraternity division is not so simple. Six teams remained in the unbeaten class following Friday's matches, and it was decided to send them into an elimination tournament this week.

On Monday the Phi Gamma Delta team will meet S. A. E., and the Kappa Alpha-Lambda Chi Alpha winner will meet Sigma Nu. On Tuesday the winner of Monday's first match will meet Zeta Psi, and on Wednesday the two remaining teams will clash for the fraternity title.

All the elimination matches will be played on the varsity clay courts and will be run off as regular tennis sets. Following Thursday's match an all-intramural tennis team will be chosen.

building. As a matter of fact, I believe that there is not a man in the club, conservative, liberal, or of the mountain—if there be any such, who views the rumored change without perturbation and a certain amount of indignant displeasure. I have used the term "not a man" advisedly to indicate that men of all shades of opinion, political, economic, or social, are equally opposed to this proposal of changing Smith building into a woman's dormitory.

As you surmise, we do—and by we I do not mean the "radicals;" I mean the entire membership of the club—have good reasons for wishing to retain Smith building, even though it grieves us much to seem to be in any manner discourteous to the ladies (that sex concerning whom Chauntecleer so learnedly remarked several ages since that they are hominis confusio); and these reasons, I am sure, the members of the Graduate Club will be glad to offer to the proper authorities as soon as they are notified that any such movement to dispossess them is contemplated.

their caps and gowns to all classes. This is especially true of formal girls' training schools.

Dress Occasions

The baccalaureate sermon on June 9, the senior class prayers on the morning of June 11, and the final exercises will be the three occasions at which regalia will be worn. Class prayers is the only part of the traditional class day program that has been kept for commencement week, all the rest having been transferred to senior class week.

Immediately following the prayer service, the reception for seniors will be held by President Graham and the deans on the lawn by the Davie Poplar.

For two occasions, the oratorio on the evening of June 9, and the Playmakers performance of June 10, tickets will be required. These tickets will be distributed by senior committees to the members of the class and their friends.

Tickets will also be required for attendance at the alumni luncheon on the tenth and at the alumni ball on the evening of the same day. They will be given out at the alumni office several days before commencement week and also at alumni headquarters in Graham Memorial during the exercises.

Under the Dix plan of alumni reunions, 14 graduate classes will gather here during commencement. Among these will be the 50-year class of 1885, the 25-year class of 1910, and the 10-year class of 1925. All the other groups will arrive as college generations, the first running from 1894 through '97, the second from 1913 through '16, and the third from 1932 through '35.

Spike Saunders stated that he would like to see every present senior register as an alumnus in Graham Memorial.

HARMLESS BRICKBATS It gave us, and many others with whom we talked afterwards, quite a thrill of satisfaction to be sitting on the sloping banks of the Forest theatre and watching students recreate a Shakespearian masterpiece in fine style.

Being no art critic, we refer you to J. O. Bailey's review elsewhere in this issue. But for the sheer satisfaction of seeing fellow-students doing something difficult and doing it well, we take off our hats to the Playmakers. Not even good Yackety Yacks, clever Buccaneers, illuminating Magazines, thrilling athletic events, can touch "Hamlet" as a student achievement.

One thing that impressed us was the goodly number of students in the audience. Evidently all the brickbats which have consistently been thrown Playmaker-wards for lo, these many years, didn't make everyone believe that Playmakerism is the lowest form of "wet."

TO THOSE DESERVING The Interfraternity Council's move to provide a scholarship for fraternity men is a decidedly good one.

Being a Greek has precluded many excellent students from continuing work at the University, because of the difficulty in getting any financial aid on merit through the regularly-administered channels of scholarships.

There is no good reason for fraternity men being thus handicapped. Their affiliation with a fraternity means their desire to broaden their contacts and get a little more than they otherwise would out of their college life. Of course, promiscuous use of scholarship funds used to join a fraternity is entirely unfair, but deserving a scholarship after a few years in the fraternity is certainly not impossible and frequently the case.

FRESHMAN FRACAS Yesterday afternoon the freshman counsellors met to discuss freshman week next fall. It was a belated session and evidences of "lack of time" hindered progress considerably.

This year freshman week will be under the supervision and direction of the student government, rather than the senior class. This point, we believe, is significant. Instead of having men chosen merely because they are seniors, the new plan allows the choice of men who are suited by virtue of participation in campus activities.

Freshman week is, in the last analysis, the most important three or four days in a college man's career. At this time the freshman must be carefully introduced into the wilds of collegedom, advised of the pitfalls, and encouraged in the right direction.

We hope that during the summer somebody figures up a way to alleviate the chaos of this week, so that our freshman counsellors can do their jobs without having to direct traffic.

House, Advertisers Kill Hopes For Summer Weekly Tar Heel

Dean Vetoes Extra Fee On Summer Students

National Advertisers Uninterested in Summer Paper; McKee, Page Were to Be Editors.

MAYBE NEXT SUMMER

Plans to issue the DAILY TAR HEEL during the forthcoming sessions of summer school this year were definitely quashed yesterday by Dean of Administration R. B. House and the national advertisers of the daily paper.

Figures on the costs of issuing the paper once per week for the 12 weeks of summer school were worked out and presented to L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller, who in turn presented them to "Colonel Bob." Both House and Dr. E. W. Knight, director of the summer school, had expressed appreciation of the need for a summer publication.

Too Late

Dean House's answer to the proposal was brief and to the point. He said simply that, although the figures submitted were entirely reasonable, the proposition included a slight fee from each student at registration and, since the summer school fees had already been announced, they were not going to be changed. He added that, in order to save worry over this year, it would be better to wait and try to work out plans for issuing the paper summer after next.

Until yesterday there was some hope that the summer paper might be published without the student fee but a letter from one of the national advertising agencies advising that national advertisers were definitely not interested in summer school papers, wrecked all hope that the summer paper might be published.

The second plan had called for the paper to be supported by voluntary subscriptions and local and national advertising. It was not thought advisable to attempt to publish it without a large amount of national ads and all plans have now been called off.

The paper would have been edited by Bob Page and Don McKee.

The first issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL next year will appear Saturday morning, September 21.

Institute to Summarize 1935 Legislation

Meeting to Be Held Here June 10-11 to Interpret Laws.

The first comprehensive summary of the legislation of the 1935 General Assembly, a 20,000 word study prepared by the Institute of Government staff and designed to serve as a handy and useful reference for public officials, lawyers, and others interested in legislation, is being distributed today.

The Institute of Government also conducted a legislative reporting service during the term of the Assembly. The staff is now preparing summaries of new laws affecting each office and of new local acts affecting each town and county. These will be distributed to officials attending the joint meeting for the interpretation of new laws which the institute will hold here, June 10-11.

OLDSTERS OF '90 LEAD IN LOYALTY

Class of '90, McDowell County Ahead in Contest for Graham's Picture, Books.

The class of 1890 totters to the fore in Felix A. Grisette's Alumni Loyalty Fund contest, with 20.5 per cent of all its members having made some gift to the University. According to the May issue of "University Facts," released yesterday by the Alumni Loyalty Fund, the "voting" among the 60-odd classes and in North Carolina communities is very spirited.

In the community contest, McDowell county is in the lead with 36.1 per cent of the University alumni residents of the county having already contributed. Winston-Salem ranks second, and Chapel Hill third.

Awards

The contest was begun this year when the Alumni Loyalty Fund Council adopted the plan of presenting an oil painting of President Graham to that alumni class which had the largest percentage of its members numbered as donors to the University. Simultaneously a prize of 100 University Press books was authorized for that town or city in North Carolina which had the largest percentage of its alumni population listed as contributors.

According to Grisette, director of the contest, it is expected that fully 2500 individual alumni will have made some contribution by the time the contest closes at commencement, at which time the prizes will be formally presented.

RUFFIN RECEIVES DORMITORY PRIZE FOR SECOND YEAR

Ruffin Scores Most Intramural Points to Capture Plaque.

Ruffin dormitory was announced last night as the winner of the Grail Plaque this year, an award given annually by the Dormitory Council on the basis of intramural athletic points.

This will be the second straight year that Ruffin has won this honor. They were also at the head of the intramural scoring list last year. This award will be presented to Ruffin Friday night as a part of the Awards Night program.

Mangum, Lewis, Aycock, and Grimes dormitories followed Ruffin in the number of points scored and will receive honorable mention.

LAST TAR HEEL RELEASE

The fifth and last release this spring of the DAILY TAR HEEL news service for high and preparatory schools was sent out yesterday to 51 institutions.

Featured in the mimeographed bulletins of the release was the program for the University commencement exercises at which Mrs. Roosevelt will speak.

Although the release yesterday was the last one this spring, the service will be resumed next fall soon after the high schools of the state open.

Don McKee and Newton Craig, who have managed the DAILY TAR HEEL news service this spring, will have charge of the project again in September.

Hal Kemp

One of the most famous and popular orchestra leaders in this country, he will play for the Friday dances of the Finals, June 7. He is a former Carolina student. The band for Thursday has not been chosen yet, but Ozzie Nelson has been contracted for Saturday.

Creative Dancers To Give Program Thursday Night

Mrs. Barr's Group Will Present Numbers Having Popular as Well as Artistic Appeal.

SEVEN SOLOS INCLUDED

Phoebe Barr and her dance group will present a program in Memorial hall Thursday night featuring new numbers created this year and designed to have popular as well as artistic appeal. The date for Awards Night, also scheduled for Thursday, has been changed to Friday.

Seven solos, four of them by Mrs. Barr herself, several numbers by various combinations of boys and girls, Mozart's "Sonata," interpreted by Mrs. Barr's junior group of little girls, and three pieces by the entire group are included on the program.

Bill Miller

Bill Miller, who has studied under Ted Shawn as well as Mrs. Barr, will do a comic dance for which he has written the music, named "Pigwiggin's Courtship." Another former Shawn student, Harry Coble, is also to perform a solo number.

The program has been arranged to portray a wide variety of emotions and cultures, ranging from dances based on American Negro spirituals to Oriental rhythms and from a medieval conception of the second coming, arranged to the music of one of Bach's cantatas, to a mass movement of the entire group in the spirit of the "Marseillaise."

"Death Carol," perhaps Mrs. Barr's most interesting solo, will be done to music written by Miller and inspired by Walt Whitman's "Out of the Cradle, Endlessly Rocking."

The performance is under the sponsorship of the Carolina Playmakers.

Co-ed Banquet

A banquet for all co-eds who participated in athletic events this year will be held tomorrow night, May 29. All freshman co-eds will receive numerals, while the others will be awarded letters. The admission will be 50 cents. All co-eds desirous of attending should get in touch with Elsie Lawrence immediately.

"Dormitories Must Improve 100 Per Cent In Four Years," Says Bradshaw, Giving Plans

"No Security" Says Graham To Freshmen

Dr. Frank Suggests Progressive Social Legislation as Solution to Depression Evils.

"The depression has revealed that in America we don't have security," President Graham told the freshmen yesterday in explaining the social security bill now before the United States Senate, which is an attempt to make secure the position of the worker.

The community can no longer grapple with present day economic problems brought about by the rise of a highly industralized and interdependent civilization, and these problems will have to be met through some form of social control such as the bill now before Congress, indicated the president.

Insurance

Society, Graham declared, should lend the unemployed a hand, by providing unemployment insurance which will serve as a cushion under the depression and make the workers' position secure. The security bill recognizes and suggests unemployment insurance to which both employee and employer will contribute. Each state is to be left free to set up its own standard of administering the insurance for the unemployed.

Pensioning for the aged, aid for mothers and orphaned children fall within the scope of the bill which is being sponsored by a new pioneering group who are trying to eliminate despair, child sweat-shops, and unemployment from a land of youth and opportunity, and to bring order to a confused economic

PHI TO CELEBRATE, SELECT OFFICERS

Durfee May Run for Speaker; Members to Have Free Show.

Phi Assembly members will enjoy a varied program during and after their meeeting at 9 o'clock tonight with the election of officers and a social followed by a free show scheduled.

It is rumored that American Liberty Leaguer W. C. Durfee, who last week prematurely tried to put through a personal ticket, including himself as speaker, will seek office again. Last week's election, to Durfee's apparent chagrin, failed to take form, since it was definitely proved that the election would be held tonight. Durfee had sought to catch the other candidates off guard by printing his party tickets and making an effort to push through the election.

Di bill No. 4, Resolved, that death by the lethal gas chamber be the only capital punishment in North Carolina, will be discussed. A new Phi bill, Resolved, that courses such as Dr. Groves's marriage class—now unavailable to freshmen and sophomores—be opened to all students, is on the docket.

The regular meeting will be adjourned at 10 o'clock and will be followed immediately by a social lasting until 11. The free show will terminate the activities of the assembly on the campus for the spring quarter.

All Dormitory Offices Will Be Consolidated

Single Dormitory Manager to Take Over Duties Performed Now by Several Officials.

ELLIS GETS NEW OFFICE

"Our dormitories must be improved by 100% in the next four years," Dean Francis F. Bradshaw told newly-installed dormitory officers as they met last night in Graham Memorial for the last time this year.

The dean of students outlined some of the extensive plans now being formulated by the administration and the dormitory council to bring about this great change in dormitory life. In order to simplify and centralize dormitory management, the duties of service room head, laundry agent, inspector, etc., will be given to one person, to be called the dormitory manager.

Student Advisers

Following the successful example of other colleges in dormitory improvement, student advisers will be placed on each floor of the dormitories in the lower quadrangle in order to solve the problem of the residents. Two of the dormitories in this quadrangle will be confined to freshmen while the other two will contain students of all classes.

It was emphasized that neither the dormitory manager nor the student advisers will be student government officials. Their duties will be merely to help and advise dormitory residents. The government of dormitories will rest entirely in the hands of the dormitory officers.

Disciplinary Plan

Dean Bradshaw was joined by Dean House in urging the new officers to fulfill their responsibility in keeping order in the dormitories. He asked their support in a plan to suppress misconduct and improve dormitory life.

In connection with the drive for dormitory improvement, Albert Ellis has been made supervisor of the dormitory council for next year. Plans are under way to increase the powers of the council so as to give it au-

Playmakers to Perform Last Experimentals

Two Final Bills Will Be Given Tomorrow Afternoon, Night.

The Carolina Playmakers will present their two final experimental bills of the year tomorrow at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m., in the Playmakers theatre.

The seven dramas, written, cast, and directed by students in the University course of playwriting, are: Virgil Lee's "Dark Journey," directed by the author; Ella Mae Daniel's "There Ain't No Escape," directed by Sammie Ruth Bell; Ralph Lyerly's "Thou Thief," directed by Margaret Wallace; Mildred Moore's "Barn Trash," directed by Kenneth Bartlett; Ellen Deppe's "Penny-Wise," directed by Eloise Sheppard; Wilbur Dorsett's "Queer New World," directed by Ralph Lyerly; and Jean Ashe's "Debtor's Hell," directed by the author.

The first four plays will be performed in the afternoon and the last three at night.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, SMITH; NIGHT, HUDSON

ECONOMIC ISSUE

In the last issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL for this spring will appear an article on the engineering school consolidation situation, in which we will present a fair and clear picture of the fight which has been bitterly fought throughout the state as well as in Raleigh and Chapel Hill.

It seems to us that all the fuss which has been stirred up has been rather foolish. The Consolidation Commission's report pretty clearly indicated that the consolidation would be expensive. Why there should be continued wrangling, with advocates of placing the school in Raleigh or Chapel Hill taking pokes at each other, is a dubious question.

The principal object of the consolidation would be economy. If, as has been repeatedly pointed out, such economy could not be effected, then why continue harping about the question?

The University of North Carolina engineering school, for all of the merits of the Raleigh branch, puts out a different sort of engineer than the latter school. His training is different, his goal is different, his ultimate success is of a different sort. Jonathan Daniels' continued use of the word "duplication" is in this light extremely foolish, as such duplication does not exist except in a very small degree, does not exist because the training at Chapel Hill does not purport to put out the same kind of technician that State puts out.

We're dealing in generalities, but that's because we're sick and tired of hearing specific technicalities used as bases for all sorts of arguments for both sides. When State proves that a certain thing is so, on the basis of certain isolated facts, then we can prove the reverse on the basis of other isolated facts, and so it goes. Dean Baity and the Consolidated Commission gave all the proof necessary that consolidation would not effect the desired benefits nor any other particular good. Then let it rest.

The review in our last issue will, of course, be pro-Carolina, but it will not attempt to take issue because of a point being won. All the undergraduate cries in the world will do not more than cloud up the real issue, which has been decided.

GIVE US EXERCISE

Did you know that the average number of times the student body as a whole participated in intramural events was a little more than three times in an entire year?

Not only that, but the non-fraternity participation average was only approximately two times for the school year?

We talk of our intramural program as being such a fine one. Indeed it is, as far as it goes. But the very men who need the exercise aren't getting it. In a dormitory a team of 15 men may represent as many as 125 men; in a fraternity the ratio is, of course, larger.

The trouble is that the program is under-sustained. But not because we don't pay enough. It is simply that enough of our intramural fee which the Athletic Association administers never gets directly to the program. It would be hard to explain where it does go, as the money is placed in the Athletic Association's general fund and upkeep of fields, etc., costs lots of money. But when we try to run an intramural program by paying a man $600 a year to run it, then we're losing our minds. That is, if we think at the same time that we're doing the student body the good it deserves.

As a starter in our efforts to improve our intramural program, we are going to demand a full-time intramural director, well-paid, who can make something out of what we've got. And, in the same vein, we want more of our fee money put to the program itself.

By SPARTACUS

Some conservatives understand capitalism, but not socialism. Few liberals understand either. Real radicals have to understand both. Every radical knows that if he can only get people to understand capitalism, most of them will become socialists. "One Track Mind," who writes in "Speaking from the Right," comes mighty close to being a liberal. Only one thing saves him—he realizes that America is governed by a ruling class of wealthy, meaning, presumably, the eight-tenths of a percent who get over ten thousand a year. He fails to realize that this country is really controlled by those who play no part in any production, by bankers whose only interest in production is financial.

He totally misunderstands radicalism. No intelligent radical wants to establish an order "under which every man becomes a laborer." Radicals want an order under which to receive compensation every man must do some socially useful work.

No radical calls for the abolition of capitalism because a minority, or even a majority, "have abused its generous attitude of laissez-faire." No radical says all men are born of equal capacity or wants to "deny an entire nation the privileges set forth in the Declaration of Independence" "in order to restrain unjustifiable ambition."

The socialists begin with an analysis of capitalism. You will notice that Marx's great study is called "Capital," not "Socialism" or "Communism." This analysis of capitalism shows that it is based on two principles: private ownership of the means of production and their use to make private profit.

There is only one way of making even the smallest profit: by exploiting labor. There is a fundamental contradction between private profit and production for use. This contradiction inevitably produces depressions, "overproduction," unemployment, destruction of products and machinery, international wars. If you allow any profit, no matter how small it is, you will eventually find yourself in the mess we are now in. And you cannot get out of that mess except by social ownership of the means of production and their use to produce for needs instead of for profits.

If Marx's Capital is too tough for you, try John Strachey's Nature of Capitalist Crisis. That will show you in detail why we have to overthrow capitalism to get out of our mess.

This may be biting the hand that feeds us, but, as much as we respect Phil Hammer's fearlessness and fairness, we can't let him make cock-eyed statements such as the one yesterday about the printers' strike without a reproof.

A closed shop is a contract between employees and employers. Now, such a contract can be enforced only if all the employees belong to the same union. Otherwise, the majority of the employees have no control over their fellows, and cannot make them abide by the provisions of the contract. Correspondingly, the employer cannot be held to his part. If he makes a contract to pay certain wages only to his union employees, he welches by firing all the union men and hiring scabs. The only way the employees can fulfil their part of the contract or hold the employer to his is by having a closed shop. Isn't that fair, Phil?

Below is a review of the Carolina Playmakers' presentation of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," done for us by Professor J. O. Bailey of the English department. We are deeply indebted to Professor Bailey for his intelligent criticism and must apologize to him and our readers for having had to "cut" the original review for space.—Ed. Note.

In the Forest theatre Saturday and yesterday evenings, the Playmakers presented a colorful and exciting version of "Hamlet." Professor Koch as Prince Hamlet presented the sable, melancholy Dane touched with crimson.

Directed by Professor Samuel Selden, the play was produced with daring and vigor, toned to music and enlivened by color. The interpretation lacked in weight and dramatic impact, for reasons that I shall point out. Its familiarity to an audience whose members have their own interpretations which they jealously guard is the first of these reasons. But what the presentation lacked in weight, it made up in flash, ingenuity, and speed.

The Playmakers' production was in commemoration of the centenary of Edwin Booth, and the Playmakers presented the version of Booth's prompt book, shorter than the reading-version by about 1000 lines. Many notable scenes are omitted, among them the episode of Fortinbras and Hamlet's letters to Horatio upon his shipwreck (an omission that leaves Hamlet's methods of returning from England none too clear). The Booth version indicates two methods for handling the crisis of the play, Hamlet's failure to kill King Claudius at his prayers. One method, that followed by the Playmakers, omits Hamlet's entrance altogether. In explaining various omissions, the Preface states that "Hamlet's mental vacillation and the springs of it are plainly evident long before he reaches his monologue (omitted) on the expedition of Fortinbras." But with the additional omission of Hamlet's failure to kill the king at his prayers, the "springs" of his mental vacillation are greatly thinned, and the version presented by the Playmakers suggests that the desperate plunge, from the king's prayer onward through death and madness to the final shambles, is in some unexplained way a function of Claudius's bootless cries rather than Hamlet's vacillation.

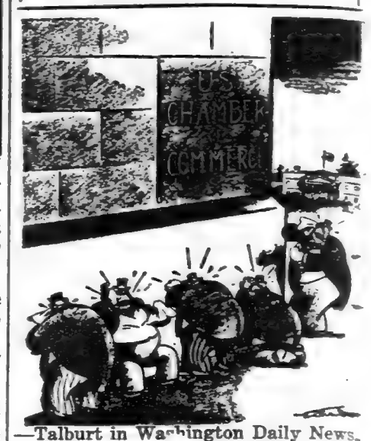
The Playmakers made still further changes in the text. Booth's version omits Hamlet's speeches of disgust about the drunken revelry in Denmark. The Playmakers replaced the omission with the scene of revelry; and there is something of triumph in the innovation that substitutes a scene for a description of it. The drunken revellers who appeared before King Claudius entered, were not realistic, for they did a formalized dance, rather in the romantic mood of the scenery than in the somber mood of intellectual tragedy, but, trained by Phoebe Barr, these dancers contributed something to the play that fitted the tapestried interpretation in the Forest Theatre.

A more serious altercation was that of the ending of the play. Shakespeare's "Hamlet" ends in havoc, the fall of the state itself, and the intervention of Fortinbras of Norway. Booth's version ends in simpls shambles, with only Horatio left to voice the general woe. In the Playmakers' version, King Claudius is killed and taken from the room. Then the dying Hamlet, assisted by Horatio, mounts the throne, and his father's crown is placed upon his head for the brief moment before he dies. The effect is to give sudden, romantic upturn to the mood of the play and to suggest that, though Hamlet dies, the state goes on. Claudius's crime and Hamlet's tragic vengeance thus seem but an eddy in the stream of Danish affairs, rather than the end of Denmark.

Other alterations by the Playmakers were in the direction of presenting an operatic performance.

The final effect of these alterations was to create a play that was not Shakespeare's. Such a result is almost inevitable in a Forest Theatre production, for "Hamlet" is not an outdoor play. To produce the play under oak and elm, is not necessarily to violate the play, but it is likely to alter the mood toward romance, to suggest richer colorings, pageant-like scenes, with dance and music. "Hamlet," product of Shakespeare's brooding years, becomes more nearly a play Shakespeare might have written after he retired to Stratford.

Unusual dash was given to the play by Professor Koch's interpretation of Prince Hamlet. Hamlet's "inky cloak" and "customary suit of solemn black" was lined with crimson, and this fact is, I think, symbolic of both the Playmakers' and Professor Koch's interpretation of the play. Professor Koch acted his most difficult role with sensitivity, with self-scorn and Weltschmerz in the soliloquies, with his personality pressing Claudius to fear and murder; and yet with a pleasing suggestion of youthful scholar-duellist from Wittenberg in his manner. In so difficult a role, in which emotions clash and shift with lightning speed, any except the most seasoned actor will occasionally be unable to follow with his body and his voice the mercurial trail of the lines—unable to act and react as fast as words can come. Only once or twice, however, did Professor Koch say more than he acted, and these lapses were in the earlier scenes of the play. in Hamlet's great scenes, Professor Koch triumphed, interpreting the role with originality and acting it with feeling.



Robert Nachtmann as Claudius was not on his first appearance quite military enough for a king, and his brickish hair and golden crown seemed somehow of clashing shades—and suggestions. But he grew in power as the play went on, and in the critical scene of the "mousetrap play," he became thoroughly convincing, blenched, gripped his throne, squirmed to hide from his guilty conscience, and cried aloud for lights when he found no hiding place. His greatest scene was his prayer-scene, aided by musical accompaniment and chanted prayers beyond the chapel wall.

Shakespeare's own role of Ghost (according to tradition) was played by Professor Harry Davis. The Ghost as presented in the Playmaker production was a substantial ghost, less phantasmal in its first appearance (in a too-white light) than the preceding scene before the castle wall. But when the Ghost had beckoned Hamlet beyond the wall, and spoke, the Ghost was "old Truepenny," commanding, sepulchral, harrowing. The scene was the first high point in the play.

Laertes, played by William Wang, seemed in the early parts of

"RATLIKE GNAWING"

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

With your indulgence I should like to note down some stray thoughts on the local scene.

Some time ago I submitted a letter calling for an investigation of the athletic situation. The letters that were printed in reply to mine were interesting. The first sarcastic letter brought down a storm of abuse on poor David Myer's head. But that was his way I understand of agreeing with me. The letter from Mr. Sherrill informs me that I am grossly misinformed regarding student activities funds. Maybe so. But if so I should appreciate his showing in black and white, when he publishes his next report, where in that report there is an item showing the cost to the school of each athlete. I know of boys in this University who are not paying their own way through. Does this item show up in your published reports? Of course not.

Then, too, there are some very ugly rumors making the rounds that do not show up the athletic association in a very favorable light. I need not go into the stories. I am certain that the reader has also heard them. In any event the athletic association cannot help but benefit from an investigation. If these stories are false it would be best to air them and prove them so. On the other hand, if these stories are true then the proper authorities should be made aware of the facts so that they can treat the canker that is rat-like gnawing at the foundations of sportsman's sports. Or am I, after all, behind the times and not aware that most of our athletes are laborers working for the athletic department?

Your announcement in Sunday morning's DAILY TAR HEEL that you were serious when you mentioned a boycott of local boarding houses for unsanitary conditions is timely, and important. But oh, how much more important would be a boycott of those places that are paying Coolie wages for student labor. I, along with about 12 other students, worked in one place on Franklin street for 17 cents an hour. The place in question recently found it "convenient" to change its name. I know of another boy who worked in one boarding house for 12½ cents an hour washing dishes, of another waiting on tables for 11 cents an hour. That such a situation should exist in Chapel Hill is outrageous.

There is a lot more I should like to say of the relative merits of closed shops over open shops, in answer to Sunday morning's editorial, a noticeable swing to the right in your other editorial comments, etc. But I guess that I have said enough for one say. That athletic and wage situation is serious. Let's hear from you, Phil.—NORMAN KELLAR

S.A.E., Phi Delta Theta Match Sluggers In Frat Finals Today

Zeta Psi, Beta Theta Pi Eliminated Yesterday

S. A. E.'s Win by Four-Run Rally In Fourth; Phi Delts Survive Beta Seven-Run Splurge.

TODAY'S GAME AT 4:30

S. A. E.'s heavy artillery put on a four-run rally in the fourth inning after it had tied the score in the third, and defeated Zeta Psi 5-1 in the first fraternity semi-finals game yesterday.

Scott, pitching for S. A. E., allowed the losers only two hits and gave up only one base on balls. Cope played a wonderful game at short for the winners, while his teammate DeBardeleben was snaring flies all over short center field. Carson took batting honors with two hits out of three trips to the bat.

Scoring

Snow made the lone run for the losers when he reached first on an error, advanced to second on Tabb's sacrifice, and then came home on Laxton's double. Connor started the rally for the winners with a single. Bell and Carson also hit in the same inning after a base on balls had been given and an error made.

The Phi Delts put a stop to the Betas' desperate seven-run last-inning rally to defeat them 10-9. Wolslagel knocked a home run in the second inning with two men on base and then slammed out a double in the fourth to drive in one run.

Besides striking out six men and giving up only six hits, Mosier collected a triple and a double to star at bat.

Jimmie Coan started the rally for the Betas in the seventh and took batting honors with two hits in three trips to the plate.

Athletic Equipment

All men who have been issued equipment for varsity and freshman athletics during the present college year are requested to check equipment in to Sgt. Keller at Emerson field May 28, 29, and 30, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, between 9 and 12 and 1:30 and 6 o'clock.

This is necessary in order that equipment may be laundered and inventory taken before the end of the present college year. Equipment was issued for use during the college year only, and no one will be permitted to retain equipment for the summer without first checking in all articles charged on the storekeeper's record.

We shall appreciate your immediate compliance with this request.

Coach Hearn Praises Handicapped Outfit

"It is an easy task for a baseball player to go around with a grin on his face when his team is winning, but it is another story if they are in the midst of an unusually poor season," said Bunn Hearn, coach of Carolina's baseball team, recently.

Although the Tar Heel baseball team has just completed a season which did not run true to Carolina's usual form, the players deserve a great deal of credit.

From numerous sources word has just been received that the general spirit and conduct of the diamond representatives of the University of North Carolina were worthy of mention.

This report was subsequently verified by Coach Hearn who said, "Everywhere we went, whether we won the game or not, the players were commended on their fine sportsmanship. The attitude and general spirit was particularly impressive.

"For the greater part of the season the boys were playing under a great handicap and continually 'took it on the chin.' To begin with, one of the most promising hurlers in years, Guy Fletcher, was declared ineligible. This was followed by a series of injuries which further hampered the team. The final blow was dealt when 'T' Vick, captain and star outfielder, was forced to quit the ranks because of financial difficulties. Besides being a valuable lead-off man and hard hitter, he was rated as one of the best outfielders in southern collegiate baseball circles.

"I feel certain that if the boys return next year and exhibit the same amount of willing co-operation and fight that they showed this past season, and if our freshmen show up as well in varsity as they did as yearlings, Carolina will once again resume her southern diamond supremacy."

ABERNETHY WINS RUFFIN TOURNEY

Bill Abernethy Conquers Oglesby To Capture Ruffin Dormitory Tennis Championship.

The second annual Ruffin tennis tournament, which has been under way for the past several weeks, came to a close Sunday morning when Bill Abernethy of Hickory, defeated "Rose Bud" Oglesby of Farmville, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2.

Champion Abernethy reached the finals by victories over Blackmore, Garland, and McKinnon; near-champion Oglesby defeated Clingman, Petrea and Cannady.

The annual Ruffin tennis tournament was initiated last spring when Ray Weathers became the official number one man.

This tourney, which is sponsored by the dormitory service room, is another one of the features of the Ruffin athletic program. Ruffin has been one of the leading dormitories in all forms of intramural sports during the last few years.

Numeral Winners

All freshman numeral winners may call for their awards at Emerson stadium any time after 1:30 today, tomorrow, or Thursday. Red Meroney will be present to give the awards to the winners.

TRACK FACTS

By IRA SARASOHN

What Will Happen to Carolina's Track Team After This Year?

Is Carolina's dominance on the cinder paths of Dixie about to totter? . . . Apparently only a man with the same track ability as Jesse Owens can keep the crown from falling . . . Owens, who by the way is the Negro sophomore star of Ohio State, not only broke the existing world records in the 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, and the broad jump events, but also tied the 9.4 record in the 100-yard dash . . . But even a man of Owens' ability would need a team to garner additional points . . .

Next year we won't have a Jesse Owens, and we probably won't have the men to garner extra points . . . Old Demon Graduation will run wild among our tracksters . . . Joining the ranks of the alumni will be the men who made 44½ out of the 58 points which won the conference title . . . What then can be done to stop Carolina from winning no more than 14 straight state titles? . . . Coaches Bob and Dale will tell you that it looks unpreventable . . . They will add, however, that there are men on this campus who can be developed . . . yes, even in as short a space as a year . . .

The coaches tell us that there are numerous boys who were on track teams in high and prep schools who have never even applied for equipment . . . Why? . . . Dale tells us because of the success of the team in the past . . . They probably think that the reason for Carolina's success

HOOPSTERS ELECT STELLAR PLAYER TO CAPTAIN TEAM

Jim McCachren Will Lead White Phantoms in Quest for 1936 Conference Crown.

EIGHT VETERANS VOTE

The White Phantoms ace basketeer, Jim McCachren, followed in his brother Dave's footsteps, when he was elected Thursday to lead his teammates in next year's basketball campaign.

Eight lettermen elected McCachren to captain next year's promising five. Nelson, Blood, Harris, Harrison, Aitken, Webster, and Minor all cast their votes in a secret ballot. Glace and Kaveney had left school and thus were unable to vote.

Jim has starred on Carolina's basketball teams for three years and he fully deserved the honor bestowed upon him. He has been a member of the all-Southern five for the past two years, and he was rewarded for his fine play this season with a position on the all-Southwest team.

On this year's northern trip, the new Tar Heel captain received the praise of all the coaches and experts who saw him perform. His best performance of the year was undoubtedly that against Navy at Annapolis, when he held Navy's biggest scoring threat, the all-American Buzz Borries, to nine points for the contest.

McCachren will captain a fine team next season, and it is hoped that his excellent playing and strong leadership will bring the White Phantoms through to another Southern Conference championship.

Would You Pick The Southeastern Or Southern Champs In A Dual Meet?

Opinions Vary on Ability of the Southern Conference Champions to Down the Southeastern Winners; Both the Dash Men and Field Event Contestants Seem to Have Equal Talent.

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

Recently there seems to have been big doings in intercollegiate track competition all over the country. In their traditional battle at New Haven the Yale Bulldogs bit into the Princeton Tigers by a 68-67 count.

At Chicago the sensational Jesse Owens led the Ohio State cindermen to a triumph in the 12th annual western intercollegiate quadrangular meet, while on the coast the University of Southern California ran away with the California state meet.

L. S. U. or N. C.

Down south two plentiful dishes were served to track enthusiasts. At Birmingham, L. S. U.'s powerful team ran away with the Southeastern Conference meet, and at Durham the "Flying Tar Heels" of North Carolina kept their hold on the Southern Conference crown.

For the past three years, one thing that has always caused comment has been a comparison of the finals in the new divisions of the old southern loop that was disbanded in 1932.

In 15 events the final marks would give the Southeastern seven firsts to the Southern's five, with three even. L. S. U. won the former meet with 78 points to Alabama's 39, while Carolina annexed its title with 58 to Maryland's 49 3-4 and Duke's 47 1-2.

Writing in the Atlanta Constitution, the "Ole Timer" makes his comparison, and includes times and heights in the prelims, thus giving the Southeastern an additional first. He says "the Southeastern Conference would have shown a decided superiority on the track, and the Southern would have gotten firsts in the three weight events." He, of course, means what would have happened had the winners in each conference met in each event—and if they had done exactly the same as their last Saturday's performances.

Dashes Even

Both dash finals were even in 9.8 and 21.7, with Neugass of Tulane and Widmyer of Maryland as the participants. However, Glenn Hardin and O'Neal, both of L. S. U., give the Southeastern the edge in the 440 and 880 yard runs.

Mothershead of V. P. I., turned in a seven second better performance in the mile, but Dunaj of W. & L., was three seconds slower than Sanders, another of Huey Long's stars, over the two-mile route. Frank Abernethy of Carolina, and Towns of Georgia, tied with 14.8 in the 120-yard high hurdles, while Hardin's 220-yard lows was superior to the Cavaliers' Everett.

The field events were split even with the Southeastern doing better in the pole vault, high jump, and broad jump, and the Southern's performances better in the shot, discus, and javelin. Tom Evins' shot put was almost one foot better than that of Lyons of Alabama. Maryland's record breaking performance of 3:18.7 in the relay was four seconds faster than the Alabama quartet could do.

Thus we have given you our

Archery Enthusiasts Vie For Campus Honors

The Diana Deers shot straight and true,
And the bullseye was pierced through and through;
The Flaming Arrows came swift and true,
But the bullseye saw red and immediately flew.

The Flaming Arrows were not so hot in the first half of the co-ed archery tournament yesterday, and despite the fact that Diana's Deers almost pierced many hearts with stray arrows, they managed to shoot the Indian's favorite weapon a bit straighter than their opponents to win the first day's play 139-135.

These determined aggregations met on the field of battle yesterday afternoon to shoot it out, and when the smoke cleared away the results showed that Diana's Deers (Dears), even as the proverbial cupid, had not missed their marks.

This year's opening of the annual co-ed bow and arrow classic was indeed the closest to be contested since the inauguration of this tournament a few seasons ago. The girls were a rather war-like group yesterday, as they threatened to tear the target asunder with well directed shots. It was a nip and tuck battle all the way, and the final score could not be determined until the last archer had sent her arrow swiftly to its target.

There was only a small gathering present when the opposing captains, Mary Henry of the Diana's Deers and Mary McKee of the Flaming Arrows, said that their respective tribeswomen were ready to start.

K. A., S. A. E. OPEN TENNIS TOURNEY WITH FAST WINS

S. A. E. Meets Zeta Psi in Semi-Finals Match Today; K. A.'s Win Position in Final.

SINGLES CONTEST TODAY

Kappa Alpha earned its way into the finals from the lower bracket and S. A. E. went into the semi-finals in the first set of matches in intramural tennis play for the fraternity championship yesterday.

The Kappa Alpha-Sigma Nu match was one of the best of the year, and was won by the former only because of their fine doubles play. Olds and Brown played for the Sigma Nus, while Everett and Lovell did battle for the K. A.'s. The doubles scores were 6-2, 6-4.

In the first singles match, Lovell defeated Olds by 6-2, 6-2 scores. The second singles, between Everett and Brown, was a long, hard fight, with the Sigma Nu boy tying things up by winning, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5.

Phi Gams Lose

S. A. E. earned a chance to meet Zeta Psi in the upper bracket semi-finals by disposing of the strong Phi Gamma Delta pair by a 2-0 count.

Charlie Poe took Chapman by 6-4, 6-2 scores, but Cope, after winning the first set 6-1, was forced to a 9-7 set in his match with Henggi.

Today's only match will bring Harrison and Stokes of Zeta Psi against Poe and Cope of S. A. E., starting at 4:30 o'clock on the clay courts.

CO-ED OETTINGER WINS IN NET PLAY

Tenth Seeded Player Defeats Two Players in Tourney.

After being delayed for a number of days, the woman's ladder tennis tournament finally got under way yesterday afternoon. Only two matches were played, however, which still leaves the schedule in just about the same positions.

Oettinger Stars

Jo Oettinger, seeded tenth, was the only player to advance up the ladder. Miss Oettinger challenged and defeated Martha Louise Croom who was seeded ninth, and then duplicated her feat when she won over Kay Quigley for her second victory of the afternoon.

By virtue of her two wins, Miss Oettinger moved into seventh place. Her next opponent will be either Mildred Moore or Evelyn Barker.

Due to the approaching examinations, it is probable that the tournament will not be completed before the closing of school. All co-eds are urged to try and get their matches played off if possible.

Bill Allsbrook To Play Capitalist At New Virginia Summer Night Club

Virginia Beach's newest, most elaborate night club will be thrown open to the public on the night of June 6, with Bill Allsbrook, well-known orchestra-leading University alumnus, as chief music maker and stockholder. Allsbrook is president of a corporation backing the venture.

Named the Crystal Club, it will be located in a $350,000 granite mansion on the old Masury estate at Virginia Beach. A private road, with parking space, is being run from Atlantic avenue, and facilities for broadcasting through station WTAR at Norfolk are being installed. Charlie Gooch, Chapel Hill restauranteur, will manage the club.

Remodeling

The former private mansion is undergoing extensive remodeling, with $15,000 being spent for interior decorating. Allsbrook has been able to secure a five-year lease on the building, with an option of five more. To facilitate dancing, the wide classic columns of the ballroom are being replaced with steel girders overhead. The mural-covered walls and exquisitely carved wood-work will be left as before. The ballroom has a seating capacity of 400 people. A stone's throw from the club is 15-acre Crystal Lake.

Opening the club with a gala premiere Thursday evening, June 6, Allsbrook's orchestra will blossom out with 15 pieces and two singers. There will be a complete change of floor show every week throughout the summer.

Allsbrook's orchestra has played for the past seven summers at Virginia Beach. Last summer was spent at the Embassy Club and at Tintilla Gardens in Richmond. This spring the orchestra has played in Greensboro at the O. Henry Hotel and broadcasted over station WBIG of that city.

"Hamlet" Review

the play too fresh and young for the pimply moral sense revealed in his words. But when he was angered and broke upon the king breathing rebellion, his acting matured. Upon Ophelia's entry with her flowers, Laertes's sorrow had sincerity in it; and Laertes scored again when he pled, in the graveyard scene, that more be done.

Laertes's aged father, Polonius, played by Philip Parker, was good, but in moments a little out of character. Polonius's famous speech of advice to Laertes seemed as a whole to come from rote, rather than in fragments from the old counsellor's memories of his copy-book, told off his fingers.

Queen Gertrude (Louise McGuire) acted her part with regal dignity and stolidity that, one feels, belonged to the Danish queen who turned from "this fair mountain" to "batten on this moor." She is to be praised for these qualities. But Hamlet's words should have struck her a little more to the quick when he accused her, so that there would have been no element of surprise when old Truepenny said "Amazement on thy mother sits."

The mad Ophelia (Patricia McMullan) with her songs, sung sweetly and hauntingly, was the best Ophelia. She did not rave, but in madness became a child again, and seemed to bend herself, like the willow under which she drowned, gently to her death. Good — and good, too, the music for her songs, here inserted by the Playmakers!

Horatio (Alan Waters) seemed a little boyish, for a scholar, in the opening scenes, but by the time he reached the graveyard with Prince Hamlet he had thorough control of his part. Osric the fop (Walter Terry) elicited the spontaneous applause of the audience when with a just-right affectation of elegance (and a display of legs in white satin) he delivered Laertes's challenge to Prince Hamlet. The First Grave Digger (Professor W. A. Olsen) provided "comic relief" as a red-nosed clown. The role was acted with clarity, but more broadly than the play demands—less realistically than demanded by the ironic undertone in the scene and Shakespeare's understanding of earthy wit and the callousness of the earth-born in the presence of death. The Second Grave Digger (Kenneth Bartlett) fell into the mood of the First, and touched the role with caricature, noticeable in the peculiar kind of cracked voice that the Playmakers cultivated in their earlier years. But the Grave Diggers were good fun. The Priest (Professor McKie) had a slight role, but one acted with fidelity. The roles of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern (Joel Laskey and Henry Page) were like as two peas, were correctly rubber-stamped, were well done. Marcellus, Bernardo, and Francisco were convincing as huge, stiff-jointed Danish soldiers.

Of the players in the "Murder of Gonzao," Douglas Hume as the Player King had the most important role and acted it with fidelity. Lucianus (Fred Howard), his murderer, was properly villainous, though so tense was the drama being enacted among Horatio, Claudius, and Prince Hamlet, that one hardly saw Lucianus and his villainy. The Player Queen (Sammie Ruth Bell) was likewise faithful in a minor role.

The impression that remains from this play, acted without noticeable blemish and in some scenes with stirring drama, is that the Playmakers have contributed (on a stage designed for romantic comedy) a new, colorful, and romantic interpretation of "Hamlet." The production was not quite so satisfying (for the play is not so well fitted for outdoor production) as "Midsummer Night's Dream." But the daring with which the Playmakers new-interpret "Hamlet" and make that new interpretation a thing of beauty and of high romance—that is good.

Saunders in Raleigh

J. Maryon Saunders, secretary of the Alumni Association, spoke in Raleigh yesterday at a luncheon of the Alumni Association of Saint Mary's. Mrs. Saunders also attended the luncheon.

GRAHAM INSPIRES 'Y' TO MEDITATION

Hillside Meeting Closes Year's Work for Cabinets; Yandell Looks Ahead.

Stressing the need of quiet meditation as essential for spiritual growth, Dr. Frank P. Graham addressed the combined Y. M. C. A. cabinets Sunday afternoon at their annual meeting in the Forest theatre, which brought to a close the year's activities for the "Y."

Dr. Graham brought out the fact that the present day situation, with its mad rushing and crowding, robs us of the opportunity to be alone with ourselves and in quiet groups. He emphasized the multiple activity life on our own campus which swallows us up so that we don't take time for the deeper things in life.

Dr. Binkley

Dr. O. T. Binkley, in a short talk before the group, said that there was ample evidence to support the statement that the rank and file of college men do value their religion. Speaking on "The College Man's Religion," the minister explained that college men were not interested in ritualistic, theological religion, but in a practical and workable religion.

J. D. Winslow, out-going president of the "Y," reviewed the accomplishments of the organization during the past year and newly-elected President Billy Yandell gave a "forward look" into the coming year.

Soloist Jesse Parker rendered a vocal solo and James Dees, University quartetist, led the entire group in hymn singing.

IDEAS AND EFFORTS

"Our dormitories must be improved by 100 per cent in the next four years." And Dean Bradshaw, when he told the Interdormitory Council of plans to effect this improvement, was not talking just to hear the words flow out.

In our opinion, conditions in local dormitories are emphatically not conducive to our efforts in trying to develop the best men and women possible. The physical lay-out is "lousy" in most of these dormitories, due as much to the students as to the administration. And environmental conditions are not of the healthiest.

We stress now, as we did before, the importance of student co-operation with the administration in making our dormitories better places in which to live. The Interdormitory Council must be the important lever here.

Why not create a well-paid position of intramural director and dormitory supervisor? We'd kill two birds with one stone and get better results out of both birds. That's another idea which we present and hope somebody with authority will notice.

WHITHER, LEADER?

Now that the Supreme Courtiers have upset Mr. Roosevelt's apple-cart, we, as well as about 50,000,000 other foggy persons the nation throughout, wonder what the NRA agents are going to do about the thing.

Ever since the epochal heads-I-win-tails-you-lose decision in the gold clause tangle, we've been sitting on edge, wondering how the Supreme Court would ever get around a straight-from-the-shoulder attack against the NRA as unconstitutional. The boys didn't get around it, so Washington is now up a storm.

It would be murder to let the NRA off the deep end at the present time. So many people are directly or indirectly connected with the organization that a discontinuance would aggravate matters to a pitch never before reached. But lots of us are getting pretty well fed up with some of the Rooseveltian policies and sooner or later, despite all the legislation the NRA boys will put in to counter-act the Court's decision, hell's going to pop loose and then NRA is going ker-flop.

We are hoping for the best. One thing is certain, we collegians will be on the ground floor regardless of what happens.

ALUMNI LOYALTY

This alumni loyalty funds drive instigated by Mr. Felix Grisette and his staff doesn't look like any playing matter. It seems to be a serious attempt to do something about the University financial needs.

It is logical that we call on our alumni to help us. It is more than a sentimental "alma materism"; it is a serious and necessary action which should be taken on both sides in the light of mutual understanding.

AWARDS NIGHTERS BOW TO DANCERS, POSTPONE EVENT

Henderson Will Make Address; House, Medynski Expected To Entertain.

TO BE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

Running into difficulties again this year with Phoebe Barr's male dancers' Memorial hall program, Awards Night has been postponed from tomorrow night to Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Since the followers of Terpsichore had arranged for the hall long in advance, the boys will have to go without their medals for one more day.

House's Harmonica Again

Definite plans have not been made yet for the program, but rumor has it that Dean R. B. House will once more drag forth his trusty harmonica and that Jule Medynski will do another Bing Crosby. During early preparations a move was on foot to have all senior superlatives display their charms with appropriate placards to designate them, but all asked modestly declined, deeming their recent publicity in the Buccaneer quite sufficient. Program Director Harper Barnes is concocting a couple of skits and is arranging for several songs to be rendered.

Henderson Is Speaker

Dr. Archibald Henderson, versatile mathematician, biographer and football fan, will make the Awards Night address. Jack Pool will officiate as the genial master of ceremonies. An orchestra has been planned to provide soothing music for these savage breasts, but no definite one has been decided upon.

From University students who have done outstanding work in scholarship, athletics, and other extra-curricular activities will be selected those who will receive their trophies Friday.

COMMITTEE SETS SUMMER DANCES

Comer's Group Announces Plans For Weekly Friday-Saturday Dances With Specials.

The summer school social committee has just completed the set-up for the dance program for the coming summer, Harry F. Comer, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday.

Public dances will be given every Friday and Saturday night throughout the summer, with an occasional special dance in addition.

Fred Koch, Jr., and Jimmy Fuller have been given the contract for a ten-to-twelve piece orchestra, which will play for all the dances. Fuller will direct the orchestra while Koch will act as business manager for the organization.

Moore Is Head Marshal

George Moore has been appointed head marshal for the dances, with six assistant marshals. The assistant marshals are: Don Seawell, W. P. Allen, Francis Fairley, John Walker, Cecil Ernst, and W. J. Moore.

As doorkeeper, the committee appointed George Bates who will be assisted by Fred Van Sant.

F. Edgar Thomas will operate the drinks concession. N. T. Patterson and George Stoney will act as care-takers of the building and Louie Turner and Billy Seawell will have charge of the decorations. Tom Bost will operate the dancing school.

GRAHAM SPEAKS

President Frank P. Graham made a trip yesterday to Red Springs to render the commencement address at Flora MacDonald College. This was also the occasion of the college's bi-centennial celebration.

Graham will give the commencement speech next Monday at the University of Chattanooga in Tennessee.

Finals To Bring Prominent Alumnus, Ex-Rutgers Quarterback To Campus

Former Jew's Harp Player Hal Kemp and Campus Hero Ozzie Nelson Will Be Accompanied by Maxine Grey, "Skinnay" Ennis, And "Lovely" Harriet Hillard; Joe Penner Missing.

When the German Club sponsors the annual Finals set of dances here June 6-8, it will bring to the campus not only one of the University's most prominent alumni in Hal Kemp but also a former Rutgers quarterback, Ozzie Nelson.

Kemp started on his musical career at a rather tender age, three years old, according to his mother, a native of Charlotte. He started by watching his sister practice her piano lessons and then a bit later struck out on his own, learning to play the Jew's harp with some proficiency.

"Merrymakers"

At the age of 10 he was doing so well that he was engaged to play in a military band for a while. In 1919 he entered the Alexander Graham Junior High School in Charlotte and soon organized the "Merrymakers," a small orchestra. His triumph was when the orchestra, opening with "The Song of India," won a prize in a local contest sponsored by one of the vaudeville exchanges.

At the University he made the orchestra without difficulty and soon learned to play most of the wind instruments. Later he organized his own orchestra, the success of which in a few years has brought him to the forefront as one of the country's outstanding orchestra leaders.

Traveling Man

Kemp's list of past bookings looks like a roster of all the better known European hotels and watering places. He started the going abroad habit when he was in college, taking his band, composed of University students, to the Piccadilly hotel in London, after his first year on the campus.

Thereafter, each summer meant just another boat ride with the goal either the Cafe de Paris or Les Ambassadeurs, smart Parisian rendezvous. At the Cafe de Paris Kemp met the Prince of Wales and there followed an engagement in London and later another at Ostend, Belgium.

Coming back to America, he was enthusiastically received in Chicago at the Trianon and the Blackhawk. His more recent engagements include the Adolphus hotel in Dallas, William Penn hotel in Pittsburgh, the Lowry hotel in St. Paul, and his present engagement at the Hotel

BARRON, HOLLAND WIN GRAHAM PRIZE

Faculty Decides to Divide $400 Commerce Award Equally Between Two Men.

The school of commerce faculty yesterday selected Raymond L. Barron of Charlotte and Nesbit R. Holland of Charles as joint winners of the Joseph Lewis Graham scholarship award.

At a meeting of the faculty, votes were divided equally between the two contestants, so it was decided to split the $400 stipend between them. Last year Frank Abernethy received the full $400.

The scholarship was established by John Stephen Graham of Charlotte in honor of his father, Joseph Lewis Graham. The bases upon which the scholarship is awarded according to the stipulations of its founder, are scholarship, leadership, activities in school affairs, and evidence of executive ability.

DI EATS WEAVER'S FOOD BUT ELECTS VERNER NEW HEAD

Don McKee Chosen to Serve as President Pro-Tem.

Bill Weaver's punch and refreshments rolled free last night in the Di Senate as James Verner, rising senior from Asheville, was elected president for the fall quarter.

The other officers named were: Don McKee, president pro-tem; Robert Williams, critic; T. P. Yeatman, clerk; William Cochrane, sergeant-at-arms; and J. H. I. Coffield, treasurer.

Senator Verner, who has served during the past quarter as chairman of the committee on charms, won his office by defeating Bill Weaver of Chapel Hill, former president pro-tem.

Newly-named President Verner was eulogized in the course of the elections by James Floyd Fletcher as "a straight forward gentleman, highly capable of handling the job."

The voting on Senators Williams, Yeatman, and McKee was unanimous.

Reports on the work of the past quarter were made by Senator Russell on the treasury, Weaver on the ways and means committee, Sergeant-at-arms Yeatman on the roll, and Clerk Stein on the condition of the minutes.

Senator William Palmer Hudson of Chapel Hill was appointed by the new president to be chairman of the committee on membership which will send letters to prospective University students this summer, and Senators Russell and Williams were appointed to revise the constitution.

TEN MEN TO JOIN MARINE RESERVES

Only 10 Out of 29 Applicants Chosen by Major Fagan After Physical Examination.

Ten men out of 29 applicants were selected late yesterday afternoon by Major L. E. Fagan, U. S. M. C., of Savannah, Ga., to represent the University in the Marine training corps at Quantico, Va., this summer.

After being put through a very stiff physical examination, 16 of the would-be Marines were rejected, while 13 passed the physical requirements. Other qualifications were based on campus standing, personal impression, and recommendation of deans.

Marine Reserve

Fagan stated that the purpose of this summer training camp is to establish a Marine reserve among college graduates. Men will be in attendance from colleges of the entire nation, drawn from institutions that do not have R. O. T. C.

In describing the camp at Quantico, the major painted a very attractive picture, telling of a 10,000-acre territory, barracks containing modern equipment, "kitchens that rival those of the Waldorf-Astoria," and a swimming pool 150 feet in length. That is not to speak of the fine beer taps, where a huge mug may be secured on tap for five cents.

Of those selected, five were juniors and five sophomores. These future officers are: Juniors: J. Y. Barnett, R. E. Smithwick, D. T. Robinson, A. F. Davis and Cecil B. Culbreth; sophomores: F. G. Umstead, H. E. Braswell, Jr., W. L. Cavin, J. R. Erickson, and R. L. Stricker.

No Draft

All candidates were examined during the afternoon, received their appointments at 6 p. m., and met at 7 o'clock to have their fingerprints recorded. Fagan emphasized that by thus enlisting, the men would not be subject to the draft, but would only be called to service on declaration of war, or in case of a national emergency; for example, a severe general strike.

The training period starts on July 10, and will continue through six weeks of intensive preparation such as bush fighting and rifle drill. Those officers who conducted the examination yesterday are: Lieutenant Colonel E. F. Lowry of the medical corps, U. S. M. C., Raleigh;

FRANKLIN TO OPEN FINAL EXERCISES BY SERMON JUNE 9

Seminary Head Accepts Dr. Binkley's Invitation to Deliver Baccalaureate Address.

HAS TRAVELED WIDELY

Dr. James Henry Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pa., has agreed to preach the baccalaureate sermon here June 9, opening the 1935 commencement exercises.

Dr. Franklin comes here on an invitation tended him by Dr. O. T. Binkley, pastor of the Baptist church. He will arrive Saturday, June 8, and will be the guest of Administrative Dean and Mrs. R. B. House.

On a recent visit to Chapel Hill, Dr. Franklin announced that his subject would be "Guardians of Light and Love."

Distinguished Speaker

Those who know Dr. Franklin consider him one of the most interesting speakers in America today. He has been guest speaker many times at the leading educational institutions on three continents, and has been received with much enthusiasm throughout the United States.

Dr. Franklin was foreign secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society for 22 years. Fifteen months ago he accepted the presidency of Crozer Theological Seminary. While serving as secretary of the Baptist Foreign Mission Society, Dr. Franklin spent much of his time in China, Japan, the Philippines, Europe and Africa.

In 1919 Dr. Franklin was sent to study the religious and reconstruction work in the devastated area of France, and

Firemen Quench Rock Inn Blaze By Bold Stroke

Students Find Blaze Momentary Amusement.

The boys who breakfast at the Rock Inn on Old Fraternity Row, were rather rudely interrupted yesterday morning when fire broke out in the southern end of the attic at 8:23 o'clock.

An alarm was immediately turned in and the local firefighters rushed to the scene. It was necessary for the big red truck to go almost halfway around the block in order to swing into the Row by the Swain hall entrance.

Meanwhile students rushing to make their eight-thirties, took temporary French leave in order to watch the flames, which by this time were roaring merrily away under the eaves.

The red behemouth of the Chapel Hill fire department came to a grinding halt in front of the Inn, and volunteers joined in directing the rather feeble stream of water at the ever mounting flames.

It was then that some unknown hero suggested that they attack the fire from within. Dragging the snake-like hose behind them they advanced bravely into the burning building. In a few moments the conflagration was quenched and the victors roared bravely back to their firehouse retreat for another hand of pinochle, or perhaps, solitaire.

INTRAMURAL DIRECTOR

There are several points to be cleared up as regards our intramural program.

In the first place, the "physical education fee" of $1.25 per quarter is not an intramural fee; it was levied for use by the Athletic Association in general student physical training. It goes to the same general fund that the sports-spectator fee goes and is not itemized in expenditure.

In the second place, the Athletic Association, since taking over intramurals in 1932, actually has received less money than it did before intramurals were tacked on as one of its functions.

In the third place, much of the money which has been expended for student physical training will not show up on an intramural schedule or in an expenditure sheet. Maintenance of fields, courts, and other physical plants consumes much of the money, if we take a theoretical sum as a base.

In the fourth place, the intramural program is more far-reaching than participations show. The provisions for tennis, for instance, are not included in a report of intramural activities.

We mentioned recently that too much of the intramural fee was going to the general fund and, ostensibly, for the maintenance of varsity and freshman sports, and too little to the program itself. In light of the first fact above, this statement does not hold water, as the intramural program is not specifically provided for by certain fees.

There is no doubt that the intramural program should be extended. But there is another side to the question which is little considered. That embraces the students themselves.

It would be safe to say that participation in intramurals could have been doubled during the last year if non-participating students had overcome enough inertia to enter into the sport. This shows the need for student organization.

Furthermore, it can be safely said that intramurals perhaps were not attractive enough to effect any overthrow of inertia. Here again is emphasized the need for personal supervision and construction.

The main trouble has been found in the dormitories, where little organization and little incentive because of the difficulty in "making the team" have caused much sluggishness in intramural programs, except in a few outstanding exceptions.

What could be more logical than to provide a full-time man to serve as intramural director and dormitory co-ordinator. He would be the much-needed dean of students, the common friend, the director and sympathizer in student exercise and expression.

He would be away from South building and out on the field with the boys. He would be able to get around among the dormitories and talk about things. He would carry out many of the ideas of dormitory "big brother." He would arrange intramural programs to suit all, to be comprehensive and still enjoyable.

That's the man we want. Our intramural program is not failing. It merely needs a little touching up, a little personal superintending, which the present director, working part-time and burdened with other duties, cannot give. Our present director is an ideal man for the new job; then he would be able to put in ideas he's had for years but which never have materialized.

Under this plan, the Athletic Council would have to put out more money for intramurals, but we bet it wouldn't begrudge a nickel of it, because of the results it would bring. The plan would eminently carry out the ideals of intramural activity: to give students the opportunities to play, for the sheer delight of exercising and having a good time.

Let's work it out on this basis.

COLLEGE PRESS

He Hurts Not Us, But Himself

Because three gentlemen connected with the University of North Carolina have interested themselves in the defense of members of a textile union who have been convicted of dynamiting mill property at Burlington during the recent strike, Dave Clark, editor of the Textile Bulletin, has launched another broadside at the University accusing it of teaching "atheism, socialism, and communism."

That Mr. Clark in the course of a speech at Chapel Hill confessed himself unable to define the word "socialism" has little important bearing on the case.

His position is understandable. He edits a trade publication for textile manufacturers. As such an editor he naturally is opposed to the dynamiting of mills and the promulgation of the policy of government-ownership of industry.

So, we take it, are the majority of the people of the United States.

The inferential accusation, however, that Messrs. Couch, Ericson, and Green, of the University, support dynamiting when they undertake to defend unionists accused of the crime, is far-fetched.

There is such a thing as abstract justice and there are still (thank God) people who are willing to go to bat for human rights.

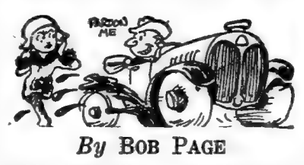
Contention of the University trio is not that violence is right, but that in the particular Burlington instance the case of the convicted men was so inadequately presented to the courts that they, possibly, were convicted of a crime they did not commit; and that they are being railroaded to prison, not because they were dynamiters, which they had no right to be, but because they were the handiest scape-goats to expiate an inadequately proven crime.

Ultimately the appellate courts of the state will pass on the contested case and it has been our observation that the judicial system of the state is so constructed that the defendant gets more than an even break.

Unfortunately, Mr. Clark is not hurting strike violence by his attitude. He is inadvertently creating for it a mistaken sympathy by linking it with liberalism in the broad gauge of his attacks.

Nor is he hurting organized labor. On the other hand, he is giving it a dignity it has not been able to attain of its own efforts in this state by making it co-defendant with the University of North Carolina, a dignified and beloved institution of profound influence, in an action before the bar of public opinion in which the textile industry is cast in the role of prosecuting witness.

It is the textile industry which is the loser by Mr. Clark's continued attacks on the University of North Carolina, because he is creating a potential enmity toward the textile industry in the hearts of those who love the University.



During the textile strike the worst enemies of the unions were the irresponsible members whose zeal led them to acts of violence which besmirched the entire union membership, a large percentage of which was law-abiding.

Today the respect for the textile industry is being imperiled by reckless and irresponsible attacks of one closely connected with it upon the fountain head of liberalism in North Carolina. —Fayetteville Observer.

SPLASHES

By Bob Page

That definite feeling of tension and strain which always marks the approach of final exams has already started creeping up on most of us. With the realization that the deadly grind is only five more days away, we suddenly recall those term papers that we should have been working on all quarter but invariably put off until the last week. It suddenly becomes a difficult proposition to find a seat in the library, that large white building which we last saw just before spring holidays.

Our erstwhile playmates assume a strange, diligent look, bury their noses in massive volumes, and appear slightly puzzled when they get an inkling of what those three courses they registered for are all about. But it will all come out in the wash. Even if it doesn't there are Finals at which to console ourselves.

And they rather look like they'll be worth staying over for even if we do burn up in the Tin Can. Kemp for two Friday dances and Ozzie Nelson for two Saturday is the way they're stacked up now. The German Club voted to start them off with a Thursday night dance but no orchestra has been signed as yet.

Hal is bringing those campus favorites with him again—Maxine Gray and "Skinnay" Ennis. Ozzie will have with him one Harriet Hilliard, the sex appeal of his radio broadcasts with goofy Joe Penner on Sunday nights. These personalities form a combination which lovers of good dance music won't miss seeing and hearing. We'll meet you there a week from tomorrow night. And with these exams out of the way and nothing on our mind as usual, we are all set to have a big time. The Queen will be present once more. Look us up and, despite the Bronx cheers Diz threw our way in the Buccaneer, we'll introduce you to the right one. We're waiting to see who'll be on the Delta Psi party this time.

Speaking of the Buccaneer reminds us to throw a scented bouquet in Nelson Lansdale's general direction. Despite the fact that many people figured he had been miscast in the role of editor of the comic mag, he crashed through with what we consider the best issue since we've been here. His auspicuous start leads us to hope for big things from him next year.

While we are tossing the compliments around, we have to throw one to Proff Koch's prodigies, the Playmakers, for their excellent presentation of Hamlet. We were just about to join Jake Snyder's Anti-Playmaker organization, but we'll have to reconsider now.

About the only thing left on the schedule for this quarter is the annual Awards Night. Originally scheduled for tomorrow night, it had to be postponed until Friday night because Phoebe Barr and her boys had engaged Memorial hall for tomorrow night more than a year ago, as one authority told us.

Since our plans to clutter the campus with a summer Tar Heel have been so expertly blasted, we won't be with you this summer as we had planned. We'll still be connected with the University on one of those nice correspondence courses, however. What we are driving at is that we are just bidding you au revoir for this year until Wednesday morning, September 25, or thereabouts.

Before we take our leave, however, we must pass on the one handed us yesterday by Y. M. C. A.'s Jessie Grier. As he told it there were three men in a boat out in the middle of the ocean. They had four cigarettes with them, all wanted to smoke, but they had no matches nor any way to light them. After thinking the problem over very deliberately, they simply threw one of the cigarettes overboard and made the boat a cigarette lighter. Sounds pretty practical at that.

Well, good-bye until next fall. Take the summer easy.

"Story" Contest

Phillips Russell, professor of creative writing, stated yesterday that although the stories entered from the University in the April short story contest held by "Story" magazine, did not receive prizes, Editor Whit Burnett of the magazine said that they "were among the manuscripts in the best thought of group of entries this year."

Leonard Rapport and John Fredric Butler were the authors of the stories submitted from this University.

NOT UNPRAISED

To the Editor,
Daily Tar Heel:

I am sorry to have written so long a review of Hamlet that editorial surgery was necessary. The knife fell on my praise of settings, costumes, musical effects, and stage-pictures, and I feel that work requiring so much skill and hard labor, displaying so much genius, should not go unpraised by the reviewer.

Finally, if I may speak more exuberantly, enthusiastically, than in an analytical review—it was a swell show, simply swell!

S.A.E. Gains Fraternity Crown By Win Over Phi Delt Nine, 5-0

Webb Stars at Plate; Harris Shines in Field

Both Pitchers Allow Opposing Teams Only Five Hits; Errors Costly to Losers.

RUFFIN vs. RINGERS TODAY

Led by Webb's two hits, the S. A. E.'s intramural baseball team clinched the fraternity championship by shutting out the Phi Delta Theta's, 5-0.

Webb started the scoring when he reached second on an error, advanced to third on Freeman's single, and then stole home. Bell also reached first by an error as Freeman was scoring and then came home on another error. Scott and Conner scored for the winners in the fifth inning rally.

Webb Stars

Webb took batting honors for the S. A. E.'s with two hits out of three trips to the bat. He also starred at second base. Harris proved himself to be the outstanding star in the field when he made a double play unassisted in the fifth inning.

Mosier gave up only five hits to the winners and did not give a base on balls, but his teammates made ten errors to account for part of the scoring. Wolslagel starred at bat for the losers with two hits out of three trips to the bat.

Ruffin vs. Ringers

Ruffin dormitory will meet the strong Ringers outfit this afternoon for the dormitory championship in intramural baseball. Both teams have a bunch of heavy hitters as well as good pitchers.

ARCHERY TEAMS WILL MEET TODAY

Second Half of Co-ed Tourney to Be in Emerson at 5 P. M.

The second half of the co-ed archery tournament, previously scheduled for yesterday, will be played this afternoon at 5 o'clock sharp on the green acres of Emerson stadium.

The Flaming Arrows, led by Mary McKee, will attempt to overcome the 139-135 lead which Captain Mary Henry and her Deers assumed after the first day's play.

Due to their expert shooting on Monday, the Deers are favored to hold their slight lead tenaciously, and thereby win this annual bow and arrow tournament.

The girls have adhered faithfully to the strict training rules and will be in perfect physical condition for this afternoon's encounter. Both aggregations are equally confident that "Lady Luck" will favor them in what should turn out to be a closely contested match.

The Zeta Psi and S. A. E. tennis teams started their match for the right to meet Kappa Alpha in the fraternity league championship, but after the singles matches they were exactly where they started—even.

The doubles sets could not be played because of S. A. E.'s scheduled baseball game, and will be played today instead.

In the first singles Cope defeated Harrison in straight sets 6-4, 6-2, but Stokes kept the Zetas in the running by downing Poe 6-3, 6-4.

WOMEN ATHLETES TO GET INSIGNIA

Outstanding Freshman Co-eds Will Get Numerals.

For the first time in University history co-ed athletes will be awarded monograms. Women students who have been outstanding in athletics will be presented with insignia smaller, but somewhat similar to the regular N. C. monograms at the banquet of the Women's Athletic Association to be held at 6 o'clock tonight at Spencer hall. Freshmen co-eds who have been outstanding in their gym work and other athletic activities will receive numerals.

President Graham will deliver the principal talk and Mrs. Beard, women's athletic director, will present the awards. Mrs. Stacy, dean of women, and Dean House will attend.

All girls wishing to attend who have not made reservations are asked to call Elsie Lawrence.

Ross Wins!

(Special Radio Bulletin)

Polo Grounds, New York, May 28.—Although outclassed in the earlier rounds, Barney Ross, challenger and favorite, came back strong to win the decision over McLarnin. By gaining the judges' decision at the end of the 15th round, Ross won the welterweight title.

Writer Continues Tennis Gossip

By LEN RUBIN

Gazing over the frosh roster, one is tempted to offer sympathy to Coach Kenfield when one realizes that the burden of selecting next year's varsity will fall upon him. . . .

Now take a glance at the laurels some of the frosh players have attached to their names. . . . Fuller is 3rd ranking senior in New England . . . Potts is southern junior champion, 4th junior in the U. S., and 5th senior in Dixieland . . . Robinson formerly held the Canadian junior championship . . . Foreman is ranked as the 23rd junior in the nation . . . Farrell is the 10th best junior in the east and Vic Strasberger, Farrell's teammate in New York, holds the 18th rank in that section. . . .

Unbeaten

Three yearlings went undefeated; Fuller, Potts, and Robinson . . . Foreman bowed to Mahoney of Scarboro and Farrell to a youth at Episcopal for their only defeats . . . some team . . .

The grape-vine says that Mahoney, red-headed, smiling, with a wild appearance on the courts, and a marvel with the racquet, is headed for Carolina next year . . . well, come!

Ramsay Potts or Eddy Fuller? . . . that is a freshman perplexity . . . in their first argument on the courts, Ramsay stopped Eddy in three sets, and directly before their trip Eddy took Ramsay in two . . . therefore? . . . however, they are a corking doubles team . . .

Potts

Potts is sure to be near the top of the ladder when the varsity team will be decided next season . . . Only Sunday we heard the enlightening news that Ramsay stopped Levitan, Southern Conference champ, at Sedgefield the other day . . . won in three sets 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 . . . and don't forget the time he squelched Frank Shore in the varsity-frosh match . . .

And as another don't, don't disregard the fact that Potts and Fuller routed Levitan and De Gray in an exhibition doubles . . . took place at the Tilden classic, with the frosh winning over the state and Southern Conference doubles title-holders in three runaway sets. . . .

Getting on to other bits of interesting news . . . Wilmer Hines, former U. N. C. captain, is still keeping his head above water in the hard-court French championships . . . Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist won the doubles by beating two of their countrymen in the final . . . speaks well for Australia. . . .

Bitsy

Bitsy Grant lost only one set in his Davis Cup singles against China and Mexico . . . The U. S. beat Mexico only 4-1 when Gene Mako had to default because of a bad leg . . . He was substituting for "Red" Budge, who, believe it or not, lost 18 pounds in 16 days and was forced to drop out of competition . . .

Not more than 18 people came for Tilden's second exhibition in the Tin Can . . . reminds one of the table tennis affair . . . to think that 1,200 packed the arena for their first showing . . . and we wanted a glimpse of Bruce Barnes, holder of 13 titles . . .

Bill Tilden won the SOUTHERN professional championship the other day . . . it was a great honor, considering that there were not more than six entered.

NEW DORMS HOLD QUICK ELECTIONS

Busick Will Head Dormitories; McDade Vice-President.

Battle-Vance-Pettigrew dormitories, always confident of victory over their female assailers, quickly put into action their machinery for electing officers Monday when they learned the dormitories will sport the masculine attire next year.

For president, John Busick was re-elected, opposed by Cornell Wagner and John Armfield. The vice-president, Curtiss McDade, was opposed by Marc Adderholt.

At the nomination for officers only one representative of Battle was present, so his nomination, Louis Turner, is councilman for Battle without being voted on. Vance councilmanship was hotly contested, with the result that Leonard Miller and Paul Livingston will have a run-off election Friday.

Ben Witherington won the Pettigrew office of councilman, over Eddy Goldenthal.

The nominations were held Sunday in the back of Vance. Several members of the dormitory were present. The dormitory inspector, McIver, and the dormitory laundry agent, Bar-

NORMENT QUARLES FIGHTS TOWBRIDGE TOMORROW NIGHT

Bout at Atlanta to Be Second Fight with Opponent; Quarles To Battle Jacobs in June.

WJTL TO BROADCAST BOUT

With the clang of the bell, Norment Quarles will spring from his corner in the ring at Atlanta tomorrow night to battle it out with "Snag" Towbridge.

By no means will Norm be fighting a strange opponent. Last February, Quarles gained a close decision over Towbridge in West Palm Beach, Fla. The next opponent after Norm's fight tomorrow will be Stumpy Jacobs, the same man Quarles gained a decision over in a Durham ring recently. Jacobs will be met on June 26, in Norfolk.

Joins Harvey

After the fight in June, Quarles will go to New York where he will join Charles Harvey, his new manager. Harvey is also manager of Steve Hamas, who, incidentally, was a prominent collegiate boxer from the University of Pennsylvania. If the present number of scheduled bouts can be used as an indication, it looks as if Harvey will provide plenty of action for Quarles.

Students will get one of their first chances to hear a blow-by-blow description of Norm in action as the fight will be broadcasted tomorrow evening over Station WJTL.

PLAYMAKERS SEE CLOSE OF SEASON

Experimentals Mark Next to Last Production; Commencement Appearance Last.

The Carolina Playmakers formally tread their histronic boards today for the next to the last time this year when they present two bills of experimental dramas, at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m., respectively.

With the exception of the informal and riotous capers Saturday night, the only Playmaker appearance after today will be at commencement, as usual.

Public Invited

The public is invited to both performances today, which will be in the Playmakers theatre, four in the afternoon and three at night. Criticism of the plays will be expected by the authors of the audience, following a precedent set this year which has proved very valuable to the writers.

The plays have all been written, cast, and directed by students of the University playwriting course, which in the past has turned out such prominent dramatists and novelists as Paul Green and Thomas Wolfe.

Authors of today's productions are: Vergil Lee, Ella Mae Daniel, Ralph Lyerly, Mildred Moore, Ellen Deppe, Wilbur Dorsett, and Jean Ashe. The directors are: Lee, Sammie Ruth Bell, Margaret Wallace, Kenneth Bartlett, Eloise Sheppard, Lyerly, and Miss Ashe.

LIBRARY SENIORS INSPECT WOMAN'S SCHOOL LIBRARY

The graduating class of the school of library science spent Monday afternoon in Greensboro visiting the library of the Woman's College, and the Joseph Ruzicka Bindery, which does the binding of the University library, as well as that of many other libraries throughout the southeast.

Of particular interest to the group at the Woman's College library was the reading room which is similar to the "Browsing Room" advocated by some people for the University library.

The reading room contains books which should appeal to the students simply to read for their own pleasure. The room is tastefully furnished with lounging chairs, rugs, and tables; while the bookshelves are arranged around the walls.

EDUCATORS PLAN HISTORY FOR ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS

The history division of the Curriculum Construction Committee met yesterday at Peabody hall in the first of several meetings that will be continued through tomorrow. The committee, composed of a dozen teachers, principals, and supervisors of state schools, is beginning the compilation of a course of study for history in the elementary schools of the state.

The committee will make the outline and general plan for writing the course of study. This work will go on during the summer in the form of summer school laboratory courses of study writing in the University of North Carolina, Eastern Carolina Teachers' College, and Western Carolina Teachers' College. The courses of study will be ready for the use of teachers in the elementary schools by September.

wick, made eloquent speeches from their rooms and in other ways disturbed the gathering. They were stopped by the prolonged disapproval of the assembled New Dormers.

WOLFE FEATURED IN NEW PLAYBOOK

Publication Recalls Author of "Of Time and the River."

Thomas Wolfe, author of "Of Time and the River," who is remembered here as a former Playmaker, is featured in the June issue of the Carolina Playbook, with two pictures of him in Playmaker roles and a breezy, interesting Koch reminiscence of tall, gangly young Wolfe as a member of the original Playmakers group and the only male student in his playwriting course.

The Carolina Negro theatre movement is traced in another editorial by Koch.

One more native Carolina folk product is included, a selection from Rebecca Cushman's "Swing Your Mountain Gal," a recently issued volume containing sketches in verse of life in the southern highlands.

A very authentic caricature of Proff Koch at a "Hamlet" rehearsal, sketched by Pat McCoy, is also included.

Other articles are contributed by John Parker, Sam Selden, and Loretto Carroll Bailey; and Lena Tuttle's by now oft-seen sketch of the setting for "Hamlet" is present.

Pennsylvania in New York City, where he will return at the close of his tour.

With Kemp will be Maxine Gray, of "Nasty Man" fame, and "Skinnay" Ennis, who has made himself popular on the air with such songs as "Got a Date With an Angel," "Let's Put Out the Light," "Two Faced Woman," "You're an Old Smoothie," and "Look Who's Here."

Besides being a football hero, Ozzie Nelson seems to have dabbled in everything at Rutgers, including boxing, debating, swimming, Lacrosse, publications, president of Student Council, art, and leading a dance band.

Carrying his campus versatility into his work, beside singing, he can play every instrument in the band except the violin, and the violin is the only instrument he ever studied. His comedy, novelty numbers and his duets with lovely Harriet Hilliard are well known to radio audiences. He is headlined in vaudeville, records for Brunswick and Vocalion, and is costarred with Joe Penner on the Bakers broadcast over the NBC network every Sunday night.

Ozzie wasn't satisfied just to get to the top. He wanted to stay there. That is why he developed his unusual style of singing. His spare time went into concentrated thinking on how to make his band stand out from the crowd—make it different from the general run.

He found another voice that fitted in perfectly with this new style, and the voice belonged to Harriet Hilliard. They teamed up as "boy and girl" singing duo. The Nelson-Hilliard combination and the orchestra began to attract attention. The climax was reached when they were signed for the Bakers broadcast.

Harriet likes football and new shoes. Her favorite dish is chicken a la king. Her favorite orchestra is Ozzie Nelson's and her favorite orchestra leader is Ozzie Nelson.

Besides these two well known orchestras, the German Club is carrying on negotiations to secure another prominent band for Thursday. The set will probably open with a Thursday night dance, continue with a tea dance and evening dance Friday, and end up with a morning dance, a tea dance and an evening dance Saturday. Kemp will play Friday and Nelson Saturday.

Freshman Handbook To Have Many New Sections, Features

Featured in the 1935-36 Carolina Freshman Handbook will be a new section on the scholastic side of University life, it was announced yesterday by Don McKee, editor of the publication.

An application of the new curriculum, a brief article on the use of the University library, hints on studying, and general helps in orientating first-year men to the class room procedure at Carolina will be set forth in this scholarship section.

According to Editor McKee, Jim Daniel will have supervision over this part of the Handbook. The article on the University libray and its uses will be contributed by O. V. Cook, head of the circulation department.

A letter to freshmen on how to study reading assignments will be written by Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department. Included with the new curriculum outline will be a chart giving a bird's eye view of the recent curriculum revisions.

Student Government

A special section of the Handbook, dedicated to student government, will be written by William M. Cochrane. This part of the publication will give a concise picture of student government at Carolina and the relation of the various campus governing boards and committees to the Student Council. A full explanation of the honor system will also be presented.

Two full pages will be given over to the Woman's Association, co-ed activities, and student government at Carolina. Bob Garland will have charge of this sketch.

Mac Smith will prepare a section on University traditions, history and the Consolidation set-up and will be aided by Drew Martin in presenting to the class of '39 the variety of student activities at Carolina. Fraternity life will also be duly represented.

Sports Section

Ira Sarasohn, co-sports editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and Fletcher Ferguson will have charge of the sports section of the book. All the write-ups of the athletic teams will be approached from the freshman's point of view, and first-year men will be told exactly how to go about trying out for the various sports.

Displayed in the sports section will be a chart showing the standing of Carolina athletic teams during the past year in state and Southern Conference competition.

Churches

Through the co-operation of the University News Bureau, pictures will be carried in the church section of the Handbook of all of the local pastors.

The freshman orientation week program, together with explanations of the registration procedure and system of student counseling, will be handled by Emmet Spicer.

In charge of the business side of the publication are Byron Wolfe and Bill Evans, copy reader and type setter, respectively, for the DAILY TAR HEEL.

The publication will come out about the middle of August and will be printed by the Orange Printshop, publishers of the campus daily.

Postal Clerks See Daily Sideshow

A soot-black little Nigger—pickaninny to gentlemen from the north—timidly approached the grilled window of the general delivery booth in the postoffice.

"Mistuh," he said shyly, "mamma wants a three-cent stam' and would y'all min' puttin' it in a sack?"

"Why in a sack?" questioned the man behind the grill.

"Well," answered the little darky, "mamma cussed the las' time I brung back a stam'. She say why didn't th' dam man put it in a sack?"

Page Einstein

Then there was the frosh who, after asking for and getting five penny postcards, calmly inquired as to their cost—a future math major.

"Stamp" Lloyd, of the local socialite rendezvous (drug store to you, dope), is said to have acquired his nickname in our local stamp-shop. Some lady once asked Mr. Lloyd to lick a stamp for her. In his excitement he swallowed the stamp and has since been known as "Stamp" Lloyd.

Just as the postoffice furnishes the clerks with a free sideshow, so do the letters give him some addresses to puzzle his brain over.

Brain Teasers

Take, for example, the addresses on some of the letters Walter Creech, of the French department, former English teacher at Bergerac, France, receives from his ex-pupils:

Mr. Walter Devereax Creech
jr. Franklin Street
407 East Chapel
Hill North Carolina
U. S. A.

or

Sir Walter Devereax Creech
407 Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
North Californie

Only the other day a letter came which had for an address only a blurred picture cut from a newspaper and "Chapel Hill, N. C." Professor Phillips Russell got his letter.

More novel than these addresses is the one which was only a map showing Fetzer Lane with an arrow pointing at a house and the comment, "this is the house."

Smart, They Think

Would-be artists frequently address letters by drawing a wheelbarrow on the envelope with "Postman please carry to —" or a sign-post with the same directions.

These postoffice clerks have a good chance to see the way the mail runs. They say that girls are more economical than boys in buying stamps, but that in spite of the girls' economy, the boys get more mail than the girls do. Frats get more mail than dorms and sororities more, proportionately, than the "Shack." Lewis is undoubtedly the most popular dorm as far as getting mail goes. The clerks say that more mail comes in than goes out; that they handle quite a bit of the dead letter business; that during the football season the players get quite a lot of fan-mail.

When asked for their main gripe, the clerks selected the little habit of N. C. C. W. girls have of folding a sheet of stationery into a triangle, putting a stamp on one corner and mailing without benefit of envelope. That type of letter won't fit into the cancellation machine or into a batch of letters. It causes polite government clerks to lose their religion.

A naval officer reports that there is no liquor problem on the island of Guam. The United States might just as well abandon an island whose ways are so foreign to those of the rest of the nation.—Hartford Courant.

STUDY OF GERMAN GIVEN EQUAL RANK IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Metzenthin Reports Results of Raleigh Conference.

In the Raleigh office of J. H. Highsmith, director of the division of instructional service for the state of North Carolina, Professor E. C. Metzenthin attended several important meetings during the last weeks. The meetings were held in preparation of the new curricula for the public schools of the state.

Dr. Metzenthin was active in advocating the re-introduction of German into the schools of the state. Others interested in the German courses were Dr. L. E. Hinkle, head of the department of modern languages at the Raleigh unit; Dr. C. A. Krummel, professor of German at Duke University, and Mrs. A. C. Hall, teacher of German in the Raleigh high schools.

Equal Basis

It was decided that hence forth the teaching of German will be principally on the basis of equality with the other languages offered in the high schools of the state, Dr. Metzenthin said last night.

Dr. Metzenthin pointed out that this is important to the University because of the increasing demand for German teachers that may result. He predicted a consequent growth in the graduate schools of German majors.

INFIRMARY

Students confined in the infirmary yesterday were: Mack Wallace, R. L. Haygood, J. B. Foreman, W. N. Sloan, T. S. Bennet, Simmons Parker, Juanita Green, Laura Thomas, W. B. Carter, Mrs. H. S. Riddle, Ben Simmerman, J. H. Murnick.

LIBRARY NOTICE

All library books charged to students are due June 3. Books borrowed on June 3 and 4 must be returned on the 5th. After June 5 no books are to be taken from the library building without special permission.

WE NEED GOOD MEN Advisers in the four Everett-plan dormitories next year will be chosen soon. It is all-important that good men be selected for these positions if this plan is going to improve over its 1934-35 self.

One of the main troubles with the upperclassman adviser system has been the lack of time on the part of these advisers. They have regular curriculum work to do and not enough time to talk with the freshmen, et al. Furthermore, they have forgotten most of their freshman trigonometry and it's no fun learning the stuff over again just to find out the cosine of something for somebody.

It would be ideal to have enough money to award annual scholarships to graduate students, who would give half-time to the job of freshman advising. Excellent men from all over the country could be attracted.

But we haven't the money and our only compensation for the work is a free room. Let's hope this is good enough to attract the best possible local talent into these strategic positions.

ATHLETIC INERTIA "There is almost a perfect analogy between athletics and life. The athletic field is purely a laboratory of character building." So said Coach Bob Fetzer in the current issue of Tar Heel Topics, which will find its way out into the homes of prospective students.

Now what Coach Bob says is absolutely true, but it concerns only the man or woman after he or she is out on the field. But we hope the analogy does not fit them before they are participating, for the simple reason that so many of us are too lazy to engage in sports set up for our benefit, with the result that the analogy would make us all out to be a bunch of sluggards.

Setting up an intramural program is a ticklish job. Concessions must be made to taste, desire, ability, capacity, other pressing activities, etc. The toes of the professors must not be tread on, nor the heart of the student made to slow down to a walk.

After these things have been considered, however, you still have to make people participate. The horse has been led to water and all that stuff, but often it looks like he's pooped out before he gets around to drinking.

WHEAT AND THE CHAFF Every day we get letters, scads of them, from national anti-war organizations, quoting facts and figures galore and asking for editorial help in fighting war.

Students have been expressing themselves vigorously throughout the nation as opposed to war. We've wondered throughout the whole thing how much good it all will do; but we've participated, nevertheless, with the hope that something, however little, will definitely result which will minimize the imminence of

A New Adventure In Art

Fear . . . protest . . . resignation . . . understanding—these are the four stages embodied in "Death Carol," the solo that Phoebe Barr will dance tonight in Memorial hall as part of the program her group of creative dancers will present.

And by comparable steps—bewilderment . . . protesting reaction . . . protest fading . . . finally a glimpse of understanding—were we, poor ignorant writer, initiated at the dance rehearsal Tuesday night into what was to us an entirely new form of art. We went away very nearly bitten by the bug (if Mrs. Barr and her enthusiastic disciples will allow such a term) for this heretofore unknown art form, which, like all art, must grow on one rather than be immediately accepted and appreciated.

Liberal Education

More liberal education at the University of North Carolina, this opportunity to taste and pass personal judgment an another fruit from the Muse's wondrous garden.

Tonight's program, the first of its kind here since Nini Theilade's victorious advent and passing, seems well-balanced, with three sops (for like ourselves, the more ignorant portion of the audience) in the form of comic and ballet numbers, Bill Miller's "Pigwiggin's Courtship," which was interrupted Tuesday night when his gaudy trousers split; "Carnival," by Christine Maynard, Harry Coble and Miller; and "Banjo Song," done by Coble, Walter Terry, and Fred Howard to "Shortenin' Bread."

Two of the most beautiful dances, we think, are Ora Mae Davis' "Javanese Lament" and "Trope," based on an elaboration of the medieval church service in which four monks played the Easter story of the three Marys and the angel at the tomb of Christ.

"Marseillaise" and "Congo," both performed by the entire group, massive, stirring, and highly imaginative.

All this is what we think after attending the rehearsal. We believe the program tonight offers a fine opportunity to gain an insight into creative dancing.

The time is 8:30 p. m., and the admission price is 25 cents.

Hamilton To Be Alumni Marshal At Commencement Celebrations

MAGAZINE MAKES ENTRY TOMORROW

Final Issue Has Almost Same Format; Lead Story on Life In Mill Village.

The June and final issue of the Carolina Magazine will be released tomorrow.

In format, the Magazine will be almost the same as the preceding issue. The distinguishing features of the newest issue are more fiction and more humor.

The feature article, entitled, "Lowest on God's Green Earth," is a picture of life in a cotton mill town by a student who has lived in various textile communities for more than 20 years.

Pete Ivey writes the feature short story. "Scientific Stubbornness" concerns the world's greatest sales register.

Mixed Bag

Other articles are: "Art for Dirt's Sake," by a student who formerly wrote for "Paree" and magazines of that type, giving the psychology back of the pulp paper sex magazines; "In His Steps," by Jim Daniels—an article about America's second best seller, which brought its author only $200 royalties and is practically unknown today; "We Must Burn Our Books," a satirical shot at the right-wingers by Milton Kalb; "Old Greek Custom," a defense of "Hell Week" by a freshman who recently went through it.

Laundry

Students may get their laundry bundles at the Consolidated Service Plants office, 132 E. Franklin. All refunds on laundry deposits may be obtained in the Y. M. C. A. building Wednesday morning. Checks may be cashed at the Book Exchange.

The laundry department will also be open for a three-day service during Commencement week. Laundry will not be delivered at that time, however.

Members Class of '85 Will Be Honor Guests

Reunion Suppers, Alumni Luncheon, Awards in Loyalty Contest to Feature Program.

CHAPEL HILL NEWS REEL

Oscar A. Hamilton of Chapel Hill, former superintendent of schools in Goldsboro and Wilmington, has been named Alumni Commencement Marshal by Dr. Howard Rondthaler, president of Salem College, it was announced yesterday by Maryon Saunders of the alumni office.

Hamilton is an alumnus of the class of 1910. It is the custom every year to select the alumni marshal from the class holding their 25th reunion. His duties will be to supervise the alumni day program, Monday, June 10.

As a student Hamilton was very popular, making a name for himself in varsity baseball and as a member of Golden Fleece. At present he has two sons in the University.

Guests of Honor

Among the alumni planning to attend the commencement exercises at their reunion are members of the class of 1885. These men will be the guests of honor, celebrating their 50th anniversary of graduation. Of the 25 members of this class who secured degrees, 10 are now living; and there are 17 non-degree members also alive.

Josephus Daniels, also of the class of '85, will be present, and will take part in the program. Daniels, who has been ambassador to Mexico ever since Dwight Morrow died, yesterday made the commencement address at Wake Forest College.

Reunion suppers for the classes of '94, '95, '96, and '97 will be held at the Carolina Inn Sunday night, June 9, at 6:30. The main alumni luncheon will take place in Swain hall at 1 p. m., Monday, with members of the class of '85 holding seats of honor.

The classes of '85, '10 and '25 will hold their reunion class suppers Monday night, June 10,

MANGUM TO GIVE ATHLETIC AWARD TOMORROW NIGHT

Patterson Memorial Medal Will Go to Outstanding Athlete Recommended by Group.

AWARDS NIGHT FEATURE

The Patterson Memorial Medal, to be awarded to an outstanding athlete in the University, will be presented at the annual awards program tomorrow night in Memorial hall. Dr. Charles S. Mangum, himself a former wearer of an "NC," will present the medal.

The gold medal, given annually by Dr. Joseph F. Patterson of New Bern, a member of the class of 1905; Lieutenant-Commander D. F. Patterson of the U. S. Navy, and Albert F. Patterson of New Bern, commemorates their brother, John Durant Patterson, a student here in 1904-06, who died February 4, 1924. He was one of the mainstays of the Carolina baseball team in 1905-06.

High Honor

The award was established in 1924, and receiving the award is now considered one of the highest honors that can come to a University athlete. General excellence in athletics is adjudged by a special committee, the following points being considered in the selections: athletic ability, sportsmanship, morale, leadership, and general conduct. Dr. Joseph F. Patterson, who himself played baseball while in the University, has been most active in continuing the award.

Those who have won the medal in past years are: 1924, "Monk" McDonald; 1925, "Rabbit" Bonner; 1926, "Red" Whisnant; 1927, "Add" Warren; 1928, Galen Elliot; 1929; Henry Satterfield; 1930, Ray Farris; 1931, Henry House; 1932, Staton McIver; 1933, Stuart Chandler; 1934, Virgil Weathers.

YANDELL TO TAKE 15 TO BLUE RIDGE

Comer to Direct Association Hour at Y. M. C. A. Conference; Begins June 11.

Led by President of the Y. M. C. A. Billy Yandell, a University delegation of campus and "Y" leaders will attend the annual Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. conference when it convenes at Blue Ridge on June 11.

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University "Y," who will direct the association hour during the conference, will also accompany the local delegation.

Fifteen representatives from this campus have definitely decided to attend the conference which includes delegates from colleges and universities from 10 southeastern states. Nine others may attend.

There is a possibility that several co-eds may join the Blue Ridge delegation; in all probability they will be led by Jane Ross, newly elected president of the Woman's Association.

Those definitely decided to attend the convention are: Billy Yandell, Don McKee, Tres Yeatman, Bob Magill, Hogy Vick, Lee Richardson, Mack Smith, Harry Riggs, B. S. Smith, L. H. Fountain, S. B. Bradley, Ben Wyche, Francis Fairley, Paul McKee, and H. F. Comer.

Debaters Promise Rejuvenation Of Ancient Decadent Institution

Ozzie Nelson

This youthful maestro will bring his lovely partner, Harriet Hilliard, and his well known orchestra to the campus Saturday, June 8, to entertain members of the German Club at the last three dances of the annual Finals set.

MRS. BERNARD'S DEATH MOURNED

Wife of Dr. W. S. Bernard and State President of U. D. C. Dies in Durham.

Mrs. W. S. Bernard, wife of Dr. W. S. Bernard, professor of Greek in the University, died in Duke hospital early yesterday after a rather brief illness.

Mrs. Bernard, who was state president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, became ill a week ago, while making a tour of the eastern Carolina chapter of the organization.

Prominent in U. D. C.

She had long been associated prominently with the activities of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in North Carolina and had occupied several outstanding positions in that organization. Mrs. Bernard had also been an active leader in the life of the community, being connected with many activities. Her position of prominence in the community and state and her character commanded the respect of all who knew and came into contact with her.

In addition to Dr. Bernard, she is survived by two daughters, Misses Dewey Mitchel and Mary Stanley.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon in Chapel Hill.

NEW DORMS GET EVERETT SYSTEM

Bradshaw to Effect Changes in Lewis-Aycock-Graham.

Students rooming in Lewis, Aycock and Graham dormitories during the next year will live under the same plan that has been in effect in Everett this year, it was announced yesterday by Dean Bradshaw.

Bradshaw stated that there will be 24 adviserships open for all house plan dormitories. These men are to come from the senior class or from the graduate school, and will receive room rent for their services.

Only freshmen will be allowed to register for Graham and Everett, while Aycock and Lewis will be open for the use of both upper classmen and freshmen.

Applications for these adviserships should be filed in writing at once in the office of the dean of students.

Debate Council Plans Big 1935-36 Program

Arthur Henderson, Other Well-Known Outside Speakers, May Be Brought to Chapel Hill.

FREE TRIPS TO EUROPE

Stirred by popular campus enthusiasm in the last two debates of the year, a rejuvenated Debate Council in session Tuesday night laid out an ambitious program for the 1935-36 season and adopted policies calculated to bring debating again into the University's fold of pertinent activities.

Further faculty-student debates were approved, and subjects of campus-wide interest were suggested: abolishing comprehensive examinations, law students' participating in extra-curricular activities, etc.

Durfee Moves

The Council adopted Winthrop Durfee's motion to leaven the fare of debates on national and world problems with a sprinkling of humorous and serious debates on popular, state, and campus topics. Diversity of queries will be incorporated into the Council's policy to relieve the monotony of a few stock subjects, such as munitions, socialized medicine, and the New Deal.

Straws in the undergraduate winds indicate an enthusiastic turnout for debating next fall, in anticipation of the European trip promised to three deserving University debaters. Right-wing Stalwart Durfee will conduct three manoeuvers to clinch the expected interest: (1) speeches before freshmen assembly in the fall; (2) letters during the summer to incoming freshmen; (3) a section on debating in the Freshman Handbook.

Final affirmation of the expected European trip awaits the induction of the National Student Federation of America's new president July 1, since that organization sponsors the trip, but it is believed that the incoming president will not alter the plans of Carolina Graduate John Lang, incumbent president.

Radio Debate

Possibilities for the 1935-36 season speculated upon by the Council include a radio debate over station WPTF, Raleigh (such a match with the University of Virginia took place three years ago); and freshmen debates, either campus or intercollegiate.

Sponsoring more visiting speakers on the campus will be another extension of the Debate Council's policy. One speaker

SPREAD THE FEE

With the University Clubbers preparing for next fall's activities, which are the heaviest of the year, the question again arises, as it did last year, as to the advisability of tacking on some sort of student fee for this organization.

As to an additional fee, we are thoroughly against such an idea. Students are paying enough as it is. But it would be thoroughly practicable to utilize part of the present student union fee.

The Graham Memorial board of directors last year voted to give the club $100 to help finance the immense freshman smoker, which was the opening activity. It is probable that the same thing will occur this year.

Graham Memorial, the student union, runs a surplus. Undoubtedly it should have one, to take care of contingent needs and to have some sort of basis for the eventual expansion of the physical lay-out. But its functions could be greatly increased. Not only in its facilities but in its fee could it carry on the purposes for which it was organized.

The University Club is dealing with students directly, and student life. Its functions could easily be embraced by the fee which the student union receives. It seems logical that a portion of that fee should be quarterly turned over to the University Club, whose every move is considerably hampered by financial debility.

There are some things which the club does which should be supported by the Athletic Association. In welcoming visiting teams, spreading publicity, helping at games, the club is doing what the association needs and consequently should support. Could not a definite arrangement be made here where the association would subscribe to a certain portion of the budget each quarter?

We are not over-estimating the importance of the University Club. It is important and it is here to stay. It is founded on spirit and loyalty and it demands sacrifices. But it does not demand that its members fail because the school does not appreciate what is being done in its behalf.

FACULTY CONSIDERATION

We understand that the faculty will consider a batch of issues this afternoon upon which we have spent considerable space in order to represent student views.

The class-extension idea, which has been re-termed the "calendar-lecture plan," will be up for discussion. We beg to remind the faculty members once more of our youthful sincerity in setting this idea forth and our firm belief that something good can and will come of it.

The class-hour controversy will probably be under fire again, and we also beg to say that the students have shown their adversity to this idea in the recent poll. Esprit de corps at 8 o'clock in the morning is more than an ideal on paper; it's something to be desired, so it would be well to bear in mind that students are going to kick under those circumstances and our good old leisurely educative process is going to suffer.

And we understand the semester argument will also be taken up again. As we mentioned before, what the students have to say about this matter probably will hold little weight; nevertheless, the overwhelming vote against a change to the semester plan shows definitely where their sympathies lie, and it's not for any change.

All of these matters vitally affect our student life. Therefore we trust student opinion will be carefully considered when these questions are raised. There is a freer student expression on such matters here than anywhere in this country and we appreciate it. Let us hope that student-faculty co-operation in working out such matters will always remain as part of our tradition.

Jane Addams Passes On

The death of Jane Addams, founder of Hull house in Chicago, should be a cause of much genuine sorrow not only to the poor but to all the world.

For Miss Addams has discovered something that seems self-evident yet is all too often ignored. She realized that charity must consist of more than just material donations; that charity is as much thoughtfulness as it is generosity.

In these days of want and poverty, these days of tremendous sums for relief, the memory of Miss Addams should stand as a protection against selfish or careless charity.

Charity is one of the three mainstays of the Christian doctrine and to ignore it or to lower its dignity so that it becomes a stigma and something to resent rather than a virtue and something to truly be thankful for is to lower human progress. Charity is always a means to an end and should never be treated as an end in itself.

Miss Addams went into the very heart of the slum district of Chicago to live among people who were suspicious of her actions. With her Christian attitude she soon won their friendship and then their love and adoration.

Little by little the name of Hull house became famous as Miss Addams added more and more services to the spirit and mind of her motley neighbors. Donations came in from interested wealthy persons and were all used for benefits of the unfortunate in the Hull house district.

This manner of caring for the unfortunate needs no brief to show its virtues. It is self-evident that the care of the morale of the poor is equally important as the feeding and clothing of those poor, especially in a system of democracy.

Yet there has been much neglect and poor psychology used in the distribution of relief to many communities. Perhaps there would not be as much need for the billions for relief if the people of the United States had spent more time and thought in pre-depression days on the care of the unfortunate.

It is for this reason that the memory of Miss Addams should be kept green and her example ever before us.

Perhaps William H. Stead, who wrote one of the most stringent criticisms of the evils of Chicago, paid the highest tribute to Miss Addams when he wrote:

"There is still one hope for the new social democracy, and when I reflect upon Jane Addams' mission and contemplate the true meaning of the work she has built up I am sure that if Christ ever comes to Chicago He will stop at Hull house."—Daily Illini.

Youth vs. Society

A youth organization in New Jersey put society on trial last week. After deliberating twenty five minutes, the jury returned this verdict, which in general, represents an indictment by men and women of college age the country over.

Society is guilty of:

1. Employing workers at starvation wages.
2. Inadequate instructon to youth on the choice of a mate.
3. Forcing youth, because of dearth of jobs, to postpone matrimony.
4. Surrounding youth with hazards to morals, such as obscene literature and gambling devices.
5. Maintaining a harsh attitude toward ex-convicts.
6. Incomplete use, for recreation, of public buildings.

Society is not guilty of:

1. Providing inadequate facilities for youth agencies.
2. Maintaining inadequate employment services.
3. Allowing racial and national prejudice to interfere with employment.

The jury disagreed on the charge that society failed to give adequate sex education to young people.

This case against society is one which every youth should try for himself. On one side it represents growing youth realizing its obligations, and on the other side age which is responsible for both the good and the bad in society today.—Syracuse Daily Orange.

SWEET NOTES AND SOUR

By EARL W. WOLSLAGEL

For some weeks we have threatened to give you some personals and news items on Columbia Broadcasting System stars. So here goes:

Columbia Fan Mail

Several thousand letters are received daily at the main studios of CBS at 485 Madison Avenue, New York. Often the mailman's bag outgrows the classification of mail and becomes plain freight! From the purely statistical standpoint Cobina Wright receives the least—the least what?—the least adverse criticism. Out of all her fan mail of some 10,000 letters she has received only one letter of unfavorable criticism. All the rest have been praiseworthy.

An international twist is lent by Bing Crosby and Annette Hanshaw. They draw a huge mail quota from Canada and abroad. Eddie Cantor has gone even more international . . . he got a matzoth, a real Passover biscuit direct from Jerusalem . . . 'twas wrapped in adhesive tape to prevent its breaking. All this set some sort of record until Andre Baruch, the announcer, received an alligator all dressed up in a ribbon and fancy cage . . . Kate Smith probably gets the most diversified mail of any CBS artist . . . She has received lucky charms, cookies, cakes, flowers, dolls, etc. People hoping for auditions have sent her records of their voices and no end of persons named Smith have written seeking to establish some relationship! . . . Because of the custom most of the artists have of calling at the mail room personally, the room has become something of an artists' rendezvous . . . Only recently Vera Van and Benay Venuta met; they sometimes have followed each other on programs! . . . The sweet odor these two new stars on CBS lanes whiffed the first time they went in the mail room came from the bunch of flowers that an admirer of Nino Martini's sends each week. . . . And every time a new artist appears on Columbia there is sure to be a letter of frank criticism from one who never fails to applaud—or boo—newcomers to the microphone . . . The mail room boys know all the handwritings and can almost foretell what each letter contains. Willingly they give credit to the United States postoffice department, however . . . Mail has reached its destination at Columbia no matter how badly misspelled the artist's name, how wrong the address, how distorted the face of the envelope . . . The postman just keeps on bringing the letters!

Waring Gets a "Hot One"

A fan letter that gave Fred Waring, popular radio maestro, a big laugh was the following, received a few weeks ago: "Dear Mr. Waring: I am writing about mine son. He is an ardent fan of yours and worked in a drug store. The other night he turned on your program at the store, and his boss turned it off. Mine son he turned it back on, and again the boss cut the switch. My son he then hit his boss, and his boss he then fired mine son. Can you give him a job in your orchestra? He plays the ocarina ("potato whistle").

Councillor E. J. Woodhouse's statement that the debate squad's Tuesday night discussions of world and local problems are a function of debating at least as important as the intercollegiate debates was heartily amen-ed by the Council.

Laurels for commendable service in entertaining visiting debaters, including ladies from Asheville Normal and Bucknell, and for publicity work were voted to Playboys Don Seawell and Winthrop Durfee.

The Council passed Professor Woodhouse's motion that Retiring Members Durfee, Oliver Cross, Phillips Russell, Robert Smithwick, and Jim Kirkpatrick submit suggestions to the incoming Council as to policy and program.

Press Releases Physician's Book On Jungle Life

"The trouble with America is that all the tigers are in zoos." Most of us consider this as no trouble at all; indeed, it is a blessing. But for Dr. John Symington, who has spent 25 years of his life in the wilds of India, it is a serious objection.

Dr. Symington now lives in Carthage, North Carolina, free from his former fears of the deadly jungle fevers. Frequently he has visited the University Press in connection with the recent publication of his first book on his experiences in India, "In a Bengal Jungle." It was during his latest visit that he made this statement.

Twelve Notches

Perhaps those who failed to read his book will remember Dr. Symington from the exhibition of a tiger skin in a downtown bookstore several weeks ago. This skin, which is unusually large, is the trophy of one of the 12 tigers he killed while in India.

The life of this jovial, black-haired doctor has been filled with thrills and experiences of all sorts; but in appearance only his ruddy complexion indicates his past life. In spite of the several years that he has been living in North Carolina, his face and hands are still burnt a deep reddish-brown from years of exposure to the tropical sun.

Dr. Symington was born in the valley town of Lesmahagow, in the southern highlands of Scotland. There he spent his boyhood roaming over the moors and exploring the ancient castles of the neighborhood.

While still young he came to New York and attended school in preparation for mission work. Upon graduating he was sent to the Belgian Congo where he remained for five years before returning to America to enroll in a medical school in Baltimore. When he had completed this course he was again sent into the mission field. This time it was to central India, and wtih him he took his young bride. That was in 1902.

Some years later, as a safeguard for his wife's health as well as his own, he was forced to move to south India, where he took up private practice. At the outbreak of the Great War he offered his service to his government and was sent as a medical officer to the tea plantations at the foot of the Himalaya mountains. There he remained with his wife and three daughters until 1927, when Mrs. Symington, no longer able to stand the severe climate, suggested that they migrate to North Carolina. It perhaps seems queer that North Carolina should be selected from all the other possibilities that were offered, but the reason rests in the fact that Mrs. Symington's father once held a pastorate at Pine Bluff.

The jungle is no place for a Dr. Doolittle. While in India, Dr. Symington was constantly busy performing professional service to the natives and the few white people. His duties included everything from cleaning up contaminated water supplies to binding tiger-inflicted wounds and, greatest of all, fighting tropical disease. But in spite of all the work that this meant there was still time for his hobby, big game hunting.

In this Dr. Symington's tactics differed from the conventional forms. The type he enjoyed most was simply walking through the jungles armed with his rifle and ready for whatever might come. This is the

Ringers Beat Ruffin By 9-3 Score To Win Dormitory Championship

Jackson Hurls Well; Diehl Stars at Bat

Winners Earn Right to Meet S. A. E. Nine This Afternoon For Campus Crown.

HUTCHINS LEADS LOSERS

The Ringers easily defeated Ruffin 9-3, in the dormitory final of the intramural baseball tourney yesterday and thereby earned the right to meet the S. A. E.'s for the campus championship.

Don Jackson, who holds the intramural strike-out record, returned to his old form and struck out six men and gave up only four hits. Diehl took batting honors for the winners with a double and a single out of three trips to the plate.

Cooner Scores

Cooner started the scoring in the third inning when he advanced to first on a walk, stole second, and came home on Jackson's double.

The losers scored their three runs in the fourth inning. The spree started when Austin was given a base on balls, then went to second as Thompson reached first on an error, and came home as Whitley reached first on another error. Jim Hutchins hit a double to score the other two runs.

Bershak scored another run for the Ringers in the fourth after he had reached first on an error. Their big inning came in the fifth when Buck and Dillon singled, and the Ruffin team made six errors to allow seven runs to closs the plate.

The S. A. E.'s intramural baseball team will meet the Ringers for the campus championship this afternoon at 5:00.

The S. A. E. team has won games over the Phi Kappa Sigma's, Phi Gamma Delta's, the T. E. P.'s, the Zeta Psi's and the Phi Delta Theta's, whereas the Ringers have won games over Manly, Grimes, Everett and Ruffin.

at 6:30. Among other classes that plan get-togethers this commencement are '13, '14, '15, '16, '32, '33, and '34.

Other features of alumni day will include a Chapel Hill news reel at the Carolina theatre at 9:45 a. m. Then at 10:30 the roll call of the reunion classes will take place in Gerrard hall, with Judge Francis D. Winston presiding.

At the alumni luncheon the presentation of President Graham's portrait and a set of University Press books will be made to the winning class and community in the alumni loyalty fund contest.

The president of the class of '85 is A. D. Ward, New Bern attorney. Other famous members include Marion Butler of Washington, former U. S. senator; Rev. J. A. Bryan of Birmingham, Ala., well known minister; A. H. Eller of Winston-Salem, and Dr. W. C. Riddick, former president of State College and now dean of the school of engineering at State College.

Senior Grades

Seniors who are expecting to receive degrees on June 11 may learn their grades as soon as they are reported by the instructors, according to an announcement from the Registrar's office yesterday.

The list will be available in No. 8 South building for all degree candidates to consult at any time between 8:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

All applicants for degrees are expected to confer with the Registrar as soon as possible to ascertain what courses he must clear before his degree can be awarded.

Some of the grades that are marked incomplete or absent on the office records may have been cleared and the reports not turned in. All back grades should be cleared before examinations for this quarter begin.

WILLIAMSON WILL RUN WITH VENZKE IN MEET SUNDAY

Tar Heel Star Will Seek A. A. U. Laurels in District of Columbia Track Meet.

Harry Williamson, Carolina's great middle distance runner, will renew his rivalry with Gene Venzke Sunday afternoon in the annual District of Columbia A. A. U. championships at Washington.

The event will be a special 800-meter invitation, being run on the Catholic University track. Last year Venzke won the 1500-meter run, bettering the American standard, with Williamson a close second.

The greatest race between the two was run last season over the mile routs in the National Intercollegiates at Los Angeles. Venzke was third to Cunningham and Bonthron, in 4:15.8 with Williamson but .23 second behind him.

Venzke is the great University of Pennsylvania junior who gained fame by establishing the former world's indoor record for the mile at 4:10 while still in prep school.

SAE NETTERS WIN; TO PLAY KA PAIR FOR TITLE TODAY

Zeta Psi Team Loses to S. A. E. Combination in Doubles Tilt Played Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon S. A. E. earned the right to meet Kappa Alpha for the fraternity league championship in the intramural tennis competition by defeating the Zeta Psi pair, 2-1.

The singles matches, which were played on Tuesday, ended 1-1 and forced the doubles to be played yesterday. Cope and Poe emerged the winners over Harrison and Stokes by 8-6, 6-4 margins.

Both teams put on a fine exhibition with the verdict in doubt until the final game was clinched. Stokes had beaten Poe in singles, but Harrison dropped his match to Cope to send the play into the doubles.

The K. A.-S. A. E. battle which will be played this afternoon, should produce plenty of fine tennis, with Lovell and Everett competing for Kappa Alpha against Cope and Poe. The K. A.'s gained the finals play by a 2-1 win over Sigma Nu on Monday.

Today's winner will meet Onasch and Fiore of Aycock tomorrow for the campus championship.

ARCHERY CONTEST HELD AT EMERSON

Flaming Arrow Team Scores Win Over Diana's Deers.

Firing away with extraordinary skill, the Flaming Arrows pierced the bull's eye repeatedly to overcome the slight lead assumed by Diana's Deers in the opening day's play, and went on to win the annual bow and arrow classic, 308-255, at Emerson field yesterday.

From the start, the co-eds threw vanity to the winds and plunged into the fray wholeheartedly, treating the interested spectators to an excellent exhibition of archery.

Diana's "Darlings" struck a streak of bad luck, and most of the arrows which sped from their bows with good intentions, seemed to prefer the cool green grass of Emerson to the bright red, white, and gold of the target. While the opposition was experiencing misfortune, "Lady Luck" struck up a close friendship with the comely Flaming Arrows, whose every shot embedded itself deeply in the colorful target some 50 paces away.

Strangely enough the two leaders in the scoring were members of the losing contingent. When individual scores had been tabulated, it was found that the sharp-shooting Margaret Howard had led the first day's play with an elegant 38 total, while Natalie Bayroff paced the field yesterday with 27 points. Both of the individual champs scored in vain for the defeated "Dears."

Southerland Scores

There was quite some difficulty at first in tabulating the scores of the twin Bush sisters because the scorer could not make out who was who. Sue Southerland started the ball rolling for the ultimate victors by sending a cupid-shot straight down the alley which cut the bull's eye in two.

Elizabeth Williams and Julia Peebles kept up the consistent shooting to send the Flaming Arrows into the lead, and Coach Evelyn Barker along with Cap-

AWARDS ARE GIVEN AT CO-ED BANQUET

President Graham Delivers Talk At Women's Dinner.

Following President Graham's speech at the annual Woman's Athletic Association banquet last night at Spencer hall, Mrs. Beard, woman's athletic director, presented letters and numerals to the co-ed athletes.

Elsie Lawrence, president of the association, introduced President Graham who in a short talk wished the women students success in their new venture. He further stated that the faculty would be willing to assist them in every possible way and hoped that they would widen the scope of their activities for the coming year. Other faculty members present were Dean House and Mrs. Stacy, dean of women.

The awards marked the first time in the history of the University that the co-eds received any recognition for athletic activities.

Requirements Lenient

Letters were given to the girls who went out for at least two sports, attended 75% of the practices, and who were outstanding in sportsmanship and ability. Numerals were received by those freshmen who were outstanding in their gym work and thoroughly interested in athletics.

Awards for the year 1934-35 were not based on as strict requirements as they will be in the future because the basis for the system was not announced early enough in the year.

Those receiving letters were the Misses Frances Caffey, Elsie Lawrence, Harriet Taylor, Ida Winstead, Vivian Grisette, Margaret McCauley, Kay Quigley, Nancy Lawlor, Lydia Daniels, Ruth Covington, Eliza Rose, Sophie Stevens, Gertrude Pridgen, Helen D'Anna, and Anna Cowles.

Numerals Too

Numerals were received by the Misses Evelyn Barker, Blanche Bullock, June Bush, Jean Bush, Lib Williams, Natalie Bayroff, Mary Henry, Julia Peebles, Mary McKee, Sally

Athletic Council Makes Awards To Varsity And Frosh Athletes

Efland Gives Banquet In Honor Of Matmen

Sim Efland, captain of the 1935 Carolina wrestling team, gave a banquet, honoring his teammates last Sunday night at Efland.

Service awards were given to Allen Darden, 115-pound class, and Leo Greengold, 155-pound division. These men have served faithfully on Tar Heel mat teams for three consecutive varsity seasons.

Captain Efland was presented with a gold medal by Coach P. H. Quinlan and members of the squad in recognition of his courageous and faithful leadership.

Among the boys who were present at the banquet were Jack Ranson, Wilbur Gholsen, Allen Bonner, Frank Umstead, Melvin Ward, Mac Auman, Frank Bowen, manager, and Coach Quinlan.

Athletes Requested To Return Equipment

Coach Bob Fetzer Sends Letters To All Athletes.

Following is a copy of the letter written by Coach R. A. Fetzer of the department of athletics to all students who have received equipment for varsity or freshman squads.

All men who have been issued equipment for varsity and freshman athletics during the present college year are requested to check this equipment in to Sarge Keller at Emerson field today or tomorrow between the hours of 9 and 12 a. m. and 1:30 and 6 p. m.

This is necessary in order that equipment may be laundered and inventory taken before the end of the present college year. Equipment was issued for use during the college year, and no one will be permitted to retain equipment for the summer without first checking in all articles charged on the storekeeper's record.

Liberal Policy

The athletic department has followed a liberal policy in regard to the issuance of equipment for all varsity and freshman squads. We are always anxious to have as members of regularly organized squads during the college year any students who will attend practice, maintain a reasonable degree of training, take care of and return equipment.

In pursuance of this policy we have issued equipment to more than seven hundred members of varsity and freshman squads. Several hundred of these men have failed to measure up to the requirements for maintaining membership on their respective squads but have retained their equipment for personal use.

Plea to Borrowers

Besides those who have been issued equipment, there are some students in possession of equipment who acquired it by picking it up from the field, locker rooms, dormitory rooms, the Tin Can, or from fraternity houses. We are making a special attempt to secure the return of this borrowed equipment, and we are making appeal to you squad members to assist us.

We shall appreciate your immediate compliance in returning your equipment to the storeroom and in helping us round-up that which has been acquired unfairly.

Sincerely yours,
R. A. FETZER.

White Sweaters Given To Veteran Athletes

McCachren, Williamson, Aitken, Glace, Abernethy Receive Special Awards.

MANAGERS GET REWARDS

At a recent meeting of the Athletic Council, 115 awards were made to students who earned monograms and numerals. The council voted 48 varsity monograms, 63 freshman numerals, and 4 manager's monograms.

In recognition of their outstanding work, Stuart Aitken, Jim McCachren, Ivan Glace, Harry Williamson, and Frank Abernethy were awarded white sweaters.

Plenty for Tracksters

Twenty monograms were awarded members of the track team which piled up a record of three consecutive outdoor and two indoor Southern Conference championships. Receiving the third award in track were Frank Abernethy, Floyd Higby, Charlie Hubbard, Don Jackson, Harry Williamson, Tom Hawthorne, John Gunter, Ed Waldrop, and Frank Armfield.

Those obtaining second awards in track were John Drake, and Tom Evins.

First awards went to Dick Baer, Eugene Barwick, John Farmer, Jim Finlay, Dick Gabori, Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner, Fab Haywood, and Elmer Wrenn.

B. B. Rorison and Sherwood Hedgepeth received manager's awards in track.

Receiving third year monograms in varsity baseball were: Fred Couch and Thurman Vick. Second awards went to Tommy Irwin, Gus McIver, Herbert Rand, Ed Shapiro, and Jim Tatum.

First awards in baseball went to Ed Bullard, Cicero Groome, Buck McCarn, Harry Montgomery, Hammond Strayhorn, Ed Voliva, Latcher Webster, and Irbie Wright. W. B. Rodman received a manager's monogram.

Five monograms were award-

FACULTY TO HEAR COMMITTEE GIVE EXTENSION PLANS

Former Class Extension Group Will Report on Work of Lecture Calendar Board.

APPOINTED LAST WEEK

Professor W. L. Wiley's lecture calendar committee, formerly known as the class extension committee, will present a definitely drawn up plan to the faculty in general session this afternoon.

The name of the plan has been changed because of conflict with the extension division's class extension work, there being no relationship between the two fields. No information concerning the investigation is being released until the faculty has taken definite action.

Appointed Last Week

Dean R. B. House appointed the committee to investigate the DAILY TAR HEEL proposal over a week ago, with Dr. W. L. Wiley, originator of the plan, acting as chairman. Other members of the group are G. C. Taylor, Dean Carroll, Charles Poe, Nelson Lansdale, and Irving Suss.

Another probable item on the agenda for this meeting will be the question of the proposed change in class hours starting at 8:30. There has been no definite action taken on this suggestion as yet.

A committee is now working on the question of quarter and semester system. House intimated that this problem will also be discussed at the meeting this afternoon.

VANCE TO DISCUSS NEW AGRARIANISM

Vanderbilt Doctrine Will Be Subject at Community Club.

Speaking to the Chapel Hill Community Club tomorrow at 3:30 in the parish house, Rupert B. Vance, University sociology professor, will discuss agrarianism, a strange doctrine that has come out of Vanderbilt University, where it is advanced by a group of young poets and instructors.

Agrarianism, a program for farmers, is a defense of the way of living in the old south and a justification of its agricultural system. Our industrial age, agranists point out, has lost sight of the personal equation, has stagnated religion, and has brought about cultural poverty.

The followers of this movement, led by Stark Young, Troy J. Cauley and other southern writers, proposes as a panacea, agrarianists point out, has lost ing for a living and not for profit. Dr. Vance will discuss this doctrine systematically and critically in an attempt to discover if it is a toy for literary people or a practical way of life for the farmer.

Degree Recipients

Dean House and Dr. Dey request every student who expects to receive a degree this commencement to meet in Gerrard hall at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

It is absolutely essential that all those who participate in the commencement ceremonies be present for an explanation of the organization of that program, and just what part each individual and group will have.

This applies not only to those expecting to receive bachelor's degrees, but candidates for the master's and doctor's degrees as well.

tain Mary McKee assured their team of victory by some masterful archery.

Although they were hopelessly in the rear near the close of the tournament, Diana's Deers showed quantities of creditable spunk by not admitting defeat before the last arrow had found it's way home.

Captain Mary Henry and her cohorts could not quite keep up the fast pace set by the two leaders. Ruth Mengel was the last of the fair Robin Hoods to try to pull her team to the fore, but although she made some direct hits, her squad was too far behind to benefit. Eliza Rose, Margaret Munch, Nell Booker, and Bette Stover were the remaining members of the losing aggregation who lost out after leading at the end of the first half of the tournament by a 139-135 score.

BOND, RUSSELL WRITE EXTENSION BOOKLETS

Two booklets, "Below the Potomac" by Marjorie N. Bond and "Europe in Transition" by Professor Phillips Russell and Caro Mae Russell have just been issued as parts of the study course of the extension library published by the University Press.

The series of which these pamphlets are a part is prepared primarily for women's clubs and for study groups. However, over out the country are regular subone hundred libraries throughscribers to the series of booklets.

"Below the Potomac" is a program for study based on the volume "Culture in the South," edited by W. T. Couch. The booklet contains a short discussion of the south, subjects for study, and lists of bibliographies.

"Europe in Transition" is handled in a similar fashion. A short discussion of each European country is followed by subjects for study and bibliographies. Both books contain the names of publishers of references and a schedule of meetings.

Read below what these famous athletes say about their experiences in smoking Camels

A suggestion: Follow the athletes in your search for cigarette mildness. They can't trifle with healthy nerves—their "condition"—their wind. The cigarette they smoke must be mild.

Tommy Armour, the golf champion, says: "Camels never bother my nerves or shorten my wind—convincing evidence that Camels are mild."

Mel Ott, heavy-hitting outfielder of the New York Giants, reports: "My experience is that Camels are so mild they never get my wind."

And Stubby Kruger, water polo and swimming star; Amy Lou Oliver, diver; and Lester Stoefen, tennis star, agree with Pete Knight, the rodeo champion, who says: "Camels—there's a smoke so mild it never cuts down your wind, never gets you out of condition."

A mildness that will please you too!

Camels are made from costlier tobaccos. They are mild, cool, gentle on the throat. Smoke them all you wish. Camels don't upset your nerves . . . or tire your taste. And athletes find that Camels do not get their wind.

CONSIDER THAT LIFE IS MORE WORTH WHILE when you feel good—physically fit, "in condition." Turn to Camels. Athletes say, "They don't get your wind."

SO MILD YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

CAMPUS KEYBOARD

by the Editor

DREAMY CHILDREN The Vanderbilt agrarianism is a logical reaction of thinking persons, young in mind and body, to the topsy-turvy monstrosity known as America today.

Perhaps in the hearts of all of us, at one time or another, there arises some sort of resentfulness at all this high-pressure existence, at all the present-day isms and movements and high-speed activity. Most of us picture a desert island where we can take our best friends and eat bananas and grapefruit, read light books and play around for the rest of our days. But the islands all happen to be coaling-stations for militant armadas, so we snap back to normal and try to make the best of Uncle Sam and modernity.

Maybe after some more lawyers get through with the NRA, everybody will give a big sigh and settle back into good old agrarianism. We'll forget Japan, dish the Chamber of Commerce, shackle the munitions makers, and begin anew on mint-juleps.

Or maybe we'll have a revolution.

UP INTO SMOKE They tell us that the Rock Inn, where the most recent campus conflagration stirred up the old fire department, has been previously attacked by the demon flames about seven times.

Obviously, the house is a fire-trap. If it were the only one on the campus, we might fix things up in short order. But it seems that there are a dozen or so more buildings on local grounds which would be duck soup for a hungry fire, with resulting losses of property and perhaps life.

Along with the administration's move to clean up kitchens in some of our eating places should run a drive to condemn or rehabilitate our fire-traps. We can't have brick buildings all over the place, but we can do better than run wires along the floors, allow rubbish in closets, and stick eight lights to a socket.

Like some newspaper policies, the fire-traps need a little insulation. Else they're liable to go up into smoke.

PERUSING FIGURES The annual reports for member organizations of the student audit system will appear in tomorrow's issue of this newspaper. We beg several of our "campus leaders" who have found wrong in everything to go through the reports carefully, so that the next time they yell about graft they will have some sort of a basis to work on. That is, if they can find the basis.

It does absolutely no good to run the set-up of the system because nobody bothers to read it. We've tried. The student audit board is still under fire as to function and activity, but we promise you you'll get that.

We reiterate. Read the audit report for your organization. If you have a kick, let us know. We love to fight, too, if we have something to fight about.

CUPS AND MEDALS WILL BE AWARDED IN ANNUAL AFFAIR

Jimmy Fuller to Play for Awards Night Program in Memorial Hall at 8 O'clock.

POOL WILL HEAD PROGRAM

Reaping the intrinsic rewards for their campus careers, those University students who have done outstanding work in scholarship, athletics, and other extra-curricular activities will receive their glittering trophies at the annual Awards Night program this evening at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The cups and medals will be presented to the tune of Jimmy Fuller's orchestra, which has been engaged by Program Director Harper Barnes for tonight's event. Dr. Archibald Henderson, University mathematics professor, will make the awards address, and Jack Pool will act as the master of ceremonies.

Patterson Award

As the feature of the occasion, Dr. Charles S. Mangum will make the presentation of the Patterson Memorial medal to this year's outstanding athlete. Given in honor of John Durant Patterson of New Bern by his brothers, the gold medal award was established in 1924 and is considered one of the highest honors that can come to a University athlete. It was awarded last year to Virgil Weathers, ex-president of the student body.

While the occasion does not lack in seriousness, several skits and songs will inject a note of levity. Secretive, reticent Program Director Harper Barnes, while denying all, is buzzing about industrially gathering together a cast of celebrities that will be inflicted on the audience tonight. House's harmonica and that silver voice of Jule Medynski are probably in the offing.

However, it was learned

NEW UNION BOARD ASSUMES DUTIES

Directors Consider Re-allocation of Room; Ellis Is Elected Hold-over Member.

New members of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors met last night, jumped right into the swing of things by considering several important matters, and engaged in the regular after-dinner bull-session which is so much a part of local committee gatherings.

After granting the University Club a sum of $100 for use in the second annual freshman smoker next fall, the board discussed plans for improving the student union janitor service, re-allocating Graham Memorial rooms, and other routine matters.

Women Win

The controversy between the Woman's Association and the Carolina Magazine regarding use of the former's room on the first floor of the union was finally settled. The board decided that the magazine's office should be returned again to the office of the Carolina Buccaneer, leaving the women free to use their room exclusively.

Albert Ellis was elected as hold-over member to the board for next year. Other members who will serve are Jack Pool, chairman, Phil Hammer, Jane Ross, L. C. Bruce, Trip Rand, Ramsay Potts, J. Maryon Saunders, Harry F. Comer, and Deans R. B. House and F. F. Bradshaw.

Outgoing members are Betty Durham, Frank Abernethy, Dave Mosier, Ernest Eutsler, Harold Bennett, and Lonnie Dill.

Dormitory Improvement Program To Close Before Summer Session

Major Renovating Work Already Completed Says Buildings Department Head P. L. Burch; Painting, Screening, Lighting Improvements Compose Repairs on Dormitories.

The improvement program for the dormitories is in full swing.

Begun less than a month ago, the program to renovate the dormitories is rapidly nearing completion. P. L. Burch, head of the buildings department, said that he expected most of the work to be finished before summer school begins.

One of the major improvements is the painting of all rooms. Already the painting in Old East, Old West, and Steele dormitories is almost completed. Work was begun on these three buildings first because summer school students are expected to room in them. The other dormitories are to be painted soon.

Another important improvement is the screening of all dormitories. Screens are being installed this week in Old East, Old West, and Steele. Every dormitory is to have screens by the beginning of summer school.

Further Repairs

In the upper quadrangle showers and other bathroom fixtures are being repaired or replaced. The buildings department is also making repairs on woodwork and plastering.

In Old East, Old West, and Steele dormitories fountains have been installed in all sections of the ground floor.

Burch further stated that the buildings department is also making progress toward the improvement of the lighting systems in the dormitories of the upper and lower quadrangles. In Mangum one of the rooms is being used to experiment with a system of lighting. Improvements along this line, however, are not definite.

Regrets

The buildings department regrets that it has been necessary to carry on this work while the rooms were occupied, but inasmuch as the entire program was an emergency measure, it had to be carried out in spite of the inopportune date. At the same time the department wishes to express its appreciation and thanks to all students who allowed repair work to be done in their rooms.

MARRIAGE COURSE TO BE CONTINUED IN SUMMER CLASS

Dr. Groves to Hold Conference on Teaching of Family Problems.

The second conference on the teaching of marriage and the family, headed by Ernest R. Groves, University sociology professor, will be held in Chapel Hill July 8-12. The first conference which met last summer grew out of the interest of college teachers in the methodology of the instruction in preparation for marriage that has been developed here.

Although the program of the conference features the problems of teaching, it also includes topics relating to the conservation of marriage and the family and is broader in its appeal than last year's conference. Teachers in high school, adult education, and in college; physicians, ministers, husbands, wives, and parents are invited to attend the session.

Addresses and round-table meetings are designed to offer opportunity for a discussion of the problems of teachers of marriage and family courses and some of the important problems of marriage and family experiences. Specialists whose fields of knowledge are directly related to these problems will address the conference.

UNIVERSITY CLUB RELIEVED BY GIFT

Student Union Directors Vote to Donate $100 for Club's Freshman Smoker Next Fall.

The Graham Memorial Board of Directors considerably lightened the financial troubles of the University Club last night by voting to donate $100 to help pay the expenses of the freshman smoker which will be sponsored by the University Club next fall.

The action of the Student Union board followed an ardent plea for the funds, made by Julien Warren, president of the University Club.

Still $50 Short

The club still lacks $50 to pay for the freshman smoker, as the affair will cost approximately $150.

Asked how he would raise the remainder of the smoker expenses, President Warren declared, "That's my trouble, but I'll get it."

Still in its regular session when the announcement was made, the members of the University Club broke into loud cheering.

While Warren appeared before the Graham Memorial board, Joe W. Grier, treasurer of the University Club, presided at the meeting and led a discussion on raising the funds for the organization's work next year.

SUMMER ADDRESSES

All Yackety Yack addresses will be sent in tomorrow. No addresses will be accepted after today at 5 o'clock. Please write address on a card and drop it in the slot in the Yackety Yack door in Graham Memorial.

SAUNDERS IS SPEAKER

J. Maryon Saunders, secretary of the University Alumni Association, spoke in Raleigh Monday at a luncheon of the Alumnae Association of Saint Mary's. Mrs. Saunders also attended.

Faculty Voices Approval Of Class Lecture Calendar

Degree Recipients

Dean House and Dr. Dey request every student who expects to receive a degree this commencement to meet in Gerrard hall at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

It is absolutely essential that all those who participate in the commencement ceremonies be present for an explanation of the organization of that program, and just what part each individual and group will have.

This applies not only to those expecting to receive bachelor's degrees, but candidates for the master's and doctor's degrees as well.

Quarter-Semester Fight Deferred Until Early Fall Meeting

Wiley's Original Plan Is Only Slightly Altered by Amendment After Discussion.

NO MOVE ON CLASS HOURS

The DAILY TAR HEEL-sponsored Class Lecture Calendar is a reality.

The plan, as proposed by Dr. Leon Wiley, chairman of a student-faculty committee, was approved at a meeting of the faculty yesterday after a small amount of discussion.

The semester versus quarter system fight will be resumed at an early meeting in the fall quarter, while the proposal for class hour change will be under consideration at the next faculty meeting.

The Plan

The Class Lecture Calendar, as proposed by the committee and amended by the faculty, follows:

"The committee on 'class extension' recognizes certain dangers and difficulties in the scheme, but gives its general approval and makes the following proposals for its operation:

"1. The project shall be called a Class Lecture Calendar and not class extension.

"2. The choice of lectures in the calendar is to be made by departmental committees.

"3. Students who visit lectures are not to participate in any class discussions.

"4. The calendar shall appear daily in the DAILY TAR HEEL; a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter will collect a list of lectures daily from the departments.

"5. Lectures from any courses in the University may be listed in the calendar, provided that the instructor in the course

MALCOLM TAYLOR PUBLISHES PAPER IN MARKET REVIEW

Professor Joins Publication Staff of Marketing Teachers.

Professor Malcolm Dean Taylor, associate professor of marketing in the University school of commerce, has been placed on the editorial board of the "National Marketing Review," a new quarterly journal published by the National Association of Marketing Teachers.

In the first issue of the "Review," released Wednesday, Dr. Taylor is author of the section entitled "Progress in Marketing Research." Managing editor of the publication is Dr. Nathanael H. Engle, assistant director of the National Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The leading article for this issue, "The Teaching of Marketing," was contributed by Dr. W. L. White, professor of marketing at the University of Texas. Dr. Howard T. Lewis, professor of marketing at Harvard University, writes on "The Industrial Buyer," and D. E. Montgomery of the federal trade commission has an article on "Basing Point Prices." Injecting a cosmopolitan note, Dr. Paul F. Lazarfield, of the department of psychology at the University of Vienna, and director of the psychological institute for field investigation in Vienna, contributes an article on the principles underlying the formulation of questionnaires in marketing.

Set of Goethe's Works Will Be Awarded

Prize Will Be Given German Major Writing Best Essay.

Dr. J. K. Brown, head of the German department, announced yesterday that a set of Goethe's works are to be given to the German major writing the best essay on some subject connected with the famous author.

The books were given to the University for the contest by the Carl Schurz Publishing Company, publishers of all kinds of German works.

Several students are already preparing essays for this contest.

INFIRMARY

Those confined in the infirmary yesterday were: Mack Wallace, Louise Haygood, J. B. Foreman, J. H. Munch, Branch Craige, J. A. Way, Jr., Juanita Green, Elizabeth Williams, Ben Summerlin, Robert Polisar, W. B. Carter, Josephine Oettinger.

Federal 'G' Men Will Head Staff In Law Institute

Federal Investigator Hoover Will Send Ace Men to School of Law Enforcement.

Three of the famous "G" men, who have taken leading parts in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's war on gangsters and kidnapers, head the instructional staff for North Carolina's fourth annual school of law enforcing officers, which will be held under the auspices of the Institute of Government here June 11-14.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau, has promised to send three of his best men down from Washington. They are H. H. Clegg, assistant director and head of the federal training school; L. C. Schilder, chief of the fingerprint bureau, and E. P. Coffey, chief of the scientific laboratories.

Justice W. J. Brogden and Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell are among the ranking state officials listed on the program, just announced, for special lectures. Others are Capus Waynick, chairman of the highway commission: Edwin Gill, commissioner of pardon and parole; L. S. Harris, director of the motor vehicle bureau, and Capt. Chas. D. Farmer of the state highway patrol.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITY

The controversy perennially aroused over student dance conduct has blossomed forth again. Despite the fact that these are repeated outbursts, they are important.

At the Student Welfare Board meeting Monday, faculty members minced no words in letting the student members know that their dance, or rather, after-dance, conduct was disgraceful. The faculty has never placed any direct restrictions on students to curb after-dance disorder; all existing regulations were made by students themselves. But that does not diminish the importance of th efaculty condemnation.

We think that after-dance conduct is not as bad as it's cracked up to be, but that there is obvious room for improvement. We haven't seen the immorality which is reported; the noise is bad but it doesn't spell lasciviousness. But the regulations as to retiring hours of feminine guests has consistently been broken, not so much by campus co-eds as by visitors. And it's not the fault of the visitors so much as the fault of their escorts here.

If the students would realize that these rules were made by students, because those students wanted to safeguard their privileges, that the abrogation of these rules puts them and the University (definitely the latter) in a bad light, that no annual rumpus would be raised if they'd use their heads about these things—then perhaps we'd see a change in attitude and action. It's a difficult job to argue with a faculty member and try to vindicate student behavior when the burden of proof and disproof lies on the students themselves.

This is another case where the students have the freedom and responsibility to act in their own behalf. It is not so much that we're lamenting the fact that the students in general and the fraternities in particular are oblivious to what they have to do; it is rather that we're anxious to see them assume the burden which is theirs, to get returns in the exact proportions to the amount of energy and sympathy they put into their efforts.

HYGIENE COURSE

We are in great need of a good hygiene course for all incoming freshmen. By this we mean one that will cover health, sex and first aid. By "good" we do not mean a course about birds, bees, flowers and trees, but a course in Mr. and Mrs. Human Being. We need a clear, frank, factual man-to-man course.

This course because of subject matter would be in direct sympathy with our infirmary schedule. This advice should be considered as much a required infirmary service as is our present medical cure. If the University can pay the infirmary doctors for the additional service, then all the better; if not, we believe it still would be the infirmary doctors' duty to teach such a course without additional compensation until the University can afford such a salary raise or administrative shift.

The course as proposed would not require much time of the instructors; as we understand it, a one-hour lecture a week throughout the year would be sufficient instruction to cover all the essential material. It does not necessarily have to merit a credit in the curriculum unless the administration so desires.

We believe the course could be worked into the new curriculum schedule. We believe it should. In previous issues we have pointed out the need for such information in the dormitories and fraternities. Perhaps on the basis of administrative application to all freshmen would this instruction be best carried out.

Other colleges and universities have made this step. If it would involve too much financial expense, we would not propose it for Carolina. But it does not. It could and should be adopted.

From a COLLEGE WINDOW
By WILLIS S. HARRISON

We suspect that this, our last column for the year, should contain as much evidence of deep thought as we're able to muster. And perhaps mixed with that should be the dismal warning that has been given to seniors for the past few years to the effect that they're going to face a changed world.

Instead of this ponderous and brain-racking effort, however, we're going to clean out our desk drawer and our notebook and get rid of all the clippings and what-nots laying around.

First comes a bit of humor of unknown vintage which was handed us weeks ago by Francis Clingman when he was under the impression that this is supposed to be a funny column. In view of the co-ed situation we ask your permission to dispose for once and all of this offence to the Muses:

"Consider This Work of Art"

College men want their women—
To be like cigarettes:
Just so many; all slender and trim,
In a case,
Waiting in a row,
To be selected, set aflame, and Discarded.
More fastidious men prefer women
Like cigars:
They are more expensive,
Look better, and last longer;
If the brand is good
They aren't given away.
Good men treat their women
Like pipes:
And become more attached to them,
The older they grow
When the flame is burnt out,
They still look after them,
Knock them gently
(But lovingly)
And care for them always;
No man shares his pipe.
—Kentucky Kernal.

Our excuse: one has to please THE man who reads this column.

We've already passed by notes on a liberal education, student reform, southern honor in favor of a lost item appearing in the Daily Princetonian: "Lost—Bridge work for teeth of upper jaw. Somewhere on Nassau St. or campus."

Things we wouldn't run before: The faintly amusing story of the professor at the University of Tennessee was having some difficulty in getting the attention of his class.

"I will not begin today's lecture," he said, "until this room settles down."

Was heard a sympathetic voice from the rear of the room: "Go home and sleep it off, old man."

Warning to the reformed Buccaneer: Last week 3,000 Harvard students staged a purge on their campus, seizing and burning 6,000 copies of the "nudist number" of the "Lampoon," their monthly comic. Police and the fire department were called. The magazine was banned from the news stands and mail as "immoral, blasphemous, and profane."

MATHEMATICS CHANGE

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department, announced yesterday that only one class in Mathematics 2 and one in Mathematics 2c would be offered in the fall quarter next year. All students who have not yet taken these courses are expected to do so at that time as they are being discontinued after the fall quarter due to the new program of study.

Now YOU'RE Talking

FAIR PLAY

To the Editor,
The DAILY TAR HEEL:

Being an athlete, I was naturally interested in Mr. Kellar's letter in Tuesday's DAILY TAR HEEL. I believe I am in a position to know a little more about "the canker that is rat-like gnawing at the foundations of sportsmen's sports" than one who, as far as I know, has not participated in athletics at the University. After intimate association with athletes and questioning people who should know, I can find no case in which the Athletic Association has given money to an athlete. Of course, athletes are given jobs to earn their expenses, but what objection can Mr. Kellar have to that? After all, don't these athletes furnish diversion to many students, alumni, and others? Do they not give the University prestige throughout the south and the nation? I wonder what Mr. Kellar has done to increase the prestige of the University?

I believe some athletes hold scholarships, but isn't there a scholastic requirement on all scholarships? Possibly loyal alumni pay the expenses of some of our athletes, but what right has Mr. Kellar and other inquisitive students to question the way the alumni see fit to spend their own money? I know certain athletes who are outstanding scholars. Does Mr. Kellar want to refuse them scholarships because they are athletes?

In conclusion I wish to say that I know very little of the statements and accounts of the Athletic Association, but I have given you the results of my observation of the athletic situation.

FAB HAYWOOD.

COLLEGE PRESS

University Men In Business

The report of university placement officials that more graduates are being placed this year than any year since 1930 is highly gratifying not only from the standpoint of the graduates themselves but also to the many undergraduates who have been looking into the future with pessimistic and discouraged eyes. The report is more than the neat rows of statistics showing the number of placements in the various departments and their increases over previous years; it seems to us to be a clear indication that the hard-bitten business man is at last looking at the college graduate as an asset to the business world.

Manufacturers have at last departed from the view that a University education must be pounded out of a man before he can be useful. It was the depression, we believe, that has convinced the business world of the worth of the college-trained man. After the crash of 1930 when frantic business men began weeding out the less efficient of their forces it was found that a surprising majority of the men left were college-trained. Another fact that astonished these business men, whose favorite prosperity jokes were about university graduates, was that in the period of business reorganization the college-trained worker fitted into and better understood the new and various tasks forced upon the individual of the concern to carry on through the lean years than the specialized worker. The manufacturer and business men saw these things and began to wonder whether his prejudice against a university education wasn't a bit unfounded. On closer observation of the work of his university graduate employee he decided that his prejudice was wholly unfounded, and further decided that the benefits of a well-rounded education should be taken advantage of in business.

In the last few years there has been a steady increase in the demand for university men in business. With economic conditions as they are, with efficiency and ability at a premium, this demand shows the new view of education that business is taking.

The big jump in the number of graduate placements this year might be interpreted as a hopeful sign of business improvement in the country as a whole. Concerns have been running with a minimum number of employees as a result of the great weeding out process at the beginning of the depression. The fact that they are now looking for new men for their staffs points to the supposition that they are expanding to take care of business their depleted staff cannot handle. This is encouraging. But what is more encouraging to us is that the business world is finally recognizing the college-trained man, a recognition gained by a victory of merit over deep-rooted prejudice.—Daily Cardinal.

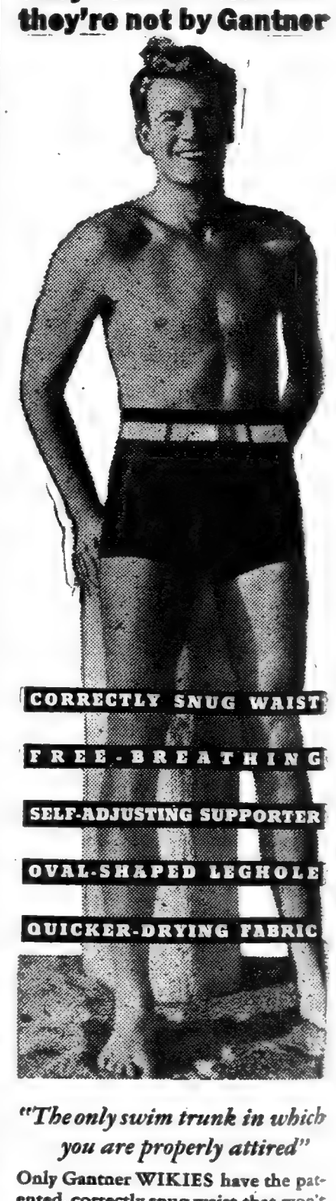
gives his permission and the departmental committee gives its approval."

No Cuts Allowed

At the suggestion of Dr. T. J. Wilson, Dr. J. W. Lasley proposed the following addition which was passed: Attendance on such lectures will not be considered a valid excuse for failure to attend regular classes.

The phrase, "the day before these lectures are to appear on the calendar," was stricken from the proposal so as to permit lectures to be announced two or three days in advance.



New Executives

Drs. Hudson and Edmister were elected to the executive committee to take the place of Drs. Wettach and Spruill, whose terms of office end this year.

The faculty extended for another year the plan by which the executive committee refers to the student council all cases involving the honor system, but reserving the right to consider any case which the instructor wishes to have acted upon by them.

The committee which considered the class lecture calendar consisted of Dr. Leon Wiley, chairman; Dr. G. C. Taylor, Dean D. D. Carroll, Charles Poe, Irving Suss, and Nelson Lansdale.

Ringers Score 5-2 Victory To Annex Baseball Title

Jackson Mound Star; Medynski Hits Twice

S. A. E.'s Make Four Errors to Aid Ringers in Victory; Losers Rally in Seventh.

WINNERS RECEIVE MEDALS

After the Ringers had tied the score in the first inning, they put on a three-run rally in the second to gain a lead and then scored again in the fifth to defeat the S. A. E.'s, 5-2, for the campus championship yesterday.

Although Jackson only struck out two men, he limited the losers to three hits while his teammates were playing errorless ball. Medynski took batting honors with two singles and a base on balls in three trips to the plate. Pendergraft also connected for two hits besides starring in the field.

Cope Scores

Cope started the scoring for the S. A. E.'s when he received a base on balls in the first, stole second and third, and then came home on Connor's single. Allen scored the other run after he had been walked, stole second, and singled home by Carson. They put on a rally in the last inning and placed three men on base. However, DeBardleben knocked a high fly to Bershak to end the game.

Joyce scored the first run for the winners when he connected for a double in the first inning, stole third, and then crossed the plate on an error. Medynski singled in the second, Pendergraft took first on an error and Stewart then reached first as Medynski was forced out at third. He scored when Jackson reached first on an error. Diehl scored the last run after he reached first on an error, advanced to second and third when Medynski and Pendergraft connected for singles, and then came home on an error.

After the game, medals were presented to the Ringers by Herman Schnell, director of intramural athletics.

KING PETILLO WINS SPEEDWAY HONORS AND SETS RECORD

Winner Establishes New Record For 500 Mile Classic Before Crowd of 150,000 People.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Before a surging crowd of 150,000 race-crazed spectators who packed the grandstand and hugged the barrier on the straightaway, King Petillo shot his bullet-shaped car over the finish line to win the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway classic in record time here today.

Sets Fast Pace

The "King" threw caution to the winds as he defied almost certain death to race over the course in 4 hours, 36 minutes, and 47 seconds, averaging 106.24 miles per hour for a new record. Trailing Petillo over the finish line was Wilbur Shaw. He was followed closely by the defending champion and favorite to repeat, "Wild" Bill Cummings.

The speedway added another victim to its yearly toll early in the race as a result of a bad spill. Despite the fatality the drivers kept up the mad pace, jamming wildly on the curves and fighting it out down the straightaways. Petillo stayed up with the leaders throughout the race, and with the finish in sight he nosed his car over for his first victory in this annual speed carnival. The new champ received over $100,000 for his victory.

STRIKING AWARDS DISPLAYED TODAY

Cups, Plaques, Medal in Co-op Window Display.

Eight beautiful awards which will be presented at the Awards Night ceremony at 8 o'clock this evening in Memorial hall are now on display in the window of the Student Co-operative.

The most striking award is the large and handsome Deke trophy. The cup of burnished copper is surmounted by a figure holding a laurel wreath representing scholarship, while the figures of six athletes are set around the base. The trophy is presented for fraternity scholarship and athletics.

The S. A. E. fraternity has won the cup three times and last year they acquired the beautiful cup for their permanent possession. The first to win the coveted award were the Zeta Psis and after them the K. As. Members of the S. A. E. are confident of taking the cup again this year for the fourth straight time.

Six Grail awards are in the window. Two handsome cups will become the possession of the best freshman athlete and the best intramural athlete. Then there are Grail awards to athletes in four major sports, football, basketball, baseball, and track, having the highest scholastic averages.

Also on display in the window is the Patterson Memorial medal to be presented tonight to an outstanding athlete.

S. A. E.'s Take Fraternity Title By Beating Fast K. A. Netmen

VICTORS TO MEET FIORE AND ONASCH

Jimmie Cope and Charlie Poe Score Surprise Wins to Earn Right to Meet Aycock.

S. A. E.'s tennis team scored one of the biggest surprises of the intramural athletic season yesterday afternoon when it scored a smashing 2-0 triumph over Kappa Alpha for the fraternity league title.

Jimmy Cope and Charley Poe came through with wins in the singles matches, eliminating the necessity of doubles play. This victory sends them against Aycock this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock for the campus championship.

K. A. Favored

Kappa Alpha had been a decided pre-match favorite, and even the most ardent S. A. E. supporters would not have dared to hope for so convincing an outcome.

Cope started things off in the right way with a 6-2, 6-3 win over Lovill, who is considered as one of the best in the intramural competition. He completely passed Lovill at the net to breeze through for an unexpected triumph.

Poe Brilliant

Fighting an uphill battle the entire way, Charley Poe rallied to defeat Malcom Everett by 4-6, 6-1, 8-6 counts and clinch the match. In the third set Everett went into a 5-2 lead, but Poe put on a brilliant rally that tied the count and brought him the verdict.

Today's matches should be some of the finest this year. S. A. E. will use Cope at No. 1 and Poe at No. 2, while Aycock will probably have Onasch at the lead post and Fiore at the other.

Following the championship matches, the 1935 All-Campus team will be selected for the DAILY TAR HEEL and will appear in tomorrow's edition.

Gotham Awaits Nickel World Series As Giants And Yankees Lead League

By LEE TURK

New York City's baseball-minded population is beginning to save its money for the long-awaited nickel world series between the New York Yankees and the neighboring New York Giants, which, if both teams keep up their present pace, is more than likely to become a reality.

At present both clubs representing the metropolitan city are leading their respective leagues and have sincere intentions of sticking right up there on top. The Giants have been the more consistent of the two and are now leading the senior circuit by 4½ games. The Yankees have just hit their stride.

Yanks Lead

Manager McCarthey's hopefuls assumed the lead yesterday afternoon by virtue of their decisive double victory over the faltering Washington Senators. Tamulis and Broaca, who were on the mound when the Yanks won these two contests, are only a couple of the many youngsters who have come through in fine style this season.

"Red" Rolfe, the peppery shortstop, is setting the league on fire with his consistent hitting and miraculous fielding. "Red" was a Dartmouth Indian a few years ago and went right into class "A" ball.

The fans up in the Bronx are having a hard time trying to forget the mighty Sultan of Swat, but George Selkirk is doing more than his share to help get the crowds interested in the new order of things. Selkirk will probably never hit as hard or as often as the "Babe," but he does slug with the old time zest that appeases the baseball appetites of the Yankee followers.

While on the subject of the Yankees, we can't afford to miss Carolina's favorite son, Johnny Allen. Johnny is well on his way to one of the best seasons of his career, and all Carolina is rooting for him to make good. If Johnny's mound partner, El Senor "Goofy" Gomez regains his form of last season, the coming world series is likely to open in the vast Yankee stadium.

Now let's all put our nickels in the subway slots and take a ride downtown to the favorite haunts of Manhattan's Giants, the Polo Grounds. That's the place that Bill Terry, Mel Ott and all the boys call home. It may also shelter its second world series in the short space of two years.

Yesterday the league-leading Terrymen clouted Brooklyn's up and coming pitching staff all over the lot to capture a doubleheader. The loyal Brooklynites are beginning to scratch their noggins and question if Brooklyn is "still in the league."

Giants Have Hurlers

Experts and fans alike agree that the Giants have never exhibited as fine a brand of baseball as they have so far this year. The "big four" hurling corps consisting of Don Carlos Hubbell, Fred Fitzsimmons, Hal Schumacher and Bud Parmelee has now become the "big five" with the youthful rookie, Castleman, as the fifth man.

The Giant veterans have been warming the bench these last two weeks nursing injuries, and Terry has been forced into starting a patch-quilt line-up throughout his western trip. In those two weeks the New Yorkers have played .700 ball, and if they play that well with a team made up of rookies, this scribe is beginning to fear the outcome when the veteran powerhouses return.

As the rival Yanks have their outstanding rookies, so have the Giants. Perhaps the most valuable of them all is hefty "Hank"

Current State, National Laws To Be Reviewed Here In June

North Carolina's public officials are continuing the unique and valuable system they initiated through the Institute of Government in 1933 for co-operation between the legislative and administrative branches of the government.

Representatives of city and county governments in every section of the state will meet with their state and national legislators here June 10 and 11 to hear interpretations of the new state and federal acts and to discuss by groups the laws affecting their particular offices, towns and counties.

The first such meeting, held in 1933, met with an enthusiastic response. More than 1,000 people, representing 98 of the state's 100 counties, took part, and the addresses and discussions proved so stimulating and beneficial, it was decided to make the interpretation meetings a permanent affair.

The system for keeping the two branches in touch with each other was expanded still further this year. A joint meeting was held in the fall at which organizations of officials and citizens' groups had the opportunity, for the first time, to lay their legislative programs before the newly-elected representatives for consideration in advance of the meeting of the general assembly.

A bulletin service was initiated which kept officials and citizens alike in touch with the day-by-day doings of the legislature. A copy of releases which summarized the contents and reported the progress of each bill, was sent free to every newspaper in the state as well as a designated official in each city hall and court house.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey and Representative Robert L. Doughton have accepted invitations to deliver the principal addresses at this year's session for the interpretation of new federal legislation.

They will be assisted in their discussions of the methods for financing, allotting, and administering the new $4,000,000,000 public works and work relief program by H. G. Baity, Mrs. Thomas W. O'Berry, and the state heads of other federal agencies.

A number of ranking state officials will lead discussions and advise with local officials, including Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell, Charles M. Johnson and W. E. Easterling of the local government commission; A. J. Maxwell, commissioner of revenue; Capus M. Waynick, chairman of the highway commission, and Clyde Erwin, superintendent of public instruction.

The Institute of Government this week brought out its comprehensive 20,000-word summary of state-wide acts passed by the 1935 assembly. The summaries of new laws affecting each office and of new local acts affecting each town and county, are now in preparation and will be distributed to officials at the June meeting.

Student Accounts

The administration of the University wishes to remind all seniors and other candidates for degrees that before they can receive their diplomas it is necessary that they settle all amounts owed to the University, including accounts with the business office, Swain hall, the library, the laundry, the Book Exchange, Spencer hall, the student loan fund, and all laboratory fees.

In addition each candidate for a degree is reminded that he must pay $5 diploma fee and must make arrangements with the Book Exchange for the rental of a cap and gown.

Quigley Announces Tourney Cancellation

It was announced by Kay Quigley yesterday that the women's ladder tennis tournament would be discontinued for this year.

To date there has not been much interest shown by the group as a whole. The reason for this has been the approaching examinations.

The only participant to play any of her matches and advance up the ladder was Jo Oettinger. Miss Oettinger, who was seeded tenth, challenged and won over Martha Louise Croom and Kay Quigley. As a result of her two victories, Miss Oettinger advanced to seventh place.

It has been planned to start next year's tournament at an earlier date in order to complete the ladder and decide the campus championship.

SUMMER SCHOOL TO GIVE ADVANCED SPECIAL COURSES

University to Lead in South with Higher Education Courses, Featuring Guest Lecturers.

Carolina has not yet lost her stride as a liberal advocate of educational advancement, as evidenced by the special features being offered in the summer school this year: a course in higher education, and a conference on educational administration.

This is the first time that a course in higher education, or a graduate course in the problems of the curriculum, instruction and administration in higher educational institutions, has ever been offered in the south.

Teachers will be in attendance from colleges of the entire south, and will make an examination of certain basic conceptions which underlie and bear upon higher education.

Wood Will Lecture

Especially outstanding will be lectures offered by President J. M. Wood of Stephens College, Missouri; C. H. Gray, acting president of Bennington College, Vermont, will also be present. The former will give one lecture on "Curricularizing the Extra-Curricular."

Dean W. W. Pierson, E. W. Knight, Dean F. F. Bradshaw, Maryon Saunders, Felix Grisette, and D. D. Carroll of the University will all present lectures. Carroll will speak on the "Pressure of the Economic System on Educational Objectives."

The conference on educational administration, held June 17-21, will draw several hundred teachers from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, and other neighboring states.

Guest Lecturers

Many authorities and guest lecturers will participate in the program, which will be a study of the tendencies and problems in public educational administration.

Of special note is Professor N. L. Englehardt of Teachers College, Columbia University, who will give four lectures, including two entitled "The Underprivileged School System" and "Recent Significant Changes in the Administration of Public Education."

Superintendent Clyde Erwin of the North Carolina state department of public instruction, will be in attendance along with Superintendents Cody and Weglein of the Detroit and Baltimore public schools.

Dr. Edgar W. Knight is director of the summer school, and consequently in charge of setting up these special events. The University is very fortunate in being able to obtain such outstanding features and visiting lecturers.

Publications Union Men Begin New Year

Yesterday saw the last meeting of the old P. U. Board. In years previous, the student members of the board have always vacated their positions something like a month before the end of school.

Coincidentally, Percy Robinson succeeds his brother, Joe Robinson as circulation manager of all campus publications.

New men coming in yesterday were: Charles Ivey, Fletcher Furgerson, and Ned McAllister. Out-going men are Claude Rankin, president; Jim Morris, secretary, and Jim Daniels, treasurer.

Members of the board will meet Monday at 12 o'clock in Bingham to elect new officers.

Exploring Freshman Spends Fearful Night In Gimghoul

Wall-Climbing Student Finds It Necessary to Return to Earth Via Interior of Castle and Manages to Survive Corkscrew Stairway and Grilled Door Only to Find Himself Deserted.

Gimghoul Castle at midnight can be a gloomy and forbidding place. On the night of which we speak, a terribly scared freshman in the circular room atop the castle tower fervently began to wish himself elsewhere.

It had been a tough squeeze through one of the grilled windows of the tower—but it was either that or a climb back down the outside wall. He shuddered at the thought of attempting to descend that wall with no moonlight to aid him.

Comfy?

His gaze swept the circular room to discover some way of getting out. When his eyes had become accustomed to the dark, he saw the outlines of a huge, medieval carved oaken chair and around it, running the length of the wall, a wooden bench.

His excited imagination immediately pictured the room being used for some ghoulish rites by the socially ghostly Gimghoulites.

He awoke to the fact that while he had been allowing his imagination full play the sky had become almost black with rain clouds. The thought of spending a night alone in the castle filled him with dread.

Fearfully, he felt his way around the uneven wall of the circular room until he came to a door. A foot stretched cautiously beyond the door encountered the first of the winding steps leading to the bottom of the tower and, he hoped, out into the freedom of the night.

"Excelsior"

In the blackness of the tower he stumbled several times on the corkscrew stairway. Along his shaky route he encountered doors, some of which were locked, some of which swung open before him. After almost taking several plunges into nothingness, he at last reached the first floor of the castle.

Escaping the castle via the ground floor wasn't as easy as he had expected. He wandered around. The kitchen of the castle was bare. When he bumped into what he thought was a man, he drew back afrighted until his probing fingers told him it was a suit of armor—probably made of wood.

Ah Grills!

He heaved a sigh of relief when he discovered the front door. Clumsy in his haste, he had to experiment for a few minutes before he succeeded in opening it. Freedom!—not quite. Before him was a substantial iron grill which he found securely padlocked. Only one small opening gave promise of a means of escape.

At first, our hero, in spite of tremendous effort, couldn't get his shoulders through the opening. With a final desperate push, he succeeded in getting his head and shoulders through the aperture so that only his posterior remained within the castle. Then with a convulsive jerk, which reduced him more than freshman gym had ever been able to do, he was through.

Alone, All Alone

Thinking of the warm, well-lighted dormitory room which awaited him, he hurried to find the companion whom he had left on the patio of the castle. The friend wasn't there. He investigated the freshman-built lover's seat only to find it damp and deserted. He searched the castle grounds shouting his friend's name and receiving no answer. Probably his pal had thought him hurt and had gone for help. Then again, when they had first approached the castle they had seen several couples — perhaps they had told the Gimghouls that an intruder was invading Castle Hippol.

It began to rain fitfully and Gimghoul seemed more forsaken and bleak than ever. The freshman gave up the search and trudged miserably homeward. When he reached the intersection of Gimghoul road and the highway, he noticed the flash of the headlights of a speeding car swinging into the road.

Close Shave

The Gimghouls! He jumped from the road and ducked behind a tree. When the roadster, crowded with boys, had passed, he congratulated himself on his narrow escape from the avenging socialites and went home to bed.

The car which had rushed past the hidden freshman continued at a furious speed toward Gimghoul, where the freshman's worried friend and several other boys alighted and spent most of the night searching for him.

It is rumored that two gentlemen, one of them a freshman, will not room together next year as previously planned.

ODUM TO TEACH CLASSES AT SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Howard W. Odum, head of the University sociology department and director of the Institute for Research in Social Science, will leave Chapel Hill today for the University of Southern California where he will teach during both terms of the summer session.

En route to California, Dr. Odum will visit the Universities of Oklahoma, Texas, and New Mexico. He will deliver the commencement address at the College of the Ozark on June 3, and on June 5 and 6 he will give several lectures at the Texas State College for Women.

P. T. A. WILL MEET HERE IN SUMMER

Leading Women of State to Cooperate with University Professors in Gathering.

Leading women of state will co-operate with University professors to lead the eighth annual State Parent-Teacher's Institute this summer in Chapel Hill, from August 9 to 23.

Delegates from P. T. A. organizations in counties all over the state will assemble under the leadership of Mrs. Charles E. Roe, field secretary of the national congress. H. D. Meyer, R. M. Grumman, and Robert Madry of the University are planning to conduct reports in the department of organization and relations.

All five days will be crammed full of program, the first item each day being a prolonged session from 9 to 12 a. m. when various aspects of program and organization will be considered. At this time on Monday, August 19, delegates from different organizations will report on their respective work. Mrs. W. B. Aycock, state president, and Clyde Erwin, state supervisor of public instruction, will be the major speakers.

Lecture Period

On other days the 9 to 12 period will be concerned with lectures on organization, relations, education, health and citizenship. Leading the relations study will be Jonathan Daniels, son of the ambassador to Mexico.

Outstanding among the leaders of other sessions will be Mrs. C. O. Burton of the radio department; C. E. Teague, assistant comptroller of the W. C. U. N. C., Dr. Clyde Milner, president of Guilford College, and G. W. Phillips, past president of the State Teachers Association.

University Hour

Another feature of the institute will be the University Hour to be held daily from 12 to 1. Edgar Knight, E. J. Woodhouse, R. M. Grumman and Clyde Erwin will lead this hour on the respective days of the conference.

From 3:30 until 4:30 in the afternoon Mrs. Bess Rosa will conduct a class in parent education. Mrs. Rosa is a field worker in the field of her lecture subject. Other special items to be studied are local meeting organization, county council organization, and fine arts.

The institute will convene on Thursday, August 23, with a concluding banquet. Two dormitories will be used to house the delegates, one for ladies and one for couples and families. R. M. Grumman is chairman of the institute committee.

Awards Night

through confidential sources that the feature of the evening would be the skit entitled "Sack! Sack! Sack!" to be put on by members of the faculty. Intended as a mountain burlesque, including hill billies and all, Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw will portray the character of the hero, Dean R. B. House will play the shy, retiring heroine, and Professor W. A. Olsen will play the dirty villain. The supporting cast includes Maryon Saunders, Felix Grisette and Roy Armstrong.

Other awards to be presented are the Grail cup for the outstanding freshman student and athlete, and the Grail awards for the highest scholastic average on the various athletic squads.

Approximately five additional awards which have never been presented before will be given tonight to various students.

Staff Meeting

There will be a meeting of the entire editorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel in the publication office in Graham Memorial at 2 o'clock this afternoon. All staff members are asked to attend and to be on time, as the meeting will be a short one.

LEAVITT RELEASES ATLANTIC BULLETIN

Research Paper Is Distributed To Association Members.

The first issue of the South Atlantic Bulletin, quarterly news sheet of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association, appeared yesterday under the joint editorship of Dr. S. E. Leavitt of this University and Dr. T. H. English of Emory University.

The Bulletin is intended to encourage research in literature and language among the members of the organization by reviewing and reporting scholarly papers and reports on libraries throughout the south. The publication will also carry the news of the association and its meetings.

Decision as to whether the publication, which is expected to prove a great stimulus to research activities in the south, should be made permanent, will be considered at the meeting of the association at Athens, Ga., next November.

The committee in charge of the publication is headed by Dr. S. E. Leavitt, professor of Spanish here. Dr. T. H. English, Dr. J. A. Strausbaugh of Emory University are also members.

Lieber, who swings a mean bat and catches flys with the ease and confidence of the best outfielders in either league. Following closely on the heels of Lieber for top honors is Castleman, who at present leads the pitchers of the National circuit with five victories and no defeats. Castleman is a strong arm hurler with a speed ball and a wicked curve. Manager Bill Terry is "thanking his lucky stars" for having the pitching find of the year on his team.

Unless the remainders of their respective leagues begin to step up the pace a bit, the Gotham contingents stand more than an even chance of walking off with the pennant. And if they do, the big city fans will witness the first nickel world series to take place since way back when John McGraw was the "daddy" of them all, and Bill Terry was still puzzling over math problems in the Memphis High School.

PAGING A NEW DEAL Our ex-class extension plan, under the new title of "Class Lecture Calendar," encountered remarkably little opposition on the faculty Thursday afternoon and is at last a reality.

There is no doubt in our minds that this plan will work out very successfully. Like all co-operative ventures, its success will depend on how both parties affected enter into the spirit of the thing. There won't be any chautauquism if the faculty assume their rightful responsibility; there won't be any student abuses of privileges if this part enter into it with the same assumption of responsibility.

It seems very appropriate that the Class Lecture Calendar will go into effect with the new curriculum. It looks like a new era in undergraduate educational experiences, and we are thankful that the students had something to do with the transition to better things.

STUDENT UNION The University Club rightfully deserved the student union's donation of $100.00 for use in next fall's freshman smoker. We remember our efforts last fall in trying to stir up a few bucks in the absence of any budget whatever and it was a similar gift that pulled us out of the dumps at the last minute.

We have advocated a split in the student union's fee to embrace the University Club functions and programs and it is possible that such an action will be taken sometime in the future. Until then, however, in such projects which are so directly concerned with student life as this smoker, it is the duty of the Graham Memorial directors to see that the club does not fail for lack of funds.

Graham Memorial undoubtedly should maintain some sort of surplus. But it should not neglect important present values.

LOCAL CRIME Announcement that we will have three of the well-publicized "G" men here this summer to work in the Institute of Government's crime course is an appropriate one, inasmuch as North Carolina has been consistently "on the spot" in recent years concerning her law-enforcement brigades.

The New Deal in criminals has caused our federal authorities to do some broad revisions in their systems of apprehension. The New Deal criminal knows no state lines, is ignorant of few tricks, is a tough customer in a nation-wide backyard. Still, crime is essentially a local problem in that it must have a central point of attack. So the federal agencies, after stretching laws as much as they could to broaden their own field, have found it necessary to aid in improving the local units in their efforts to combat crime.

North Carolina has already taken steps forward in bettering its crime-apprehension service. Now if a few loopholes are closed up in the law, we ought to get some of these gangsters.

Student Advisers Complete Study Of Campus Student Audit System, Propose Nine Aids To Efficiency

Financial Board Adopts Eight Recommendations

Audit Board Responsibility Insured; Will Receive Full-Time Bookkeeper.

CHANGE TERMS OF OFFICE

The newly-appointed Student Advisory Committee ended yesterday a three weeks study of the University student audit system with the Audit Board's adoption of eight of the nine committee recommendations for improving the student audit set-up here.

The proposals of the Advisory Committee were submitted at a special meeting of the Student Audit Board, called by Student Body President Jack Pool. The recommendations were accepted by the board almost immediately and arrangements were made to put the proposals into effect.

The report was signed by Frank Willingham, Fred Weaver and Don McKee. Francis Fairley, student assistant to Comptroller L. B. Rogerson, also aided the committee in its work.

Proposals

The proposals of the Advisory Committee which the Audit Board favored putting into effect are:

"(1) The Student Audit Board should meet frequently at regular intervals, at least once a month.

"(2) The incoming president of the Student Body should appoint one student member of the board for a term of two years. This appointee should be a mem-

Playmakers Cut Capers Tonight, Give 60 Masks

Eleventh Annual Jamboree Will Take Place Tonight at 8 with Dancing, Ale, and Cakes.

Defying profs (which doesn't mean Proff Koch) to do their worst in the way of examinations next week, the Playmakers will cut their 11th annual caper tonight from 8 o'clock on. . . . and on.

The scene will be the Club Tareel, Ltd., and Proprietor Scotty and Master of Ceremonies Jonsey will present a program which includes the most famous Playmakers in the world.

Bing Vallee, Nini Theilade, Morton Crosbee, Rudy Downee, Johnny Walkeree, Ginger Rogers, George Raft, and Judge William Wang will be present to do impersonations of their more well-known brethren and sisters of the theatrical world, Bob du Four, Christine Maynard, F. P. Phil Parker, F. P. Hester Barlow, etc., and so on.

German Finals

The by now classic dancing on the stage, and the equally by now classic ale and cake will be the main attraction, however. An additional little touch will be the giving away free by Proff Koch of 60 Playmakers Masks to the outstanding Playmakers theatre hanger-arounds of the year.

The chief getterupper of the caper is Jonsey, known in court and Playmakers circles as Joe Brown, F. P.

Playmakers and former Playmakers are invited.

FERA Checks

FERA checks for the month of May will be distributed from the University business office today and Monday, according to an announcement from Edwin S. Lanier yesterday. Lanier said that the checks will be given out today and Monday only. All who wish to get their checks must do so on one of these days.

Soph Executives

The sophomore executive committee to serve for next year was appointed yesterday by Ramsay Potts, president of the class. Frank Gooding will act as chairman of the group.

The other members include Paul Wolfe, Joe Rachide, Joe Powell, Pete Mullis, Billy Seawell, Gene Bricklemeyer, Bill MacDonald, Earl Ruth, Lytt Gardner, Bill Holland, Charles Benton, Stuart Rabb.

Frank B. Rogers, Jr., Fred Parrish, Andy Bershak, Bob Ellison, Joe Patterson, Jimmy Coan, Tom Myers, Warren Haddaway, Stuart Leake, Cranmer Henderson, Claude Hobbs, and Kemp Nye.

LOCAL BUS TRIAL IS DELAYED UNTIL QUESTION ARGUED

Mayor Foushee Believes Possibility for Line Is "Toss-up."

Future developments in the bus controversy between the Greyhound Bus Lines and the Carolina Bus Company will have to wait until June 11, the entire question having been postponed to that date, according to Mayor Foushee of Chapel Hill.

No more testimony will be received by the hearing committee, since all evidence has been turned in by both companies. From now on it is simply a question of arguing the case by the attorneys of the respective firms.

Mayor Foushee seems to feel that it is simply a "toss up" as to whether or not the through route will go to the Carolina Bus Company or to the Greyhound Lines.

Unlucky Stoney

Absent George C. Stoney's name was pulled from the box last night at the Carolina theatre weekly prize drawing.

The prize this week was $30 and two cartons of Lucky Strike cigarettes. Since Stoney wasn't in the audience at the time of the drawing, the prize next week will be $45.00 and three cartons of cigarettes.

Williams Reports $10,000 Drop In Student Loan Fund Requests

Reduction Caused By Federal Loans

Students Applying for Assistance Must Show Record of Financial Need.

MUCH MONEY RETURNED

After four nights of travail, hollow-eyed Jimmie Williams, manager of Student Loan Funds, in his yearly report presented yesterday to the Loan Funds Committee, reported an estimated $10,000 decrease in demand on loan funds this year due to FERA competition.

The report, which ran into noble dimensions, showed that of the 1,034 loans made to 541 students, approximately 95 percent of the money had been diverted straight back into the University and its auxiliary enterprises. Loans from the endowed funds exceeded collections by about $1,900, a much better record over last year, when loans exceeded collections by nearly $20,000. This differential was caused by the money poured into University channels by the FERA.

And 49 Cents

The total amount of money lent through the student loan funds this year, used only for payment of direct University expenses, was $58,244.49, including that lent on the Tuition Loan Fund. Collections amounted to $37,029.48.

Students applying for assistance from the University loan funds must show that they are in financial need, that assistance is not available elsewhere, that they are of good personal character, and that they are maintaining a scholastic average of C or better. Exceptions are made to the scholarship requirements only when it can be shown that there were circumstances which prevented the student from doing his best work. The applicant must secure two per-

TRAVERS TO PLAY THURSDAY NIGHT

Finals to Have No Tea Dance Thursday; Shaffer Has Charge of Tickets.

For the third orchestra to play for the annual German Club set of Finals, Vincent Travers and his boys have been secured, it was announced yesterday by Chapin Litten, secretary-treasurer of the organization, following a meeting of the executive committee.

Travers and his orchestra have been playing in and broadcasting from Philadelphia recently. They have also been engaged to play for the V. P. I. final dances.

Five Dances in Set

It has been definitely decided that the set will consist of five dances. The Thursday evening dance in the Tin Can from 10 to 1 will start the festivities. It is this engagement that Travers will play for and there will be no dance that afternoon.

Hal Kemp will arrive Friday to play for the tea dance and evening dance on that day. Attempts were made to have a morning dance Saturday but it was learned that Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra will not arrive until 1 o'clock that afternoon. The morning dance was consequently called off but the tea dance will be lengthened that afternoon. Nelson will wind up the set with the Saturday evening dance.

Invitations Here

The senior invitations are due to arrive here this morning. They will be distributed today and tomorrow afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. lobby.

The hours at which they will be distributed today are 11:30-12:45 and 1:30-4:30; tomorrow from 2-5 o'clock.

There are a few extra bids available for those who did not place orders before.

Liberty Leaguers To Get Together At Social Tonight

Plan to Preserve Old Institutions At Elite "Down with Everything Party."

All members of the local chapter of the American Liberty League are cordially invited to a "Down With Everything Social" to be held at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house probably at 8 o'clock tonight.

According to Local High Priest Winthrop Durfee, it is hoped that the affair will be a revival and not a passing out of the League. Cookies, and, for the more radical members, tea will be served as refreshments.

Although the committee in charge of the program has not yet been appointed, it is rumored that a very small part of the evening will be devoted to a detailed resume of the notable work and progress of the organization.

Contributions or donations to mollify the expenses will be gratefully received, it was announced yesterday along with the announcement of the party (Republican).

Durfee expressed an earnest hope that more than one member would be present as he "can't drink all the tea and eat all the cookies alone."

S. P. E. PLEDGE

W. M. Albright of Greensboro was recently pledged Sigma Phi Epsilon, it was announced yesterday from the office of the dean of students.

HENDERSON GIVES AWARDS ADDRESS, OLSEN, IVEY ACT

S. A. E. GETS DEKE TROPHY

The Patterson Memorial award, considered one of the highest honors that can come to a University athlete, was presented to Harry Williamson last night at the annual Awards Night program held in Memorial hall.

The award, which was presented by Dr. Charles S. Mangum, was won last year by Virgil Weathers.

Dr. Archibald Henderson in making the awards address urged the audience to keep on breaking records and striving for the high attainments in life activities. "Coach Bob" Fetzer congratulated the winners of awards and urged the audience to remember the unsung heroes who never make the headlines.

Levity

Digressing for a while from the business at hand, the program committee injected a bit of levity into the occasion when Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra, featuring the melodic voice of Boxer Jules Medynski, entertained with an interlude of syncopating rhythm.

The feature of the evening from the standpoint of fun came with the presentation of Roy Armstrong's "Sack, Sack, Sack," a dramatic hill-billy presentation starring Professor "Bill" Olsen and his wife, Pete Ivey. These stellar performers were assisted by Villain Spike Saunders, Hero Lewis, and the beautiful daughter, Professor Richmond P. Bond. Sacks House, Bradshaw, and Snavely, lurking behind the curtain, were integral parts of the play.

S. A. E. monopolized the fraternity awards winning the Deke Scholarship Award, the Interfraternity Council Award, and the Interfraternity baseball plaque.

The Grail awards were presented as follows: Intramural cup, Charles A. Poe; freshman

History Of Our 'Blue And White' Began Under Di And Phi Leadership

Blue and White—our Carolina colors. We associate them almost entirely with gridiron contests in the fall, and athletic events throughout the year. Yet do we realize that the combination originated first at commencement?

The story goes that the Di and the Phi were the first to claim the separate colors in the days of their complete campus domination. Di members sported light blue and those of the Phi wore white on festive occasions.

But the chief marshal at commencement, chosen alternately from the Phi and then the Di each year, conceived the idea of wearing the two colors in combination, to designate his representation of the school as a whole. It later happened that the practice spread to athletic contests.

These same colors will be sported next week by W. M. Dey, chief faculty commencement marshal, and Ben Willis, chief student marshal, when they proceed to take charge of the senior events and commencement exercises tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

Musical concerts will be featured throughout the three-day period, in addition to the regular Memorial Chimes concert at 6 o'clock. Tomorrow the University band will render the third of its lawn concerts under Davie Poplar, and at 8:30 that night the Chapel Hill Choral Club will present Schubert's "Mass in E Flat" in the Hill Music hall. H. Grady Miller will be the director.

Another lawn concert by the band will be held the next day at the same time, 4:30 p. m., under the Davie Poplar. And then on Tuesday the band will give a brief concert at 6:30 in Kenan stadium, immediately preceding the academic procession.

TUITION DIFFERENTIAL

Earlier in the year, there was editorial mention made of the benefits that might ensue from a re-adjustment of tuition rates which would make some co-operative inter-change possible between the state of North Carolina and other southern states as regards tuition fees in their respective state universities.

The objective of the plan would be to increase the number of students attending the University from the south. In connection with this, the project of increasing out-of-state tuition was also discussed, from the idea of increasing income rather than cutting down northern student representation.

In other words, there were two problems: one was to increase in some manner the number of students enrolled from adjacent southern states and the other was to increase the financial contributions of out-of-state students in general, particularly of northern students, insofar as out-of-state students even with the tuition differential of $100 are a drain on the state.

It is not a wild guess to hazard that should the out-of-state tuition be raised, the falling off in income from northern students (we except the southerners on the basis of the proposed reciprocity agreements) would more than equal the expected additional income from this class of student.

As to the idea of making reciprocity agreements with other states whereby North Carolinians could get reduced rates at the other state institutions and their students could get similar benefits at Chapel Hill, it would be well to remember that the University here enjoys the reputation of being "number one in the South." It is very probable that the influx of students from the state with which we may have co-operative plans would more than equal the number of North Carolina students desiring to attend other southern universities. The result: we have more southern students, but, with the tuition differential as to states with whom we have no agreements going up, the state as a whole would financially suffer, as so many in the latter class would be precluded enrollment.

The reason that reciprocal agreements cannot be made with the northern seaboard states is that none of them have true state-supported institutions which could do this. By raising our tuition differential enough to make any difference to us, we would force them to pass us by (the bulk of northern students choose North Carolina for financial reasons) and consequently we would suffer.

There is another element to the problem. At Duke University, where the costs are higher, the number of students from adjacent southern states is considerably more than at Carolina. Reason: tremendous publicity. Now this University cannot afford, even with the reciprocity agreements, to publicize much more than at present, and we believe that the results would prove rather discouraging and below expectations. North Carolina's reputation without publicity, however, would make some difference here and if the object is more fundamentally to get an increased southern quota, it is possible that good strides in that direction could be taken.

It, then, it is southern students we want and not finances, we should try to make these reciprocal agreements and raise the differential for those states where such an agreement can not be made. If it is finances, we must go slow on raising the differential at all, because of the ability of present differential-paying students to pay and because of the increased necessity for Duke-style publicity booklets in order to get enough reciprocity students to make the thing pay.

The problem is an exceedingly complicated one and not imminently important. But it's interesting.

Auditor Presents Report For Year Ended April 30

May 30, 1935

Mr. Jack Pool, Chairman
The Student Audit Board
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Dear Sir:

I submit herewith statements showing the results of operation for the year ended April 30, 1935, and financial condition as of that date for the following organizations:

Class of 1935
Class of 1936
Class of 1937
Class of 1938
Law Association
Pharmacy Association
Woman's Asssociation
Electrical Engineering Association
Civil Engineering Association
Medical Society
Debating Council
Student Government
Carolina Engineer
Chemical Engineering Association

These statements are necessarily condensed for publication. Instead of trying to go into detailed explanation of each statement in this letter, I am requesting that any officer or member of an organization concerned see me personally for any additional explanation desired.

Organizations with a fiscal year ending during the summer will be reported next fall. Voluntary members of the Audit Board will be given their reports, which they may or may not wish to publish.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the enclosed statements of income and expense reflect the true operation of the various organizations for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1935, and that the statements of financial condition reflect true condition as of that date.

Very truly yours,
ROBERT H. SHERRILL
Certified Public Accountant.

Williamson Invited To Princeton To Run In Palmer Stadium Meet

Harry to Run Tomorrow In Meet at Washington

Tar Heel Star to Run 880 Event In Princeton and Washington Races.

PRINCETON RACE JUNE 15

In addition to competing in the District of Columbia meet at Washington tomorrow, Harry Williamson has been invited to participate in the 880-yard run in the annual Princeton invitation meet there on June 15.

The meet, which is staged in Palmer stadium and is fast becoming recognized as one of the outstanding outdoor invitation affairs, will find the cream of the crop on parade.

Venzke Runs Mile

In tomorrow's competition Williamson was previously slated to race Gene Venzke, but the latter has been switched to the mile event which he won last year.

There will be plenty of competition, nevertheless, for Harry in the 800-meter run—perhaps even more than he can handle. Charlie Hornbostel, Indiana star; Frank Nordell, former N. Y. U. captain; Ed Brown, Georgetown, and Colman Headley, Maryland ace who ran but a few yards behind Williamson in the conference 880 will furnish the opposition.

At Princeton Carolina's ace will also be entered in the 880-yard run, but his opposition is not yet known.

Race of Champs

Entered will be every runner, excepting one, that has done 4:10 or better. This includes Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron, Gene Venzke, America's trio, and Lovelock, whose performance last year was one of the standouts of the meet.

Another feature will be the participation of Ben Eastman, former Stanford bespectacled speedster, and Hornbostel, who finished first and second in the 1934 world-record breaking half-mile run.

Williamson will probably arrive at Princeton June 11th, as most of those competing in that meet will be on hand for a few days advance practice.

Although it has not been definitely announced, Williamson will probably be the recipient of an invitation to California this summer. Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne and Frank Abernethy are also probabilities, with the latter's record-breaking performance in the Southern Conference meet placing him very much in the hurdle spotlight.

Jones Chosen President In Everett Voting

Majority of 55 Votes Gives Freshman Dormitory Office.

Ralph Jones, popular freshman, was elected president of Everett dormitory Wednesday after a very heated campaign.

The three men running were ex-President John Ramsey, Crowell Little and Ralph Jones. Jones was elected by a majority of 55 votes over his opponents.

The election, the first to be conducted on the secret ballot system, was open for the whole day.

Renewals

Loan notes are made out for two years and may be renewed at the date of their maturity if the student is still in school.

Students who find it absolutely necessary to borrow from the loan fund to return to school next year are requested to file their applications at the loan fund office before the first of August. They will be advised as to whether or not their applications have been approved in time to make their plans to return for the fall quarter.

Ruffin Tops List In Mural Scoring

Scoring points in every intramural competition, Ruffin dormitory captured the 1934-35 grand campus championship. It won its only title in wrestling, but keen competition and enthusiastic participation earned a total of 824 5-6 points.

Mangum, who headed the campus last year, was runner-up with 614, while Sigma Nu led the fraternities with 576½ to take the campus third place.

In the 10 events in which points were given, the dormitory league winners garnered nine titles, while the fraternity's champs scored only in one—a triumph in the cake race.

The championship Aycock tennis team placed both men on the first All-Campus intramural tennis team, selected last night by Fletcher W. Ferguson, assistant to the director.

However, heading the singles list was Morton Singer, husky Alpha Epsilon star, the only boy to go through the full season undefeated.

The choice of a second singles man proved too difficult, and it was decided to place Paul Onasch and Angelo Fiore, the Aycock stars, Bob Lovill, Kappa Alpha, and James Cope, S. A. E., all on an equal basis. Irving Kasen, Lewis, was given the sixth ranking single position.

The first doubles selection was also rated even. The Aycock pair, and Lovill and Malcom Everett of Kappa Alpha taking the first ranking together. The S. A. E. team of Cope and Charley Poe was selected No. 3.

FIORE AND ONASCH BEAT S. A. E. TEAM

Poe Stars for Losers as He Forces Final Game to Match Point on Two Occasions.

COPE LOSES AFTER RALLY

Aycock's intramural tennis team rose to great heights yesterday afternoon as Fiore and Onasch defeated Cope and Poe of S. A. E. for the campus championship by a 2-0 count.

The matches were the best played in the competition this year, and lived up to all prematch expectations. The triumph by the lower quadrangle pair gave that dormitory its third mural title.

Fiore Leads

Fiore started off things with a 6-4, 2-6, 7-5 win over Jimmy Cope in what was termed by many as a mild upset. Both played steady ball throughout, but Fiore's strong finish gained for him the verdict despite Cope's rally.

After putting on a desperate rally in Thursday's match to cop the fraternity championship for S. A. E., Charley Poe saw the same thing turned on him.

Poe Evens Score

Onasch took the first set by a 6-2 margin, but Poe evened matters with a 6-3 score and seemed well on to victory. With the score standing 4-0 against him, Onasch rallied and carried through six straight games to the title.

The last set was a real thriller. The final game first went to match point on two occasions, but each time Poe brought it to deuce, and on the next two successive times held the add, only to give Onasch additional chances by driving the ball in the net. On the fifth deuce point, Onasch finally broke through Poe's service to take the match.

LOVE AND KISSES We're trying very hard not to be sentimental about this last shot which the seniors may or may not read. When we think of our Bahnsons and Abernethys and Dills and Sugarmans wandering out into the bleak, barren plains, we feel very, very sad.

Things will be quiet when they are gone. Things will be still. There will be a pall over Chapel Hill. Bring out the hearse, there's gonna be a commencement.

But we'll still have the Davie Poplar, by hickory. And the Old Well and the Bell of C. Spencer. You can't take them away. We've still got Bob House's harmonica and A. W. Hobbs' baseball mitt. You can't put them in the hearse.

Farewell, erstwhile campusites. May you find Tugwell tractable and Roosevelt ready. May you vote a straight ticket and make the Moose. May you put traffic lights on Main Street to speed things up.

Goodbye!

P. S.—Don't forget your alumni fees, O venerable ones!

SUMMER SCHOOL TO BEGIN JUNE 13

Greensboro, Raleigh Students to Transfer Here for Second Session Beginning July 25.

Director Edgar Wallace Knight's University summer session will open Thursday, June 13, with registration day followed by regular classes on Friday.

With classes beginning on Saturday, the first session will get off to its real start. Late registerers will be fined. After 5 o'clock Tuesday, no further registering for credit will be permitted except by executive permission.

First Examinations

Examinations for the first session are scheduled for July 23-24. The second session registering will follow immediately on July 25. As none of the other divisions of the Greater University will hold two sessions, work will be arranged here so that Greensboro and Raleigh students may continue their study at Carolina.

July 30 will be the deadline for second session registering, according to Director Knight's announcement. For the masters' theses, the deadline has been set for August 3, and for the written examination for the masters' degree, August 10.

Final examinations for the second summer term will be conducted on August 30 and 31.

Features of the 1935 summer school will include special work by the Playmakers; Dr. Ernest Groves' lectures of marriage, July 8-12; the state conference on adult education, July 17-18; the conference on art education, July 19; the writers' conference in August; the eighth annual Parent-Teacher Institute, August 19-23.

AUTUMN TO SEE NEW CURRICULUM INSTALLED HERE

New Plan Is Result of Much Study, Discussion; Will Be Optional with Sophomores.

FEATURES FIVE SUBJECTS

Instituted next fall will be the revised University curriculum, the result of two years of comprehensive study and lengthy harangue on the part of the faculty and administrative officials.

Revisions in the freshman and sophomore requirements, methods of majoring, entrance requirements, and in the courses themselves are the outstanding features of the new curriculum.

Presents Unified Study

The changes taken as a whole are a profound attempt to produce through a more liberalized college education men and women better fitted to meet the needs of the complex social and economic life of today. The revised course of study aims at presenting a highly unified curriculum giving a more spiritual intellectual, social, scientific, and practical meaning to each step a student takes during his college career. It gives every first and second-year student opportunities to cover a broad field of knowledge before he drops out of school or comes to the place in his junior and senior years where he must specialize in one line of work.

Freshmen entering the University this fall will be required to operate on the new curriculum basis but the revised course of study will be optional for the rising sophomore class.

Includes Two Schools

The first two years under the new set-up present the Carolina student with the basic fundamentals of a liberalized learning and the last biennium offers specialized work in the field of the student's general interest.

The University is to be divided into two general divisions: a lower school, comprising the first two years, to train students in the essentials of education; and an upper school to give the scholar in his last two years freedom to pursue studies of his own choice.

Lower School Studies

The curriculum of the first two years is constructed so as

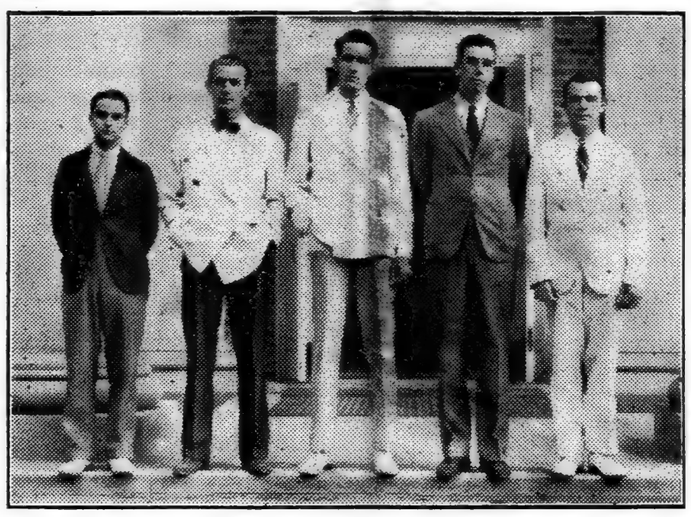
Handbook Copy

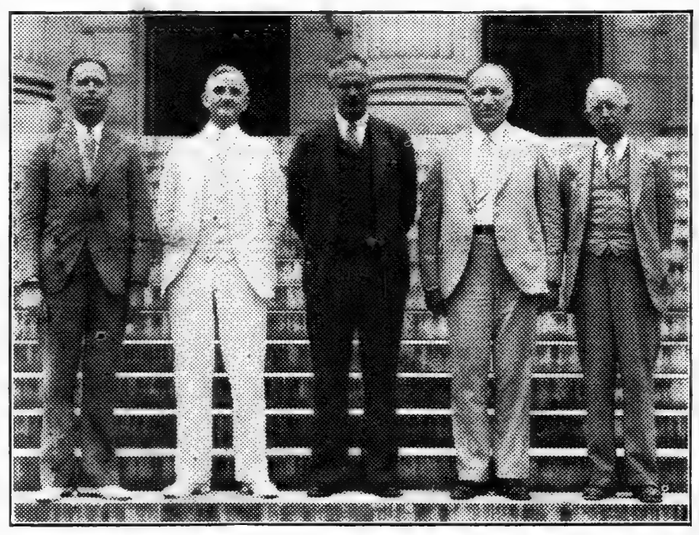
Freshman Handbook copy should be addressed to the editor and turned over to Miss Helen Hodges, in the Y. M. C. A. office, Don McKee announced yesterday. Promptness on the part of those contributing copy is requested.



APOLOGIES

The editors beg to apologize for the omission of news reviews of some campus organizations or institutions. Enough copy for a 13-page issue was written, but there was neither time nor space for the inclusion of over a third of this.

Finals Dancers



President Frank Graham very urgently requests that all students who plan to stay for final dances meet with him at 1:30 Thursday afternoon in Gerrard hall.

OUR FLAMING FIVE

Above are pictured the Daily Tar Heel staff choices for the outstanding seniors of the year, snapped after a careful student poll had determined their immortality. From left to right: Joe Sugarman, mite-mountain ex-editor of the Carolina Magazine and ex-president of Phi Beta Kappa; Harry Williamson, specialist in track record-breaking, winner of the Patterson medal, who renews his rivalry with Gene Venzke in Washington today; Frank Abernethy, ex-president of the student body and head of the campus' highest honorary orders during the past year; Charles Poe, editor of the Carolina Magazine and director of the famous Human Relations Institute; Jack Pool, president of the student body and ex-president of the senior class.

THEIR BIG BROTHERS

Here are the five faculty and administrative men who distinguished themselves in the eyes of the students in 1934-35. From left to right: E. E. Ericson, brilliant leftist who teaches in China next year; E. J. Woodhouse, Jeffersonian Democrat and man of/by/for the people; Carl G. Snavely, ex-Bucknellite who injected new spirit into Carolina football; E. W. Zimmermann, Mayflower cup winner and most popular economist in existence; Ernest R. Groves, eminent sociologist whose course in marriage ranks as the most popular in our curriculum.

Business Chief Rogerson Succeeds In Making Corporation-Like Plan

House Heads University Administration Here Under Unit Plan

Both Officers in Positions Similar to Those Formerly Held by Graham and Woollen.

WATCHWORD: EFFICIENCY

Incorporating centralized control with decentralized detail, Assistant Controller L. B. Rogerson has succeded since he became business head of the University at Chapel Hill in recasting the University administrative organization on the corporation plan: efficiency through specialization without loss of specific authority.

When President Graham became head of the Greater University and C. T. Woollen became controller of the three branches last spring, R. B. House as dean of administration and L. B. Rogerson as assistant controller succeeded to the respective positions here. Defining the two new offices President Gra-

FINAL DANCES

With three well known orchestras playing on consecutive days, the German Club will sponsor the last dances of the regular school year when they put on the annual set of Finals Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Vincent Travers will play for the first dance Thursday evening, Hal Kemp will entertain at a tea dance and evening dance Friday, and Ozzie Nelson will furnish the rhythm for the last tea dance and evening dance Saturday. All of the dances will be held in the Tin Can.

Dues and assessments for the set amount to $7 for all undergraduate members of the club, graduate students and alumni. The initiation fee is $5 for freshmen and sophomores, $1 for juniors, and there is none for seniors. Anyone desiring to secure bids may see Charlie Shaffer at the Deke house from tomorrow through Thursday between the hours of 10 and 12:30 a. m. or 2 to 4 p. m.

Over 400 Will Be Given Sheepskins At Graduation

FERA Checks

Tomorrow will be the last day on which those working on FERA may get their checks for the month of May, according to an announcement from Edwin S. Lanier. The checks will be distributed from the University business office from 8:30 a. m. until 4 p. m.

FRESHMAN, SENIOR EXECUTIVES SHOW ENERGY IN ACTION

First and Fourth Year Men Shake Off "Honorary" Lethargy, Proceed with Programs.

MIDDLE CLASSMEN STIR

Class Executive Committee—certainly that is an imposing title. But there have been and still are some imposing class executives, administrators with energetic, get-up-and-go spirits.

Many students are of the opinion that executive committees are purely honorary offices that the politicians hand out as baits to their constituents. True it is that some class executive committees convene rarely and accomplish little. However, there are two exceptions to this type this year: the Freshman Committee and the Senior Executive Committee.

Piloted by President Pete Mullis and with Bud Wooten, Joe Patterson and Paul Darden serving as vice president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively, the freshman class's governmental crew launched out on their first voyage in college waters to explore the unknown possibilities and mysteries of the honor system.

Honor System Fracas

A committee was appointed by President Mullis "to investigate the situation" and to get the co-operation of the Friendship Council in their work. The result of this was a plan for an honor court made up of freshmen with the power to try their classmen reported for breaches of the honor code and with the duty of making freshmen "honor conscious". The plan was adopted at an executive committee meeting in the absence of President Mullis.

Headlines. . . protests from Student Council members . . . diplomatic disavowals by Mullis. The plan was premature.

KOCH TO DELIVER COMMENCEMENT TALKS IN DAKOTA

Drama Teacher Will Return to Old Haunts.

Professor Frederick H. Koch will leave Thursday for the University of North Dakota, where he began his career 29 years ago as a teacher of the drama, to deliver the commencement address June 11. He will speak on "American Drama in the Making."

Professor Koch is leaving early in order to make the final address at the North Dakota State Teachers' College and to attend as guest of honor the production Saturday by the Dakota Playmakers, which he founded, of "Twelfth Night."

MRS. ROOSEVELT, GRAHAM TO SPEAK

Governor Ehringhaus Will Deliver Diplomas at 140th Closing in Kenan Stadium.

PROGRAM BEGINS JUNE 9

Over 400 members of the graduating class and the professional schools will receive their diplomas during the evening of Tuesday, June 11. The outstanding event of this occasion will be the commencement address to be rendered by Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt.

However, the 140th commencement program will begin on Baccalaureate Sunday, June 9, when the seniors gather to hear Dr. James Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary, in Memorial hall.

New Alumni

All seniors are expected, on Monday, June 12, Alumni Day, to register as full fledged alumni at the alumni headquarters in Graham Memorial, and attend the alumni luncheon in Swain hall wearing their alumni ribbons. All alumni coming to Chapel Hill for this occasion are expected to room in Manly, Steele, Old East and West.

Tuesday, June 11

Then on Tuesday, June 11, the final class day and graduation exercises will take place. The second gathering of the senior class in caps and gowns will be at senior class prayers in Gerrard hall that morning. Professor H. H. Williams, oldest faculty member on the campus, will lead this meeting.

Immediately following the prayers, Davie Poplar will serve as the site for a reception to all seniors and their guests by President Graham and the deans.

Kenan Stadium

Final exercises will be preceded in Kenan stadium by a short University band concert, followed by the academic procession. Exercises proper will begin at 7 p. m. with the address of Mrs. Roosevelt, who will have arrived that morning. Governor Ehringhaus will present the diplomas, President Graham will give the parting message to the graduates, with the response coming from Jack Pool.

The presentation of honorary degrees will conclude the exercises.

President Fisher Names Junior Committees

Phil Kind, Jack Bower to Head Executive, Dance Groups.

The rising junior class executive committe, as announced last night by President Joe Fisher is as follows: Phil Kind, chairman; Jim Hutchins, Gene Goodman, John Farmer, Charles Daniel, Jerry Kisner, Emery Raper, Julian Bobbitt, Bill Dowling, George Flynt, Paul Troutman, Sam Neaves, Tom Studdard, Paul Dickson, Clarence Patterson, Dace Pickard, Bunn Hearn, Jr., Herbert Osterheld, Warren Barrett, Milton Kogan, Edgar Thomas, Arthur Marsh, Marion Diehl, and Jean McKay.

The dance committee consists of: Jack Bower, chairman; Dave Pickard, Fred Anderson, Joe Derrickson, John Hawley, and George McFarland.

UNIVERSITY CLUB FILLS IMPORTANT PLACE ON CAMPUS

Hammer Maps Out Intensive Program, Starts It, Resigns; Willingham Carries On.

NEW MEMBERS ELECTED

"I just saw a few people and the whole thing was arranged," That is all there was to the freshman smoker at the beginning of this school year if Phil Hammer, dynamic ex-president of the University Club, can be believed.

One-man Committee Hammer spent the better part of a summer vacation drawing together all the plans, organizing entertainments, and figuring ways and means of collecting sufficient funds to make the first activity sponsored by the junior spirit organization a success.

Hard on the heels of the smoker, the group accepted the resignation of President Hammer, and elected Frank Willingham unanimously to succeed him. Roy Wilder was elected treasurer to take the place of Harry Montgomery.

Radio programs, entertaining visiting teams, cheer practice and pep rallies occupied most of the time of the organization during the hectic fall quarter. Weekly programs over WDNC under the direction of the club committee headed by Jack Clare reached a climax when a double presentation was produced before the Duke game.

Rings Bell

Weekly cheer practices and pep rallies were sponsored throughout the football season under the direction of Head Cheerleader Lester Ostrow. While a huge bonfire cast dancing shadows over the speakers' platform at Emerson stadium and a struggling mass of Carolinians cheered the team on to victory over Duke, culprit DeWitt Carroll clung close to the shadows of Old South . . . crept silently in the door . . . climbed those stairs . . . and rang that bell.

Rameses III, flanked at each side by six-foot shepherds, bawled lustily for the days of Bennie-Bennie Carr when truck rides by moonlight were the thing. The 1934 edition of the Carolina Mascot, angered by the competition given him by skyrockets, pigeons and cheerleaders, assumed a sullen silence during football games.

Homecoming week, early in the fall quarter, afforded the University Clubites an opportunity to put on the big show of the season. Dormitory and fraternity decoration was stimulated by the organization, and the biggest pep rally of the year was sponsored. Disappointed to pieces was lanky Paul Allen because the "Kentucky Colonel" uniform he was to wear failed to arrive.

Aids Yackety-Yack

Stolid, man-of-all-work Willingham, egged on by "Busy" Bahnson, proposed that the University Club aid in advertising the University by securing subscriptions to the Yackety Yack from alumni. Charlie Ivey was chosen to fill the treasurer's berth.

Discussion during the winter quarter raged over the petition for the Greyhound bus route through Chapel Hill, and the advisability of electing co-ed members to the organization. Visiting teams were still being welcomed. Nothing was done about the co-eds.

Rushed forward the end of the quarter. Came more and more athletic events. Worked harder and harder the University clubmen. Came the Southern

REPORTED DYING, DEBATES REVIVED WITH NEW TOPICS

Humorous Debate and Subject Of Capitalism Draw Crowds.

Variously reported dying and anachronistic, University debating came back to rinse its escutcheon in two spangled exhibitions and now ends the year with a promise of regaining the prominence it enjoyed when it was number two campus activity, second to football.

Students and villagers trooped out to hear the May 8 humorous debate, starring three consecutive editors of the campus humor magazine and a politician-debater. Hard on the heels of that pyrotechnic of wit came the May 15 debate on capitalism, born of the May Day challenge two socialist English instructors flung to the New England organizer of the campus American Liberty League chapter.

Interest Flares

Interest in the radical-conservative contest flared when a liberal professor of history and government jumped in for capitalism. Interest raged by the time of the debate, the night after super-conservative David Clark flayed radicalism in the University from a University platform.

Imported for the special occasion of Durfee's humorous debate were Editors Pete Ivey of the former, heathen Buccaneer; Pat Gaskins of the stillborn Finjan; Nelson Lansdale of the glad-handed, manicured new Buccaneer. Starring in the

STUDENTS CAUSE SERVICE CHANGES

Hammer, Fairley, Winslow Form Advisory Committee to Work With Administration.

Last November, President of the Student Body Virgil Weathers, at the recommendation of the University administration, appointed three students, Phil Hammer, Francis Fairley, and J. D. Winslow, to compose a new committee, called the Student Advisory Committee.

The purpose of this group was to represent the student body in the University business administration, by inspecting service plants and all services rendered the students by the University, and by making recommendations for changes or improvements.

Fairley was chosen chairman and Hammer secretary and immediate inspections of the campus service plants began. The University laundry was the first to be investigated, and then Swain hall, the Book Exchange, the buildings department, and the electric and power division.

Reports Submitted

Following preliminary tours of the physical set-ups, the committee began, early in the winter quarter, an exhaustive study of the entire service system, with regard to finances, administration, personnel, and organization. A series of reports were drawn up and written by Secretary Hammer.

In February the reports were printed in the DAILY TAR HEEL,

CAROLINA CO-EDS ENTER ACTIVITIES

Women Bid To University Club and Phi Assembly.

The Carolina co-ed during the past year has branched out into many campus activities that were left unheeded heretofore. She was invited to join the University Club and now has four members in that organization, one from each dormitory and one from each sorority. The co-ed was approved for Phi membership. This past year for the first time the co-eds have become members of the Foreign Policy League and have at the same time been elected to an office in that organization. They organized a glee club and now have 17 members.

As in former times, co-eds have been very active in girls' athletics, this year having for the first time a play day. The Playmaker's theater has been the place for many co-eds to show their histronic ability. The DAILY TAR HEEL, the Carolina Magazine, the Carolina Yearbook, and the Buccaneer have had co-eds on their staff in such positions as secretary, associate-editor and exchange editor.

Co-Eds Lead Figure

Two of last year's co-eds led the figure with their escorts in both the Mid-Winter German Set and May Frolics. The Woman's Association, seeking to get the women recognized at Carolina, has petitioned for membership in the American As-

TWICE POSTPONED STUDENT-FACULTY DAY SUCCESSFUL

Feature Will Undoubtedly Become Institution on Campus.

Student-Faculty Day, conceived in the spring of 1934 and subsequently twice postponed, became a happy reality February 20th of this year.

Supported strongly by President Graham, most of the departments, the study body and this journal, Student-Faculty day was so successful that it will doubtlessly become a regular institution in University life.

Probably the most popular aspect of the celebration was an all-day holiday from classes.

A general convocation at 10 a. m. in Memorial hall opened the day's festivities. President Graham spoke and was followed by Kemp Battle Lewis, who discussed "Eels," creatures possessing admirable qualities of bravery, etc., necessary in human beings.

Fraternities Receive

At 1 o'clock the University faculty members were luncheon guests of the student body at boarding houses, fraternity dining rooms, downtown cafes and Swain hall. Fraternities held open house all day.

South Carolina and the University pulled an unscheduled basketball game during the afternoon as an added attraction. U.N.C. won, 42-17.

The most enjoyable single event was the stunt program at 9 o'clock in Memorial hall. Dean House proved to be a maestro on

INSTITUTE BRINGS NATIONAL FIGURES

World Problems Given Intensive Airing Here By Speakers for One Entire Week.

Some of the leading social, economic, international, political and inter-racial problems of the modern world were given a week's intensive study when the third quadrennial Institute on Human Relations was held here this spring.

Charles A. Poe was chairman of the joint committee of students and faculty members which arranged the Institute program. Harry Comer, general "Y" secretary, was the executive secretary.

The first public convocation occurred Sunday evening in Memorial hall. Dean Robert R. Wicks of the Princeton University Chapel was the speaker; his subject was "The College Student in a Scared World."

Landis and Lederer

James M. Landis, U. S. Securities and Exchange Commissioner, was the Monday morning speaker, and chose as his topic, "The Significance of Federal Regulation of Securities." He was followed that evening by Dr. Emil Lederer, who spoke on "The Background of European Dictatorships."

Tuesday morning in Memorial hall Dr. Stephen Duggan discussed the situation in Europe. At 4 p. m. Dr. John Hope, president of Atlanta University, talked on "The Negro in the

PETE DESJARDINS, winner of many U. S. and Olympic diving titles, says: "Divers and swimmers like a mild cigarette. That's why I prefer Camels—they never get my wind or jangle my nerves."

Read these reports from star athletes approving Camels

When athletes agree upon one cigarette, its mildness is placed beyond question. For they must be sure about mildness! Pete Desjardins says: "Camels are so mild that I can smoke as many as I like and still keep my wind in perfect condition." Pepper Martin, fleet-footed St. Louis Cardinal, says: "Camels are mild—don't cut down on my speed or wind." And Pepper is backed by Leo Sexton, Olympic shot-put record holder; Craig Wood, the golf star; Reggie McNamara, the "bike" racer; and Susan Vilas, of swimming fame—to name only a few of the outstanding athletes who say they smoke Camels all they please, without disturbing their wind or nerves.

More enjoyment for you in this mild cigarette! You'll find you can smoke Camels all you want! Athletes say that Camel's costlier tobaccos don't tire their taste—don't upset their nerves or get their "wind."

Definite Serious Trends Indicate Era Of Change In University Campus Activities

University Party Candidates Make Clean Sweep Of Offices

In a few more days the homeward trek marking the passing of another college year begins. A busy schedule crammed with new organizations, increased student interest in extra-curricular affairs, a wealth of new ideas, a trend toward the more serious in campus organizations away from the sophomoric, the general activity of the student body during the past year, all emphasize a point that was brought out recently in a nation-wide survey of the present day collegian, which said that the student body of today is more alert, more vigorous, and more serious than the student in the 'twenties. This review is not just another Daily Tar Heel routine, but an indication of a changing era in Carolina activity.

Early in November the campus turned with interest to the freshman elections, since they are a straw in the wind which indicates how the different factions will line up for the campus elections in April, and where the strength will lie. The two major factions were represented by the Pete Mullis Party, a progeny of the University Party, and the All-Campus Party, sponsored by the ill-fated party of the same name. Nick Read, attempting to buck the political system, ran for president on an independent ticket. An unusually heavy vote swept every Pete Mullis candidate into office by big majorities, presaging the strength of the University Party and the subsequent break-up of the All-Campus. Results: President, Pete Mullis; vice president, Bud Wooten; secretary, Joe Patterson; treasurer, Paul Darden.

University Party Wins

The predicted strength of the University Party became evident in the April campus elections, and there was less election furor than there had been in years. Several offices, however, were contested by independent candidates, and the office of president of the student body, sought by Jack Poole, party candidate, Stuart Aitken and Francis Fairley, independents, was the center of attraction. Nevertheless, as was the case in the freshman elections, the University Party swept every candidate into office, having only a couple of narrow squeaks in the balloting for minor offices. Charles Poe more than doubled perennial-independent Carl Thompson's votes for the only contested publications office, editor of the Carolina Magazine.

Tom Evins, vice president of the student body; Philip Hammer, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL; Claude Rankin, editor of the Yackety Yack; Nelson Lansdale, editor of the Finjan, Buccaneer, or what-have-you (last reports have it that it's Buccaneer at present); Jim McCachren, president of the Athletic Association; Marvin Allen, vice president of the Athletic Association; Billy Yandell, president of the Y; Don McKee, vice president of the Y; George McFarland, secretary of the Y; Grey Yeatman, treasurer of the Y; Lester Ostrow, head cheerleader;

Contested Offices

In the other contested offices, Joe Fisher barely nosed out Jim Hutchins in the closest party-independent fight; Jack Claire won over Bill Weaver for senior class treasurer; Fred Weaver over Wally Dunham for junior class treasurer; John Parker over Bill Cochrane for junior representative to the Student Council; John Ramsey over Stuart Leake for sophomore class treasurer; Cecil Ford over Warren Haddaway for sophomore representative to the Student Council.

The annual struggle between those inveterate rivals, the Chi Omegas and the Pi Phis, resulted this year in an overwhelming victory for the former, who took every office they sought. The balloting was close, one office being decided by one vote, and two of the offices requiring run-offs. Results: Jane Ross, over Priscilla White for president of the Woman's Association; Louise Davis over Eliza Rose for secretary of the Woman's Association; Bobby Moore over Tempe Newsom for house president of Spencer Hall; Katherine Quigley over Frances Caffey for president of the Woman's Athletic Association; Sallie Page over Jean Van Deusen for secretary and treasurer of the W. A. A.

The balloting was unusually heavy considering the number of offices that were not contested. However, the votes cast lacked several hundred of equalling the all-time record made in 1933 when 1,996 votes were counted. The officers were inducted officially in Memorial Hall April 27.

ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY JACK POOL

One of the first acts of Jack Pool's administration was to appoint a committee on activities and improvements, headed by Harper Barnes. The committee is to look into the advisability of a written constitution for local student government. Said Pool: "I do not ask this committee necessarily to submit a written constitution. What I do wish is material which might be useful in compiling a manual on extra-curricular activities on the campus."

There has been no action as yet as far as a written constitution is concerned, but it is the first step toward victory in the fight the DAILY TAR HEEL has been making for a written constitution since the advent of the new editor.

"Ungodly Changes"

Since the advent of Philip Gibbon Hammer to the editorship of the DAILY TAR HEEL, the Di and Phi have spent most of their time condemning the campus daily's "ungodly changes." These outbursts followed an announcement that henceforth the routine news would be relegated to the announcements and bulletin column.

BUCCANEER LEADS HECTIC EXISTENCE IN COUNCIL'S HANDS

Abolished During Summer, Comic Mag Lives as Finjan Until Council Relents.

LANSDALE RESURRECTOR

Students of the University, when they returned from their summer vacations, found that the humor magazine, the Buccaneer, had been abolished, and that Editor Pat Gaskins had been expelled from school. Reasons for this abolition and expulsion were rather vague, but students suspected, with good reason, that certain features run in the first issue put out by Gaskins had been the cause.

However, the previously exterminated Buccaneer arose from the dead on September 19 by an almost unanimous vote of the Student Council when the group reversed its decision of June 11 abolishing the magazine and resurrected it subject to censorship of a board composed of one member of the Student Council and two members appointed from the Publications Union board. Pat Gaskins was put on probation by the Council under penalty of "immediate and indefinite suspension." Action of June 11 was upheld in that the name, the "Carolina Buccaneer," should be banned. A new magazine, "dedicated to clean wit and humor," would be erected in its place.

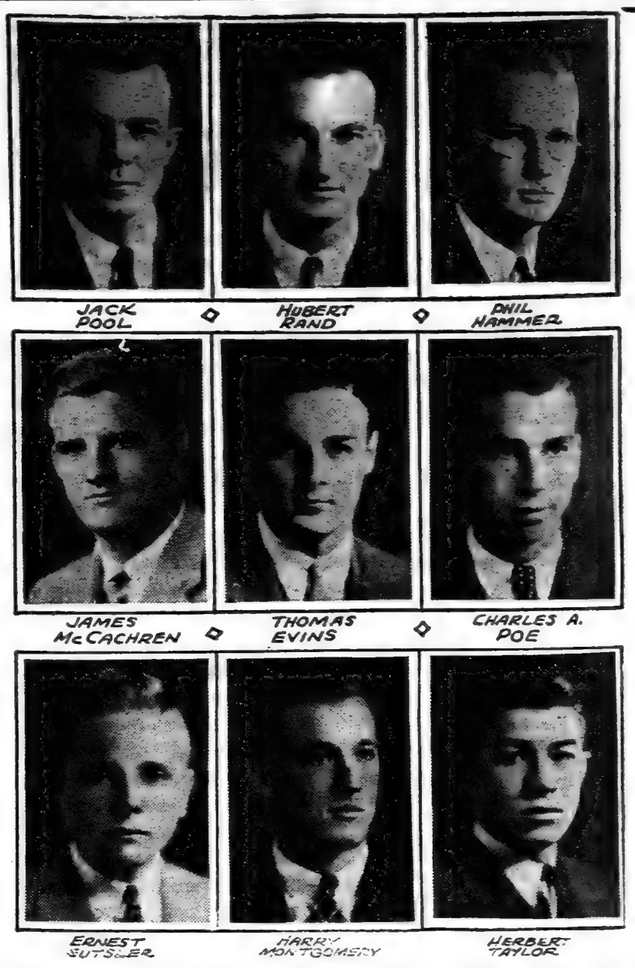
Buccaneer Re-named

On the same day in September that the Student Advisory committee approved the action taken by the Student Council in abolishing the Buccaneer and creating a new magazine, Pat Gaskins said that the new name for the humor magazine would be the Finjan, the name being taken bodily from the Arabic and meaning a small coffee cup without a handle. Gaskins said that the name was appropriate because the coffee cups in the University boarding houses in 1820 didn't have handles.

But on October 2nd a new complication arose. The Publications Union board disclaim any right or duty to act as censors for the Finjan by refusing to comply with the Student Council's request to appoint two new members for the board which would pass on material to bepublished in the magazine.

Council Rescinds Action

Two days later the Student Council decided to rescind its provision for a new comic magazine by wiping its slate clear of all former action taken about the Buccaneer. Instead, they decided that the name and policy of the Carolina Buccaneer would be changed. This decision came as a result of the new magazine being without funds, since the fees had been collected for the Buccaneer. The Student Council appointed a censorship committee of one member from the Council and two members from the student body.



So the humor magazine became the Finjan, after all, despite and by means of the Student Council. Editor Gaskins, first issue appeared on October 29th.

Buccaneer Re-Born

The Carolina student body read the Finjan, whether they liked it or not, until Nelson Lansdale was elected to edit the humor magazines in the recent

—AND ALL REGULAR FELLOWS!

The tapping of the nine campus leaders pictured above by Golden Fleece, highest honorary order, is well justified when a few of their accomplishments are set forth.

Jack Pool served this year as senior class president and will head the student body next year. Trip Rand will take Pool's place as senior president next year and was a varsity baseballer this season. Hammer is editing the TAR HEEL, formulated the Carolina Political Union, conceived Student-Faculty Day, wrote for the Magazine, was treasurer of the P. U. Board, served on Student Advisory committee, Grail and heads Amphoterothen.

McCachren made all-Southern basketball team for second consecutive year, captain of team next year, president of Athletic Association, varsity fullback, and Charlotte Observer's Flaming Five. Evins broke the Southern Conference shot put record this year, made Phi Beta Kappa, starred on football team at tackle and is new ruling Jason of Fleece. Poe is Phi Beta Kappa, conducted most successful Human Relations Institute here, editor of the Magazine and winner of Grail Intramural Cup.

Eutsler was junior class president, Grail, Phi Beta Kappa and courageous little varsity boxer. Montgomery was star in baseball and football and new president of Grail. Taylor walks off with the distinction of being smoothest politician on campus and prominent law student at the same time.

HAMMER, DURFEE START NEW CLUBS

Non-Profit Store, A.L.L., and Political Union Formed.

At the beginning of the scholastic year a student non-profit clothing store was organized for individuals connected with the University. The directors of the Cooperative Dry Cleaners were instrumental in the organization of this store and they estimate that members save amounts varying from 10 to 38 per cent on their purchases. Membership in the organization costs students $1.00.

Early in February Phil Hammer began work on an organization which was later to become the Carolina Political Union. On February 11 40 interested students met to organize the club. At that time Hammer was made the temporary chairman, and a few days later the Carolina Political Union became a fact. Bob Smithwick was elected president and Francis Fairley secretary-treasurer.

Durfee Heads

Campus conservatives have rebelled all year at the liberal program offered University students. On May 2, under the leadership of Winthrop Durfee, well-known on this campus for his debating activities, and his ultra-conservatism, 25 interested conservatives formed a chapter of the American Liberty League, national conservative organization. Durfee, after being elected president, said "the organization will use all its power to prove to North Carolina and the nation that this University is not o 'hotbed of radicalism'."

STUDENT COUNCIL RULES ON BOXERS

Medynski, O'Flaherty Declared Ineligible for Virginia Meet.

Students in the University who are simon-purists in regard to University subsidization and protection of athletes smiled with satisfaction when Jule Medynski and Tom O'Flaherty were barred from participation in the boxing match against Virginia on January 28.

The decision came as Dean Hobbs refused to certify their eligibility pending action of the Student Council. The case involved the residence status of these boxers, and was supposed to come up before the Student Council the night before theVirginia meet. The case was postponed when it was found that they, with Max Novich, had left for Washington Sunday to visit friends. The three had appeared before the committee on residence status, and Novich had been exonerated.

On January 30 Jule Medynski was absolved by the Student Council, but O'Flaherty was ruled ineligible pending further investigation by the Council. O'Flaherty did no more boxing during the year, remaining on Student Council probation.

HONORARY ORDERS TAP OUTSTANDING CAMPUS LEADERS

Phi Beta Kappa, Fleece, Grail And Others Take in Over 200 in Past Year.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Lawrence Thompson, young president of Phi Beta Kappa, resigned his office on November 15, at the semi-annual tapping exercises, resignation to take effect at the end of the fall quarter. Joe Sugarman, vice-president at the time, took his place as president. The following new members were tapped: Agnew Bahnson, William Branning, Henry Bridgers, Edmond Edelson, John Hodges, Richard Huber, Edward Martin, Herman Parker, William Ridenhour, Thomas Simkins, John Webb, and Frances White. Charles Poe was re-elected chapter secretary.

Keeney is President

The second Phi Beta Kappa tapping of the year came in May, and Barney Keeney, athlete and playboy with an unsullied record of all A's, automatically became president. David Scott, trailing Keeney by only one B, became vice-president. Others tapped: John Barney, Raymond Barron, Robert Berman, Percy Brown, Joseph Cordle, Branch Craige, Tom Crowell, Newton DeBardeleben, Samuel Elmore, Henry Emerson, Eugene Eutsler, Thomas Evins, Francis Fairley, Hector Gialanella, Vivian Grisette, Jane Forgrave, Polly Jacobson, Benjamin Kalb, Alvin Kaplin, Jack Kendrick, Charles Lloyd, John Mebane, James Mehaffey, Robert Neel, Julia Skinner, Irving Suss, William Watson, John Wiggins, Ben Willis, Samuel Wilson.

Sophomore Orders Initiate

Late in November the sophomore orders finally took in their new members after subjecting them to a long period of humiliation before the campus. On November 19th the Order of Sheiks took in Stanley Winborne, Bill McClelland, John Parker, Jack Cay, John Rainey, Joe Grier, Ross Allen, James McKee, Boylan Carr, Sam Neaves, Yates Mason, John Finley, Sam Willard, Tracy Spencer, and Carl Jeffries.

On November 26th the Order of Minotaurs took in Theron Upchurch, James Kale, William Hart, Paul Lindley, John Lewis, Lyndon McKee, James Wright, Louis Shaffner, James Carr, Spencer Folger, John Satterfield, Oscar Tyree, Edwin Jeffress, and Raymond Yokely.

For some reason or other the 13 Club just never did get around to taking their men in, but nobody seemed to mind very much.

Fleece Takes Nine

Nine campus leaders received the highest campus honor on May 10, when the Order of the Golden Fleece tapped Thomas Evins, Hubert Rand, Charles Poe, Harry Montgomery, Eugene Eutsler, James McCachren, Herbert Taylor, and Philip Hammer. Hon. Clyde Hoey was the speaker at the tapping ceremonies and was also tapped into the order.

Four days later the Order of the Grail tapped James Finley, John Parker, Ben Willis, Frank Willingham, Ernie Eutsler, John Johnson, Edward Voliva, Lester McCarn, George McFarland, Fred Weaver, Melvin Nelson, Francis Fairley, and John Drake. Harry Montgomery was elected president for the coming year.

THIS ISSUE: NEWS, SMITH; NIGHT, HUDSON

PRIDE OF 1935

We wish we were graduating so that we could get a lot off our chest in this last editorial fling. We'd have lots to say, but we're not exactly sure what it is.

You seniors have turned over to us the tradition of this University. It is as unmistakably the same tradition of 142 years, made richer through your efforts and stronger through your devotion and loyalty. It has been maintained and recreated; it is ours to cultivate even further.

What is this tradition? It is freedom, freedom to think and to act, to live as God intended us to live, to work and to play in an environment that nurtured our ambitions and fostered our intellectual and spiritual growth. In this freedom we have found ourselves and after you seniors have gone, will build up on this newly-discovered entity as you have done.

Your life here must have been grand. There were bumps and falls and disillusionments, but these were good. For the bad makes us good, and the good better. On a far more vast campus there will be the same bumps and falls and disillusionments but you can take them because you have learned how.

We're lucky. We have another year to plan our course, whatever it may be. We will have protection in our planning and a chance to grow big enough to stand up in the way of adversity. But you are not unlucky. The America which you face may be topsy-turvy on the surface, may be twisted and distorted and even false to our minds. But it is the same America that your fathers and forefathers fought for and if it needs more fighting for, which it does, then it is your job, and a thrilling job it shall be.

The University and those of us who are left look to the class of '35 for big things. Tomorrow we will be there with you. Today we watch with pride your emergence into a larger universe.

IN THE FALL

"Our outbursts intellectual," as Miss Deppe so sweetly put it, will for a short time be discontinued. In our sincerity to do something for this University, for its students and its ideals and ideas, we have plugged away perhaps too incessantly, done too much crusading. But we are forced to admit that we have been much more mild than we anticipated; it is surprising how mellow a person can get if he lets slip one moment from the path of his determination.

Our main objective is and has been to make this campus a better place on which to live. When we help to lead the horse to water, we don't want to let the poor horse stand there in the rain to drink from the trough, uncurried, uncared for. We want to make that horse realize that if he's thirsty, he has ideal conditions under which to imbibe of the basal liquid.

This objective of ours is being more and more realized. Our dormitory system is being improved, its social atmosphere, its physical set-up, its spiritual values, are all being enhanced. Our fraternities are becoming more conscious of their responsibilities, to develop their men in the most helpful manner possible. Our curriculum is being revised and students have had their part in adapting the schedules to their changing needs and the new demands of the world.

It has been a great thrill to have a little part in this enterprise of making Carolina life fuller and more illuminating. Our crusading policies may be "quite tempestual" but we're going to fight as long as it is incumbent upon us to do so.

Until next fall, we wish you all a most pleasant vacation and profitable rest. See you on the Hill in September.

Class Activities

It was scrapped. But the matter was not dropped. A revised plan was adopted and followed by the election of all freshmen representing the various schools to the new Freshman Honor Council.

Freshmen Dance

The high point in the Mullis term of office came with the freshman class dance, April 12, when the class president and officers, followed by prominent members of the class representing the different campus organizations and athletic teams, paraded down the center of a brilliantly decorated Tin Can in stately figure.

Pete Mullis and his executives and officers climaxed their administration with a smoker held in Swain hall May 16. At the conclusion of the program Mullis turned over the chair to the in-coming class president, Ramsay Potts.

Sophomore Class

The sophomore executives who in the fall quarter were headed by John Rainey, president, Bunn Hearn, vice president, H. L. Dosier, secretary, and Jack Bower, treasurer, decided to dispense with a class smoker and hold over more money for next year to be spent on their dance. However, the class did have a dance last fall, November 24.

John Rainey did not return to school the winter quarter and Bunn Hearn, who was then serving as vice president, took over the duties of the president. The other officers remained in the same positions. Marvin Allen served throughout the year as class Student Council representative.

Junior Class

Ernest Eutsler, president, Newt DeBardeleben, vice president, Charles Ivey, secretary, and Jake Austin, treasurer led the junior class administrators this year, with Francis Fairley serving as Student Council representative.

Taking action similar to the sophomore class the junior executives decided to husband their class funds by dispensing with the class smoker. However, the executives did not try to economize on their dance in the Junior-Senior dance series. President Eutsler led the figure at the class ball held in a crowded Tin Can Friday night at Junior-Seniors.

Senior Class

The senior class headed by Jack Pool, president, Harold Bennett, vice president, Albert Ellis, secretary, and Kenneth Young, treasurer, with Frank Kenan acting as Student Council representative, began their activities in the very beginning of the school year in Orientation Week. Approximately 25 seniors served as freshmen advisers.

The seniors had two class smokers, the first coming in the fall quarter, November 15, at which Coach Carl Snavely and Johnny Bost, Greensboro sports writer, were the speakers. The smoker committee tried to get Huey Long to attend and speak.

Senior Week

The senior class commenced a series of activities in earnest on Monday, May 6, the beginning of Senior Week. The baseball game with the faculty was played May 22; the seniors won by a score of 15-10. The class held a smoker in Swain hall at which Judge R. H. Sykes gave the principal address. Officers were elected from the class at large to serve for 5 years. Ralph Gardner was elected president and Albert Ellis secretary. Class superlatives were chosen.

The Junior-Senior dance set came on Friday and Saturday. The senior hop was held Saturday night in the Tin Can. Jack Pool led the figure down the center of the floor between massed banks of over a thousand other dancers. Barney Rapp even excelled his playing of the night before, and the colorful, crowded ball was a fitting climax for a week of activities.

The Senior Class Executive Committee met every week throughout the year and was probably the most active group of class administrators in the history of the University.

New Setup

ham said, "The dean of administration and the assistant controller stand. . .in the positions formerly held by the president (Graham) and the business manager (Woollen)."

House Head Man

Now for the University at Chapel Hill, Dean House has authority over all divisions, academic and business. Director of the entire business organization is Rogerson. Below this point Rogerson has re-organized the business and administrative set-up on horizontal rather than vertical lines. Five mutually co-operating and interdependent divisions replace the former absolutely independent divisions.

Each division directs for all the divisions the work in its special line. For instance, M. L. Thompson's auditing division works out the accounting systems, and G. M. Hill's personnel division supervises the hiring, for all the divisions. Still each division is directly responsble to its supervisor.

An efficiency measure of the new set-up is the consolidating of the offices of the laundry, the Book Exchange and the utilities and service agencies into the utilities office on Franklin street. The arrangement provides economies in accounting and supervision, eliminates duplication of work, and requires a smaller office force.

Eliminates Favoritism

Matching of job requirements with applicants' qualifications is a service of Supervisor Hill's personnel division. Hiring through the personnel division with the final choice of employees left to the head of the department in which they will work will make for better qualified employees and will eliminate the possibility of favoritism in filling offices.

As a basis for this service the personnel division is studying the requirements of various positions, at present of the secretarial offices.

Advisory to Rogerson with the power to recommend only, are two committees and two officers:

1. The student advisory committee of Frank Willingham, Don McKee, and Fred Weaver, suggests to the assistant controller student needs.

2. The heads of the business organization's five divisions compose the second committee—J. S. Bennett, G. M. Hill, M. L. Thompson and P. L. Burch. The Finance division has no head, but is supervised by Rogerson. This committee advises on matters affecting two or more divisions.

3. Francis Fairley, as student assistant to Rogerson, serves as co-ordinating agent between students and the University business organizations.

4. As inspecting engineer, A. H. Hollett advises the assistant controller as to the computed cost of proposed University projects and in similar affairs.

United Pastor Leaves

The Reverend C. R. Dierlamm, who lived in Chapel Hill for four years, has left for Parkers Glen, Twin Lakes, Pa.

Invitations

Senior invitations may be secured this afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. lobby from 2 to 5 o'clock. They may also be secured tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 4.

There are still a few extra ones available for those who did not place orders or who find they need additional invitations.

Smart Greeks

It was announced December 8 that the fraternity scholarship at the University is the second highest among 36 institutions reporting from the southeast. Remarked Dean of Students Bradshaw: "Rather remarkable."

Kendrick Wins Medal

A short time before Christmas J. W. Kendrick, sophomore member of the Di Senate, won the non-existent Mary D. Wright medal as the Di Senate, represented by Kendrick and Robert Mullen, defeated Winthrop Durfee and Albert McAnally, Phi representatives, in the annual Mary D. Wright debate.

'35 SENIORS PLAN ALUMNI ACTIVITY

Graduating Class To Be Installed as Alumni Before Commencement.

Permanent officers of the class of 1935, headed by Ralph Gardner, president, and Albert Ellis, secretary-treasurer, are making a canvass to insure a large alumni association individual membership for the class.

During the commencement program seniors will have the distinction of being considered as returning alumni as well as members of the graduating class. Monday they will register at alumni headquarters in Graham Memorial, and will be given ribbon badges like those returning alumni will receive, and will be admitted both to the alumni luncheon in Swain hall and to the alumni ball in the Tin Can in the evening.

Association Membership

President Gardner and Secretary Ellis are asking that seniors join the General Alumni Association by paying the special fee of $1 for their first alumni year, entitling them to a year's subscription to the Alumni Review and other privileges of membership. Regular membership dues are $3.

The '35 officers are organizing their canvass of the class by dormitories and fraternities and expect to contact every senior.

Service Changes

with the committee's recommendations. Six changes were advocated for the laundry, nine for the Book Exchange, thirteen for the dormitories, six for the power division, eight for Swain hall, and seven for the central business administration in general.

Immediately the University administration began to act upon the recommendations and at the end of the winter quarter, every recommendation had either been put into effect, carefully considered with the responsible heads present, or referred to the proper unit.

New Members

The first official act of Student Body President Jack Pool when he came into office in April was to appoint new members to the committee. Winslow was graduating, Fairley had just received a position in the business office as a result of his committee work, and Hammer had other campus duties which precluded his continuance as a member.

Frank Willingham, Fred Weaver, and Don McKee were recommended by the outgoing committee and President Pool made his appointments according to the committee's advice.

The new Student Advisory Committee has thoroughly studied the student audit set-up, embraced in a general study of student fees and their allocation and dispensation. Reports have already been drawn up and presented on this subject.

The committee acts in the advisory capacity but has the power to investigate and inspect as it sees fit.

First Aid Instructor

Dr. E. E. Willison, who will be in Chapel Hill from July 1 to 12 to conduct a Red Cross first aid course, sponsored by the local chapter of the American Red Cross. Willison is field representative for the Red Cross first aid service.

Human Relations

Modern World." "Have Our Prisons Failed?" was the question which Sanford Bates, director of the bureau of prisons, answered negatively at the evening convocation.

Fish Swims Off

Wednesday Congressman Hamilton Fish gave the morning address, and lashed the NRA, FDR, and all things Democratic. Immediately following, he was taken to a seminar in Gerrard hall. There he successfully dodged all who attempted to pin him to specific answers.

On Wednesday afternoon Chester Wright, public relations counsel for the U. T. W., gave the defense for the textile workers in the absence of Union Leader Gorman, who was present for the second Relations Institute. That night Donald Comer, president of the Avondale Textile Mills, presented the case for the mill owners with an effectiveness and sincerity which contrasted in his favor with the platform manner of Wright.

Vastly erudite Dr. Everett Dean Martin, director of the Peoples Institute, was the Thursday speaker.

Soule Weil Lecturer

George Soule, editor of the New Republic, and Weil lecturer, was the speaker Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. His general topic was "Liberty in the Modern World."

Dr. Shailer Matthews discussed "International Conflicts in the Far East" Friday morning.

Norman Thomas gave his first public address Friday afternoon. The director of the L. I. D. made the declaration that "America must choose Fascism or Socialism."

Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to this country, spoke Saturday morning on "International Good Will and Understanding." He was followed at 12 o'clock by Thomas on "Industrial Relations." There was a luncheon conference on "Threats to Peace" later. Editor Soule concluded the Institute that night with his third lecture.

'Y' ENDS ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Speakers, Human Relations Institute, Retreats, Directory, Self-Help, Included in Record.

Breezing through three quarters of punch-packed Y. M. C. A. service, General Secretary Harry Comer and Student President Julian D. Winslow carried the cabinet banners from Pre-College Retreat for freshmen in September through the organization of the delegation for this summer's Blue Ridge conference.

Standard service, extra speakers, and the Human Relations Institute were all handled with ease by the year's "Y" administration. Under the direction of now-president of the Carolina student body Jack Pool, deputations were sent out during the winter and spring quarters to contact nearly 25,000 people in the state.

Office Secretary Helen Hodges came through with the campus directory at the beginning of school—green, black ink, crammed with precious names. Sedalia Singers came from Greensboro to perform in Memorial hall. Negro county football classic in Kenan stadium sponsored by "Y" for health fund. Negro night school conducted during the year.

Nye and Munitions

Heavy-set Methodist Bishop McConnell roared over 900 freshmen in Memorial hall on one of the regular "Chapel" programs of the fall quarter. Then—Senator Gerald P. Nye from North Dakota landed in Chapel Hill with a brief case full of munitions talk to bring cheers from the large Memorial hall audience.

Continuing in the winter quarter program, the "Y" sponsored the three-sided symposium on religion and took an important role in the first Student-Faculty day, February 20. Hampton Quartet arrived just before exams to close quarter's work with the "deepest bass in the world". Dr. T. Z. Koo "fluted" and inspired a Memorial hall audience with his English adapted Chinese speech.

Off with a powerful plug in the spring quarter, Charlie Poe's Human Relations Institute kept students running from classroom to Memorial hall, three times a day, to hear the "capital" speakers. Late speakers were Rabbi Israel and Sociologist Warbasse.

Non-political Elections?

Elections arrived and Yandell, McKee, McFarland, and Yeatman took over posts of Winslow, Yandell, Hammer and Smith. Yandell announced plans for next year. Hillside meeting hears Dr. Frank Graham speaking to all the "Y-ers" racked up the side of the Forest theatre hill.

Don McKee recently made editor of the Freshman handbook for next fall. Religious Workers Council is now closing school year after season of organization, weekly radio broadcasts and conferences.

Self-Help Secretary Ed Lanier pulls through another year of "locating" jobs for boys with "Y" bureau combined with service of the FERA to students. Quota of students employed; nearly $40,000 spent.

Odds and ends during the year found the Y. M. C. A. rendering its year-long service of counseling Carolina men, backing the Red Cross, conducting occasional assembly programs, helping with high school week, bring outstanding cabinet speakers for every Monday night and conducting trips for the members to the State Prison camp.

New Curriculum

to proffer the average student, as the University catalog puts it, "competence in language as a tool and as culture; in natural science, as understanding himself in the physical world; in social science in comprehending the civilization of which he is a part; and in mathematics or Greek or Latin as intellectual discipline and culture."

Freshmen and sophomores will take five courses, three hours a week for each, running through the entire year. Emphasized will be one foreign language, English, social science, and natural science courses, arranged on a two year basis; and mathematics or classical language and an elective subject to be studied for one year. The elective is expected to be selected in view of preparing the scholar for specialized work in his junior and senior years.

One of the new features of the freshman curriculum to be offered for the first time in September will be the course in social science, a comprehensive introductory study devised to "assist the student in developing an understanding of the nature and complexity of our present civilization, particularly in its social, political, and economic aspects." University officials plan to make the introductory course in science a study in biology, but this course has not as yet been completely formulated; and for the present first-year men will have the choice between introductory courses in botany, chemistry, or geology.

When the scholar in his junior year enters the upper college, he will choose a major, or field of special study, from one of four divisions: Humanities, Natural Sciences, Social Sciences, and Commerce. The Humanities include subjects in the classics, English, Germanic languages, Romance languages, comparative literature, history, art, archaeology, theatre arts, and music. Natural science majors will enter the field of botany, chemistry, physics, psychology, mathematics, and zoology. Economics, history, government, sociology, public administration, and rural social economics make up the division of social sciences; and commerce, the fourth general division, is a department of itself. Philosophy and education will be incorporated in each division.

The revised curriculum will not apply to all courses of study in the University, but adjustments and variations from the plan are provided for in such special courses as applied science and engineering, pharmacy, courses preparatory to medicine, and in some degree in music.

campus elections. On April 29 the many-lived Buccaneer arose from the dead again. The Student Council (the new one—the old one coudn't have stood to hear the name Buccaneer or Finjan again) re-established the Buccaneer, and thus the controversy ends, for a time at least, or until someone decides that the Student Council hasn't the right to re-establish it.

Said Lansdale before the Council: "An intelligently written and edited publication—and I hope it will be that—comes into the world under a terrific and unreasonable handicap if it has to bear the name Finjan." The Council thought the same and thus ended the ephemeral "cup without a handle." A remarkable fact about this recent action is that it took only about 15 minutes to undo all the involved tangle of the former Council.

the harmonica; Freddie Johnson's boys—and girl, one Peggy Woodard—were the music makers; and a well-known sophomore boxer turned out to possess more than average crooning ability. J. D. Winslow was in charge of this program.

During the day most of the University departments maintained exhibits in various buildings over the campus. The laboratories were thrown open to crowds suddenly grown scientific. The chemistry department poured out free, artificial lemonade.

BIGGEST FESTIVAL

Russell M. Grumman's third annual Dogwood Festival was the largest, longest, and best attended affair of its kind ever held at the University.

The principal attractions were the arts and crafts exhibit, the Cherokee Indian ball game, Richard Chase's folk music and dances, tours of the campus and town, and Artist Lena Tuttle's display of "Arts of Youth."

Growing Old!

President Frank Graham delivered the principal address on the University's 141st birthday to a mass meeting of the students, who were enjoying not only Doc Graham's address, but a Founder's Day half-holiday as well. Dr. H. B. Haywood delivered a greeting from the alumni.

FRESHMAN WEEK LEADERS CHOSEN, ANNOUNCES POOL

Some 45 Students Will Act As Counselors to Incoming Freshman Class Members.

PLAN FOR 35 GROUPS

Some 45 students and campus leaders have been selected as counselors for the annual freshman orientation week next fall, it was announced yesterday.

The orientation program is under the supervision of the student government, Jack Pool, president of the student body, advised yesterday. The plan as announced by Pool divides the in-coming class into 35 groups under the leadership of an upperclass counselor.

Introduction

During the orientation period, the freshmen will be introduced to the lay-out of the campus, the various buildings, and other University facilities. They will be taken on library tours where they will be shown the method of securing books and getting the most from the resources at hand.

Each counselor will hold various conferences with the members of his groups and aid them with any problems in connection with their new life. Extensive study will be made of the honor system and the freshmen will be oriented into the workings and the traditions of the system as exemplified on this campus.

Those who have been selected as counselors for the orientation period are as follows: Phil Hammer, Claude Rankin, Nelson Lansdale, Albert Ellis, Frank Willingham, Fred Weaver, Lewis Shaffner, Parks Austin, Walker Percy, Joe Grier, Francis Fairley, John J. Parker, Frank Rogers, James Craighill, L. C. Bruce, Oscar Tyree, Francis Bowen, Charles Ivey, Billy Anderson, Jack Clare, Irving Suss, Charles Poe, Joe Barnett, Boylan Carr, Don McKee, George McFarland, Hubert Rand, Morris Rhoades, Henry Lewis, Julian Warren, George Hux, J. C. Grier, Billy Yandell, Raymond Barron, Bob Magill, Jake Snyder, Jim Daniel, Phillips Russell, Don Wetherbee, John Shultz, David Scott, A. H. McLeod, Tom Evins, E. E. Raper, Newton DeBardeleben, and Fred Eagles.

We want to congratulate the Tar Heel Staff for the best paper they have ever put out.

Snavely Footballers Have Successful Year

Tar Heel Trackmen Uphold Brilliant Record

Lose Only One Encounter During Coach's First Year

Coach Carl Snavely in his debut as head football coach at the University of North Carolina piloted his Tar Heels through one of the most successful seasons in years, winning the "Big Five" grid title and ranking his proteges as one of Dixie's most outstanding clubs.

In his initial contest, Snavely at once established himself in the hearts of Carolina grid followers with a stirring 21-0 victory over the highly-touted Wake Forest eleven.

But Carolina dropped the second game of the schedule to the strong Tennessee contingent, 19-7. On the opening kick-off, Krouse, Vol field general, raced 86 yards through the entire North Carolina club for a touchdown. Snavely's charges were not to be denied; the Tar Heels came right back and took the lead when Bill Moore scored five minutes later. "Pug" Vaughn ran 20 yards to tally and to put Tennessee once more into the fore.

Georgia Beaten

Undaunted by their defeat of the previous week, the Tar Heels marched through Georgia to lick the fighting Bulldogs, 14-0, at Athens. The spearhead of the Carolina offense was hard-running Charlie Shaffer who counted both the Tar Heels' touchdowns. His fine ball-carrying was made possible through the superb blocking of Captain Barclay, Tatum, and Snyder.

October the 20th, Home-Coming Day for Carolina grads, found the alumni handsomely rewarded when the Tar Heels took the measure of a great University of Kentucky aggregation, 6-0.

The next week's contest found two coaches new to Dixie football matching wits, Heartly G. "Hunk" Anderson, grid boss at N. C. State, and Carl Snavely, Carolina's new mentor. This, their first meeting, ended in a draw, 7-7.

Tech Wrecked

Carolina, again invading Georgia, met a highly publicized Georgia Tech eleven on Grant field, Atlanta, and calmed the Golden Tornado to a mild breeze, 26-0.

Home-Coming Day for Davidson was a wet one, figuratively and literally. Playing under a steady torrent of icy rain, both teams battled valiantly with Carolina emerging the victor, 12-2.

Duke

November 17 proved to be a big day in the hearts of all Carolina men. Duke was met and conquered 7-0 before a host of 35,000 rabid fans who jammed the confines of Kenan stadium. Dick Buck, brilliant sophomore end, carried off top honors for individual play. Late in the third quarter, Buck snagged a pass from Don Jackson on the Duke 40-yard line, shaking off would-be Blue Devil tacklers and losing his jersey, Buck carried the ball to the 9-yard line where he was finally downed by Wentz. The fourth period opened with two futile tries at the Duke line, but on third down, Jackson rifled another pass to Buck who stepped over the line for the only tally. "Babe" Daniel converted from placement.

Carolina renewed her annual Thanksgiving Day classic with the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, with an uninspired 25-6 triumph. This, the south's oldest gridiron battle (43 years old), was played in a sea of mud in Scott stadium before a small crowd of fans. Six Carolina men sang their swan song in this battle.

All-American

Following the season, George Barclay, valiant leader of the Tar Heels, was named first team all-American guard by the all-American Football Board. Barclay made all-State, all-Southern Conference, and all-Dixie mythical elevens also. Added to these laurels, Barclay was invited to the all-Star East-West game, played at San Francisco, New Year's Day.

Herman "Hump" Snyder, elected to co-captain the 1935 Carolina football team along with Harry Montgomery, won the Millis Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the state intercollegiate football.

Two Varsity Golfers Are Tourney Titlists

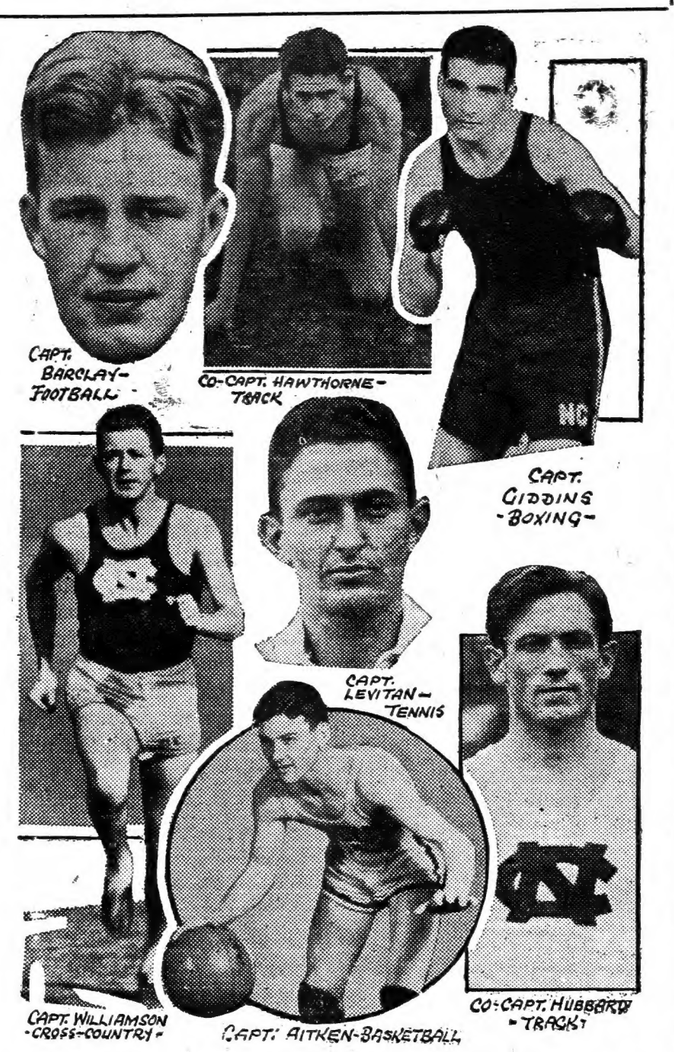
Erwin Laxton is Conference Champion; Wilson Coffin Holds State Title.

Enjoying one of their most successful seasons in many years, the varsity golf team won the open Southern Intercollegiate golf tournament held at Athens, Ga., and came in second in both the state and Southern Conference tourneys.

In addition to the honors gained by the team as a whole, two individual titles were won by members of the squad.

In the state meet, Wilson Coffin surprised many when he copped the crown by defeating Perry of Duke. The match was so close that a nine hole play-off was necessary to determine the champ.

Laxton Wins Crown



Erwin Laxton regained the Conference crown which he won in his sophomore year, when he turned in the low card of the day in the tourney held at Sedgefield in a driving rain.

Lose First Meet

The team suffered its first setback at the hands of State in their first match played away from home. In the next two meets, the Carolina team took Augusta Jr. College and Duke into camp. A tie at the hands of the Richmond team, and a severe crushing of the Furman team ended the team's play on the home course before their departure for their first tournament play.

The last dual meet of the season was played the day before the conference play on the same course used for the tournament. By beating the W. &. L. team, the golfers brought the results of dual matches to 10 wins, two tied meets and two losses.

THEY SHOWED THE WAY

Pictured above are the men who captained the various athletic teams during the past year. Several of them rank among the nation's best in their respective endeavors.

Shepard-Coached Quintet Wins State And Conference Titles

Varsity Five Triumphant in 23 out of 25 Games; Four of Five Starters Receive All-Southern Recognition; N.Y.U. To Be Played at Madison Square Garden Next Year.

Carolina's 1935 quintet, expertly coached by "Bo" Shepard, had a highly successful season, copping the state and Southern Conference Championships. With a squad composed almost entirely of veterans, they conquered the best teams in the South and East. The only two games dropped out of a schedule of twenty-five were lost to Army and Duke. In a return game with Duke, however, the Tar Heels conquered the Blue Devils, to avenge the loss.

Nelson High Scorer

Nelson, followed by Aitken, led the scoring for the year, playing at the forward post the better part of every game. Glace was an iron man on defense, and held up his own in the scoring as well. Harris and Kaveny alternated at one of the guard posts, while the other was admirably taken care of by Jim McCachren.

That the individual ability of the players was recognized is seen in the fact that four out of five starters got all-Southern rating. Aitken, Glace, and McCachren were picked on the first team, while Nelson was placed on the second team.

In the most important setto of the year, the Southern Conference tournament, the Tar Heels displayed their best form. They trounced South Carolina 46-25, in the first game, won by the closest of margins from State in the semi-finals, and worked hard to win the title in a well played tilt with Washington and Lee, 35-27.

Playing an extensive schedule on their annual northern trip, the North Carolina boys came through with a very successful tour. In successive days they defeated such highly touted teams as Maryland, 39-31, Navy, 30-19, Crescent A. C., 38-32, New York A. C., which boasted some of the best former college players in the country, 38-32. The only game dropped was the last one on the trip, when a tired crew wilted before the Cadets, 29-19.

Newly elected Captain Jim McCachren, Nelson and Webster will probably form the nucleus for the 1936 team. Although Webster was a reserve this year he showed good form at center and can well fill Glace's roomy shoes. With Ruth, Mullis, Meroney, Grubb, and Potts, outstanding prospects coming up from the freshman team, the basketball horizon looms bright for next year.

Schedule Changes

Among the several changes made on next season's schedule, the replacing of the Army game by a game with the famed N. Y. U. quintet to be played in Madison Square Garden is outstanding. Another surprising change is the news that the Naval Academy team will be met in the Tin Can instead of at Annapolis. This is considered quite an honor as the Middie team has previously played only Army away from Annapolis.

State, Conference Titles Won By UNC Trackmen

Carolina completed its most successful season in track this Spring, winning four dual meets, its fourteenth consecutive State championship, and its third straight Southern Conference title. Thus U. N. C. gained a "grand slam" in Dixie track athletics for the 1934-35 year.

On April 6th, the Fetzer-Ranson coached squad opened its year with a smashing 76-49 victory over William and Mary in weather more appropriate for a duck's party. Despite the fact that the versatile "Monk" Little accounted for four victories for the victors, Carolina showed itself a well-balanced squad and promised well for the future.

The team next scored a surprising top-heavy 95 1-6 to 30 5-6 victory over the University of Virginia in a meet featured by Harry Williamson's breaking of the nine-year old Emerson field record.

Duke Meet

Co-Captain Tom Hawthorne then led the "Flying Tar Heels" to a 73-53 victory over Duke in what was termed by many as the best dual meet ever held on Emerson field. Carolina surprised more than a hand-full of people in taking the verdict, as many had picked the Blue Devils to triumph.

In the Penn Relays, the Tar Heels emerged with third place in the four-mile relay, fourth place in the 880-yard relay, and third in the 220-yard low hurdles by Tom Hawthorne and in the broad jump by Floyd Higby.

State Meet

After a short rest, Carolina returned to the cinder path to successfully repulse the attempts of Duke to capture the state title, which Carolina had held for 13 previous years.

When the final race had been run the Tar Heels had 72½, and the Blue Devils but 67. Only two double winners were produced—Harry Williamson in the 880 and mile for Carolina, and Woodard in the two dashes for Duke. Williamson's 880 win produced one of the several new marks.

Tom Evins continued to show great improvement in the shot put, taking the crown after a record-breaking throw of 46 feet, 7 3-8 inches had given him his second straight triumph over the famed Williams brothers.

In its only dual meet away from home, Carolina's heavy artillery sunk the Navy at Annapolis by a 72-54 count. Frank Abernethy and Harry Williamson led the Tar Heels by establishing new meet records.

Conference Meet

May 19 saw Carolina come through with one of the greatest triumphs in its history on the track—a victory in the Southern Conference meet at the Duke stadium. Carolina thus has taken all the championship meets in the new Southern Conference, and five of the 13 annual meets held. The final tallies were: Carolina 58; Maryland 49 3-4, and Duke 47 1-2 for the first three places.

Harry Williamson, though he was defeated by Mothershead of V. P. I. in the mile event, captured the 880-yard event in time only .1 second short of the conference mark and ran a brilliant anchor-leg in the mile relay to take second place for Carolina.

Cross Country Crown Won By Tar Heel Team

Team Wins All Meets; Wrests Southern Conference Title from Duke Harriers.

Carolina won its first Southern Conference crown of the 1934-1935 season on November 25 when the harriers dethroned Duke over the Chapel Hill course, climaxing a season of three dual wins which had also brought the State championship.

In the first meet the harriers made a most auspicious debut, almost duplicating their 1934 score with a 15-49 triumph over N. C. State. Five Tar Heels crossed the finish line in a tie for first—McRae, Waldrop, Curlee, Gammon and Haywood.

Take Generals

Following a cancellation with Tennessee's Vols, the Tar Heels traveled to Lexington, Virginia, to face the Generals of Washington and Lee over a hard five-mile course. As was expected, Carolina's squad returned with a 20-43 victory.

For the only time of the season an opponent crossed the line ahead of a Blue and White runner—Captain Dunaj, 1933 Conference individual champion, led the field in a record-breaking time of 28 minutes, 58.5 seconds. McRae was second, with seven more Tar Heels crossing the line

Indoor Track Team Retains 1934 Title

Outscores Strong Maryland and Duke Teams in Annual Winter Track Classic Held Here.

In the outstanding event of the Dixie indoor track season —the annual Southern Conference meet — Carolina's great team successfully defended its 1934 title by decisively outscoring the strong Duke and Maryland clubs.

After the hustle and bustle of a marvelous show had ended, the Tin Can score board plainly told the tale: Carolina 45 1-2, Duke 27, Maryland 24, Virginia 17, Washington and Lee 10, V.P.I. 6, and V. M. I. one.

Six New Records

Six new marks were set in a dozen events, three by the victorious Tar Heel team, two by Maryland, and one by W. & L.

Harry Williamson, Carolina's middle distance star, stole the evening's show when he made record-breaking triumphs in both the 880 and mile events.

Carolina's other record performer was Co-captain Charlie Hubbard, whose leap of 23 feet, 8 1-4 inches, in the broad jump was 1 1-4 inches further than the existing mark. However, in so doing, Hubbard pulled a leg muscle which forced his with-

Carolina Tennis Team Makes Remarkable Record For 1935 Season

Captain Levitan Ends Net Career After Taking Conference Titles

Only One Meet Is Lost To Mar Team's Record

Levitan, Harris, Willis, Shore, De Gray, and Minor Shine During Successful Year.

LOSE ONLY TO PRINCETON

Jot down another banner year for Carolina in the world of tennis. During the recently completed 1935 season, the varsity team annexed the State and Southern Conference titles while individual players captured both the singles and doubles crowns in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate, State, and Southern Conference championships.

An undefeated campaign was marred by a solitary set-back at the hands of the snarling Princeton Tigers, 7-2. The big six that accomplished the notable task of defeating 18 other opponents were Captain Walter Levitan, Harvey Harris, Ricky Willis, Frank Shore, Eddy De Gray, and Bill Minor.

First Matches

Downing Dartmouth 7-1 in an early season game, the varsity continued onward with victory after victory until Princeton rose on its haunches and cast aside all hopes of national recognition for the Tar Heel players.

112 Victories

This season's record added to previous showings in recent years brings the Carolina victory list to 112 since Coach Kenfield has asumed charge of the team in 1927.

During this stretch of time, only four matches have been lost and one deadlocked. It was this enviable record that has made Carolina a recognized contender for the mythical national intercollegiate championship on three separate occasions.

Titles have also flocked to the individual players on the squad. In early fall Walter Levitan and Harvey Harris traversed the 400 miles to White Sulphur Springs in West Virginia and returned with the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate doubles title. It was primarily a doubles tournament but as an additional flourish Levitan stepped out and annexed the singles crown.

In the spring season Harvey Harris, then playing first singles for the varsity, routed a field of the Old North State collegians and won the State championship rather handily. It was an all-Carolina semi-final when Harris had to eliminate Wild Bill Minor in the final. The doubles was also a Tar Heel event with Levitan and De Gray downing Shore and Minor in the deciding match.

Conference Play

The gala Southern Conference championship, staged this year in Chapel Hill, passed into the hands of Captain Levitan of Carolina. Levitan finished his varsity career in a blaze of glory, upsetting Carl Rohmann, the defending champion from Virginia, in the quarter-final, and later routing Eddy De Gray, Tar Heel sophomore, in a straight set final victory to take the coveted championship.

In addition, the two finalists, Levitan and De Gray, captured their second doubles crown by rallying superbly against Bill Minor and Archie Henderson in the final round.

This year was no let down and the prospects for next year are most promising with Ramsay Potts, Eddy Fuller, Johnny Foreman, Gordon Robinson, and Frank Farrell, moving from the freshman ranks into budding varsity material.

MURAL ATHLETICS CLOSE GOOD YEAR

Participation Begins Early in Year with Football Games and Ends with Tennis Matches.

The intramural athletic department again carried through a successful year with a heavy slate that started right after the opening of school and carried through this past week.

Tag football was the first sport started, but mid-way during the season attention was focused on the annual cake race. The big event came off on October 19, with Joe River, Savannah, Georgia, freshman leading the pack.

Despite the fact that one of its own men led the way, Ruffin dorm did not score in enough of the low places, and yielded the team championship to Sigma Nu.

Wrestling Tournament

November 21-22 were the days set aside for the annual wrestling tournament. After plenty of groaning and grunting, Ruffin emerged as campus champions, with Lewis second, and the Dekes third.

Following a long schedule, Law School and Sigma Nu met on the gridiron for the campus championship which the former won by a 7-3 margin. All scoring occurred in the first period.

The championship Lawyers led in the placings on the All-Campus mural grid team and its Captain Tom Parson was made leader of the mythical combine.

Boxing Tournament

The annual boxing tournament ended the quarter's activity on December 11-12, with Mangum dormitory taking the crown as 1,000 enthused spectators witnessed the finals. Delta Tau Delta was second and Ruffin third.

The program resumed after the Christmas holidays with the basketball competition in which forty-four teams were entered. After playing for eight weeks Mangum No. 1 and Swain Hall were tied for the dorm title, and Phi Kappa Sigma, S. A. E., and D. K. E. were even in the fraternity race. Following play-offs, Mangum No. 1 and Deke met for the campus crown.

As was expected the resultant battle proved to be a rough, hard affair, with the Mangum quintet emerging as victors by a 32-29 count. Led by Thurman Vick, the victors got off to a fast start, and for them it was a lucky thing, because only in the first period did they outscore the Dekes.

Aycock Wins

Just before the winter quarter ended, Aycock dormitory entered into the championship class as it captured both the table tennis and bowling titles. In the former, the trio of Rubin, Goodes, and Fuller, defeated the Phi Kappa Sigs 3-0, and in the latter Heiderich, Onasch, and Schiffer took the crown by a 1019 to 1008 score from Grimes.

Due to the scarcity of playing fields, the spring quarter's baseball program was run as a tournament instead of a regular league. S. A. E. won the fraternity title, and was downed by the Ringers who were the dormitory champions.

The many new tennis courts saw plenty of action as they were used almost daily by the intramural tennis teams. S. A. E. emerged the winner of the fraternity play, but was beaten in the finals by the Aycock pair to end the year's intramural program.

FRESHMAN TEAMS HAVE VARIED LUCK THROUGHOUT YEAR

Basketball Team Enjoys the Most Successful Season of All Freshman Athletic Teams.

Carolina's freshmen enjoyed one of their most successful years on the athletic field this past season, and next year's varsity squads can indeed look forward to quantities of excellent material in all sports.

The fine achievements of the stellar Tar Baby basketeers marked a new high for the other teams to shoot at. Led by Earl Ruth and Pete Mullis the hoopsters swept through all opposition to cop the State Championship with a grand total of 15 victories to one defeat. The yearlings averaged 38 points per contest scoring a season's total of 607 points against 367 for the opposition.

Bershak Stars

Although the frosh football team didn't show much in the official tabulations, winning three and losing two, they proved themselves to be a powerful and formidable eleven on the field. Power plus speed and deception was their formula, and they worked it successfully. Bunny Burnette, ace back, and Andy Bershak, elusive end, were the main cogs in the Tar Baby offensive and defensive respectively.

The yearling ball team was

SOPHOMORES STAR ON '35 MAT TEAM

Captain Sim Efland Is Only Letterman Used.

Molding the team around one letterman, Captain Sim Efland, and four sophomores who were outstanding on the freshman team, Coach Quinlan was able to present only a mediocre team. The sophomore stars who composed the nucleus of the team were Bonner, Douglas, Umstead, and Ward.

The varsity team opened the mat season in grand style with an impressive 23-9 win over the V.P.I. Gobblers. Frank Umstead made his varsity debut a great success by pinning Chambers in 2:39. Gholson, Bonner, and Ranson also scored falls while Ward gained an over whelming time advantage of 9:50 minutes over his opponent.

State Meet

The next week-end the grapplers journey over to Raleigh to meet the powerful Wolfpack club. Umstead and Captain Efland gathered Carolina's only points by time advantages in the Tar Heel defeat, 18-6.

With both Douglas and Bonner left behind on account of illness, the grapplers journeyed up to Lexington on the next week-end to meet W. and L.'s Southern Conference champions. Umstead suffered the first defeat of his career at the hands

Conference Champ

Above is Captain Sam Giddens who led the Tar Heel ringmen through a rather successful season. Giddens climaxed a four year boxing career at Carolina by annexing the 165-pound Southern Conference championship in the Charlottesville tournament.

TAR HEEL BOXERS HAVE FAIR SEASON

Season's Record Lists Three Wins, One Loss, and a Tie.

Despite the fact that Coach Crayton Rowe had a nucleus of but two veterans around which to build a boxing squad, he managed to present a formidable aggregation to opposing teams. When one begins to realize that Captain Sam Giddens and Captain-elect Ernie Eutsler were the only veterans on the squad, a record of three victories, one tie, and one defeat seems like a good season.

With five sophomores in the line-up, the ringsters took V. P. I. by a 7-1 score; South Carolina by a 6 1-2 to 1 1-2 score; and N. C. State by a 6 1-2 to 1 1-2 count. The Duke match resulted in a 4-4 tie, and the Cavaliers eked out a 4 1-2 to 3 1-2 victory over Carolina.

Giddens Wins

Captain Sam Giddens was the lone Tar Heel to capture a Southern Conference championship. "Gids" won the middleweight crown when he decisively trimmed Mickey Lombardo, of Maryland, in the finals. He climaxed four years of ringwork with this brilliant victory, and ended his long career in a somewhat spectacular fashion.

Rumors and newspapers have both verified the reports that Carolina should have had at least one, and possibly two more Conference champs. The spectators and newspapermen at the ringside booed lustily when the referee awarded Kaplin of Virginia the decision over Novich of Carolina. The decision handed to Lombardo over Duke's Matulewiecz was also an unpopular one. In Fisher's bout with Humphlett, of South Carolina, the referee stopped the bout and awarded the Gamecock a technical knockout over the Carolina welter. Both boys were cut and bleeding profusely with newspaper stories maintaining that it was quite obvious that Humphlett was in a poorer condition than Fisher.

Diehl

Marion Diehl, flashy bantamweight, had quite a successful season. He lost but one bout in dual competition and surprised everyone with his decision over Archie Hahn of Virginia. He lost to Hahn in the finals of the Southern Conference championships in Charlottesville.

before another home team man.

On November 19, Carolina stopped the two-year reign of Duke, defeating the Blue Devils over their own course at Durham 25-36. Again McRae led the winners, and his time of 28 minutes, 10.7 seconds, was one of the fastest ever made on the course.

A fitting climax to the season was the marvelous victory in the Southern Conference meet, Carolina leading with 31 and Duke second with 52. Ed McRae ended his career in a blaze of glory, defeating a fast field and gaining revenge over Dunaj. His time of 26 minutes, 21.6 seconds was just 15 seconds short of equaling the record.

Waldrop took third place, Gammon eighth, Curlee ninth, and Conte tenth to round out the victorious Carolina five. Other outstanding men during the season were Haywood, Allen, Bower, and Aderholt.

The team was managed by Brainard Rorison and captained by Harry Williamson, who was unable to compete because of an injury.

Baseball Team Of Past Year Turns In Mediocre Record

Injuries and Bad Luck Hamper Team Throughout the Season; Begin Season with Loss to Davidson in Extra Innings, and End Year with Brilliant Victory over Navy.

Injuries, the banning of Guy Fletcher, one of the most promising pitching prospects in years, and Captain Vick's compulsory absence in the latter half of the season, all combined to undermine Carolina's baseball team and leave them with an unusually bad record for the season.

Coach Bunn Hearn and his cohorts opened a tough 24-game schedule by dropping the first contest to the Davidson Wildcats, a 3-2 eleven-inning affair. Crouch hurled notably but was nicked for the winning marker after two were out in the eleventh.

Beat Deacons

The Tar Heels broke into the win column with a decisive 6-2 victory over the Demon Deacons from Wake Forest. Strayhorn, playing his first game in varsity regalia, clouted a homer and a single while Crouch ably took care of the mound duties.

Coach Bunn's boys made it two straight when they took the strong State nine into camp by the score of 5-3. Crouch gained his second victory of the week in subduing the Wolves.

The Deacons obtained revenge for the previous defeat when they stopped the Tar Heels, 6-2. Crouch, continuing to pitch all of Carolina's games, was the losing hurler. Voliva starred at bat for the losers.

The Carolina nine added a win to its column when Crouch,

KING ISSUES LAST COPY OF ENGINEER

Copies Will Be Available at Dean Miller's Office in Phillips Hall.

Ending their careers as student journalists, Editor Walter King and Business Manager Monroe Evans issue their last copy of the Carolina Engineer this week. Copies will be available at the dean's office in Phillips hall on Tuesday.

Featured in this last issue will be several articles by engineering students. Those contributing are Ernest Eutsler, J. B. Carne, Selby Harney.

Professor T. F. Hickerson has an article on highway safety. A former University student, Robert Howell, has contributed an account of the work on Bonville Power Project, where he is employed as engineer.

The officers for next year who will assume office in the fall are Tom Gordy, editor; Caulder Atkinson, business manager.

Freshman Teams

similar to the frosh footballers inasmuch as they didn't do as well as they should have. The material was all there, and they often played brilliant baseball, but their inconsistency and their failure to come through at crucial moments led to the five defeats that they suffered in the course of the season. However, at the close of the season they made up partially for their early losses by winning two games from Duke in a three game series. Johnny Humphries pitched some good ball, while Burnette, Grubb, and Collins showed skill at the plate and in the field.

The boxing squad didn't fare so well this year, losing more than they won. But when their big meet against Duke was held at the close of the season, the pugilists rose to their greatest heights to trim the Blue Imps decisively. The slugging "Tiger" Shores lost only one match and that was to Ferrar of Duke, recognized as the best in the country at his weight.

Although the varsity wrestling team had a miserable season the frosh grunters stepped out and won three of their four matches. Underdogs throughout the season they displayed a great deal of capability and even more spunk to pile up commanding leads against Duke, State, and V.P.I. Their only loss was suffered at the hands of V.M.I. in their initial meet.

Carolina's tennis reputation once more was held intact by what was, perhaps, the best freshman tennis team to play on the University courts in quite some time. They went through an undefeated season gaining a reputation almost equal to that of Carolina's Conference Champions. Practically every man on the squad enjoyed a ranking of some sort, but Ramsey Potts and Eddie Fuller were the outstanding members of the team. Neither of the two lost a match, taking all their opponents with ease.

The tracksters did not do well in their meets but some excellent material came to the fore. Fred Ullman led the pack often in the 220 yd. dash and gave promise of becoming a star on next year's varsity. There were others who should also develop into capable performers on the varsity squad.

The first year men were not too interested in golf and consequently the yearling golf team was not up to par. Kirven captained the divot diggers and also scored the majority of points for his team.

Conference track meet. Worked like hell the University clubmen. Nothing was done about the co-eds.

String Co-Eds

False alarms about the Utility Commission hearing on the proposed bus route sent members of the organization wild. Announcement upon announcement as to the date of the hearing . . . Volunteers upon volunteers to go to Raleigh . . . Hearing postponed. Nothing was done about the co-eds.

Smokers during the spring vacation for prospective students were under the direction of the club co-operating with alumni in various towns in the state.

High School week was the first big event to claim the attention of the group in the spring quarter. Finders of rooms for the high school students, ushers at debates, and general utility men were the University clubmen. With this experience behind them, the members of the club voted to assist in Boy Scout week.

The final meetings of the term of the 1934-35 members were devoted to discussion of prospecpective initiates, ways and means of securing support for the bus route hearing, postponed from time to time by Durham patriots, and entertaining visiting athletes.

Coach "Bob" was the main speaker at the induction of the new members. Co-eds were elected to membership.

sociation of University Women.

Four girls were bid into Phi Beta Kappa. Because of their two-year residence in this University, girls are required to make a higher average than they would if they had been at Carolina for four years. Pi Beta Phi's led the campus scholastic race for the fall quarter and the Chi Omega's took second place. For the winter quarter, Pi Phi's came in second and Chi O's, fourth.

Each quarter the co-eds gave a dance and on every Wednesday they entertained at tea in Spencer Hall. On January 22, members of the Shack had a card dance for members of the Golden Fleece, the Grail, the University Club, and the Interfraternity Council. On student-faculty day a reception was held by the co-eds at Graham Memorial for members of the University and visitors.

With the completion of the tennis matches the co-eds will have finish a successful year in athletics. Inter-class basketball ended with the colorful Pi Phi-Chi O game at Bynum gym. The first play day was held between the co-eds of this University, Duke, Woman's College, Meredith, and Peace. The games played were volley ball, captain ball, hat-pin ball, bat ball, tennis, archery, hockey, and tug-o-war.

Knauff, Music-Maker

Billy Knauff, maker of music at Swain hall since the winter quarter, has been booked with his orchestra for the opening of Myrtle each, S. C., on June 5. After bringing in the new summer season there, the orchestra will leave on June 10 for its permanent summer location.

To finish off his stay here, Knauff is arranging for little Sarah Ellen Deitz, who so charmingly sang for the Swainites not long ago, to sing again today in her own inimitable way. Al Merritt, who sang also recently, and whose voice shows qualities above those of crooning, will probably sing today also.

FINALS DANCE LEADERS

Here are four of the young ladies who, with their escorts, will lead the annual Finals set of dances Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

of Thomas, a former Conference champion, as his team went down 28-0.

Ward was forced out of the line-up the next week-end on account of illness, when the Tar Heels met the V.M.I. Cadets in the Tin Can. Umstead registered Carolina's lone fall in fast time as Gholson and Bonner defeated their opponents by time advantages as their team went down in defeat, 19-11.

Davidson Meet

On the following week-end, the Davidson Wildcats came to Chapel Hill and handed the Tar Heels a 16-14 licking.

Carolina's second win of the year came when they journeyed over to Duke to close the season with a 19-13 win over the Blue Devils.

Captain Sim Efland ended his varsity career with a win over Friedlander to clinch the state title honors in the 165 pound class.

Coach Quinlan took four grapplers including Captain Efland, Umstead, Ward, and Bonner up to the Southern Conference tournament. Ward, fighting in the 135 pound class, reached the finals but was defeated by Witt of V. M. I. Bonner, who reached the semi-finals, took a second place, along with Ward.

stormy capitalism debate were Challengers Arnold Williams and James Wishart of the left wing, Professor Woodhouse and Durfee of the right and far right.

Two Functions Fulfilled

Quietly and for the greater part of the year uninspired by student interest, debating at the University has fulfilled two functions: 1. promoting better relations with other colleges and universities; 2. training debaters in logic and self-expression.

They're the Tops

Top-ranking debaters who received certificates on Awards Night are Don Seawell, Winthrop Durfee, Francis Fairley, Norman Kellar, R. Phillips Russel, Harry MacMullan, Oliver Cross, A. S. Kaplan and W. O. Jordan. Winning debating keys for the first time were Kellar, MacMullan, Cross and Jordan.

first year as a featherweight, turned in a creditable record of two victories and two defeats. Johnnie Edwards, game lightweight, made a valiant attempt in his first year of boxing and deserves a great deal of credit despite the three losses he suffered. He won one scrap and drew in one.

Joe Fisher had an unblemished record in dual competition. He had four notches signifying victories and boxed a draw with Southern Conference champion Womer.

Jule Medynski also had a good year. He had four victories in his cap, two of which were via the TKO route. Captain Giddens lost but two bouts as he chalked up three victories and a Conference championship. Fabri, of State, beat him in a hairline decision.

Maxie Novich, lightheavy, wound up his first year in a varsity uniform with five victories and no defeats. The setback he did receive was in Conference competition. Alderman, soph heavyweight, had one victory, one bout forfeited to him and fought one draw. Kanner, alternate heavyweight boxed twice and received setbacks in both bouts.

Tribute to Coaches

Due to the abundance of good material on this years' frosh squads, the Tar Heels should enjoy one of their best seasons on the athletic field next year. Coaches James, Skidmore, Kenfield, Rowe, Quinlan, Wright, Levinson, and Fysal deserve praise for the fine work they did in developing the freshmen during the past year.

aided by some lusty wallops from the bats of Shapiro, Rand, and Irwin, won over Virginia 5-3. The Cavaliers, however, revenged this defeat immediately when Rogers, Virginia ace moundsman, shut out the home club, 4-0.

The Technicians lost a free-hitting game to the Tar Heels, 9-8. Strayhorn, Tatum, and Groome starred at bat.

The Carolina team lapsed into a losing streak which extended for six games. Duke triumphed 7-2, by defeating Crouch while Webster succumbed to Wake Forest 2-0. In the latter game the Tar Heel nine was able to collect only three hits. Duke duplicated the shutout feat, winning 4-0.

The Duke Blue Devils' eleven-hit barrage coupled with a number of errors sent the Hearnmen down to defeat 14-1. Tommy Irwin obtained two of Carolina's four hits.

Northern Trip

On the northern tour Coach Bunn's team was first shut out by Richmond 7-0, and then lost a close one to Maryland 7-5. Webster pitched nicely but a number of bad breaks cost Carolina the game.

The Tar Heels closed the season in grand style by whipping the Naval Academy 11-8. Fred Crouch twirled and kept the Middies well in check. He was ably assisted by Bullard and Strayhorn at the bat.

drawal from the sprints and caused him to stay on the side lines for the greater portion of the outdoor season.

Evans Beats Drake

The Old Liners were credited with two new marks. Evans captured the 440-yard win after a torrid battle with "Red" Drake of Carolina in the new time of 52.5 seconds, and the crack mile relay quartet scored the other as it won in 3:34.6.

Perhaps one of the most pleasing events of the meet was the mile run, in which three Carolina men crossed the finish line well ahead of the pack—Gammon and Gabori following Williamson. In the 880, Bob Gardiner trailed Williamson for another Carolina runner-up place.

The team was co-captained by Charlie Hubbard and Tom Hawthorne, and managed by Brainard Rorison.
